MSU draws students into face-lift

Campus tries to overcome budget cuts

By AMY WILSON
Staff Writer

In an effort to overcome repeated budget cuts, a new initiative has been developed to get students more involved with

Murray State University while helping them to complete service projects. "There is no doubt that the campus needs a pick-me-up," said MSU President Dr. Kern

Alexander. "We've been talking about how we could involve the students more on campus and we came up with a program similar to the adopt-a-highway program."

When the budget cuts hit the campus in 1990-91, the university had to make decisions about where reductions could be made. Rather than cut programming, many of the cuts fell on the administrative departments, including facilities management.

"The main thing we tried to do was maintain the integrity of the instructional programs," said John Fitzgibbon, interim vice president for university relations and administrative services.

Fitzgibbon emphasized that the university lost $3.5 million in funding in less than 18 months.

"There were certainly reductions and they haven't gone away," he said. "With this new program, members of the community can help us if they are interested."

Alexander said the idea originated from discussions he had with Student Government Associ-

MPs arrive to curb violence

8,500 U.S. troops now on Haitian shore

By RITA BEAMISH
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Stung by the spectacle of American soldiers standing by as Haitian police beat demonstrators, President Clinton says 1,000 newly arrived military police will help curb the violence. The Pentagon said today the MPs are on patrol, but cautioned they can't stop every outbreak.

"Such conduct cannot and will not be tolerated," Clinton said Wednesday, referring to the previous day's police attacks on Haitians who had poured into the streets to welcome the American occupying force.

As U.S. troop strength in the volatile Caribbean nation reached 8,500, the Clinton administration belatedly received the blessing of deposed Haitian President Jean-Bertrand Aristide for the intervention.

And the Senate on a 94-5 vote approved a non-binding resolution applauding the accord brokered Sunday by former President Jimmy Carter, although several senators took to the floor to blast Clinton's policy.

At the insistence of Minority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., the resolution calls for "a prompt and orderly withdrawal of all United States armed forces from Haiti as soon as possible."

Deputy Defense Secretary John Deutch said today the military police "are now present in Haiti. They'll be patrolling and their presence should be stabilizing."

Deutch, appearing on ABC, said "our soldiers are not told to stand by to watch" beatings, but they are under orders to intervene only "when there is sufficient force backing up the individual ..."

Elderly qualify for exemption

By STACEY CROOK
Staff Writer

Being 65 or older has a $21,800 advantage.

Those residents who have lived in their homes for one calendar year and are at least 65 years older or totally disabled qualify for the Homestead Exemption, which means $21,800 is deducted from the property assessment.

Carolyn Brasher, who works in the property valuation office, said the exemption applies even if only one spouse is 65 years old. But it only applies to the property which is maintained as the legal residence, she said.

In order to apply for the exemption, a person must go to the PVA office in the courthouse and fill out the appropriate forms.

Brasher said the sooner a person signs up for the exemption,

FARM SAFETY AWARENESS: Murray State University students in Dr. Dwayne Driskill's agricultural safety course designed this exhibit located at the corner of 16th and Chestnut streets to promote farm hazard awareness and increase safety measures. According to the National Safety Council, more than 424,400 accidental deaths and disabling injuries were reported in 1993, making the agriculture industry among the nation's most accident-prone sector.

Pope cancels U.N. visit

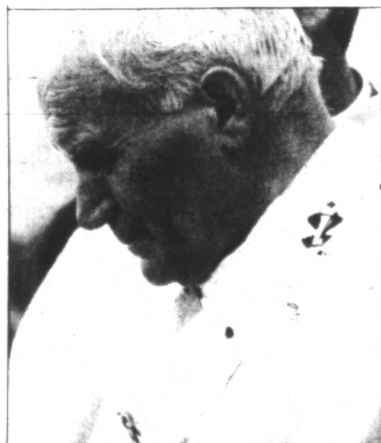

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John Paul II today called off his trip to the United States next month because he hasn't fully recovered from hip-replacement surgery.

The 74-year-old pope was due to leave Oct. 20 for a visit to the United Nations in New York; Yonkers, N.Y.; Newark, N.J., and Baltimore.

Vatican spokesman Joaquin Navarro said the pope had not fully recovered from a fall in April in which he broke his leg and needs further physical therapy.

"It's a question of mobility, not health," Navarro said, adding that the pope's scheduled trip to Asia in January was still on.

John Paul underwent hip replacement surgery and has been walking with a cane. He has looked frail and tired during recent public appearances.

The Vatican said the pope intends to make the trip to the United States in November 1995 to coincide with the 50th anniversary of the founding of the United Nations.

"The pope was advised not to increase his activity in this period following his thigh operation for a complete and fast functional recovery," a Vatican statement said.

Parishioners coming out of morning Mass today at the Basilica of the Assumption in Baltimore, where the pope was scheduled to stop during his Oct. 23 visit, were saddened by the news.

In the 16th year of his papacy, John Paul has been troubled by medical problems in recent years.

Doctors removed what they said was a benign intestinal tumor two years ago.

Lack of labor delays project

Business is booming for local contractors, which is good unless you are trying to rehabilitate 25 houses.

But City Planner Don Elias is concerned that the shortage of available builders will increase the cost of the $750,000 community redevelopment project.

"Everybody is busy right now," Elias said. "There's a lot of work in the area and they don't have the time to commit to the project."

The North Douglass Redevelopment Project, which is funded through a state grant, includes rehabilitation of about 25 homes ranging from minor repairs to complete reconstruction.

"We're happy we've got a lot of work around the community," Elias said.

But North Douglass residents and city council members have said they want to use as many local contractors as possible, but Elias said it will be difficult.

"We'll get the contractors from somewhere," he said. "But the price will keep going up."

As bids come in from contractors farther away from Murray, estimates increase because the contractor must account for mileage and driving time.

Bids from out-of-town contractors for three rehabilitation projects were rejected by the city council last week because the estimates exceeded budget projections.

Elias said some contractors do not like to get involved with rehabilitation work because they don't know what they are getting into until work begins.

"Some of the work is fairly extensive," he said, adding that each home must be brought up to Kentucky Building Code standards.

Funding is another issue. "Others are concerned with being involved with a project that

TVA to set limit on future borrowings

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The Tennessee Valley Authority is taking steps to halt its rising debt before Congress does.

Both Congress and the utilities served by TVA have raised concerns about the agency's escalating debt, now approaching $26 billion.

The TVA board responded Wednesday by directing chief financial officer Bill Malec to study the agency's future capital needs and recommend a self-imposed debt ceiling below the $30 billion limit Congress set in 1979.

Jerry Campbell, executive director of the Tennessee Valley Public Power Association representing TVA's 160 municipal and cooperative distributors, praised the action.

"Getting TVA's debt under control is probably one of the biggest concerns that we have," he said.

TVPPA members worry that Congress would reject any request from TVA to raise its borrowing limit because of the national mood to bring the federal debt under control.

"Then the big question would be what would Congress do with TVA," he said. "It's a concern to all of us in the valley, especially the distributors. TVA is their only source of wholesale power at this point."

TVA chairman Craven Crowell doesn't want to find out. "We are trying not to continue business as usual here," he said.

"I want this study done so the board can set a goal — a date — to halt borrowing that increases the total debt."

TVA's current debt is $25.7 billion — about five times its annual revenues. It has more than doubled since 1981 with $13 billion tied to nuclear plant construction.

The agency will add about $700 million to that in the coming fiscal year, though the trend is falling from increases of $900 million this year and $2.2 billion the year before that.

New bond issues that replace old debt with lower interest rates would not be affected because they wouldn't affect the total debt. TVA has saved about $295 million through such refinancing measures since 1989.

Crowell called it a "window of opportunity" to establish an internal debt ceiling of something under $30 billion.

"Right now we have an opportunity to ensure that we remain under the limit, and still go forward with critical capital projects," he said.

He also called it a "management tool" that would help the agency compete against other power providers. "It makes us more disciplined in the way we approach our spending in the future."

Malec said it was the first time the agency has taken such an action since TVA became self-supporting in the 1960s.

Asked if the prevailing attitude has been that Congress could always raise the ceiling if needed, Malec said, "I am sure that that has been a part of the thinking of the agency, yes."

The specific impact is unclear, but Crowell and Malec predicted it could be substantial.

"What I envision is having every part of the TVA examine what our needs are going to be out through the year 2000 in a great deal of detail to determine what can be reduced," Malec said.

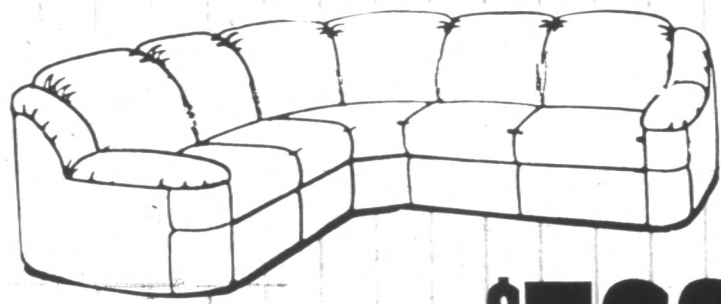

"It could mean the termination of some projects. It could mean not doing some things. It might mean instead of remodeling a building all in one year you might spread it out over a number of years."

Malec said it will probably be the end of the year before he completes his recommendation to the board.

Asked when the agency might go beyond capping the debt and actually reduce it, Malec said, "Let's get the first one solved first."

Whistle blower recalls fixed quiz show

By MOLLY HALL
Associated Press Writer

DENVER (AP) — With whitened hands, Stoney Jackson sorts through his newspaper clippings from 1957, the year he won big money on a quiz show and blew the whistle on the rigged game that he says ripped him off.

Then a crew-cut young minister from Tennessee, Jackson says he was the first person to willingly go public about the fixed shows.

His complaint about "$64,000 Challenge," coupled with a government probe of the manufactured drama of the quiz show "Twenty-One," outraged an audience that had been mesmerized by the live programs. The scandal led to congressional hearings and new laws regulating TV game shows.

The scandal is the subject of a new movie, "Quiz Show," directed and produced by Robert Redford. It's the story of Charles Van Doren, a young Columbia University instructor who acted his way through a bogus winning streak on "Twenty-One," then finally admitted the scam at a congressional hearing.

The tale didn't impress Jackson. "I guess it's more entertaining to see a man who kept the money and kept his mouth shut instead of somebody who was trying to be honest from the beginning," he said.

Back in 1957, Jackson's hometown friends in Tullahoma, Tenn., laughed when he sent in an application to appear on "$64,000 Question" — some 300,000 hopefuls wrote the show each month.

When Jackson got no response, he wrote again, noting the show only seemed interested in celebrity contestants.

"The letter said 'I am contemplating doing a book on our present times called the Hucksters and the Suckers ... and I'd like you to please tell me what kind of an agent do you have to have to get on the show,'" Jackson recalled.

He was on a train to New York City within 48 hours.

Jackson quickly figured out the program's fix: Before the show started, he had to answer the questions he would be asked on the show. That allowed producers to manipulate questioning to control winners and losers.

"They kept a very detailed tabulation of what you answered and what you missed," he said. "Then if they picked them carefully, they could keep you on or kick you off."

Jackson, who competed on the "$64,000 Question" eight times and won $16,000, gained a measure of fame as well, appearing in the Joe Palooka comic strip and receiving at least 40 marriage proposals from strangers.

Then he quit, planning to bone up on his topic — Great Love Stories — and come back a year later.

Months later, he was invited to appear on the "$64,000 Challenge."

Before one show, an assistant producer asked him who besides Christopher Marlowe wrote an epic poem about Hero and Leander. "I started to walk out and she practically yelled at me that it was Thomas Hood," Jackson said.

On that week's show, the host asked, "Who wrote a 19th-century poem similar to Marlowe's 'Hero and Leander'?"

Jackson's opponent said it was Shakespeare. She told Jackson after the show that the assistant producer had suggested she study Shakespeare.

What got to Jackson, however, was this: Undefeated, winner of $4,000 and hoping for more, he had to stop competing when his rival lost. The show's rules required it.

"I was furious because they cheated both of us," Jackson said. "I don't think they could have stopped me short of $64,000 legitimately."

His tale, along with word of the more blatant rigging of "Twenty-One," hit the newsstands courtesy of syndicated columnist Drew Pearson.

"'Twenty-One' was much more scandalous because they scripted the whole thing," Jackson said. "They gave them cards with the question and the answer and when to frown, when to smile and even when to sweat."

Back in Tullahoma, people didn't take to Jackson's role in the expose.

"From extreme popularity at home, I went to being a bum around town because I blew the whistle," he said.

Jackson, now 80, sees the quiz show scandal as the beginning of America's slide into darkness. "I think that was the real kickoff of a period of increasing frustration and cynicism that has continued and grown until now."

tify the campus."

Wayne Harper of facilities management is working on coordinating areas to be assigned, as well as determining the parameters of the maintenance.

"So far, all 22 fraternities and sororities have responded that they would be interested in maintaining parts of campus for a service project," said Jim Baurer, director of the Curris Center.

"Students will be in charge of things such as picking up trash, limbs and weeding," Baurer said. "We are waiting for Wayne to lay out a grid of the campus."

Although Murray State has a capable grounds department, it is sometimes difficult for the workers to cover the entire campus and complete all that needs to be done.

"Not too many people realize how big the campus is," said Ed West, director of facilities management. "It takes a lot of time to edge grass and weedeat around all the trees."

The grounds department has eight positions, currently filled by seven people.

"They are responsible for cutting all the grass, trimming, weedeating and everything else having to do with the grounds," West said. "On average, we have had about six people on the grounds crew."

Although student workers are used in the summer, it is often difficult for them to continue work in the fall because of scheduling conflicts.

In order to better maintain the campus, West said the grounds department is changing the flower beds from annuals to perennials.

"It's no problem to plant flowers," he said. "The problem is that it is hard to maintain them. I think it is an excellent idea to have groups help with the campus as long as we are careful with organizing the effort."

Already, Lambda Chi Alpha has requested the area of Oakhurst and Sparks Hall to maintain.

"With the membership base in the Greek organizations, it shouldn't be too difficult to maintain the campus," Baurer said. "We would like to put plaques in the areas that are designated to various groups."

While workers are out trying to fight the grass and weeds, the cleanup effort continues in Lovett Auditorium to repair the damage caused by a July fire in the fine arts annex, an adjoining building.

"We are still waiting on a response from the engineers about the fine arts annex," West said. "We still aren't sure what will happen with the building."

so we don't have any injuries to U.S. troops."

"We've instructed our soldiers to behave themselves in such a way that while they keep the peace, they don't put themselves in a situation where American soldiers have casualties," Deutch said.

In a report to Congress, Clinton addressed concerns about the length of the mission. "Our presence in Haiti will not be open-ended," he said. He said a United Nations force, which will include Americans, will go into Haiti within months and remain there until after a new Haitian government takes office in early 1996.

But Sen. John McCain, R-Ariz., a leading critic of Clinton's Haiti policy, said today, "the American people want to see a specific date when we'll be out of Haiti."

"It's easy to get in, the hard part is getting out," McCain said on Fox-TV.

Speaking at the White House, Clinton condemned Tuesday's attacks on civilians in Haiti but acknowledged the risk of further brutality by Haiti's notoriously ill-trained and undisciplined police and soldiers.

"The habits of violence will not be shed overnight," Clinton said.

He said at least 1,000 U.S. military police will patrol with Haitian police and monitor them, although the primary policing responsibility still remains with the Haitians. "Our armed forces cannot and will not become Haiti's police force," Clinton said. "But we can work to see that the Haitian military and police operate in a responsible and professional manner."

Human rights and police monitors from other nations also are expected to go to Haiti in coming days, said Clinton.

Defense Secretary William Perry said the U.S. military police are to ensure Haitian authorities "do not use unreasonable restraint in trying to deal with crowd control problems." The plan involves 14 Bradley fighting vehicles and other heavy military equipment that can be used to control outbreaks of violence.

is funded with government money because they are not familiar with the project," Elias said.

Officials had planned to complete the project by June 1995, which is how the grant was set up. Elias said the city can get extensions if work is delayed.

Elias said it is good news that contractors are staying busy, but he hopes to get more local bids as the project continues.

"It will stay active through the winter," he said. "If they (builders) don't have anything lined up for winter, we've got another 20 units to do."

The lack of qualified contractors is not a problem unique to Murray. Elias said communities across the Commonwealth are experiencing the same shortage.

In order to bid on the North Douglass Redevelopment Project, contractors must carry workmen's compensation and a minimum of $500,000 liability insurance.

Elias said a group of subcontractors can go together and bid on a job as well. For more information, call Elias at 762-0330.

What kind of impact will Haiti, Clinton have on elections?

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) — For nit-picking and second-guessing, said the retiring Democratic leader, there's no forum like the Senate. And none like Congress for hedging when there's a crisis, an uncertain outcome and elections less than seven weeks away.

That's why the bitter debate, Republican denunciations and Democratic dissent against President Clinton's Haiti policy ended in one-sided votes to back the troops he sent and support his aim of democracy and the rule of law.

The Senate voted 94-5 for that resolution on Wednesday, Republican critics emphasizing the section that seeks withdrawal of occupying American forces as soon as possible. There was no attempt to set a deadline, although that may come later. The Senate measure also advocates prompt lifting of the economic embargo, although it's only advice, not a law.

The arguments prompted Sen. George Mitchell, in his final weeks as the majority leader, to tell Republicans they shouldn't try to make political hay out of every twist and turn in Haiti, despite their hostility and antagonism toward the president.

There may not be a significant campaign advantage to be harvested either way. That's been the case before when foreign crises have erupted and forces have been sent abroad during congressional election campaigns.

These are district and state elections, not a national referendum on the president or his policies, as Tony Coelho, senior adviser to the Democratic National Committee, has been saying for weeks. He says the Republicans have been trying to nationalize the campaign, but can't.

Just as Democrats tried during Republican administrations. That's likely to minimize the impact of Haiti as an issue, unless there are casualties in an operation that goes badly. At this point, Mitchell said, he hears among some critics "almost a regret that this thing has worked out so well," with the agreement of the military rulers to leave by Oct. 15, a deal that allowed U.S. forces to land unopposed.

"We should not allow relief over the current tactical situation to override our long-term opposition," Rep. Newt Gingrich, soon to become the House Republican leader, said in a campaign memo to his colleagues.

Misgivings or uncertainty will be hard to register or to discern in the election returns. For most voters the choice will be between congressional candidates with largely similar positions: supporting the troops but reserving judgment on the policy.

Still, the Republicans are at pains to make sure voters don't forget it is Clinton's operation, "undertaken unilaterally," as Rep. Benjamin Gilman of New York said while the House handled the Haiti resolution Monday. He voted for the measure approved 353-45.

"President Clinton has made himself responsible for Haiti," said Rep. Toby Roth of Wisconsin, who voted no. "You go home to your districts ... talk to them about Haiti and you will see what kind of endorsement you are going to get." He said people don't like it.

The public opinion polls have shown an increase in support for Clinton policy since the last-minute deal that avoided an invasion, to majority or near majority backing but with substantial dissent. And even that may not last.

When George Bush began sending troops to the Persian Gulf in August 1990, the early polls showed three-quarters approval. By mid-October it was down to 60 percent, still higher than Clinton gets on Haiti, but slipping.

That was a midterm election year too. The buildup against Iraq went on all fall, but did not become a major campaign issue. Most candidates were supporting the deployment. Dissent came later, before the war in 1991.

The Republicans did have a better than average off year in 1990, losing one Senate seat and eight in the House.

The gravest of Cold War confrontations, the Cuban missile crisis, erupted just before the 1962 congressional elections. John F. Kennedy demanded and won withdrawal of Soviet offensive missiles. The election that followed was the best showing for a president's party since 1934; Democrats gained four seats in the Senate, lost four in the House.

A Gallup poll reported that the crisis actually had little effect in changing votes. But it silenced the Republican campaign accusation that Kennedy foreign policy was indecisive and irresolute.

More than party line answers

SHORT TAKES

Gina Hancock

Ledger & Times managing editor

There are still many unanswered questions surrounding the future of Land Between the Lakes.

Officials still haven't provided a budget even though the fiscal year starts Oct. 1.

Concerning cuts at the recreational area, officials don't deny them, they just aren't specific.

The major question: Why is LBL cutting programming and jobs if the Congressional appropriation to the Tennessee Valley Authority's Resource Group (of which LBL is a part) is the same as it was last year?

The answer is multifaceted, but here is the part of the official party line answer: The same funds don't stretch as far when inflation, salaries and an aging infrastructure are calculated.

True. But why not salary freezes instead of job cuts?

Now we get into the web of early-out incentives.

The party line answer: When the LBL dust settles, TVA officials won't call them job cuts. Rather, they will explain that a workforce reduction is sweeping federal government. One way payrolls are being reduced is by early retirement offers to workers who fit the criteria.

What? You say these same people were also told they were going to lose their jobs anyway at LBL, so they might as well retire! We will get back to you on that.

Yeah right, here's a quarter.

If LBL makes cuts, who within the Resource Group will receive the money LBL normally does to operate?

There are party line answers for this one too. But let's consider this development for a moment:

An economic development office has been created by TVA taken from within the Resource Group — of which LBL is a part. Now economic development is a separate entity like LBL.

TVA announced last Friday that nine new offices will be opened.

From the official TVA news release, Director Johnny Hayes stated: "We are continuing TVA's longstanding tradition of bolstering economic development in the Tennessee Valley by delivering more available resources to the field."

When asked for an operating budget for just the Hopkinsville office, a TVA official told me they didn't have one yet.

Curious huh? Could it be they don't know how much these nine offices will soak up in funding until they know how much money they have squeezed from existing agencies such as LBL?

Take this quote from Betsy Child, TVA's senior vice president of economic development:

"Our mission is to invest in those economic opportunities that increase the production of goods and services and generate high value jobs for all citizens of the Tennessee Valley. The creation of these field offices will greatly improve our ability to find those opportunities."

What the heck is going on here folks?

This area already has an economie development resource in LBL. The problem is it has not been allowed to grow.

In October, after the budget is released, LBL officials will start developing a master plan for the 170,000 acre site.

There have been rumors of commercialization of certain sites within LBL.

No doubt that might be an economic boom for this area as well, but — here comes the but — commercial development of LBL was not part of the original game plan.

It was created to improve the economic development of a rural area. If any portion is going to be commercialized, the government should return it to the original land owners.

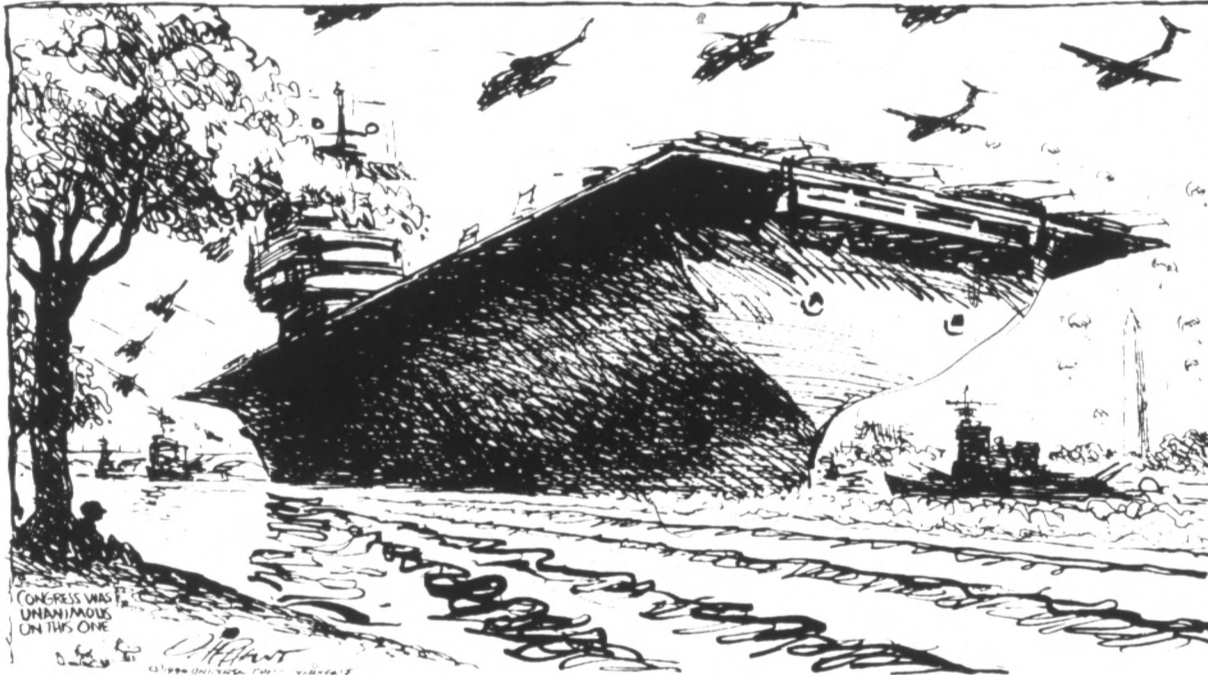

But all this speculation is probably just rumor — probably.

There is no doubt that any business or government office can find ways to be more efficient or even eliminate excess.

But to cut programs, such as environmental education, may take years to rebuild.

Then the trust is gone. Some may be satisfied with the party line answers, but more reasons lurk beneath the surface.

We'll just keep digging. Even if it is with a speculation shovel.

Sudden war on lack of values

CAL'S THOUGHTS

Cal Thomas

Syndicated columnist

Suddenly, like a tornado that approaches unexpectedly, values are the hottest political issue. Within 24 hours last week, President Bill Clinton and former Vice President Dan Quayle delivered speeches on values, or more precisely, the absence of them in modern America.

Quayle revisited the site of his "Murphy Brown" speech two years ago where he reiterated many of the ideas he expressed then and added that blame for the "poverty of values" should be fixed on the '60s and the baby boom generation of which he and Bill Clinton are such prominent members.

The President, speaking in a New Orleans Church, also bemoaned the loss of personal and cultural values. Both men correctly noted that government cannot fill the void. The effects that banning some "assault weapons" will have on crime is debatable. The effect on culture from the assault on our souls is not. Call it the ultimate giant sucking sound as we witness fatherless children shooting each other. Is this the death rattle of a once great nation?

The Jewish Theological Seminary of America took out a full page ad in The New York Times to bemoan the growing moral wasteland. "As a society," the ad stated, "we've just about given up expecting people to take personal responsibility for what they do: from petty misconduct to abusive talk to drunk driving to family violence to mass murder, the fault lies beyond the door of the deed."

The United States is becoming Europeanized, which is to say totally secularized, in its public institutions and increasingly in the private lives of a majority of its citizens. The French government last week banned the wearing of Muslim head scarves in public schools, asserting that the practice violates a tradition of secular education. The United States, of course, has banned prayer and the posting of the Ten Commandments in our schools.

The war against religion and the higher values and benefits it brings to a nation — values and benefits we now wish we had in greater abundance — has brought us to our present moment.

We cannot say we weren't warned. In addition to the ready availability of what once was considered "biblical truth," politicians, writers and philosophers have issued warnings of their own. George Washington said: "Let us with caution indulge the supposition that morality can be maintained without religion. Whatever may be conceded to the influence of refined education on minds of peculiar structure, reason and experience both forbid us to expect that National morality can prevail in exclusion of religious principle."

Viewing the coming secularism of Europe two centuries ago, Edmund Burke wrote: "The age of chivalry is gone. That of sophisters, economists, and calculators, has succeeded; and the glory of Europe is extinguished forever."

In "The Brothers Karamazov," Fyodor Dostoyevsky wrote that "if God does not exist, everything is permissible." That is precisely the point where America has arrived, a point in which outrageous behavior is bemoaned, but tolerated, and those who seek to impose constraints from without and develop them within are challenged as puritanical threats to the misread and misinterpreted Constitution.

Just drop us a line ...

LIBRARY NEWS

I wasn't really worried until I found out that Mattel had marketed a Barbie-sized doll of Wayne Gretzky (the famous Canadian hockey player). I mean, I could see Debby Boone and the Osmonds, but Gretzky?

You never know what you'll find when you start looking in some of these collectors books. After the Barbie doll exhibit (which was a huge hit, by the way), one of our friends was kind enough to donate a number of Barbie-related books.

First, there's The World of Barbie and The Wonder of Barbie, both by Paris and Susan Manos. These are smaller paperback value guides to clothing sets and accessories along with the different types of Barbies being sold at various times. (Gretzky's on page 61 in The Wonder.)

The Collectors Encyclopedia of Barbie Dolls and Collectibles by Sibel DeWein and Joan Ashabranner is larger, more detailed and much more extensive value guide. The photographs are black and white but very clear.

Finally, we have The Story of Barbie by Kitturah B. Westenhouser. This is probably the most interesting of the books, since it details the origins and development of the Barbie and all her kin.

As you read it, you don't just learn about Barbie in particular, but about collecting as a whole and the way the collector's mind works.

Paleontologists poring over dinosaur toes are not more exacting than doll collectors in the throes of deciding whether a particular doll is really a previously unknown transitional form or just a bogus assembly of unrelated parts.

Surprisingly interesting reading.

And just when you thought it was safe to go back to the library, along comes ELVIS! Yes friends, we've gotten a new copy of The Official Price Guide to Elvis Presley Records and Memorabilia by Jerry Osborne.

If Elvis sang it, wrote it, acted in it, or had his picture on it, it's here along with a price range for it.

Even if you don't collect Elvis memorabilia you have to appreciate the amount of sheer grunt work that goes into compiling such a list.

By the way, Price Guide to Elvis also doubles as an incredibly detailed discography and chronology of Elvis' artistic work. Well worth the reading.

Bond, James Bond, is back in John Gardner's SeaFire.

Sir Maxwell Tarn, a self-made tycoon goes missing in the midst of a fiery car wreck with a crack surveillance team watching the whole thing.

Bond (and his beautiful new sidekick "Flicka") have to find Tarn, discover what he's up to, and stop him all within 286 pages. Gardner gets off to a good start though. Bond puts down a robbery on the high seas and has an ocean liner blown out from under him in the first five pages.

SeaFire passes the random reading test with flying colors. Highly recommended.

I'd love to tell you more, but two classes of middle school students have just landed and we're about to be REAL busy doing reference. See you next week.

Wilkins selected to attend Suzuki training sessions

Margaret Wilkins, local piano teacher, recently completed the fourth level of Teacher Training in the Suzuki piano method at Capital University, Columbus, Ohio.

Wilkins was one of nine teachers from Ohio, Indiana, Michigan and Kentucky selected by taped audition to participate in the five day sessions.

The sessions in Ohio were taught by internationally-known Suzuki piano educator, Mary Craig Powell.

Developed by Shinichi Suzuki of Japan, this method of instruction is based on the learning process used to teach a child his native language: imitation, creative repetition, and parental praise.

It is unique in several ways from other musical instruction. The parent attends the lessons with the child, learns the pieces along with child in the early books, and practices daily with the child as the home teacher.

Aural and memory skills are developed to a high degree before actual music reading is taught in the second book. Play-ins are frequently held so that students learn stage presence and confident performing skills.

Musical sensitivity comes through listening to tapes of the music being learned. By reviewing and refining each piece learned, the child develops patience and self-discipline as well as problem-solving skills.

A further benefit is that he always has a performance piece ready to play. A graduation recital of all the pieces in his current book is given at the end of the book. The selections are generally more advanced than repertoire in traditional method books in the earlier levels.

The aim of the Suzuki method is not to produce concert artists, but to develop in all children a love of music and to help each one realize his fullest potential and develop skills that will help in all areas of his life.

WESTWOOD 4-H CLUB presented special entertainment for Murray-Calloway County Senior Citizens on Aug. 9 at 11 a.m. at Weaks Community Center. (GIFT) series. Her presentation will be entitled "Building Community and Recucing Communication Apprehension: A Case Study Approach for Public Speaking."

The case study revolves around a public speaking student who tumbles her first speech. Highlights of the presentation will include methods for establishing a supportive educational environment and suggestions for dealing with communication apprehensive students in the public speaking classroom. The case has been accepted for publication in The Speech Communication Teacher.

Other work in progress includes a grant from Murray State University Committee on Institutional Studies and Research. The study, "Dimensionality of Patient Satisfaction: What Is the Nature of the Beast," explores physician-patient relationships. Dr. Tillson is in the preliminary stages of a second study which examines instructional strategies for graduate teaching assistant training.

Dr. Tillson, who earned her Ph.D. in Organizational Communication from Ohio University, is originally from Williamstown, W.Va., and has been teaching communication at Murray State University since August of 1992. Future plans include publishing a case study collection in Teacher Education, which will focus on improving communication in the classroom.

finesse to make the slam. Despite this, there is a very good chance of making the slam without the spade finesse; moreover, it costs declarer nothing to test this addition: a possibility before attempting the finesse. Accordingly, he wins the club lead with the ace and cashes the K-Q of hearts and A-K of diamonds, noting with interest that West contributes the 8-10 of diamonds as the suit is led. Declarer then plays the queen of clubs to the king and leads dummy's five of diamonds. East cannot afford to step up with the queen, which would make dummy's nine a trick, so he follows low. South does not bother to ruff the diamond because there is an excellent chance that West started with either the Q-10-8 or J-10-8 of diamonds. Instead, declarer discards a spade. As it happens, West is forced to win the third diamond with the jack and South makes the rest of the tricks because West is endplayed. The suggested method of play succeeds because the diamonds are favorably divided, but note that if they were not, declarer would still have the spade finesse in reserve. The important point is that South greatly increases his chances of making the slam by first sounding out the diamonds.

Let's say you're playing a contract where the outcome appears to depend on a finesse — essentially, a 50-50 proposition. When you encounter such a situation, you should automatically make it a point to look for a way to increase your chances to better than 50 percent. Consider this deal where it seems that declarer must win the spade

HOROSCOPES

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 23, 1994
(For your personalized daily Jeane Dixon horoscope, based on your own date of birth, call 1-900-988-7788. Your phone company will bill you 99 cents a minute.)

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Complete unfinished business quickly or a golden opportunity could elude your grasp. Better times lie just ahead. Let go of certain social inhibitions and become more spontaneous in your personal relationships. Family ties grow stronger as 1994 draws to a close. You feel a new contentment. A former romantic or business partner may try to inconvenience you early in 1995. Follow your intuition in affairs of the heart or pocketbook.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: pianist Ray Charles, writer Mary Kay Place, sculptor Louise Nevelson, rock star Bruce Springsteen.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Teamwork pays big dividends now. Take care of paperwork. Your instincts are correct where a newcomer is concerned. It is up to you to make the first move in romance.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Your mate or business partner goes along with your suggestions. Show appreciation. Come to grips with routine office chores by delegating tasks to reliable associates.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Domestic ties could fray if you are overly bossy. You have your own way of doing things and should extend the same privilege to mate. Spend more time with children and pets. Create happy memories.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You know your own desires but may be mystified about what really matters to your loved ones. This should give you plenty to think about! Urge family members to confide their dreams and hopes.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Say neither "yes" nor "no" to a proposed financial transaction. You need more data to make certain you will be getting your money's worth. Showcase your considerable talents as a writer, teacher or poet. VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): The workload may be too heavy for you to handle today. Do not hesitate to ask your colleagues for assistance. When profits rise, everyone benefits! Make overdue changes on the home front this weekend.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You will have your work cut out for you today. New developments on the job scene could have you considering a career change or a return to school. Consult with loved ones before doing anything drastic.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Not a good day for a showdown or public confrontation. Keep your cool if someone acts disobedient or inconsiderate. The afternoon hours look good for conferences or interviews. Be ready to answer probing questions.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Arguments could arise at your base of operations. A diplomatic approach will convince hotheads to calm down. Playing the role of peacemaker is more rewarding than you imagined!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Moderation is the key to good health. Replacing bad habits with good ones boosts your energy. Things should be looking up for those who have accepted wise counsel. Get your papers in better order.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Putting up additional cash for risky ventures would be foolish. Revise your outlook. You need to lie low until you can put your finger on what is impeding progress. Beware of gimmicks, untried methods.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): If others seem inclined to argue, try to find a reason to be elsewhere. With a little ingenuity, you will work things out. The presence of a dear friend could make this evening delightful.

TODAY'S CHILDREN: Graciousness and charm are hallmarks of these Libras. They collect friends and admirers wherever they go! Even as teen-agers, they will be secretive about their finances — reluctant to arouse either sympathy or envy. An urge to be extravagant wars with a desire to save for emergencies. Travel buffs, these Libras are particularly attracted to exotic, mysterious locales. They will want to see the world before settling down.

MSU Theatre previews season

Murray State University Theatre announces the 1994-95 season. Five shows will be presented this year, and season tickets will go on sale soon.

The shows to be presented this year include:

"The Foreigner," by Larry Shue will be presented Sept. 23-24 and Sept. 29 through Oct. 1, in Johnson Theatre. It is a contemporary comedy that is already a classic. Watch as Charlie and Froggy attempt to fool an old, evil town-councilman and a sinister minister in their plot to steal an old Inn from the proprietor. Physical comedy abounds in this fast paced production. Bob Valentine directs this comic caper.

"Cat on a Hot Tin Roof," by Tennessee Williams will run Nov.

4-5 and 10-12. This production is the classic tale of human isolation set in the sweltering heat of the deep south. Watch the journey of Maggie the Cat and Big Daddy as their story of the desperate need for human affection is played out with their family. This play is an interesting look at human needs and desires. David Balthrop makes his directorial debut at MSU with this production.

The third show of the season will be the Dance Theatre Production from Feb. 16-18 in Johnson Theatre. In its 14th year of production, dance theatre offers modern interpretations, classic ballet, and furious tap setting. The emotions of dancers as they perform various styles of dance and movement are sure to entertain. Jean Elvin directs the dancers in this extravaganza. "Anything Goes," will be the musical presentation this year. Cole Porter wrote the music for this production, with Bolton, Wodehouse, Lindsay, and Crouse writing the book. Timothy Crouse and John Weidman rewrote the script in its revised form. This joint production of the department of speech communication and theatre and the department of music will be offered March 30-31 and April 6-8 in the Johnson Theatre. Come aboard as we follow the classic musical tale of Billy and Hope as they cross the ocean in this boy-meets-girl, boy-loses-girl, can-the-boy-get-her-back love story. "I Get a Kick Out of You" and "Anything Goes" are just two of the numbers that are sure to please. James I. Schempp directs with Dennis Johnson conducting.

The final production of the season will be the children's classic story of "Charlotte's Web." Bring the kids to see this humorous story that teaches us to praise life. This tale is from the book by E.B. White and was adapted by Joseph Robinette. It will be presented in Lovett Auditorium April 24-26 at 9:30 a.m. and 12:30 p.m. Mark Malinauskas directs this poignant story for the children.

If further information is desired, please call the University Theatre office at 762-4421.

'The Foreigner' opens this weekend at MSU

Something funny is going on in Murray as the delight of audiences at the Murray State University Theatre.

Larry Shue's play, "The Foreigner" runs this weekend, Sept. 23, 24 and Sept. 29, 30 and Oct. 1, at 8 p.m.

The show is directed by Robert Valentine, with sets and costumes designed by David Balthrop and Randy Johnson.

The laughs in "The Foreigner" come often, relying heavily on the situations, character, clever dialogue and good comedy acting. The basic premise is two Englishmen visiting a small town in Georgia. One is a soldier who has become a good friend of the resort owner. The other is his friend, Charley, a proofreader from a science fiction magazine, who is trying to escape the basic monotony of his life. He leaves behind a terminally ill wife, who is as terminally unfaithful as she is sick.

Sensing that his friend does not want to be bothered, the soldier tells the female resort owner that no one is to talk to him, since he is a "foreigner" and can not speak or understand English.

As this information is shared with other townfolk at the resort, their reactions to the "foreigner" vary. That is where all the laughs begin.

During the course of three days, the phony "foreigner" pretends to learn English, becomes a course of confidence and leadership and executes a plan to save the resort, expose an evil minister and foil the Ku Klux Klan.

The cast for the show includes Logan Abbott, John Fritts, Jamey Jennings, Carla Miller, Kimberly Miller, A.J. Triano, Louise Weatherly, and many more.

Tickets for the show can be reserved by calling 762-6797.

The production is free to students with a valid MSU ID. Ticket prices are adults — $7, senior citizens — $5, and other students — $4. For more information call the University Theatre, 762-6797.

Students in Marjorie Grady's class at East Elementary made projects as part of a unit about "The Three Pigs." Pictured is Whitney Wicker, a primary student, with her potato pig and house. This project was part of an integrated lesson combining a variety of subjects.

U. S. Senator Mitch McConnell recently held a press conference regarding medical malpractice reform and the excessive litigation the Clinton-Mitchell health care plan would generate. McConnell, who opposes the Clinton-Mitchell bill, says it would create 16 new varieties of lawsuits and would dramatically increase taxes due to litigation.

Coaches make donation to Lions Club

Murray State Coaches Houston Nutt and Scott Edgar presented Tom Tompkins of the Murray Lions Club with a football and basketball signed by the respective coaching staffs.

The football and basketball will be auctioned, along with hundreds of other items donated by local merchants, during the annual Lions Club Radio Auction.

The auction will be aired over WSJP/WBLN/WNBS radio on Oct. 3, 4 and 5 from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m.

"Lions Club members will be out over the next two weeks calling on merchants for their donations of products or services. The merchants and people of Murray and Calloway County have been very good to us," said David Hill, Lions Club president. Hill said they have conducted this auction for over 20 years and it is their biggest fund raiser of the year.

The money is used for sight preservation activities and worthy community projects, according to Hill. If any merchant has not participated in the auction before, Hill encourages them to call 759-9789 after 7 p.m. any weekday evening and an auction coordinator will take their donation. The Lions Club raised approximately $5,500 last year and wants to exceed that figure for 1994.

University bookstore expands hours, service

Murray State University's bookstore in the Curris Center is expanding services and hours beginning Monday, Sept. 19.

The University Store, located on the second floor of the Curris Center, will add 30 hours to its operating schedule in an effort to better serve students, according to Bobby McDowell, manager. New hours will be 8 a.m. to 9 p.m., Monday through Friday; 9 a.m. to 9 p.m., Saturday; and 1 to 6 p.m., Sunday. The bookstore has been closing at 5 p.m. through the week, at noon on Saturday and was closed on Sunday.

Graduate assistants and other student workers will be hired to help staff the bookstore during the new business hours.

In addition to new hours, the 15,000 square foot bookstore is also adding several new features. New lighting is planned in the art section and an expanded book section is planned. Sale-priced books for children and topics such as art, business and general reading will be greatly expanded, McDowell said.

The bookstore features a full line of textbooks for all Murray State classes, plus sportswear, personal items, art supplies, general reading books, greeting cards, stationery, MSU glassware, magazines, newspapers, cosmetics, and supplies for teachers. The bookstore can also special order books for the public.

An expanded number of major newspapers is also being added, McDowell said. In addition to the Murray Ledger and Times and the Courier-Journal, the bookstore will carry copies of the Nashville Tennessean, Paducah Sun, Washington Post, The New York Times, Chicago Tribune, London Telegraph, St. Louis Post-Dispatch, and Baron's.

Other changes at the Curris Center include the arrival of Long John Silver's later this month. The restaurant will be housed in the old Stables area of the Curris Center.

A second restaurant, Freshens Premium Yogurt, will open in October on the second floor, in the space formerly occupied by a computer lab.

Both restaurants will be staffed by Murray State employees.

The Sugar Cube, located across from the bookstore, will also expand its hours to mirror those of the bookstore. The Sugar Cube features a variety of drinks and baked goods.

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: In a previous column, you stated that according to veterinarian Dr. Erwin David of Studio City, Calif., it is not possible for a cat to impregnate a rabbit. Enclosed you will find a picture of a "cabbit," the name given to the offspring of a female rabbit that was impregnated by a cat. As you can plainly see, Abby, the front half looks like a cat, and the hindquarters look like a rabbit. Pictures don't lie.
PROOF FROM TAMPA, FLA.
DEAR PROOF: I sent the picture to Dr. David asking for an explanation. His reply:
DEAR ABBY: The picture you sent is that of a Manx. Interspecies breeding is genetically impossible. A possible explanation for "cabbit" sightings:
There is a breed of cat called the Manx; it has no tail — just a stump similar to a rabbit's. In addition, it has a broad, round rump, and its hind legs are longer than its forelegs, giving it a rabbit-like posture and a hopping gait.
I am enclosing pictures of a Manx from a book of cat breeds. Don't they look exactly like "cabbits"?
ERWIN D. DAVID, D.V.M.
DEAR DR. DAVID: They certainly do, and I'm sure this is the reason for the confusion. The Manx has a classic cat face — and the rear end of an Easter rabbit. (I hope I don't lay an egg on this one.)
DEAR ABBY: After reading the letter from the fellow who appreciated it when a stranger told him his zipper was down, I had to write. A few years ago, I spent a hot summer day job-hunting. I wore a red cotton dress that buttoned up the back from the hem to the neck. I stopped at a drugstore to get a cold drink at the soda fountain. All the stools were occupied, so I stood in line, waiting until I could get a seat. After I finished my cold drink, I walked about a block to where my car was parked. When I got in, a man tapped on my window and said, "Lady, your whole backside is showing." Then he flashed a badge and added, "Be careful — next time you may not be so lucky." I thanked him, but after I realized what he was implying, I wanted to smack his face! Anyway, if only one person in that drugstore had told me that my rear was exposed, I would have appreciated it.
HUMILIATED IN HAMILTON, OHIO
P.S. I never wore that dress again.
DEAR HUMILIATED: More than a few readers wrote to share their "southern exposure" experiences — read on:
DEAR ABBY: When I read the letter from "Stumped in Delaware," who debated about whether to tell a stranger his fly was open, I had to write and share my own experience. Many years ago, I was a nurse's aide in a nursing home. It was one of those days when several elderly gentlemen had forgotten to pull up their zippers, so I went around checking patients, and zipping them up when necessary. After zipping up umpteen zippers and saying my usual cheery "There you go," a blushing young man said, "Thank you very much." Abby, he wasn't one of our patients — he was a new young priest who was visiting patients. That was the last time I pulled up a zipper without checking its owner first.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Please explain the difference between sarcoidosis and lupus, as well as the symptoms of each.

DEAR READER: Sarcoidosis, a disease of unknown cause, is marked by low-grade areas of inflammation in many of the body's organs, chiefly the lungs, lymph glands and liver. Symptoms may be absent or minimal. Swollen glands are common and a rash may be present, but the disorder is often diagnosed by accident during routine chest X-ray examinations. The diagnosis is made by biopsy. Treatment is rarely required. In contrast, lupus is a potentially fatal auto-immune disease. It causes rash, pleurisy, swollen glands, arthritis, and kidney damage. It is diagnosed by blood tests. Steroid therapy may be required to prevent renal failure. Experts consider the two disorders to be unrelated.

DR. GOTT

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Please devote a column to Parkinson's disease. I'm a 77-year-old male in good health. Several months ago I developed an intermittent tremor in my left hand that intensifies when I'm under stress. My doctor indicates this might be Parkinson's, but isn't too concerned.

DEAR READER: This common neurological disorder, which causes shaking at rest, a shuffling gait, an immobile face, and other symptoms, is caused by a depletion of a brain chemical called dopamine. The reason for this is not known. Parkinson's disease is usually progressive. In the early stages, no treatment is necessary, but as the tremor and other manifestations become more prominent, drug therapy (with Sinemet or other medicines) is advisable. The diagnosis is made by the patient's "clinical appearance" (how he or she looks, talks and walks). Patients with Parkinson's disease should, in my opinion, be under the care of neurologists. You may have this disease — or you could have another condition, such as benign familial tremor, an inherited shakiness that is not a hazard to health. Therefore, I suggest that you ask your doctor to refer you to a neurologist, who — after examining you — will confirm (or reject) the diagnosis and advise you whether treatment is necessary at this stage.
