He's Back! Elkins reinstated

By STACEY CROOK
Staff Writer

Larry Elkins is back in the chief of police's office, the lawsuit against the city has been dismissed and morale is up at the Murray Police Department.

Mayor Bill Cherry and Elkins issued a joint press release late Monday afternoon which said the city and Elkins reached a resolution reinstating the 22-year police veteran.

As part of the agreement, Elkins dismissed the lawsuit he filed against the city Sept. 14 — just one day after Cherry issued an executive order demoting the five-year chief to captain.

According to court records, the lawsuit was filed in an attempt to reinstate Elkins as chief of police.

By agreement of both parties, the terms will not be disclosed.

Elkins' attorney, Rick Lamkin declined to comment on whether any money was involved in the agreement or if Elkins would be compensated for any lost wages.

Cherry and city attorney, Don Overbey, were both unavailable for comment Tuesday morning.

But Lamkin said the public made an impact at last Thursday's city council meeting when more than 150 residents crammed into City Hall to express their concern and support for Elkins. According to the release, "The mayor has reached this decision after reasoned deliberation."

Lamkin said he and Overbey began working on an agreement Friday. But Elkins said he and the mayor have not met face to face since the details were finalized.

In the press release, Cherry said that "the decision to demote Chief Elkins was his sole executive decision and was not due to any act or omission on the part of Chief Elkins."

"After consideration of the wishes of the constituents of the City of Murray and the many people with whom he has spoken about his matter, Mayor Cherry believes that this resolution is in the best interest of the city and the community at large," according to the written statement.

"The public display went a long way in getting this matter resolved," Lamkin said.

Elkins said he thinks comments at the council meeting "had a whole lot to do with it."

"You go along and you do your job and you hear from the people who have a complaint or want something, but you don't know about all the folks who support you," said Elkins, who was at the police department with his family Monday night.

He said he is "very appreciative" of all the people, many of whom he has never met, that supported him.

Local businessman Johnny Rickman, who spoke out strongly against the mayor at the city council meeting, said Tuesday morning that he is "thrilled to death with the decision."

He said he feels better now that the controversy surrounding the executive order is over.

LBL still has no budget

TVA officials field questions

By AMY WILSON
Staff Writer

TVA officials pledged their continued support to Land Between the Lakes during a news conference Monday, but there is still no sign of a budget.

Meanwhile, LBL managers are preparing to scrutinize every area of operation while preparing a master plan that may lead them into partnerships with outside organizations.

"We haven't finalized the budget for Resource Group or LBL," said Kate Jackson, senior vice president of Resource Group. "We are anticipating a little over $6 million for LBL. The appropriated budget has been relatively flat, but TVA is firmly committed to LBL and the surrounding area."

The Resource Group is the appropriated side of TVA.

Jackson was one of three officials at the conference organized by U.S. Rep. Tom Barlow as the first of several news briefings to increase the understanding of LBL's resources.

With Jackson were Ann Wright, general manager of Senators approve Jones' appointees

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — For some senators, confirmation hearings on Gov. Brereton Jones' appointments to the new Health Policy Board were a chance to revisit some of the policy debates on reforming the medical industry.

For others, it was a more straightforward matter of letting Jones pick his own people.

A small core of conservative Republican senators used it to rail against abortion, socialized medicine and government meddling.

Sen. Charles Borders, R-Russell, said he did not like it that Jones chose five Democrats for the board, but said he would let the governor "live by his appointments and die by his appointments."

Nineteen other appointments by Jones to various boards and commissions drew virtually no opposition during the one-day special session of the General Assembly on Monday.

Three Republican senators — Tim Philpot of Lexington, Dick Roeding of Fort Mitchell and Gex Williams of Verona — each took turns asking a script of questions of the appointees.

Philpot wondered if the board would create a system of socialized medicine or a bureaucracy to put government into individual health care decisions. Philpot questioned the need for ill-defined reform.

"I've never known anybody in Kentucky to die because they couldn't get health care," Philpot said. "I've been trying to figure out what the crisis is."

Williams inquired if the board would propose universal health care coverage in Kentucky, even though the legislation requires the board to work toward just

Minor quake felt in parts of Kentucky

PADUCAH, Ky. (AP) — A minor earthquake shook parts of western Kentucky and southern Illinois on Monday, rattling windows and bouncing china off cupboards. There were no reports of injuries.

The U.S. Geological Survey in Golden, Colo., said the tremor was magnitude 3.6, which can cause slight damage. It said the epicenter was about 20 miles southwest of Paducah, near Wickliffe.

The quake affected Ballard, Graves, Carlisle, Livingston and McCracken counties in western Kentucky and Alexander, Pulaski and Massac counties in southern Illinois.

Herb Hendrickson, director of the Kentucky Division of Disaster and Emergency Services for Ballard County, said callers from Lovelaceville and Bandana reported pictures knocked off the walls and china bounced off cupboards.

Waverly Person, chief of the Geological Survey's information center, said scientists were unsure on which fault the earthquake occurred. But Person said it was unlikely the New Madrid Fault, one of the nation's most powerful.

In 1811 and 1812, the New Madrid Fault produced several earthquakes estimated from 7.5 to 8 on the Richter scale. They killed dozens of people, temporarily reversed the flow of the Mississippi River and reportedly cracked pavement and rang church bells as far away as New York and Boston.

Another small earthquake, measuring 4.2, struck southern Illinois on Feb. 5 but caused no damage or injuries.

U.S. troops take over parliament

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — American troops took over Haiti's Parliament building and city hall today in preparation for the return of this Caribbean nation's lawmakers and the Port-au-Prince mayor.

The Americans also were to begin their guns-for-money program today, paying $50 to $300 to anyone who turns in a firearm — part of an American effort to rid the streets of weapons.

Military police stretched concertina barbed wire about 50 feet outside the Parliament building. Soldiers in green camouflage uniforms patrolled the roof and stood guard inside the main gate.

A large crowd of Haitians gathered to watch. They booed loudly as a truckload of Haitian police drove by.

At city hall, armored vehicles were parked just inside the compound and U.S. Army Humvees with machine guns mounted on top stood guard outside.

The Parliament is scheduled to convene Wednesday to begin discussion of an amnesty law, which was part of the deal worked out by the military junta and an American delegation headed by former President Carter.

U.S. sources said they expected Port-au-Prince Mayor Evans Paul to emerge from hiding Thursday and return to his office at city hall.

Paul, who was President Jean-Bertrand Aristide's campaign manager, has been in hiding for much of the three years since Aristide was overthrown by the military.

U.S. officials also took control of the hillside Electoral Council building. This was considered a significant move, perhaps indicated the United States would have a strong say in partial elections scheduled for December.

Reaction to Brady Bill around state mixed

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — At Larry Lambert's PDQ Bait & Tackle in Winchester, he says gun sales have dropped since February, when the Brady law took effect, while a local flea market gun seller has doubled his sales in the same time.

"The Brady bill has done just the opposite of what it was supposed to do," Lambert said. "It has created a market for the illegal trade of handguns. The more regulations you put on guns, the more value you put on a criminal activity."

But law-enforcement authorities claim the Brady law — which gives them five days to check the backgrounds of prospective handgun buyers — is helping to keep guns out of criminals' hands.

Gun dealers and owners say it further infringes on the rights of law-abiding citizens and does not keep all convicted criminals from getting guns.

"It's just a bunch of half-baked ideas that really aren't attacking the root parts of crime: poverty and drugs."

Don Frenzi

Lambert has had no denials because he weeds out suspicious applicants before sending the forms for background checks. But he said the waiting period has caused people to go to other places — like flea markets — where they don't have to be scrutinized to buy guns because there are no regulations on the sale of guns from one private individual to another.

The law — named for James Brady, a press aide who was wounded when a would-be assassin shot President Reagan in 1981 — has weeded out 1,330 of 39,663 handgun applications in Kentucky since Feb. 28. Applicants have been rejected for felony convictions, for being fugitives or illegal drug users, or for having a history of mental problems.

Another 232 denials were reversed because the purchasers proved that cases against them had been dismissed, that they had been found innocent of charges, or that their felony had been reduced to a misdemeanor, said Dana Winkel, who supervises the Firearms Applications Unit for the Kentucky State Police.

"It's just a bunch of half-baked ideas that really aren't attacking the root parts of crime: poverty and drugs," said Don Frenzi, vice president of the Ken-

Jury selection begins in Simpson case

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The bleak prospect of sequestration was the biggest concern for the first wave of O.J. Simpson's potential jurors. But as the judge questioned, cajoled and even offered to pull strings, many had a change of heart about spending up to six months in the courthouse and a hotel.

"I thought about it," one man said. "Sequestration... It was like when Indiana Jones looked into the pit and said, 'Snakes! I can do anything but snakes.'"

"I've spent a lot of time in windowless buildings," he told Judge Lance Ito, explaining that he had recently retired. "I thought I was through with that. I've had 20 years of partial sequestration."

Asked if he would fill out a questionnaire and try to serve, he assented, but added: "I'm still worried about the snakes."

The man was one of 100 potential jurors who received 75-page questionnaires Monday, and are to return Oct. 12 to answer Ito's questions on their backgrounds and beliefs. Another 250 potential jurors were to appear today. All potential jurors are identified only by number.

Of the 219 jurors summoned by mail to appear Monday, 212 reported. Outside the courthouse, they ran a gauntlet of news crews, demonstrators and entrepreneurs hawking everything from T-shirts and caps to buttons reading: "O.J. Juror Reject, Didn't Make the Cut."

The potential jurors gathered in a large 11th-floor jury assembly room. Ito introduced the players in the case, including Simpson, who stood and said, "Good afternoon."

"This is probably the most important decision you'll make in your personal life," Ito told the group. "It's the most important decision of any American citizen. I need a fair jury."

One by one, the potential jurors then entered a small room. With Simpson about 8 feet away at a conference table, they discussed whether serving would be a hardship.

The first person questioned was No. 0032, a redheaded woman in her 30s. Simpson wore No. 32 as a college and professional football star.

"I don't know if this is an omen," Superior Court Judge Lance Ito said, eliciting a smile from Simpson. No. 0032 made the first cut.

Ito excused 112 people for reasons ranging from financial burdens to the need to take care of children or elderly relatives. One woman said she needed her time to train for the California Highway Patrol academy. The judge offered to contact the head of the CHP, but the woman still insisted she couldn't serve. She was excused.

Of the remaining 100 potential jurors, Ito separated the 65 who said they definitely could serve from the 35 who said they might be able to. Then he asked the group of 35 to explain their positions individually, but gave them questionnaires anyway.

Simpson sat at a table, hands in his lap, and tried to make eye contact with the candidates. Few returned his gaze.

He has pleaded innocent in the June 12 knife killings of his ex-wife Nicole Brown Simpson and her friend Ronald Goldman. He faces up to life in prison if convicted.

Ito hopes to have a jury pool of about 250 after all those who plead hardship are excused. About 1,000 people have received summonses; they are coming to court in smaller groups for lack of space.

tucky Pistol and Rifle Association, a state affiliate of the National Rifle Association.

But in the gun-ring case, ATF agents credited the waiting period with helping them nab two people who were buying guns in Oak Grove and allegedly selling them in New York. Varian M. Jones, 25, and his girlfriend, Sheron Denise McPhail, 29, both of Clarksville, Tenn., bought 63 handguns from a pawn shop between November 1993 and May.

While it's not illegal to buy more than one handgun at a time, gun stores are required to notify ATF of multiple purchases. ATF officials said the five-day waiting period enabled them to put McPhail and Jones under surveillance and catch them in a lie. Jones and McPhail had claimed they lived on the Army base at Fort Campbell. But when McPhail returned after the waiting period and bought guns in May, agents followed her and discovered the couple really lived in Tennessee.

Police arrested the two. Jones was picked up moments before he boarded a bus to New York City carrying a briefcase containing 19 pistols, said Ray Wilt, ATF special agent in Bowling Green.

The couple pleaded guilty to furnishing false information on the handgun applications and for buying guns in a state other than the one they lived in.

But agents didn't realize Jones and McPhail were part of a gun-trafficking ring until they were alerted by ATF agents in New York, Wilt said.

Those agents had posed as drug dealers looking to buy handguns from a suspect, Karriem Wisdom. But Wisdom told them that his source for guns — Jones — had been arrested in Kentucky. Wisdom pleaded guilty to being an illegal firearms dealer.

"We knew they were buying guns," Wilt said of Jones and McPhail. "But the problem was that we didn't know when they were going to buy again. The background check allowed us to know when they would pick up the guns."

that. Williams also asked if board members could vote to provide payment for abortion services within basic insurance packages.

Williams voted for the one appointee, Sister Michael Leo Mullaney, a Catholic nun who said she could not vote for such coverage.

Roeding and John David Preston, R-Paintsville, voted against all five nominees. Four or five other Republican senators voted against some or all of the others.

"A vote for these appointees is really a vote for more government and taxes in our health care," Roeding said.

Don Clapp, a former University of Kentucky administrator who is the chairman of the health board, defended its role.

"My objective is to simplify the system," Clapp said. "If we're successful, there will be less layers of bureaucracy rather than more."

Michael Hammons, a board member who used to be Jones' director of boards and commissions, was briefly quizzed about his role in recommending others to the board and how he came to be chosen. Hammons said it was Jones' call.

Dems, Reps blaming each other for demise of health reform

By CHRISTOPHER CONNELL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Now the blame game begins over who killed comprehensive health care reform this year.

Are the Republicans the culprits for abandoning their own health reform bills and threatening to tie the Senate in knots if anyone made a last-ditch effort to push any reforms through?

Or are President Clinton and the Democrats at fault for trying to take the country down a road where ordinary Americans — and not just those fictitious insurance industry kvetchers, Harry and Louise — were afraid to go?

Are Bob Dole and Phil Gramm the villains of this piece? Or do the black hats belong to Bill and Hillary Rodham Clinton and their chief henchman, Ira Magaziner?

With health reform finally declared dead for 1994 by Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell, it will be up to the voters to sort out right from wrong in the confused debate that reached its anticlimax Monday.

Mitchell hastened to point a finger at Republicans, blaming the minority for his failure to find a filibuster-proof solution to the country's health care problems.

He repeated a comment The New York Times reported that Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., made behind closed doors to fellow Republicans two weeks ago: "We've killed health reform. Now we've got to make sure our fingerprints are not on it." Packwood, the GOP floor manager in the fight, isn't sure he said that.

But Mitchell didn't acknowledge the difficulties he had encountered in finding even a bare majority for his own failed health bill, much less the original Clinton plan. Even with support from a handful of moderate Republicans, it was clear he never had the 60 votes needed to cut off a filibuster.

A significant number of Democrats shied away from the mandatory employer contributions that were at the heart of Clinton's bill and three of the four committee-passed plans. Some shared Republican concerns that even Mitchell's rewrite was too meddlesome and bureaucratic.

Dole, the Senate minority leader, insisted, "They never had 50 votes for any of their plans." It was not parliamentary roadblocks but overwhelming public opposition that stymied the Democrats' health plans, the Kansas Republican said.

Gramm, R-Texas, who for months had been gleefully pronouncing the Democrat health bills "deader than Elvis," expressed his gratitude that "the Democrats have now abandoned their crusade for government-run health care, at least for this year."

He said voters should "express their opinion on health care in the November election by rejecting Clinton allies at the polls."

And that's just what some think may happen in November: strong Republican gains that could give the GOP majorities in both the House and Senate.

Clinton said he was "very sorry ... that this means Congress isn't going to reform health care this year." But he vowed, "We are not giving up on our mission to cover every American and to control health care costs." He promised to take Republicans at their word that they will try again on health reform next year.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., also vowed to resume the fight next year. But Kennedy must first get past a stiff election challenge. Other Democrats, including Sen. Harris Wofford, D-Pa., who won his seat three years ago by promising to fight for health reform, are also vulnerable.

Poll after poll has shown that Americans are worried about losing their health insurance if they get sick and about not being able to keep their coverage when they change jobs.

But a year of high-profile salesmanship by the president and first lady left the public unconvinced that the Clintons' prescriptions would deliver better care at lower costs.

Sen. Dan Coats, R-Ind., said from day one the White House proposals "were overpromised and underfunded. ... Reality never matched the president's rhetoric."

Clinton kept raising aspirations high, as when he waved that pen during the State of the Union address in January and vowed to veto any bill that failed to guarantee coverage for all.

But in the months that followed, he seemed ready to settle for virtually any bill that could loosely be called reform. His veto gesture became an albatross, like George Bush's "read-my-lips" promise not to raise taxes.

The Republicans did backflips away from their own health reform ideas. Sen. John Chafee, R-R.I., got 20 GOP signatures on his reform bill that included a mandate on individuals to buy insurance. Dole was among the co-sponsors.

Some liberal stalwarts say they still aren't willing to give up and will try to secure coverage for all children in the closing days of Congress paid for by cigarette taxes and squeezing Medicare.

But for now, for the almost 39 million Americans without insurance, and millions more with anxieties about their health care, it's wait until next year — and hope that a new Congress can learn what not to do from the partisan dead ends that both parties ran down this time.

EDITOR'S NOTE — Christopher Connell writes on the health reform effort for The Associated Press.

MAIN STREET

Constance Alexander
Ledger & Times columnist

Someone once told me that one way to break down the resolve of a hostage-taker is to subtly force as many decisions as possible. If he demands food, ask what kind. A hamburger? How would you like it — rare, medium, well-done? With or without raw onions? Getaway car? Sure, but do you prefer a 2-door or a 4-door? Power windows or the old-fashioned kind? Standard or automatic shift? You get the idea.

The reason I'm telling you all this is that we're at the season of the year when we are down to the final pages of last year's calendar. It's time to order a new one. Bookstores are well-stocked with "calendar systems," and the catalogue business has spawned an array of new approaches to measuring out life in neat, square parcels, perpetuating the fantasy that — if you just find the right calendar — you can actually gain control over time.

Picking a new calendar, or even re-ordering the same kind you have had before, requires enough decisions to turn the most mild-mannered among us into a raving maniac.

First, you have to choose among basic formats: wire-bound pocket edition; loose-leaf pocket; wire-bound desk edition; loose-leaf desk. Let's say you settle on pocket size. You think you are finished making choices, right? Wrong. There are junior and pocket size. And after you are over that hurdle, there's color of paper to select, name or initials embossed on the front cover, zippered or non, with matching pen or without.

Once you struggle through the set of decisions on the basics, there are accessories to be reckoned with. How about special pages for special notes, such as a form for meeting agendas; a form headed "Items to be Discussed;" one for "New Ideas" and "Important People to Remember."

Just when you think you have plucked the perfect accessories from an overgrown field, you discover that you can purchase software to create your very own special customized calendar system in the privacy of your own home, on your very own personal computer. Of course, that option means another range of choices that may have you padding the walls of your office before you are through.

The calendar software promises a "bold leap forward in the way you manage your time." You can display schedules and to-do lists for any day, week, or month from today to the rest of your life. Schedule recurring tasks with the flick of a fingertip. Reschedule events. Just "click and drag to a new time or date," the write-up cheerfully advises, as if life can be shaped and reshaped with a keystroke.

In the midst of all this, I am reminded of the little gray and white cat I saw the other day on Route 45. It was in the grassy divider, casing out the expanse it would have to cross to get to the other side. Suddenly it tore off into the roadway, sadly miscalculating the speed of the car in the fast lane. The first hit seemed ever so light, and it tossed the poor thing in front of another vehicle. The cat tumbled across the second lane, appearing almost to bounce harmlessly before it laid to rest on the shoulder. It landed on its back, paws raised as if to fend off death. There were no marks on it; the creature still looked sleek and round. The early autumn breeze gently ruffled its fur. Whatever plan it had was over. That fast.

Clinton tries new communication

WASHINGTON (AP) — From now on, the most talkative of presidents said, he's going to go out and talk up his achievements because people don't realize how much the Democratic administration has done.

President Clinton's new communications strategy sounds a lot like his old ones.

On his economic program and on trade legislation, which he got through Congress successfully, and on the health care reform, which he did not, Clinton maintained that if people only understood what he was proposing, they'd be for it. That's his explanation now for the sour ratings that have worsened Democratic worries about the Nov. 8 congressional elections.

"We've been busy doing," he told a Democratic dinner in New York. "Now we're going to go out and talk."

They've got six weeks, and nothing, really, to add to the list Clinton and his allies have been advertising for months: deficit reduction, an improved economy, trade agreements, a crime bill and more.

"But a lot of people may not have felt it yet," he lamented, sounding not unlike George Bush did in unsuccessful defense of his administration two years ago.

"We find a situation in which the people may actually go out and vote for the very things that they are against because they don't know what has happened in the last 20 months," Clinton said. And if the voters knew all that's been achieved, he said, the Democrats would gain seats in Congress, instead of facing losses they now fear could be heavier than usual for the party of a president at midterm.

He said Democrats have to cut through the fog, blaming it on naysaying Republicans, on a cynical mood, on special interests bent on barring change. People close to the president see more to it, claiming there is a right-wing conspiracy to discredit him in order to prevent his programs.

Another factor, to Clinton's thinking, is a relentless, round-the-clock media machine that emphasizes what's gone wrong instead of what's done right.

Implicit in all of this is the conviction that perceptions, not proposals or performance, are the behind the Democrats' campaign problems. Clinton said the mood is to throw the rascals out without deciding who the rascals are.

Blaming messages, and often the messengers, isn't unusual, for politicians in or out of the White House. That avoids conceding that the voters may not want what they're offering.

Clinton ascribes some of his political problems to fear of change, which he said is not right and not rational. That assumes his changes are the ones most people want which, in turn, gets back to the task of communicating them.

It is a concern in any White House; the place is an unmatched pulpit for telling the president's story, but that also makes it uncomfortably obvious when things go wrong.

That concern with perceptions has been a factor in each of the successive shakeups in the Clinton White House staff, although the latest, the fourth in less than two years, turned out to be more tuneup than overhaul.

There have been two directors of communications, a job that now is being shelved in favor of a broader strategic planning assignment. Leon Panetta, the chief of staff, had planned to replace Dee Dee Myers as press secretary, but she not only got a reprieve from Clinton, she's getting a raise, the big office with the fireplace and more access to the president.

That's probably going to be temporary, until about the end of the year, when she has told people she plans to leave the White House. Panetta said as far as he and the president are concerned, it's permanent. So the first woman to serve as press secretary will be able to go on her own terms.

In a way, the medium and the message blurred when Clinton agreed to that arrangement at a meeting with Myers on Thursday night. Critics have accused him of wavering on policy decisions, and the late shift fits that perception.

Still, that's a side question. "The bottom line is the record," Panetta said. "Any president, any White House, has to ultimately be judged by the record."

 Buffalo quarterback Jim Kelly won his duel with Denver's John Elway in the Bills' 27-20 win Monday night.

'Not Superman' Elway misfires; Bills win 27-20

By JIMMY GOLEN
 AP Sports Writer

ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. (AP) — The Denver Broncos used to win these games, remember?

John Elway would move his team downfield with the clock ticking away, and one chance at the end zone would usually be enough.

Not this year. For the third time in four games, the Broncos had a chance to win a game in the final minutes but Elway couldn't deliver. On Monday night, the ball slipped out of his hand — again — and the Buffalo Bills held on for a 27-20 victory.

"A quarterback's not Superman," Denver running back Glyn Milburn said. "He's not going to see everybody open every time. He's got people flying around. It's a tough thing."

Elway may not be Superman, but they used to share a phone booth.

By the Broncos' count, he has engineered 32 game-saving, fourth-quarter drives in his career. But the only one in the last two years was a three-play, 11-yard drive with more than 10 minutes left against Kansas City last year.

And the three times he has been called upon to repeat the heroics this season, he hasn't.

—Against the Jets, Denver had a chance to take the lead late in the game but had to settle for a field goal. The Broncos lost in overtime 25-22.

—Against the Chargers, Elway led the two-minute offense to the San Diego 3. He rolled out and went to throw, but the ball slipped out of his hands and was picked out of the air by Junior Seau. Final score: San Diego 37, Denver 34.

—Against the Raiders ... well, you can't blame this one on Elway. Denver lost 48-16 — its worst home loss since 1968.

—And now, against Buffalo, the ball slipped out of Elway's hands on a fourth-and-2 with 21 seconds and sailed high over Cedric Tillman's hands and through the end zone.

"The ball slipped out of his hands. It's happened twice now," tight end Shannon Sharpe said. "We have to find a way to win close games. We're making too many mistakes, putting ourselves in bad situations."

Bills quarterback Jim Kelly said he was having the same problem on the rainy night.

"It slipped out of my hands probably seven times," he said. "It's one of those things where you really have to concentrate on the grip and the follow-through."

The Broncos, considered Super Bowl contenders when the season started, matched the worst start in their history. They also started 0-4 in 1964, when Jack Faulkner was fired as coach.

Shula clan readies for father-son grid battle

By JOE KAY
 AP Sports Writer

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Shula family is choosing sides. Do they root for Don — the NFL's leading coach with 330 victories — to get his Miami Dolphins back on track Sunday at Riverfront Stadium?

Or do they root for Dave — with only eight wins to his name — to beat his dad and get his Cincinnati Bengals their first win of the season?

"We've had a lot of fun with it," Dave said Monday. "I imagine it will be more emotional for them than for me because they're kind of caught in-between, where there isn't a lot of in-between for me or for my dad."

No, the first father-son head coaching matchup in NFL history is serious business for the two.

While their families chatted about weekend fun and rooting interest, Don and Dave Shula were still smarting from weekend losses that brought out that Shula competitiveness.

It took Dave a while to warm up to the Shula vs. Shula talk because of the fallout from a 20-13 loss in Houston. The Bengals had another terrible performance — they couldn't even get off a last-second Hail Mary pass against a three-man rush.

"I didn't ever think I'd be sitting here 0-4 going into this halfgame," said Dave, 8-28 as a head coach. "Certainly I'm very disappointed in that."

Several hundred miles away, his father shared the pain as he analyzed how the Dolphins overcame a 28-point deficit only to lose to Minnesota 38-35 Sunday.

Don was asked whether he feels uncomfortable knowing that by winning Sunday he would make his son's life even tougher.

Sara Snyder's hat trick highlighted Murray High's 4-2 win over Paducah Tilghman Monday night at Ty Holland Stadium.

Snyder's final goal of the game came in the second half after Tilghman cut the lead to 3-2. Snyder, with an assist from Courtney Christopher, gave Murray a two-goal lead which put the Lady Tornado away for good.

"I'm kind of disappointed because we let them stay with us 1-1 in the second half," Murray coach Mark Kennedy said after his team led 3-1 in the first half. "We just didn't have a 'put them away' instinct."

"That can come back to haunt you against a good team." Murray ran their record to 5-3-1 on the season.

Murray (5-1-2) got two assists from Micah Cathey and one apiece from Drew Woolridge and Chad Delancey.

Auburn excites Curry

Wildcat coach may need held against Tigers

By MIKE EMBRY
 AP Sports Writer

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Colorado's stunning victory over Michigan is giving Kentucky coach Bill Curry second thoughts about the power of prayer.

Colorado, coached by Curry's friend Bill McCartney, beat Michigan on a 64-yard Hail Mary pass as time expired last Saturday.

"I haven't talked to Bill," Curry said at his weekly news conference Monday. "I think he's been on his knees a lot. Bill's praying too much now. It's getting ridiculous. That's really not fair."

"I've been telling people all my life God doesn't care who wins football games, and now

BILL CURRY

I'm not so sure."

Kentucky may need a prayer or two when it travels to ninth-ranked Auburn for a nationally televised game Thursday night.

Kentucky (1-3, 0-2 Southeastern Conference) has fallen on hard times since a 20-14 season-opening victory over Louisville, losing 73-7 to No. 1 Florida, 59-29 to Indiana and 23-9 to South Carolina.

Auburn (4-0, 2-0), meanwhile, owns the nation's longest winning streak at 15 games, of which 10 have come at Jordan-Hare Stadium. Furthermore, Curry is 0-10 against Auburn.

"We're at one of those difficult times that create great opportunities," Curry said. "When there's a change in the routine, when there is an interruption or you have to get prepared quickly and there's national TV and excitement and a huge crowd and a 15-game winning streak and a very dominating, typical Auburn team, then that's exciting."

Antonio O'Ferral, who suffered a mild concussion against South Carolina, will start at quarterback and Matt Hobbie will be the backup. Curry indicated that Jeff Speedy, who has been hampered by a shoulder injury, will not play.

True freshmen Trevor Hypolite, a flanker, and linebacker Lamont Smith will likely see their first action Thursday night along with linebacker David Ginn, who has appeared in two games.

Lakers get second at golf Invitational

Staff Report
 Murray Ledger & Times

CALVERT CITY — In the annual tune-up tournament before next week's First Region Golf Tournament, Calloway County's boys' finished second in Monday's Marshall County Invitational.

Led by sophomore David Greene's 3-over-par 75 on Calvert City Country Club's par-72 layout, Calloway finished six strokes behind tournament champion Mayfield.

Windy and rainy conditions led to higher scores on leaf-strewn course. The top 12 finishers were all within four shots of Mayfield's Jeremy Grantham, the tournament medalist.

Mayfield finished the 18-hole tournament with a 308 while Calloway shot a 314. Murray High's boys took sixth with a team score of 326.

After Greene's 75, Calloway's Adam Haley turned in a 76, Jesse Rooker fired a 78 and Buzz Paul carded an 85. Greene and Haley finished second and third, respectively, in the individual standings, behind Mayfield's Grantham.

For Murray, Ryan Haverstock led the way with a 79, Jacob and Jeremiah Rayburn both shot 81 and Ryan Pickens had an 85.

Other team scores were: Ballard, 318; Tilghman, 320; Heath, 321; Graves County, 327; Marshall County, 330; Lone Oak, 331; St. Mary, 334; Hopkinsville, 335; Reidland, 336; Fulton City, 347; Hickman County, 350; Crittenden County, 362; Carlisle County, 365; Christian County, 367; Livingston County, 372; Caldwell County, 385; and Lyon County, 391.

Jansson wins tourney division in Jackson

Murray State senior Martin Jansson captured the title in the "A" division at the Jackson Good Morning Rotary Invitational this weekend in Jackson, Tenn.

Jansson, from Varberg, Sweden, lived up to his top seed billing by defeating Jason Todd of Arkansas in the finals 4-6, 6-2, 7-5. This marked Jansson's first action of the fall because of a case of the flu.

Racer Jan Fredriksson reached the semifinals of "B" division play, losing to the top-seeded and eventual winner Stewart Doyle of Arkansas 2-6, 3-6.

All of MSU's players performed well as every player posted a victory. Freshman Jamie Lucas earned his first collegiate win by topping Chad Hailey of UT-Martin 6-1, 6-0 in "D" division play.

Lady Racers play well in Murfreesboro

Despite rainy conditions which forced play inside, the MSU women's tennis team had individuals reach the semifinals in four different divisions of play at the MTSU Fall Classic this weekend in Murfreesboro, Tenn.

Bad weather forced several changes in the tournament format. Many players had to play three matches on Saturday and the first three rounds were all played as eight-game sets.

Freshman Martha Zimmer played her way to the semifinals of flight "B" play by winning three matches including a win over the fourth-seeded Staci Graham of Memphis, 8-6. Zimmer, from Atlanta, lost to the eventual winner Melanie Tate of Arkansas State.

Racer sophomores Renea Cates and DeAnna Carroll both dropped their opening round matches in flight "A" but battled through the consolation bracket to meet each other in the semifinals. Cates defeated Carroll 4-6, 6-4, 6-1 to reach the finals, which she lost to Comelia Botha of Arkansas State.

Huskers may lose Frazier for season

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Tommie Frazier, quarterback for No. 2 Nebraska and a strong contender for the Heisman Trophy, may be lost for the rest of the season because of a blood clot in his right calf.

Team doctor Pat Clare said the blood clot was being treated with enzymes and blood thinner.

high on the Broncos' final play, consoling the Denver quarterback after the game.

"I just told him, 'You guys are too good to be 0-4. Stick with it,'" he said. "He goes out and busts his butt every time he plays the game."

Thurman Thomas ran for two touchdowns in the last two minutes of the first half and Carwell Gardner added another after Thomas hurt his knee. The Bills took advantage of two turnovers that bridged the halftime break to score 21 points in 3 minutes, 36 seconds.

Thomas gained 103 yards in 17 carries before leaving with an injured right knee early in the third quarter. He went in from 16 yards out with 1:54 left in the half and from the 27 just 1:36 later after Bruce Smith forced an Elway fumble that Bennett recovered.

Elway, who had an interception returned for a touchdown in each of Denver's first three games, threw one that Washington returned 27 yards to the Denver 25. Four plays later, after Thomas injured his knee carrying the ball to the 3, Gardner crashed into the end zone and it was 24-7.

Coach Marv Levy said Thomas' injury "doesn't appear to be real serious."

Elway finished 26 of 45 for 280 yards with a touchdown. Denver came back, with Elway leading a drive of 57 yards in nine plays capped by Leonard Russell's 2-yard dive for a TD. Then the Broncos drove 51 yards to set up Jason Elam's 28-yard field goal with 1:55 left in the third quarter.

But Christie added a 28-yarder early in the third quarter after a 72-yard drive. Elam's 43-yarder cut it back to seven with 7:21 left.

Punter Chris Mohr tripped Milburn to stop a likely TD after Milburn had returned a punt 24 yards to the Denver 48 with just more than four minutes left.

The Broncos reached the 4, but Elway's last chance pass slipped out of his hand.

Tigers...

Snyder, a junior, got Murray out to a 1-0 lead in the first half on an assist from Jeanne Maddox. Allison Cantrell's direct kick from 30 yards made it 2-0.

Tilghman cut the Murray lead to 2-1 with a goal by Nolita Orr, but Snyder's second goal from Samantha Hogsted gave the Lady Tigers a 3-1 halftime lead.

Natalie Krupansky cut the lead to 3-2 to start the second half before Snyder's final goal pushed the lead back out to two. Murray outshot Paducah Tilghman 19-5 and Lady Tiger goalkeeper Emma Shaw made three saves, including one spectacular diving save which kept Tilghman from pulling closer.

"She was going to her right and the shot went to the left and she dove and snagged it," said Kennedy. "It could have been a much closer game."

Kennedy credited Cantrell, Susan Krieb, Jenny Leary and Hillary Belcher with outstanding games. Unfortunately, Cantrell and Belcher each suffered injuries and may not be available in Murray's Thursday night game against Caldwell County.

GIRLS JV

Murray 5, Tilghman 1
Murray High's girls' junior varsity ran its record to 5-1 with a 5-1 victory over Paducah Tilghman Monday night.

Samantha Hogsted scored the first goal unassisted, followed by Mary Kay Howard's goal with an assist from Leigh Haverstock.

Courtney Canerdy scored an unassisted goal to make it 3-1 at the half. Courtney Christopher, assisted by Jeanne Maddox made it 4-1 and Maddox capped the scoring with an unassisted goal.

Shula...

"I can't think that way," Don responded quickly. "We're coming off a very, very disappointing loss yesterday. Our team just feels about as low as you can get after coming back in the second half and tying the score and losing."

No other father-son combination has been through a week like what awaits the Shulas.

There has been only one other family to produce father-and-son head coaches in the NFL — the Phillips. Bum coached Houston and New Orleans, and his son Wade has coached the Saints and Denver.

A father and son have never faced each other as head coaches or managers in major league baseball, basketball or hockey in North America, according to the NFL's research.

"It'll be a special day, and it'll be a proud day knowing it's never been done before," Don said. "I'll be a proud father that day."

150 mothers can't be wrong, martial arts can help your child get ahead in life!

Celebrate Our 10 Year Anniversary In Murray

Mothers are very selective about the kinds of activities in which their child should participate. That's why more and more are enrolling their children in the Murray Tae Kwon Do for kids program.

Our carefully structured programs are designed to bring out the best in each and every child we teach. Our martial arts programs teaches children balance and coordination that will help them in many other activities. It also teaches them self confidence and self discipline, which gives them the will to say no despite peer pressure when things are wrong. Martial arts improve concentration, which often improves school work and it teaches them useful techniques that will help to protect them from danger.

With so many benefits to our program, it's not hard to see why so many mothers are excited about it here as just a few...

"Tae Kwon Do has helped Yannick's self control and discipline."
—Theresa Jones

"Tae Kwon Do has improved Max's concentration tremendously."

Legal Defense Fund

A mounting interest is being shown by several citizens of Murray and Calloway County to contribute money for the legal defense of Larry Elkins. We feel he was wrongfully demoted as Police Chief by Murray Mayor Bill Cherry.

Persons interested in making a (non tax deductible) contribution can do so by mailing a check or money order to the Fraternal Order of Police at P.O. Box 992, Murray, Kentucky. (Checks should be earmarked Larry Elkins Defense Fund).

The bidding:
South West North East
1♦ Dble Pass Pass
Opening lead — king of hearts.

When you play a doubled contract, you sometimes have to decide how far to go to try to make your bid, or how far to go to try to minimize the loss.

Here is a sad case where the declarer, in a reckless display of total obliviousness, lost control of the hand and took a bad beating as a result.

West made a takeout double of the opening diamond bid and East not unreasonably decided to leave the double in. West led the king of hearts and then shifted to the jack of diamonds.

Declarer covered the jack with dummy's queen and took East's king with the ace. South promptly returned a diamond, hoping to dispose of the adverse trumps so that he could cash his spade tricks.

The idea of drawing trumps met with enthusiastic approval by East, who proceeded to extract them all. West, in the meantime, discarded three spades and a heart.

East then made the fine defensive play of shifting to the queen of clubs, putting the kibosh on the king. The defenders, having cashed four trump tricks in a row, now took four clubs and three hearts to bring about a six-trick defeat, which came to a tidy 1,700 points.

Of course, sets of this magnitude are almost always traceable to malfeasance in office, and this hand is no exception. Aside from the fact that a spade contract by North-South would have been far superior, the matter of declarer's line of play at one diamond doubled left something to be desired.

The very fact that East had left the double in was virtually proof positive that he had started with five trumps. Warned by the bidding what to expect, South should have gone all out to save what he could from the wreck.

After winning the ace of diamonds, he should have started cashing his spades instead of leading a trump. Played this way, he could have assured five tricks to hold himself to a modest set. As it was, though, all he scored was the ace of trumps.

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: Regarding the woman who was embarrassed to ask whether her tomcat could mate with a rabbit.

What she should really be embarrassed about is owning an unneutered male cat.

While it is true her cat cannot father "kittirabbits," unless he is neutered soon, he will undoubtedly be responsible for helping to produce many kittens, thereby contributing to the disgraceful situation of millions of animals being put to death because there are no homes for them.

In addition, Abby, when her tomcat is neutered, he will make a much more socially acceptable pet — and will stop trying to get funny with the bunny.

MARGARET MARSHALL IN SEATTLE

DEAR MARGARET: Your point is well-taken. And while we're on this important subject, all dog owners should have their pets spayed or neutered so that unwanted puppies won't have to meet a cruel end.

A well-to-do animal lover in Los Angeles contributes generously to the local Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals (SPCA), requesting that her contribution be used expressly for spaying and neutering. Perhaps others may want to do the same.

P.S. Sandy and Bob Miller of Ellicott City, Md., sent me an interesting chart distributed by The Maryland Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals:

"Two uncontrolled breeding cats — plus all their kittens and all their kittens' kittens, if none are ever neutered or spayed, add up to: first year: 12; second year: 66; third year: 382; fourth year: 2,201; fifth year: 12,680; sixth year: 73,041; seventh year: 420,715; eighth year: 2,423,316; ninth year: 13,958,290.

DEAR ABBY: A remarried widow wrote complaining about sleeping with her husband's two dogs, who kept her awake. You replied that maybe he should try to train the dogs to stay in a basket by the bed. From my experience, that will be hard to do.

During my college days, I had a little dog that slept with me in my sleeping bag. We were both freezing in a trailer. Years later, I left her with my Gramma when I was going to be out of the country. Gramma asked me to train her to sleep in a basket before I left. The pouch didn't understand, so I decided Gramma could set the new rules for the new place.

I returned a month later and found little black doggie hairs between Gramma's sheets. "What's this?" I asked.

"Well," Gramma blushed, "it was easier to teach an old Gramma new tricks."

S.K. CHEW, OREGON

DEAR DR. GOTT: This may not help "Stumped in Delaware," who didn't know how to tell a man his zipper was open, but readers of your vintage (and mine) will surely enjoy the laugh.

My father, as he became older, also became slightly forgetful about zipping himself up. When this happened, Mother came up with a great reminder. She would softly sing "Zippity Doo Dah" as she went about her work or recreation.

It worked immediately — every time.

LOVE MY MEMORIES IN MENLO PARK, CALIF.

DR. GOTT

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm 65 and have to urinate every hour of the day and night. I do not drink abnormal amounts of fluids, just two juices, one tea, one coffee, one milk and six glasses of water a day. Should I reduce my liquids or increase them? Doctors say I have a small bladder. It was stretched once, but that was so painful that I can't undergo the procedure again. Any suggestions would be welcomed.

DEAR READER: A small bladder volume is, alas, a predictably common cause of frequent urination, because as fast as the bladder fills up and stretches, it must be emptied. Other than undergoing repeated procedures to enlarge your bladder volume, your only hope is to reduce your fluid intake.

I do not believe that you need six glasses of water a day, in conjunction with your other fluid intake, to maintain good health. Cut back on this. Drink water only when you're thirsty. And, to avoid the nuisance of voiding at night, don't drink any fluids after supper; such fluids will be filtered by your kidneys and end up in your bladder while you're asleep.

If my suggestion doesn't appreciably help you, return to your urologist for further advice.

Because low-grade urinary infections are also a common cause of frequent urination, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Bladder and Urinary Tract Infections."

DEAR DR. GOTT: Please provide information on fibromyalgia.

DEAR READER: Fibromyalgia is a poorly understood syndrome of unknown cause, marked by muscle aching, stiffness and tenderness. The affliction is more common in women and appears, in many instances, to be associated with stress, injury, insomnia, or other illnesses. Some authorities believe that fibromyalgia is caused by a virus infection, but this theory has yet to be proved.

As a general rule, fibromyalgia is a "rule-out diagnosis," meaning that other conditions — such as rheumatoid arthritis, Lyme disease and lupus — must be eliminated from consideration by special blood tests. There is no single diagnostic test for fibromyalgia. The disorder often disappears, in a matter of weeks, without therapy. In resistant cases, anti-inflammatory drugs (Motrin, aspirin and others), in conjunction with anti-depressant medicine (Elavil and others) and cortisone injections into the most painful areas) may be necessary. Physical therapy is usually helpful.

Fibromyalgia is not a hazard to health, but it is a burdensome nuisance for those who have it.

LBL, and Ron Loving, TVA's vice president of governmental relations.

When the federal fiscal year begins Oct. 1, LBL will begin operating under the 1994-95 budget, which has yet to be revealed. However, 45 positions have already been declared "at risk" or surplus.

In 1993-94, LBL employed 163 people, with 13 quartered at Knoxville. With the reorganization, LBL will have three departments — business development, operations and property/resource services — and will scale its nine managers down to three.

When asked to describe the morale at LBL, Wright said that people are concerned because "these are difficult times."

Both TVA and LBL officials have said repeatedly that no one has been laid off involuntarily. Instead, employees have been offered one of three early-out incentives or membership in TVA's new service organization, which will provide job training.

"This is an attempt by TVA to take a step back in retraining employees for changing needs," Loving said. "We are giving them the opportunity to try something new."

Loving said this effort is part of the TVA board's goal of "the employee first."

However, no immediate savings will be realized because employees will continue to be paid their current salary while in the service organization until they are placed elsewhere.

"We are planning to place a service center in Paducah or at least somewhere in western Kentucky and try to find jobs for people in the area," Jackson said.

"This is an attempt to use TVA people for routine maintenance." When the Empire Farm facility closed in 1991, "surplused" employees were sent to Paris, Tenn. for training.

Jackson said the service organization is still being developed.

"This will be somewhat of a competitive organization," Loving said. "The employees will have the opportunity to bid on opening jobs within TVA."

When asked by a Ledger reporter about the potential for competition between the service organization and the private sector, Barlow said that "it would be a Congressional oversight to not watch the competition."

As the fiscal year approaches, Wright and Jackson are responsible for formulating LBL's budget.

"In conjunction with my office, facility closings and positions are decided based on recommendations from Ann," Jackson said.

LBL's budget for the upcoming year is expected to be smaller than the one for 1993-94 because certain operations that were transferred to LBL have been relocated.

"The environmental education services that were transferred to LBL from Norris, Tenn., have been relocated to Muscle Shoals, Ala., which is the best place to house the environmental activities," Wright said. "We will continue to have environmental education at LBL."

Despite that commitment, no one is sure what shape LBL will take after some of its operations are scaled back such as the Homeplace 1850s and Woodlands Nature Center.

"We will be closing those two facilities on Mondays and Tuesdays after Oct. 16," Wright said. "We feel that those are the days of lowest use and won't have a major impact. We think people will still have the opportunity to visit LBL."

Also on the closure list are Youth Station, an overnight camping facility; Lake Energy Campground; the North and South Welcome Stations and some non-fee campsites.

"Unless we find other ways to use these facilities, we would look closely at closing them at the end of the fall 1994 season while they are evaluated to determine how they could be operated and/or leased to recover costs and increase visitation," Wright said.

Another area that will be reduced is wildlife restoration and research.

She said several organizations have called and offered to help in providing services.

"We have known for some time that we need to take a long hard look at what we are providing and the most efficient way to operate is through partnerships and collaborative efforts," Wright said.

LBL is already involved in partnerships with organizations across the state including Murray State University, Western Kentucky University and the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife.

Other partnerships could come in the form of leasing land.

Wright confirmed that there have been discussions at LBL for adding a golf course, resorts and water theme parks.

"As we begin master planning, we will discuss a variety of options," Wright said. "We are setting up teams to explore alternatives."

Barlow added that ideas that conflict with LBL's mission of recreation and environmental education would be judged inappropriate.

"They have to look at every possibility or they would be held liable," Barlow said. "We have to rebuild the foundation for a growing LBL and strengthen the resources."

Elkins...

"I feel like Bill Cherry is coming back to be the man I thought him to be," Rickman said. "You know, it's not a disgrace to make a mistake, but it is a disgrace not to admit you've made a mistake and try to fix it."

When asked if he thinks Thursday night's showing had anything to do with the resolution, Rickman said there was no doubt.

"I've never seen as much support for one man in my life," he said. "This upset Murray as a whole, but people were willing to voice their opinion."

Police officers were also pleased with the decision.

"Morale has gone up 300 percent," Capt. Bobby Holmes said shortly after the announcement was made.

About 20 officers stopped by the police department Monday night to welcome Elkins back.

Murray Police Chief Larry Elkins talks with officers and dispatchers Monday night at the police department.

"I'm happy to be back in my position and I'm ready to move forward," Elkins said.

When questioned about the possibility of a salary increase, Elkins said the city is aware of the department's needs.

increase.

"We won the battle, but we haven't won the war yet," he said. "I'm going to encourage everyone to get together and see if there is any way that we get these people a raise."

Rickman said police officers and firefighters deserve a "livable wage."

"And I intend to see that through," he said.

The Fraternal Order of Police is moving forward with its campaign.

While Cherry's only public comment about the demotion was that it was "time for a change in leadership," speculation behind the mayor's actions concerns a public awareness campaign the local FOP recently undertook in an effort to increase officer salaries at the department.

A billboard erected on Ky. 94 East in late August reads, "Welcome to Murray, #1 Retirement Community, M.S.U., Industry, ...and some of the lowest paid police officers in the state!"

FOP President Sgt. Ronald Wischart said the lodge will continue the campaign, but is changing its approach.

He said the billboard will come down and be replaced "with a more positive message."

"It will be on a more positive note," he said. "We're doing this as a gesture of good faith and good will toward the city and the administration."

"We're glad to have Chief Elkins back and we think that his coming back will restore order and morale in the police department," he said.

Elkins said the confidential agreement is in the best interest of himself, his family and the city. His reinstatement is effective immediately.

During the two-week interim, Capt. David Smith was appointed acting chief.

"I'm willing to do my part to get everything back on course and I feel the city government will cooperate and we'll hopefully put this behind us," Elkins said.
