Dr. Hughes resigns seat Fiscal court will name replacement

By AMY WILSON
Staff Writer

Dr. Robert Hughes, who has served on the Murray-Calloway County Hospital Board since January, announced his resignation at Thursday's meeting.

The announcement, which came as a surprise, was presented in closed session to the board. The board formally accepted Hughes' resignation after returning to open session.

"As far as I know, no one had prior knowledge of this decision," said hospital administrator Stuart Poston. "He didn't offer any explanations."

Hughes submitted a letter of resignation to board chairman Mayor Bill Cherry which outlined his decision.

According to the letter, "I hereby resign as a board member... I would ask that the stipend for this meeting, as have all the stipends that I have received since being a board member at this institution, be donated to the Murray City School Foundation

Area tobacco farmers ban together on issues 175 farmers attend annual meeting

By AMY WILSON
Staff Writer

Emphasizing the need for continued support, Bob Maples told more than 175 area tobacco farmers Thursday night that the fight against federal excise taxes hasn't ended.

"We in the tobacco industry are at a crossroads that may determine the future route," said Maples, a lobbyist for the Smokeless Tobacco Council, Inc. in Washington. Maples spoke at the annual meeting of the Western Dark Fired Tobacco Growers' Association.

Maples warned the farmers that the 104th Congress will likely feature health care discussions.

"You will be called on again," Maples said. "We will have to reach deep for the commitment because 1995 won't be any easier. The tobacco tax will again be discussed for funding health care."

"In many states, cities and counties, the issue of tobacco will heat up," Maples said. "We need you to help defeat these issues as they come up. We have to be ready to act and remain focused on out-thinking our opponent."

On a more positive note, Maples said he is "cautiously optimistic" about the results of the recent election.

"I think the Republicans will try to be more fair," Maples said. "The biggest problem we have had is telling our stories. I think we will get some better hearings."

In addition, Maples said he thinks the Republicans will treat the idea of a tobacco excise tax as a new tax, which Republicans don't favor.

In spite of a potentially positive reception in Congress, Maples warned the farmers of a new movement called neo-Prohibition.

"This group believes that if someone enjoys something, it must be bad so they either try to get rid of it or tax it to death," Maples said. "These voices get louder and more radical when talking about tobacco."

The group has already begun to make an impact on the tobacco industry. In fact, Maples said the group wants to put warning labels on smokeless tobacco advertisements that appear on race cars.

"This past year has been really something," he said. "We got involved in the federal excise tax and many of you got involved directly and made a difference. Through letters, petitions and marches, you helped us educate our representatives and senators."

Maples said the turning point in the war against what he calls "a punitive tax" came July 14-15 when a group of Kentucky and

Transition: Local bank changes with times

Staff Report

The Bank of Murray is getting a new name — Peoples First National Bank of Calloway County.

"We hope you'll like the new name and the new approach to banking," Peoples First National Bank of Calloway County president Chuck Foster told a large group including local officials during Friday's unveiling of the bank's new sign.

Peoples First officials announced today that there will be a new presence in banking throughout the Purchase area. Five of west Kentucky's community banks will begin operating as "Peoples First National Bank" with 17 banking offices located in McCracken, Calloway, Livingston, Ballard and Marshall counties.

The five banks are affiliated with Peoples First Corporation, the region's largest bank holding company with total assets of $1.2 billion. Peoples First Corporation is among the largest financial institutions in Kentucky.

Foster said Friday morning that the bank has always been a strong community institution.

"We intend to continue that," he said. "We'll have the same people that have always been here."

In fact, Foster said the bank has grown from 90 to 115 employees in 2½ years.

"We plan to introduce new products and services," he said. Board chairman Joe Dick said he is looking forward to the enhancement of the bank's services.

"It's innovative and it's new," he said.

Aubrey W. Lippert, chairman of the board and president of Peoples First Corporation, also announced that the bank will contribute $250,000 to Murray State University over the next five

McConnell predicts cuts to farm programs

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — U.S. Sen. Mitch McConnell said that significant spending cuts in farm programs could occur after Republicans take control of Congress, but he offered few specifics in a speech to farm leaders.

"I don't think it's reasonable to assume that agriculture's going to be off limits to further reductions in spending," McConnell, R-Ky., told the Kentucky Agricultural Summit on Thursday. "It isn't."

Noting that the Republican agenda includes calls for a balanced-budget amendment to the U.S. Constitution, McConnell said, "If you think that

250 local families turn to Need Line

By JO BURKEEN
Staff Writer

About 250 families have been registered for the Christmas baskets to be distributed by Murray-Calloway County Need Line in December, according to Kathie Gentry, executive director.

Gentry said "this is one way to assist the elderly and homebound as well as families in the area."

The baskets consist of turkeys and baking hens, cake mixes, frosting, sweet potatoes, instant potatoes, stuffing, canned fruit, cranberry sauce, chicken broth or chicken or turkey gravy, rolls, green beans, corn and green peas. These items are coordinated to fill the baskets according to the size of the family.

These baskets will be distributed on Wednesday and Thursday, Dec. 21 and 22, during regular office hours out of the Need Line office on the bottom floor of Weaks Community Center.

The Salvation Army is assisting with the purchase of the turkeys, but more help is needed for these expensive items, Gentry said. Rolls are given by an anonymous donor. As of this time, the Need Line pantry has a supply of green beans, corn and green peas.

Many of the churches in the area have volunteered to donate various items for the baskets. Recently large donations of canned food have been made at the office.

Donations should be brought to the Need Line office no later than Monday, Dec. 12, to be used in preparation for the Christmas food baskets. For information concerning donations or to volunteer for food or service, call the Need Line office at 753-6333.

ing, Hughes said the decision was a difficult one to make.
"I wanted to devote more time to my family and my patients, both of which are very important to me," he said. "I still plan to be active in medical matters by continuing to serve on the medical executive committee as chairman of the department of medicine at the hospital."

"I believe that I can better serve the needs of the citizens of this area, both through this role and as a practicing physician, than I can as a hospital board member," he said.

Hughes thanked the various people who provided him with the opportunity to serve on the board.

"We have a fine hospital with many good loyal and dedicated employees working together with the medical staff and many people within the community to make it even better in the future," he said.

Cherry said that Hughes' resignation will leave a void on the board.

"Dr. Hughes has been a very outstanding doctor in the community," Cherry said. "Fifty percent of the hospital admissions come from his office, which demonstrates his ability as a medical provider."

"He is one of the most knowledgeable people about managed care and how hospitals should be operated," Cherry said. "We may not have always seen eye-to-eye, but I have always respected his opinion. He told us that he will continue to help us in the future."

Since Hughes was appointed by the Calloway County Fiscal Court, the court will have to select another representative from a list provided by the hospital's nominating committee.

No timeline has yet been established for beginning that process. Hughes' term will expire in April 1995.

"I was surprised by his decision because he fought pretty hard to get on the board," said board member Dr. Thomas I. Miller in a Ledger interview. "He gives us a lot of good input and we need physician input on the managed care issue. I really hate to lose him because he's a really sharp guy who is up-to-date on managed care, which is a quality that we need."

In other business, the board:

- Approved a resolution of appreciation for former board member Melvin Henley, who also served as board chairman.
- Approved a resolution of appreciation for Becky Miller, director of purchasing, who is retiring after 26 years of service at the hospital.
- Heard a construction report from Poston.

"We have made progress and we are currently remodeling the old laboratory area," he said. "The new medical office parking lot has opened 133 spaces. We will most likely finish the building project in February."

Agreed to meet with Sun-Health Alliance consultants in January for a report on managed care.

"Two consultants were here and interviewed six local employers about managed care," Poston said. "They will make a report to the board and the medical staff."

Approved active privileges for Dr. William Holman and courtesy consulting privileges for Dr. Kimber A. Ward and Dr. Eric Scowden.

Tobacco farmers...

Tennessee growers traveled to Washington.

"Our message was clearly delivered and when Sen. George Mitchell asked other senators about their concerns at the early morning July 15 meeting, Sen. Wendell Ford stood up and he said he was opposed to the tax on smokeless tobacco. Sen. Harlan Matthews also stood up and stated his opposition," Maples said. "They heard your concerns and that effort was truly a turning point."

As farmers begin getting their crop ready to be sold, they need to be careful with the moisture content, said Dr. Bill Maksymowicz, tobacco specialist from the University of Kentucky Experiment Station in Princeton.

"One or two percentage points can make a difference when it comes to moisture," he said. "Don't get carried away with the water. You are only going to lose money if you get too carried away with the water hose."

He also cautioned farmers against bringing tobacco to the market that is muddy.

"We want clean tobacco and we need to keep the dirt out," he said. "If you have muddy tobacco, go ahead and twist those muddy tails off. Keep the dirt out and watch the water and we will have a good season."

As in any industry, changes are taking place as more farmers begin experimenting with various methods.

"We are up 50 percent statewide in container transplants whether it is through transporting or with the greenhouse method," Maksymowicz said. "We're learning more about the greenhouse system and making some headway."

He also mentioned that new sucker control materials will be coming out, as well as a chemical to fight morning glory.

Farmers were also urged to try the new cable hoist tobacco barns.

"We are having good luck with them," he said. "If you are serious about building a barn and staying in the business, you need to consider a cable hoist barn."

Association President Jim Kelly spoke to the group about making sure the tobacco is in good shape.

"I feel like the farmers and growers in the western district have the respect of the trade," he said. "I think we have earned that respect. I encourage you to do the best you can with your crop."

Kelly discussed a few of the issues facing the tobacco industry, ranging from a labor shortage to barn fires.

"Labor is always a problem, but the migrant workers have been very helpful," he said. "The price of labor continues to go up, but we think the migrant workers will continue to come in."

Kelly said there is also a shortage of the wood and sawdust necessary to complete the dark-fired process.

"It seems as if it is getting harder to find and we have to go farther to get what we need," he said. "But I do feel like we have a good crop. We are hoping to see a good market and we must strive for quality."

Thursday's meeting marked the largest crowd Kelly said he has seen at one of the annual meetings.

Will Ed Clark, general manager, informed the group of a petition he was asked to circulate against the Food and Drug Administration's attempt to regulate tobacco products.

"I assure you that you want to sign this if you want to continue growing tobacco," he said.

He passed several copies of the petition around the room during the meeting for the growers to sign.

In his report, Clark urged the farmers to be careful when preparing the tobacco for the market.

"I don't think there will be a problem with tobacco going to the pool," he said. "But if you don't class it well, it will hurt you."

Clark also cautioned the farmers about the lighting in the warehouses.

"The tobacco companies have written the warehouses and said they are not happy with the lighting in some areas," he said. "Your warehousemen will try to do what it takes to make the trade and the growers happy. You will have to work with the warehousemen."

"You may have to stop being so persistent in putting it in the dark areas," he said. "I'm afraid some of you may be docked this year if they perceive you are hiding something. Do what is right and I think we will have a great market."

won't change business as usual, I've got a bridge in Brooklyn I want to sell you."

McConnell said discussions about reduced spending will be especially intense when Congress debates the 1995 farm bill. He said he doesn't expect dramatic changes in the structure of the farm bill but thinks spending reductions are a strong possibility.

After his speech, McConnell said he wouldn't be surprised to see reductions in federal farm subsidies for some commodities.

On another matter, McConnell said he probably will support ratification of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade. He said he wants to make sure it will not allow the World Trade Organization to override U.S. sovereignty.

McConnell said he would resist any effort to defeat the agreement for political reasons.

"I think the stakes are too big to play games with it," he said.

together as Peoples First National Bank will retain their current presidents, staff and local boards of directors, as well as full authority for all loan decisions.

As part of the name change, bank products and services have been standardized.

With 17 banking offices and a network of 10 24-hour teller machines, Peoples First customers can bank where they live or where they work.

In addition to the convenience, customers can choose from the most complete lineup of financial products in the area and benefit from the safety of the region's largest bank.

"When you combine these benefits with traditional hometown service in each of our communities, it is clear that Peoples First is a bank committed to the individual customer's needs," Libbert said.

Foster said a customer who has an account at Peoples First in Calloway County has an account at every Peoples First location.

"We've found that a lot of people may live in Murray, work in Calvert City and do a lot of shopping in Paducah."

"Now they have convenient access to all our banks," he said.

In addition, Foster said the merger will help the regional bank compete with national banks who may come into the area in 1997 when interstate banking laws change.

"With a strong regional bank, I think we'll be more competitive and offer more products," Foster said.

Other name changes include:

- Peoples First National Bank & Trust Company of Paducah will be called Peoples First National Bank of McCracken County.
- Salem Bank of Salem and Smithland will become Peoples First National Bank of Livingston County.
- First National Bank of LaCenter will be called Peoples First National Bank of Ballard County.
- First Liberty Bank of Calvert City and Benton will change to Peoples First National Bank of Marshall County.

Scientists isolate 80 million-year-old gene

WASHINGTON (AP) — Brigham Young University researchers say they have isolated a bit of DNA from the bony remains of a dinosaur that died in a Utah peat bog 80 million years ago.

Experts hailed the discovery as the oldest gene fragment ever recovered from a vertebrate, but there was skepticism about whether it actually came from a dinosaur.

Scott R. Woodward, lead author of a study published today in the journal Science, said the bit of genetic material was extracted from bones found in an 1,800-foot-deep coal mine. Since the gene matches no living mammal, bird or reptile, and since the bones came from a very ancient rock formation, he said the DNA could come from only one source.

"I believe we are probably dealing with a dinosaur," Woodward said, basing his conclusion on what he called "good circumstantial evidence."

"The bone was found in a rock formation that is dated to 80 million years ago," he said. "There are a lot of traces of dinosaurs in the area from that period. The bones are quite large and the only large animals that we know about from then are dinosaurs."

"This is pretty important because it shows you can obtain DNA from very, very old bone fragments," said Rob DeSalle of the American Museum of Natural History in New York. "This is the oldest DNA from a vertebrate and that's significant."

Woodward said that the DNA, or deoxyribonucleic acid, is only a small fragment of one gene. DNA is the chemical molecule that holds the genetic code for a species.

If the DNA is from a dinosaur, Woodward said, he has no plans to follow the plot of "Jurassic Park," the popular novel and movie in which living animals are cloned from ancient genes.

"That will not happen in my lifetime," said Woodward. And certainly not from the small DNA fragment that he has recovered.

Most dinosaur studies are based on bones that have been mineralized into hard stone, but Woodward said his find "is the actual bone that once supported a dinosaur."

Woodward said the dinosaur apparently died in a bog on the shores of an ancient inland sea and then was quickly covered and preserved by peat.

The nine sequences of DNA do not match any of the gene patterns of known animals and for this reason DeSalle and others are skeptical about Woodward's conclusions.

"The technical aspects of the work are excellent, but the inference of the DNA being dinosaur is flawed," said DeSalle. "What they have is a very old piece of DNA, and they don't know what it is."

The bones could have come from crocodiles or turtles that were living during that era, said DeSalle.

"It's a very surprising finding," Svante Paabo, a molecular evolutionist at the University of Munich, told Science. But he said it will not be accepted until other laboratories replicate the discovery.

Woodward said specimens are being prepared for tests in other labs. He also hopes to find more bones.

Hurricane Gordon: Storm moves toward North Carolina coast

OCRACOKE, N.C. (AP) — Hurricane Gordon, a deadly and erratic storm that confounded forecasters by gaining strength and turning back toward shore, continued zigzagging toward the North Carolina coast today.

Hurricane warnings were posted from the Virginia state line to Bogue Inlet, about 130 miles south, as Gordon inched northwest with winds of up to 75 mph.

Forecasters expected the storm's center to remain at sea and eventually turn away from the shore. At midnight the center was about 200 miles east of Wilmington and moving about 5 mph.

"We still think it will miss the coast," said Jerry Jarrell, deputy director of the National Hurricane Center in Coral Gables, Fla. "But it's too close to call."

Some residents who had heard earlier that Gordon was heading out to sea were shocked by its approach.

"It's a total surprise," said Rob Florez. "Because this morning it wasn't here, and now it's here."

The storm washed out the beach road in Kitty Hawk and submerged a state road in Pea Island under 18 inches of water. More flooding was expected today along the Outer Banks, a chain of barrier islands off the coast.

Warnings were issued to coastal residents threatened by beach erosion.

The slow-moving storm developed off Nicaragua on Nov. 8 and ran a zigzag course over eastern Cuba and neighboring Haiti, where officials put the death toll at 531.

The storm crossed the Florida Keys, churned into the Gulf of Mexico, then turned back toward Florida and cut across the middle of the state.

When it hit Florida as just a tropical storm, Gordon was blamed for six deaths and devastated crops in an area that supplies more than half the nation's winter vegetables. State officials estimated crop losses at $200 million and predicted an increase in produce prices nationwide.

The storm grew stronger offshore Thursday, and by morning was spinning winds of 75 mph, just above the 74 mph threshold that made it the third hurricane of the Atlantic storm season.

Spring: touted a kingmaker, pacesetter for peace talks

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — He's already forced the shocking collapse of one government over the case of a child-molesting Catholic priest. Now Dick Spring, Ireland's icy Labor Party leader and a dominant voice in Northern Ireland peace efforts, has crowned himself kingmaker in the heated haggling to form a new one.

Spring gave Prime Minister Albert Reynolds the boot this week when he stepped down as deputy prime minister, taking the crucial support of his party's lawmakers with him. Reynolds resigned Thursday.

Reynolds' party, Fianna Fail, is expected to pick a new leader Saturday in a private conference. The leading candidate is Finance Minister Bertie Ahern, a close associate of Reynolds. But the justice minister, Maire Geoghegan-Quinn, who has played a major role in negotiations on Northern Ireland, emerged today as a strong contender.

Reynolds insisted on appointing his conservative Catholic attorney general, Harry Whelehan, to a senior judicial post. Labor blamed Whelehan for failing to extradite a priest convicted in Northern Ireland of molesting children, and stormed out of the Cabinet.

Within the week, Ireland's third-largest party had decapitated the largest in an unabashed power play.

Now Spring must calculate which deal will keep him the No. 2 figure in government. As both foreign minister and deputy prime minister, he led the negotiations with Britain about the future of British-ruled Northern Ireland. Britain sees Spring as essential for continuity in inching the North's polarized parties toward round-table talks.

A Reynolds-less Fianna Fail might make a better workmate for Labor the second time round, but many leading Labor members remain suspicious. Labor may opt to form a new administration with the main opposition party, Fine Gael, led by John Bruton.

"Mustering support comes down to one simple issue: Will the Labor Party support the Fine Gael nominee or the Fianna Fail nominee?" said Michael Noonan, a Fine Gael lawmaker.

Spring's first taste of coalition government came in 1982-87 with Fine Gael, and that too collapsed in bad blood. Spring and Bruton both suffer from short fuses and regularly trade barbs with each other on the parliament floor.

A third option would be to force another election before Christmas in hopes of boosting Labor's hand. Reynolds cautioned against that path.

A national election "would only have a destabilizing effect" on the Irish republic and Northern Ireland, he said in an interview today in the Irish Independent. "I think the politicians will be sensible."

Spring's party has nosedived in the polls since the heady days of 1992. Many voters see Labor as hypocritical for promising radical changes in Irish society while campaigning against the Fianna Fail establishment, then teaming up with the party afterward.

Spring said he isn't afraid of an election, but senses the dangers in shunning Fianna Fail. Hours after watching Reynolds' coup de grace, he praised the "dignity" of his former partner's resignation speech and suggested Labor-Fianna Fail had been a good combination after all.

"We are natural partners and our program of government remains in place," he said. "But coalition partners have to work together with all the cards on the table. One can't dictate terms to the other."

Ireland's parliament meets Tuesday but the horse-trading may not be resolved by then. It took Reynolds and Spring two months to form a coalition after the inconclusive national election in November 1992.

Governors fear Republicans will balance budget on states' backs

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W.Va. (AP) — At the school for new governors, they've got a lesson for the Republican Congress: Don't try to balance the budget on the backs of state taxpayers. Republican governors are as concerned as Democrats about that risk, the chairman of the National Governors Association said Wednesday amid the seminars for governors-elect. Ten of the new chief executives were on hand, with two-dozen veterans serving as teachers.

Gov. Howard Dean of Vermont said the governors want the incoming GOP congressional leadership to hear their case soon, since a balanced budget amendment to the Constitution is the top priority of the new Republican congressional leadership.

Democrat Dean was echoed by Gov. Mike Leavitt of Utah, spokesman for the Republicans who dominate the states and the attendance list. Leavitt said in an interview that a constitutional bar to deficit spending will create "an enormous incentive for shifting the burden" down the line, to states and local governments.

He advocates a constitutional barrier to that too, saying that if it is done by statute, when the financial pressures build, "they'll change the law, they'll find a way around it."

That's the dilemma, especially for Republicans, who long have championed the balanced budget amendment. The governors association endorsed the amendment earlier, but with a hedge that made that a token. They're for it, but only when the federal budget is in balance anyhow.

Rep. Newt Gingrich, the incoming speaker of the House, has made action on the balanced budget amendment first on his list for January action. It has passed one house or the other before but always failed for lack of the required two-thirds majority. With Republicans in full control, that margin may be in reach in 1995. Approval would require ratification by three-fourths of the states; presidents do not have veto power over constitutional amendments.

"The way the balanced budget amendment is currently written, I think it was the consensus here, among Democrats and Republicans, that there's no safeguards for the states whatsoever, and it simply passes the cost of all these programs over to the states and the state taxpayers," Dean said.

The NGA executive committee decided to form a working group to meet with congressional leaders on the issue. Dean said Republican governors said Gingrich was willing to listen. The GOP governors will be seeing him next week when their own association meets in Williamsburg, Va.

"So we believe that we're going to be listened to," Dean said. Gov. William F. Weld of Massachusetts, who made a landslide re-election run this time and soared onto presidential prospect lists, said he is "wildly in favor" of the balanced budget amendment, and is willing to accept the state burdens that might result. He said those can be repaired with specific legislation when it's needed and that oversized government needs a jolt.

"The shoe is going to pinch somewhere," Weld said. "Those of us who believe that government has just gotten too big want that shoe to pinch. We don't want to have the same size shoe."

But there also were Republican caveats. Gov. Brereton C. Jones of Kentucky told his colleagues that done right, a balanced budget amendment could have a really positive impact, but done wrong, it would be a disaster.

The working sessions, at the luxurious Greenbrier resort hotel, dealt with topics ranging from assembling a staff of communications to the role of spouses. Those closed seminars run through Saturday.

Weld, one of the teachers, said it's all a matter of sharing experience with the newcomers.

"They're all war stories," he said.

EDITORIAL ROUNDUP

Nov. 4

The Press-Enterprise, Riverside County, Calif., on genetically altered foods:

The Food and Drug Administration's approval of a genetically altered tomato — which employed a fish gene to slow the ripening process — may have gone over well with a lot of farmers, but it has been greeted with a sense of unease by consumers. Had the FDA really thought through the ramifications of genetically altered foods?

And now the FDA has given approval to seven more genetically altered foods, the sense of unease has spread to the scientific community, including some of the government's own researchers. One of the products recently approved by the FDA is a chemically altered potato that exudes its own pesticide. How comfortable can you be cooking a potato that also sprays for pests?

The concern is justified. The FDA seems to be forging ahead into this brave new world a little too hastily. Nobody will suffer if that toxic tuber goes back on the shelf a bit longer while the FDA spends more time exploring the long-term implications of putting genetically altered foods on our dinner tables.

A key to the past

WILLFUL THOUGHTS

Amy Helm Wilson
Ledger & Times Staff Writer

As time goes by, it becomes more difficult to remember events of the past. One of our shortcomings as humans is the fact that we don't have perfect recall that would allow us to capture each minute, each second for instantaneous replay upon demand.

Every time an older resident dies, a part of history disappears, trapped within that person's mind. Yet those memories don't have to be forever chained to silence.

In fact, more and more people are seeking information about the past in order to piece together the events of the present. With today's health problems, it is essential to know more about genealogy.

Learning about the past has a strange way of providing keys to the present and the future. For example, the residents of Kirksey now have a permanent link with the past thanks to efforts leading to the placement of a historical marker at the site of Calloway County Normal School.

Creating a link between the past and the present was one of the motivations behind Lynda Coleman's idea to publish a book full of "Recollections" written by her senior honors English classes at Calloway County High School. This year will mark the eighth edition of the book and it is packed full of stories about people, places and issues in Calloway County.

Earlier editions of "Recollections" have featured articles on a variety of topics such as Dew Drop Rowlett, Auburn Wells, Rainey T. Wells, John Mack Carter and Mason Memorial Hospital.

The latest edition, which hasn't yet rolled off the press, contains some very interesting facts about local residents, especially Mayor Bill Cherry and Howard Brandon.

Anyone wanting to see a 1946 photo of Cherry and his wife Gean should take a look at the 1995 edition of "Recollections." The book also features an amusing story told by Brandon that involves a 1940 Ford.

Coleman said the books, which sell for $13, should be available before Christmas.

These limited edition books have traveled across the United States as gifts for relatives and friends who have connections with Murray and Calloway County.

As Coleman pointed out, since they are limited editions, once the books are sold, no more will be available. In fact, Coleman said no more copies of the first three books are available for sale.

A truly unique aspect of these books is that they are written by high school students, who are responsible for collecting all the information. Sometimes that means endless phone calls and interviews or even long hours spent poring over old records.

Yet with each fact that is collected by the students, awareness of the past increases. Their efforts help to emphasize the necessity in recording historical events. After all, history is only created after someone records it to share with others.

There is a strong fascination with the past, especially when you consider that Calloway County's past is dotted with its share of saloons, hangings and folk remedies.

Mix all those elements in with the establishment of a university, a buggy factory and an active railroad — and you end up with some pretty interesting facts.

I don't think I will ever forget last week's dedication ceremony for the Calloway Normal School. When the crowd was asked how many of them had relatives who had attended the school, the show of hands was astonishing.

At that moment, I realized how very proud a community can be because of a segment of time in its history. It also made me want to become more in touch with the past.

As it is often said: the answer to the future typically lies in the events of the past.

Political ads: a curable cancer

ROYKO SAYS

Mike Royko
Syndicated columnist

There used to be liquor commercials on TV, not only for beer or wine, but genuine 86-proof, skull-popper hooch. Now, you don't see them.

There used to be cigarette commercials on TV with macho guys and sexy women filling the air with smoke. They're gone, too.

Commercials for booze and smokes were banned from TV by Congress because we don't want children and young people getting the idea that being sloshed or sucking in smoke is acceptable behavior.

At the time the decisions to outlaw such commercials were made, there was a lot of wailing about how they infringed on free speech, private enterprise and freedom of choice.

They didn't. Any American adult who chooses to, can still drink or smoke himself into an early grave.

But it can be argued that the bans probably prevented many impressionable kids from thinking there is something glamorous about hitting the sauce or lighting up.

So maybe it is time to seriously consider banning a product that is clearly dangerous to our mental health.

I'm talking about political advertising on TV.

By now, everyone agrees that we just finished watching some of the lowest, dirtiest, most deceitful political campaigns in memory.

From local offices up to races for the U.S. Senate and governor, we were swamped with smears, trick photography, flat-out lies and con-games.

That's one of the reasons why the turnout was so low. People turned away in disgust.

And there is no reason to believe that campaigning will get any better, because the professional liars who hire out to run these campaigns know that lies and deceit are easier to sell than truth. They aren't going to walk away from a good thing.

It's TV advertising that allows a rich mope such as Michael Huffington, a man with few credentials or ideas, to be pushed by a scheming and ambitious wife into spending $27 million of his family fortune to try to buy a seat in the U.S. Senate.

With the reach of TV and that much of daddy's money to play with, a Michael Huffington might have crushed an Abe Lincoln or a Thomas Jefferson.

That's all it takes to be a serious candidate today: a big wad and the phone number of a professional political hired gun.

Those who aren't born with the money that Huffington was, can take another approach: selling their souls and future votes to special interests. They become something like junkies. But instead of thinking day and night about where their next dope hits will come from, they're obsessed with raising money for their next TV campaigns.

But try to imagine political campaigns without unlimited TV advertising, campaigns in which each candidate is allowed only a limited and an equal amount of air time.

Most of the roving campaign liars would be out of work. It's one thing to create a 15-second commercial in which the opponent's face melts and reappears as Satan. But it's another to write a lengthy speech for the candidate to deliver before an audience of voters who just yell: "Hey, cut the bull, pal, and tell us what you are going to do."

There's a political cliché that tells us: "Television is the precinct captain."

While there's truth in that, it's also an insult to the dying breed-of-flesh-and-blood campaign workers who rang doorbells, handed out literature and talked to voters. They might have tried to sway you, promising small favors or calling upon your friendship or shared background. But if they pushed too hard or told whoppers, you could challenge them, talk back or slam the door in their faces. But what can you say to the liar who enters your living room by way of your TV set?

Without TV commercials, a candidate would have to find ways to generate loyalty among grass-roots people, the volunteers who used to be the heart of a campaign. That means having ideas that are more than some spin doctor's slick sound-bite creation.

Instead of relying on morphing, media buys and malevolence, a candidate would have to actually hoof into Elks Clubs, old people's homes and community centers to make real speeches, hold real debates and prove that he or she has something to offer. Instead of hiding behind his pollster and marketing whiz, a candidate would have to get back to the factory gates, the subway platforms and anywhere else a pamphlet could be handed out, a hand squeezed or a question answered.

It would rejuvenate political organizations at the grass roots, and that would carry over into stronger national parties. It would no longer be every rich man for himself and to heck with paying dues and party values. A person might have to prove that he could run for highway commissioner before he aims at the U.S. Senate.

Most politicians say they favor campaign reform. Some of them even mean it.

Good, then there is no reason they should want to preserve the means to tell lies that would make a used car dealer blush.

Racers still aiming for winning season

The Murray State Racers get a final shot to complete their first winning season since 1989 when they visit Macomb, Ill. for a 1 p.m. kickoff with Western Illinois.

The Racers, 5-5 overall, finished the year 4-4 in the Ohio Valley Conference after a 24-21 loss to Tennessee State last week at Stewart Stadium. Murray State held a 21-10 lead early in the fourth quarter, after Wayne McGowan scored his second touchdown of the day, but the Racers couldn't contain Tennessee State's high-powered passing game as two fourth-quarter touchdown passes from TSU's Robey Williams to Lawrence Segree gave the Tigers the win.

Murray State finished the year at 1-4 in Stewart Stadium, but the Racers, 4-1 on the road so far in 1994, could tie the single-season school record for road wins in a season with their fifth victory on the road this season.

One bright spot in last week's loss was the continued development of sophomore tailback Tim Scarborough. The Little Rock, Ark. native carried for 83 yards last week.

Racer coach Houston Nutt is looking for a little better performance from the MSU passing attack, which could only muster 94 yards in last week's loss.

Murray State hasn't completed a winning season since 1989, when the Racers finished 6-4-1.

Western Illinois is 7-3 overall and finished second in the Gateway Conference this season. The Leathernecks are still hoping for a berth in the Division I-AA playoffs.

They are led by quarterback Rob St. Sauver, who threw five touchdown passes in last week's 49-7 win over the University of Buffalo. Four of those TD passes were to junior wide receiver Gunnard Twyner, who set a Gateway Conference record with the performance.

On the year, St. Sauver has thrown for over 2,000 yards, while tailback Kendall McDonald has five 100-yard games on the season.

The two teams have met just once before, with MSU scoring a 7-6 win in 1962.

MSU is 6-3 on this date, including a 3-0 record on the road.

Murray State's most recent action on Nov. 19 came in 1988, when Murray State posted a 42-0 win over Austin Peay.

Perhaps the biggest win in Murray State history on this date came in 1948, in the first year of Ohio Valley Conference play. A 9-7 win over Evansville enabled the Racers to win the OVC title and earn a berth in the Tangerine Bowl.

The Racers have never played Western Illinois on this date.

Racers seek 6-5 mark in 1994 finale at WIU

By STEVE PARKER
Sports Editor

It's been a tale of two football teams for the Racers in 1994 — one that shows up at home and the other that hits the road.

Murray State, which takes on the Western Illinois Leathernecks Saturday, has an edge as they head into the final game of the season. They're not playing at home.

"Right now, honestly, I feel better about getting on the bus," Racer coach Houston Nutt said of the upcoming game.

Murray State (5-5) isn't just making the usual two-hour road trip which is common in the Ohio Valley Conference, they're loading up for a 7-hour bus tour of the midwest when they head to Macomb, Ill., today.

"From what I've heard, it's a pretty long way up there," said sophomore fullback David McCann. "I wish we left Thursday."

"I'm thinking about staying up all (Thursday) night and sleeping on the bus," said junior quarterback Benji Bona. "I can't play spades for seven hours."

McCann, Bona and the rest of the underclassmen don't relish the long drive, but they do look forward to stepping onto the field for the final time in '94, and trying to send the 10

"That's the way it's been all year," said McCann. "We gave it all for the seniors last year. We just take it on down the line every year and play our hearts out for the seniors. That's the way it should be."

Murray State's 10 seniors had a chance to wrap up a winning season last week in MSU's Roy Stewart Stadium, but suffered a disappointing 24-21 loss to Tennessee State after building a 21-10 lead in the third quarter.

"It's going to be nice getting a chance to prove ourselves," said Jimmy Stratton, a senior defensive end. "Six and five is a pretty good year when you consider all the adversity."

Stratton has excelled under the adversity, stepping in at right defensive end when all-OVC performer Anthony Hutch was lost for the season in the first game.

Stratton, a fifth-year senior, has seen adversity. He was around when the program was posting 2-9 seasons.

"It wasn't a quick five years, but it's had its times," he said after his final practice on Thursday. "The last two years went by quick

UK seeks respect versus bowl-bound Vols

By TOM SHARP
AP Sports Writer

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Tennessee will be trying to earn the respect of the Gator Bowl selection committee. Kentucky will be trying to earn the respect of somebody, anybody.

Perhaps most important, themselves.

The two old rivals — this is the 90th meeting in the series, the oldest for both schools — come to Saturday's game in Neyland Stadium from decidedly different directions. Game time is 12:40 p.m. EST. It will be televised on the Jefferson-Pilot network.

Tennessee is 5-4 with games left against Kentucky and Vanderbilt. The Vols hope a 7-4 finish (which would give them six victories in their last seven games) would be enough to beat out Mississippi State for the Gator Bowl bid.

Mississippi State is 7-3 with a game left against Mississippi. The Bulldogs beat Tennessee 24-21 on Sept. 24 in Starkville.

Kentucky is 1-9 and about to finish the worst season in Lexington since 1982, when Jerry Claiborne's first team went 0-10-1.

It has been a rough ride for Bill Curry in his fifth season. The Wildcats won their first game and have not won since. Some of the defeats have been close, like to Georgia, and others have been embarrassing — 66 points to Florida, 30 points to Indiana, and last week to Northeast Louisiana, a school in its first year of Division I-A football.

With only one game left, Curry's goals for his players have broadened to include more than the outcome of the contest.

"The players' lives are going to be impacted by this," Curry said. "It could be a very negative experience. They could be bitter, feel they're no good, and in this culture today there are factors that would tend to do that to a youngster.

"Or they can come out of it and say, 'I now know how to deal with adversity. Coach taught us that when you're falling and being publicly humiliated, this is the way you grow up and be a man.' That's my job, to teach them what you do when you've been embarrassed, not just to fight back but to understand that everybody goes through things like this. It's just that ours is more public."

Tennessee's coaches, on the other hand, are pushing the Vols to understand that they still have a lot to prove.

"We have no reason to think we can roll our helmets out

Ford returns to Murray

Ex-Cat waits for next move

By MARK YOUNG

Fans of University of Kentucky basketball will always remember him as "The Little General."

Known mainly for his long-range three-point bombs, Travis Ford, a native of Madisonville, helped the Wildcats to an 86-18 record over his three years at the school, including a Final Four berth in 1992-93.

Ford stopped in at Dwain Taylor Chevrolet in Murray Thursday, signing autographs and posing for pictures with local UK fans who will always remember his contributions to the team.

"I was born in this area of the state and both of my parents went to Murray State, so I have some connections with Murray."

Travis Ford

"I was born in this area of the state and both of my parents went to Murray State, so I have some connections with Murray," Ford said. "We hit most of the state in May and June of this year, and we're just taking it day-by-day now. I don't have as many appearances now."

Ford was also selling copies of his book, "Big Blue Dreams," which was released in early June.

"It's about my career, things behind the scenes at UK, and part of it is where I kept a diary last year," he said. "It tells about different aspects of UK, and what you don't get to read in the newspapers."

Ford, who lives in Bowling Green with his wife Kim, tried out with the NBA's Golden State Warriors, and even though he didn't make the team, he was very appreciative of the experience and exposure.

"They didn't have any spots open, but I played in several exhibition games and got some exposure for other teams," he

RACER VOLLEYBALL

Racers have visions of '92

No. 2-seed MSU faces UT-M first

By STEVE PARKER
Sports Editor

When Murray State travels to Murfreesboro, Tenn., this weekend for the Ohio Valley Conference Volleyball Tournament, the Racers will be looking to duplicate the 1992 season.

In that year, the Racers finished second in the regular season behind Austin Peay, but rallied in the tournament to win the OVC championship.

This year, the Racers head to Middle Tennessee State as the No. 2 seed, trailing only Southeast Missouri.

"Southeast Missouri and Murray State are definitely up there, and Eastern (Kentucky), you never know about them," MSU coach Brenda Bowlin said of the favorites. "And, in a tournament you're always waiting for the upset. But, realistically, there are only three teams with a legitimate chance at winning."

Murray State (20-12 overall, 14-2 OVC) meets UT-Martin (11-22) tonight at 6 p.m. in the opening round. The Racers swept the regular season meetings with the Pacers.

Bowlin said her team is ready for the "all or nothing" stakes in Murfreesboro.

"We're mentally prepared for that," said Bowlin. "We don't want to leave anything on the court."

A win over UT-Martin would likely pit the Racers against Morehead State, a team that handed MSU one of its two conference losses.

"In the semifinals I look for Morehead," Bowlin said of the series, which had each team winning at home. "We split on the road in two great matches."

In the finals, a matchup against SEMO is likely for the Racers. Murray State was the only OVC team to beat the Otahkians in the regular season, going to Cape Girardeau, Mo., and claiming a 3-1 win.

Two weeks ago, however, the Racers jumped out to a 2-0 lead on SEMO, only to drop three-straight games in a 3-2 loss. A win would've given the Racers the league title and a No. 1 seed this weekend.

"After that game we were very disappointed in ourselves," said Bowlin. "There was so much on the line. But again it was a reality check, because we had to tune things up before the tournament."

The championship game is set for 2 p.m. on Sunday.

Dallas wins on Tarpley's return

Jones scores 10 in Mavs victory

DALLAS (AP) — Roy Tarpley hadn't played an NBA game in more than four years, but the Dallas Mavericks power forward still looked like he belonged there Thursday night.

Tarpley scored 16 points off the bench, including four consecutive points during a decisive fourth-quarter run, and pulled down nine rebounds to spark the Mavericks to a 96-94 victory over the Sacramento Kings.

"I know people were wondering if Roy Tarpley could still play," said Tarpley, who was banned by the league for violating its anti-drug regulations on Oct. 16, 1991, and hadn't played in an NBA game since Nov. 9, 1990.

"I think I showed tonight that I can still play this game. This was better than I dreamed it could be."

Dallas won it when reserve Lucious Harris hit an 8-foot bank shot with 59 seconds to play to snap a 94-94 tie and send the Mavericks to a 4-2 start, their best since opening the 1990-91 season at 4-1.

Last season, Dallas didn't win its fourth game until Feb. 2, the 44th game of the season.

But the story was Tarpley, activated from the injured list on Wednesday after missing the first five games with bursitis in his left knee. Coach Dick Motta played Tarpley for 25 minutes, longer than was expected for the 7-footer who was on his way to becoming one of the league's top players before collecting his third strike under the league's anti-drug policy.

"I wasn't nervous, but I did get tired," said Tarpley, who was 6-for-10 from the field and hit all four free throws. "The crowd really pumped me up by accepting me back. I appreciated the warmth that they showed. I was cool, calm and collected out there. Yes, I'm back."

Mavericks forward Popeye Jones scored 10 points on the night, hitting 5-of-11 shots from the floor.

MIDDLE SCHOOL BASKETBALL

Calloway sweeps Fulton County

Calloway County Middle School's boys and girls basketball teams improved to 3-0 on the season with a doubleheader sweep at Fulton County Thursday night.

The girls game was no contest as Calloway won by the unbelievable score of 77-7. Kalista Cunningham led the Lady Lakers with 22 points while Sabrina Emerson added 10. Jessica Norsworthy had nine, Becky Greene and Brooke Lencki scored eight each, Tiffany Lassiter totaled six, Jenni Pigg and Whitney Morris both had four and Tiffany White and Bethany O'Rourke added three each.

The boys game was the total opposite of the girls contest, but Calloway still came out on top, 53-51. Austin Wyatt paced the Lakers with 23 points while Nathan Fortner contributed nine; Trent Garland had six; Matt Wyatt, Laramie Carson and Chris Jones all had four; and Payton Patterson scored three.

Calloway's next games will be Nov. 29 at North Marshall Middle School.

said. "They were very satisfied with the way I played. Right now, I'm looking at a couple of options for playing overseas."

Ford's former UK teammate Jamal Mashburn, is having a stellar second season with the Dallas Mavericks. In fact, Mashburn now owns the club's single-game scoring record, which he attained by scoring 50 points against the Chicago Bulls last week.

"Jamal feels a lot better about the situation down there now," Ford said. "He's worked hard, but everything is turning around down there because of the coach (Dick Motta)."

Ford said he still keeps up with the UK program, and has attended several practices this year.

"I think they'll be great this year," he said. "They're very deep and talented, and the inside players have gained weight over the summer."

"I imagine they're ready to play and eager to get started after we lost so early in the NCAA tournament last year," Ford added, alluding to the Cats' 75-63 loss to Marquette in the second round of the tournament.

This year's team, though, as deep and as talented as they may be, suffered a setback in their first exhibition game this season as starting center Andre Riddick went down with a knee injury and will be out for two to three weeks.

Ford knows all about that as last year's starter in the pivot, Rodney Dent, suffered a knee injury against Vanderbilt in January and never returned to the squad.

"I think Andre will be fine," Ford said. "His injury isn't as bad as Rodney's was."

And what will happen after Ford's playing days are over? Will he follow in the steps of his father, Eddie, and coach basketball?

"I don't know about the future yet," he said. "I think I would enjoy it, though. There are a lot of coaches out there."

since the coaching changes. I wish I had two more years under them (Nutt's staff)."

Closing out the 1994 season on a positive note won't be an easy task, whether the Racers are on the road or not.

"They're a very sound, well-coached, very physical football team," Nutt said of the Leathernecks, second place in the Gateway Conference. "Offensively, they have a quarterback that's 6-foot-5, 230 pounds. He's got a very strong arm, who can drop back and throw it."

"They also have a running back, Kendall McDonald, who's pretty close to a 1,000-yard rusher if he's not already. So we've got our work cut out for us. We've got stop the run and the pass."

Western Illinois, which has an outside shot of landing a playoff berth, is averaging 370.4 yards and 28.3 points a game. The Leathernecks have a standout quarterback in Rob St. Sauver, who has completed 154 of 275 passes for 2,041 yards and 17 touchdowns.

WIU is a very opportunistic team, going into the game at plus-11 in turnover margin.

"They get a lot of turnovers," Nutt said. "Everytime you turn on the film they're starting inside the plus-20. They always have good field position so we have to make sure we don't give them any gifts."

Murray State and Western Illinois have one common opponent this season — Eastern Illinois. The Racers opened up the '94 season with a 31-15 win at Eastern Illinois, while the Leathernecks topped EIU 23-13 at home.

Western Illinois is very similar to EIU, trading speed and quickness for bulk and muscle.

"They're pretty slow on film," said McCann. "They may be the slowest team we've played this year."

Nutt said his team is ready to close the season right. Stratton said Nutt can count on a maximum effort from the 10 seniors.

"This is the last time we're going to put on the pads for a lot of us," said Stratton, a native of Bradenton, Fla. "Some are thinking about pro ball, but this is it for a majority of us."

"This has been our lifestyle for 22 years," Stratton went on. "This is it. We've got guys banged up, but that won't be a factor this Saturday."

Webber traded to Bullets

Webber reunited with 'Fab Five' member Howard

By DAVID GINSBURG
AP Sports Writer

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — If Chris Webber and Juwan Howard have as much success together in the NBA as they did at Michigan, then John Nash will never regret trading away what he called the "heart and soul" of the Washington Bullets.

In the span of five hours Thursday, Nash transformed Washington from a rebuilding team into a contender in the Atlantic Division. The Bullets general manager first signed Howard to a multiyear contract, then traded Tom Gugliotta and three first-round picks to Golden State for Webber, last season's NBA rookie of the year.

The two were guaranteed more than $100 million, according to the Washington Post, which reported today that Howard signed an 11-year deal worth $36.6 million, and Webber signed a 12-year agreement worth $66.1 million.

"We've never had anything this big in the 30 years I've owned the team," said owner Abe Pollin.

Nor has any other team ever committed that much money in a single day.

"Any time you have a chance to make a deal like this, you've got to jump on it," Nash said. "This makes us deeper and better in the interior."

The Bullets haven't made the playoffs since 1988 and haven't had a winning season since 1986-87, but things could be different now that Webber and Howard will be playing side-by-side again.

Webber, a 6-foot-10 forward who often played center at Golden State, averaged 17.5 points and 9.1 rebounds and shot 55 percent from the field last season. Howard, 6-9, the fifth player chosen in this year's draft, averaged 15.3 points and 7.5 rebounds during his three-year career at Michigan.

Together, they comprised two-fifths of the "Fab Five" starting lineup at Michigan that advanced to the NCAA championship games in 1992 and 1993.

"Juwan is an exceptional talented player. Unlike Chris, he really has a great deal of technique and relies on his footwork to be a terrific post-up player," Nash said. "Chris, meanwhile, has the raw physical skills that few can match."

If all goes as planned, Howard and Webber will be in uniform Saturday night when the Bullets host the Boston Celtics.

Getting Webber cost the Bullets their first round picks in 1996, 1998 and 2000. More importantly, Nash had to give up Gugliotta.

enough games to know that when you get out there against a Southeastern Conference foe you'd better be ready or you're going to get embarrassed," Cutcliffe said. "Most of our guys have played against Kentucky. I don't think it takes a lot of reminding what Kentucky is going to play like. I can promise you they will play hard and play their best football. It won't be easy. I haven't been in one yet that was easy."

Offensive coordinator David Cutcliffe said it isn't that difficult to get the players ready for Kentucky, despite the Wildcats' unimpressive record.

"Our players have been in

Pressure mounts on GATT

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fearing an embarrassing defeat, Vice President Al Gore and other senior administration officials worked feverishly Wednesday to shore up wavering Republican support for the GATT trade accord.

Their efforts came a day after Jesse Helms, chairman-to-be of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, hinted he would hinder the administration's foreign policy initiatives if President Clinton pressed ahead on the GATT vote, now scheduled for Dec. 1.

Shortly before Gore spoke, Newt Gingrich, the next House speaker and a supporter of the pact to slash world tariffs, said he was "very very concerned" about its prospects in the Senate.

Gore said at a news conference organized by businesses supporting the trade agreement, "The Congress will decide whether the United States will continue to lead the world in global economic issues or not. That's really what it comes down to."

Gore, White House Chief of Staff Leon Panetta and Treasury Secretary Lloyd Bentsen all said the pact, negotiated under the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade, must be approved this year by the lame-duck Democratic Congress.

"It is abundantly clear that a delay of the GATT ... and hurt our country immeasurably," Gore said.

The vice president, flanked by Budget Director Alice Rivlin, White House Economic Adviser Laura Tyson, U.S. Trade Representative Mickey Kantor and senior lawmakers, said delay of even six months would reduce U.S. economic output after 10 years by $70 billion and block creation of 25,000 jobs.

"I don't know why any member of Congress would want that on his or her record," Gore said. Gingrich, R-Ga., sent a letter to Clinton repeating his commitment to work toward "a bipartisan majority overwhelmingly approving" GATT in the House on Nov. 29.

The letter was also signed by the outgoing speaker, Rep. Thomas Foley, D-Wash., the outgoing majority leader, Rep. Dick Gephardt, D-Mo., and the outgoing minority leader, Rep. Bob Michel, R-Ill.

Republican Sen. Bob Dole, expected to be majority leader in the new Senate, has said he is predisposed to support GATT and would prefer to vote this year. But because legislation implementing the agreement cannot be amended, he is seeking administration support for separate legislation early next year.

That bill would strengthen the ability of the United States to withdraw from the accord if U.S. interests were harmed. It also would address a controversial deal that was struck with three communications companies to give them a discount on valuable licenses to develop the next generation of wireless telephone systems.

Kantor, who had accompanied Clinton to Indonesia for a Pacific trade summit, said he planned to meet with Dole. He said the GOP leader's suggestions would be "considered carefully."

Helms, R-N.C., and Sens. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., and Larry E. Craig, R-Idaho, wrote a letter last week urging Dole to seek delay of the accord. They said it would cut tariff revenues by $31 billion over the next 10 years without fully replacing them.

On Tuesday, Helms released his letter telling Clinton that presidential support for a delay would "have an exceedingly positive effect on my making certain that the administration positions on all foreign policy matters ... will be considered fully and fairly."

But Oregon Sen. Bob Packwood, senior Republican on the Finance Committee, discounted the possibility that Helms' position would sway other senators, pointing out that textile firms in North Carolina oppose GATT because it phases out trade protections for the industry over 10 years.

GOP determined not to fall prey to fights

By JOHN KING
AP Political Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mindful of the damage President Clinton suffered in the gays-in-the-military debate, Republican leaders are determined not to wander far from their budget and government reform agenda into fights over abortion and other divisive social issues.

Their caution reflects a desire to solidify the GOP's newfound support among white women, to avoid overreaching the mandate of their midterm gains, and to deny Democrats an early opening to re-energize their despondent base.

Much of this approach stems from the GOP's analysis of Clinton's early efforts to allow homosexuals to serve openly in the military. The effort sent Clinton's support among white men, and across the South, into a tailspin from which the president has yet to recover.

And it invigorated conservative groups, particularly the Christian Coalition and other religious conservative groups, and these organizations were significant players in the Republican midterm sweep.

Now, if Republicans rush forward with a controversial social agenda, "it could excite our forces and help us organize for the next elections," said Ann Lewis, a veteran Democratic strategist and a senior official at Planned Parenthood.

So far, Rep. Newt Gingrich, who will become House speaker in January, has kept his focus mostly on economic and reform issues. Gingrich has offered vague criticisms of liberal housing and education programs but with the exception of school prayer and welfare reform, two popular ideas, has spoken sparingly about social issues.

"We cannot replace the social engineering by the left with a social engineering of the right," Gingrich said Tuesday night.

The House GOP agenda does include social policies certain to prove controversial. But in picking these battles, Gingrich and his allies were careful to put reform items first and then choose social issues that enjoy substantial if not overwhelming support in public opinion polls — though vehemently opposed by liberals.

Gingrich, for example, wants the House to vote by early July on a constitutional amendment allowing organized school prayer. Liberal groups oppose the amendment but President Clinton said Tuesday he is open to the idea, suggesting there will be no unified Democratic opposition.

Another provision in the House GOP's 100-day blueprint that is opposed by some liberal groups would allow parents to exclude schoolchildren from federal surveys they find objectionable because of questions about sexual behavior.

As for abortion, Republicans expect some conservatives to push for restoration of the "gag rule" prohibiting clinics that receive federal funding from advising pregnant women about abortion.

But Gingrich's leadership team, according to aides, has made it clear in meetings that it does not favor such moves, at least in the short term.

"It's a sensitive subject in our caucus," said one leadership aide, speaking on condition of anonymity. "We won't know for sure until everyone is back in Washington but we think people understand the need to proceed carefully here."

There likely will be a debate on a miniature version of the gag rule when welfare reform comes up. The leading House GOP measure prohibits federal welfare block-grant money from being used for abortion counseling. But moderate Republicans who support abortion rights have suggested they will try to delete that prohibition, and their effort has not been discouraged by Gingrich.

Still, Democrats believe Gingrich ultimately will find big social-policy fights irresistible, or be unable to prevent more socially conservative members from provoking them. And conservative groups that backed Republican candidates may demand actions if the result could hurt the GOP with moderate constituencies.

But Republicans say there are ways to keep social conservatives happy, short of delving into the tough social issues.

For example, the $500-per-child tax credit included in the House GOP's "Contract with America" is a major goal of Pat Robertson's Christian Coalition. At the same time, GOP leaders view it as a way to solidify their support among working women.

In this year's midterms, Democrats still enjoyed majority support from women voters overall in House races, but the percentage supporting Republicans rose from 40 percent in 1990 to 46 percent this year.

And only lopsided support from black women kept Democrats from losing even more ground. In the 1990 midterms, only 42 percent of white women voted for Republican House candidates; this year that jumped to 53 percent, according to Voter News Service exit polling.

This is a critical constituency in competitive suburban districts, and sided with the GOP this time "because while most are pro-choice, abortion is way down on their list of concerns," said Michigan pollster Ed Sarpolus. "The economy and taxes and their children's schools are far more important."

Still, a major abortion fight could erode this newfound GOP support. So could any effort to repeal the Brady handgun control law and the new assault-weapons ban. Both are very popular among women.

Again, the GOP leadership appears in no mood to pick those fights.

Mario Cuomo says his future is still uncertain

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — A subdued Gov. Mario Cuomo, having lived with defeat for more than a week, admitted Wednesday he "wanted to win this thing more than any political contest I ever had."

Calling his loss to Republican state Sen. George Pataki "a big disappointment," the three-term Democratic governor said he is still uncertain what the future holds for him, although he's had a number of job offers.

On top of that, he and his wife have to search for a new house.

"I'm going to be the first 12-year governor to go out homeless and jobless," Cuomo said he had recently told former New Jersey Gov. James Florio.

In a two-hour interview with The Associated Press in his state Capitol office, Cuomo said he wants to live in New York City, where he was raised. "It's a very expensive place to live, but this is my place."

Job offers are coming in, including radio and TV talk shows and feelers from universities and law firms. He wouldn't confirm a rumor that he had been asked about becoming commissioner of baseball, but indicated he didn't think much of the job.

Cuomo, battling a national GOP tide and anti-Cuomo sentiment that had increased as his tenure lengthened, lost his reelection bid 49 percent to 45 percent.

"I will miss — not being governor, not the house, not the police, not the ceremonies — but the opportunity to deal with these problems," he said. "To help people, 18 million of them, and maybe a lot of other people who will watch and see how we do it and maybe do it better themselves."

Pataki, promising to cut taxes and reinstate the death penalty, takes office Jan. 1.

Improper use of new asthma drug deemed deadly by FDA

WASHINGTON (AP) — Asthma sufferers have been dying since a new drug hit the market in April, some apparently because they mistakenly believed the long-lasting drug would immediately relieve their breathing problems.

There have been 20 deaths reported to the Food and Drug Administration among users of Serevent. It is not yet clear how many are linked to misuse of the drug, but manufacturer Glaxo Inc. is warning patients and doctors to use it properly.

Serevent is very effective at preventing asthma attacks and its effects last longer than other drugs, experts agree. But it doesn't treat actual asthma attacks — because it takes at least 30 minutes to begin working.

"It's very, very important that people understand Serevent is not for acute asthma," Ramona Jones of manufacturer Glaxo Inc. said Wednesday. "Instead, she said, 'It's so important for people to have that short-acting bronchodilator in case they get in trouble.'"

Glaxo also issued an expanded warning Wednesday that its migraine drug Imitrex should never be given to patients with coronary artery disease. Glaxo received a second death report among such patients, although it isn't sure Imitrex is to blame. Still, it urged doctors to check for undiagnosed heart disease and, if a suspected patient passes a heart screening, to administer the first dose in their offices in case of a reaction.

Glaxo also is warning asthma doctors about the Serevent problems, and last week began meeting with the Food and Drug Administration about strengthening Serevent's patient warning label.

The FDA emphasizes that it can't yet prove a connection with the 20 deaths, because asthma by itself can be deadly. But improper Serevent use is suspected because many of the reports list asthma or "no drug effect" as the probable cause.

And Dr. Frank Finkelstein of Plymouth, Mass., describes two elderly women found dead while holding their Serevent. "Both had been told ... they could use their previous inhaler (albuterol) for emergencies, but they did not do so," Finkelstein wrote in the New England Journal of Medicine last week.

Asthma is an inflammatory lung disease characterized by attacks in which the airways become blocked and patients can't breathe. Some 10 million Americans have asthma, and about 5,000 die each year.

Quick-acting bronchodilators, medicine inhaled straight into the lungs to widen airways, alleviate attacks. The most popular is albuterol. Yet they only last about four hours, so patients often awaken during the night, wheezing as the drug wears off.

Serevent, or salmeterol xinafoate, is the nation's only long-lasting bronchodilator. It is for patients with moderate asthma, who have stabilized the disease with other drugs. They inhale two puffs in the morning and two at night, 12 hours apart.

The drug has proved safe in trials by hundreds of people, so patients should not abandon it, FDA spokeswoman Susan Cruzan emphasized.

"It is one of the most useful drugs ... for asthma," said Dr. Roger Bone, president of the Medical College of Ohio. "But if it's used inappropriately, it can cause problems."

Serevent doesn't fight asthma attacks because it takes 30 to 45 minutes to work, too long for a badly wheezing patient. Patients may overdose as they frantically try to make Serevent stop an attack — and overdosing can cause abnormal heart rhythms and other dangers, Bone warned. Indeed, the FDA has received some cardiac reports.

But FDA fears doctors also are at fault, prescribing Serevent for patients with unstable or worsening asthma.

Bone noted that general practitioners without asthma expertise do prescribe most asthma drugs, but thinks patient education is the biggest need. He tells his own patients never to carry Serevent so they will be unable to take it during an attack, but to always carry a quick-acting drug instead.

That's good advice, said Glaxo's Jones. "Serevent is not the problem. The important thing is making sure patients and physicians understand how to use it."

Jones confidante appointed to health policy board

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Jack Hall, who has been Gov. Brereton Jones' closest political adviser and primary fund-raiser for nearly a decade, is now chairman of the influential Health Policy Board.

Hall replaces Donald Clapp, who was just appointed to the position in July and confirmed by the state Senate in September. Clapp's resignation letter was dated Nov. 4, effective Nov. 15. It was released by Jones' office on Wednesday.

Clapp said his reasons for resigning were personal. He could not be reached for comment on Wednesday.

The board is set up to collect information about the state's health care system, create model insurance policies and could eventually set the prices for medical services.

Hall, 62, helped raise $10 million for Jones in 1990 and 1991 to finance Jones' record-spending campaign for governor and repay Jones for the nearly $2 million he spent in 1987 to run for lieutenant governor.

Since October 1992, Hall has been executive director of the Petroleum Underground Storage Tank Commission and a special adviser to Jones. He has been paid $70,000 a year in those two positions.

His new job pays $82,463. Hall's appointment is until June 30, 1998.

The appointment requires confirmation by the state Senate, but Jones would have to place the issue on a special session agenda for it to be considered before the regular General Assembly session in January 1996.

Franklin Jelsma, Jones' chief executive officer for public affairs, said the subject of Hall's confirmation had not been considered.

Jones said in a news release that Hall played an integral role in the development of health care reform legislation and worked closely with legislative leaders.

Rep. Ernesto Scorsone, D-Lexington, one of the primary legislative architects of the bill that created the Health Policy Board, said he was unfamiliar with Hall's credentials on the subject.

"I've never had a discussion on health care with Jack Hall," Scorsone said. "I really don't know what he brings to the table on that issue."

"He's a political insider. He knows how the system works. In terms of health care, I don't know what he knows on the issue," Scorsone said.

Though he has worked for Jones in various capacities in and out of government since 1985, Hall spent some time in the health care field among his jobs at the University of Kentucky.

Meditation on death wins nonfiction prize

NEW YORK (AP) — A meditation on death won the non-fiction prize at the National Book Awards on Wednesday, beating out four other finalists, including a controversial new book about Supreme Court Justice Clarence Thomas.

The winning book was "How We Die: Reflections on Life's Final Chapter," by Sherwin B. Nuland.

William Gaddis won his second fiction award for "A Frolic of His Own," and James Tate won the poetry award for "Worshipful Company of Fletcher's."

Each winner received $10,000. Poet Gwendolyn Brooks received the 1994 National Book Foundation Medal, given for "distinguished contribution to American letters," at the annual event at the Plaza Hotel.

Much of the interest in this year's awards has centered on "Strange Justice: The Selling of Clarence Thomas," by two Wall Street Journal reporters. Authors Jill Abramson and Jane Mayer discuss Thomas' appointment to the high court despite sexual harassment allegations by his former aide, Anita Hill.

Other non-fiction finalists included "The Unredeemed Captive: A Family Story From Early America," by John Demos; "Fatherlong: A Meditation on Fathers, Sons, Race and Society," by John Edgar Wideman; and "In Pharaoh's Army: Memoirs of the Lost War," by Tobias Wolff.

Along with Gaddis' book, the fiction finalists included "Moses Supposes," by Ellen Currie; "White Man's Grave," by Richard Dooling; "The Bird Artist," by Howard Norman; and "The Collected Stories," by Grace Paley. Gaddis previously won the award in 1976 for "JR."

Expansion project under consideration

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — City planners unveiled maps showing a large swath of land east of Interstate 75 should be developed as an expansion of the Urban Service Area.

The area outlined Wednesday includes nearly 600 acres of Preston and Anita Madden's Hamburg Place, one of the best-known horse farms in the Bluegrass.

The Urban Service Area is a 76-square-mile site where subdivisions and shopping centers are permitted in Fayette County.

Whether and where to expand the Urban Service Area has been at the center of discussion for a 24-member committee Mayor Pam Miller appointed to update the 1988 Comprehensive Plan, the county's master land-use guide.

The planning staff presented three possible expansion scenarios. One map showed a 2,000-acre expansion; another showed a 3,700-acre expansion; and a third showed a 5,000-acre expansion.

In each case, the bulk of the expansion would be along the existing boundary stretching from Winchester Road to an area east of Richmond Road.

The committee took no action on any of the proposals. But Miller, chairwoman of the committee, has said she expects a decision before the end of the year.

An audit also includes assessing the accounting principles used and significant estimates made by management, as well as evaluating the overall financial statement presentation. We believe that our audit provides a reasonable basis for our opinion.

In our opinion, the general purpose financial statements referred to above present fairly, in all material respects, the financial position of the City of Murray, Kentucky as of June 30, 1994, and the results of its operations and the cash flows of its proprietary fund types for the year then ended, in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles.

Our audit was conducted for the purpose of forming an opinion on the general purpose financial statements taken as a whole. The combining and individual fund and account group financial statements and schedules listed in the table of contents are presented for purposes of additional analysis and are not a required part of the general purpose financial statements of the City of Murray, Kentucky. Such information has been subjected to the auditing procedures applied in the audit of the general purpose financial statements and, in our opinion, is fairly presented in all material respects in relation to the general purpose financial statements taken as a whole.

Leslianne Nicole Gilson

Gilson competes in pageants

Leslianne Nicole Gilson of Murray has had a busy summer and fall pageanting.

In June, she traveled to Daytona Beach, Fla., to compete for the Cover Miss title. Competing against 200 plus children in her age segment, Gilson was voted overall pro-model/photogenic and Cover Miss 0-3 mini-oval.

Leslianne competed in the USA Pageant nationals in September in Paducah. She was crowned overall photogenic and the 0-3 Grand Supreme.

She also competed in the Metropolitan Pageant's Mini-nationals and was crowned overall Grand Supreme and will travel to Grand Nationals in the spring of 1995.

Leslianne's greatest achievement this year so far has been her win at the Dixieland Dolls and Darlings Nationals in Nashville, Tenn. She was crowned over all divisional pro-model and was crowned the Overall Beauty/ProAm Queen. She was awarded a 1994 automobile.

Gilson, 4, has to date won three automobiles in pageants. When asked what she likes best about pageants, she replied, "I love the prizes, but most of all I love the friends I make and it's fun to play with them!"

Leslianne will host a preliminary for Dixieland Dolls and Darlings on Sunday, Nov. 27, at the Woodmen Building at Third and Maple Streets, Murray. For information call 759-4985.

Test Your Dummy Play

Tomorrow: Gazing into the future.

1. You are declarer with the West hand at Five Diamonds doubled.

WEST
♥ 7
♦ Q J 8 6 5 2
♣ Q J 10 8 4

EAST
♠ A Q 7 5 2
♥ 6 5
♦ K 10 9 4
♣ A K

The bidding has gone: North East South West
1♥ Dble 3♥ 4♠
4♥ 5♣ Pass Pass Dble

North leads the nine of clubs. How would you play the hand?

2. You are declarer with the West hand at Seven Diamonds and North leads the king of hearts. How would you play the hand? (Assume that the trumps are divided 3-1.)

WEST
♠ K J 2
♥ A
♦ A K Q J 8 5
♣ A Q J 6

EAST
♠ A 8 5
♥ 10 7 6 4
♦ 10 9 7
♣ K 7 2

Answers:
1. The bidding clearly indicates that North has the ace of diamonds, and the club lead has all the earmarks of a singleton. If you were to start to draw trumps at trick two, you'd run the risk of North winning with the ace and putting South on lead with a heart to make the killing club return.

To try to stop this from occurring, lead the ace of spades at trick two and continue with the queen! Assuming that South follows low, which is highly likely, discard your singleton heart on the spade queen. This play costs you nothing; it merely substitutes a spade loser for a heart loser.

North wins the trick but now has no way to put his partner on lead with a heart in order to get a club return.

As a result, you come home in a blaze of glory while at the same time you teach North not to double you in the future with some such hand as:

♠ K J 8 6
♥ A K 8 4 3 2
♦ A 3
♣ 9

2. By far the best method of play is to attempt a dummy reversal which, if successful, will make it unnecessary for you to rely on a jack finesse.

Ruff the heart king with the jack, lead the five of trumps to the seven, ruff the six of hearts with the queen, lead the eight of trumps to the nine, then ruff the seven of hearts with the king before playing a low club to the king. Now ruff the ten of hearts with your last trump, the ace.

You next lead a low spade to the ace and draw the only missing trump with dummy's ten, discarding your jack of spades in the process. The last four tricks are taken by your king of spades and A-Q-J of clubs. The 13 tricks you score consist of two spades, four clubs, and seven — count them — trump tricks.

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: It's been startling to read the opinions regarding responses to expressions of sympathy.

Upon the demise of my dear husband, Barnaby, more than 500 people phoned, sent cards, flowers, food, attended the funeral or visited me.

Touched by the love that surrounded my family, I became more aware that God is love, and love is from God. For weeks I wrote thank-you notes, feeling that if a person could make the effort to express sympathy to my family in any way, I sincerely wanted to respond. It was a joy to write to those people. I even went over the list of those who signed the memory book at the funeral home and attended the funeral, and wrote each of them, expressing my family's gratitude for their love.

I was the winner, because as I wrote, my grief for Barnaby melted away and memories of his life and what it meant to others flooded my mind — and I remembered his deep love for all of us. Counting all our friends and blessings prompted me to write a book about my husband. Now my children and grandchildren have memories of Barnaby they would never have had.

The bottom line: There is joy in taking the time to write thank-you notes to those who have expressed sympathy. Your readers should try it. VERA RUSH HILL, DECATUR, GA.

DEAR VERA RUSH HILL: Thank you for the positive spin you put on acknowledging expressions of sympathy. More people may follow your innovative lead and find it rewarding.

DEAR ABBY: One of my co-workers left our company and moved to another state. She and I were very close friends so, naturally, we kept in touch.

My problem: Several individuals want her address, and they know I have it. She does not want any ties to her old job — especially with those she only tolerated while working here.

Abby, what should I say to these people without offending them, or causing hard feelings against me, or protecting the privacy of my friend? Also, when someone with whom you have worked for several years leaves the company and asks for your address and telephone number, should it be given to them?

I am not terribly fond of my co-workers and prefer to keep my social life separate from the workplace. However, some individuals have no social life outside the office, so they assume everyone who works there is a friend.

I would appreciate a quick response while I stall everyone at work.

PRIVATE LIFE

DEAR PRIVATE: Since the departed employee "only tolerated" her co-workers while she worked with them, she shouldn't object to your telling them that she requested that her new address not be given out.

And since you — by your own admission — are not terribly fond of your co-workers, you have little to lose by being candid with them.

DR. GOTT

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Please enlighten me regarding warts. If they are contagious, how is the virus transmitted — touching, drinking out of the same glass, kissing someone with warts, having sex with someone who has warts, and so on? Can a person be a carrier but not have warts? Why would a wart that appears similar be more contagious if it appears on the penis or vagina than if it were on the hands, feet or chest?

DEAR READER: Warts are caused by viruses, which are spread by direct (and often prolonged) skin-to-skin contact. In general, the more active the contact, the greater the likelihood of transmission.

For instance, brushing against the wart on a person's hand will probably not result in infection with the virus, whereas sexual intercourse favors transmission.

Some warts are more easily spread than are others.

Wart viruses can exist in the skin for variable periods before warts actually appear. In particular, men without visible warts on their genitals can infect their partners. (Condoms can effectively protect against this.)

Warts often disappear without treatment. Those that remain can usually be cured by the application of prescription medicine, chiefly podofilox.

One final comment: Genital warts in women have been associated with cancers of the reproductive tract. Therefore, any woman with such warts should be treated by a gynecologist and her partner should be meticulously examined for non-visible warts by a urologist or dermatologist, using special tests.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Viruses and Cancer."

DEAR DR. GOTT: My husband has been advised by his doctor to have knee replacement surgery. As an artificial knee lifespan is about eight years, he is concerned that a second replacement down the road might be necessary. In Europe, ceramic is presumably used for knee replacement instead of metal, and appears to fuse better. What is your opinion?

DEAR READER: I am not familiar enough with European ceramic prostheses to advise you. To my knowledge, the U.S. artificial knee is a splendid product that works well and enables patients to maintain normal lives for many years.

The lifespan of the prosthesis will, of course, depend on how strenuously it is used. A sedentary person may well enjoy his artificial knee for a lifetime; a runner may find his wearing out in a matter of years.

Ask your husband's orthopedic surgeon to give him a valid estimate of how long the artificial knee will function, given your husband's level of activity.
