Kenlake wants more parking

By STACEY CROOK
Staff Writer

Kenlake Foods needs more parking spaces and Calloway County has land available, but opinions differ on how to reach an agreement for the project.

Kenlake plant engineer John Krieb told the fiscal court in a special meeting Tuesday that the plant needs more parking because of recent growth.

The company offered two proposals on using land the county recently purchased for a new jail and judicial complex on North Fourth Street.

When the county purchased the three tracts in July, Kenlake was obtaining approval from the company's headquarters to purchase part of the same property.

Now, the two are trying to work out an agreement that will accommodate both sides.

Ad hoc decision changes policy

By AMY WILSON
Staff Writer

When Murray State University's board of regents approved a salary increase for university employees last week, they also made an ad hoc change to the Faculty Handbook.

Since that change was not read publicly at the board meeting, some concerns were raised at Tuesday's faculty senate meeting that the recent salary increase may not follow established distribution guidelines.

Faculty regent Frank Julian was not present at the meeting.

"The form that the administration takes to the board has our recommendation on it, as well as a place for background information," said Dr. James Booth, provost and vice president for academic and student affairs, in a phone interview Wednesday morning. "Because of an oversight, the background information wasn't read publicly. All the regents had this information in front of them."

According to the background information: "To the extent that this allocation of salary and wage increases may vary from established board of regents policy, this action is to be considered as approving the variation on an ad hoc basis."

Because that information was not read publicly, questions arose regarding the regents' actions because it seemed as if they had violated the salary policy by doling out raises that were based 50 percent across-the-board and 50 percent merit.

"For full professors, even if you count the 2 percent increase that was given in July, the across-the-board increase is 67 percent rather than the 75 percent set forth in the Faculty Handbook," said John Schlabbach, assistant professor of music. "There's more for merit than is allowed." Schlabbach emphasized that the faculty are grateful for the increase, but there is much concern that set guidelines are followed as outlined in the handbook.

The provision Schlabbach referred to in the handbook is listed under 2.16.1 which reads: "The base salary increment shall not be less than 75 percent of the total annual salary increment derived from funds appropriated by the Kentucky General Assembly and internal reallocation."

The salary policy was revised Nov. 14, 1992 by the university's board of regents.

"The board has the authority to amend its own policies," Booth said. "Any policy the board enacts takes precedence over any other."

The board approved approximately $901,000 for salary and wage increases ranging from a 4 percent increase for full professors (2 percent across-the-board and 2 percent merit) to a 4.5 percent increase for administrative and professional personnel (.75 percent across-the-board and .75 percent merit).

Israelis, Arabs schmooze at first economic summit

CASABLANCA, Morocco (AP) — Israelis selling medical equipment to Jordanians, Palestinians building hotels and canals in Gaza, with Egyptian money, Saudis investing in joint-venture factories in the Holy Land.

These are the kind of projects set in gear by the first-ever Middle East-North Africa economic summit that ended Tuesday.

For three days, Casablanca has been a frenzy of unprecedented panel discussions, discreet encounters and high-stakes schmoozing between Israeli businessmen and bureaucrats and Arab officials and potential investors.

A regional development bank is now in the works, despite some resistance among Arab countries such as Saudi Arabia and Morocco.

The United States strongly supported the creation of a regional development bank to finance new infrastructure, especially for the emerging Palestinian authority under Yasser Arafat. But some Arab countries were wary, saying existing banks and funds are underutilized and that such a bank, at a time of flat oil revenues, would be too costly.

"The region already has enough financial structure for channelling funds," said Morocco's agriculture minister, Abdelaziz Meziane-Belfiqui.

Despite dispute over the bank, Israelis and Palestinians got down to business, six months after the Palestinian autonomy accords were signed.

An 80-strong contingent of Israeli businessmen accompanied the delegation from the Jewish state, which brought along so many ministers — eight at last count — that Cabinet meetings were cancelled back home.

The Israelis came armed with a thick booklet listing firms from Abir Textile Industries to Zinkal Ltd., an aluminum pipe manufacturer.

"The entrepreneurial efforts are there, the clients are there," said Emmanuel Gill of the Israeli Manufacturers Association. "We just have to put them together."

Bermad is trying to market its machine equipment and valves. Haifa Chemicals is interested in acquiring other firms in its field. Shraga is looking for partners to sell its candles. And Hod Lavan Turkey Products Ltd. would be

MSU students appear in court

Park's bond raised; Wilson's bond lowered

By STACEY CROOK
Staff Writer

The Murray State University students charged with attempted murder following an early-morning shooting were arraigned in Calloway District Court Tuesday.

A preliminary hearing for Dennis Park, 25, 1621 1/2 Farmer Ave., and Jessica Wilson, 19, Springer Hall, is scheduled for Friday at 10:30 a.m. in District Court, according to County Attorney David Harrington.

During the arraignment, Wilson was allowed to post 5 percent of her original $25,000 cash bond. She has been released from jail.

But Park's bond was increased from $25,000 cash to $35,000 cash. He is still in custody.

The two were arrested following an incident at 1:24 a.m. Tuesday near 15th and Main streets after Park allegedly fired a shot in the direction of 25-year-old Dave Brodsky of Madison, Tenn.

According to police reports, Brodsky, a former MSU student, and Park and Wilson were at a party on 16th Street. After Brodsky left the party alone, Park and Wilson reportedly followed him and rammed his vehicle with their vehicle.

Police said when Brodsky exited his vehicle on Main Street, Wilson approached him and began hitting him. Then Park reportedly fired a shot in Brodsky's direction.

Park then waved a handgun in the direction of four witnesses which resulted in charges of four counts of first-degree wanton endangerment.

Officers confiscated a .38-caliber revolver they believe was used in the shooting, according to Murray Police Chief Larry Elkins.

Elkins said an investigation indicates that Brodsky and Wilson are acquainted, but he is unsure if Brodsky and Park know each other.

Meanwhile, MSU officials have suspended Wilson and Park pending an investigation, according to News Bureau manager Joe Hedges.

Company claims deaths unrelated

WICKLIFFE, Ky. (AP) — An investigation is under way into the electrocution of a 25-year-old worker at the Westvaco Corp. paper mill, but officials say the death is not related to another fatality two weeks earlier.

Investigators from the Kentucky Occupational Safety and Health Administration and the Kentucky State Police and executives of Beltline Electric and Westvaco were trying to determine what caused the electrocution Monday of Beltline employee Barry Lane, 25, of Paducah.

"The two accidents are totally unrelated. There is no similarity at all," said Dave Hartley, vice president and mill manager.

"But it is extremely disheartening for us," he said. "Historically, we've had an excellent safety record. We have to look at the accidents, investigate them very thoroughly."

The accident happened about 4:20 p.m. during a maintenance shutdown at the mill. Lane was cleaning high-voltage breakers.

After being transported to Lourdes Hospital in Paducah, Lane was pronounced dead Monday afternoon by McCracken County Deputy Coroner Charles Offutt.

Lane was one of 750 workers employed by Westvaco contractors involved in the annual maintenance upgrade of the mill. More than 500 Westvaco employees are also involved.

Don Cook, spokesman for the Kentucky Labor Cabinet, which has jurisdiction over workplace accidents, also said the Oct. 16 mill death of Rickey Crider of Arlington was unrelated.

It could be six weeks before a final report is complete, Cook said.

"I can't say much while it is an open investigation," Cook said.

The fatalities were the first inside the mill. A Westvaco employee was killed nearly two decades ago in an accident in the mill woodyard.

Bahamas dumps Haitian refugees

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — Haiti's cash-strapped government scrambled to feed and house scores of refugees dumped at the port by a Bahamian vessel.

The boat people had fled Haiti when it was ruled by the former military government, and were detained in the Bahamas as illegal immigrants. The British commonwealth returned more than 350 Haitians here Monday in what it called "an early repatriation exercise."

"It's an inhuman way of dealing with refugees," Gerald Nicolas, a spokesman for Port-au-Prince Mayor Evans Paul, said Tuesday. "The Haitian government doesn't have the infrastructure in place yet to care for such people."

Paul's office rushed to provide aid to 110 of the refugees — those who had no way to get home — at the capital's home for the elderly.

"They couldn't just leave us outside in the streets," said a relieved Reynold Louis, 28, of the coastal town of St. Marc, about 60 miles to the north.

A spokesman for the Grand Bahamas Human Rights Association, D'Arcy Ryan, expressed dismay that the refugees were repatriated just two weeks after President Jean-Bertrand Aristide returned to Haiti. That wasn't enough time for his government to prepare for them, Ryan said.

Ryan also complained that some of the refugees had been in the Bahamas long enough to qualify for immigration.

The U.S. Coast Guard has repatriated thousands of boat people to Haiti in cooperation with the Haitian Red Cross, which provides the refugees a small amount of money for transportation home.

Aristide was ousted by a coup in 1991. He returned with the help of the U.S. military Oct. 15, shortly after the coup leaders left for exile in a U.S.-brokered agreement.

In Washington, the White House said national security adviser Anthony Lake planned to visit Haiti today and Thursday to discuss steps to revitalize the economy and improve police training.

Earlier Tuesday, Paul, forced into hiding for much of the past three years, visited a cemetery for Day of the Dead celebrations to honor those killed under army rule. He cautioned that Aristide's return wouldn't bring instant change.

In spite of the policy question, faculty senate members emphasized their appreciation of the increase.

"I think it would be appropriate for the faculty senate leadership to write a formal letter to President Kern Alexander expressing our sentiment," said Terry Foreman, associate professor of philosophy and religious studies. "This increase is a response to something for which we have been asking for a long time."

Jim Rudolph, faculty senate vice president, said he is pleased with Alexander's actions.

Chancellor wants UK to lure more blacks, women

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — The University of Kentucky has made gains in attracting higher numbers of black students and black faculty members, but the school needs to do more, UK Chancellor Robert Hemenway said.

Hemenway said UK should try to double the numbers of black faculty members and black students, as well as female faculty members and National Merit Scholars, in the next five years.

No one knows what the potential of business in the largely underdeveloped region is. Officials said, for example, that there's $42 billion worth of business to be captured in the telecommunications industry alone.

"We talked a lot about tourism, especially in the Dead Sea area," said Alon Liel, director general of Israel's Ministry of Economy and Planning.

There were discussions about producing an Arabic-language television program with Israeli television, Liel said.

There were numerous Palestinian pitches as well, from pleas for venture capital to build schools and canals to investment to modernize the Palestinian authority's technology base.

"There are tremendous opportunities. It's a new country, where everything needs to be built: homes, roads, airports, health facilities," says George Vassiliou, the former Cypriot president who runs a consulting firm with offices throughout the Middle East.

Mohamed Mansour, a major shareholder in General Motors Egypt, was interested in what opportunities might lie in tourism and hotel investment.

"Like any new state the big problem is getting off on the right foot, without too much bureaucracy, to encourage investors," Mansour said. "I came to see what are the laws, how trade will be handled."

The Palestinians' lack of sophistication can be an advantage to investors, says Samir Huleihel of the Palestinian Economic Council, for Development and Reconstruction.

"We have a very small bureaucracy compared to neighbors. This brings a much bigger role to investors," Huleihel said.

New Agenda: 1995-2000," Hemenway also said he thinks UK should offer a full class schedule year-round, encourage some students to get their bachelor's Magistrate Steve Lax said the county recognizes the importance of industry and he wants to work with Kenlake to reach an agreement.

The problem: In order for Kenlake to utilize a portion of the jail property, a retaining wall must be constructed because the jail's elevation will be higher than Kenlake's parking facility.

The county originally had planned to slope the land down to Kenlake's current parking area at the corner of L.P. Miller and Olive streets.

Jail committee chairman Ray Coursey said the retaining wall will cost between $20,000 and $30,000.

But those figures were subject to debate.

The county's architect, Jim Woodrum, was unable to attend the meeting.

But Kenlake's architect, John Resig of Purchase Engineering, said he has technical questions concerning the cost of the wall.

"Kenlake came up with its own analysis on the wings (the part of the wall not connected to the jail) and we have a $5,000 to $6,000 difference," Resig said.

According to architectural plans, the retaining wall will be part of the jail's foundation.

Resig pointed out that the part of the wall extending from the building will not have to be as thick because it is not supporting a structure, therefore costs would be lessened.

But Lax said that if the area were sloped and seeded, county employees could do that work at a minimal expense to taxpayers.

Bill McCarthy, Kenlake's general manager, said the agreement also depends on the terms.

"The bottom line is, we have to look at it from a financial aspect," he said.

McCarthy said the company is willing to consider an up-front payment or a long-term lease agreement.

He said neither of the proposals have been approved by the company's headquarters, but the ideas are a starting point.

The first sets out plans for Kenlake to provide at its own cost, earth removal for gravel fill, gravel and dense grade addition, concrete dolly pads (for trailer parking), grading for drainage of water runoff and a guard-rail to protect the retaining wall from trailers.

In addition, Kenlake would pay the county $12,000 toward the cost of a retaining wall.

Kenlake would maintain the parking surfaces and the county would maintain the wall, foundation, embankments and drainage devices.

Kenlake would be liable for any injury or damage incurred on the lot if the person involved is a Kenlake employee, but the county would be liable for any other incident involving any non-Kenlake employee or agent.

The contract would expire 30 years from the date of signing.

The second option presented to the county involves a 30-year lease during which time Kenlake would pay $100 a month to the county.

But the county would be responsible for all material and work needed for the company's parking lot and for the construction of the retaining wall.

In addition, the county would have to maintain Kenlake's parking lot, the retaining wall and drainage devices.

Liability restrictions are the same.

"I don't have any problem with leasing, but I do have a problem with us having to pay for the wall," Lax said. "We've already had to raise taxes for this jail and I don't think the taxpayers want any more taxes, but I believe this county could gravel the lot for you."

Meanwhile, Kenlake has already received funding approval to pour asphalt on the current parking lot at the corner of Olive and L.P. Miller streets where a number of trailers are parked.

Krieb said work on the lot is scheduled to begin next week.

The fiscal court decided to develop its own proposal and directed the county attorney to determine what liability and responsibility the county legally has if the property were leased to Kenlake.

McCarthy said the company doesn't have much time.

"In my dealings with the corporation, the window of opportunity ceases to exist after the calendar year," he said.

Coursey said the county should be able to come back to the bargaining table within a week.

"We'll take these under advisement," Lax said. "Then we can make a proposal to you and if that doesn't work, it just doesn't work."

Kenlake Foods is a subsidiary of the Kroger Company. The industry opened in Murray in the early 1980s.

Re-Elect Freed Curd
Democratic Candidate for State Representative

Dear Voter:

In a few days, you will be called upon to make a very important decision: to elect a State Representative. This decision is important because it will affect your life, and the lives of your children and grandchildren.

As your state representative, I have made many friends and connections in Frankfort. I have served as a working member of the Education and Transportation Committees in Frankfort. These committees are very important to me. I have been actively involved in each of these and have tried to voice the "people's opinions" at all times. My personal interest in these committees is obvious - they involve me, my family, and my community.

With my wife, oldest daughter and myself all being teachers, I am very concerned with the future of teaching and improving education for Kentucky's youth. I keep both teacher's and student's concerns in mind at all times when reviewing educational legislation.

With both my sons-in-law being farmers, I am naturally committed to the success of farming. Many bureaucrats often tend to overlook the economic importance of farming. I am devoted to the promotion of West Kentucky agriculture.

As a member of the transportation committee, I am continually working for the betterment of both primary and secondary roads in the Fifth Districts. I realize good roads, highways, and bridges are a necessity for both safety and convenience.

During the last legislative session, Workmen's Compensation Insurance was lowered by as much as 15% for small businesses. Small businesses are a necessary part of every community.

These are just a few of the things I am doing in Frankfort. I ask that you take time to consider me as a serious candidate for re-election as State Representative. As previously mentioned, I have made friends and important connections at the Capitol over the past two terms. These are political lifelines that only time can establish.

As your voice in Frankfort, I make a continuous effort to serve the interests of the majority of the people rather than those of select groups. I am aggressive and concerned. I actively seek your opinions and stand ready to voice them in Frankfort.

I ask that you support me, Freed Curd, Nov. 8, 1994. Your vote, confidence and trust will be greatly appreciated.

Sincerely,

Freed Curd

Commuter Catastrophe: Plane circled airport 32 minutes before crashing

ROSELAWN, Ind. (AP) — After the doomed commuter plane flew in a holding pattern for 32 minutes, then descended to 8,000 feet in rough weather, air traffic controllers asked it to hold for another 10 minutes.

A pilot acknowledged the request with a "Thank you." Those were the last words controllers heard from the crew, federal officials said Tuesday.

Three minutes later, American Eagle Flight 4184 disappeared from radar screens. All 68 people aboard were killed Monday when the plane slammed into a muddy soybean field during a driving rainstorm.

Two in-flight weather advisories had been issued for turbulence and icing, said National Transportation Safety Board chairman Jim Hall. Investigators were checking the plane's voice data recorder to see if the pilot received the warnings.

It is not unusual for planes to fly in holding patterns for 32 minutes, said David Hinson, an administrator with Federal Aviation Administration. Planes are sometimes held for two to three hours, he said.

Hall, who described the last minutes of Flight 4184 at a news conference, said preliminary transcripts show there were no transmissions or distress signals after the pilots agreed to circle for another 10 minutes.

Investigators began searching Tuesday through the scattered rubble, some of it small enough to be carried out by hand. They will begin studying the debris in the next few days, said NTSB spokesman Ted Lopatkiewicz.

The process of removing and identifying the remains of the 64 passengers and four crew members was to begin this morning. It could take from a week to a month to recover all the body parts and debris, state police Sgt. Jerry Parker said.

"If you look at the photos and aerial views of the wreckage site, (it) will give you some idea as to why the process is taking so long," Hall said.

"It is a devastating scene," stammered Gov. Evan Bayh, who viewed the scene by helicopter Tuesday. "The destruction is complete."

Searchers who slogged through the muck on foot soon after the crash described small chunks of smashed airplane and pieces of bodies. The largest piece of plane was a 6- to 8-foot section of the tail.

"There's not one body that's intact," said firefighter Jerry Cramer.

Lee Smith, who lives nearby, said the barren field "smelled like a butcher shop."

The plane's two engines have been recovered at the crash site, as have the flight data recorder and cockpit voice recorder, which are being analyzed in Washington.

While the voice recorder captured the crew's final words, the data recorder should give investigators information on engine performance, the de-icing system and other systems.

Hall said there appeared to be nothing remarkable about the weather at the time of the crash, and the weather warnings were "certainly not unusual."

But one pilot told controllers that ice formed on his plane while flying through the same storm that Flight 4184 encountered, The Dallas Morning News reported Wednesday, citing a source close to the investigation.

Crews built a gravel road across the field to help investigators reach bodies and clues.

Investigators needed the 200-yard trail to navigate mud too deep even for four-wheel-drive vehicles.

The French- and Italian-built Super ATR plane was registered in March and had experienced no problems through September, except a broken floor light, according to FAA records.

The gymnasium of North Newton High School, 15 miles from the crash site, was at first designated a morgue and officials planned to cancel classes for at least a week. They later decided to use a National Guard armory for the morgue.

Shooter refuses psychiatric exam

WASHINGTON (AP) — A man accused of shooting at the White House cut short a preliminary mental evaluation as prosecutors reportedly considered evidence that he intended to kill President Clinton.

While Francisco Martin Duran has not been charged with an assassination attempt, a former co-worker at the Broadmoor Hotel in Colorado Springs, Colo., told The Associated Press that Duran had said he was "going to take out the president."

Based on statements by David Millis to the FBI and papers found in Duran's truck, prosecutors are now considering also filing attempted assassination charges against Duran. The Washington Post said today, quoting sources close to the investigation.

Among the papers law enforcement officials found were a map with the words "kill the prez" on it, the newspaper said. It said the exact spelling of the abbreviated word for president could not be determined.

Millis, 20, who said he knew Duran about seven months, said in a telephone interview with the AP: "He used to talk a lot about the government, how it had screwed him over ... and stuff like assassinating the president. I didn't think he was serious. I thought he was full of hot air."

But in a paid-for interview broadcast Tuesday night on the television program "A Current Affair," Millis said he now believes Duran "definitely was trying to kill the president."

Since last Saturday's shootings, Millis said, he reported those conversations to local police and the FBI, which asked him if he would take a polygraph test.

"I said yes, but they haven't gotten back to me on that," Millis told the AP.

The FBI referred queries to the U.S. attorney's office in Washington, where spokesman Kevin Ohlson declined comment on Millis' statements.

Duran refused to continue a 24-hour mental evaluation Tuesday after his lawyer filed motions to stop the exam. He said "that in light of the action by his counsel, he would not speak" to a psychiatrist, Assistant U.S. Attorney John Facciola told a court hearing.

But two federal judges rejected bids by Duran's public defender, Leigh Kenny, to delay the evaluation until after his preliminary hearing or to limit it to ensure he is not asked about Saturday's shootings or his mental state at the time.

U.S. Magistrate Deborah Robinson was expected to decide today whether to order a 30-day mental examination of Duran before the preliminary hearing.

Prosecutors sought the one-day evaluation to determine whether Duran was competent to aid in his defense, saying questions about his competency were raised by a letter taken from his pickup truck. The letter was not released.

Duran, 26, faces four felony counts in Saturday's semiautomatic rifle attack on the White House. Conviction on all four counts could bring a 35-year prison sentence and a $1 million fine.

Clinton indicated he didn't believe he was the target of the bullets, which slammed into the north side of the White House and the West Wing press briefing room from a weapon fired on the sidewalk on Pennsylvania Avenue. Clinton was in the White House at the time, but no one was injured.

The gunman "was obviously trying to do something to draw attention to himself, not trying to hurt us," Clinton said Tuesday in a telephone interview with WPRO in Providence, R.I. He said the Clinton family planned no big changes to increase security, but added, "We will be prudent."

Court papers said Duran pleaded guilty on March 21, 1991, to felony assault while in the Army. He was sentenced to five years at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., and in February 1993, was dishonorably discharged from the Army.

Barlow's voting questioned

Dear Editor:
 Recently, I saw a television campaign ad for Mr. Tom Barlow, portraying him and his family in church. As they leave, Mr. Barlow says that he wants prayer BACK in schools. Surely he knows that voluntary prayer in public schools is already a constitutional right of every student. Perhaps he had in mind the way it was before 1963, when the Supreme Court banned compulsory prayer.
 I believe that prayer should be in the schools myself. However, this letter is not meant to put forth my arguments for prayer in school. It is to question Mr. Barlow's statement that he is for prayer in public schools based on his voting record.
 According to the Congressional Record, dated March 21, 1994, on pages H1740-H1751, there is an amendment offered by Mr. Sam Johnson of Texas. In essence, the amendment states that federal funding under the Elementary and Secondary Education Act will be cut off from any educational agency which has a policy of denying or trying to prevent participation in constitutionally protected prayer by persons on a voluntary basis.
 Mr. Pat Williams of Montana offers an amendment to that amendment which would allow school administrators to deny any student their right to pray without losing federal dollars.
 Mr. Barlow voted for the Williams amendment. Thankfully, it was rejected. I believe he covered his rear by voting yes on the Johnson amendment, an amendment, by virtue of his supporting the Williams amendment, he had opposed. The Johnson amendment passed by a vote of 345-64.
 When the Williams amendment was defeated, Mr. Barlow jumped on the wagon for the Johnson amendment. In that respect, he can say, "Yes, I am for prayer in the public schools because I voted for the Johnson amendment." Which is it, Mr. Barlow? In the Record, Mr. Williams admits to casting a bad vote, when earlier he supported the language of the Johnson amendment. Is that what happened in your case?
 I believe Mr. Barlow is trying to employ a popular "family values" theme that is prevalent in this election year. In truth, he is saying one thing, and voting another. Mr. Barlow's positions and voting record definitely do not agree with my "family values."
 I urge readers to take the time and effort to see how Mr. Barlow has voted on issues like parental notification for abortion involving a minor, taxes to promote abortion, fetal tissue research and tax relief for families. It's time for the voters of Kentucky to take charge of their own lives and take the time to find out how folks are REALLY voting in Washington. If Mr. Barlow is looking out for our school children the way he did the proposed interstate near Murray, it's possible they won't have a PRAYER!!!

Pro-health group takes action

Dear Editor:
 In these days of controversy over tobacco and health, there remains one point of agreement between all parties: that children shouldn't smoke.
 Individuals and organizations around the Commonwealth have joined together as Kentucky ACTION (Alliance to Control Tobacco In Our Neighborhoods). Through the Alliance, members combine efforts to educate Kentuckians about health risks and tobacco use. Kentucky ACTION is pro-health, not anti-farmer.
 Many of our members believe that to best improve the health of Kentuckians, we must also help our tobacco farmers cope with the economic problems they face. Tobacco farmers suffer not only from an ever-declining domestic tobacco market, but also from increasing competition here and abroad from tobacco grown on foreign farms in countries with extremely low labor costs.
 A primary focus of Kentucky ACTION is on children's health issues and on access by our children to tobacco products. Studies show that most adult smokers were regular smokers by age 14. Recent Kentucky studies show that 49 percent of sixth through twelfth graders have used tobacco.
 The Pro-Children Act, enacted as part of the Goals 2000 Educate America Act, is an example of action at the national level which will impact Kentucky. The Act requires a No Smoking policy for any federally-funded indoor facility which is used for health, day care, education, or library services for persons under age 18. The policy must be adopted if that facility receives federal funds, whether directly or indirectly. The act is a direct result of concern for children's health problems associated with tobacco use by children and with the effects of environmental tobacco smoke ("second-hand smoke").
 The law, which goes into effect Dec. 26, 1994, basically bans smoking in all public schools, with a fine of $1,000 per day for violations. The ban extends not only to students, but also to teachers, staff, and anyone else in the school or other affected facility.
 While there has been no definitive announcement by Kentucky school leaders regarding implementation of this law, Kentucky ACTION will lend support to districts and schools needing assistance in implementing and enforcing the change.
 This law presents an opportunity for positive progress towards a healthy future for our youth.

Considering an amendment

FRANKFORT — The 1994 general election across Kentucky mercifully will be over soon, the airwaves will return to whatever passes for normalcy these days and all the tongue-tied candidates for governor next year suddenly will have great things in store for this great commonwealth.
 First, however, there's the voting on November 8.
 A lot of people are going to be surprised to notice, stuck off by itself on the ballot, a proposed amendment to the state constitution. There's only one and more said about that later.
 The little-noticed, barely-discussed amendment is an attempt to modernize the rules and regulations that govern local governments across Kentucky, most notably the state's cities.
 The key feature of the proposed amendment would eliminate the section of the 103-year-old constitution that requires two-thirds of voters to approve any local government debt. To get around that virtual straightjacket, the courts have allowed city and county governments to set up private agencies that borrow money through bond issues to pay for everything from new parks to fire and police stations. In turn, the local governments "lease" the new facilities for an amount needed to pay off the debt, usually over 20 years.

AGREE OR NOT

 It's the same ruse the state — also under the constitutional debt restriction — uses to build highways, university classroom buildings, park lodges, convention centers and the like.
 The problem, however, is that there's no absolute guarantee that a local government will continue leasing the facility and the bond issue could go into default. To compensate bond buyers for that risk, local government bonds carry a slightly higher interest rate than if they were backed by the full faith and credit of that government.
 No local government bond issue in Kentucky has ever defaulted, of course, and none is likely to. But over the last 10 years, supporters of the amendment believe, as much as $8 million in extra interest on existing bonds has been paid out because of the constitutional restriction.
 In a fiscally conservative state like Kentucky, saving money on what local governments have been doing anyway — going into debt — is good enough reason to change the constitution.
 Other sensible but hardly-earth-shaking changes in the amendment make clear the home-rule powers given cities by the General Assembly years ago, require local governments to spend no more than they take in each fiscal year and permit the legislature to classify cities under the constitution according to other criteria than merely the number of people who live in them.
 While the single amendment on the Nov. 8 ballot is a worthwhile upgrading of the state's ancient constitution, it really is an outrage that the 1994 General Assembly wasted the opportunity to put other amendments on the ballot.

 The legislature can send as many as four amendments to the voters every two years, by tradition two from the House of Representatives and two from the Senate.
 It is one more result of the chaotic and frequently rudderless legislative session this year that only one amendment made it through the process.
 The 1891 constitution still is rife with anachronisms far more serious than the quaint oath officeholders take that they haven't been going around dueling with pistols and sabers. In fact, legislators have a long, prioritized list of recommendations for needed amendments made a decade ago by a blue-ribbon commission established by the General Assembly itself.
 Some of those recommendations — gubernatorial succession, for example — have become law in due course. But many haven't even been acted on by legislators who, if anyone, ought to know how much that old constitution needs to be brought at least into the 20th century before we start headlong into the 21st.

GUEST EDITORIAL

Oct. 20 — Adirondack Daily Enterprise, Saranac Lake, N.Y., on food stamps:
 About one in every $12 Americans spend to provide food stamps to the needy goes to someone who isn't eligible or who already has collected his or her fair share. More than $1.8 billion in food stamp benefits were paid out to people who shouldn't have gotten them last year, according to the Agriculture Department.
 It's no secret the food stamp program is riddled with fraud and errors. That has been acknowledged for years by politicians in both parties. They have pledged to clean up the program.
 It isn't happening. Last year's fraud and error set a new record for the food stamp program, according to the Agriculture Department.
 By anyone's reckoning, $1.8 billion is a lot of fraud and error.

The 8.29 percent in improper payments is a rate no private business could stand — or would tolerate. But government, using your money, seems unwilling to address the problem. ...
 The Agriculture Department estimates that mistakes in handling out food stamps last year denied $559 million worth of them to people who needed the help.
 Clearly it's time to clean up the food stamp program. But that has been apparent for years, so much so that President Clinton made welfare reform one of the keystones of his election campaign.
 The bottom line is: an enormous amount of food stamp recipients are receiving an incredible amount of your money to which they aren't entitled — while many others are being shortchanged.

What to think without baseball

WASHINGTON (AP) — Until the World Series was over, the cliché went, people weren't ready to concentrate on candidates and campaigns in this year's elections. Then came the baseball strike — and politics was the only game in town.
 So the lineups have been studied and sorted and often scorned. The seventh game is coming up a week from today in a process that began early in the year-baseball went on strike.
 Americans are taking a look at the home team, remembering their loyalties, feeling the autumns of party identities that are more easily discounted when the games count in the standings but there's always another one tomorrow.
 Not to overload the metaphor, the calendar shaped those turns in the cycle of election politics; the World Series just happened to fit the time frame on which people turned from the pursuits of summer and harvest to the decisions that will shape their government, choose leaders for two, four, six years.
 And when that happens, people do tend to go home politically, to put their trust in the parties and leaders who gained it, earned or otherwise, the last time out.
 In this season, an Edward M. Kennedy is not just a senator who has spent 30 of his 62 years in office, not only a politician with scars personal and physical, overweight now, the most incumbent of incumbents. He is also the man who got things done all these years, the man people know.
 None of that ensures that the fourth most senior of senators will withstand the challenge of Mitt Romney, the Republican businessman with his own politically memorable name, the youth, vigor, profile that were Kennedy

PERSPECTIVE ON POLITICS

Walter Mears
 Associated Press columnist trademarks in another time.
 But the Democratic titan who seemed in grave jeopardy weeks ago now is moving toward what seems safer political territory, back in command of the race and his fate.
 That's only one example; it comes with no guarantees. Republicans need a seven-seat gain to take over control of the Senate for the first time since 1956, and closely contested races could tip it to them. The greater likelihood, according to expert consensus, is a gain of four or five, more than enough to balk President Clinton's agenda for the next two years, but not to run the place.
 In part, that is a product of campaign slips by "novice newcomers," a wisecrack that becomes an offensive slur, a bit of personal history suddenly burst into political embarrassment — witness Rep. Michael Huffington's admission that he'd hired an illegal immigrant for child care, an excuse that might have helped if it hadn't been worn threadbare in the 20 months since Zoe Baird had the misfortune to put her name on the problem that denied her a Cabinet job.
 All that works now to the advantage of Sen. Dianne Feinstein, an endangered first-term Democrat now gaining momentum.
 In House competition, too, prospective votes seem to be tending toward home. They may not get there; in this atypical midterm election, instead of settling into foreseeable patterns, an unusual number of races remain tossups — in play, to use the politicians' terminology. And the Democrats surely will lose seats beyond the oft-quoted 19-seat average setback for a president's party at this point.
 The Democrats' own consensus runs in the 25-plus range for losses to Republicans, and that comes from a House majority that actually is smaller than their average roster since World War

II.
 By now, a week to Election Day, most races would be all but settled. Instead, at least a dozen of the 35 Senate races this year are too close to be predicted. In the House, with all 435 seats at stake, the number still in play is even more striking.
 There are 398 contests for the House; 37 incumbents are unopposed for new terms. In the contested races, 60, 70 and by some appraisals even more are still very much in doubt in this final week.
 "The gap between 'could' and 'will' is, of course, a broad one. But after the bleakest of summers and early autumns, the Democrats seem to be gaining. They point to late polls indicating a Democratic edge in national preference for Congress, where Republicans had led.
 Again, no guarantees — those races are not decided nationally, but state by state, district by district.
 "I think we're doing a lot better," said Clinton adviser George Stephanopoulos.
 And the president himself, at a Philadelphia rally on Monday, said: "I challenged the American people to think hard about this election, to look at the record, to look at the future, to shine some light on a debate that had been pretty muddled up until a couple weeks ago."
 "Well, folks, the sun has begun to shine on this election."
 Maybe a little. Sunday would have been the seventh game of the World Series that wasn't played.

RESPECT, COMPANIONSHIP, unconditional love — only part of what these animals available for adoption at Animal Shelter, East Sycamore Street off South Fourth Street, operated by The Humane Society of Calloway County, can offer. Homer and Lucky, a Pointer mix and a Lab mix, have been at the shelter for over one year and desperately need to go to a permanent home. They are both wonderful with children and need to have some room to run. Although Homer is a bird dog, he would not be suitable for hunting as he is shy of guns. Both "boys" have been neutered so they will make happy, stay at home companions!

Dr. Ruben Cuadrado, gastro-internist, PineLake Medical Center, Mayfield, was presented by Mary Seay, Personal Growth and Service Chairperson, at the recent business-lunch meeting of Gamma Chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma Society International, at Kenlake Hotel.

Gibson initiated an involvement program titled "Who Am I?" Background information was given and the person discussed was Evelyn Bradley. Gibson asked her to stand.

Sue Roberts, Professional Affairs Chairperson, reported that this year three $500 grants-in-aid were awarded as follows: Dawn P. Lampkins, Murray, Stephanie Danette Downing, Benton, and Melissa Kleeman, Santa Claus, Ind.

Following the program, Edna Lynn Radford, Clinton, gave the blessing and members adjourned to lunch.

Background piano music was played by Jean Elgin, Benton, and all joined in singing the Delta Kappa Gamma song.

Hostesses for the meeting were Bradley, chairman, Ruth Cole, Gibson, Fairless, Dre. Alta Richter, Dr. Alice Koenecke, and Jane Taylor.

Sue Fairless, Necrology chairperson, gave an inspirational memorial tribute in memory of Mary Sue McKendree, Clinton.

President Vanda Gibson welcomed the 35 members and two visitors with the thought that success is in our own hands. She also gave a devotion titled "Help Yourself to Happiness" by Helen Steiner Rice.

Past President Milissia Sledd was presented with a rose in recognition of her service by Gibson.

Sue Fairless, Necrology chairperson, gave an inspirational memorial tribute in memory of Mary Sue McKendree, Clinton.

Friends IV to sing here

First Baptist Church of Murray will sponsor Friends IV, a "new" group with a combined resume reading like a "Who's Who" of Gospel Music, including Terry Blackwood, Larry Orrell, "Big" John Hall and Chuck Sullivan. They have joined talent and vision to create the hottest new sound in inspirational/adult contemporary Christian music. The group will sing at 7 p.m. on Sunday, Nov. 6, at First Baptist Church, 203 South Fourth St., Murray. A love offering will be received, according to Steve Littlefield, minister of music at the church, who invites the public to attend.

Jay Herndon admitted to FHU

HENDERSON, Tenn. — A Murray resident has been admitted to Freed-Hardeman University. Jay Herndon will enroll for the 1995 fall semester.

Herndon is a senior at Calloway County High School. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Danny Herndon.

Freed-Hardeman is a private, Christian college enrolling approximately 1,500 students. It is accredited by the Commission on Colleges of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools to offer bachelor's and master's degrees.

SERVICE NOTES

AIR FORCE AIRMAN 1ST CLASS KELVIN J. WYATT has arrived for duty at McConnell Air Force Base, Wichita, Kan. Wyatt, a crew chief, is a 1989 graduate of Calloway County High School.

He is the son of Jolene Wyatt of Rt. 1, Murray.

MARINE PFC. BOBBY D. WALTON recently completed recruit training at Marine Corps Recruit Depot, Parris-Island, S.C. During the training cycle, Walton was taught the basics of battlefield survival, introduced to typical military daily routine, and personal and professional standards.

Each recruit participates in an active physical conditioning program and gains proficiency in a variety of military skills including first aid, rifle marksmanship and close-order drill. Teamwork and self-discipline are emphasized throughout the cycle. Walton is a 1994 graduate of Marshall County High School.

NAVY PETTY OFFICER 3RD CLASS JAMES C. WOLTERS is halfway through a four-month deployment to South America aboard the guided missile destroyer USS Stump, to participate in the 35th annual UNITAS exercise with nine South American navies.

Wolters is sailing around South America after joining four other U.S. Navy ships near Puerto Rico, and is expected to stop in Argentina, Chile, Peru, Ecuador and Colombia.

During the deployment, Wolters and fellow crewmembers will train in communications, engineering, damage control, ship handling and navigation.

The exercises are designed to strengthen the coordination between United States and South American naval forces. After the exercise, Wolters will transmit the Panama Canal before returning to Norfolk, Va., in December.

The UNITAS exercise demonstrates the ability of U.S. naval forces to serve as the cornerstone of international coalitions, project a positive American image and enhance diplomatic contacts while reassuring friends of U.S. power and resolve from the sea. Wolters, a 1989 graduate of Graves County High School, joined the Navy in March 1991. He is the son of Dale D. and Tina I. Wolters of Rt. 1, Wingo.

Downtown holiday celebration will be Friday and Saturday

Once again, the Murray Court Square will be lit with luminaries as the Downtown Business Association presents its Second Annual Downtown Holiday Celebration on Fri., Nov. 4, and Sat., Nov. 5.

"We're bringing in the Holidays with a downtown showcase," says Sue McCoart, president of the Association.

Many activities are planned for the two-day event. Ellis Popcorn will provide free popcorn to those strolling the Court Square during the celebration. Luminaries will light the Court Square on Friday evening from 5-8 p.m. "Men of Note," an MSU student organization, will stroll around the square, singing holiday favorites. Rudy's restaurant will feature dinner by candlelight. Many businesses will be open during the Friday candlelight stroll, with in-store registration for wonderful gifts.

Festivities continue Sat., Nov. 5. Mr. Turkey will make a special visit to downtown Murray. Carter Studios will take free pictures with Mr. Turkey. Starting at 1 p.m., the West Kentucky Bluegrass Band will play on the Courthouse lawn, with local square dancers and line dancers performing. Local writer Anne

Local team wins

Showing both broad-based knowledge and quick reflexes, the Murray State University Division I Academic Team claimed the championship of the MSU Invitational Tournament held on Oct. 22.

The Racers posted a 3-1 record in the competition, the only blemish on their record a thrilling 40-39 last-question loss to Campbellsville College. MSU tied for the best tournament record with Campbellsville but won the championship on the basis of total points, including a 40-29 victory over Campbellsville earlier in the day.

"This was a great day for us," said Racer coach Ted Brown after the contest. "It's always nice to win, especially at home, but the team really went beyond the call of duty today and won some big matches from tough teams. This bodes well for the rest of the season."

The MSU Division II team also had a fine tournament, placing third in a nine-team field. After a painful 30-28 opening round loss to Madisonville Community College, the Racers won four consecutive matches, including a 41-32 victory over Pikeville College in the third-place playoff match. The wins brought the Division II season record to 8-1.

The MSU Academic Team will next be in action at the Pikeville College Invitational on Nov. 19.

Representing MSU in Division I play were team captain Benji Davis, Zubin Ravetna, Brian Williams, and Jeremy Shelley. Playing for Division II were team captain Laura Denison, Thomas Knight, Shawn Kellie, Tara Griffey, Alicia Gross, and Tim Solley.

Show opens here

The West Kentucky Exposition Center will be filled with action this coming weekend as 200 competitors are expected to participate in the first of five AQHA horse shows to be held at the West Kentucky Exposition Center this season.

The show will open Friday, Nov. 4 at 7 p.m. with barrel racing competition. A total of 79 classes will be featured throughout the three-day event which continues at 8 a.m. on Nov. 5 and 6. Some of the feature classes will include showmanship, halter, trail, western pleasure, reigning, poles and roping events.

Sanctioned by the American Quarter Horse Association, the show provides an opportunity for contestants to accumulate points in hopes of advancing to the annual AQUA National Finals.

According to Mary Kay Kirks, Expo Center manager, the show is free to the public and provides excellent entertainment for anyone interested in horsemanship. Concessions are available as well as limited electrical service for mobile units. Tack and equipment dealers will also be on the grounds displaying their merchandise.

The Expo Center is located on College Farm Road, approximately one mile west of the Murray State University campus. Additional information may be obtained by calling Cindy Johnson at (502) 965-4788 or 965-3805; or Kirks at (502) 762-3125.

CHIROPRACTIC FOR BETTER HEALTH

DR. MARY BROERINGMEYER
CHIROPRACTOR

REGULAR APPOINTMENTS

Observe regularity in your visits to your chiropractor. This is essential so he can give proper attention to your case.

In the matter of your well being, both your's and your doctor's objectives are the same — to make you healthy. Best results can be obtained when you cooperate with your doctor. If you are sincere in your desire to get well and will follow his regimen faithfully, the doctor of chiropractic will be able to give you maximum help.

Your doctor will do his utmost to accommodate you with your appointments. A notice of twenty-four hours, if possible, should be given in the event you are unable to keep your scheduled visit. This is very important.

It is absolutely essential that you maintain your appointments, especially in the initial stage of your care. Health requires time and careful attention. Your cooperation in keeping your appointments is the best way to insure the maximum benefit from your treatment.

Run-A-Thon here

The Murray State University Track and Field Team is sponsoring a Run-A-Thon to be held on November 4, between 3 and 4 p.m. at Stewart Stadium.

The event is being held to benefit the Men and Women's Track and Field and Cross Country Teams at MSU.

Each Track and Field athlete will be going door to door in the Murray community asking for donations. The donations will go toward each lap he or she finishes within the one hour time limit.

Coach Wayne Pate stated that, "This event will be a great chance for the program and its athletes to get involved with the community."

If there are any questions, please contact Jeff Beck of the MSU Sports Information Office.

Shot Down Murray dominates in 3-2 loss

By STEVE PARKER
Sports Editor

DRAFFENVILLE — It's like outgaining a football opponent 430-60 in total yardage, and losing. Or, shooting 43 free throws to the other team's 6, and losing.

For Murray High's girls' soccer team, it was like all that and more.

In one of the most dominating performances by a losing team, Murray was upset 3-2 by a game, and often fortunate, Lone Oak team in Tuesday night's First Region semifinal game at Marshall County High School.

That's a one-goal loss, despite outshooting Lone Oak 43-4 by Murray's statistician's count. They spent so much time in Lone Oak's end they'll probably get a property tax bill from the McCracken County clerk.

"That's the most shocking game I've seen this year, even more than Calloway (girls) beating Marshall County," said Lady Tiger head coach Mark Kennedy. "A lot more."

Kennedy slung around words like, "unlucky," "unfortunate," and of course, "shocking."

Murray (15-4-1) defeated Lone Oak 6-4 on Aug. 29 and rode a 13-game winning streak into Tuesday night's matchup. They had every reason to believe they would meet Reidland on Thursday night for the regional title.

"I still contend that we're the best team in the Region," said Kennedy. "But on any given night..."

Tuesday night was a given night, and a night that Kennedy and his Lady Tigers would like to wipe completely off the slate.

Murray managed to fight back from a 2-0 deficit to tie the game at 2-2 on Sarah Snyder's indirect kick with 17 minutes left in the game.

"When it got to 2-2, I thought we were finally getting our act together and would pull it out," Kennedy said of the agonizing feat of tying the game. "We still had 16 minutes left and I thought we'd get two more goals. We were just unlucky."

Murray didn't score, however, and went into overtime. Despite several good shots on goal in the first 10-minute period, Murray was forced into the second period.

Then, on Lone Oak's lone threat of the last 75 minutes, Windy Reeder found herself in front of the Lady Tigers' goal with the ball. Her low rolling shot beat Lady Tiger goalkeeper

Brown, Racers top OVC

By TERESA M. WALKER
AP Sports Writer

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Austin Peay coach Dave Loos looks no further than Marcus Brown when pointing out why the balance of power is swinging back to Murray State.

"Popeye (Jones) is gone, Warren (Kidd) is gone, now Carlos (Rogers) is gone, you'd think life would be easier," Loos said of the three former Ohio Valley Conference players of the year. "But that's not true."

Coaches and sports information directors tied in picking Murray State and Tennessee State Tuesday as the favorites to win the Ohio Valley Conference regular season title.

Murray State picked up 10 first-place votes and 120 points in preseason voting by coaches and sports information directors to successfully defend its regular season title.

Tennessee State, the two-time OVC tournament champion, grabbed eight first-place votes and 120 points that tied the Tigers with Murray State for first.

But the edge may go to the Racers who boast Marcus Brown, the preseason OVC player of the year.

"It's kind of fun to be the top dog with everybody shooting at you," Brown said. "It

Tigers fall 2-1 in Regional shootout

Madisonville tops Murray

By MARK YOUNG
Staff Writer

HOPKINSVILLE — After 110 minutes of soccer, something had to give.

Murray's and Madisonville's boys played through 80 minutes of regulation, two 10-minute overtime periods and two five-minute sudden death overtimes, but couldn't break a 1-1 tie in their First Region tournament game Tuesday night.

That sent the game into a battle of penalty kicks to decide the outcome, and the Maroons eventually came away a 2-1 winner, ending Murray's season at 11-9 and sending Madisonville into the championship game against Paducah Tilghman.

"Our kids played their hearts out," Murray coach James Weatherly said. "The first 15 minutes of the game and the whole second half we took it to them, but we couldn't get the ball in the net."

In the penalty kick shootout, each team sent five players to try to score in a one-on-one situation with the opposing team's goalkeeper.

The Tigers' Greg Miller, Jeremy Settle and Roman Shapla all made good on their kicks, giving Murray a 3-1 edge as Madisonville's second kick missed.

Both regulation goals were scored in the first half, and on identical plays, Murray jumped ahead when Shapla sent a cross pass to Miller, who headed the ball into the net, Madisonville's Wesley Rainwater scored in the same manner later in the first half for a 1-1 tie at halftime.

"We kept them under a lot of pressure, and it was a physical game, it was just a shame that it had to come down to (penalty kicks)," Weatherly said.

Both teams had their chances to score throughout the game.

April reigns in November

Calloway falls to Reidland 5-1

By STEVE PARKER
Sports Editor

DRAFFENVILLE — The calendar may have read Nov. 1, but Tuesday night was definitely an April evening at the girls' First Region Soccer Tournament.

Reidland forward April Freeman proved to be the only difference Tuesday night, scoring four goals in the Lady Greyhounds' 5-1 win over Calloway County.

Calloway, which had several chances in the second half to chip away at Reidland's 3-1 lead, walked off the field knowing that Freeman was the difference.

"We played a good game, and in the second half we dominated," said Calloway head coach Sharon Arant. "The game was a lot closer than the score indicated."

Calloway finishes the season with a 9-10-1 record. However, eight of their 10 losses came to regional powers Murray High, Reidland and Marshall County.

"They have nothing to be disappointed in," Arant said after the final game. "We don't have a lot of strength, but what we do have is a lot of kids who believed in what we could do."

Calloway believed they could win on Tuesday night, it just didn't start until late in the first half.

Freeman, a junior, scored two goals midway through the first half to put Reidland up 2-0. Teammate Tara Troutman then scored on an amazing corner kick to make it 3-0 by halftime.

"The first 30 minutes was their game," Arant noted of the first half. "Then, for whatever reason, we really got back in the game."

"Maybe it was an intimidation thing with Reidland being ranked in the state and playing good all year," said Calloway senior Carrie Bell. "We realized we could play with them all along, we just didn't do it. Then, something snapped and we started playing."

With 23 minutes left in the game, Calloway finally connected with the back of the net after seeing numerous scoring chances just miss.

Calloway's goal came on a Tracey West header off of a Julie Smotherman corner kick.

Calloway maintained their attack in the Reidland zone, but didn't find the goal the rest of the night.

Meanwhile, Freeman connected on two near-perfect shots to push Reidland's margin up to 5-1 with six minutes left.

"She's a proven player," Arant said of Freeman. "The incredible thing is she'll be back next year."

Reidland (18-2) outshot Calloway just 21-15, with Calloway goalkeeper Heidi Wilson making 14 saves.

"It was pretty evenly balanced

Emma Shaw and made it 3-2 with just under five minutes remaining in the overtime period. (It was not sudden death.)

"Their kid banged the ball into our kid (Jenny Leary) and it deflected over to one of their kids, and she pushed it in," Kennedy explained of the game winner. "We were pushing up (on offense) and we got an unlucky bounce."

Murray still had several assaults on the Lone Oak goal, but they were not meant to score more than two goals on Tuesday night.

"They (Lady Tigers) have been magnificent all year," Kennedy said. "And they lose on two long shots over our goalkeeper."

"By the same token, you don't outshoot a team 43-4 and lose," he continued.

Lone Oak surprised the Lady Tigers by jumping out to a 2-0 lead on two long-range shots. Marie Fort ripped a rocket past Shaw from 25 yards out for the first goal, and Brandy Gifford chipped in a high-arching shot from 20-plus yards to make it 2-0 with 29 minutes left in the first half.

Murray settled down and finally got on the board when freshman Leigh Haverstock came off the bench and scored unassisted from 16 yards out. It was 2-1 Lone Oak with 12:39 left in the half.

Murray then spent the remainder of the excruciating game trying to beat Lone Oak goalkeeper Sara Cannon.

"They started packing it in on defense, so we tried to go over the top," Kennedy said of Murray's offensive attack. "We just couldn't finish. Instead of kicking it on goal, we were banging it over the goal."

"You can follow up a rolling shot, but we don't have any girls that can jump that high when we shoot over the goal."

With 17 minutes left in regulation, Murray finally tied it when Haverstock was obstructed in the goal box, giving Murray an indirect kick just outside the Lone Oak goal. Freshman Courtney Christopher set the ball up and passed it to Snyder, who ripped a shot that finally flew under the crossbar.

Murray loses just three seniors from this year's team, and promises to be even better next season. But that's not why Kennedy will most likely return for his second season as the Lady Tigers' head coach.

"I've never been prouder of a group of kids than this group," the coach said. "I've been coaching for 16 years and I've never had a team that played up to their capabilities and even expand their capabilities like this team."

"I've grown to respect and appreciate these girls, and there's not one that I wouldn't lay down my life for."

Tigers...

Settle and John Key.

"We had our chances tonight because we outshot them, but there's not much you can say about it; both teams played hard and it was a good match," he added. "For a Class A school to play against the big schools and to compete with them like we did this season says a lot for our kids."

Miller said that while the team will miss the three departing starters, the situation for the Tigers looks good for next season.

"Next year we'll have about 10 seniors, so even though it will be hard to replace the seniors from this year, we should have a good team again next year," he said.

Madisonville then appeared to win the game with a goal just over a minute into the first five-minute sudden death, but the score was denied because the Maroons were judged to be offside.

Madisonville also narrowly missed scoring in the second five-minute sudden death period when an indirect kick flew just left of the goal with only seconds remaining, setting up the final penalty kick situation.

"Everybody played with their hearts out, I guess we weren't meant to win," said Miller, one of eight juniors on the squad. "We looked through the fatigue even though we were all tired. We said we've got to win it for the seniors."

The Tigers will lose three starters to graduation, Shapla, Settle and John Key.

"Roman is a heck of a player; he had three guys on him all night," Weatherly said, noting that Shapla has received several offers to play soccer in college. "And we'll also miss Jeremy on the shots, they just put it in the net on several picture-perfect shots," said Arant.

Calloway, which loses five seniors, finished the year strong, beating Marshall County in the district tournament, and playing Murray to a 3-2 loss in the district finals.

"When we started camp this summer I didn't know what to expect, we had a lot of new girls," said Bell. "But everyone came through and played great. It's great to see what all we accomplished."

Austin Peay is third in the preseason poll followed by Morehead State, Eastern Kentucky, Southeast Missouri, Middle Tennessee State, Tennessee Tech and Tennessee-Martin.

Scott Edgar saw his Racers go 23-6 last year, 15-1 in the OVC to win their sixth league title in seven years, and lose in the first round of the National Invitation Tournament.

Gone from that team are four starters. Brown will have to step up his scoring average of 18.1 points a game with help from William Moore, one of the league's top 3-point shooters at 40 percent.

Rogers, two-time OVC player of the year, helped Tennessee State (19-12) reach the NCAA tournament for a second straight year.

Break reported in case of missing boys

UNION, S.C. (AP) — Investigators announced an "exciting" break today in the weeklong search for two young brothers whose mother said they were abducted during a carjacking while still strapped their safety seats.

"It looks good right now," Union County Sheriff Howard Wells said. Wells said the tip came in by phone Tuesday afternoon from out of state, and concerned the missing children rather than the kidnappers.

"It is a very promising lead right now," the sheriff told CNN. "It could provide us with the break we've needed."

Susan Smith told authorities Oct. 25 that her two sons, 3-year-old Michael and 14-month-old Alex, were taken by a man who commandeered her car, then ordered her out of it and drove off with the boys still in their seats.

Wells said authorities had had several conversations with the person who made the telephone tip. Asked if they would be able to solve the mystery today, Wells told CBS: "I don't know that we can crack it that fast, but if it's the information we need, it's certainly going to give us the direction."

"We've had a promising lead overnight that's probably been the most exciting so far," he said.

"I don't want to be too preliminary in giving anything away, but I am very hopeful it's going to work out for us," he said. "It's looks good right now."

On Tuesday, Wells said that Mitch Sinclair, a friend who Mrs. Smith was going to visit the night the children disappeared, had been questioned about comments he made to a television reporter.

Sinclair, appearing on the TV program "A Current Affair," said: "The truth will come out ... and that is just like the sheriff says it is."

Wells said he was satisfied with Sinclair's explanation and Sinclair was not a suspect. Wells also said he talked to Mrs. Smith and the boys' father, David Smith, but would not elaborate.

The couple filed for divorce in September, but Wells has said he doesn't believe that has anything to do with the incident.

The Smiths issued a statement through a family spokeswoman Tuesday.

"It is a nightmare that seems to have no end," they said. "The hardest part of all is not knowing where they are. It is torture."

Snake part of child's treat bag

COVINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Violence marred Halloween in northern Kentucky, as police investigated several reports of trick-or-treaters being beaten and a snake in a candy bag.

A 13-year-old Covington boy spent the night in the hospital after he was beaten while trick-or-treating. Covington police says a 16-year-old admitted that he punched the younger boy in the mouth.

The boy lost two teeth and suffered a broken bone above the gum that required surgery.

The 16-year-old was charged with assault.

In another incident, a 15-year-old was hit in the ear, said Sally Kunkel, a nursing supervisor at St. Elizabeth Medical Center North. "Somebody's out jumping trick-or-treaters," she said.

In another type of Halloween fright, 8-year-old Savannah Rice dumped her Halloween candy on the couch and a foot-long snake slithered out.

The snake, swept into a bag with a broom and dustpan, was no plaything, said her mother, Pamela Rice.

"He was snapping at the broom," Ms. Rice said. "The fear that goes through me when I think of her putting her hand into the bag ..."

TVA, Big Rivers Electric discuss possible merger

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Talks are intensifying between Tennessee Valley Authority and Big Rivers Electric Corp. over TVA's possible acquisition or merger with the financially troubled Kentucky utility.

Big Rivers is "in the midst of some strong economic development efforts to see what we can do to rectify the financial situation," spokeswoman Susan Sauls said. "We are looking at the options in which we may or may not sell all or part of the corporation."

TVA provided no details of a deal with Big Rivers, other than acknowledging that talks are ongoing between the agency and the Henderson, Ky., company.

TVA spokesman Gil Francis said the agency and Big Rivers have been holding discussions "concerning a business relationship" and have agreed "to a confidential sharing of information on their respective power systems operations."

"TVA said they would be interested in further conversations with us, as have several other organizations," Sauls said. "We are agreeing to talk a bit more with TVA to see if there are options."

The Rural Electrification Administration, which met last month with representatives of TVA and Big Rivers, has hinted at a possible marriage. Big Rivers is debt ridden — it owes REA $1.2 billion — and TVA may need more power in the future to serve customers and maintain competitive rates.

Sauls emphasized that TVA is "one of several companies that have expressed an interest in Big Rivers, and we will be pursuing similar arrangements with other companies in the very near future."

TVA is a giant federal power agency, supplying electricity to 160 municipal and cooperative utilities serving 8 million people in seven states, including Kentucky. It has three nuclear units, 11 coal-fired plants and 29 hydroelectric dams.

Big Rivers is a generation and transmission corporation that provides electricity to four cooperatives in western Kentucky, serving 85,000 customers. It owns and operates four coal-fired generating plants.

Sauls said any business arrangement would involve a debt settlement plan for Big Rivers. The utility's directors also are considering restructuring Big Rivers' debt or diversifying its industrial load — now 75 percent of its total load.

Sauls said Big Rivers has been unable to fully recover the cost of building its D.B. Wilson power plant, which was expected to capitalize on a synthetic fuels industry boom that never happened.

In addition, Big Rivers has endured scandal. Former general manager William Thorpe faces trial in April on charges of accepting $3 million in bribes and kickbacks from coal suppliers. Thorpe denies any wrongdoing.

Death ruled natural by examiner

MOREHEAD, Ky. (AP) — A Morehead State University student who was found dead in her campus residence hall Aug. 29 died of natural causes, the state medical examiner's office in Lexington said Tuesday.

The death of Bridget Reynolds of Villa Park, Ill., was due to acute cardiac dysrhythmia, said a report by Dr. John Hunsaker.

Reynolds' body was found by a roommate who had returned after being gone for the weekend. Reynolds was a second-year student majoring in biology.

Altered canola plant wins approval

WASHINGTON (AP) — Canola plants produce an oil low in saturated fat for diet-conscious Americans. But it may soon be used as a source for richer fats used in detergents, soaps and shampoos.

Calgene Inc. of Davis, Calif., said Tuesday it won clearance from the Agriculture Department to grow and ship a canola plant that has been altered to produce laurate.

Laurate is a fatty acid found in palm kernel and coconut oils, some of the worst kind for people wanting to keep their arteries clear. But laurate is prized for making soaps, detergents and shampoos. Laurate oils also are used for non-dairy coffee "whiteners" and whipped toppings.

Roger Salquist, chairman and chief executive officer of the company, said the plant will offer the first supply of those important industrial oils north of the equator. He also said the plant offers an alternative to winter wheat as a crop that can be planted in the fall and harvested in spring.

Right now, canola is a minor U.S. crop, with this year's harvest estimated at 190,000 tons, the Agriculture Department says. Europe and Canada are the major world suppliers, with harvests in the millions of tons.

Salquist said the company is already planting thousands of acres of the crop near Albany, Ga. "What we are doing now is producing commercial but pilot-scale quantities," he said.

He said the company has already has a buyer for the oil, but he wouldn't identify the buyer.

Canola is a version of rapeseed developed in Canada during the 1960s.

Calgene scientists altered the canola plant by adding a gene from the California Bay tree. The result was canola varieties with nearly 40 percent laurate.

This is the third approval by the Agriculture Department of a Calgene product as the department begins allowing more genetically altered plants to be grown. The company pioneered the Flavr-Savr tomato, altered to stay ripe longer, and has won approval of an herbicide-tolerant cotton.

The department so far has also approved an herbicide-tolerant soybean produced by Monsanto. A virus-resistant squash is under review.

The government determined the canola product was safe after reviewing three seasons' worth of field trials and public comment, scientific literature and other material.

Senior scientist Jane Rissler of the Union of Concerned Scientists praised Calgene for the thoroughness of its review but said U.S. regulation of biotechnology is too lax.

Rissler said more field trials are needed to assure that genetic material does not flow from the plants into their wild relatives and create a weed problem.

She also noted that the canola plant could harm economies in Southeast Asia that depend on tropical oil exports. The Philippines produce coconut oil. Indonesia and Malaysia produce palm oil.

Calgene noted that current sources of laurate are limited to those imports. Salquist said that the growing economies in Asia will create a higher demand for laurates than the coconut and palm plantations can hope to produce. The United States imported more than 1.2 billion pounds of laurate oils in 1992, valued at over $350 million, Calgene said.

Fired Clay Co. workers file lawsuit

MANCHESTER, Ky. (AP) — A federal lawsuit filed by two former Clay County employees claims their firings were politically motivated.

Paul Smith and Richard Todd filed suit Monday in U.S. District Court in London against Judge-Executive James Garrison and the county's fiscal court. The lawsuit claims Smith and Todd were fired because they supported Garrison's opponent in 1993.

Garrison did not return phone calls seeking comment.

Smith worked in the road maintenance department and Roberts was an employee with the county ambulance service when they were fired, soon after Garrison assumed office in January.

Yancy L. White of Manchester, one of the attorneys for Smith and Roberts, said so much time elapsed between the firings and filing the lawsuit because "I attempted to try to negotiate and resolve without resorting to litigation."

The suit says that Garrison asked Roberts for his support in the May 1993 primary election. Roberts contends that when he declined, Garrison implied that Roberts' job could be in jeopardy.

There were no details in the lawsuit about Smith's firing.

This allegations in the lawsuit are not the first involving Garrison and personnel decisions based on politics.

Garrison is a cousin of school superintendent Charles White, who last year decided to transfer Big Creek Elementary School Principal Ralph Hoskins.

Parents and children staged a protest in June 1993, saying politics had played a role in the transfer.

Hoskins is a cousin of Roy Morgan, Garrison's opponent in the May 1993 Republican primary.

White denied that the transfer was politically motivated and has said he told Hoskins a transfer was possible before the May 25 primary.

Frost causes little damage

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Freezing temperatures recorded last week had little harmful effects for Kentucky farmers, the Kentucky Agricultural Statistics Service reported Monday.

The agency said most crops had reached maturity prior to the frost. While some late soybeans may have suffered minor damage, the freeze beneficially killed some weeds that could hamper soybean harvesting.

The state's soybean crop is now 54 percent complete, compared to 51 percent for the same date last year and for the average, the agency said.

The corn harvest has progressed to 83 percent complete statewide as of Sunday. The figure is equal to last year's and is ahead of the 79 percent average. The harvest is approaching completion in western and west-central Kentucky, where 90 percent of the corn has been harvested.

Burley tobacco stripping is 20 percent complete, which is equal to last year's pace and about on the average of 21 percent.

Wheat seeding is progressing ahead of the average. The seeding was 71 percent complete as of Sunday, compared to 64 percent last year and 66 percent for the average. Soil moisture has generally been adequate for good germination and growth.

The Department of Highways hereby notifies all bidders that it will affirmatively insure that in any contract entered into, pursuant to this advertisement, Disadvantaged Business Enterprises, will be afforded full opportunity to submit bids in response to this invitation, and will not be discriminated against on the ground - of race, color, or natural origin in consideration for an award.

IN THE CALLOWAY COUNTY FISCAL COURT
In the matter of the petition of William E. Berg and wife, Helen M Berg, for the discontinuance of a road under KRS 178.070 and KRS 178.320 in Calloway County, Kentucky.

NOTICE
The Calloway County Fiscal Court will hold a public hearing on a petition by William E. Berg and wife, Helen M. Berg, to close Karnes Road dividing Lots 14 and 15 from Lots 16 and 17 in Mathis Farm Subdivision, Unit 3 to wit:

- The County has never established the street, and the street would not provide access to any property other than the lots which border it, which are currently accessed by Mary Jane Drive.
 - Notice of the road closing and a written report of the findings of two (2) reviewers in conjunction with the County Road Engineer will be performed in accordance with KRS 178.070.
 - The petition further states that the closing of the unnamed, dedicated street will, in no way, inconvenience the public.
- The public hearing will be at 9:30 a.m. in the auditorium of the Weeks Community Center during the meeting of the Calloway County Fiscal Court on November 10, 1994. Dated this 18th day of October, 1994.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

North dealer. Both sides vulnerable. NORTH: J103, A82, KQ4, A972. WEST: A6, QJ104, A72, 10643. EAST: 875, 9653, J10965, 8. SOUTH: KQ942, K7, 83, KQJ5.

The bidding: North East South West 1 Pass 1 Pass 1 NT Pass 3 Pass 3 Pass 4 Pass.

Opening lead - three of clubs. Eavesdropping is ordinarily regarded in everyday life as an unacceptable form of behavior. But, oddly enough, not only is it acceptable in bridge, but it is considered absolutely indispensable to good play.

Listening in on the opponents' bidding and taking advantage of what they say to each other is one of the best weapons available to the defense. In this deal, for example, West intercepted messages exchanged by North and South and capitalized on what he heard by finding the only way to set the contract.

West had heard both opponents' bid clubs before winding up in four spades, so it certainly seemed reasonable to assume that North-South held at least eight clubs between them. Since West had four clubs himself, it was not difficult for him to judge that East probably had at most one club.

Furthermore, the bidding suggested that North held precisely three spades, as with four of them he would have raised South's spades immediately. South therefore had to have five, since he continued on to game in spades knowing that North had only three-card support. West, who had only two spades, consequently credited his partner with three spades.

Putting all these clues together, West was able to visualize a method of defense almost certain to defeat the contract. Accordingly, he led the club three, taken by South with the king.

Declarer then played a low spade towards dummy, but West was Johnny on the spot. He rose with the ace and returned the club four, trumped by East. A diamond to West's ace and a third round of clubs, ruffed by East, quickly put the contract down one.

Note that if West had not "eavesdropped" on the bidding and had instead made the "normal" lead of the queen of hearts, declarer would have made the contract with an overtrick.

HOROSCOPES

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 3, 1994 (For your personalized daily Jean Dixon horoscope, based on your own date of birth, call 1-900-988-7788. Your phone company will bill you 99 cents a minute.)

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Success will come when you allow your heart to rule your head. Being more independent pays big dividends where your personal life is concerned. Please yourself when choosing how to spend your leisure time. Romantic ties will be strengthened early in 1995. Let your feelings be known and love will flourish. Travel is favored next summer. You reap new profits from overseas ventures.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: actress Roseanne Arnold, boxer Larry Holmes, journalist James Reston, actress Monica Vitti.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): A new domestic budget will help you stretch your resources. Resist outside interference in your private affairs. Emphasize ethics and morality on the road to business success.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Abide by a decision that has produced excellent results. Those who advise taking risks now should be overruled. Wait until evening to make up your mind about an entertainment matter. Trust your intuition.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You could be having a hard time coping with a difficult partner or tough competitor. Follow the sound advice of those who have had valuable experience. Bargains are plentiful but require effort to locate.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Scan newspaper ads of interest. There could be an interesting job opening or money-making enterprise. A frank talk will help you avoid run-ins at place of employment. Teamwork is the key to boosting profits.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Work is often the best cure for anxiety and fretfulness. An ill-advised change in procedure could create confusion during the afternoon. Stay away from all forms of temptation. Avoid making hasty purchases.

TODAY'S CHILDREN have a superb gift for concentration. Once their attention is engaged, these Scorpios are relentless in pursuing their objective. Born detectives, they want to know what is going on and why. Wise parents will discourage these children from teasing or invading the privacy of their peers. A career as a researcher or scientist will give these curious Scorpios ample scope for their investigative skills.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): The pursuit of wealth has many exponents but it does not always provide happiness. Give more thought to your values. Better management of your assets and resources will bring new peace of mind. Build savings.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Fly your financial kite with quiet assurance. Artistic acclaim comes when you act on your instincts. Business and pleasure can be successfully combined. Good fortune is on your side! An effervescent attitude reduces stress.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Bullying tactics will not work with a loyal partner. Keep a tight rein on your checkbook and put your credit cards in cold storage. Get enthusiastic about exercise and low-fat foods. Develop healthy habits.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Careful preparation and a determination to succeed will produce wonderful career or business results. Persevere! Keep your goals in mind at all times. Weigh the possibilities of acquiring a valuable property or closing a profitable deal.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Heed your more prudent instincts and avoid engaging in a heated argument. You need to watch your belongings when in a public place. Give your creative powers the "go ahead" this afternoon. Jot down clever ideas.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Handle your finances in a conservative fashion, avoiding unnecessary lending or borrowing. You cannot always depend on others to be honest. Write concise memos, saying exactly what you mean. Shop tonight to elude weekend crowds.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You and your partner need to discuss both conflicting views and mutual projects. A willingness to make concessions will help you reach an accord. A young person will benefit from encouragement, not lectures. Be more supportive.

DEAR ABBY

DEAR READERS: A faithful reader for more than 30 years who requested anonymity wrote the following:

DEAR ABBY: Around holiday time, you print suggestions about useful gifts for seniors. May I add mine?

For Christmas, I don't want another crystal bud vase; I have four under my kitchen sink. Besides, nobody brings me flowers anyway. I don't want a sausage and cheese tray; that's too much cholesterol for this old lady. I don't want another music box to find a place for — I have too many now. I don't want a silk nightgown, perfumed soap, a fancy bed jacket, dusting powder or a bird feeder.

What do I want? Ask me; I'm not shy! I have told you before what I really want for Christmas, but I never got it. Maybe this time I will.

I want you to give me a few hours. Take me and my cumbersome wheelchair to the mall so I can see the lights and hear the music. I would also like to be driven around town to see the Christmas decorations — then maybe stop for hot cocoa.

I would like a book of postage stamps, a writing tablet with lines and some plain envelopes. I would appreciate a ballpoint pen that works, and some telephone coupons so I can make a few long-distance calls to people I will probably never see again.

I would also appreciate a visit from you and other family members, especially my grandchildren who call and say: "Hi, Grandma! How are you? I love you. Gotta go. See you later. Bye!"

I would like someone to offer to pay my heating bill for one month. (With five sons, six daughters and 42 grandchildren, that shouldn't be so hard to do.) And I sure wish someone would come over here and test my smoke alarm.

I dearly love all of you.

A 91-YEAR-OLD GRANDMA

DEAR GRANDMA: I admire your honesty. Although it may seem a little early to be thinking about Christmas immediately after Halloween, the pumpkins and witches have already been taken out of the merchants' windows and been replaced by Santa, artificial snow, nativity scenes, and all the trappings of the holiday season.

DEAR ABBY: I read the letter signed "Bugged," who resented having to chip in every year for an expensive Christmas present for the big boss, who is probably a rich man and has more than he needs.

Why don't the employees get together and make a contribution to charity in the boss's name? It may even be tax-deductible.

DR. GOTT

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: What mechanism tells the body when it has taken in enough water after a long thirst? When you're very hungry, it can take several minutes of eating before feeling satiated. So why does it take comparatively less water to satisfy a raging thirst?

DEAR READER: Thirst is governed by osmolar receptors in the brain, nerves that tell us when body fluids are too concentrated (reflecting dehydration). When these receptors are stimulated, we experience the need to drink fluids.

Thirst is quickly slaked because water enters the bloodstream without being digested — unlike food that requires a lapse for digestion and absorption before the satiety center in the brain tells us that we are not hungry. Other factors include the rapidity with which water can be consumed (as opposed to food) and the facting (satiety) that is caused by a full stomach.

DEAR DR. GOTT: What is your opinion of women in their mid-80s having their bone density measured? Are the results reliable or questionable?

DEAR READER: The results are reliable. However, the bone density exam is not a cost-effective screening test; it is reserved for women who suffer symptoms (pain and fractures) from osteoporosis and who require monitoring during therapy.

Almost all women in their 80s have some degree of osteoporosis, the post-menopausal loss of calcium from bones, making them weaker and more susceptible to injury. Consequently, older women should probably use a calcium supplement (about 1,500 milligrams a day) and exercise regularly to prevent accelerated mineral loss.

Also, estrogen therapy will retard osteoporosis. Finally, certain prescription drugs, such as Didronal and Calcimar, are useful in treating advanced osteoporosis.

Ask your doctor to guide you. Although you may require periodic bone density measurements, most authorities do not recommend this test for all post-menopausal women.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Osteoporosis." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2433, New York, NY 10163. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I've suffered from shingles for six weeks. I've been on Zovirax and Tegretol to help repair the nerve ends. Darvocet for pain and Restoril for sleep. I've diligently tried to moderate this medication, yet I'm so weak and uncoordinated that even walking is a real chore.

DEAR READER: In an otherwise healthy person, shingles (viral blisters on one side of the body) does not last for six weeks. Therefore, I'd worry about whether your immune system is normal. Also, persistent shingles may reflect the presence of a tumor somewhere in the body.

In my opinion, you need a thorough examination, blood tests and X-rays.

GOP hurting own candidates

By JILL LAWRENCE
AP Political Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prominent Republicans are rejecting and undercutting their own candidates in remarkable fashion this year, exposing fault lines within the party and hampering GOP campaigns in several states.

Republicans stand to make substantial electoral gains next Tuesday. Yet some high-profile party members are engaged in what could amount to political fratricide.

The latest Republican defector is Los Angeles Mayor Richard Riordan, who endorsed Democratic Sen. Dianne Feinstein over the weekend. New York Mayor Rudolph Giuliani led the way last week with his dramatic verbal embrace of Democratic Gov. Mario Cuomo.

Some Democratic candidates are aggressively promoting their independence from President Clinton, who has had erratic approval ratings. But that type of distancing is more routine in a midterm election year than the high-profile defections plaguing the GOP.

In the final week before the election, the crossovers are drawing charges of treason from infuriated Republicans and appear to be helping create momentum for some Democrats.

Oliver North's Senate race in Virginia has created a deep intra-party rift and attracted the most national attention. The number of North's GOP critics grew last week to include Nancy Reagan, who asserted the former national security aide had lied to her husband about the Iran-Contra affair and couldn't tell fact from fantasy.

But the North dispute, which has focused on his character and fitness for office, is less significant than the two mayoral desertions and others that reflect a split between GOP moderates and conservatives.

"What you have here are a bunch of Republicans who basically are saying 'we don't want any government.' And a major part of the Republican Party won't go that far," said Tony Coelho, senior adviser to the Democratic National Committee. He said the officials who have jumped the fence or challenged GOP tenets foreshadow the problems the party will face reconciling its factions in the 1996 presidential campaign.

Haley Barbour, chairman of the Republican National Committee, attributed the two mayoral endorsements to local feuds, alliances and cash flows. "Some officials want to have more state and federal money put into their city budgets," he said.

Barbour said Riordan and Giuliani were "out of step" with the energized GOP electorate but denied they were demonstrating any fundamental incompatibility with party philosophy. He said they remain model Republican officeholders in terms of how they run their cities.

However, GOP strategist Bill Kristol called the big-city mayors anomalies who don't represent the Republican future. "You do have a few old liberal Republicans. ... It's the last gasp of that wing of the party," he said.

Giuliani is feuding with GOP Sen. Alfonse D'Amato, Republican gubernatorial candidate George Pataki's sponsor, and considers Pataki's huge income tax-cut proposal anathema to the city. He has called Cuomo a leader who understands urban problems.

Giuliani's endorsement seems to be fueling a Cuomo surge, and New York Republicans are seething. "We've gotten threats about what my future will be," the mayor said Sunday.

Riordan, in endorsing Feinstein, said that "she has already proven that she's a friend of Los Angeles." Her opponent, Rep.

Michael Huffington, is running a no-government-is-good government campaign. Some Republicans in his Santa Barbara congressional district passed judgment on his House performance by holding a fund-raiser for Feinstein.

Former Housing Secretary Jack Kemp and former drug policy chief William Bennett threw a wrench into another California race by announcing they opposed a ballot initiative to deny government services to illegal immigrants. GOP Gov. Pete Wilson is closely associated with the initiative, while Democrat Kathleen Brown is against it.

The public statement by the two national GOP figures may have contributed to a slide in the popularity of both Wilson and the ballot initiative. Both remained ahead in polls late last week but the trend was downward.

Political wives in at least three other states have made clear they will be crossing party lines this year.

Teresa Heinz, wife of the late Sen. John Heinz of Pennsylvania, last week blasted GOP Rep. Rick Santorum and praised the man he's trying to oust, Democratic Sen. Harris Wofford. The trigger issue was Santorum's ridicule of a national service program. "I'm very proud to be a moderate Republican," Heinz said after learning a local GOP chairman was sending her a form to switch parties.

Helen Milliken, wife of former GOP Gov. Bill Milliken of Michigan, criticized Republican Gov. John Engler's opposition to gun control and abortion in a TV ad for Democratic challenger Howard Wolpe.

In Iowa, GOP Rep. Fred Grandy is refusing to endorse Gov. Terry Branstad after a close loss to him in the primary. Grandy's wife, meanwhile, is an outspoken supporter of Democratic challenger Bonnie Campbell.

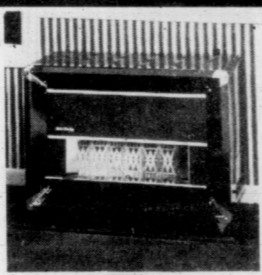

Coelho said the wives' comments provide valuable reassurance to moderate Republicans thinking of bolting their party next week. But Barbour dismissed the wives and the other defectors as irrelevant. "There's a minuscule number" of crossovers this year, he said. "This is the most united we've ever been in an off-year election."

"Still Starving For Cable" Try This Little Dish!

"PRIMESTAR provides programming, maintenance and use of the dish for as little as $1 a day. No wonder there's such a demand."

NO PURCHASE NECESSARY -that's right! If you can't get cable Primestar can bring you great cable and network programming without having to spend $1,000 on a satellite system.

WORRY FREE SERVICE -Primestar takes care of everything. The dish, the programming, and the maintenance. All you have to do is change the channels and watch TV.

NO RISK, NO HASSLES -With Primestar you rent the equipment. There's no hassles over equipment upgrades or the worry of the equipment being outdated by technology changes. Even if lightning knocks the service out Primestar takes care of your service absolutely free. That's "worry free service" to you.
