Chief Smith clarifies letter

Murray Police Chief David Smith said Friday he has received several inquiries about residents receiving a letter of solicitation from a canine organization out of Bowling Green.

Smith wants residents to know the MPD Canine Unit does not receive any help from this organization.

"Individuals who wish to contribute to our local canine program can do so directly," he said. "We wish to thank all persons who have made our canine program a success."

Smith said canine handler, Officer Steve Robinson and canine officer Max have been a great asset to the department and thanked Murray residents for their continued support.

Freemen standoff continues in Montana

JORDAN, Mont. (AP) — As the Freemen's standoff with government agents dragged into a sixth day, a cloud of doom hung over the siege: One of the clan's jailed leaders said it will end "worse than Waco."

A federal judge in Billings refused Friday to release LeRoy Schweitzer, 57, and Daniel Petersen, 53, on bond.

The two were arrested by federal agents Monday and are among 12 anti-government Freemen named in indictments. At least some of the others are believed to be holed up near here on a sprawling wheat and sheep farm serving as their compound.

Judge to rule within 40 days

By AMY WILSON
Staff Writer

Although the trial has finished, Graves County Circuit Court Judge John Daughaday may wait until May to render a decision regarding a lawsuit involving the Calloway County Fiscal Court.

After almost two hours of testimony Friday, attorneys for the fiscal court and the Calloway County Association of Concerned Citizens said they were finished calling witnesses.

"The court has heard the testimony and has instructed the attorneys to prepare legal memorandums," Daughaday said. "They have 40 days to do so and then I will submit a final decision. If they get the documents in early, I will begin working on a decision."

In a Ledger interview, Mark Medlin, attorney for the citizens' group, said he felt the trial went as planned.

"I was surprised at how little County Judge/Executive J.D. Williams remembered during his testimony," Medlin said.

According to Medlin, the documents he will prepare for the judge will include summaries of the testimony and any legal issues that need to be clarified.

Paul Hayes, attorney for the fiscal court, said the issues raised during the trial were expected. "I still believe the allegations were unfounded," he said. "We are not allowed to submit new information in the memorandum for the judge."

The citizens' group filed the civil suit in March 1995 alleging that the fiscal court had violated the Kentucky Open Meetings Law pertaining to decisions made about the construction of a new jail.

The trial began Thursday and Medlin called 11 witnesses that day, nine of whom are members of the association. He also called County Clerk Ray Coursey and Williams.

Friday's testimony began with Hayes calling Rita Burton, Williams' secretary, to the stand.

According to her testimony, Burton is responsible for preparing agendas and forwarding them to the media.

The citizens' group had alleged that there were three special meetings in which no notice was given to the public. However, Hayes used Burton's testimony and evidence consisting of special meeting agendas and newspaper articles to dispute the claim.

Burton also testified that she and Williams referred to a booklet on the open meetings law to see what they were required to do regarding meeting notices.

Meanwhile, in his line of questioning, Medlin asked Burton to

Patton signs gun bill with extra guard

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — For someone who had campaigned on support for a repeal of Kentucky's law that makes carrying concealed deadly weapons a crime, Gov. Paul Patton did not seem overly enthusiastic Friday when he signed it.

"This is certainly a difficult law," Patton said. "It has created great division in our society, great passion, great emotion."

It also generated some increased security precautions at the Capitol. About a dozen uniformed and plainclothes Kentucky State Police officers observed people as they crowded into the room where Patton signed the bill.

State police Lt. Col. John Life said the concealed-weapons bill had been "an emotional issue," and officials knew groups on both sides would be at the Capitol. So, the decision was made to assign "a few extra troopers" for security, Life said, declining to say exactly how many officers had been present.

Before the bill signing, Patton agreed to meet in his office with a dozen protesters, who reminded him that black voters helped him win the gubernatorial election.

"We voted for you, Governor," said the Rev. Louis Coleman of Shelbyville. "We didn't vote Republican, We voted

Clinton signs budget stopgap

WASHINGTON (AP) — For the 12th time this deadlocked budget year, President Clinton signed a stopgap bill Friday to keep government running — and to let lawmakers begin a two-week spring break.

By voice vote in the House and a 64-24 Senate roll call, lawmakers agreed to temporarily let dozens of agencies function while the two sides continue their relentless battle over the size of job training, health and many other programs for 1996. Without the temporary legislation, large parts of many agencies would have been forced into an election-year closure at midnight that neither party wanted to see.

The White House said Clinton signed the bill in early evening. The resolution keeps the agencies in funds through April 24 — when there will be a bit over five months left in the fiscal year. Clinton also signed another budget measure extending the government's ability to borrow money and letting working Social Security recipients receive higher benefits.

Legislators had hoped to complete their 1996 budget business before their Easter-Passover break, which began Friday afternoon.

Juror, defendant eat lunch together

PADUCAH, Ky. (AP) — A Paducah man who was convicted of drug trafficking spent his lunch break during the trial with one of the jurors, a situation the judge says is a new one on him.

Nicky Quarles, 34, was convicted after a one-day trial of first-degree trafficking in cocaine and trafficking in marijuana within 1,000 yards of a school.

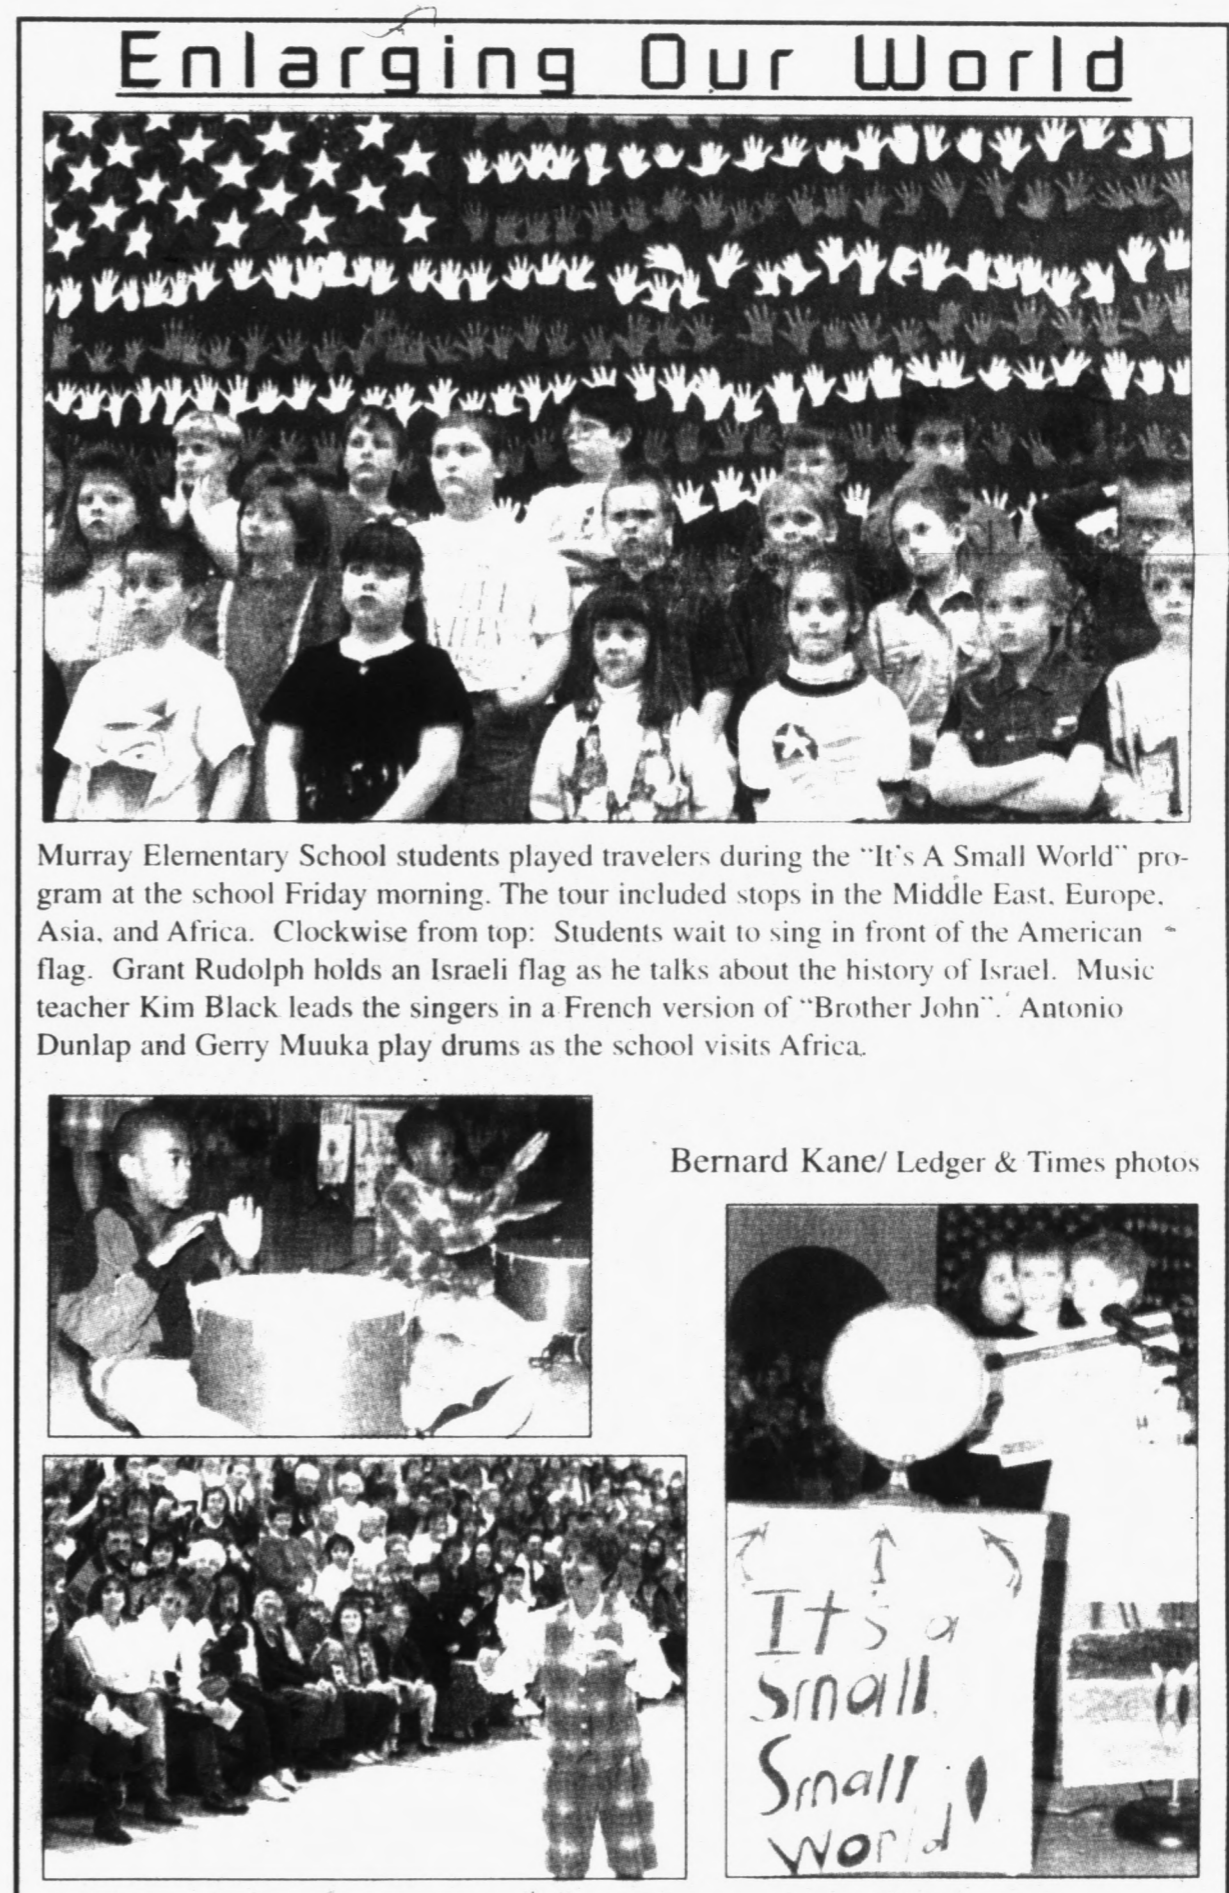

After McCracken Circuit Judge Ron Daniels recessed the trial for lunch Monday, juror Ervin Hollins saw Quarles and his girlfriend by a car in the courthouse parking lot. As Hollins passed, Quarles asked if they could have a ride to a nearby cafe.

"Mr. Quarles was having car trouble of some nature," Hollins said. "They asked me if they could get a ride up to the hamburger place. I was going home to warm something up for dinner anyway, so I just asked them if they wanted to go with me."

Hollins refused comment concerning the contents of lunch. He then quickly ended an interview with a reporter for The Paducah Sun, saying, "I better not say anything else about this."

Commonwealth's Attorney Tim Kaltenbach was approached by Quarles' girlfriend Tuesday

Governor implies he will veto health bill

By CHARLES WOLFE
Associated Press Writer

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Gov. Paul Patton said a House version of a health care bill is too extreme and he would not sign it. He did not, however, categorically promise a veto.

The bill, which originated in the Senate, was rewritten by the House on Wednesday to roll back most of the 1994 Kentucky Health Care Reform Act. It would repeal, among other things, a guarantee that anyone could buy health insurance.

"I couldn't put my name on that bill. All reform is gone," Patton said in an impromptu news conference near the Senate chamber on Thursday.

Because a bill can become law without the governor's signature, Patton was asked if he would veto the bill. "I don't want to box myself in," he replied. "I'd veto it unless the alternative was worse."

Patton did not elaborate on alternatives. The Senate, which originated the bill, refused to go along with the House's version, anyway. Conferees from both chambers began negotiations today.

The conferees quickly staked out broad positions.

explain why the special meeting notices had not been posted at the meeting place as was required by law.
Burton replied that she thought they had been posted on the bulletin board outside Williams' office.
Medlin then questioned Burton about the local newspaper's role in publishing the meeting agendas. She explained that she was simply required to notify the media and that she had no control over whether the agenda was published.
Daughaday then told Medlin that if he had a problem with the way the newspaper handles its publication, then he should take it up with the newspaper.

Medlin also asked Burton about her role regarding the jail committee or interviews conducted regarding the jail project. She said there were no jail committee meeting minutes kept because there were never any meetings.
Ed Pavlick, 911 coordinator, was called to the stand by Hayes to testify about the condition of the meeting room (both in Williams' office and in the Weaks Center).

Meetings were eventually moved to the Weaks Center as a result of increased attendance. "There were always a good number of attendees," Pavlick said. "Chairs were always brought in (while in Williams' office). When the meetings were held in the Weaks Center, the majority of us could hear."
Pavlick said he couldn't remember ever hearing anyone request that something be done about the sound equipment in the Weaks Center.
However, Medlin called five members of the citizens' group (Kathy Lyons, Brooks Gibson, Oscar Turner Jr., Buddy White and Charles Cooper) who testified that not only had they had trouble attending meetings in Williams' office because of inadequate space, but they also had difficulty hearing at the Weaks Center.

They referred to meetings held in late fall of 1994 and early 1995.
"I formally requested on two occasions that the court do something about the sound system," Lyons said.
According to Hayes, if Daughaday determines that the open meetings law has been violated, he can assess a variety of penalties based on his discretion.
"If he determines that there has been a substantial violation, he can void any action that was taken in a meeting held in non-compliance of the law," Hayes said. "If he finds a willful violation, the fiscal court could be fined up to $100 per violation."

Sen. Nick Kafoglis, D-Bowling Green, said legislators should give the health-care law more time to work, with some modifications. He credited the law with creating an environment that lowered insurance rates for some Kentuckians and allowed previously uninsured people to get coverage.

For people facing the prospect of higher health insurance premiums, Kafoglis said, the Senate version offered a "temporary solution" by allowing them to renew their current policies for two years.
Kafoglis said that if given time, the health law would foster a marketplace in which insurance companies compete based on price, quality and service of their products. Before the law, the insurers focused on avoiding risks by denying coverage to sick people or driving up their premiums.
House Majority Floor Leader Greg Stumbo responded that allowing the law to continue with minor changes would hurt many Kentuckians. He predicted they would have to drop their insurance coverage because of rising premiums.
"We've hurt people we didn't mean to hurt," the Prestonsburg Democrat said. "I don't think we can stick our heads in the sand for two more years."
Stumbo said the main thrust of any final product should be to give people relief from the increases in health premiums.
Much of the discussion focused on whether insurers should be able to use health status as a factor in determining premiums. The meeting adjourned without any agreements, but the conferees were to meet later in the day.
If enacted, the House's version of the bill would repeal one key provision of the 1994 Kentucky Health Care Reform Act.

Democrat. "We'd appreciate it if you would take our children's lives into consideration."
But Patton reiterated what he said while the bill was being debated — that it was sufficiently restricted, and he would sign it if the General Assembly passed it.
Patton also noted that the bill was passed by large margins in both House and Senate, and a veto almost certainly would be overridden.
"I understand your position, but we live in a democracy where the majority rules," Patton said.
The protesters carried a wooden coffin up the hall to the door to the governor's outer office. It was covered with silk flowers and color photos of shooting victims.
The bill will allow people to apply for permits to carry concealed deadly weapons starting in October. A background check and some training in firearm use will be needed and the state police will have to issue the permit to those who meet the qualifications.

"This will make a lot of people legal and it will give people a feeling of personal security," Patton said. "The people that will apply for the permits are not the people that are causing the problems with guns."

morning after the trial. She was trying to work out details of a possible appeal bond for Quarles.
"After we had talked about that she said, 'There's one other thing I better tell you,' and she said Nicky had lunch with a juror," Kaltenbach said. "She said the juror was talking to the defendant about the case, and told him (Quarles) that he would not vote to find him guilty."
The two went to Daniels, who said Thursday that the situation was unlike any he had encountered.
"This is obviously juror misconduct," Daniels said. "If the juror instigated the contact, then he was wrong; if the defendant did it, he was in the wrong. We do our best to explain the rules of conduct to jurors and hopefully they understand them."
Daniels said prosecutors had not moved for a mistrial, and he did not know the intentions of the public defender's office.
Public advocate Don Muir, who defended Quarles, did not respond to phone messages left at his office.

A tale involving two senators and a campaign to win

WASHINGTON (AP) — Never was there a more classic case of a presidential front-runner undone than that of Edmund S. Muskie, the Democrat who looked like a sure thing — until he ran. Ironically, while Muskie's fall is remembered in farewell salutes, a Republican who led the field as he did, and stumbled just as swiftly, stands atop his party, the White House nominee in waiting. Sen. Bob Dole managed the feat Muskie could not, proving that there is a way back to the top, even for a politician who has been there and fallen.

Actually, Dole suffered more embarrassing early setbacks than Muskie in the initial contests of 1996. He lost outright where Muskie won the first of the primaries of 1972. But Muskie's standing slipped for lack of a majority in New Hampshire. Dole lost outright to Pat Buchanan, and it got worse — he lost two more primaries to Steve Forbes, and was front-runner no more.

But while Muskie's 1972 strength eroded, Dole's was in reserve. He changed campaign advisers, the competition moved into states where he had supporters with organizational strength and he not only came back from defeat, he swept the rest of the GOP field away.

He'd won 25 states in a row, crowned by California on Tuesday, when he declared, redundantly: "I am the Republican nominee."

In 1972, Muskie hung on until the Democratic convention before confessing the obvious, and ending his long-dormant candidacy. A different kind of competition, differing strategies, the compressed schedule of primary elections were among the reasons Dole was able to rise again as front-runner. Muskie never could. He was an active candidate for only six weeks in 1972, dropping from primary competition although he did not withdraw outright and endorse Sen. George McGovern until the convention that summer. Muskie, like Dole, was the pollsters' favorite, the name everybody knew and, it seemed at first, the consensus candidate. Their initial strategies were not dissimilar — compete everywhere as national candidates instead of picking target states, reap endorsements from governors, senators and party leaders, emphasize trust and proven performance.

Indeed, Muskie, senator from Maine, faulted to national prominence as vice presidential nominee in 1968 and as a leading party spokesman in the 1970 campaign, urging voters to choose the Democrats' "politics of trust" over Republican resorts to fear.

But as a campaigner in his own cause, he tended to talk like a senator, offering lengthy, intricate discourses on the reasons for action, to the dismay of image advisors who wanted him to give a quotable summary of what he proposed to do.

And in Senate eulogies after his death at 81, the descriptions of Muskie and his style sounded not unlike things said of Dole in this campaign, at times not only of, but by, Dole.

He was called a model of what a senator should be. "He was a man who got things done," said Sen. Ernest F. Hollings, D-S.C., a legislator with a grasp on the intricacies of the task.

"He was a senators' senator," said Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass.

In the crowded Democratic primaries of 1972, Muskie tried to run as a man of the center — his own description — while the vote was being carved away by candidates to his left and to his right.

Dole had faced something like that with Buchanan coming from the right — now the only rival remaining although he concedes the nomination to the Kansas senator — and Forbes waging his negative television advertising barrage.

When Muskie was running, his critics said his campaign had no theme, no blueprint for the future, only a slogan, "Trust Muskie."

Just as Lamar Alexander said Dole's was a campaign without new ideas, a Buchanan line, too. Now all but Buchanan have quit and endorsed Dole.

In the Senate tributes, there was only oblique mention of Muskie's lost campaign. "He had a temper that verged on the volcanic," said Sen. Joseph R. Biden Jr., D-Del., "and he was capable of weeping public tears over an insult to the wife he loved."

That was a reference to a New Hampshire campaign day Muskie choked with emotion in denouncing a newspaper article critical of Mrs. Muskie. Dole has a legendary temper, too, but this campaign he's kept it in check.

In his eulogy, Dole called Muskie a patriot who made America better.

A generation ago, the Republican national chairman had denounced the Maine senator for "a sorry spectacle ... bad-mouthing the United States."

The chairman was Bob Dole.

Continue the hearings

Blood Sport, the new book by journalist James B. Stewart, is a sobering and shocking disclosure of the cynicism, greed and hubris of Hillary and Bill Clinton when they were (and even on rare occasions when they weren't) governor and first lady of Arkansas. While there may be no "smoking gun" in the most interesting narrative so far of the allied events of corruptions collectively known as "Whitewater", there is enough to persuade all but the most biased observer that the people of Arkansas deserved better. So do the people of the other 49 states, now that Bill Clinton is president.

After reading just the excerpt from this book in last week's Time magazine, one feels dirty and diminished — especially since the principles in this modern saga that is part Tobacco Road and part Huey Long are now supposed to represent America to its people and to the world. As John F. Kennedy said in another context, "We can do better." Read it and weep for who and what we have allowed to ascend to the highest office and highest honor of our land.

No wonder Senate Democrats are stonewalling an extension of the special Senate Whitewater committee. The last thing Democrats want is for some of those mentioned in Stewart's book to testify before television cameras and a committee controlled by Republicans and tell their stories of graft, greed and corruption in the former Clinton fiefdom known as Little Rock. Democrats say enough is enough, that the hearings have outlasted in length other scandals. Yes, but in none of those other scandals — from Watergate to Iran-Contra — has the resistance to turning over information been as great as it has been in Whitewater.

CAL'S THOUGHTS

Cal Thomas
Syndicated columnist

The Senate committee wants $600,000 to extend the hearings. Recently, Chairman Alfonse D'Amato released a list of 16 potential witnesses he wants to call to testify, including Arkansas bank officials who made questionable and, in some cases, highly irregular loans to the Clintons. D'Amato has threatened to bypass the Democrats' filibuster and use his Senate Banking Committee, which he also chairs, to continue the investigation.

There's a better way. D'Amato should make the Democrats feel the political heat by calling for a national private fund-raising campaign to continue the hearings. Senate Republicans should announce they are appealing to the public to help them learn the truth about what happened in a scandal that cost them tax money when a failed savings and loan was forced to close. An 800 number could be set up to phone in pledges, like they do on public television money drives — 1-800-I-N-D-I-C-T.

Republicans could claim they are holding down expenses by getting the public involved and reducing costs. The effort would engage people in the political life of their country as never before. The president has his own legal defense fund to which a small number of people who presumably believe he's innocent contribute money, so why shouldn't those who believe the Clintons and their congressional allies are hiding something be given the opportunity to find out what it is?

What an embarrassment for Democrats! What a boon to Republicans! What a headache for Bill and Hillary Clinton! I can see it now. The newly reopened hearings begin with a deep-voiced announcer intoning, "The following hearings are brought to you as a public service by your fellow Americans, who think you deserve to know the truth about the president and first lady of the United States, and whether they broke the law while in Arkansas and have engaged in cover-ups while in the White House, and whether they possess the moral character and personal integrity to deserve a second term. You be the judge."

Democrats made hay on false charges that congressional Republicans shut down the government. Let's see how they like it when they're charged with shutting down a congressional hearing just when things are getting interesting. Raising private funds will keep the doors of justice open.

Choice has experts split

We return today to the burning question of the proper way to use a knife and a fork.

As I admitted yesterday, I am part of the American minority that refuses to juggle my eating utensils. I cut, hack and slash with the knife in my right hand and sling the food to my gaping mouth with the fork in my left hand.

This makes me both a non-nonsense and continental kind of guy. Or so I've been told by no less an authority than myself.

But what do the professional etiquette experts say about the conflicting techniques — the American way and the way the rest of us chow down?

Before I get into that, I have learned that being a professional etiquette arbiter is a tougher job than it used to be.

Listen to Letitia Baldrige, the renowned author of eight etiquette books, who says: "Social manners have changed dramatically. Kids today and for the last 20 years have held the fork and knife in unbelievable ways. They hold the fork with a fist and the knife like a saw and they shovel it in. It doesn't matter to them which way they hold their knife and fork. They eat every which way. I'm amazed they get food into their mouths at all."

As for Ms. Baldrige's personal preference, she's on my side and prefers the labor-efficient continental approach.

"It is a much easier way to eat. It is much neater and there is no banging of flatware. Eating American-style, you put the knife down and clang. Continental is silent and efficient.

"But some people think it is faddish and elitist. We're the only people in the world who eat this way, putting the knife down and changing the fork from the left to the right hand."

Why do we do it? An explanation is offered by Dorothea Johnson, founder/director of the Protocol School of Washington, which trains ambassadors and business executives on how to behave in foreign lands.

"The custom of American eating was the way everyone ate until about 1840. In 1852 it came out in a French etiquette book that if you wanted to eat in a high-class manner, you would not switch the fork to the other hand. Before long, Europeans of all classes started using that style." Ms. Johnson tries to explain that to her clients.

"In certain business sectors, if you don't eat continental-style, you look as if you just got off the cabbage truck."

A strong believer in the American style is Judith Martin, who has written the Miss Manners column since 1978 and is author of four Miss Manners books.

"For Americans, it is more proper to eat American-style and it looks silly to eat European-style if you were not born in Europe. I'm a firm believer, for which I get a great deal of hate mail, that the American style is more dignified, slower, more complicated, as opposed to a quick shove-it-in method.

"People who use the European style point out that it is more efficient. But I say efficiency is not a virtue when it comes to stuffing food in your face.

"It is not proper etiquette or good for your health. Doctors don't ever say: 'You're not eating fast enough.'"

"I am a great believer in American etiquette for Americans on all counts. Our forefathers wanted an American etiquette that would reflect the egalitarianism of America and not Europe, which was based on court life.

"My feelings get stirred up when I hear people arguing vehemently for aping European ways when we have a much more sophisticated and aesthetically pleasing American standard of our own.

"I agree with Ben Franklin and Thomas Jefferson and George Washington, who wrote that Americans should have a dignified American etiquette."

Well, thanks a lot, Ms. Martin. Here we are, talking about how to get grub from the plate to our chompers, and you make me feel like a subversive.

More conciliatory is Peggy Post, a descendant of Emily Post and the third generation to write about etiquette under that name.

"Either one is fine. The American zigzag style or the European way. There are pluses and minuses to both."

The final comment I leave for Ms. Baldrige, who offered this nugget of indisputable wisdom:

"It is most important to eat neatly. You are a dining success if you don't get food on your clothes."

Now that is one smart babe. The next time we consider etiquette, we will look into the question of the proper way to share table scraps with your dog.

Do you let it get up on the table, as I prefer?

Or do you just toss the tidbits over your shoulder and let the lively little creature make a leaping catch, as my wife enjoys doing?

No, no, I meant that the dog make a leaping catch, not my wife. See? I just can't avoid conflict.

Christian basketball League completes schedule

BASKETBALL LEAGUE photos
First Baptist Church and Elm Grove Baptist Church recently combined to sponsor an eight weeks' Christian Basketball League. Forty-five children in preschool through eighth grades participated. They learned fundamental skills through games and drills and by playing each other. They also had devotional thoughts each week encouraging them to follow God and be a good sport in all they do, according to Joetta Kelly of First Baptist Church. Directing the league play were Mrs. Kelly, Benji Kelly, Tony Miller and John Carpenter, who were assisted by other members of both churches. Shown in top photographs are those in preschool through third grades and in bottom photographs those in fourth through eighth grades.

UK, UMass recall first game

Both teams show improvement over inaugural contest

By JIM O'CONNELL
AP Basketball Writer

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — It was just four months ago that Massachusetts opened its season by knocking off No. 1 Kentucky.

Since then, a lot has changed

Marcus Camby scored 32 points in the first UMass-Kentucky game this season.

for both teams, which meet again Saturday in the NCAA semifinals.

"That was early in the season and now it's two teams that have gotten a lot better," Kentucky's Tony Delk said Friday. "I was at the point then and everyone was out of position. We were trying to get our rotation down. They have gotten better because of a tough schedule."

Top-ranked Massachusetts (35-1) won that Nov. 28 meeting 92-82 behind the 32 points, nine rebounds and five blocks of All-America center Marcus Camby. "I didn't think we did a good job on Camby," Kentucky coach Rick Pitino said, "but I've watched the tape three times and we did a good job. He's just a great basketball player."

It was far from a perfect effort for the Minutemen that night at Auburn Hills, Mich., in the Great Eight tournament. UMass committed 23 turnovers against Kentucky's pressure.

The number of mistakes dropped all season as the backcourt of Edgar Padilla and Carmelo Travieso jelled into one of the best guard tandems in the country. They were at their best in the regionals, combining for just 12 turnovers against the pressure of Arkansas and Georgetown.

"The Kentucky game was the first game of the season, and we were just trying to get used to each other," Padilla said. "Now we know what we have to do and it showed against Arkansas and Georgetown."

Pitino said the first two games — the Wildcats opened with a 96-84 victory over Maryland — set the tone for the changes that changed everything.

"We got down big against Maryland, and then there was UMass," he said. "It was obvious we were not playing the right people together and we made a change, putting Anthony Epps at the point, and we let Tony Delk concentrate on scoring. Now it's been a great situation as far as the cohesiveness of the team, and EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — They are like the undercard before the main event, the junior-varsity game before the big boys take the court.

All season, Syracuse and Mississippi State have played in the shadows of others. Now that they've gotten to the Final Four, it seems nothing has changed.

Before top-ranked Massachusetts and No. 2 Kentucky take the court Saturday night in the most anticipated event of the college basketball season, Mississippi State meets Syracuse in a semifinal game viewed largely as a sideshow.

"We knew coming into this game that Kentucky and UMass was going to be billed as the championship before the championship," said Mississippi State forward Don-tae Jones, undaunted by the prospect of fans milling around the arena during his game, much like boxing fans do during the undercard of a big fight.

Even Mississippi State coach Richard Williams will be hurrying from his post-game news conference to get a glimpse of the Wildcats vs. the Minutemen.

"We're certainly not the marquee matchup," he conceded Friday. "You have the No. 1 and 2 teams in the

Crum fans nine; CFS gets one hit in shutout defeat

Staff Report
Murray Ledger & Times

It took the fourth game on the schedule to finally start the season, but Murray opened its defense of last season's regional championship Friday with a 10-0 district win over Christian Fellowship at Ty Holland Field.

Ethan Crum, starting the first game of the season for Murray after the first three games were canceled, picked up just where he left off last season, striking out nine while giving up just one hit and walking one in four innings of work.

"I was pretty impressed with the effort considering it was our first effort and it was fairly cold out," Murray coach Cary Miller said. "I feel like our pitching will be strong, and Ethan did a good job, as did Stephen Crouch (two strikeouts in one inning of relief)."

Murray took a 3-0 lead in the first inning on a three-run homer by Preston Weatherly after Jason West doubled and Ethan Crum walked.

The score increased to 5-0 in the second as West singled in Crouch, who had walked, and Tim Vaughan, who reached on a fielder's choice.

While Crum was blowing CFS away on the mound, Murray flourished offensively, adding

Lady Vols end Connecticut's quest for NCAA repeat

By CHUCK SCHOFFNER
AP Sports Writer

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — It took an extra five minutes, but nobody at Tennessee was complaining. The Lady Vols had finally beaten Connecticut.

Tennessee ended Connecticut's hopes of repeating as the NCAA women's champion and broke a three-game losing streak to the Huskies with an 88-83 overtime victory Friday night in the Final Four semifinals.

Stunned by a Connecticut 3-pointer that sent the game into overtime, Tennessee regrouped and made the plays it needed down the stretch. The fourth-ranked Lady Vols (31-4) hit seven of eight free throws in the final 1:43 and got a key defensive play from Tiffani Johnson to move into Sunday night's championship game against Georgia or Stanford.

"We just kept on attacking," Tennessee point guard Michelle Marciniak said. "We wanted to be sure and stay aggressive on the offensive end. It wasn't one player that got us here and it wasn't one player that was going to win the game for us."

That certainly proved to be the case. All five starters for Tennessee scored in double figures, led by Marciniak with 21 points. The Lady Vols will be playing in their sixth championship game and trying for their fourth title.

"It was a great win for a team that has started to believe they can figure out a way to win," Tennessee coach Pat Summitt said.

Connecticut had beaten Tennessee in last year's championship game to finish 35-0 and was trying to become just the second repeat champion in NCAA women's play. But the second-ranked Huskies (34-4) played the overtime without 6-foot-7 All-American Kara Wolters, who fouled out with 1:19 left in regulation, and couldn't get it done.

"I can't tell you the feeling in the locker room after the game and the reason I can't tell you is because you have to be a part of this team to understand what it's like," Connecticut coach Geno Auriemma said.

"That was a great college basketball game. I think they made some huge plays and I think we made some huge plays. Unfortunately, they made a few more than we did."

Connecticut sent the game into overtime at 75-75 when Nykesha Sales, who led all scorers with 28 points, hit a 3-pointer from the top of the key with 4.2 seconds left.

Lady Lakers down CFS

Calloway overcomes shaky first inning to win opener 20-9

Staff Report
Murray Ledger & Times

Calloway County overcame a shaky start to down Christian Fellowship 20-9 in the softball season opener Friday at the Murray City Park.

CFS took advantage of five walks and also had five hits in the first inning off Lady Laker pitcher Jessica Norsworthy to take a 6-0 lead, but Calloway tallied eight in the bottom of the first then took a 13-7 lead in the second and never trailed again. "We couldn't get it together in the first inning, and you can't walk that many early like that," Calloway coach Tommy Greer said.

Calloway also had five players reach base via the four-ball route in the first inning and took advantage of two CFS errors to take the lead for good. Calloway extended its lead to 17-9 in the third inning and tacked on three more in the fourth before the game was called at the 90-minute time limit, giving Calloway the district win.

Calloway racked up 12 hits on the day, led by Melanie Westbrook's three singles. Ashley Turner had two singles for the Lady Lakers while Norsworthy tripled and Jenny Pigg and Patricia Greer doubled. Shelley Stucker, Whitney Morris and Monica Lay all singled.

Norsworthy settled down after the first inning, allowing no more hits, giving up only two more walks and striking out four for the game.

"I think Jessica will come along and be a decent pitcher for us," Greer said.

Natalie Fuller had two of CFS' five hits. Bekah Phillippi was the losing pitcher.

Calloway's game with Fulton County scheduled for Monday has been canceled. The Lady Lakers face Murray Tuesday.

Calloway's Shelley Stucker avoids the CFS shortstop and heads for third in the first inning of Friday's game.

Mourning pours in 50 for Heat

MIAMI (AP) — Not bad numbers for Alonzo Mourning, 21 points and seven rebounds. And that was just in the first quarter. Mourning finished the game with a career-high 50 points Friday night as the Miami Heat defeated the Washington Bullets 112-93. "My teammates got the ball to me at the right place and the right time for me to do things with it," said Mourning, who also had 12 rebounds. One of the people getting the ball to Mourning was Tim Hardaway, who had 12 assists to go with 16 points.

Juwan Howard had 20 points and Ledell Eackles 18 for the Bullets, who never led or even scored more than four points in a row. Mourning finished the game hitting 17 of 24 field goal tries and connecting on 16 of 17 free throws. Mourning's almost perfect foul shooting was in contrast to his 3-of-13 performance from the line in Miami's last game, a 106-95 loss to the Los Angeles Lakers on Wednesday. "He was tortured for 48 hours about what happened the other night," said Miami coach Pat Riley. "He hit 16 of 17 free throws tonight, so he came back with a vengeance." Mourning worked hard on Thursday to improve his free throw shooting. "I went back and practiced and practiced and practiced," Mourning said. "They pay me a lot of money. If I go to the free throw line, I should be making them." Mourning's first-quarter effort was a franchise record and just one point shy of Washington's team total. He was 8-of-11 from the floor and 5-of-5 from the line during the quarter. "He was beating George Muresan down the floor and then on the offensive board," said Washington coach Jim Lynam. "That was the first quarter, fast breaks and offensive rebounds." The Heat have won nine of their last 11 games, with an average margin of victory of 18.8 points. Mourning scored 10 of his team's first dozen points as the Heat built a 12-2 lead after 3:41 of play.

JV game...

FROM PAGE 6 country playing the other game. I'm anxious to see what happens. I want to see that game." Still, the whole concept of UMass-Kentucky being the de facto national championship game is offensive to those involved in the first contest between Mississippi State (26-7) and Syracuse (28-8). "If people want to look at it as the JV game, we'll take it like that," Jones said. "But it's still the Final Four, and we still have a chance to play for the championship, and we're going to go into it playing like that." Of course, Mississippi State and Syracuse are used to their overlooked status. State was barely noticed this season because Kentucky was the first team in 40 years to go unbeaten in the Southeastern Conference. The Orangemen, meanwhile, were only the fourth-best team in the Big East. "We've sort of been the underdog the whole year long, and we feel we haven't gotten the respect we should have received throughout the year," Jones said. "But we don't worry about what the outside people think." Take heart, Bulldogs and Orangemen. The scenario at this Final Four is almost a carbon copy of the 1983 tournament. Houston and Louisville, both No. 1 seeds, wound up playing in one semifinal game at Albuquerque; the other contest had two longshot teams, North Carolina State and Georgia. After Phi Slama Jama — the great Houston team featuring Hakeem Olajuwon and Clyde Drexler — had defeated Louisville 94-81, everyone anointed the Cougars as champions. Two nights later, North Carolina State, a No. 6 seed that had won three tournament games by a total of four points, shocked Houston 54-52 on Lorenzo Charles' slam at the buzzer. "We're were in the preliminary game last week, supposedly," said Syracuse star John Wallace, referring to the Orangemen playing Georgia in the West Regional before Kansas met Arizona, "and we came off victorious. We're not worried about that at all. Of course, no one would argue that UMass and Kentucky are the best teams in the country, worthy of playing in a championship game. There have even been suggestions that the Final Four teams should be seeded to avoid a repeat in the future. But even UMass coach John Calipari disagreed with that idea. "It would just open up another can of worms," Calipari said.

UK, UMass...

FROM PAGE 6 that's where we've evolved." Kentucky (32-2) didn't lose again until the Southeastern Conference tournament championship game against Mississippi State, which meets Syracuse in the other Final Four game. It wasn't just a 27-game winning streak, it was a romp through the regular season with an average margin of victory of 23 points. That may explain why the Minutemen are 8-point underdogs. "We like being underdogs," Camby said. "We've been underdogs all year long. They've been beating people by a lot. Maybe that's why they're the favorite." Kentucky center Mark Pope isn't buying into that theory. "Gambling is like politics — I don't understand it," he said. "It doesn't make any sense. They beat us. They beat everyone they played. They've proven that they're a great team." Massachusetts' only loss was to George Washington. But the Minutemen's average margin of victory was nothing like Kentucky's. They won nine games by five points or less and had to go to overtime to win four games. "All those close games make them mentally tough," Delk said. Four of the wins came without Camby when he was waiting for medical clearance to resume playing after mysteriously collapsing in mid-January.

Tigers...

FROM PAGE 6 four more runs in the third for a 9-0 margin. Weatherly reached on an error, and after a Shane Schroeder single, Weatherly scored on a sacrifice fly by Kerry Colson. John David Poynor then followed with his second double of the game to bring home Schroeder. Crouch and Vaughan also singled, with Vaughan's hit scoring Poynor, and Crouch came home on a sacrifice fly by Shane Andrus.

Murray finished out the game in the fifth with singles by Colson, Poynor and Crouch, with Crouch's hit bringing home pinch runner Micah Cathey. The game was then called because of the 10-run rule. Murray totaled 11 hits as Poynor was 3-for-3, Crouch was 2-for-2, and West was 2-for-3, to go along with Weatherly's three-run homer. Mackenzie Logsdon singled for Christian Fellowship's only hit. Landon Owen was the losing pitcher. "We played aggressively, and it showed in how we ran the bases," Miller said. "We hustled and worked hard, and the seniors showed good leadership. "The players were so anxious

TIPS

Building A Composter

Building a composter is not difficult or expensive, the benefits are many and its a great family project thats ongoing throughout the year.

Materials needed includes 1"x4" treated lumber, 1/2x1/2 hardware and hook & eyes for ease in taking it apart. The bin should be at least 3'x3'x3' however the larger the bin the more productive it is. Two bins side by side is also a good idea. It allows the homeowner to have new or fresh material separate from already decomposing material.

Treas has the materials available and friendly helpful salespeople to assist you.

From all of us to all of you Merry Christmas and a prosperous New Year.

Perfect fishing weather is almost here

The season every angler who has fished here is looking and waiting for is very near. The water temperature has risen to a steady 50 degrees in the daytime and we are continuing to receive warm water from Tennessee and Alabama. Much of this input is stained and muddy and as the sunshine strikes it, will warm even faster. The normal spring rise to summer pool should start on April 1 and this will send a message to all of the bass, crappie, bluegill, etc., that the time has arrived and the water will continue to rise until the end of April.

Once these species of fish acknowledge this they will move in closer to the banks and cover to begin their spawning ritual.

Many times over the years conditions have come together so perfectly that everyone catches fish and it is a time to rejoice! We could have it again this year. At the present time, crappie are taking tube jigs, currtails, maribou and minnows over brushpiles, downed trees and along the edges of drops or ledges. It may seem strange to some but almost every person has a favorite color of jig which works for them and most are different from anyone else's. Once the crappie move into the shallows to spawn, everything and anything works. Color isn't important so if something moves they strike it.

The water elevation in the feeder creeks depends on the lake and as soon as the water rises to allow safe passage the fish will travel to the banks and be easy prey.

I would like to welcome Brenda Henderson as a new reader to our column. She spoke with Jeanne at work and said she enjoyed the stories very much. Brenda, I just happen to have a brand new story on hand so here it is.

Terry and Shelia Weiss brought their sons, Jonathan and Kevin, to Kentucky Lake for a fishing trip during spring break so they contacted me to take them out. The Sunday morning was one of the warmer days of the week so we traveled north to a bay with a long southern bank. Everyone made a few casts with road runner jigs, but some fish holding in the area wouldn't take them. Instead of a strike, it was like a slap.

I changed the lures to shadrap crankbaits and we started over. Terry had told the boys the first, largest and most fish caught would be worth a certain amount of money to add a little spice to the trip.

Jonathan, 13 years of age, was the first angler to score a strike and right away we knew he had hooked a big fish. I raised the engine clear of the water and maneuvered the boat so Jonathan could fight the fish. He was using an ultralight rod with 6 pound test and couldn't move the big fish very much. After seven or eight minutes the line broke and the fish and money were gone.

While I retied another lure on, I told of another time when I had a fish break my line and after announcing my intentions of getting my lure back, I cast and caught the same fish again and did get my lure back. This has happened twice! Everyone laughed. We continued back over the same bank because it is a good one and I had hopes of maybe getting that big fish again. Ten-year-old Kevin was standing on the bow deck with me and suddenly he set the hook with a loud grunt. He also had a light outfit and line, so I began to instruct him so we could land this fish. Ten minutes later Kevin reeled the fish alongside the boat where Terry could net it. Shelia was yelling encouragement and then she began saying over and over again there's two lures.

Finally, it was in the boat and everyone was laughing and yelling. Both Kevin's, and the lure Jonathan lost, was hanging on an 8 pound carp, stuck in the dorsal fin! Totally worn out, Kevin could hardly breathe, but he managed to wheeze out "Dad, give me my money!"

Everyone was all smiles the rest of the day. We caught some bass and crappie and made a lot of good memories we can share later.

Bass anglers have really landed some big ones this week in the Irvin Cobb area. Clint Roby brought in the largest at 8 lbs. 14 oz., Joe Fisher had a 7 lb. 9 oz., Wayne Baker a 7 lb. 6 oz. and a 7 lb. 2 oz., Jerry McCoy had a 5 lb. 9 oz. and Scott Krueger weighed in a 4 lb. 4 oz. one. Paul Krueger caught a grass pickerel that weighed 2 lbs. and Jerry Hardin had an 8 lb. 4 oz. spoonbill.

Gwinn Krueger didn't get to fish because she was so busy making snacks and sandwiches for everyone else! They have a new deli at the Irvin Cobb Marina.

Lets have a good weekend and everyone be safe. I think you can catch some good bass and or crappie.

I almost forgot to mention the bluegill have moved up onto the rocky shorelines and they are hungry but fat and sassy!

Happy Fishing!

State department of fish and wildlife rates lakes

By BEN D. HALL
For The Associated Press

HENDERSON, Ky. (AP) — Whatever your favorite fish, you won't have to travel far from home this year for angling rated as "good" or "excellent" by the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources.

In its "1996 Fishing Forecast," the agency lists 43 lakes and streams and analyzes the populations of major species in each. The forecast also includes fishing tips for each species at each location.

The surveys covered a wide range of waters from tiny Madison County Lake (21 acres) to Kentucky and Barkley Lakes, Lake Cumberland and the Ohio River.

Although the forecast doesn't claim to be exhaustive, its wide range of waters and species does give an excellent picture of fishing prospects for the year.

In pointing out special hotspots, the forecast lists these locations as "good" or "excellent" for the species indicated:

— Largemouth bass: Lake Barkley, Barren River Lake, Beaver Lake, Lake Beshear, Bullock Pen Lake, Carr Fork Lake, Elmer Davis Lake, Green River Lake, Greenbo, Guist Creek Lake, Herrington Lake, Kentucky

Lake, Kincaid Lake, Lake Malone, McNeely Lake, Nolin River Lake, Spurlington Lake, Taylorsville Lake, Wood Creek Lake and Yatesville Lake.

— Smallmouth bass: Barren River Lake, Dale Hollow Lake, Elkhorn Creek, Green River Lake and Kentucky Lake.

— White bass: Lake Barkley, Cave Run Lake, the Green River and Green River Lake, Nolin River Lake, the Ohio River (a consumption advisory is in effect so catch-and-release is advised), Rough River Lake and Taylorsville Lake.

— Stripped and/or hybrid striped bass: Lake Barkley and tailwaters, Barren River Lake, Lake Cumberland and tailwaters, Fishtrap Lake, Green River (Lock and Dam No.2 to mouth), Herrington Lake, Kentucky Lake and tailwaters, the Ohio River, and Taylorsville Lake.

— Crappie: Barkley, Buckhorn, Kentucky, Nolin River Lake, Fishtrap, the Green River and Green River Lake, Herrington, Kentucky Lake, Malone, Rough River Lake, and Yatesville Lake.

— Trout, rainbow and/or brown: Lake Cumberland tailwaters, Greenbo, Laurel River Lake, and Mill Creek Lake (excellent rainbows in stocking months — January, April, May and October; otherwise, fair to good).

— Bluegill and/or redear sunfish: Lake Barkley and tailwaters, Barren River Lake, Beshear, Buckhorn (redeer), Cave Run, Corinth and Dewey Lakes.

Also listed as top spots are Elmer Davis, Grayson, Green River, Herrington, Kentucky (and tailwaters) Malone, Nolin River, Rough River, Shanty Hollow, Taylorsville and Yatesville lakes.

— Channel catfish: Lake Barkley and tailwaters, Barren River Lake, Beaver, Beshear, Boltz, Buckhorn, Bullock Pen, Cave Run, Dewey, Elmer Davis, and Grayson lakes.

Other top cat spots include Green River Lake, Greenbo Lake, Guist Creek Lake, Kentucky Lake and tailwaters, Lake Kincaid, Mill Creek Lake, Nolin River Lake, the Ohio River, and Reba, Smoky Valley and Taylorsville lakes.

The listed waters are not the only places where good-to-excellent fishing is available, but they are better known and have public access.

A copy of the "1996 Fishing Forecast" is available by writing the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources at No. 1 Game Farm Road, Frankfort, Ky. 40601; (502) 564-4336.

Camouflage can help turkey hunters

By BEN D. HALL
For The Associated Press

HENDERSON, Ky. (AP) — Camouflage clothing can give us an edge whatever game we're after, but during turkey season it's essential that we be invisible in the woods.

The wild turkey's extraordinary powers of sight and hearing make it one of the toughest animals to outwit and we need all the help we can get, including good camo.

In time for Kentucky's turkey season, April 17-30, Haas Outdoors, Inc., a manufacturer of outdoor clothing in several camo patterns, offers these tips on how to disappear:

— Match patterns to background and consider wearing different patterns on top and bottom.

This has become almost standard practice. Since a turkey hunter usually sits on the ground with his back against a sizable tree, it's common to wear pants that look like the ground and a top garment that looks like tree bark.

— Always use camo on hands and face. Whether you use makeup or a mask and gloves, covering hands and face is vital since these are the body parts that you're most likely to move.

— Cover anything shiny such as watches, buttons, snaps and zippers.

— Purchase pants two or three inches longer than usual to cover light-colored socks and boots.

— Wear boots with dark soles. This is sometimes the first thing an animal will see if the hunter is sitting on the ground.

If your boots have light-colored soles, liquid shoe polish or dye will darken them.

— Avoid direct sunlight; if possible, face west in the morning and east in the afternoon. This will keep you in shadow and also keep the sun out of your eyes.

Avoid any red, white, or blue clothing with your camo. These are the colors of a turkey's head and that can put you in danger.

Homeplace-1850 begins 1996 operations April 1; various programs slated

The Homeplace-1850 living history farm at TVA's Land Between the Lakes begins its 1996 operations April 1.

The Homeplace recreates a mid-19th century farm with 16 reconstructed log structures and authentically furnished houses, plus a staff of interpreters dressed in period clothing who demonstrate daily chores and events of the era.

Special events and programs throughout the season bring middle Tennessee's past to life.

"We've really overhauled our event programming this year so we can provide more hands-on experiences for visitors," said Maryanne Andrus, education specialist.

One such program is the new Family Living History Experience, which will be offered July 26 and Aug. 9. Participants are outfitted in period clothing and spend the day as a member of the Homeplace staff performing farm and household chores, eating the midday meal with the staff and participating in other farm events.

The Homeplace-1850 is open 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Sundays from April to October, and 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Wednesday through Saturday and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Sundays during November.

For more information on The Homeplace-1850 and its programs, call (502) 924-2000 or (615) 232-6457.

WKMS features Paster

Not many doctors make house-calls anymore. Family practitioner Dr. Zorba Paster makes thousands nationwide each week on the public radio program "Zorba Paster on Your Health." The hour-long call in show, underwritten locally by Columbia PineLake Medical Center in Mayfield, is broadcast every Sunday at 6 p.m. by 91.3 WKMS-FM.

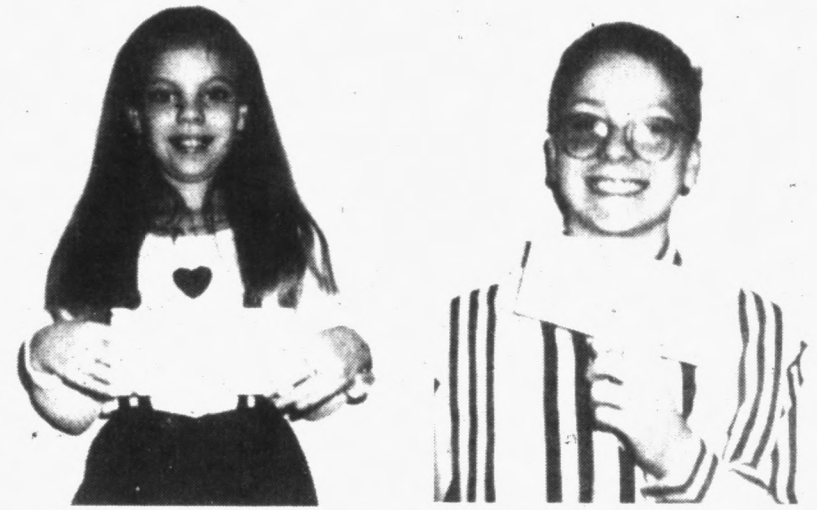

Paster and co-host Tom Glark talk about what's new in medicine, share tips for healthy living and share a low-fat heart-healthy recipe for the week. And Dr. Paster answers all kinds of health, fitness and nutrition questions called in by listeners from Honolulu to New York to San Antonio.

Paster has a family practice in Oregon, Wisconsin, is on the faculty of the University of Wisconsin-Madison Medical School and chairs Family Practice Department of the Dean Medical Center in Oregon.

Wisconsin. On the air he talks about prevention—especially through diet, exercise and lifestyle change—as well as treatments and cures.

When he's not practicing or discussing medicine, Paster is usually in the kitchen. He's an avid cook and has become a recipe-maker coming up with the weekly heart-healthy recipes for the show. He's even written a cookbook titled "Heart-Healthy (Low-Fat, Guilt-Free and Tasty) Recipes from the Kitchen of Zorba Paster. The book features such dishes as potato pizza, pork loin sweet potato stir fry and no-fat mocha chocolate cake. It's available free by calling WKMS at 800-599-4737.

WKMS 91.3 is the 100,000 watt public radio service of Murray State University broadcasting news and information, classical, jazz, folk and bluegrass and more 24 hours a day.

Marina changes owners

Irvin Cobb Marina is under new ownership. Paul and Gwinn Krueger purchased the resort and marina last fall. The business has been in operation for more than 40 years.

The marina offers 120 boat slips for boats 15 to 60 feet. There are 12 covered houseboat slips. Rentals of fishing boats, pontoons and waverunners are also available.

There is also a deli and fuel, picnic supplies and live bait are for sale. Depending on the season, the business has three to six employees.

Paul Krueger is retired from the U.S. Coast Guard after 20 years of service. Gwinn Krueger has been a registered nurse for 20 years. Their son, Scott, is a freshman at Murray High School.

"We are currently improving the existing docks, the fish cleaning station, the parking areas and the launching ramps. We are expanding the inventory of the ship's store and we want to promote safety and responsible boating recreation," said Paul Krueger.

The Kruegers plan a grand opening in late April.
