Truck wreck leaves man hospitalized

By STACEY CROOK
Staff Writer

Rescue personnel worked more than 20 minutes to free a Tennessee man from the mangled cab of his logging truck Monday morning.

Phillip E. Merrell, 43, of Puryear suffered serious internal injuries and was airlifted to Vanderbilt Medical Center in Nashville, according to a Murray-Calloway County Hospital spokesman.

State police said Merrell was southbound on Beat-Farmer Road, just east of Blood River Baptist Church on Ky. 444 when the brakes apparently failed on his 1968 Chevrolet truck, which was carrying a load of logs.

The vehicle ran through the stop sign at the intersection of Ky. 444 and struck a dirt embankment. The impact collapsed the cab of the truck.

A witness at the scene said he called 911 from his cellular phone at approximately 7:30 a.m.

Hope for Y funding dwindles

By STACEY CROOK
Staff Writer

A cloud of technicalities has settled on the YMCA's dream of building a full-service facility in the Old City Park this year.

City Planner Don Elias, who has been working with local officials on the grant application, said the project has run into a couple of glitches.

Even with strong political support, Elias is not very optimistic about receiving a $500,000 community development block grant during this funding cycle.

The state accepts applications for grants in the fall and spring.

"From the political end, it has awful strong support, but so do another dozen projects across the state," he said.

Elias is referring to the efforts of Murray-Calloway County Chamber of Commerce president Bob Jackson, who has strong ties to Frankfort and has been instrumental in obtaining other community development block grants including a $750,000 housing

Fair will feature child protection

Child protection services will be an important component of the Community Resource Fair being held at East Elementary School on Saturday, Oct. 22, from 10 a.m. - 2 p.m.

Fingerprinting and videotaping of children will be available through the cooperative efforts of County Attorney David Harrington, the Calloway County Sheriff's office, Murray Police Department, Cablevision and several volunteers. There is no charge for this service. Parents are urged to take advantage of this opportunity. Videotapes and fingerprints are invaluable in tracing children who are abducted.

Saturday, Oct. 22, is national Make A Difference Day. The Advisory Council of the Family Resource Center invites all families of children in the Calloway County Elementary Schools to be a part of the Community Resource Fair being held that day. Other features of the Fair will include a clothing exchange for elementary children, free medical screenings and the opportunity to learn about the many resources available in our community.

Carter leaving Good Housekeeping

John Mack Carter, a Murray native, has left his position as editor-in-chief at Good Housekeeping to lead a new initiative within Hearst Magazines.

The Hearst Corporation has formed a major subsidiary within Hearst Magazines, to be called Hearst Magazines Enterprises (HME) that will be responsible for the development of new magazine ventures both inside and outside of Hearst.

This is the first time in the 90-year history of Hearst Magazines that the company's editorial and managerial expertise has been made available to magazine publishers outside Hearst.

Carter, who has been with Good Housekeeping since 1975, will take over his new position immediately and his successor at Good Housekeeping will be named in the near future.

This internal magazine development program, which will continue as the core of HME, will also now be taken outside the company and made available to non-Hearst publishing ventures.

Carter will supervise the internal development, as he has in the past, and be responsible for identifying entrepreneurial magazine publishers to which Hearst can provide an array of fee-based publishing services.

"Our newest venture opens up a whole new area of operations for Hearst that is unprecedented in the history of our company," said Frank A. Bennack, Jr., president and chief executive officer of The Hearst Corporation. "John Mack Carter, who will serve as president of Hearst Magazines Enterprises, is probably the only person with the editorial and publishing experience necessary to create an industry-wide resource such as this."

In addition to his broad editorial experience, including appointments as editor-in-chief of the three leading women's service magazines, Good Housekeeping, McCall's and Ladies' Home Journal, Carter served as president and chief operating officer of Downe Communications, Inc.

Local man part of TVA lawsuit

By AMY WILSON
Staff Writer

A Murray man is among 12 individuals named in a federal lawsuit alleging age discrimination against Tennessee Valley Authority.

"This lawsuit has been underfoot for several months and we are just now at the stage where we had the materials together," said Frank Potts, one of the attorneys for the plaintiffs.

The federal lawsuit was filed Oct. 11 in the U.S. district court for the northern district of Alabama.

"One of the reasons it was filed in Alabama is because according to statute, TVA's headquarters are supposed to be at Muscle Shoals, Ala.," Potts said. "Also, Muscle Shoals is one of the premier places where a larger number of employees affected are located."

Larry Doyle of Murray, who had been employed at TVA's Land Between the Lakes in the forestry division for 26 years and served as manager of land stewardship for about 10 years, joined other employees or former employees over the age of 40 who claim they were victims of age discrimination as a result of reorganization within the Resource Group, which is the appropriate side of TVA.

Doyle, 56, opted for one of the early-out incentives that had been offered in an effort to reduce the TVA workforce. His last day on the job was Friday.

"A fellow employee and I got together in 1992 when it was announced that TVA was downsizing," Doyle said. "He and I are about the same age with the same amount of experience and we knew that when all the reorganization was finished, we wouldn't have jobs."

More than 2,600 employees of TVA opted to participate in the early-out program, which is a 14 percent reduction in the agency's 19,000 employee workforce.

However, the lawsuit specifies that the discrimination began in October of 1992 when the reorganizing efforts were implemented.

"TVA is wanting to cut operating costs," Potts said. "There are legal ways and illegal ways. TVA's biggest expense is labor and older employees cost more than younger employees."

"Our lawsuit deals with the retooling process — putting these

Barlow, Whitfield exchange barbs in radio debate

MADISONVILLE, Ky. (AP) — U.S. Rep. Tom Barlow pressed for the release of personal income tax returns by Republican challenger Ed Whitfield, who fired back by accusing the incumbent of distorting the truth.

The bitter exchange by the candidates in the 1st District campaign came during a joint radio appearance Monday on station WFMW in Madisonville. Barlow, a Democrat, challenged Whitfield to release his tax returns, and Whitfield criticized Barlow for supporting shipping subsidies that he said raised costs to exporters of coal and grain.

Whitfield also accused Barlow of once working for a "radical environmental organization." Barlow lobbied during the 1970s on behalf of the Natural Resources Defense Council. Barlow's own tax returns, reviewed Monday by The Associated Press, showed he earned $121,724 in 1993 and paid $5,598 in state income taxes. He paid $25,533 in federal income taxes last year.

"Are you going to put forth your tax returns for the people of the district to look at?" Barlow asked early in Monday's show. "Which taxes are you talking about?" Whitfield said. "The state and federal taxes for the last five years," Barlow said.

"Well, you know, I'll certainly consider that. I don't recall ever seeing yours."

"They're there...." Barlow said.

"What is it about my taxes that you're particularly interested in?" Whitfield asked.

"I think the people of western Kentucky have a right to know if you've made a contribution, as every Kentuckian has, to the well being of the state of Kentucky," Barlow said.

"Well, I'll make that decision when the appropriate time comes."

"It's now," Barlow said.

The congressman said later that Whitfield was "trying to buy an election with out-of-state money and go to Washington and represent the people of Kentucky, and you haven't even paid taxes in the state of Kentucky."

Whitfield answered: "Let me tell you something, Tom Barlow. I've received money from 800-some individuals in Kentucky. You take tax money from all over this country because you don't have enough support to get individual contributions from inside Kentucky."

Park board attempts to finish projects before winter

By MARK YOUNG
Staff Writer

With fall coming on, the Murray Calloway County Park and Recreation Department has been busy completing several projects in the city parks.

At Monday night's monthly meeting of the Murray Calloway County Park Board, department director Gary Hohman read a detailed list of recently completed projects. It included: installing "parking" and "no parking" signs at the soccer complex, as well as completing two small parking lot areas; removing and relocating a walkway at the community theater building; installing wiring and lights at the new picnic shelter; hauling in and putting down dirt at the old picnic shelter and installing trash receptacles and grills there; and putting down more dirt and some sod on the baseball fields.

In regards to the soccer complex, the board discussed making the roadway there one way and putting gravel on the walking trails near the field, but no vote was taken.

The board discussed possibly keeping the picnic and playground areas lit at all times in an effort to reduce vandalism, but the point was also made that vandalism could also be avoided by leaving the areas unlit because potential vandals would not be able to see what they were doing and would not be likely to turn on a light. No vote was taken, pending more information on the potential costs.

Also discussed was the need for playground equipment that could be used by teenagers who now use equipment designed for children ages 6-12.

The board's nominating committee recommended Dr. Rob Williams serve as Park Board chairman for another year, with Danny Hudspeth as vice chairman and Bill Bailey as treasurer. The nominations were approved by acclamation.

In another vote, the board agreed to join the Kentucky Recreation Society, at a cost of $125 per year.

Finally, board members agreed to meet with the respective committees prior to next month's meeting to discuss its schedule of fees for various services and uses of park areas.

grant to improve the North Douglas community.

"But it's not going anywhere today," Jackson said of the YMCA application.

Elias said there are restrictions on the property deed which limit what type of structures can be built in the park.

In order for the YMCA to build the proposed $1.2 million facility on a four-acre tract of land at the corner of Eighth and Chestnut streets, Elias said the Department of Interior has to approve the project.

In addition, Elias said "a handful" of letters, mostly from adjacent property owners, have been sent to the state opposing the project.

Jackson said the primary downfall of the project involves technical issues.

Because federal money has previously been spent on the park, the U.S. Department of Interior must approve any changes, he said.

"The park has a specific mission of being a park," Jackson said.

YMCA board of directors president Dr. Jack Rose said the organization is not abandoning its dream of providing a full-service facility.

"I think most opposition has to do with the location," he said. "But I think, unless it became obvious the public wasn't interested, we'll try to get a facility."

Board members have proposed building a 23,000 square-foot structure on the northeast corner of the park which would contain a childcare center, wellness center, indoor walking track and space for other activities.

Right now, Rose said he is not sure what options for an alternate site may be available.

Elias said if the YMCA wants to continue its bid for federal assistance, he will submit another grant application next year.

"These monies are highly competitive, and applications frequently get turned down on the first or even second try. But we'll keep submitting it," Elias said.

Even before the grant was sent to the state Sept. 1, the YMCA ran into technical problems.

The City of Murray agreed to apply for the funds on behalf of the YMCA, but the state said it could not do so because the city had received its maximum allotment of grant monies this year.

Therefore, Elias and YMCA board members requested the Calloway County Fiscal Court apply for the monies. Elias agreed to work with the county in dealing with the application.

After several minutes of deliberation and reassurances the grant would not affect the county's chances for grant money to build a new jail, the court voted to apply for the money.

The $500,000 would be used for childcare and child development.

The YMCA originally planned to provide a 24-hour childcare service, but massive opposition for the idea prompted the board to change its goal.

The group came back with a revised plan to provide childcare in the afternoon and evening, which board members said would cater to those families who work second and third shifts at local industries.

Elias said other concerns voiced in letters written to the state involved traffic flow and use of the park land. Many of the issues were discussed at a public hearing prior to submission of the grant.

About 100 residents attended that hearing on Aug. 24.

Elias said anytime residents oppose a project involving tax dollars, the state gets concerned about funding it.

"But being turned down one time doesn't mean they'll never fund it," he said.

people out to pasture by cleaning house and getting rid of the older folks," Potts said. "The average age of the new workers compared to the average age of the old workers are vastly different."

At the request of Norman Zigrossi, then president of the Resource Group, a top-down reorganization of the Resource Group was initiated in November of 1992.

Doyle said that in 1992, those holding manager positions were told they would have to reapply for their jobs.

"It was like putting all the jobs in a hat and shaking them around," Potts said.

However, Doyle said he and other employees wrongly assumed that jobs resulting from the reorganization would be filled by TVA employees.

"TVA surplused about 90 employees and then hired about 87 from outside TVA," Doyle said. "Meanwhile, those of us not rehired were classified as members of a transition team."

In October of 1993, Doyle applied for two jobs, but didn't get either of them.

"One of the jobs I had applied for was forestry specialist, but I was told that I couldn't communicate well enough," Doyle said. "Although I was told I wasn't wanted in that job, I was told that I was needed for other things."

As a result, Doyle was transferred into the employee skills center in December of 1993, where he learned computer skills and worked on LBL's environmental impact statement.

"I was still getting my regular salary throughout this entire time," Doyle said. "When the early-out incentives became available in August of 1994, I felt it was in my best interests to retire. This last round of reorganizing was simply a downsizing of the first one."

Doyle said age discrimination was more evident in places such as Knoxville and Muscle Shoals.

"Those people with surplus positions were physically moved out and lumped together," Doyle said. "Their replacements were much younger."

For Doyle, the decision to retire did not come easily.

"I have mixed feelings about the whole thing," he said. "On one hand, it is great to be eligible to retire, but I wanted to be able to pick the time. I would have liked to have worked three or four more years."

"I'm not mad at TVA, but I am disappointed at how the personnel decisions were coordinated," Doyle said. "LBL was the best place I could have worked for the last 26 years."

Although only 12 individuals are named in the suit, Potts said there are many others who are involved.

"We have an opt-in class action suit where if people want to join, all they have to do is tell us," Potts said. "The people who are named are just representatives of the group that has been discriminated against."

Now that the case has been filed, TVA has 60 days to respond.

"After a response is submitted, the two parties will sit down and determine how the suit will be handled," Potts said. "It is going to be a long drawn-out process that could take many months to settle."

Other plaintiffs named in the suit are Frank Lucas, Charles Simpson, Geraldine Hall, Arthur Hagood, Joe Johnson, Carolyn Ordal, Ken Ritenour, John Newcomb, John Schiebe, Stanley Stokely and Chris Stain.

Truck wreck...

Merrell was completely pinned inside the vehicle.

He said when the truck struck the embankment, the logs rammed into the back of the cab which caused it to "sandwich in" the driver.

After the impact, the trailer holding the logs broke and most of the load fell to the side of wreckage.

Sykes and firefighters Ronnie Barnett and Dickie Walls used cutters to clip the posts on the cab then used devices called rams to expand the area.

Rams are often used to push away indented vehicle dashes which have trapped occupants.

Sykes said they used one ram to lift the top of the cab up and a second ram to move the back of the cab away from Merrell.

Meanwhile, Calloway County Fire-Rescue volunteers doused a gas leak with water.

Sykes said electric wires running from the battery to the cab were cut while firefighters were attempting to free Merrell. Those wires began to spark, so rescue workers also cut the battery cables to avoid a possible fire.

After the truck cab was cut away from Merrell, Murray-Calloway County ambulance personnel placed a plastic collar around the man's neck and immediately bandaged a severe laceration across Merrell's forehead before removing him from the wreckage.

Merrell was immediately transported to Murray-Calloway County Hospital where he was stabilized before being airlifted to Vanderbilt at 10:30 a.m.

In addition to the facial lacerations, Merrell sustained a broken back and other multiple injuries, emergency workers said.

According to a Vanderbilt Medical Center spokeswoman, Merrell was admitted to the intensive care surgical unit Monday morning.

Another spokeswoman said he was in critical but stable condition Tuesday morning.

raised $231,162 through Sept. 30, of which $15,540 was from political action committees and $5,112 was from Republican Party committees. Individual contributions totaled $211,512.

For the third quarter, Whitfield raised $163,505, of which all but $17,362 was from individuals. Eighty-nine percent of individual contributors were Kentucky residents, he said.

Barlow raised $138,113 during the quarter, bringing his total for the year to $342,590. PACs and political parties had given him $260,750 for the year.

Whitfield later accused Barlow of calling him a lazy campaigner. He also criticized a bill that Barlow supported that subsidized domestic shipping by imposing a levy on coal and grain exports.

"Your press releases talk every day about how lazy Ed Whitfield is," Whitfield said.

"People haven't seen you throughout the 31 counties of the district," Barlow replied. "Half the county courthouses, you haven't even been in."

Recovery begins after lifted trade embargo

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — U.S. newspapers were on sale Monday morning at Ti Boutique, the shop at the Hotel Montana in suburban Petionville.

That might seem normal anywhere else. But in Haiti, deprived of most news from the outside world since a trade embargo started in late May, it was a sign of hope for dramatic recovery now that the ban has been lifted.

In most cases, the change will be less immediate as people take tentative steps toward economic recovery and normal trade.

Guy Joachim was in the office Monday, trying to reach his overseas clients to find out if he can re-start his handicrafts factory. Joachim, who once employed 800 Haitians at Universal Hands, was forced to cut back to 200 before closing in May.

The series of U.S.- and U.N.-imposed trade sanctions levied since the September 1991 coup that ousted President Jean-Bertrand Aristide were aimed at forcing out the brutal military.

Instead, they closed or damaged scores of businesses in this already-impooverished Caribbean nation, threw thousands out of work and crippled humanitarian aid groups' efforts to give people food and medical attention.

Since May, almost all trade with Haiti has been cut off. Only food, medicine and humanitarian supplies were allowed in, and only with complicated government approval.

The United Nations lifted the embargo Sunday, after Aristide returned to power. At 6 a.m. Monday, UNICEF's first cargo flight landed at the international airport carrying educational materials and health supplies.

"We expect major changes in our program," Brian Shutt, program director for Food for the Poor, said in a telephone interview Monday. He said his organization will immediately purchase 1 million pounds of food to be shipped to Haiti within a week.

The Deerfield Beach, Fla.-based aid group, which focuses on educational and self-help activities and operates several feeding centers, is also bringing in school furniture, office materials, cooking pots and stoves, heating elements for ovens and even X-ray machines.

"Those items were not considered humanitarian aid," Shutt said.

Dick Snook, president of Missionary Flights International of West Palm Beach, Fla., said he plans to ship 30,000 pounds of office equipment, generator parts and other items.

The drying-up of the thriving black-market gasoline trade would indicate that Haitians soon expect a normal flow. Only diesel was still for sale on a stretch of road known as Kuwait City where scores of vendors sold illegally imported gasoline during the embargo. The remaining gasoline in town sold for as high as $20 a gallon.

But Texaco spokesman David J. Dickson said the petroleum giant needed to check out the status of its facilities here before resuming fuel imports.

Some businesses have already begun accepting major credit cards.

At the Samida Pharmacy, manager Andre Faustin, 28, said he expects prices for medicine to soon drop and availability to rise. But he wasn't going to place any orders until he receives new lists with lower prices from his pharmaceutical suppliers.

The Big Star Market kept going during the embargo because it had stocked up in advance. Still, the market had to raise its prices 50 percent to 60 percent since May, said owner Ronald Reyes, 27.

"With the embargo, nothing could get through," said Reyes. "But now with the embargo lifted, I think everything will get back to normal."

Reyes heard shipping lines would start bringing products to port this week.

At a nearby auto parts store, manager Steve Garcon, 30, sat among half-empty shelves and confessed that he was afraid to go to Miami to buy new supplies until Haiti calms down because he's afraid of looters.

Rogers case 'full of holes,' defense says

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — The prosecution's case against state Sen. John Rogers is full of holes and was concocted almost entirely by an undercover agent trying to help himself, defense attorney Jack Smith said.

"John Rogers will tell you he never sold his vote or influence," Smith said during opening statements Monday in U.S. District Court.

Assistant U.S. Attorney E.J. Walbourn had a simpler explanation during his presentation to the jury of nine women and five men chosen to hear the case.

"He was willing to sell his office ... and hence the citizens of this state were deprived of his honest services," Walbourn said.

Rogers, a Somerset Republican, is accused of conspiring with then-businessman Wallace Wilkinson in 1984 to pass legislation to allow holding companies to own banks in more than one county. In return for Rogers' legislative influence, prosecutors say Wilkinson promised to share in profits from a bank deal with Rogers and three others, including lobbyist Jay Spurrier.

"He made a proposition to them," Walbourn said of Wilkinson, "You get that legislation through, I'll buy a bank and we'll share the profits."

Early testimony showed that Wilkinson borrowed $5,775,000 from Citizens Fidelity Bank in Louisville — now PNC Bank — to buy the Bowling Green Bank and Trust in 1985. Wilkinson sold his interest in that bank in 1993.

Prosecutors said the value of the bank had risen by 1991.

The defense says the case began in 1982, a year before Rogers even met Wilkinson when he first voted for the legislation, though it failed to win passage.

Smith said nothing happened on the subject again until 1992, when Spurrier had been caught in a bribery scheme of his own by federal agents and agreed to go undercover for the government in the Operation Boprot corruption probe.

"Jay Spurrier orchestrated and put together this entire scheme in order to help himself," Smith said.

No money ever changed hands in the deal, Smith said.

Prosecutors said Rogers attempted to contact Wilkinson about what he was owed in the deal, but Wilkinson rebuffed him. They point to a photograph taken during the 1992 General Assembly that showed Rogers, Spurrier, two others and a cardboard cutout of Wilkinson. Rogers sent the photo to Wilkinson as a reminder of their 1984 deal, Walbourn said.

"Our proof will be that this photograph was a joke," Smith said. "Those fellas laughed and laughed and laughed about what a big joke they were playing on Wallace Wilkinson."

Wilkinson, who was governor from 1987 to 1991, said he had not done anything wrong and accused federal prosecutors of conducting a personal vendetta against him.

And prosecutors took pains Monday to note that jurors should only consider the case against Rogers, even though others might be implicated.

Rogers, 54, a lawyer who has represented the 15th District of McCreary, Pulaski and Whitley counties since 1976, has been GOP floor leader in the Senate since 1987.

He is charged with two counts of extortion, one of mail fraud and another of lying to FBI agents. If convicted on all charges, he could be sentenced to 50 years in prison and fined $1 million.

PaineWebber touts merger with Kidder

NEW YORK (AP) — As PaineWebber Group Inc. trumpeted its $670 million purchase of Kidder Peabody on Monday, Kidder employees braced for one of Wall Street's worst mass firings since Drexel Burnham Lambert died four years ago.

The agreement reached late Sunday between Kidder parent General Electric Co. and PaineWebber calls for the layoff of roughly half of Kidder's work force of 5,000, mostly to eliminate duplications in the newly combined brokerage firm.

"A majority of us are going to lose our jobs. Everything is up in the air right now," said a secretary in Kidder's equity research department.

Kidder's brokerage staff, which caters mostly to wealthy individuals, was the main attraction for PaineWebber, long seen as a second-tier contender in the brokerage business.

The proposed acquisition takes General Electric, the nation's fourth-largest industrial company, out of the business of buying and selling securities, although it will retain a 25 percent stake in the new enterprise.

The sale also ends a troubled chapter for GE, which has plowed about $1.4 billion into Kidder since acquiring it in 1986.

Kidder has been hammered by a scandal involving its star bond trader and massive losses in its mortgage-backed bonds division.

Kidder fired Joseph Jett after allegations in April that he concocted $350 million in phony bond profits to hide losses and fatten his bonus pay. Jett says he is innocent and his superiors directed all of his trades. Federal officials are investigating.

The sale was also evidence of the continued failure of corporate America's ballyhooed foray into "financial supermarkets" that were supposed to win over investors by offering a wide variety of services from stock investing to insurance.

American Express Co. already has dumped its Shearson Lehman subsidiary because of big losses.

Prudential Insurance Co. of America has been troubled by losses and a scandal over energy-partnership investments at its Prudential Securities unit. Sears, Roebuck and Co. parted with Dean Witter Reynolds to focus on its primary business, retailing.

"It more than ever points out that the concept of a financial supermarket basically is not what the average investor wants," said Perrin Long, an independent securities industry analyst.

"The average investor is more savvy than just putting all his eggs in one basket."

Question with many answers; a relationship with many sides

By CHARLES J. HANLEY
AP Special Correspondent

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — The generals have slipped into cozy exile. The priest has reclaimed his presidency. The bold banners declaring "NO" to U.S. intervention are fraying and fading in the Haitian sun.

But still, four weeks after the U.S. Army landed, the question lingers for many here and in America: Why Haiti?

For most poor Haitians the answer is simple. "The Americans came so there could be democracy for everyone," Roland St. Vialat, 28, assured a visitor to his mountain hamlet west of Port-au-Prince.

But for others in the two countries, especially in the two congresses, a debate will sputter on for months about motivations and interests, costs and timetables, as democratically elected President Jean-Bertrand Aristide resumes governing.

The international spotlight on Haiti has shown how strong the two countries' links are, how deep their common history runs. The connection can be found in the superficial: in the second-hand American T-shirts on the backs of the poor, in the New York designer clothes in the closets of the wealthy.

Or in the history books: Franklin D. Roosevelt used to boast that as a young, World War I-era assistant Navy secretary he wrote the constitution for U.S.-occupied Haiti.

Since Roosevelt's day, the ties have only strengthened. Half of Haiti's trade is with the United States. American colleges educate sons and daughters of Haiti's tiny upper class. The United States armed the Haitian military. Even the Catholic Church here relies on "sister" parishes and other U.S. Catholic sources for financial support.

Possibly the strongest link now is the estimated 1 million Haitians in America, an immigrant community that has learned to make its voice heard in U.S. political circles — in this case, on behalf of the exiled Aristide.

In Port-au-Prince on Saturday, when the priest-president was reinstated at the National Palace, Secretary of State Warren Christopher told reporters Haiti does not represent "vital" U.S. interests.

But he said "important" U.S. interests were at stake — relating to migration, stability and democracy — and they led the Clinton administration to force Haiti's military dictators from power.

One old American hand here, the Rev. Roger Hallee, head of the Oblate Fathers in Haiti, buys migration as a factor.

But Hallee, a 31-year Haiti veteran, also agrees with the unproven scenario favored by many pro-Aristide activists: that the CIA promoted the 1991 coup that ousted Aristide, but the populist leader adroitly marshaled international diplomatic support — and found enough American political support — to eventually force the U.S. government into helping him.

Said peasant activist Ernst Charles: "The Americans thought that after all that time we'd be tired and give up on Aristide. But we didn't."

On the other side of the Haitian divide, some find a different ulterior motive in Washington's actions.

Somewhere in between sits historian Roger Gaillard, author of a multi-volume history of 20th century Haiti.

Gaillard, 70, sees something new and yet-undefined going on globally, a growing interdependence in a world made smaller by jetliners, satellite television and mass culture. That's what motivated America, he believes.

"At the beginning of the 21st century, no superpower could accept having at its doorstep a place where despotism, ignorance and misery reigns," he said.

But the historian has a favorite ulterior motive, too. And it lies just over the horizon, across the Windward Passage from Haiti.

"Cuba is the No. 1 thing," Gaillard said as U.S. Army helicopters clattered overhead in Port-au-Prince. "This is all a dress rehearsal for Cuba."

Maybe so. The debate will go on. But on Saturday night, after Aristide's return, few here were in a debating mood.

Down on the Rue Dr. Aubry, joyful, strolling Haitians bounced to the beat of voodoo rock from sidewalk loudspeakers and cheered passing U.S. Army convoys.

Not far off, Army Lt. Jerry Johnson sat atop his tank, keeping a watchful eye on a country in transformation. He wasn't feeling analytical. He was feeling great.

"It's a good day to be an American," he said. "And it's a good day to be an American in Haiti."

You've come a long way, baby

Judy Smith wore "White Shoulders," so that was the kind of perfume I wanted. But I was only ten, too young according to my mother's reckoning, to even think about such things. Nevertheless, I vowed that when my time finally came, I would have the same pink and gold bottle that Judy unpacked from her matching plaid luggage the weekend my brother Roger brought her home from college to meet my parents, and to parade in front of envious hometown boys.

Of course, my three older sisters had already graduated to grown-up things like perfume and emery boards. One of them even bought special cream to make her heels and elbows as smooth as rose petals. But their preferred scents were boring and unromantic. "Chanel No. 5" and "Tweed" sounded sturdy and practical, suitable after a round of field hockey or hours of conjugating Latin verbs.

"White Shoulders" evoked images of dewey-eyed debutantes in strapless gowns and long white gloves. These were the kind of girls who got to wave to cheering crowds from the homecoming float; who walked beneath an arch of raised swords on their wedding day. Indeed, Judy had been a "Miss Penn State" finalist that autumn; and if she and my brother got married, it was not unlikely that theirs would be a military wedding.

Judy was history by the time my brother graduated from college, and I guess he forgot all about "White Shoulders" when his military duty took him to Europe. When he visited France he defied my mother's edict and sent me my first bottle of real perfume, a tiny bottle of "Diorissimo." Enrolled in an all girls school, I had few waiting opportunities, so I wore it to ballroom dance class and to slumber parties.

"It's from Paris," I told my girlfriends. "My brother picked it out just for me." I announced this importantly, as if Roger had strode into the couturier's showroom, gripped Christian Dior by the throat, and demanded that a scent be specially created for his little sister.

At 16, when I was old enough to make an official request, I asked my mother for my first bottle of "White Shoulders." Every day I daubed it behind my ears, in the crooks of my elbows, and behind my knees. For special occasions, just the way Judy Smith had, I sneaked a drop or two where my cleavage was supposed to be.

"White Shoulders" got me through high school, college and my first marriage. After I got divorced, I changed perfumes. I tried "Obsession" and "Poison" without incident, although I suppose I should have sought counseling upon pondering the dangerous metaphorical implications of my choices.

After a few years of trial and error, I settled down to "Anais," a perfume whose only flaw is its difficult-to-pronounce name. In spite of that, its subtle, floral scent was just what I was looking for. I also found the connection to Anais Nin appealing, since she was a writer too.

Recently, I ran out of "Anais" and did not manage to replenish my supply right away. So, as I was hurrying through Wal-Mart looking for a new cosmetic case for traveling, I grabbed one that included a free sample of some new perfume I could use in the meantime.

It is days before I open it. "Navy" is the name -- a drum-beating, ramrod-straight moniker that evokes images of spit shines and epaulets.

I wonder what Judy Smith would say.

Some computer shopping tips

I seldom give shopping tips, but here is a piece of shrewd advice that might be handy for those of you thinking of buying a computer.

It might be your first computer or maybe you are moving up to a more recent model. In either case, this tip will prove invaluable.

Be sure the computer you plan to buy will do what you want it to do.

In other words, don't buy a computer that won't do what you want it to do. That's because if you buy a computer that won't do what you want it to do, the things you want it to do won't be done.

Then you will have wasted money.

So I will repeat what should be a hard rule for any computer buyer: Before spending your money, be sure the computer will do what you want it to do. Don't buy a computer that won't do what you want it to do.

I'm confident you are impressed by the wisdom and profundity of the statement. No need to thank me. That's why I'm here.

But what is that you are saying? That my advice is stupid because it is so obvious? That anyone but a complete idiot knows that when you buy a computer or anything else, you should be sure that it will do what you want it to do?

And you want to know why I am wasting your time and valuable newspaper space on advice that would be obvious to any tech-savvy 12-year-old?

My feelings are hurt. I really thought I was being helpful.

You see, I had just read a startling report on the computer purchases of the federal government.

I was dismayed to discover that the government has squandered bil-

ROYKO SAYS

Mike Royko
Syndicated columnist

lions of dollars on computers that don't do what the users want the computers to do.

One senator, William Cohen, of Maine, says that the government has been spending about $20 billion a year for the past 10 years.

That comes to about $200 billion, which is not exactly chump change, unless you pay taxes and consider yourself a chump, which some do.

Many of these computers are obsolete when they arrive. Or there are no spare parts, and the government has to look in junk piles when they break down. Or they wheeze and cough, or refuse to obey orders.

Sometimes they don't work because the people who bought the computers didn't bother to ask those who will use the computers what they want the computers to do.

That, of course, could lead us to another important shopping tip: Always know what you want a computer to do before you buy it. In other words, don't buy a computer unless you know what you want it to do.

Actually, that advice would apply to just about anything you buy, whether it is underwear, a power lawn mower or a $40,000 car.

And I'm sure that once again someone is asking why I am giving out more stupidly shallow advice.

But how am I to know that most people are that smart when our very own federal government doesn't follow these obvious guidelines?

Here we have a United States senator drafting a new law specifically requiring the government to know what a computer will do before it is purchased. And the law will also require the computer to actually do what it is supposed to do.

See, smarty. If it is so obvious, why do we have to have a law?

The law also would tell the people who buy computers for the government that if there is a computer on the shelf of a computer store that will do the job, they should buy it instead of asking a company to start from scratch to design a computer that will do what the store model will do.

I suppose that, too, seems obvious to many readers. Which is why most people buy their computers ready-made, instead of hiring a team of engineers to spend millions of dollars to help them find Carmen Sandiego.

But how obvious can it be if a committee of senators has to recommend a law requiring these shopping practices?

For a decade or more, we have had government buyers going out and spending billions on computers that don't do what they are supposed to do. Why? I assume it is because nobody told them: Be sure that machine will do what we want it to do.

If someone had taken the trouble to tell them to buy a computer that will do what it is supposed to do, or to know what it should do before they bought it, a great cartoon-like light bulb would have gone on over their heads.

And we would have saved many billions of our dollars.

I wonder if the senator has thought about a law requiring government employees to flush the toilet?

Just drop us a line ...

College football offers 'wild' end

By RICK WARNER
AP Football Writer

If you love to argue about college football rankings, this could be your most enjoyable season ever.

Imagine this: Five teams go undefeated in the regular season and none meet in a bowl game because of conference commitments or bowl bans. The debates would be endless.

"It would be wild," ESPN commentator Beano Cook said. "There'd be arguments in every bar in America."

Unbeatens battle for title

It may sound far-fetched, but it could happen this season with Penn State in the Rose Bowl, the Nebraska-Colorado winner in the Orange, the Colorado State-Utah winner in the Holiday, Alabama in the Sugar and Texas A&M sidelined by probation.

Or, if Auburn beats Alabama, scratch The Tide and add the Tigers to the list of unbeaten. Like Texas A&M, Auburn can't play in a bowl because of NCAA violations. Both teams are eligible for the national championship in The Associated Press media poll, although probation teams are barred from the USA Today-CNN coaches' poll.

The last time five Division I-A teams had perfect regular seasons was 1979, when Alabama, Brigham Young, Ohio State, Florida State and McNeese State did it.

They all played in different bowls and they all lost except for national champion Alabama, which beat Arkansas 24-9 in the Sugar Bowl.

The situation could be more confusing this year because of the sanctions against No. 4 Auburn (7-0) and No. 6 Texas A&M (6-0). What happens if the probation teams are the only ones left without a loss after the bowls?

Cook said he might vote for Auburn because the Tigers would

With new four-year deal Popeye settling in Big D

By STEVE PARKER
Sports Editor

It didn't take long for all the memories of the 1992 season to come flooding back to the ex-Murray State basketball star.

"When I went out to shoot-around, that's when I first thought about the OVC Tournament," the smiling player said in a near-empty locker room in Rupp Arena. "I remember the first shot I took when I was shooting around (Saturday night) was a shot from the top of the key, because that was my shot in college, and I hit it and I said to myself, 'Just like old times.'"

For Popeye Jones, his shot from the top of the key against Morehead State was the first three points of the Racers' incredible run through the 1992 Ohio Valley Conference Tournament in Rupp Arena. It meant a championship for the Racers and marked the final lap of one of Murray State's finest Thoroughbreds.

Jones returned to Lexington Saturday night with the Dallas Mavericks for an NBA exhibition game against the Chicago Bulls.

Jones' return to Rupp Arena is nothing like the last time he played there. The Mavericks entered the game as the worst team in the NBA a year ago, and there were no championships of any sorts for Jones and his new mates.

"It was very tough," the second-year pro said of the 1993-94 season, in which the Mavericks won only 13 games under first-year coach Quinn Buckner. "When we started losing all those games I kind of tried to block society out. I didn't watch TV. My favorite show was SportsCenter and I didn't want to watch it. I didn't want to read Sports Illustrated."

"It was tough," the Dresden, Tenn. native continued. "I used to call my mom every night and talk to her about it and she said things have got to get better, they can't get any worse."

"I kind of went on that and it changed my attitude. OK, we're having a terrible season but there's going to be many more seasons and I want to be around many more seasons. I was auditioning for them, I had to keep playing hard."

Dallas never turned it around, even though things got better for Jones. After leading the team in rebounds (7.5 rpg), total rebounds (605) and being one of the top offensive rebounders in the league (299), Dallas exercised the option on Jones' one-year contract and put together a new four-year deal.

"That makes you feel good when you know you're in their long-term plans, because I know what this team is trying to do," Jones said. "We're trying to build young and get back to the top. I think that's the reason why I worked hard this summer. I wanted to be with those plans. I wanted to be one of the players that they wanted in there with Mash (Jamal Mashburn), Jimmy (Jackson) and Jason (Kidd). And, it seemed like it paid off for me."

According to new Dallas coach Dick Motta, who replaced Buckner this season, Jones is in the long-term and short-term plans.

"Right now if I had to start five guys today I'm going to start him," the coach said after Dallas' 121-103 loss to the Bulls. "I like

Curry believes year will pick up for Cats

By MIKE EMBRY

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Kentucky coach Bill Curry believes the season shouldn't get any worse for his struggling Wildcats.

Kentucky (1-5 overall, 0-4 Southeastern Conference), which entertains Georgia on Saturday night, suffered its fifth straight loss last weekend in falling 17-14 to LSU.

The Wildcats are off to their worst start since the 1982 team finished 0-10-1.

While the loss to LSU was disappointing, especially after blowing a 10-0 lead, Curry found reasons to believe his team may be on an upswing.

"We're at a very good time to turn our season in the direction it ought to go," said Curry. "Our intensity level, our belief that we were going to win the game and the things that are required out of every program that wins were all evident Saturday night, more so than they have been at any point this year with this team."

Curry said it may have been because the Wildcats had 15 days between games to work on fundamentals.

"But a lot of people picked

up the level of their performance and their enthusiasm to near what it should be," he said.

But while the Wildcats played with more intensity, they still had lapses in execution.

"The execution was not at all what it should have been," he said. "There were plenty of opportunities for us to take charge of that game, and I mean really take charge of it and put it away, but we did not get that done."

Curry gave Jeff Speedy, making his second start at quarterback, a mixed review for his performance against LSU. Speedy completed nine-of-24 passes for 65 yards and was intercepted one time.

Montana's heroics lift Chiefs

By JOHN MOSSMAN
AP Sports Writer

DENVER (AP) — Like kids in the sandlot, the player with the ball last won. This time, it was Joe Montana instead of John Elway.

This time it was Montana, mounting a masterful march in the closing seconds to lift the Kansas City Chiefs to a 31-28 victory Monday night over the Denver Broncos.

Montana's third touchdown pass of the game, a 5-yarder to Willie Davis with eight seconds left, enabled the Chiefs to snap an 11-game losing streak at Mile High Stadium and give coach Marty Schottenheimer his first win here in eight tries.

The clinching score overshadowed Elway's trademark late-game drive that gave the Broncos an apparent victory with 1:29 left.

In a wild finish, the teams exchanged fumbles before Elway took Denver 39 yards in six plays. He ran four yards on a quarterback draw for the TD even though the Broncos had only 10 men on the field, putting Denver up 28-24.

The scoring run came one play after his apparent TD pass to Cedric Tillman was nullified. The officials ruled Tillman stepped out of bounds before making the catch, thus becoming ineligible.

It left Montana too much time, however. After the kickoff, the Chiefs had 1:22 and two timeouts remaining.

The Kansas City quarterback, who missed significant practice time last week because of sore ribs and a bruised hip, moved his team 75 yards in nine plays, completing seven of eight passes and managing the clock perfectly. On three of the completions, Chiefs receivers got out of bounds to stop the clock.

"We knew they'd concede a certain part of the field to us, so we could throw underneath. We did that and kept moving," Montana said.

The last four plays on the drive were all completions — 11 yards to Kimble Anders, 12 yards to Derrick Walker, 19 yards to Tracy Greene and, finally, the 5-yarder to Davis.

Davis extended his arms and caught the ball at the goal line, then slipped inside the end zone pylon before going out of bounds.

"He made a great catch and

UK basketball practices show intensity

By MIKE EMBRY

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Practice isn't for the faint-hearted at Kentucky.

"The competition has always been here," junior guard Tony Delk said during media-day activities Monday in Memorial Coliseum. "Coming to practice is like game situations. If you don't play hard, you don't get to play. You have to come out hard to play everyday."

The Wildcats return four starters from last year's team that finished 27-7, including a Southeastern Conference tournament championship and second-round loss to Marquette in the NCAA tourney.

Besides Delk, the other starters are forwards Jared Prickett and Rodrick Rhodes and center Andre Riddick. Other returning lettermen are guards Anthony Epps, Chris Harrison and Jeff Sheppard and forward Walter McCarty.

This season's newcomers are center Mark Pope, forwards Antoine Walker and Scott Padgett and guards Allen Edwards and Cameron Mills.

Pope, a transfer from Washington, had a bruised right eye to show how intense the workouts have been since practice officially started with Midnight Madness on Oct. 15.

"It was an elbow or hand," he said. "The practices have been really physical."

Although the first basketball game of the season is more than a month away, the players are pushed every day in practice to play up to their abilities.

For Rhodes, a junior, there is no letting up in drills.

"Practices are always

Racers hit stride at MSU Invitational

Murray State's cross country teams must have enjoyed their first run at home as seven of the 14 MSU runners set season-best scores.

Murray State runners Jason McKinney and LaSenna Powell led MSU in their respective divisions at the MSU Invitational Friday.

McKinney, a freshman from Georgetown, Ill., led the men's cross country team with a placing of fifth and a time of 26:27. MSU ended up at 109 to finish fifth in the seven-team field.

Powell, a senior, ran for a season best (19:55) and earned an 11th place finish while leading the Lady Racers in their 6th place showing at the meet. The Lady Racers wound up at 166 in the eight-team field.

The teams' next action will be Oct. 28, when they host the Ohio Valley Conference cross country championships at the Murray Country Club.

Trebelhorn given ax as Cubs manager

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Cubs got rid of their 11th manager in 12 years, firing Tom Trebelhorn after a last-place finish in the NL Central.

Trebelhorn, 46, was promoted last October after two seasons as a coach under Jim Lefebvre. He's the fifth manager dismissed since the strike stopped the season Aug. 12.

Chicago finished 49-64, second worst in the league.

Alou is National League's top manager

NEW YORK (AP) — Felipe Alou, who guided the Montreal Expos to a major-league best 74-40 record before the strike, was a near-unanimous choice as National League manager of the year.

Alou, 59, received 27 of 28 first-place votes and one second-place vote for 138 points. Cincinnati's Davey Johnson had 15 second-place votes and six thirds to finish second with 51 points.

Baseball talks to resume Wednesday

NEW YORK (AP) — Players and owners bickered over free-agent eligibility even as mediator W.J. Utery called for negotiations to resume Wednesday in Washington, nearly six weeks after talks broke off.

Bears running back Hoge retiring

LAKE FOREST, Ill. (AP) — Chicago Bears fullback Merrill Hoge, still feeling the effects of a blow he took to the head blocking in a game Oct. 2, announced his retirement.

Doctors expect Hoge, who has had headaches, dizziness, memory loss and lethargy following his second concussion in six weeks, to make a full recovery. Hoge, 29, joined the Bears as a free agent in March after seven years with Pittsburgh.

Knee injury slows Steelers' Foster

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Pittsburgh Steelers running back Barry Foster, the AFC's leading rusher through five games with 518 yards, will miss two to three weeks with a sprained left knee.

Yankees' pitcher Key to have surgery

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Yankees left-hander Jimmy Key is scheduled to have arthroscopic surgery on his pitching shoulder Wednesday.

Key, 33, was 17-4 with a 3.27 ERA this season and 35-10 with a 3.11 ERA in two years with New York.

Kings guard Simmons out after surgery

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Sacramento Kings forward Lionel Simmons will be sidelined four to five weeks following arthroscopic surgery on his right knee. Simmons averaged 15.1 points and 7.5 rebounds last season.

Bulging disc puts Trevino on sideline

PONTE VEDRA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Lee Trevino, a six-time winner on the Senior PGA Tour this season, will be sidelined indefinitely because of a bulging disc in his neck.

Trevino, second on the money list with $1,202,369, withdrew from last week's Raley's Gold Rush in Rancho Murietta, Calif.

him. I like his game. "He goes after it," Motta continued. "When you get one like that you make dang sure keep him. We got him an extension on his contract and happy to have him."

In Saturday's exhibition, centered around Mashburn's return to Rupp Arena and the University of Kentucky, Jones played nine minutes and scored just three points.

"We have enough stars on our team with the three J's," Motta said, referring to Mashburn, Jackson and Kidd. "We need players that will work their tails off and fill a role position and he's a great offensive rebounder. He's a great passer and he's really a good player."

Jones' work ethic on the court has made him a popular player with the Dallas fans, just like his soft hands and baby hook endeared him to fans in Racer Arena.

"My role on this team," Jones explained, "is definitely going to be rebounding, offensively and defensively, and playing defense and coming up with loose balls and taking charges, things like that."

"In other words being a dirty player." Jones stayed in Dallas this summer to work on his game, and as always, continue working on his physique.

"Did you notice how he's changed his body?" Motta asked. "And he's got another year to do it. Our strength coach works with him everyday, or an assistant coach works with him everyday."

Jones is listed at 250 pounds, but he wears it a lot better than

Mavericks photo
Jones led the Mavericks in rebounding with 7.5 per game.

he did during his college days. Still, with the new contract deal and financial security for the next four years, Jones isn't about to turn into a fat cat.

"I don't let up now just because I've got a four-year deal," he insisted. "I keep working over the summer and try to improve my body so eventually I could have three or four percent (body) fat. That's the direction I'm going in right now."

One area Motta wanted to see improvement was in Jones' offensive game. As a rookie last year, Jones shot 48 percent from the field and averaged 5.8 points per game.

"He rebounded last year but he wouldn't produce points after it, so we're getting him catching it and getting it back up in a hurry," Motta said.

On Saturday night, Jones was just 1-for-4 from field.

"I've been working really hard on my shot but tonight it didn't seem like it was falling for me," said Jones, MSU's second all-time leading scorer and top rebounder. "I've just got to keep working on it, but I've been doing a good job shooting the ball in training camp."

Jones was drafted by the Houston Rockets out of college, but spent his first professional year in Italy. Dallas then traded for his rights and he became a starter in his first NBA game.

Though Dresden, and Murray, will always be home, Jones has adapted well to the Lone Star state.

"I'm leasing a house now, but I figure I'll buy a house next year and settle down and call Dallas home," said Jones. "That's one reason that I wanted to stay and one reason I worked so hard this summer, because I like Dallas so much. If they didn't renew my deal I'd be working my butt off this year."

Jones also likes his teammates. As rookies last season, Jones and Mashburn struck up a tight friendship. Mashburn credits Jones for helping him make the transition to the Dallas and the NBA.

"I had been in Dallas all summer before he signed," Jones told the Courier-Journal, "and I knew my way around and had a car."

We got along great.

"We argue about our college teams. I say that they were afraid to play us at Racer Arena, and he says we were afraid to play them (in Rupp). I would've loved to have played them here."

With a new coach in Motta and new faces like point guard Jason Kidd and veteran Roy Tarpley, things are looking up for the Mavs.

"It's going to work out great," Jones said of the recent changes. "The atmosphere is real loose at the Mavericks camp. Everybody loves the system and everybody respects Dick Motta because he's been around a long time and he knows what he's talking about."

Though he's changed his body, his tax bracket and his address, little has changed in Jones since his days in Murray. He still smiles and makes eye contact during interviews and conversations, and still has that pleasant personality.

Basically, he's still Popeye.

After Saturday night's game, Jones was the guest on the post-game show for the Mavericks radio network. His mother, Anna Bondurant, was at his side. It was the second time she's ever seen her son play with the Mavericks in person, and hasn't seen him play but once on television.

"She doesn't want a satellite, but I think I'm going to have to break down and buy her one," Jones said.

intense," he said. "If you're not intense at practice, you'll be running all day."

Prickett, also a junior, said the practices bring out the best in the players.

"There is so much competition in practice that it's going to make you better," he said. "I think pretty much that everybody needs to come out and practice hard, no matter how tired they are. We need to come out with a positive attitude."

Delk believes the team's depth will be evident once the season gets under way.

"I think everyone on the team is capable of stepping up this year," he said.

McCarty, who has gained 18 pounds since last season, said he isn't being pushed around in practice like he was a year ago.

made a real effort to get it in the end zone," Montana said.

"We just needed one more play, and we couldn't seem to make it at the end," Denver coach Wade Phillips said.

With the stunning drive, Kansas City (4-2) ended its recent futility at Mile High Stadium.

Montana completed 34 of 54 passes for 393 yards with one interception. Elway was 18 of 29 for 263 yards with two touchdowns and no interceptions.

Denver (1-5) lost its fourth straight game at home dating to last season and opened the season with three straight home losses for the first time in franchise history.

have completed their second straight 11-0 season. They finished fourth in the AP poll last season behind a trio of unbeaten teams, including national champion Florida State.

"If they're allowed to play, their games should count," Cook said. "You can't ignore a team that goes two years without a loss."

Cook's ESPN colleague, Lee Corso, disagrees.

"Probation teams should not win the national championship because they can't take the last step, which is winning a bowl game," Corso said.

MURRAY EDUCATION

Vania Losinto and Nancy Tam share authentic costumes, food and dolls for their Heritage Project Celebration.

Brett Nance and Nicole Coday, students in Dora Pittman's fifth grade class, are participating in the "Indian Snake Test." Scott Shupe visited Southwest Elementary and gave a presentation of his reptiles.

Nick Greenwell and ACOT students at Calloway County Middle School use computers and software to prepare project presentations.

Sixth, seventh and eighth graders at Murray Middle School learned about snakes of Kentucky with a live demonstration and lecture by naturalist Scott Shupe. Pictured with Shupe are Nathan Doyle and Sarah Quentermous demonstrating the "Indian Snake Test" with a king snake.

Halee Greer and Jonathan Frederick share their favorite books with classmates in Debbie Pardue's primary class at North Elementary.

Kevin Brown and Bill Miller, teachers at Calloway County Middle School, discuss the benefits of using technology in teaching science and math.

Monte Kennedy, Maria Lofton and Jessica Darnell admire animal designs and their habitats which were done as part of fall science projects for Genese Reid at Murray Elementary School.

At the conclusion of a unit about the sea, students in Karen Crick's class at North Elementary worked in small groups and made a mural of the sea. Their work was displayed at North's Back to School Night. Pictured are Kyle McKinney, Courtney Imus, Duell Taylor and John Eric Martinez.

Stephanie Wyatt's biology classes at Calloway County High School are using the scientific method to design and perform experiments testing sweet tarts. Pictured are student teacher Cindy Adams, Jeramie Sulter, David O'Neal, Michelle Crouse and Josh Morton.

Valerie Chapman visited Sherri Bazzell's Radical Roving Readers class to discuss how reading affects college and to give a television survey to the students. Pictured are Allyson Zimmerman, Michelle Underwood, Chapman, Shannon Shelby, Brittany Ray and Lacey Latimer.

Micheal Outland is ready to jump the candlestick. Students in Barbara McCulston's primary class at East Elementary measured the length of their jumps while studying nursery rhymes.

After a unit on family ancestry, students in Maxine Pool's fifth grade class at East Elementary investigated their own history by developing their family trees. Pictured are Jennifer Todd, Jennifer Oliver, Jim Hamblin and Russell Waynick.

Pictures for this page were submitted by the administrative staffs of the Murray Independent School District and the Calloway County Schools and edited by the staff of the Ledger & Times. Space allocated for each school district is determined by the approximate ratio of students in each district. Please direct your questions and comments about area public schools to the Murray City Schools (753-4363) or the Calloway County Public Schools (753-2893).

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Tuesday, Oct. 18, the 291st day of 1994. There are 74 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:
On Oct. 18, 1767, the boundary between Maryland and Pennsylvania, the Mason-Dixon line, was agreed upon.

On this date:
In 1685, King Louis the 14th of France revoked the Edict of Nantes, which had established the legal toleration of France's Protestant population, the Huguenots.

In 1898, the American flag was raised in Puerto Rico shortly before Spain formally relinquished control of the island to the United States.

In 1931, inventor Thomas Alva Edison died in West Orange, N.J., at age 84.

In 1969, 25 years ago, the federal government banned artificial sweeteners known as cyclamates because of evidence they caused cancer in laboratory rats.

In 1982, former first lady Bess Truman died at her home in Independence, Mo., at age 97.

Ten years ago: President Reagan ordered the CIA and his Intelligence Oversight Board to investigate possible improper conduct in the production of a psychological warfare manual for the Nicaraguan contras.

Five years ago: After 18 years in power, Erich Honecker was ousted as leader of East Germany; he was succeeded by Egon Krenz. The space shuttle Atlantis was launched on a five-day mission that included deployment of the Galileo space probe on a course for Jupiter.

One year ago: Two defendants were acquitted of most of the felony charges in the beating of trucker Reginald Denny and other motorists at the start of the 1992 Los Angeles riots; the jury did convict Damian Williams of simple mayhem, Henry Watson of simple assault.

Today's Birthdays: Former Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau is 75. Singer Anita O'Day is 75. Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., is 73. Rock 'n' roll performer Chuck Berry is 68. Actor George C. DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: I am a widow who is now living with my son and his family. They are very good to me.

Yesterday, I saw my 18-year-old grandson take some money out of his father's wallet, which was lying on the dresser in his bedroom. I wasn't spying — I just happened to pass that room and the door was wide open.

I did not let on that I saw him, so he thinks he got away with it.

Abby, this boy is supposed to be looking for a job, but he sleeps until noon every day and isn't trying to find work. He is turning out to be a big disappointment. I don't know whether to tell my son what I witnessed or not. He would be heartbroken if he knew.

WORRIED GRANDMOTHER

DEAR WORRIED: On the chance that your grandson had permission to take money out of his father's wallet, ask him. Then confirm it with your son. For you to remain silent would be doing your grandson no favor.

DEAR ABBY: The letter from the 25-year-old high school teacher, who was constantly being mistaken for a student, reminded me of the following:

Congresswoman Emily Taft Douglas used to tell this tale as a true story: A young, petite bride answered a ring at her front door to find herself confronted with a caller who asked, "Little girl, is your mother home?"

Drawing herself up to her full 4 feet, 10 inches, she replied, "I am my mother."

ETHA BEATRICE FOX, CHICAGO

CONFIDENTIAL TO INSECURE NEW ARCHITECT: In the words of Frank Lloyd Wright: "A doctor can bury his mistakes, but an architect can only advise his client to plant vines."

For Abby's favorite family recipes, send a long, self-addressed envelope, with check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Cookbooklet No. 1, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054-0447. (Postage is included.)

DR. GOTT

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm attempting to keep my elderly mother at home with me, but she suffers from Alzheimer's disease. Can you discuss this condition so I can determine what I'm in for?

DEAR READER: I congratulate you on taking on such an enormous responsibility. However, I suspect that sooner or later you'll need help with the situation.

Alzheimer's disease, a brain disorder of unknown cause, is progressive. Initially, patients are minimally confused and forgetful. Within months or years, they gradually lose higher mental functioning and eventually require 24-hour-a-day supervision and assistance with even the most fundamental daily activities, such as eating, bathing, dressing, and so forth.

In my opinion, you should make plans to involve the visiting nurse association in your community. For one thing, you will need a break in your responsibilities; for another, you will someday require professional help, such as home health aides, in managing your mother's condition. Your family physician will help you coordinate the various, appropriate services.

In addition, you will find a support group useful. Contact your local Alzheimer's association to discover such groups in your area. Finally, to obtain further assistance and advice, call the National Alzheimer's Hotline at 1-800-272-3900, or write to the Alzheimer's Association, 919 North Michigan Ave., Suite 1000, Chicago, Ill. 60611-1676.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Alzheimer's Disease." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2433, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to mention the title.

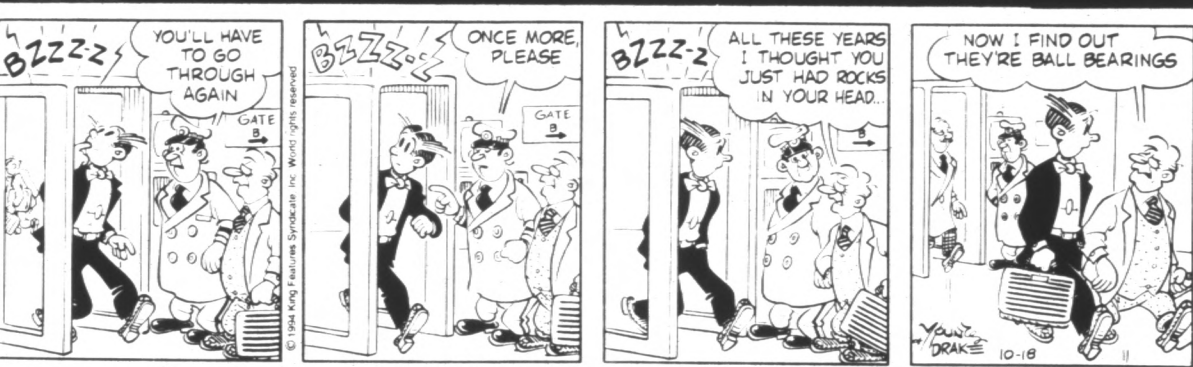

DEAR DR. GOTT: Can a person be allergic to bird droppings? My husband insists on feeding the birds summer and winter and, as a result, there are bird droppings all over our patio and walks. I'm the one who has to get out each day to attempt to clean up the mess. We both have runny noses, coughs and itchy throats. My doctor feels I have an allergy, but can't say what causes it. Can you?

DEAR READER: People can be allergic to anything, even bird droppings. Also, the inhalation of dried bird excrement can cause psittacosis, a form of infectious pneumonia, which is diagnosed by a blood test.

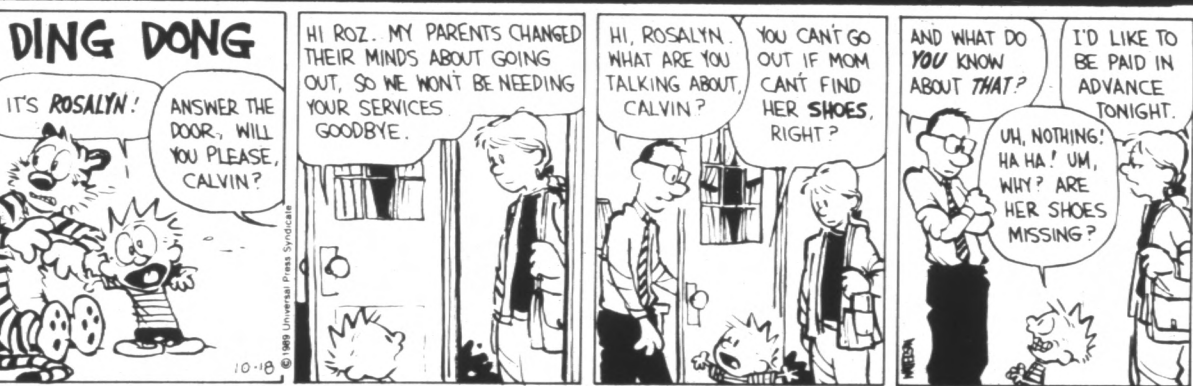

I suggest that if your husband has a thing about feeding the birds, he is the one who should clean up the mess afterward. Thus, if your symptoms disappear when you're away from the birds, you can conclude that an allergy is probable. Ask your doctor about this.

First grader Blake McCulston and third grader David Breeding competed in the Louisville Zoo Scholastic Chess Tournament Oct. 8. They each won three out of four games, competing in a section of 40 students from kindergarten through sixth grade. On tie breaks, McCulston won the seventh place Individual trophy, losing only to the number one ranked player in the section. The two-member team from Murray Christian Academy came in fourth place out of seven teams, a half point behind the third place team.

Paul Sharp, manager of Wal-Mart, recently accepted an angel certificate from Donna Herndon, coordinator of the Family Resource Center, on behalf of the local store and its employees for continuing contributions to the Center. Wal-Mart will be again providing a color television as a door prize at the Community Resource Fair, Oct. 22, at East Elementary.

The Laker Band Wind Section warms-up prior to their finals performance at the Hopkinsville Invitational Band Festival. The band was awarded all superior ratings, was ranked first place in Class 2A Division II preliminary competition, and was named third place overall in Open Class Finals competition.

Calloway County Band wins honors

The Calloway County High School Band won all superior ratings and was awarded first place band, best guard, best percussion, and best drum major in Class 2A Division II at the Hopkinsville Invitational Band Festival.

In addition, the band was called back for Open Class Finals Competition Saturday evening and was awarded third place overall. A total of 24 bands from Kentucky and Tennessee were rated and ranked by a six man adjudication panel at the KMEA sanctioned event.

Results of the Finals competition were: first, Madisonville-North Hopkins; second, Central Hardin; third, Calloway County; fourth, Greenwood; fifth, Henderson County; sixth, Ohio County; 7th, Christian County; 8th, Gibson County TN; ninth, Breckinridge County; 10th, Apollo; and 11th, Monroe County.

The Laker Band will compete October 29 in the 1994 Kentucky State Marching Band Championships. Class AA preliminary competition will be held all day at George Rogers Clark High School in Winchester, with finals competition following that evening at Eastern Kentucky University in Richmond.

The Laker Band has received the following awards so far this fall: Starfest, Sept. 11: superior rating, first place Class AA, best percussion Class AA, best guard Class AA, and best drum major Class AA.
