Higdon decides not to run against Hubbard

FANCY FARM, Ky. (AP) — State Sen. Greg Higdon folded his campaign against U.S. Rep. Carroll Hubbard in the May Democratic primary.

Higdon, of Fancy Farm, said Thursday he got encouragement to run and promises of votes, but little money — only about $6,000. A successful race against the entrenched Hubbard would cost at least $200,000, which was more than he could raise in eight months, Higdon said.

"My war chest is better suited to a short skirmish than a protracted struggle," Higdon said in a statement. "And, clearly, winning this race would be a long, uphill struggle."

There also was the prospect of a special legislative session this year, plus the General Assembly's regular session in January through April, leaving little time for campaigning, he said.

"I feel like I gave it my best shot," Higdon said. "I've never been afraid to make a tough decision, and I'm not afraid to make a tough decision in reverse."

Higdon, who has been in the Senate since 1982 and is the majority whip, seemed to rule out running for re-election next year. Candidates for his seat surfaced after Higdon announced he would run against Hubbard.

"I never like to say never, but I think there are some qualified people running," Higdon said.

Hubbard said Higdon called him in Washington on Thursday to tell him he had issued a news release announcing his withdrawal.

"Greg Higdon has had an outstanding career in the state Senate, including being Senate whip, and in that role, he continues to represent the people of western Kentucky well," Hubbard told The Paducah Sun.

Calloway family reaches out to Russians in need

By DANIEL T. PARKER
Ledge & Times Managing Editor

In the early 1980s, a young girl named Samantha Smith used the post office to help start the thawing out of the Cold War between the United States and the Soviet Union. Now, with the U.S.S.R. in chaos, Amy and Whitney Curtis of Murray are hoping the post office can help them in their efforts to erase the memories of the Cold War altogether.

"We encouraged this over there," Amy Curtis said, referring to the recent giant strides toward democracy which have all but crushed the power of the Communist Party in the Soviet Union. "Now, we need to help them ... I really want them to know that freedom can work, that freedom will work."

Smith, who died in a plane crash a few years ago, began her effort with a letter to Soviet premier Mikhail Gorbachev, simply asking why the peoples of the two nations couldn't be friends. Gorbachev's warm response and Smith's resulting trip to the Soviet Union generated news coverage which began showing the Russian people as ordinary human beings.

Now, news coverage is portraying the Russian people as ordinary human beings who are in danger of severe famine even as they struggle to create a democratic government. It was more news coverage of the Soviet Union's food shortages which prompted Amy Curtis' plan. "Whitney and I had been talking about the plight of the Russian people," she said Thursday afternoon. "You see it in the news all the time." It was on the news again at 10 o'clock Tuesday night, and when the program ended, Curtis' plan began taking form.

Like Smith's letter, the idea

Amy Curtis came up with on Tuesday night was born out of a deep concern, and is so simple that it has baffled most of the bureaucratic minds Curtis has come in contact with since.

Curtis, who has a young child, began thinking of Russian mothers unable to feed their children, and wondered why she couldn't get a name of a need Russian family, write to them, find out what they need, and send it to them.

She took action immediately, attempting to call officials in the Soviet Union. Two hours later, unable to get anything accomplished, she went to bed — but mentioned her idea to Whitney the next morning. He encouraged her to pursue the idea, so Amy Curtis went back to the phone.

Her phone odyssey included dealing with a rude network television switchboard operator and a somewhat comical Russian Embassy official ("This is not my pair of shoes," he told her), but while she became frustrated at the amount of bureaucratic stonewalling, she also encountered some helpful people, mentioning an AT&T overseas operator and Elwanda Newbold, a "really sweet and helpful" caseworker in U.S. Rep. Carroll Hubbard's office who saw that the idea was presented to the State Department — who rejected it as "not worth the effort."

Finally, however, Curtis got through to a "high-level governmental agency" that must remain anonymous — because the people at the agency went beyond their official duties to steer her toward a church agency in Texas.

That agency, which also wishes to remain uncredited, eagerly embraced Curtis' idea, and prom-

Hospital Board discusses bonds

By CYRUS AFZALI
Murray Ledge & Times Staff Writer

The board of commissioners of Murray-Calloway County Hospital finalized plans to refinance existing bonds and create new bonds at its monthly meeting Thursday.

Greg Phillips and George Sullivan, representing the firm of Hilliard and Lyons, made the proposals at the meeting.

A new construction bond for as much as five million will be issued to finance items outlined in the major building program such as expanding x-ray facilities, building a new lab and expanding outpatient surgery and housekeeping, said hospital administrator Stuart Poston.

The second bond matter discussed involves refinancing the existing $1.8 million debt remaining on the West View Nursing Home. After bond holders are paid interest, the total cost on this project will total $2.2 million.

"We would sell bonds of 2.2 million in order to pay off the existing issue which is not callable until 1995. When they were sold, the bond holders they were told they would not have to sell them for 10 years. They wanted to protect the investment they have,"

Poston said.

Phillips said the refinancing undertaken was a matter of simple economics.

"It's similar to refinancing your house. We would save three percentage points which equals about $20,000 a year. The (existing) bonds would be sold after the first of the year. We would go out and seek new bonds on the West View project," Phillips said.

Goodyear to move some production to other plant, lays off 230 workers

Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co.'s plant in Union City, Tenn. has lost a battle for work with the company's Gadsden, Ala., plant and as a result about 230 people will lose their jobs, according to a published report.

The first of the affected employees received notices Thursday and the process should be completed in about a month, said Jimmy Cagle, the plant's public relations director.

With continued soft sales in the tire business, and recent price battles between the nation's major tire suppliers, manufacturers have been seeking greater efficiencies. General Tire said last month it would close its Canadian plant because others were more efficient.

Goodyear's Union City plant, with a capacity of 50,000 tires a day, is now making 44,000 tires a day. Production will be cut back here to about 39,000 tires a day.

"Goodyear wants to build tires as cost-effectively as possible, so they're moving these 5,000 tires to Gadsden," Cagle said. "We can't talk about particular machines and processes, but it's a matter of them being able to build the tires on a more cost-effective basis."

Goodyear's plant here now employs about 2,000 people, down from a recent peak of 3,100.

Effort underway to salvage plan for national highway through state

PRESTONSBURG, Ky. (AP) — U.S. Rep. Chris Perkins said an effort is afoot to salvage a national highway bill that includes a new interstate that would cross Kentucky.

The so-called "Interstate 66" project is part of a five-year, $150 billion spending plan. But funding for the project has recently been called into question.

House members had proposed raising the federal gasoline tax a nickel to pay for the roads, a provision not included in the Senate version. But Perkins, D-7th District, said Thursday some House members were backing off their support for the tax.

However, he said the chairman and ranking members of the House Surface Transportation Subcommittee and Public Works Committee began working on a compromise Wednesday.

The tentative proposal would eliminate the 5-cent tax and replace it with a 2½-cent levy. Instead of a five-year plan, the tax would be extended to six years, Perkins said.

"That's the latest bloom being floated," he said. "But it's good news."

David Whalin, a Perkins aide in Washington, D.C., said "the architects of the compromise were running computer programs to recalculate costs with the new proposal."

Last ride of the Barbara Don?

Wednesday afternoon's crossing of the Mississippi River was supposed to be the last ever for the Hickman Ferry after local efforts to save the landmark had failed. A segment on Wednesday morning's "Today" show on NBC, however, has spurred nation-wide interest in preserving the ferry, and officials are now hopeful that the "Barbara Don" will be back.

Marina operators across Kentucky asked to submit tax information on boat owners

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Marina operators throughout Kentucky are being asked to provide information to help the state Revenue Cabinet collect taxes that boat owners may owe.

The cabinet wants the names of all boat owners who rent or own dock space as an effort is made to see if they owe property and use taxes.

But not all marina operators are in favor of the idea and nine are challenging the cabinet in court. They say the move will scare boaters away.

"They will destroy our industry on the water and not collect any tax," said Mike Humphrey, president of Sulphur Creek Resort on Dale Hollow Lake near Kettle, one of the nine marinas.

Four of the nine marinas involved in the case are in the Louisville area.

The cabinet had obtained court orders to get the information from the nine marinas last month. But the marinas then challenged the orders, and Franklin Circuit Judge William Graham yesterday put them on hold until he decides whether the cabinet has the authority to get the information.

William E. Johnson, attorney for the marinas, told Graham dur-

Committee still undecided as Thomas hearing reaches final day

By JAMES ROWLEY
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee says he is in a quandary over whether to accept Supreme Court nominee Clarence Thomas' disavowal of views he expressed as a Reagan administration official.

"I'm wrestling with what you have all said, in one form or another — the issue of credibility," Sen. Joseph R. Biden Jr., D-Del., on Thursday told a group of civil rights leaders who testified against Thomas' nomination.

At the same time, Biden said he was not persuaded by arguments that the conservative nominee showed opposition to abortion in speeches and writings as chairman of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission in the Reagan administration.

Biden, who says he is undecided on Thomas' nomination, made his comments as the Judiciary Committee continued to hear from public witnesses on both sides of the issue.

The panel planned to take testimony from more than 30 witnesses today on the final day of confirmation hearings.

A committee vote on Thomas' nomination to be the nation's second black Supreme Court justice could come as early as next Thursday, with action by the full Senate the following week.

Democrats and Republicans alike are predicting that Thomas will win confirmation.

Critics contend that Thomas misled the committee by denying that he ever spoke out against abortion and insisting he advocated natural-law principles as political theory not as a method of interpreting the Constitution.

ing a hearing that the Revenue Cabinet was inappropriately using the law by making the marinas do what the state should do.

"It's seeking to make citizens into tax collectors," Johnson said. He argued that, unlike other cases in which the Revenue Cabinet attempts to get information with court orders, this time the agency has no specific taxpayer in mind.

The law allows the agency to examine business records, according to Arnold Jones, an attorney for the cabinet. He called it "our main enforcement tool."

Several other marinas have cooperated and information has been turned over to the Revenue Cabinet, although spokesman Scott Akers did not know how many. After getting the information, the agency sends questionnaires to boaters to determine whether they should be paying taxes.

The questionnaires are scaring off boaters and sending them to docks in neighboring states that don't charge property taxes on boats, according to the marina operators.

Chandler visits Murray

Albert Benjamin Chandler, III, the Democratic nominee for state auditor, visited Calloway County Thursday, only the second time since he won the primary election.

Chandler said he envisions a somewhat changed role for the office of state auditor, which is in charge of "watch-dogging" the financial procedures of state and local governments.

Instead of just performing audits, Chandler said the auditor's office needs to concentrate on efficiency studies of government to find where state money is being wasted.

"I want to look beyond the books," Chandler said. "The office will still have to perform the things that it does now but also keep an eye on management and efficiency of governments."

Chandler, 32, is a Versailles native and the grandson of Albert Benjamin "Happy" Chandler who was two-time Kentucky governor, U.S. senator and Major League Baseball commissioner.

Chandler received a B.A. in history from the University of Kentucky in 1983 and his doctoral degree from the University of Kentucky School of Law in 1986.

Chandler has served in various capacities in the Department of Agriculture, the Attorney General's Office, the Cabinet of Human Resources and the Governor's Office.

News of the World

U.S.S.R.

MOSCOW — President Mikhail S. Gorbachev has accused former legislative Speaker Anatoly Lukyanov, his old friend and law-school colleague, of being in on the plot against him from the start, according to remarks published today. The Tass news agency published brief excerpts of what it said was a two-hour conversation Gorbachev had with senior Soviet journalists following an interview with them that was broadcast earlier this week. Gorbachev was quoted as saying one of the alleged coup leaders, Oleg Baklanov, described Lukyanov as one of the plotters "at the very beginning." "But later they probably decided to keep him behind the scene, to give a touch of legality to the situation," Gorbachev said. The comments were Gorbachev's most detailed to date on Lukyanov's role in the failed Aug. 18-21 coup.

YUGOSLAVIA

ZAGREB — Federal tanks and artillery roared into Croatia today and attacked troops from the secessionist republic that have surrounded army barracks and cut off their supplies, Croatian officials said. The offensive could also be aimed at knocking out the few remaining Croat strongholds in the republic's east, where ethnic Serbs are a majority. The attack, a sharp escalation in the 2-month-old fighting, could be a prelude to a major assault on Vukovar and Osijek, two cities that stand in the way of total Serbian control of the ethnic Serb enclave in eastern Croatia. Nearly 500 people have died in battles between the republic's forces and anti-secession ethnic Serbs backed by the Serb-led federal army. The violence began after Croatia declared independence June 25. If the federal military offensive succeeds in gaining control of all Serb-dominated areas, it would reduce Croatia to a smaller and weaker republic.

JORDAN

AMMAN — Secretary of State James A. Baker III held a surprise meeting today with a Palestinian representative who came to the Jordanian capital with the approval of the Palestine Liberation Organization. Hanan Ashrawi, a professor of languages who lives in the West Bank, is one of three Palestinians who has met six times with Baker in Jerusalem and Washington. After meeting with Ashrawi, Baker returned to Syria for a five-hour meeting with President Hafez Assad to discuss a draft letter outlining U.S. positions on issues of concern to the Syrians. Baker then departed for Washington. "We made some progress," a State Department official said after today's meeting with the Ashrawi. But he also indicated the United States was unwilling to yield on any of the major demands by the Palestinians.

BAHRAIN

MANAMA — A team of 13 U.N. inspectors left today for Iraq to search for biological weapons, and nuclear experts are ready to go over the weekend. Members of the U.N. Special Committee, in charge of dismantling Iraq's weapons of mass destruction, declined to detail their inspection plans at their regional base in Bahrain. Dr. David Huxsoll said his biological weapons team had "new leads to pursue" and expected to stay 12 days. "We know they have labs that do biological research and we're interested in looking into these to ensure they are not doing research for military purposes," Huxsoll is associate dean for research and advanced studies in the School of Veterinary Medicine at Louisiana State University. Huxsoll is associate dean for research and advanced studies in the School of Veterinary Medicine at the University of Louisiana.

ISRAEL

JERUSALEM — The Housing Ministry today announced plans for a Jewish settlement in the heart of Arab east Jerusalem, the latest in a construction drive that has exacerbated tensions between Israel and the United States. The plans were disclosed as Secretary of State James A. Baker III was on his seventh trip to the Middle East to arrange a regional peace conference. The report coincided with a sharp attack by Finance Minister Yitzhak Mordechai on the acceleration of Jewish housing construction in the occupied Arab territories. "There's no particular need to anger the Americans," Mordechai said in an interview published today in the daily Yedioth Ahronoth. "Accelerated building in the territories as a deliberate provocation against them is an act of stupidity of the highest order."

CAMBODIA

UNITED NATIONS — With agreement on an electoral system, Cambodia's government and guerrilla factions have overcome one of the last major obstacles to a peace settlement, diplomats said. The parties to the Cambodian dispute on Thursday adopted a compromise put forth in U.N.-mediated talks by Undersecretary-General Rafeedun Ahmed, the chief U.N. official in charge of the Cambodian peace process. Cambodia has been at war for more than 20 years.

Letters to the Editor

Laker fan dislikes coverage of game

Dear Editor:

This letter is in regard to your newspaper's account of the most recent Calloway Co. Laker varsity football game. You indicated that the Laker team and sidelines were dead. Did it ever occur to you that the negative reporting by you and others may have contributed to the feelings of these young men? Many times we see ourselves as others see us, and negative reporting in this case has most certainly led to a very down team!

Could it be possible on your part to point out the positive aspects of the Laker team? Or can you even see the positive points there?

You might consider that this Calloway team has several young and for the most part inexperienced players. Not a plus for this year, but watch out in the next few years!

Also, I would like to commend these young men on their sportsmanship. This is something we hear so little about today, as all we want to do is win. As I have sat through all Laker games this year, not once have I seen a Calloway player display any behavior that was even questionable. (That's more than I can say for the teams they have competed against.)

In closing these young men and their coaches have character. There is something being learned at Calloway Co. High School other than win, win, win. It is work with what you have and do the best you can.

'America twists its morals and rhetoric'

Dear Editor: It can be said that America's attitude toward which foreign governments and policies it chooses to support is likened to the devout man who liked to smoke. He asked his priest, "Father, can I smoke while I pray?" The good soul was shocked and forbade the practice. "Is it all right, then, if I pray while I smoke?" That, the priest declared, was a moral thing to do!

In much the same way America twists its morals and rhetoric to suit the nation it is addressing. The United States just spent billions of dollars, not to mention human lives, defeating the occupation and annexation of Kuwait by Iraq. We demanded that Iraq not take the territory of another country for its own people. How dare Iraq smoke while it prays!

However, much has been made about President Bush's request for the delay in loans to Israel in an attempt to keep Israel from furthering building settlements in the occupied territories. These territories were annexed by Israel, the occupation of which was bankrolled by the United States. I suppose Israel is praying while it smokes.

I am not an expert on Middle East policy, nor am I a supporter of President Bush. Nevertheless, I am a trouble citizen when I see the blatant hypocrisy of our policies. It seems as though if anyone speaks out about the vast support of aid to Israel he/she is labelled anti-Semitic. I am not and to dismiss me as such is ignoring the issue. I am not opposed to foreign aid but I am opposed to 1 in ever 5 children in the United States living in poverty. It seems to me that until we have our own house in order, until we can feed our own people, we should be more cautious about where our money is going and how it is being used. Furthermore, if we are to be the priest, the nation that dictates what is moral and just for other nations then, perhaps, it is time to be no respecter of persons or nations.

State editorial roundup

The State Journal, Frankfort:

Louisville wants a new football stadium — domed to the tune of $100 million or under the clear blue sky for only $65 million — so badly that a committee studying the project is considering paying for it with a special lottery.

And, Kentucky Lottery Corp. President Jim Hosker says, in effect, why not? "We probably could come up with a game that would be acceptable to the legislature," Hosker says.

The right game with the right promotion could generate $10 million a year, he estimates. So let's go whole hog and set up a lottery fund to finance a University of Louisville stadium, an indoor football practice building at the University of Kentucky. ... Anybody down at Murray or up at Morehead want anything expensive for The Program?

Historically, of course, using lotteries to finance public works projects is an old, old idea. Why, construction of one of Frankfort's majestic old churches was financed by a lottery a couple of hundred years ago. However, we have to question the lottery president's assumption on two fronts:

We seriously doubt the General Assembly will be content to open up a can of worms by permitting a special lottery game to finance sports facilities.

We also wonder about Hosker's $10 million-a-year expectations from such a sports-facility lottery. That would amount to more than 30 percent of what the lottery is expected to return to the General Fund this year. Our guess is that a lot of people would play the sports-facility lottery at the expense of the other games, thus perhaps protecting those delicate UK and U of L football players from the icy elements, but depriving the state of a great deal of much-needed revenue.

(That, these days, is a no-no.)

The Paducah Sun:

Rep. Larry Hopkins' advocacy of a right-to-work law for Kentucky may serve the good purpose of rescuing this year's gubernatorial campaign from the inconsequential dreariness that has marked it so far. Here, at last, is a real issue with potential meaning to the lives of Kentuckians and about which a legitimate discussion on the merits is possible.

The most important ingredient for a debate is present — a clear-cut disagreement on the question between the two candidates.

Republican Hopkins, after dropping some plain hints earlier, now has vowed to press for a right-to-work law if elected governor. His Democratic opponent, Lt. Gov. Brereton Jones, has promised to veto such a bill if, as governor, he should find the measure on his desk.

Kentucky is the only Southern state that permits a so-called union shop, which requires all workers covered by a bargaining unit to join the union as a condition of continued employment. Passage of a right-to-work law would prohibit the union requirement.

Though no particular surge of opinion for change has been noticed, Rep. Hopkins' decision to take up the cause may stimulate interest in it.

So far, right-to-work is about the only discernible issue having to do with public policy that has surfaced in the Jones-Hopkins campaign.

Mostly, public discussion has been confined to vague platitudes and exchanges about tax returns, campaign debts/contributions and which candidate has been more negative in advertising.

The right-to-work issue is just one of the many substantive topics the candidates could be talking about. They should start.

Justice Thomas: What to expect

WASHINGTON — Barring some calamitous misstep by the nominee, the Senate Judiciary Committee this week will confirm Clarence Thomas for a seat on the Supreme Court. Confirmation by the Senate will follow swiftly. He may be in place by the time the court begins its term Oct. 7. What then?

My guess, based upon the high court's history, is that conservatives will be in for a few rude surprises on down the line. True, Thomas supports the old doctrines of strict construction and original intent. As a member of the Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia, he has demonstrated a strong sense of judicial restraint. Even so, the gentleman has his enigmatic aspects. Justices tend in time to lose their moorings and to float away. We ought not to take Thomas for granted.

The hearings have gone well. Thomas is not as articulate as Antonin Scalia, Anthony Kennedy and Sandra Day O'Connor. For good or ill, he lacks the acerbic brilliance of the defeated Robert Bork. He is no match for the scholarly David Souter in his mastery of case law. But Thomas will bring other assets to the high court. He has known discrimination, and he has known poverty. These are good teachers. He has learned useful lessons from them.

The question is asked, will Thomas, an accredited conservative, make a difference on the court? In the near term, probably not. He succeeds Thurgood Marshall, a tenured liberal who retired in June, but Marshall had not played a decisive role for quite some time.

During the 1990-91 term, Marshall was on the prevailing side in eight 5-4 decisions. None of them was a landmark case. Three criminal cases involved sentencing procedures; a fourth dealt with self-incrimination. Other close decisions had to do with anti-trust law, securities law, Canadian water rights, and the inherent power of federal judges to impose sanctions upon lawyers for misconduct. Would Thomas have voted differently? It would not have greatly mattered.

Marshall wrote 12 opinions for the court last term. Ten of them were what reporters classify as "lawyer stuff" or "tax stuff." Seven of the 12 were for a unanimous court, a sure indicator of a legal issue that requires no heavy lifting. Marshall has been a dormant volcano on the court; sometimes he erupted, but mostly he sat there and smoldered.

For the near future we may expect Thomas to mind his manners on the bench. He probably will defer most questions to others; in accordance with tradition, he will get an easy case for unanimous decision in November. I would not look for anything eventful from Thomas in the coming term.

The exception to that tranquil forecast, of course, has to do with the issue of abortion. At the moment the only scheduled case that touches upon abortion is Bray v. Alexandria Women's Health Clinic, set for argument Oct. 16, and that case deals more with trespass than with liberty.

It is possible that a case testing the new abortion laws of Louisiana, Utah or Guam may be accepted for argument in the spring. If so, the country will discover what a frustrated Judiciary Committee was unable to find out. We will learn whether Thomas believes the word "liberty" in the 14th Amendment embraces a woman's right to an abortion.

My guess is that Thomas will balk at directly overruling Roe v. Wade, the famous abortion decision of 1973. He believes in a right to privacy. He also believes in those doctrines of federalism embraced under the rubric of "state's rights." He is patently unwilling to impose his own notions of morality or theology upon elected legislators. He will vote, if my guess is on target, to uphold state laws that make abortion difficult but not impossible. That is a defensible position. Abortion ought never to be quick and easy.

In looking to the future, it is important to recognize that the court's course has been well-fixed since the retirements of Chief Justice Warren Burger in 1986 and Justice Lewis Powell in 1987. They were middle-rollers on many constitutional questions. Now the court is dominated by a bloc of five: Rehnquist, O'Connor, Scalia, Kennedy and Souter. Justice Byron White often provides a sixth vote. Thomas is expected to provide a surplus seventh.

This will leave Justices Harry Blackmun and John Paul Stevens writing dissenting opinions in key cases. Blackmun will be 83 in November. If he dies or retires while Bush is in the White House, the liberal bloc will be down to one.

Thomas will do well on the court. His opinions as a circuit judge reflect an orderly mind at work. He writes lucidly, occasionally epigrammatically. In both his private and his public life, he has put down good roots. From these we may expect good growth as the years roll by.

Capitalism captivates Castro crony

By GEORGE GEDDA
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — He was once Fidel Castro's best pal in Africa. He used to speak of the Soviet Union as the "dependable rear guard of all people who struggle for freedom and independence." Less than two years ago, he said one-party Marxist rule was indispensable for his country.

Thus, when Angolan President Jose Eduardo dos Santos paid a visit to the White House the other day, there was a "Guess Who's Coming To Dinner" quality to it.

Dos Santos has spent much of this past week flitting about Washington, telling government officials, interviewers, think tanks and business executives that he is ready for democracy and capitalism after long years of armed struggle against both.

His visit here marks another milestone in what has been a remarkable ideological migration.

In a New Year's Day speech last year, dos Santos said "Only a one-party system realistically serves our country. ... The (ruling) MPLA will guide the state and society."

Last Tuesday, the new dos Santos talked to a business group about just how much he is looking forward to national elections next year.

"I am excited about these elections for several reasons," he said. "They have allowed the people of Angola to form political parties and express themselves freely."

At another point, he said "I do not hide the fact that I have been the head of a socialist government, but we are a Marxist government no longer."

Dos Santos says he harbors no animosity toward the United States even though Washington's support for Angola's anti-communist guerrilla movement contributed in no small measure to the extraordinary devastation the country has suffered.

According to estimates published by the Overseas Development Council, Angola's civil war drove between 640,000 and 1.1 million Angolans from their homes. An additional 438,000 fled the country altogether.

The estimates indicated that war fatalities between 1980 and 1990 totaled 340,000, of which only 20,000 were military deaths.

This was just part of the price that Angola paid for its role as a surrogate battlefield of the United States and the Soviet Union. At one point, there were 50,000 Cuban troops supporting leftist rule in Angola.

In a recent interview, dos Santos had only praise for the U.S. role in promoting the peace agreement signed last May.

As for the hundreds of millions of dollars worth of war material the United States supplied to his enemies since 1986, dos Santos says that rather than dwell on the unpleasant past, "we have concluded we should look to the future."

It could be argued that dos Santos' conversion was forced on him. Earlier this year, he had a choice of continuing the war at a time of declining Soviet and Cuban support or making a deal with his U.S.-backed enemies.

Dos Santos chose the latter option, mindful that Angola had not known peace in three decades. But the price for dos Santos was high: he had to repudiate his cherished one-party rule.

With Angola finally at peace, he's counting on democracy, a free market and foreign private investment to give Angola a brighter future.

President Bush is prepared to continue sending food aid to Angola and modest sums to help with voter registration and other democratic trappings.

But Bush also wants to make sure that dos Santos' conversion from his Marxist past is genuine. He told dos Santos that U.S. diplomatic recognition of Angola will be withheld until an elected government takes office.

Meanwhile, Angola will continue on as one of two African countries without a U.S. Embassy. The other is Libya.

(EDITOR'S NOTE — George Gedda has covered foreign affairs for the Associated Press since 1968.)

Grandpa followed his natural laws

Listening to Judge Clarence Thomas talk so movingly about the old-fashioned values he learned from his hard-working grandfather, I thought back to my childhood and my grandfather and some of the things he taught me.

I couldn't have been more than 5 or 6 years old when he swiveled on his bar stool and said: "Listen to me. Never trust a Russian."

Because of my youth, I didn't know what a Russian was. So I asked him.

He said: "A Russian is no good." I asked him why a Russian is no good.

He said: "Never mind. Drink your ginger ale."

But I never forgot his admonition. Especially since he told me the same thing every Saturday, when he would come over and take me for a walk.

We never walked far. Only one block up Wolcott Avenue to the nearest tavern on Division Street, which in those days was known as Polish Broadway.

In two or three years, I knew what a Russian was. And that confused me because World War II had begun and the Russians were our heroic allies.

When I asked him about that, he shook his head and said: "Never trust a Russian."

When I asked my mother why my grandfather said that, she explained: "He doesn't like Russians."

I asked her why, and she said: "He doesn't trust them."

ROYKO SAYS

Mike Royko
Syndicated columnist

Then the war ended, and the Russians became the Evil Empire, and it turned out my grandfather had been right. At least for almost 50 years. And who can be sure about tomorrow?

It was only one of many valuable things he taught me.

As he sat in the tavern drinking his Saturday steins of beer, he would always say: "Tell your mother we went to Wicker Park."

The first time he said that I asked him why.

He said: "Because she told me to take you to Wicker Park."

I asked him why we didn't go to Wicker Park.

"Because I don't like Wicker Park. Too many flies and bugs. This is better."

So I would tell my mother that we had gone to Wicker Park, and that seemed to please her. And not going to Wicker Park pleased my grandfather. It also pleased me since I preferred drinking ginger ale in the cool bar. That meant that all three of us were pleased. But if we had gone to Wicker Park, my grandfather and I wouldn't have been as pleased. So I learned that freedom of choice and movement is what makes people happy. And I didn't like bugs, either.

He would also say: "Always take care of your brushes."

Few children get that advice from their grandfathers today. Modern grandfathers are more likely to say: "Why don't you see what's on the other channel?" or "Can't you turn that music down?" or "Did I tell you I shot an 89 with a double bogey on the last hole?" There probably isn't a child in America whose grandfather says: "Always take care of your brushes."

He said that because he was a professional painter. Not pictures, houses. Fine brushes, in all sizes, with wood handles and animal-hair fibers, were costly. And the paint of those days couldn't be washed off with water. The brushes had to be soaked and washed in some chemical that today's youth would snarl.

"If you don't take care of your brushes, you won't get work and you'll be a bum. You don't want to be like the Swede."

As he later explained, when I was old enough to understand, the Swede had been his regular partner. But the Swede drank while working. He said it immunized him against the fumes from the paint. So he often became so immunized that he failed to take care of his brushes. Then he had to buy new brushes and had less profit, and his wife rebuked him. And this caused him to brood, as Swedes are inclined to do, and he drank even more while working. And it became a vicious circle, ruined brushes, paint dripping in his eyes and finally disaster. He staggered off a scaffold and broke both legs.

Being a true friend, my grandfather went to the bed-ridden Swede's house and said: "You're out of work and you need money. Here, take this."

And he put $250 cash in the Swede's hand, a hefty sum in those days, and bought the Swede's car, for which the Swede had paid $400 three months earlier.

"I wouldn't have done that for a Russian," my grandfather said.

And that taught me about private enterprise and the free-market system.

Anyway, these memories came back as I listened to Judge Thomas remember his grandfather.

And when Sen. Ted Kennedy began grilling Judge Thomas on his social views, I thought about what my grandfather might have said to the senator.

Probably something like: "Stay off scaffolds."

Short-Term Memory Loss After Heart Surgery

Many people are very forgetful after open-heart and bypass surgery. While the stress of this life-threatening situation and the interrupted sleep that often happens during treatment may contribute to the problem, the primary culprit appears to be the cardiopulmonary assist (heart-lung) machines that take over the actions of the heart and lungs while doctors work. These may cause very tiny strokes that affect the patient's recent memory. The condition usually goes away about 6 months after the surgery. - HeartCare

On the girls' side, Connie Stealy shot a 42 to win medalist honors. Jennifer Howe fired a 44, while Joy Roach shot a 45. Kristen Hornback shot a 50, while Rachel Cella had a 69 and Kasy Wilson shot an 81.

Kelly Gupion led the Lady Lakers with a 52, while Farrah Beach shot a 61. Nikkie McMillen shot a 69, while Jennifer Clayton fired a 71.

SOCCER

Murray defeated St. Mary's 4-0, while the Calloway Lady Lakers fell to Marshall County 3-1 in girls' soccer play on Thursday.

Jill Miller, Sara Fitts, Vanessa Sammons and Susan Krieb also scored for the Lady Tigers, while Fitts had two assists and Sammons aided a score.

April Barksdale and Emma Shaw did the work in the nets, while Maggie Snyder, Amelia Davis, Kacey Guin and Ginger Crouch were cited for defensive play.

Calloway got a goal from Darra Mitchell on a penalty kick to take a 1-0 lead, but Marshall County's Kim Johnson scored a goal and had two assists to lead Marshall.

Krista Stalls had 18 saves in goal for the Lady Lakers.

Calloway's Jessie Rooker chips out of the fringe at the Murray Country Club during high school golf action on Thursday.

Californians will show up at showdown

By The Associated Press

Even at Dodger Stadium, the fans might be in their seats early and stay late this weekend.

"In a very California way, it's going to be an exciting time," pitcher Jim Gott said, looking ahead to the NL West showdown with Atlanta. "These people in LA are very used to winning. We've had great crowds all year long. I think you're going to see the volume turned up."

The Braves and Dodgers each won Thursday, meaning Los Angeles takes a one-half game lead into tonight's opener of a three-game series. The Braves went into last weekend with a one-half game lead and then beat Los Angeles two of three in Atlanta.

"I think being a half-game out, the players will tend to be a little more relaxed and a lot more confident," said Lonnie Smith, who scored the go-ahead run in the 10th inning Thursday night as Atlanta won in San Diego 4-2. "Our goal right now is not to sweep them, but at least to win two out of three."

The Dodgers are the best home team in the majors at 48-24 after beating Houston 4-3. The Braves are the league's second-best road team, next to Pittsburgh, at 39-33. Los Angeles is 9-6 against Atlanta this year.

"It's nicer to be where we are than where we were when we left Atlanta," Los Angeles manager Tom Lasorda said.

In other games Thursday, Pittsburgh rallied past St. Louis 5-1, San Francisco stopped Cincinnati 4-1, Philadelphia beat Montreal 5-4 in 10 innings and the Chicago at New York game was canceled because of rain.

Andy Benes, with an NL-best nine-game winning streak, held Atlanta hitless until Smith homered in the sixth inning to tie it at 1. After Fred McGriff's RBI double put the Padres ahead in the bottom of the sixth, Smith singled home the tying run in the seventh.

San Diego threatened in the ninth, even after a disputed interference call cost it a runner at second base. The Padres went on to load the bases with two outs, but Mark Wohlers (2-1) got pinch-hitter Tom Lampkin on a sharp grounder.

Smith singled off Craig Lefferts (1-6) to start the 10th. Vinny Castilla's sacrifice bunt was mishandled by McGriff for one error, and McGriff then threw the ball into right field for another error that put runners at second and third. After Terry Pendleton was intentionally walked, David Justice hit an RBI single and Ron Gant followed with a sacrifice fly.

Alejandro Pena pitched the 10th for his 10th save.

"There were a couple of balls in the bottom of the ninth inning that were hit right at our infield," Braves manager Bobby Cox said. "Maybe we caught a break, I don't know. But they played awfully hard and awfully good. It was a good game to win to go into Dodgerstown."

Sports Writer

Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Charles Barkley has a strong feeling about the basketball team the United States will have for next summer's Olympics.

"The only team that can beat us is our second unit," Barkley said.

The Philadelphia 76ers forward said he is one of 10 NBA players who will be named to the United States Olympic squad Saturday.

"I'm playing for two reasons," Barkley said. "No. 1, it will be a chance to play for the greatest team ever assembled. And No. 2, this is the first time the pros have played for this country. There's great historical significance."

"Besides, I want to be the answer to a trivia question a million years from now."

His comments were in a story in Thursday's Philadelphia Daily News.

Barkley had said earlier this year he wasn't very interested in playing for the first U.S. Olympic team to use professionals.

The team, to be announced Saturday, reportedly also will include centers David Robinson and Patrick Ewing; forwards Larry Bird, Karl Malone and Chris Mullin; and guards Magic Johnson, John Stockton, Michael Jordan and Scottie Pippen.

Two college players were expected to fill out the roster. "People talk about whether we'll have the proper chemistry. That's garbage," Barkley said. "I think the only time people question chemistry is when you've got guys who can't play, and that should be no problem here."

Barkley said he won't mind if he doesn't start.

"Everybody can't start. You got David Robinson and Patrick Ewing at center. Somebody has to sit," he said. "As long as I play, I'll be happy."

And he has no qualms about the United States using professionals.

"Other countries have been doing it for years," he said. "Now, it's our turn."

The names of those on the team have been reported by several newspapers and broadcasters, but nothing will be official until Saturday.

Chuck Daly, who will coach the team, insisted Thursday he does not know who was on the team.

"I don't know the final list yet," he said in Milan, Italy, at the final in a series of clinics. "I can say ten players will come from the NBA and two from the colleges. There is a possibility that an 11th NBA player will be added."

Daly all but confirmed that Jordan was on the team. "Jordan had initially refused to play in the Olympics but I know that his attitude has changed more recently," the coach said.

Daly saw no problem with the U.S. being an overwhelming favorite.

"Certainly it's a difficult job to deal with great players but this is a problem that every NBA coach has every day. Quite frankly, I like these problems," Daly said.

EKU, Middle preparing another OVC war

By The Associated Press

It's already showdown time in the Ohio Valley Conference.

Eastern Kentucky (1-1), ranked third in the NCAA Division I-AA, entertains No. 7 Middle Tennessee (1-0) Saturday night in a regionally televised contest.

Eastern Kentucky is the preseason favorite to win the OVC, and Middle Tennessee is picked to finish second. They shared the title last year.

"This really has the makings of another outstanding game," said Eastern Kentucky coach Roy Kidd.

"Last year's game (a 10-7 victory by Eastern Kentucky) was something else. Both teams played great defense and I believe this game Saturday could be that same type of hard-hitting, physical football game."

Eastern Kentucky, after a season-opening 24-14 loss to Division I-A Louisville, came back to whip Southeast Missouri 49-7 last Saturday. Middle Tennessee owns a 42-6 victory over Tennessee State.

"A Boots Donnelly team is always a very sound, fundamental team that is very well-coached and very well-disciplined," Kidd said of his counterpart at Middle Tennessee. "You've got to beat them. They don't beat themselves."

Senior tailback Tim Lester rushed for 113 yards and two touchdowns last Saturday for Eastern Kentucky.

Middle Tennessee features the OVC's top rusher in senior Joe Campbell, who had 146 yards and two scores against Tennessee State. "He's quite a player," said Kidd. "He has very quick feet and is tough to bring down."

Other games Saturday involving state teams have Kentucky at Indiana, Morehead State at Western Kentucky, Eastern Illinois at Murray State, Kentucky Wesleyan at Evansville, Centre at Maryville, Thomas More at Bluffton, Union at Lambuth, Georgetown at Urbana, Cumberland (Tenn.) at Campbellsburg, Olivet Nazarene at Cumberland and Kentucky State at Austin Peay.

Morehead State (0-2) is trying to recover from two shellackings — 52-14 to Samford and 70-11 to Marshall. And Western Kentucky coach Jack Harbaugh is worried. "I'm a little surprised with Morehead," he said. "They figured to have a good defensive team and now they've given up all those points. You might think I'm crazy, but that scares me."

Morehead State has yielded an average of 461.5 yards in total offense, with 343.6 coming through the air.

Junior Steven Donato came off the bench in the Marshall game to complete 16 of 29 passes for 152 yards and a touchdown.

Western Kentucky (1-1) snapped a nine-game losing streak carried over from last season by stopping Murray State 14-0 last weekend.

The Hilltoppers got a solid rushing effort against Murray State with Roscoe Echols picking up 87 yards and Davion Sarver 86.

Murray State (0-2) is hoping history repeats itself this weekend. Last year the Racers had lost their first two games and then beat Eastern Illinois 14-10.

Ryan encouraged after victory

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Nolan Ryan is feeling so good he's already talking about next year.

Ryan got his 313th victory Thursday night and he can't wait until 1992.

"I'm pleased the way my health is holding up and my stuff is back," the Texas Rangers right-hander said after his 10-3 victory over the California Angels in the first game of a doubleheader. "It sure helps your outlook on the upcoming season."

Ryan (11-6) cruised through six innings, allowing just three earned runs. He struck out seven, walked two and threw 120 pitches, 76 for strikes.

California won the second game 5-2 as Jim Abbott won his 17th game with a six-hitter over 7 2-3 innings.

In the only other AL game, Seattle beat Kansas City 10-5.

Ryan's performance impressed California manager Buck Rodgers, who hadn't seen him pitch since his NL days.

"You saw him get that competitive edge when he got that 5-3 lead," Rodgers said. "He had his best stuff in the sixth: his best delivery, control, and his best concentration. He's amazing. I last saw him pitch at Houston. Anytime a 44-year-old man can throw fastballs in the majors it's unbelievable. All the guys in their 40s like Charlie Hough are tricksters. But Nolan still throws that fastball."

LOCAL SOCCER

The Murray-Calloway Dukers, an under 14 recreational soccer team, defeated Trigg County 5-0 recently. Jeremy Hunt scored three goals, two on corner kicks from Ryan Pickens. Adam Wells and Nathan Keller also added goals for the Dukers. Matt Roberts, goalkeeper, and Adam Melon performed well on defense for Murray-Calloway.

FOOTBALL

LOS ANGELES — A California appeals court has rejected New Orleans Saints quarterback Bobby Hebert's challenge to the NFL's Plan B restrictions on free agents' ability to move from one team to another. Hebert said in his suit that he was prevented from signing with the Los Angeles Raiders last season because the Raiders were unwilling to compensate the Saints as required by Plan B. He argued that the rule denied him the right to work in the occupation of his choice, in violation of California law. The 2nd District Court of Appeal ruled in a 3-0 decision this week that California law could not be used to restrict a nationwide business like the NFL without becoming an unconstitutional burden on interstate commerce.

NEW YORK — NFL commissioner Paul Tagliabue informed the league's teams by memo that they will no longer be assessed 5-yard penalties for "high-fives" in the end zone or tossing balls into the stands. Throwing a ball into the stands will still result in a $1,000 fine, but the NFL rescinded the yardage portion of the penalty. The 5-yard demonstration penalty for "excessive, prolonged, or provocative demonstrations" was not changed.

GOLF

ENDICOTT, N.Y. — Blaine McCallister shot a 7-under-par 64 for a one-stroke lead in the rain-delayed first round of the PGA Tour's BC Open. A 3½-hour delay prevented 75 players from completing the round. Billy Mayfair was 6-under after 13 holes on the 6,966-yard En-Joie Golf Club course when play was suspended. Lance Ten Broeck and Steve Lowery opened with 66s and Jeff Sluman, Billy Andrade and Ed Humenik had 67s. Peter Jacobsen, Curtis Strange, Joey Sindelar, Mike Hulbert, Don Shirley and Barry Cheesman opened with 68s.

KENT, Wash. — Brandie Burton, the youngest player on the LPGA tour at 19, shot a 7-under 65 to take a three-stroke lead after the first round of the Safeco Classic. Laurel Kean, Rosie Jones, Mitzi Edge and Nancy White opened with 68s on the 6,222-yard Meridian Valley Country Club course. ## Sisson's late boot lifts Tech over Cavs

ATLANTA (AP) — Kicking clutch field goals late in a game is nothing new for Scott Sisson of Georgia Tech.

He did it again Thursday night, a 33-yarder on the final play to give the 17th-ranked Yellow Jackets a 24-21 Atlantic Coast Conference victory over Virginia.

It was the fifth time in the senior kicker's career he has either won or tied a game in the final 61 seconds, and the second year in a row he's denied Virginia a tie.

The Cavaliers were ranked No. 1 in the nation with a 7-0 record last November when Sisson kicked a 37-yarder with seven seconds remaining to break a 38-38 tie.

"I thought it might happen with seven minutes left, then we came down and scored," Sisson said. "Then they scored, and I thought it would happen. It's all up to the two-minute offense. They save me from a 55-yard attempt."

Sisson's game-winning came after Shawn Jones sparked an 11-play, 58-yard drive in the final two minutes, passing for 41 yards and avoiding a sack to scramble for 12 more after Virginia had tied the game at 21-21 on Bobby Goodman's third touchdown pass, a 19-yarder to Aaron Mundy. Until the late rallies by each team, the game had featured Jimmy Lincoln, Tech's pint-sized freshman, who ran for 229 yards on 31 carries and a 23-yard touchdown that gave the Jackets (2-1 overall, 1-0 ACC) a 21-14 lead with 7:38 to play.

Lincoln's yardage broke Tech's freshman record of 203 set by Jerry Mays against Western Carolina in 1985. It was the second-best, one-game total in Tech history, topped only by Eddie Lee Ivory's 356 against Air Force in 1978.

"He had two fumbles and to come back and keep his poise, you have to say a lot about him as a freshman to be able to do that," coach Bobby Ross said of Lincoln, a 5-foot-9, 183-pounder from Pittsburgh.

"It was amazing," Ross said of Sisson beating the Cavaliers for the second year in a row. "I could not believe that it came down to a kick again."

Sisson made it from the right hash mark after both teams had used a timeout with four seconds remaining.

"I just have to go out and deal with what we have," Sisson said. As a freshman he kicked a 35-yarder with 42 seconds left to beat Boston College and last year he kicked a 38-yarder with eight seconds remaining to beat Virginia Tech. His 27-yarder with 1:01 left lifted Tech into a tie with North Carolina last year.

Tech took the lead on their first offensive play, a pass from Jones to Greg Lester, who got behind the defense at the Virginia 40 on a play that covered 76 yards.

Tech's other touchdown was a 1-yard run by Rodney Wilkerson with 12:04 remaining, lifting the Jackets into a 14-14 tie.

Goodman, who completed 11 of 18 passes for 229 yards, also had scoring passes of 50 yards to Larry Holmes nine seconds before halftime and 72 yards to freshman Tyrone Davis with nine seconds left in the third. Coach George Welsh of Virginia (1-2, 0-2) doesn't think his team has been jinxed by Sisson and the Yellow Jackets.

"It's only two years that we have lost to them," he said. "We have beaten them in the past."

Virginia had won three in a row on Tech's home field, but the Jackets made the Cavs their 13th victim in succession at home since losing to them two years ago.

The Virginia-Georgia Tech kicked off a college football weekend that on Saturday features three games involving ranked teams. In the headliner, No. 4 Washington calls on No. 9 Nebraska Saturday night. Also, No. 5 Florida is at No. 18 Syracuse and No. 6 Tennessee is at home against No. 23 Mississippi State.

Zebra mussel found in Kentucky Lake

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A tiny mussel that reproduces at an astounding rate and has no natural predators has made its way into Kentucky Lake, an ill omen for every boat hull and water intake valve in sight.

The Tennessee Valley Authority says a single zebra mussel was pulled from Kentucky Lake on Sept. 10 by a mussel fisherman. TVA mussel specialist John Jenkinson said the 1-inch-long zebra mussel was attached to a native mussel.

TVA scuba divers searched the area this week, as did biologists from the state of Kentucky, but so far no additional zebra mussels have been found, Jenkinson said.

"Unfortunately, no one knows how to control the spread of the zebra, but TVA is looking at options for protecting its own facilities and others along the river," he said.

The discovery in Kentucky Lake is the southernmost citing of a zebra mussel, which first appeared in the United States in the Great Lakes and quickly made a tremendous pest of itself.

"It's a horrendous thing," said Mason Sinclair, a biologist for the Nashville metropolitan government. "Of course, no one knows what the final costs will be."

Estimates are it will cost up to $1 billion to combat the mussel in the Great Lakes.

Jenkinson said aquatic scientists have been dreading the mussel's migration south.

The mussel has no major predators, and no effective way to control it in large areas has been discovered either here or in Europe, from where it was carried to the Great Lakes in shipping.

"We're dealing with a needle in a haystack phenomenon," Jenkinson said. "The chances that we found only one of two out there are pretty remote. More than likely, there are probably others."

Zebra mussels were first found in Lake Saint Clair near Detroit in June of 1988. By October 1990, they had spread to all five Great Lakes.

Lake Erie in some places contains up to 900,000 animals per square meter of lake bottom, and native mussels there have been virtually eliminated by the zebra.

"They grow at an indecent rate," said Ray Norris, Nashville coordinator for Save Our Streams. "They cluster so much, they make these little balls of mussel colonies. They accumulate in such large numbers on such things as tillers and rudders that they have sunk the boats."

He said the invader could

The species originated in East European lakes, and spread throughout the continent when canals were built in the late 1700s. European commerce and industry have developed around the population, using underground water intakes and other special techniques to cope with the mussel.

Jenkinson speculates that the mussel, which according to some evidence can survive up to 14 days out of water, traveled overland from the Great Lakes to this area, probably on the hull of a pleasure boat.

The mussel, about an inch long when full grown, lives about five years and can produce up to 40,000 eggs per year.

Tropical temperatures further south are expected to stop its spread, said biologist Mason Sinclair.

"But all of Tennessee is fair game," he said. "As far as contingencies, double intake lines could be built so that one could be cleaned while the other is down, but we don't have any real plans for it."

He said the invader could threaten the Tennessee mussel industry by smothering and competing for food with the native species.

Zebra mussels also threaten recreation, not only damaging boats but making shorelines and beaches unattractive.

"When TVA or the Corps of Engineers lower lake levels, that's going to leave them all exposed and they'll die," Sinclair said. "There'll be a horrible stench."

Charges reduced against parents of chained girl

NEW YORK (AP) — Charges were reduced Thursday against the parents of a 15-year-old girl they chained at home to keep her off the streets and away from drugs.

Eliezer and Maria Marrero now face misdemeanor unlawful imprisonment charges. Initially they were charged with felony imprisonment.

The case remains under investigation, but if their daughter, Linda, does not file a complaint in 90 days, the charges will be dropped.

Linda was routinely chained in the family's Bronx apartment, with enough slack to reach the bathroom. Frequent crack cocaine binges and a nearly fatal attack by dealers she had crossed led her parents to take the drastic measure.

Her parents were arrested Sept. 13 and briefly held with bail set at $100,000. After reviewing the case and the parents' explanation, they were freed without bail.

After staying in a city youth home while her parents were jailed, Linda returned home Monday, the day they were freed.

Family and friends say Linda began skipping school and hanging out with drug users about four years ago. She would disappear for days or weeks, returning home bruised and emaciated.

Mrs. Marrero has said she petitioned the city child welfare agencies for help six times but received no assistance.

Jones says he's more committed to eastern Kentucky than Hopkins

By ALLEN G. BREED
Associated Press Writer

PRESTONSBURG, Ky. — Democratic gubernatorial nominee Brereton Jones says his opponent's lack of commitment to eastern Kentucky shows in his congressional voting record.

But a spokesman for U.S. Rep. Larry Hopkins, the Republican nominee, said the lieutenant governor's comments Thursday at the annual meeting of the East Kentucky Corp. were misleading.

Jones told members of the regional economic-development coalition — which represents 43 counties — to look at Hopkins' voting record and decide if Hopkins "has it deep within his heart to help eastern Kentucky."

Jones said Hopkins, R-6th District, only recently dropped his opposition to funding the Appalachian Regional Commission. And he said Hopkins was the only member of the Kentucky delegation to vote against the expansion to four lanes of U.S. 23, which runs from Ashland to Jenkins.

Most recently, Hopkins failed to vote on a measure that would extend unemployment benefits, a move President Bush has sworn to veto.

Quoting the late Gov. A.B. "Happy" Chandler, Jones said, "Opinions die, but the record lives on forever."

Hopkins was invited to attend the meeting but canceled earlier this week, corporation chairman Bill Weinberg said. But Larry Cirignano, Hopkins' press secretary, said Jones was either taking things out of context or didn't understand the issues.

Jones told the delegates that he had a firm commitment to helping eastern Kentucky prepare for the day when coal was no longer an economic factor.

"In the next four years, I intend to have our administration put a focus on eastern Kentucky in a manner in which it has not been focused on in modern times," Jones said.

Bidding Quiz

You are South, both sides vulnerable, and the bidding has gone:
West North East South
1 ♦ Pass Pass ?

What would you bid now with each of the following five hands?

1. ♠ 874 ♥ K93 ♦ A9 ♣ KJ82
2. ♠ A65 ♥ QJ6 ♦ AQ8 ♣ KQ73
3. ♠ KJ932 ♥ J85 ♦ 10 ♣ KJ64
4. ♠ J43 ♥ AK7 ♣ KQ9874 ♣ 3
5. ♠ AKQJ3 ♥ AJ4 ♦ 63 ♣ KQ6

1. One notrump. When you are in the balancing seat — that is, when the bidding would die at a low level if you passed — you may occasionally make bids you would not make in any other position. Bids made in this situation often don't have their usual meaning. A player in the balancing seat has only two choices — to compete against the partnership or to pass. If he chooses to compete, he should not be held strictly accountable for whatever action he takes. Thus, the one notrump bid here does not show the normal complement of 16 to 18 points, but instead indicates 11 to 14. If a player in the balancing position actually has a stronger notrump hand, he must double first and bid notrump later.

2. Double. If you were North, you would overcall West's one diamond bid with one notrump. But, since you are in the balancing seat, you cannot afford to bid one notrump because partner would expect you to have far fewer points than you actually have. Instead, you should double, planning to bid notrump at your next turn.

3. One spade. It is better to bid one spade at this point than to pass. Partner probably has at least 10 points, which gives you a good shot at a partscore and, conceivably, a game. You'd lose this opportunity if you elected to pass one diamond.

4. Pass. Your best chance for a significant plus score lies in letting West play the hand in one diamond, so you should pass. The fact that you have the values for an opening bid does not mean that you must necessarily take action at this point. West will probably go down two or three tricks in one diamond — 200 or 300 points — which is probably the best result available. Note that you cannot double, since this would be for takeout.

5. Double. Here you have values that are utterly independent of your being in the balancing seat. If you were North you would double, and as South you should take exactly the same action. True, your double is suspect when you are in the balancing position, but you plan to take strong action later on to identify your actual strength. It is much better to double than to bid two spades, which is strength-showing in the balancing position, but not forcing.

Tomorrow: Looking far into the future.

030 Card of Thanks

We would like to say thank you to the many friends, neighbors and relatives for the love and support we received during the loss of our loved one, Teresa Vance Garner. Thanks to the ones that assisted at the accident scene. A special thanks to Chaplain Rebecca Church at the Murray Calloway Hospital, the Miller Funeral Home for the kindness shown us, Onedia White for the beautiful music, Bro. Gerald Owen for the comforting words. The words "thank you" seem so little compared to the visits, food, flowers, and prayers we received. May God bless each and every one of you.

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: The letter from Marvin H. Leaf, D.D.S., who listed some prominent people who had died of lung cancer, struck a very painful chord within me.

Dr. Leaf mentioned Steve McQueen among those who had died as a result of smoking. Abby, Steve McQueen died of a malignant pleural mesothelioma, which is almost always due to long-term exposure to asbestos and is completely unrelated to smoking. I understand that Mr. McQueen at one time worked as an automobile brake repairman, which would have exposed him to asbestos on a daily basis.

My mother was a physician and the director of health for Alamance County, North Carolina. She was also a tireless crusader for good health habits. Two years ago, she died of malignant pleural mesothelioma. My mother never smoked nor was she exposed to asbestos, and we have no idea why she developed lung cancer.

I certainly do not appreciate Dr. Leaf's implication that all lung cancers are the result of smoking and should be so publicized in the obituaries of the deceased.

You will no doubt hear from many other families who were equally offended by Dr. Leaf's misinformation, and I am sure that as usual you will set the record straight.

JILL B. KOURY, M.D.

DEAR DR. KOURY: Thank you for writing. I tried to locate Dr. Leaf, who is now retired and has an unlisted telephone number. I hope that after this appears in my column, he will write again ## and set the record straight.

Forty years ago

DEAR ABBY: I think Dr. Leaf was absolutely correct when he said the public has the right to know the cause of death when a prominent person dies.

At 35 years of age, I have already lost a father and my best friend to lung cancer from smoking. Meanwhile, some members of my family continue to smoke.

I only wish that we non-smokers could do more to help those nicotine addicts kick the habit. Actually, the ones I would really like to fight are the tobacco companies.

BEEN "CLEAN" FOR FOUR YEARS

DEAR "CLEAN": Congratulations, but please don't blame the tobacco companies. We live in a country where people have a right to choose, and adults are responsible for the choices they make.

DEAR ABBY: I am writing for the four of us who are widows. We would like to know the proper time to stop wearing our wedding rings. Is it proper to continue wearing them as long as we are not looking for another mate?

We all four have different views on the subject. Please let us know, Abby. I'm sure there are others out there who would also like to know.

WONDERING WIDOWS

DEAR WONDERING: A widow who has no interest in looking for another mate may continue to wear her wedding ring on the third finger of her left hand; it will serve as a very effective "stop" sign should a single man find her attractive. (Not always — but usually.) Widows who want to date again wisely switch their wedding band to the other hand or retire it to the jewelry box.

Dr. Gott

DEAR DR. GOTT: My 15-year-old daughter suffers from pinworms every four or five months. I treat her with Vermox, yet the problem continues. Do you have any suggestions?

DEAR READER: Pinworm eggs, which are excreted in the stool, may enter the environment and remain infective for weeks. Thus, people who put their fingers in their mouths may be inviting infection from objects they have touched. For obvious reasons, a re-infection pattern is more common where more than one member of a family has pinworms. In short, your daughter may be picking up pinworm eggs from someone else in your household.

Therefore, I recommend that every family member, adults included, be checked for pinworms. Your family doctor can easily perform this service at very little cost. In addition, your daughter must be fastidious in her hygiene and hand-washing. If she is a nail-biter, she must stop. Also, if there are young children in the house, their underwear should be changed frequently and washed. Ask your own doctor for further advice that will depend on your individual home situation.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My two teenagers have been diagnosed with psoriasis. Our doctor is planning to send them to a specialist if the condition doesn't clear in two weeks. Do we have anything to worry about?

DEAR READER: You can count on your children having to see a dermatologist if they have psoriasis because this common skin condition won't disappear in two weeks.

Psoriasis, a skin disorder of unknown cause, is marked by irritated, scaly patches that usually appear on the elbows, knees or trunk. The affliction is chronic, painless, cyclic, harmless but embarrassing and annoying. Mild cases usually respond to cortisone cream, more severe forms may require special treatment with powerful drugs, such as Methotrexate, or with ultraviolet light.

Psoriasis is not a health hazard, therefore, you and your children have nothing to worry about. In my opinion, patients with this condition should be under the care of dermatologists, because general doctors are not trained in the treatment of the affliction.

Also, early psoriasis can mimic other skin diseases, such as eczema, a common allergic reaction. A dermatologist can make the diagnosis with certainty, an important consideration because the treatment of various skin diseases differs.

'Pen' pizza offered by Eddyville inmates

EDDYVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Seven Kentucky State Reformatory inmates are holding monthly pizza sales to help youngsters outside the walls avoid the problems that substance abuse created for the prisoners.

The prisoners' first donation, $144.19, went to Champions Against Drugs, which are community groups set up in each of the Pennyrile Area counties to work with students to prevent alcohol and drug abuse.

Rebecca Owen, a penitentiary staff member, said Pizza Hut in Princeton discounts pizzas to the inmates, who sell them to other prisoners assigned to the Protective Custody Substance Abuse Group. It houses about 160 men.
