Six counties added to declaration

U.S. Sen. Wendell Ford (D-KY) said Tuesday that six more counties have been added to the administration's disaster declaration for the Commonwealth as a result of flooding.

The counties of Calloway, Casey, Graves, Johnson, Letcher and Simpson will be eligible for public assistance from the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) under the declaration.

Federal assistance will be made available to remove debris from public property to allow continued safe operation of governmental functions.

KSP warns citizens of soliciting scam

Post 1 of the Kentucky State Police has received complaints of phone solicitors using the state police name in an attempt to get money for flood victims. This is a scam. The KSP is not soliciting funds for flood victims or for any other reason.

The KSP is urging citizens to not give out their checking account or credit card number to anyone over the phone they do not know.

Student faces rape charge in MSU attack

■ Madisonville man held on $75,000 bond

By JIM MAHANES
Staff Writer

An anonymous tip has led to the arrest of a 31-year-old man for the alleged attack and rape of a Murray State University student, according to public safety officials.

Director of MSU public safety Joe Green said Benjamin R. Freitag, a junior English major from Madisonville, was arrested and charged with fourth-degree assault (class A misdemeanor), first-degree rape (class B felony), first-degree unlawful imprisonment (class D felony) and second-degree stalking (class A misdemeanor).

Green said Freitag was positively identified by the victim after his arrest. He said there were other factors which lead police to believe Freitag was the perpetrator but would not release that information.

The arrest stems from a Jan. 21 incident when a female student told campus police she was attacked in the parking lot of the school's special education building.

That woman later told school officials the same man raped her two days prior in the parking lot of a campus dormitory.

Both incidents were reported after another female student was assaulted Jan. 30. In the unrelated incident, a female student had her face slashed, by an unknown assailant.

Green said Freitag is not being charged in that case which is still under investigation.

MSU officials were bombarded with calls and tips after they hired a police sketch artist to make a composite drawing of the assailant and released it to area media outlets.

"We were able to make the arrest after receiving an anonymous tip from a female caller," Green said.

Sedalia Fire Department personnel look on as anhydrous ammonia is transferred from a damaged semi-truck (in background) to another truck at Hutson Ag Service in Graves County Wednesday morning.

Crews contain chem spill

By JIM MAHANES

Neighbors of Sedalia's Hutson Ag Service opted to stay put after a small chemical leak occurred there early Wednesday morning.

According to hazardous materials expert Eddie Clark of the Kentucky State Fire Marshall's office, residents were not in immediate danger but were given the option to evacuate.

Clark said a small amount of chemical vapor was released about 4:30 a.m. when the driver of a semi-truck carrying anhydrous ammonia accidentally knocked the end cap off a 12,000-gallon tank as he pulled into Hutson Ag to unload.

Patton threatens Wethington's job

■ Governor blasts UK board for misinformation

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — In a dramatic confrontation before the University of Kentucky's trustees, Gov. Paul Patton faced UK President Charles Wethington and accused him of distorting his proposal to shake up higher education.

Afterward, Patton said he had lost confidence in Wethington. He also said he would expect his future trustee appointees to share his philosophy.

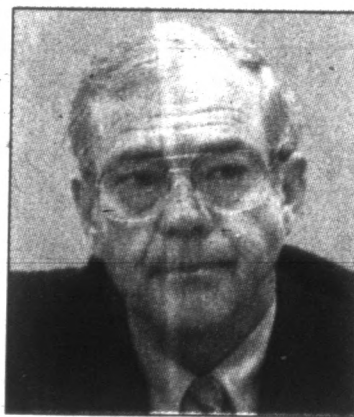

Wethington denied Patton's allegation, and the current Board of Trustees lined up behind him.

At issue is Patton's proposal to excise UK's 14 community colleges and place them in a separate system with the state's vocational-technical schools. It is but one facet of a larger, long-range plan for public education beyond high school, but it has become an issue — a volatile issue — unto itself, and UK is using its considerable influence to thwart it.

Before Patton arrived at their meeting Tuesday, the trustees passed a resolution that said the board "strongly opposes any move to separate the community college system from UK." After Patton left, board members gave Wethington a standing ovation.

In between, they listened in silence as Patton blamed Wethington for "a whole litany of fears" in the community colleges.

GOV. PAUL PATTON

In a weeklong tour of the two-year campuses, Patton said, he found students had been led to believe they would lose scholarships and UK library services and that their credits would not be transferable if their institutions ceased to be a part of UK.

"Quite frankly, I did not expect this university to use its resources to distort the position of the governor of this commonwealth," Patton said. "It is not fitting that this issue, so important to the people of Kentucky, be decided on false information."

Patton's larger plan, endorsed earlier Tuesday by presidents of the other seven state universities, includes strengthening doctoral-level research at UK and the University of Louisville. He claims the community colleges, with remedial courses and many offerings that do not lead to four-year degrees, detract from that goal.

UK has fired back with radio and television spots extolling the community college system, which was born in the early 1960s.

Wethington said he was "simply trying to get out information," and he denied he had distorted Patton's position.

Nor had he told anyone that community college credits and scholarships and the like would be lost under Patton's plan, Wethington said. "There is no way that I could speculate on what's going to happen if we were not in charge any longer" of the community colleges, he said.

As for Patton's statements about him, Wethington said the governor was attacking the institution.

"The university community, and I think the people of Kentucky, usually get concerned

Snowstorm claims life, paralyzes parts of Northeast

By JON MARCUS
Associated Press Writer

BOSTON (AP) — New Englanders faced winter-like landscapes instead of spring daffodils today after an April Fools' Day storm dumped up to 3 feet of snow from Pennsylvania to Massachusetts.

At least three deaths were blamed on the storm, which shut down schools and businesses, stranded hundreds of travelers and knocked out power to nearly a million people.

It was the third biggest blizzard in Boston history, and it shattered the previous snowfall record for the entire month of April in just a few hours.

Public transportation was crippled, cars were buried under snowdrifts, roads were barely passable, highways were closed, airports were shut down and downtowns looked like ghost towns.

Authorities predicted that it could take days to clear all the roads and electric utility officials said some customers may be without power until Friday.

Prior to the storm, Boston had received just 26.5 inches of snow this winter — well below the 43-inch average and last year's record 107.6 inches.

Towns already had begun to put away their plows for summer when the storm hit. Hardware stores with patio furniture displays had to break out the shovels when political leaders start attacking one of their institutions, whether it be the University of Kentucky or one of the other institutions in this state," Wethington said.

"So, I will certainly look forward to the reaction of the commonwealth to the attack on the University of Kentucky. I'm not the important figure here. It's the University of Kentucky."

Today, Patton took to the road to try to explain and sell his plan to influential groups off the campuses. Patton met privately with the board of the Kentucky Chamber of Commerce and the Kentucky Advocates for Higher Education this morning.

Patton said he was hoping for endorsements of his plan from both groups. He also said he would welcome any financial support from the groups to finance an advertising campaign, which would help to combat the "propaganda" coming from UK.

During his appearance at UK, Patton was not universally repudiated. As he crowded into an elevator to leave the building Wednesday, several people who identified themselves as faculty shouted encouragement to him.

"The guy has guts, no doubt about it," said Don Coleman, a math professor.

Patton was correct when he said the community-college debate has become political, not rational, Coleman said. He has qualms about Patton's proposals, particularly the idea of creating another governing board for community and technical colleges, Coleman said. But neither can he get an answer from UK administrators when he asks why UK should continue running the community colleges, Coleman said.

"I don't see the point to it. There doesn't seem to be any good reason for it," Coleman said.

Patton made nearly the same argument to the trustees. He said it was wise to create the system as a part of UK, which could nurture it through its formative years.

"But the child has grown," Patton said. "The time has come to set the child free."

Nevertheless, Patton said after the meeting that he had proposed a compromise to Wethington that would keep UK's name on a new community and technical college system. UK also would have been allowed to select two of the system's eight trustees, Patton said. But Wethington insisted on retaining control of the system's budget and personnel, Patton said.

Wethington said he was "not aware of any formal offer the governor has made." He said he proposed some alternatives of his own to Patton, including moving the vote-tech schools into the community college system as part of UK.

Patton said a more serious matter was a letter Wethington wrote to him last week, and at the same time made public, that questioned whether the research goals set by Patton could be realized for less than $1 billion or more in 20 years.

Patton urged the trustees to investigate Wethington's figures.

"If that document is accurate, then we may as well abandon that goal," Patton said. "If it is not, in fact, a valid, scholarly document, then I have serious problems that Dr. Wethington would try to use the document to discredit me, the governor. Under any circumstances, the document distorts my position."

The trustees' resolution, meanwhile, included a promise to launch a fund raising campaign "to augment the funds promised by the governor." Money would be used for endowed chairs, professorships and scholarships, the resolution said. No target amount was mentioned.

Along with residential neighbors of Hutson Ag, fire department personnel notified officials at Sedalia Elementary School, located less than one mile west of the scene.

"They (school officials) came down and assessed the situation. We went over to the school and could find no sign of vapor or odor. Since what little wind we had was blowing from the north-east, I told them they could start school at the regular time," Clark said. "I did tell them to keep the buses at the school for a while in case something happened and we had to evacuate later."

Anhydrous ammonia is a liquid form of ammonia gas. The chemical is usually mixed with water or other chemicals and used as a fertilizer by farmers because of its high nitrogen content.

"When inhaled, it will absorb all the moisture and oxygen in the lungs and basically you suffocate," Clark said. "But this was a small leak that was soon neutralized with water by the fire department."

Clark said the small amount of ammonia vapor released minimized the danger of the leak.

"Anytime it is released can be a serious situation, but the fire department got here in a short time and began spraying water on the vapor as it leaked," Clark said.

As of press time, about 75 percent of the chemical had been transferred to another truck.

again.

One Boston man suffered chest pains while shoveling snow and died later at Massachusetts General Hospital. Two Rhode Island men died after suffering heart attacks shoveling snow. In addition, New York police said a traffic death might have been caused by the snow.

And 10 people were treated at Rhode Island Hospital for injured or lost fingers because they tried to clear jammed snowblower blades with their hands.

Two feet of snow fell at Logan International Airport, which was closed from 2 p.m. Monday to 10 p.m. Tuesday, stranding thousands of travelers. One commuter, Karen Wallach, called it "Mother Nature's April Fools' joke."

Pennsylvania Gov. Tom Ridge declared a disaster in eight northeast counties and the National Guard was dispatched to dig out cars stalled in the middle of some highways. Interstate 84 was closed by an accident involving eight tractor-trailers and two cars.

About 1,000 motorists spent Monday night stranded in their cars and 4,000 others stayed in shelters. Volunteers with snowmobiles and four-wheel drive vehicles rode to the rescue.

"If this is what Spring's going to be," said Charles Webb, a transportation maintenance manager in York County, "I'd rather have winter."

By Tuesday, temperatures climbed into the 60s and much of the snow in Pennsylvania had melted.

Two feet of snow fell in some sections of New Jersey, causing delays on commuter trains.

The Baltimore Orioles postponed their opening-day home game against the Kansas City Royals because of cold weather and high winds.

Nearly 13 percent of New England was without power during the peak of the storm, and emergency crews were called in from as far away as Maryland and Canada. Most of the power outages were caused by trees taking out powerlines and utility poles.

"Trees are coming down like crazy, like toothpicks," said Paul Miller, an inspector for Boston Edison.

Commuter trolleys that normally carry more than 100,000 passengers a day into Boston were closed by snow for the first time in two decades.

the school, Green thanked residents and area law enforcement agencies that offered assistance and resources in resolving the crimes.

"It's been a long, hard road to get here, but we're glad to have made an arrest in this case," Green told the Ledger. "We're still investigating the other (slashing) case and hope to get a break in that soon."

Freitag is being held in the Calloway County Detention Center on a $75,000 cash bond. He is scheduled to be arraigned some time this week in Calloway District Court.

Youths have hard time buying cigarettes

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The new tobacco-ID law appears to be accomplishing its mission — making it difficult for youths to purchase cigarettes.

A spot check of Louisville-area stores found that most follow the U.S. Food and Drug Administration rule that people who look younger than 27 be asked for an ID.

The proportion of retailers who sold tobacco illegally to underage "investigative aides" used by the state Department of Alcohol Beverage Control dropped from 30 percent in February to 16 percent last month.

Fifty-four of 182 retailers investigated in February were cited, compared with 28 of 177 checked last month.

State law forbids sales to anyone under 18.

Larry Hatfield, program coordinator for teens and tobacco in the state Agriculture Department, said, "The publicity about the FDA made an impression on the clerks."

Some retailers are going even farther than required by the FDA rule and carding older customers. These retailers include Joe Melton III, who owns Melton's Food Mart.

Although he said he thinks the rule imposes unreasonable requirements on clerks, he cards everybody who seems to be under 40.

Margaret Plattner, coordinator of Kentucky's teen tobacco enforcement program, said she thinks it's too early to tell what the long-range impact of the FDA rule will be, partly because there is nobody designated in Kentucky yet to enforce the federal rule.

The FDA has said it plans to pay to start enforcing its program this month and next in 10 pilot states that haven't been designated yet, and to fund the remaining 40 by next fall.

The federal government's goal of reducing tobacco sales to minors has made an impression at one Thornton's gas station and convenience store, where signs advise: "We card everybody under 30."

Donna Davis, an assistant manager at a Thornton's store, said that on a recent morning, she'd carded about 15 people in the five hours since she started her shift at 6 a.m.

"Some of them get mad and curse you out, especially if they don't have an ID with them," she said.

After one woman called her a harsh unpleasant, Ms. Davis said she replied, "I'm sorry, but this is my job." The customer returned with her ID and bought her cigarettes.

But Ms. Davis also noted that "A lot of times, if they don't have an ID, they just leave and don't come back when you ask them. So you figure they were under 18."

Brad Stone, an FDA spokesman in Washington, said clerks aren't required to check IDs if they already know a customer's age. In other words, an employee doesn't have to card the same 18-year-old day after day.

That can explain why some people who look younger than 27 aren't carded. It happened at a BP gas station when a woman who appeared to be in her mid-20s bought cigarettes.

She said she hadn't been carded "because I come in here at the same time every day."

Stone said the goal of the regulations is to prevent sales to people under 18. So if a clerk failed to card a 26-year-old who most people would agree looks like he's 30, then it's unlikely the FDA would be upset.

"If it was a one-time deal," Stone said, "it probably wouldn't trigger any lasting concern."

CompuServe denies rumor online for sale

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — CompuServe Inc., which operates the second-largest online service, is denying rumors that it might be bought by its larger rival, America Online.

"To our knowledge we are not currently for sale," spokeswoman Gail Whitcomb said Tuesday. "To our knowledge there are no offers on the table. To our knowledge there's nothing going on."

However, CompuServe stock gained 11.6 percent, or $1.14 a share, on the Nasdaq Stock Market on Tuesday, and America Online rose 7.6 percent, or $3.25, on the New York Stock Exchange, apparently in reaction to the rumors.

H&R Block Inc., which owns 80 percent of Columbus-based CompuServe, had wanted to spin off the online service, but put those plans on hold because CompuServe was not profitable recently.

Strongest with business and professional users, CompuServe lost a lot of money in a failed attempt to create a separate service for families and computer novices, the mainstay of America Online's rapid growth.

America Online, based in Dulles, Va., has more than 8 million subscribers and CompuServe has fewer than 3 million. Both offer Internet access and proprietary services such as online magazines, forums and chat groups.

Since America Online grew so fast that customers were complaining they couldn't get the unlimited service they were charged for, it could benefit from obtaining CompuServe's resources.

A combined company also might be in a better position to compete with Microsoft Corp., the computer industry giant whose relatively new online service quickly became the nation's third-largest.

CompuServe also is strong in Europe and Japan, where America Online has been trying to expand.

Even if a merger would benefit both companies, it still would face formidable barriers, including America Online's lack of cash, the companies' different styles of operation and the need for regulatory approval.

An America Online spokeswoman said the company didn't comment on rumors or speculation.

Breast cancer 'switch' discovered

NEW YORK (AP) — Scientists have isolated a substance they believe triggers breast cancer and whose discovery could lead to valuable advances in early detection and treatment of the disease.

Researchers at the State University of New York-Stony Brook said they found that the molecule mitogen-activated protein kinase, or MAP kinase, exists at levels five to 20 times higher in women with breast cancer than in normal breast tissue.

The discovery is reported in the April issue of The Journal of Clinical Investigation. An accompanying editorial calls it "an extremely exciting finding that has the potential of identifying an important therapeutic target."

"Breast cancer strikes about 180,000 American women each year, and is expected to kill 44,000 this year."

Dr. Craig C. Malbon, vice dean of Stony Brook's University Medical Center and head of the research team, said Tuesday that migration of MAP kinase into the nucleus of a cell signals the cell to begin replicating itself, causing cancer.

Previous research has shown that MAP kinase signals cells to proliferate, Malbon said. The new research established a link between extremely high levels of the molecule and the growth and spread of breast cancer, he said.

Elevated levels of MAP kinase also were found in the lymph nodes of breast cancer patients whose cancer spread to other parts of their body, making the molecule a marker for those so-called metastatic cancers, he said.

The discovery could allow doctors to test for high levels of MAP kinase in breast cells, allowing detection of breast cancer even before noticeable tumors develop, Malbon said.

It also raises the possibility of introducing special molecules to cancerous cells designed to "turn off" the MAP kinase cell.

Such targeted treatment in cases that are detected early can be preferable to the more scatter-shot approaches of radiation therapy or chemotherapy, Malbon said.

The Stony Brook study was funded in part by the American Cancer Society and involved examination of tissue specimens from more than 25 patients — some with normal breast tissue, some with breast cancer and some with other breast diseases.

New zoo exhibit draws 6,000-plus

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — More than 6,000 people turned out to see Cuban crocodiles, Komodo dragons, fruit bats, fishing cats and other creatures in a new section of the Louisville Zoo.

Mayor Jerry Abramson, actress and conservationist Betty White and other dignitaries dedicated the 30,000-square-foot addition to the $14 million Islands exhibit on Tuesday. The first section, which features an Indonesian village and forest, opened a year ago.

Music, dancing and magic acts heralded the new birds and beasts, which hail from several continents and include some of the world's most endangered species.

The menagerie is displayed in 10 exhibit areas; visitors pass through a volcanolike entrance to get to them.

White, star of television's "The Golden Girls" and other shows, said she has been a life-long "zoo freak," serving on the board of the Los Angeles Zoo for 24 years.

No consensus on effects of balancing the budget

By ALAN FRAM
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — It's Halloween 1997, and with Republican congressional leaders beaming behind him, President Clinton uses a televised White House ceremony to sign a bill both parties say will balance the budget by 2002.

Two scenarios come into play: —Jubilant investors push stocks higher and interest rates downward, giving Americans a break on home and car purchases and consumer loans. In 2002, deficits vanish and lending rates stay low as reduced federal borrowing eases competition for money. Decades later, the cumulative benefits for today's children are statistically slight but telling: Businesses have expanded, created jobs and improved people's standard of living. Voters reward Republicans for delivering their balanced-budget promise with continued congressional control in 1998 and, in 2000, the White House.

—Another consequence of striking a deal could be a conclusion by Wall Street that the budget-balancing plan is riddled with gimmicks and won't solve the red-ink problem. Interest rates don't move. According to this scenario, the economy slows in 1998, shoving projected deficits skyward and making a balanced budget in 2002 a pipedream. Politically, the deal is a wash because it was backed by majorities of both parties and signed by a Democratic president. In short, very little impact.

Those are two of many possibilities if — as some believe — Clinton and Congress strike a budget-balancing deal this year. As those scenarios dramatize, uncertainty and contradictions abound. Bad timing, too.

Even as the two camps commence a hunt for a budget compromise that could dominate their 1997 agendas, economic reality is slowing the political momentum. Three unavoidable facts make the drive a tough sell to voters: Federal deficits have dropped four straight years, the stock market has raced ever higher and the economic expansion is barreling into its seventh consecutive year. As a result, although the deficit has long been a major public concern, polls trace a waning interest. People seem less worried about this now.

A Gallup poll taken for CNN and USA Today in January showed just 8 percent of Americans considered the deficit the country's top economic problem, down from 28 percent a year earlier.

"Without any symptoms, it's hard to say that one has an illness," said Robert Reich, former director of the Congressional Budget Office.

A wide spectrum of lawmakers say they support balancing the budget by 2002 or thereabouts, although disputes rage over how, and no one knows if there are enough votes to pass any one plan. Even Congress' only proclaimed socialist, Rep. Bernard Sanders of Vermont, says the budget should move toward balance, a notion once professed solely by Republicans.

Powerful political forces are shoving both sides toward agreement.

Clinton, House Speaker Newt Gingrich, R-Ga., and Senate Majority Leader Trent Lott, R-Miss., would love to boast about such a substantive achievement, especially in a political atmosphere in which Clinton faces continued ethical scrutiny, and Gingrich weighs how to pay a $300,000 financial penalty assessed by the House ethics committee for his admitted mistakes.

Many Republicans see the exercise as a way to shrink government, and say voters would reward the GOP for forcing Democrats to finally balance the budget. Many Democrats think a deal would mute an issue that has long bloodied them.

"Republicans have used this to beat Democrats over the head for years," argues Democratic pollster Mark Mellman. "If you can vote to take it off the table, that's a pretty attractive option."

Advocates say balancing the budget would spur economic growth, reduce credit costs for consumers by lowering interest rates, and free federal dollars now spent to finance government borrowing for needed programs like education.

It also would help prepare for the huge Social Security and Medicare bills coming due when the Baby Boomers begin retiring in 2008.

In a March report, the nonpartisan Congressional Budget Office said balancing the budget by 2002 could erase one-third to half the long-term red ink that lies beyond.

A balanced budget "helps our economy and preserves and strengthens our future," Clinton said recently. And Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan says reducing deficits is of "critical importance to our nation's economic welfare."

But skeptics of all stripes remain.

Many liberals say the true path to economic health is extra federal spending for education and public works, and argue that keeping the deficit small compared to the overall $8 trillion size of the economy is sufficient. Many conservatives such as former GOP vice presidential nominee Jack Kemp think cutting taxes is the higher priority.

"Balancing the budget is the means to an end of getting Washington's burden on the economy reduced," said former GOP presidential contender Steve Forbes. "We have to be increasing peoples' opportunity to move ahead by reducing the tax burden on them."

The question divides economists.

When the National Association of Business Economists polled its members in February, they ranked federal deficits and spending as the country's third worst economic problem. Savings and productivity was their chief worry, while labor force quality and income distribution inequality ranked second.

And in a survey of economics professors in March, the Wall Street Journal found that just one in 10 said balancing the budget by 2002 would have a major impact on growth.

FRANKFORT — With all the attention paid to the war between Gov. Paul Patton and University of Kentucky President Charles Wethington over the future of UK's community colleges, a key feature of Patton's plan to reform the entire state post-secondary education system largely has been overlooked. Money.

Any truly effective reform of the system — which now costs three quarters of a billion dollars a year — will require more money and lots of it.

And Patton's reform plan, made public last week, has great potential to be truly effective. Again, though, that hinges on more money to support the reformed system.

Patton for some time has promised $100 million in new spending on post-secondary education and he has made the promise contingent on most or all of his proposed reforms being passed by the General Assembly in May. That's especially true of the controversial removal of the 14 community colleges from UK control and placement under a new board that also would oversee the state's post-secondary technical schools.

So far, however, Patton hasn't been all that detailed about how the extra $100 million will be spent.

AGREE OR NOT

Todd Duvall

Syndicated columnist

In his televised speech and press conference last week, Patton threw out some million-dollar figures, but given the scope of the reforms themselves and the cost of what Patton hopes in time to accomplish, they really weren't very impressive.

Beginning in 1998, Patton plans a general increase in post-secondary education spending of $20.3 million. That's not much given eight full universities, the community colleges and technical schools.

In the war of words — and numbers — between Patton and Wethington, the UK president says the cost of turning the University of Kentucky into a nationally ranked research institution is a one-time appropriation of nearly $800 million and another $100 million a year in on-going appropriations.

Patton proposes an extra $4 million in research funds for UK next year.

While Wethington's astronomical figures undoubtedly are exaggerated — or delusional — it certainly will require a huge investment in facilities, faculty and support personnel to elevate UK into the ranks of the nation's top research institutions. Four million a year won't do that.

Nor will Patton's proposed $2 million extra next year raise the University of Louisville into the top ranks of urban universities.

And all the while, more money must go to the regional universities to help them meet Patton's challenge and, of course, the community colleges and technical schools.

Inevitably, an end to the ridicuous duplication of courses and programs within the existing system will free up higher education funds, but that's going to take time to accomplish and, realistically, it will not produce anywhere near the amounts that are necessary to meet Patton's challenge to UK, U of L and the other institutions.

Patton clearly knows this and, if the legislature gives him the kind of reforms he wants, he must be prepared to spend just about every available surplus tax dollar on the reformed system.

Even the $50 million state revenue officials say won't now be necessary to pay back taxes on the unconstitutional state tax on stock in out-of-state corporations won't make much of a dent.

As Patton's opponents, led by Wethington and UK's army of supporters statewide, gear up to defeat all or major parts of Patton's ambitious plan, the danger is that the incentive, in the form of substantial new appropriations, legislators need to endorse the plan just won't be there.

So Patton must follow up his fine exhortation for greatness with a lot of money to pay for greatness. And soon.

Gingrich talk may help him in GOP

WASHINGTON (AP) — Just a week after he was proclaimed "road kill on the highway of American politics" by a fellow Republican, Newt Gingrich is winning praise from GOP colleagues for his tough talk on China.

Whether the new, perhaps grudging, respect from conservatives will help the embattled speaker regain his footing in the House is an open question.

But Gingrich has an unexpected ally in his struggle for rehabilitation: the White House.

In an arena where all things are interconnected, Gingrich's confrontational remarks during his trip to Asia won widespread praise from some of the conservative activists who had all but abandoned him a week before.

That ultimately could strengthen Gingrich's hand in dealing with his own troops and the White House on both party's top legislative priority this year, a compromise plan to balance the federal budget by 2002.

"Newt Gores China," said a memo of "talking points" issued Tuesday by the National Republican Congressional Committee. It drew a deliberate comparison to Vice President Al Gore's simultaneous visit to China.

The gist of the memo: Gingrich upstaged Gore.

"Sometimes it's better to be lucky than good. Having Gore there in China at the same time was very helpful," said Rich Galen, spokesman for the committee and author of the memo.

Gore, unlike Gingrich, trod carefully on controversial issues with his Chinese hosts, and returned from his closely watched overseas trip with little in terms of specific commitments.

The White House clearly was uncomfortable dealing with Gingrich's remarks, particularly when he told Chinese leaders the United States would defend Taiwan in any attack on the self-governing island.

"The speaker knows full well that the president is commander in chief," White House spokesman Mike McCurry said.

But White House officials, more privately, were not displeased to see the speaker roughing up China a bit, particularly if it would help re-establish his own shaky position among Republicans.

The reason: Gingrich suddenly has emerged as someone the White House believes it can deal with.

On China, Gingrich generally supports President Clinton's policy of engagement, despite his blunt words on human rights.

But it's in the budget area where the administration thinks it has the most chance of making headway with Gingrich.

Gingrich caught many colleagues off guard with his dramatic proposal last month that they temporarily delay consideration of prized tax cuts until a deal to balance the budget had been struck with the administration.

It produced near-open rebellion in some GOP quarters. But the White House seized upon it as an important opening.

"I have to compliment Newt. He's been very constructive on the budget," said John Hilley, Clinton's chief legislative lobbyist. "That was a huge step for him to do that."

In an interview Tuesday, Hilley said Gingrich's gesture — as well as several goodwill overtures from Senate Majority Leader Trent Lott, R-Miss. — were "true indications of flexibility trying to come our way."

"What I feel so good about this year is that the leaders all want to get this budget agreement done," Hilley said.

But Gingrich will have difficulty exerting leadership if he doesn't have the support of his own party.

Just last week, Republican

Rep. Peter King, R-N.Y., who had supported Gingrich's speakership previously and had criticized ethics charges against the Georgia lawmaker, pronounced Gingrich "road kill" in an article in the conservative journal the Weekly Standard.

In many ways, Gingrich's red-blooded tough talk during his five-day trip to Asia was an attempt to mend fences with the conservatives he had alienated earlier.

Fred Greenstein, a political science professor at Princeton University, said House Republicans appear to have been the only audience for any "upstaging contest" between Gingrich and Gore.

Gingrich "made a view for his own constituency that has a certain sense," Greenstein said. Still, it probably won't do much for the overall public approval rating of a speaker who seems "locked in as the ogre of American politics," Greenstein said.

Bill Kristol, publisher of the Weekly Standard and a Gingrich critic, grudgingly gave the speaker high marks for the trip, especially in contrast to Gore's.

"I think he had a successful trip to China. He deserves credit for it," Kristol said. Still, he added, "I don't know that it really changes things at home."

For once, the White House seemed to be cheering for Gingrich.

Smothers Brothers sidekick Paulsen has cancer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Comic Pat Paulsen, the former Smothers Brothers sidekick who made a career out of hilarious runs for the presidency, has inoperable brain cancer, his daughter said Tuesday.

Paulsen, 69, had colon cancer surgery two years ago and underwent chemotherapy, but doctors recently told him the cancer had spread to his brain and throughout his lymph system, Terri Paulsen said.

"According to the doctors here in this country, the prognosis is zip. There's nothing they can do. They said, 'We can't do anything more for you,'" his daughter told The Associated Press from the Paulsen home in suburban Tujunga.

But Paulsen's family urged the entertainer to seek unorthodox therapies in Mexico and "many of the treatments are working." She wouldn't divulge the nature of the treatments.

"Our philosophy is we want families to seek out alternative treatments," Terri Paulsen said. "Just 2½ weeks ago he couldn't sit up. Today, he took a little walk with the walker, he took a shower."

"We're seeing improvement. He's not going to give up. They have given him hope."

Paulsen, weak from earlier chemotherapy, was shaving Tuesday afternoon and couldn't come to the telephone. But he joked earlier that his Mexico visits had secondary purposes.

"A lot of those people will be registered voters in L.A. in the year 2000," he told the Press Democrat of Santa Rosa.

The deadpan comedian became a household name in 1968 when he announced on "The Smothers Brothers Comedy Hour" that he was running for president under the Straight Talkin' American Government party. He won an Emmy that year and by 1972 was on the ballot for real.

He campaigned in five presidential elections and claimed to have finished second to President Clinton in last year's New Hampshire primary.

"If elected, I will win," he said while roaming the halls of the United Center at last summer's Democratic Convention in Chicago.

Paulsen lived on a ranch south of Cloverdale in the Sonoma County wine country, where he produced award-winning wine. He lost the property and winery in 1992 when he divorced his second wife.

Paulsen, who now lives in Tujunga with his wife, Nomo, was first diagnosed with colon cancer in November 1995 and underwent radiation and chemotherapy several months later.

He continued to perform until last November, two months before he learned about the brain cancer.

Hazel Woman's Club gives donations

A program about Longaberger baskets was presented by Cindy Wilson and Mary Ann Orr at a meeting of Hazel Woman's Club held recently at Hazel Community Center.

Linda Bennett, president, presided. Carolyn Parks gave the devotion and led in the pledge to the American flag. Janice Wilkinson gave the treasurer's report. Mrs. Bennett read a note from Glen Leckie thanking the club for the $25 donation given to the Calloway County High School Art Department.

Clarkie Butterworth, chairman of International Affairs, said the club will again mail gift bags for "Operation Smile." Members are to spend about $5 on the bag of gifts for children in the hospital having surgery. The club ordered three "Operation Smile" pins at a cost of $15.

Hilda Bennett, chairman of Public Affairs, reported on the "Independent Hall Preservation Fund" which is used to preserve Independence Hall where the Liberty Bell is kept. The club voted to donate $20 to that project.

The president appointed Rita Emery, chairperson, Sharon Ray and Inez Butterworth to the scholarship committee.

Also present, not previously mentioned, were Sandra Gallimore, Pat Latimer, Nancy Overbey, Teresa Price, Elaine Paschall, and Marla Thompson.

Walk-for-Life will be April 12 at LifeHouse

By KATY WALLS
LifeHouse Writer

LifeHouse Care Center for Women will hold its annual Walk-for-Life on Saturday, April 12.

Pledge sheets are available at LifeHouse, 1506 Chestnut St., and New Life Christian Bookstore on the court square. Registration at the LifeHouse will be from 1 to 5 p.m. on Friday, April 11, and on Saturday, April 12, at 9 a.m.

Following warm-ups and a few praise songs, the walkers will leave together on a new and shorter route at 9:30 a.m. When the walkers return, brunch and entertainment will be waiting for them on Life House's lawn.

Walkers who collect $25 or more will receive a free t-shirt. All walkers will be given a complimentary movie rental from New Life Christian Bookstore. Kids will take home balloons and a coupon for a free Dairy Queen ice cream cone.

The Walk-for-Life is a fundraiser held every April by LifeHouse. The money raised helps support LifeHouse's ministry. The services at LifeHouse include providing emotional support and practical help for women experiencing crisis pregnancy; PACE, a post-abortion Bible study/support group; and "Why kNOW," an abstinence program for youth.

The walk is a perfect opportunity for someone to get involved with LifeHouse or just learn more about the ministry.

Those interested in participating may contact LifeHouse at 753-0700 for more information.

Wickliffe Mounds will host a Native American Flute Making Seminar on Saturday, April 12, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Ron Sapp of Chamois, Mo., will lecture on the process involved in creating a Native American flute.

Seminar attendees will learn about how to make Native American flutes, which starts even before wood is touched. Illustrated handouts will be distributed showing the different stages of the process and types of tools needed.

Anyone with basic wood working skills already will leave the seminar able to make a flute; individuals will not be making a flute that day.

Sapp has been making Native American flutes for over eight years. He learned the art of flute making from Woodlow Hancy and Doc Tate.

Sapp said, "There are only four other instruments in the world designed to be used like a Native American flute. European flutes are made differently to play in a specifically defined and scientific scale."

The seminar will cost $10. Space is still available and a spot can be reserved by sending a check to: WMRC, P.O. Box 155, Wickliffe, KY 42087. Reservations can also be made by calling Wickliffe Mounds at 1-502-335-3681.

FUN & FASHION By D.K. Kelley

Fashion for the Spring of '97 can be best described as the season of romance. The season that encourages women to be women as opposed to last fall's push of the military mindset. Spring is ruffles, layers of sheer fabrics, lots of dresses, and the skirt or pant suit. Flattering soft knits that are not clinging but caress and drape on your body in a light weight mate fabric that is fluid and feminine. From jackets to pants to gracefully flowing skirts, knits are popular with all age groups.

Spring is typically a season for dresses, this year an assortment of chemises, tanks wraps, long or short; you have an array of choices — form fitting or willowing — take your pick.

Some of the top trends for this spring are of course citrus colors, muted pastels, taupes and khaki's. Lots of layering, sheer floating see through tops and dresses, that call for the perfect undergarments.

One shoulder necklines, hip length jackets, mate jersey knits, are being seen and linen of course is a basic for some.

Pants are slim, worn with a longer jacket, traditional white tee shirts or a blouse with the collar open over the jacket lapels. The hemline is strictly your choice, with right above the knee and right above the ankle being the most popular choice.

Spring of '97 has lots to offer everyone. We are seeing a big demand for green (lime of course) and it is being mixed with orange to fushia, to aqua, navy & black.

Bentley Arbuckle is one of our more traditional lines & has a vast assortment of brights to mix and match.

A staple that never goes out is denim being mixed with cotton, linen, knits, dressy to casual.

Try a vest belted over a long skirt or a denim sleeveless top under a blazer.

We have great new gift ideas for mom's & graduation and weddings. From whimsical to traditional in gift items and fashion pieces D.K. Kelley offers the best and most diversified mix of merchandise to please even the most discriminating of taste.

Lunch was served last Friday from 11-2 p.m. as it is each week. Missy Amley won the door prize — Brighton belt. Come by and register all day on Friday's for a great gift that is given away each week. Please join us for lunch & fun & experience the pleasure of a real "specialty shop." Where you find a little bit of everything from hats, to cosmetics, clothing to jewelry & accessories for the home. Please ask about our mailing list so you don't miss out on exciting special events. Stay tuned to next week's Fun & Fashion report.....

Murray lodge will complete plans for event at meeting

By JOHN SALTER
Lodge Writer

Murray Lodge No. 105 Free and Accepted Masons will meet Monday, April 7, at 7:30 p.m. at the lodge hall on Highway 121 North, Coldwater Road.

Master Ernest Wade Ferguson said that committees will be appointed for the forthcoming Saturday, April 12th semi-annual ham breakfast.

In particular, all members are encouraged to attend this meeting and prepare to assist in the fundraising event on April 12 at the lodge hall.

Marshall Pete Farley indicated that the successful roof repairs are complete and the lodge building is now "leak proof."

"Through the final assistance of Member Joe Lasater, it appears to me that we have finally conquered all of the roof problems that have plagued us over the past 20 years," Farley added.

"These repairs put a big dent in the building fund. We need to replenish it through the successful results of the ham breakfasts, and only through the cooperation of all members can we conclude in the 'black'," said Dan Rodden, lodge treasurer.

Wheat freeze damage possible in some western Kentucky areas

Wheat growers in some western Kentucky counties could face major damage from recent below-freezing temperatures.

"To cause major damage, temperatures must be below the mid-20s and must be sustained at that level for two or more hours," said Jim Herbek, grain crops specialist at the University of Kentucky's Research and Education Center in Princeton.

"Plus, the wheat plant must be in a sensitive growth stage; that is, the growing point is above ground level," he added. "These conditions have been present, especially in the western and far western parts of Kentucky."

Herkbek said counties most likely to have major freeze damage are Ballard, Calloway, Carlisle, Christian, Fulton, Hickman, Logan, Marshall, McCracken, Simpson, Trigg, and Warren.

"Where major freeze damage occurred, the growing point will be killed," he said. "Growers with less severe damage might have burned leaf tissue which will have minimal effect on yields."

"Warm soil temperatures and a full canopy might have helped insulate some fields from severe damage."

Growers should be able to see the extent of damage by inspecting fields 7-10 days following the freezing weather, according to Herbek.

To determine if the growing point was killed, split the main stem open and look for the growing point. A magnifying glass helps. A damaged growing point will be a pale white, to cream or tan color and will appear limp and dehydrated.

If the growing point was not damaged, it will be a yellow-green to white color, have a glossy appearance and be plump.

"Even wheat fields with major freeze damage won't be a total loss because tillers (side stems) probably were not damaged," he added.

"They will continue to grow and produce a wheat head. Tillers won't produce as much as the main stem but they can make up for some of the yield loss because it's early enough in the year that the tillers can produce a decent crop."

Lecture set at MSU

The department of health, physical education and recreation at Murray State University will host its 13th Annual William O. Presson Lecture on April 9. The lecture will feature Dr. Robert N. Singer as the keynote speaker.

His address, "Motivation to Achieve," will be pertinent to individuals in the fields of fitness, physical education and coaching, as well as others with a general interest in motivation and achievement.

Singer, chairman of the department of exercise and sport science at the University of Florida, is an internationally known researcher and writer in sports psychology and human performance.

The author of numerous articles and books, he has held many distinguished professional positions and received several honors, including the Distinguished Service Award from the International Council of the American Alliance for Health, Physical Education and Dance.

Additionally, Singer has worked with the Olympics in many capacities through the years and has served as president of the International Society of Sport Psychology.

The lecture will be held at 7 p.m., in the Freed Curd Auditorium in the Collins Center for Industry and Technology on campus. The program is free and the public is encouraged to attend.

Minks die after being freed by animal-rights group

BLENHEIM, Ontario (AP) — When American animal rights activists freed hundreds of minks from an Ontario fur farm over the weekend, they apparently forgot about one thing: Mother Nature.

About 1,500 of the animals escaped early Sunday when their cages were opened and holes cut in the fence around Ebert's Fur Farm, 60 miles east of Windsor in southwest Ontario.

Farm owner Bill McLellan, however, said about 100 have since died from exposure, others were killed fighting with other minks and another 30 were hit by cars on nearby roads.

McLellan said most of the animals, raised in captivity for their fur, were recaptured during a wild, early morning chase but 200 are still on the loose.

Five Americans were to appear in court in nearby Chatham today charged with breaking and entering and mischief.

Provincial police said the three women and two men appear to be linked to the Animal Liberation Front, a radical international animal rights group.

"They don't understand what they've done," McLellan said.

"They thought they'd live happily ever after in the wild but these are very domesticated."

Mink are indigenous to parts of northern Ontario but would likely be in hibernation at this time of year, he said.

It was the second such incident at the farm in two weeks, he said.

The vandals also removed identity cards above each cage that allowed the farmer to track bloodlines and prevent inbreeding.

"We're a small family business and this loss of potentially $500,000 will be devastating," said Tom McLellan, Bill's son.

Charged with breaking and entering and mischief are Patricia Marie Dodson, 48, of Royal Oak, Mich., Hilma Marie Ruby, 59, of Rochester, Mich., Robyn Rachel Weiner, 25, of Farmington Hills, Mich., Gary Howard Yourofsky, 26, of West Bloomfield, Mich., and Alan Anthony Hoffman, 47, of Roseville, Mich.

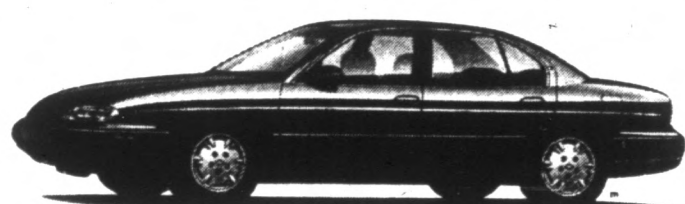

Weiner and Hoffman are also charged with possession of stolen property.

Dodson is charged with possession of burglary tools.

Washington to be site of Beethoven's 10th symphony

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ludwig van Beethoven wrote only nine symphonies, but director Leonard Slatkin announced Tuesday the National Symphony Orchestra will play the 10th — or at least one music professor's reconstruction of what it might have been like.

"There's always been some sketches of what Beethoven intended for a 10th symphony," Slatkin said. "An Englishman named Barry Cooper ... collected as many sketches as he could, put them together and made a workable draft of what might have been."

It's a single movement, which Slatkin said was 12 minutes long, marked "allegro," or fast. Cooper, a professor of music at the University of Aberdeen, Scotland, put it together from 30 bars of Beethoven sketches. There was also material for three other movements, but he considered it too meager.

Cooper's reconstruction was first performed in 1988 by Britain's Royal Philharmonic Society, to which Beethoven promised the work shortly before his death in 1827. It has rarely been heard since.

The Beethoven reconstruction will open the orchestra's season Sept. 5 at the Eisenhower Theater of the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts — the center's concert hall is going through its own reconstruction, due for completion in October.

The first major work on the concert hall in 26 years will cost $10 million. It is designed to improve the acoustics with an adjustable canopy stretching over the orchestra.

Previously, the musicians had trouble following one another from as little as 35 feet away. "The violins couldn't hear the double basses," Slatkin said.

Other new features of the reconstructed hall will include 63 "chorister seats" behind the orchestra, which will be sold at $15 each when performances do not include singers. Concert seats cost up to $60. Slatkin suggested it would be useful for students to feel themselves in the midst of the music.

Another help for students will be a way to project parts of the score on a screen during the performance.

Public health environmentalists disposed of more than 600 tons of contaminated food, drugs and alcohol in retail establishments in Pendleton County after March floods. All the food in this Falmouth grocery store was contaminated by flood water. March's flood relief work was a visible example of what public health employees do behind the scenes all year. Public Health Week, April 7-13, recognizes the important role of public health in making and keeping Kentucky communities safe and healthy.

Study: Counseling by doctors reduces problem drinking

CHICAGO (AP) — People who drink too much but aren't alcoholics will often cut back if their doctors counsel them about the health risks, a study found.

The study looked at men and women who aren't chemically and psychologically hooked but drink enough that they run a higher risk of problems such as cirrhosis, cancer and heart disease.

The study, reported in Wednesday's Journal of the American Medical Association, found that two 15-minute counseling sessions from specially trained doctors helped "at risk" men drinkers cut their alcohol consumption by 14 percent after a year, and "at risk" women 31 percent.

The study was led by Dr. Michael F. Fleming, director of the Center for Addiction Research & Education at the University of Wisconsin.

The research was based on 2,450 "at-risk" drinkers among 17,695 patients at 17 Wisconsin clinics.

"At-risk" drinkers were defined as men who averaged 14 or more drinks a week or five or more drinks at one sitting per week and women who averaged 11 or more drinks weekly or four or more drinks at one-time per week.

Dr. David C. Parish of the Medical Center of Georgia said medical education should be reformed to add more training for alcohol problems, and medical benefits should pay for alcohol screening and counseling.

Families of McDonald's employees to split more than $105,000 from fund

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A fund has topped $105,000 for families of three McDonald's workers slain during a robbery and another who survived, said a company spokeswoman.

"With these donations, we will be able to give each family over $25,000," Jodi Hudson of McDonald's said Tuesday.

Sales between 5 p.m. and 6 p.m. Monday at 117 McDonald's in Middle Tennessee and southern Kentucky went to the fund, as did receipts all day from the restaurant that was robbed and another nearby.

Shot to death during the attack March 23 were Robert Allen Sewell, 23, Ronald Santiago, 27, and Andrea Brown, 17. Robert Ramirez Gonzalez, 30, suffered stab wounds, and said he survived by playing dead after the killer ran out of bullets.

He was in fair condition Tuesday at Vanderbilt University Medical Center, and should be released this week, said hospital spokesman John Howser.

Police say half a dozen men have been interviewed who look like a composite drawing of the suspect, based on Gonzalez's description. All had alibis.

There have been more than 400 tips from the public on the case, detectives said. The killings galvanized the Hermitage community, which had also been shocked in February by the shooting deaths of two Captain D's employees in a similar robbery.

"This has really struck home," said neighborhood resident Robert Stewart. "This place (McDonald's) was a hangout when I was in high school."

King son believes Ray's story

ATLANTA (AP) — Echoing the words of his younger brother, Martin Luther King III said Tuesday he does not believe that James Earl Ray was involved in their father's assassination 29 years ago.

"We are relatively convinced that James Earl Ray had nothing to do with the assassination," the 39-year-old King said. "Mr. Ray has just been used as a patsy."

In a prison hospital meeting with Ray last Thursday, Dexter King, 36, backed Ray's claims that he did not kill Martin Luther King Jr. — and stated his family's support of Ray's innocence.

The civil rights leader was killed by a rifle slug on April 4, 1968, as he stood on the balcony of The Lorraine Motel in Memphis, Tenn. Ray pleaded guilty but recanted a few days later.

"James Earl Ray was coerced into pleading guilty," said the older King brother, a motivational speaker. "If he did not plead guilty, he was going to fry. He does not even appear to be a killer."

King said his family backed Ray after sorting through accounts from people who were present when the civil rights leader was slain and those who say they have unreported evidence.

"This information was available, we just hadn't focused on it," he said. "We as a family never went out and tried to do an investigation. We hoped the system would do that, but it has not."

Ray, 69, is serving a 99-year prison sentence and is said to be suffering from terminal liver disease.

The King family has called for a new trial for Ray, saying it is the only way to learn the truth about the assassination.

Ray's case rests with a Tennessee appeals court. If it doesn't order a new trial, King said his family may make a public announcement detailing their theory of what happened the night he died.

"I have always felt it was a conspiracy," King said. "A trial would give us the opportunity to prove that."

Meanwhile, the Rev. Jesse Jackson and civil rights leaders and pastors in Memphis said they will visit the city jail Thursday and Friday to talk about King's legacy.

"He was not a politician. He was not a talk show host. He was not a sports figure. He was a moral leader," said the Rev. Samuel "Billy" Kyles, a former King associate. "We want to let the people in jail know we're thinking about them, that they're not just thrown away."

Prowler broke into Princess Diana's home

LONDON (AP) — A prowler broke into Kensington Palace this week, where Princess Diana has an apartment, and spent 30 minutes in the royal cellar, according to a news report Wednesday.

The London newspaper The Mirror quoted unidentified Kensington Palace sources as saying the intruder spent half an hour in the palace cellar before slipping away. But Scotland Yard said police officers who investigated an alarm early Monday found nothing suspicious.

The Mirror said the unidentified intruder triggered burglar alarms. Palace staff checked security cameras when the alarms went off, it said, but missed a vital link in the system and the man escaped.

Diana was believed to have been at home at the time, the Mirror said.

Scotland Yard said an alarm went off early Monday morning by the Kensington Palace gardens, near The Orangery.

"Police officers were quickly on the scene and the area was searched. There was no trace of anything suspicious and there was no breach of security," the statement said.

The Mirror, however, said a man dressed in black climbed over a fence surrounding the palace before crawling across the grounds to nearby private apartments. It said he was believed to have entered a basement area by forcing a lock. The area, it said, is near Diana's apartment and just under the apartment of Queen Elizabeth II's sister Princess Margaret.

The Mirror said an investigation is under way and that senior police officers have been "ordered to tighten up their act."

Last year, 37-year-old John Austin triggered alarms at Kensington Palace when he scaled the 12-foot fence. He was arrested and later admitted to a psychiatric hospital.

Later in the year, Irishman Liam Whitney, also 37, was arrested twice in the palace grounds after scaling the fence. Whitney was found dead last month on a beach in the west of Ireland. He was thought to have drowned.

Schmidt wins Hemingway contest

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Old Man and the Sea Internet?

Jack Schmidt of Ridgefield, Conn., won a trip for two to Italy for his take on Ernest Hemingway in the information age.

His "Across the Modem and Into the Net" was No. 1 in Monday's Imitation Hemingway Competition.

Rules for the 17th annual contest were simple: "Entrants must provide one really good page (500 words, typed) of really bad imitation Hemingway. The copy must mention Harry's Bar & Grill -- nicely."

The contest is sponsored by PEN Center USA West, a group of professional writers that fights censorship — and Harry's Bar & Grill in Century City.

Schmidt co-wrote his bit with his wife.

It begins: "Then he logged online and it was good. It was not as good as the good days sitting at Harry's Bar drinking Sazeracs and writing the good and true sentences but it was good to be plugged in at home at the keyboard and not have to sharpen pencils and watch the shavings curling into his drink and best of all he could write in his skivvies and did not have to take a bath."

200 suffer from noxious fumes

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Fumes of unknown origin seeped through a nine-story office building Tuesday, causing 200 people to be treated for nausea, coughing and dizziness.

At least 65 people were taken to nearby hospitals and the rest were treated at the scene after fumes filled the building by early afternoon.

"We've had people from all the floors with some complaint," said fire Lt. Kent Morley. "I saw several here that seemed to be in discomfort and a few who were in a little worse distress."

The source of the fumes was not immediately known. Morley noted the building's air conditioner had been serviced Monday and investigators were checking that as a possible source.

Hazardous materials specialists were dispatched to the scene.

Sister wants to reunite couple

DALLAS (AP) — If Marie Barrow has her way, Bonnie and Clyde will be together in death — just as they were together in their life of crime.

Clyde Barrow's sole surviving sibling is auctioning some of his personal belongings April 14 to raise money to fulfill his wish to be buried with Bonnie Parker.

"Bonnie begged her mother to bury them together, and her mother promised all the time that she would," Ms. Barrow said Tuesday in The Dallas Morning News. "But then she didn't do it. I guess she thought Clyde had taken Bonnie off and got her killed. You know how mothers feel."

The young lovers were gunned down near Gibsland, La., in May 1934, ending a two-year crime spree in which they robbed banks across the Southwest and Midwest. They were buried in separate Dallas cemeteries.

The San Francisco auction house Butterfield and Butterfield will take bids on the bullet-ridden shirt Clyde was wearing when he died and original Bonnie and Clyde snapshots from the Barrow family album, among other memorabilia. Spokesman Levi Morgan said the items are valued at $56,000 to $76,000.

Special tour includes suicide site for show

BALTIMORE (AP) — One of the highlights of a new Baltimore tour is a spot where a fictitious corpse was once found.

In response to constant questions from tourists, the Admiral Fell Inn in Fells Point has begun offering walking tours of locations used on NBC's "Homicide: Life on the Street" and feature films shot in the historic waterfront neighborhood.

During the tours, which began in early March, visitors are taken to Brown's Wharf, where the body of "Homicide" character Steve Crossetti was found in the water during the show's second season.

In the episode Crossetti, played by Jon Polito, committed suicide by drowning himself in the Baltimore Harbor.

Reel sells for $31,350

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — A devoted collector with deep pockets has purchased a rare, antique fishing reel for a price that would make most people, well, reel.

Karl White of Luther, Okla., paid $31,350 during a recent auction for a George Snyder multiplying reel, one of only a dozen made by Snyder between 1815 and 1820.

White was bidding by telephone during a collector from Florida against a March 22 auction conducted by Bob Lang, a Massachusetts-based dealer in sporting classics.

White said if his opponent had upped the ante again, he would have dropped out of the bidding. "We're talking a new home here."

O'Donnell, Winfrey, Leeza Gibbons, Montel Williams and the team of Regis Philbin and Kathie Lee Gifford were nominated for outstanding talk show host.

The 24th annual Daytime Emmy Awards will be given out during a two-hour ABC special on May 21.

Post office sets special hours for tax day

The Murray Post Office will once again remain open until midnight on Tuesday, April 15 in an effort to ease the congestion at the post office as people rush to meet the deadline.

"Income tax deadline on April 15th is one of the most hectic times of the year at post offices around the country. We hope our customers will make note of these extended hours and help us do all we can to cut down on some of the hassle and anxiety," said postmaster Mark Kennedy.

Kennedy also stated that members of the Calloway County Customer Advisory Council will be available between the hours of 4 and 8 on April 15th in order to provide additional assistance to customers and serve cookies, punch and coffee.

MSU to hold camp for aspiring young writers

Aspiring young writers will once again have the opportunity to explore their interest in two week-long writing camps at Murray State University. The Fifth Annual Young Authors Camps are scheduled for the weeks of June 9-13 and June 16-20.

The camps will be conducted by Squire Babcock, assistant professor of creative writing, along with area school teachers, college English and education majors, and visiting writers.

"Writing for the Fun of It" will be hosted June 9-13 and is open to children ages eight through 11. It will expose campers to a variety of styles including poetry, fictional stories, true stories, essays and skits.

"Story Writing" will run June 16-20, and is for children ages 11 through 14. Campers will be asked to imagine characters and settings, as well as build scenes, dialogue, description and plot in both oral and written stories.

The camps are jointly sponsored by the department of English at Murray State and the National Writing Project.

The registration fee for either of the camps is $85. For additional information about the camps, or to register, call MSU's office of community education locally at 762-2160 or toll-free at 1 (800) 669-7654.

Appreciation activities planned at site

Wickliffe Mounds Research Center will be holding "Special Appreciation Weekends" to thank the residents of Ballard County on April 5-6 and April 12-13.

In appreciation for Ballard County's support of its programs, Wickliffe Mounds is offering county residents a discounted admission of $2 for adults and $1.50 for children.

"It's hard to believe, but there are quite a few area residents who have not yet visited Wickliffe Mounds," said Becky Eye, assistant director. "We are excited about our newly renovated buildings and exhibits and hope our friends throughout the Jackson Purchase come visit us this year."

Wickliffe Mounds will continue the special weekends throughout the 1997 season with discounted admission offered to other area county residents including Carlisle and Graves on May 10-11 and May 24-25; McCracken on June 14-15 and June 21-22; and all the Jackson Purchase region on July 12-13 and July 19-20.

Wickliffe Mounds is affiliated with Murray State University and is open from 9 a.m.-4:30 p.m. every day. For more information, call (502) 335-3681.

fee.

"We're really going all out this year to make the tax deadline as hassle-free as possible for our customers," Kennedy said.

Kennedy also reminds the Calloway County citizens that April 30th is the deadline for conversion to the new E-911 addressing systems and follows closely on the heels of the tax deadline. People who reside in Calloway County need to ask these three questions:

- 1) Does all of your mail show a complete and correct 911 street address or post office box number?
- 2) Is your mailbox clearly identified with your house number?
- 3) Have you notified all of your correspondents of your correct 911 address or post office box number?

According to Kennedy, if you answer "yes" to all three of these questions then you are ready. If not, then you don't have much time left and you need to take immediate action.

"The employees of each of the post offices in Calloway County are dedicated to making sure that our customers get all of their mail as efficiently as possible, but we need to ask the customers to ensure they have done all they can to prepare for the April 30th conversion," Kennedy said.

Wild fans pack Rupp to welcome heroic UK

By STACY MORFORD
Associated Press Writer

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — UK fans shook Rupp Arena to the rafters with thunderous applause to welcome home their Wildcats, not as runners-up to the national championship, but as heroes.

They were "The Unbelievables" — Kentucky's 35-5, sophomore-dominated team that few had expected to make the Sweet 16, let alone come five points from the national championship.

"We're very proud, very excited about the season," coach Rick Pitino said Tuesday night. "Breaks can go against you or for you. Down the stretch, we had some things that went against us, but we overcame them."

Like a father doting on his 12 sons, Pitino singled out each player's weakness and how each had overcome it to carry a battered Wildcat team to the Final Four.

Between deafening cheers that rose at the mention of each Wildcat player's name, Pitino talked about his boys — among them, Jared Prickett, who gave 100 percent, non-stop; Nazr Mohammad, who he had never expected to see on the court, but who came in strong on the boards down the stretch; and Wayne Turner, who had become a machine able to defend against the best of them.

His words held hope for the coming year and praise for the continued tradition of winning UK seasons. And he kept the tempo of the rally so upbeat that even as Ron Mercer and the seniors stood on the court knowing it was the last time they would hear "My Old Kentucky Home" there, no tears came.

Instead, the seniors' final words to the fans were of victory and of thanks, culminating in the unfurling of an NCAA runners-up banner high above the court. As Mercer, who announced in February

■ MSU rides Williams homer to 3-2 victory over S. Indiana

By STEVE PARKER

Murray State has two players named Chris Williams on its baseball roster. Chris L. Williams is a senior from Paducah. Chris A. Williams was Tuesday's hero.

Chris A. Williams led off the bottom of the ninth with a home run to left field to break a tie game, sending the 'Breds home with a 3-2 victory over Southern Indiana.

Williams' third homer of the season just hooked around Reagan Field's left field foul pole, giving him the biggest moment of his MSU career.

"We've been getting big hits in the right situations all season," said Williams, a sophomore from Nicholasville. "(Senior second baseman) Eddie Doyle has been doing it all year and I was just following his lead."

"It was a big win for us because we don't want to drop a game during the week. On the weekends, in conference games, it's a lot tougher (to win) because of the pressure with the rivalries."

Vols end coach search with Oregon's Green

By TOM SHARP
AP Sports Writer

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Tennessee's new basketball coach took a familiar, circuitous route from North Carolina to Kansas to Oregon.

Oregon coach Jerry Green was the third former assistant to Kansas coach Roy Williams the Volunteers considered seriously. Green accepted the Tennessee job Tuesday.

"He has the credentials to bring the North Carolina-Kansas influence into this program that I like," said

Tennessee athletics director Doug Dickey, referring to Williams' start as an assistant to Dean Smith at North Carolina. "He has the maturity and has proven he can do it."

In five years, Green, 53, rebuilt a moribund Oregon program into a consistent winner in the Pac-10.

He was born in South Carolina, attended college in North Carolina and coached UNC-Asheville for nine seasons before going to Kansas with Williams in 1989.

"I didn't come here because of the talent," Green said. "I came here because of the University of Tennessee. I've always been around it."

He agreed to a five-year contract that will pay him $550,000 a year, with more income possible through summer camps, and said he intends to make Tennessee his last stop.

"I don't think I'll leave," he said. "If I don't do the job, I'll get fired — I'm very aware of how college basketball operates — but I'm not going to pick

Belle pays immediate dividends for Chicago

Albert Belle paid immediate dividends for Chicago's $55 million investment.

Belle, who signed a five-year deal this winter for more than $10 million per season, doubled home the first run of the 1997 major league season and later hit a two-run homer as the White Sox won 6-5 at Toronto on opening day Tuesday.

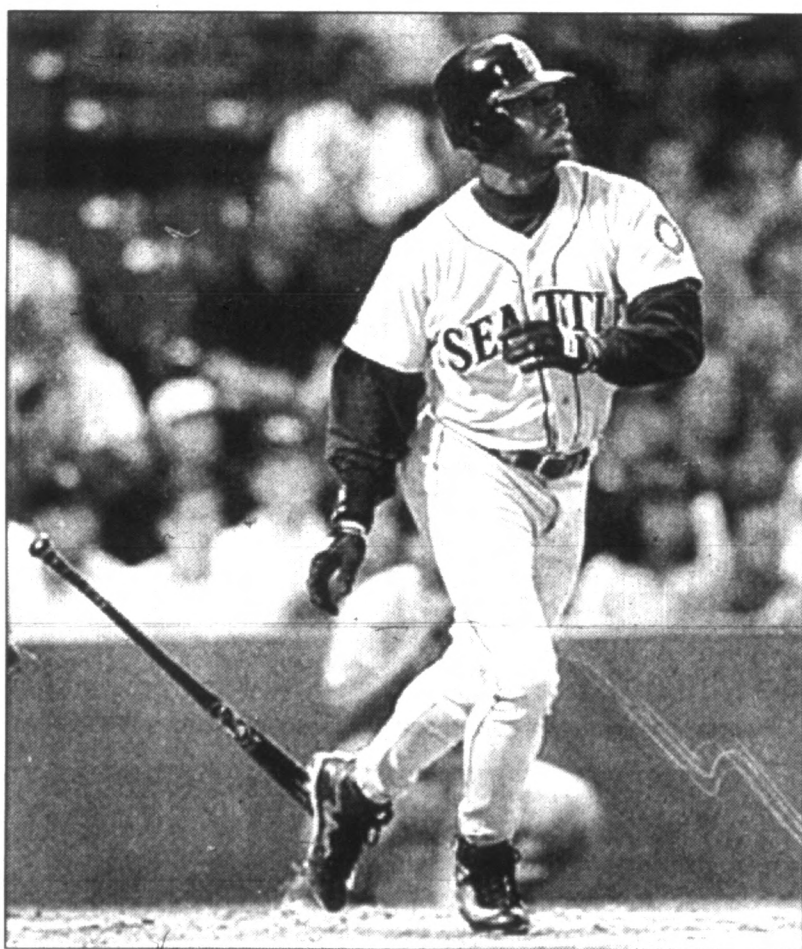

"I'm happy to come over and be productive in the first game," Belle said. "There was pressure coming over, hitting with a guy like Frank Thomas and our tremendous lineup."

With Toronto leading 5-2, Thomas opened the eighth with a single and Belle followed with a drive into the left-field stands off AL Cy Young winner Pat Hentgen. It was Belle's first homer since leaving Cleveland for a five-year deal in Chicago — he did not connect in 67 at-bats in exhibition play.

"I looked terrible in spring training," Belle said. "Everybody was wondering when I was going to hit a home run. Once the season starts, everything is for keeps. These are the statistics that count. The main thing is that we started the season out 1-0."

Norberto Martin tied it with a pinch-hit homer in the ninth and

Griffey slaps two homers as Mariners beat New York 4-2

By JIM COUR
AP Sports Writer

SEATTLE (AP) — Ken Griffey Jr. is thinking about winning a World Series, not breaking Roger Maris' home run record.

But based on his performance Tuesday night he may just do both.

"We've got everything here," Griffey said after hitting home runs in his first two at-bats as the Mariners won their home opener with a 4-2 win over the defending world champion New York Yankees.

Griffey, who hit a franchise-record 49 home runs last season despite missing 20 games because of a broken bone in his right hand, homered in the first and third innings. Both shots came against loser David Cone.

Fassero, a left-hander who won 15 games with Montreal last season, allowed two runs and four hits in the first two innings before settling down to limit the Yankees to a single and a walk over the next five.

"Pitching, offense, speed," he said. "Guys who do different things at the plate and in the field."

Seattle, the trendy preseason pick to dethrone the Yankees as American League champion, got seven strong innings from Jeff Fassero.

"It's going to be a lot of fun this year," Griffey said of Seattle's revamped starting rotation. "If we win and I hit 10 (homers), I'll be happy. If I hit 62 and we don't win anything, all it is is a personal goal."

After Bobby Ayala got Cecil Fielder on a grounder for the first out in the ninth, Norm Charlton came on and promptly gave up singles to Tino Martinez and Paul O'Neill.

However, Charlton, who had an inconsistent '96 season, got Darryl Strawberry to ground into an game-ending double play in the ninth.

San Diego made a little bit of history on opening day.

Trailing the New York Mets 4-0, the Padres tied a modern NL opening day record with 11 runs in a single inning and went on to a 12-5 victory Tuesday.

"I know it doesn't mean anything during the spring, but I think guys were confident that sooner or later we'd get a rally going and put some runs on the board," Tony Gwynn said.

Chris Gomez, Rickey Henderson and Quilvio Veras opened the sixth by hitting three straight homers off New York starter Pete Harnisch, who also allowed homers to three straight batters last season.

"The fans were pumped, we were pumped," Gomez said. "We wanted to start the season on a high point. That inning was a big relief for everybody."

Four Padres scored two runs each in the inning, and five drove in two runs apiece.

"Hopefully it will be our worst inning of the year," Mets manager Bobby Valentine said.

In other NL games, Houston edged Atlanta 2-1, Florida defeated Chicago 4-2, Cincinnati routed Colorado 11-4, Philadelphia blanked Los Angeles 3-0, Pittsburgh beat San Francisco 5-2 and Montreal beat St. Louis 2-1.

Gwynn went 3-for-5 for the defending NL West champions, who drew a sellout crowd of 43,005 to Jack Murphy Stadium. Winner Joey Hamilton allowed four runs and eight hits in six innings, with six strikeouts and a career-high six walks. Yorkis Perez, acquired Monday from Atlanta on a waiver claim, was the loser.

Shane Reynolds shut down Atlanta, fanning Kenny Lofton three times in his Atlanta debut. Reynolds limited the defending NL champions to seven hits in eight innings at the Astrodome, struck out seven and walked two. Billy Wagner finished for the save. John Smoltz allowed eight hits, struck out six and walked one in the first complete game of the 1997 season. He lost to San Francisco in his first start last year, then won 14 in a row.

Jeff Bagwell hit an RBI groundout in the first and Pat Listach had a sacrifice fly in the third. Chipper Jones homered in the third at Atlanta, which won its previous five openers.

MSU tennis teams down Tennessee State

Murray State's men's and women's tennis teams cruised to a pair of easy Ohio Valley Conference wins over Tennessee State Tuesday.

The men's team claimed a 6-1 win while the MSU women prevailed 7-0. Racer men's singles winners were Chris Hayden, Tony Hardman, Eric Gressman, Raoul Bax and Brandon Cummins. TSU's lone win was by David Hall over MSU's Chris Allen, 6-1, 7-5. In doubles, Hayden-Gressman, Hardman-Bax and Cummins-Allen were all winners.

On the women's side, singles winners were Brooke Berryman, Martha Zimmer, Amy Gemmill, Nicole Petrie, DeAnna Carroll and Nancy Norstrom. Doubles winners were Berryman-Zimmer, Gemmill-Petrie and Carroll Norstrom.

that he would make himself eligible for the NBA draft, said later, "it really hasn't sunk in that we're leaving."

"The fans — you guys are what make us go," Prickett shouted to the cheering crowd. "We love you all."

Anthony Epps had had the same message for 700 young fans who had converged on Keeneland Race Course on Tuesday afternoon to welcome the team from Indianapolis.

"You look at all these kids and you can see why Kentucky has the greatest fans in the world," Epps said as he autographed basketballs and notecards and patted their wide-eyed owners on the head.

The mood was a sharp contrast to the university's twentysomething crowd that hit the streets in an angry, bottle-throwing craze after the game Monday night.

Sixteen people were arrested on campus after police began breaking up the gathering of about 5,000 at a blocked-off campus intersection, Assistant Police Chief Ulysses Berry said.

Off-campus, arrests included charges of criminal mischief, assault, driving under the influence, carrying concealed weapons and window pane breaking in public. Roscoe Jones, 23, of Louisville, was charged with criminal mischief for allegedly throwing a 19-inch color television set through a window in Radisson Plaza, Berry said.

Anger and defeat were far from the minds of the crowd waiting at Keeneland on Tuesday. People cheered and craned their necks down the streets in anticipation of their heroes' arrival.

"We love the Cats. Win or lose, they deserve a lot of credit as hard as those boys played out there," said Betty Carter, a lifelong Wildcats fan from Shelbyville. "Who would have thought they'd have come this far?"

When UK started the season having lost five key players, neither Carter nor Bernice Scherr, a UK alum from Louisville, had expected much from the team. But as UK continued to win, even after star Derek Anderson suffered a knee injury in January, both were calling for a repeat.

"There's got to be some disappointment among the players," Scherr said. "But as Pitino said they're champions in their hearts."

The players matched that role Tuesday afternoon, spending 20 minutes making the dreams of the youngest Wildcat wannabes come true as the youngsters rubbed elbows to knee caps with their basketball heroes.

"They were awesome," 11-year-old Justin Perkins said, as he flipped through his newest most-prized possessions — autographs from Epps and Prickett. "They're so tall. They look a lot shorter on the court."

Evan Davis, a classmate of Justin's from Mount Sterling, had two up on his friend — he had edged up to Cameron Mills and Scott Padgett for autographs as well.

Murray State improved to 16-13 overall on the season. Senior relief pitcher Billy Freytag pitched one-third of an inning to get the win, forcing an inning ending ground out with two men on base and the score tied 2-2 in the top of the ninth.

"It was a well-played game on the part of both teams," said MSU head coach Mike Thieke. "There was good pitching and good hitting and that makes for a good game."

Williams was inserted at third base to give regular Craig Delk a rest against non-conference foe USI, a Division II program.

Thieke's lineup decision paid off in two ways.

Delk came off the bench in the bottom of the eighth to single home Chad Hamm to put MSU up 2-1. Southern Indiana (13-11) knotted the score 2-2 in the top of the ninth when pinch-hitter Rich Eyer singled to right field, scoring pinch-runner Drew Bailey, who slid in just ahead of an accurate throw from 'Breds right fielder Donny Kelley.

Williams wasted little time greeting USI reliever Kadish Evans, hitting a one ball, one strike fastball over the boards.

"When I was running I started thinking, uh oh, it's hooking," said Williams, who homered for the second-straight game.

Said Thieke, "I'm as proud as I can be of Chris A. Williams. He's battled all year in a backup role, but he is one of the best players coming off the bench for this team. When he gets an opportunity he gives every ounce of energy he has."

"It's good that good things happen to a kid like that."

Williams drove home the game's first run when his sacrifice fly in the second inning put MSU up 1-0.

MSU got another clutch performance from sophomore pitcher Tommy Staley. Making his third start of the season, the left-hander went seven innings and allowed five hits and one walk while giving up one run.

Doyle finished the day 2-for-4 and Freytag improved to 5-0 on the season.

MSU plays host to Memphis today at Reagan Field, beginning at 3 p.m.

Colorado continued to struggle on the road, where it was 28-53 last season. Left fielder Dante Bichette, coming off knee surgery, misplayed Sanders' fly ball into a double in the first and misplayed a hit by Reggie Sanders into a triple later in the inning.

Loser Kevin Ritz gave up five runs, eight hits and four walks in five innings.

the return of 1995 AL Cy Young Award winner Randy Johnson following back surgery should help his bullpen.

"We can go deeper into the ballgames," Piniella said. "It will keep my bullpen fresh and it will allow me to put everybody in their respective roles."

New York manager Joe Torre didn't like what he saw in the opener. He knows now the Mariners will be a much better club in '97 because of their improved pitching.

"You'd like to think if you hold the score to four runs, you'd beat them," he said.

Cone understands the difficulty of pitching to a lineup which includes Griffey and Edgar Martinez, a two-time former AL batting champion.

"Griffey is the one guy you don't want to let beat you, but it's tough to pitch around him with Edgar on deck," Cone said.

The Mariners won nine of the 12 meetings between the clubs last season, and Griffey helped the Mariners make it 1-0 vs. New York in '97 with his 22nd multi-homer game.

HOROSCOPES BY JACQUELINE BIGAR

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Thursday, April 3, 1997: A positive outlook is your strongest suit this year. You seem to be able to turn negatives into positives, and transform difficult situations into easy ones. Friends seek you out often for help, ideas and direction. You might decide to become involved with a cause or organization that means a lot to you. Broaden your immediate circle and horizons. If you are single, a new relationship becomes increasingly important. Certain associations prove especially valuable. If attached, the two of you feel more together than ever when you work on your friendship. AQUARIUS is a spiritual counterpart.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)  Good news continues to come your way. You feel empowered, as if nothing can stop you. Further your cause, and go for what you want. Make time for a meeting that could be positive. Listen to others' ideas; there might be a lot of good ones around. Tonight: Find your friends and have fun.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)  Others flock to you for help with decisions, and to share news. You are in a position of leadership. Good ideas naturally come forth. Listen to what a boss offers. It could be more important than you realize. Emphasize responsibilities. Tonight: Make a "must" appearance.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)  Reach out to someone who is at a distance. Make travel plans. Instincts and intellect affect a decision. Grab an offer while you can. Not everything is forever! There is one opportunity after another. Learning helps you spiritually and professionally. Tonight: Blaze a new trail.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)  One-to-one relating proves professionally and emotionally beneficial. Examine your long-term goals with a helpful friend. A financial investment could pay off. Follow through on a heartfelt goal. Tonight: Add romance to life.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)  Popularity is so high, you might not know which direction to go. Keep some prearranged plan. Get key work projects done. You might opt for an extended lunch or coffee break. The world is your oyster; simply choose what you want. Tonight: The party goes on. VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)  You can do more than most, in general, but today you accomplish even more than you normally do. Listen to feedback from associates as you breeze through projects. Initiate a new plan. Schedule a checkup. Tonight: Play racquetball.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)  Determination, mixed with opportunity, is essential if you are to succeed. Everything looks too easy and under control. Don't kid yourself. Make time for an important relationship; that person will adore the extra attention. Be creative at work. Tonight: Have a good time. SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)  You feel positive about a personal matter. A change on the home front or with a familial relationship cheers you up. You have renewed your faith. Follow-through counts with an investment and a domestic adjustment. Tonight: Whatever it is, it goes on at home. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)  Sort through messages. You will get more done if you isolate yourself during part of the day. Take

TODAY IN HISTORY

By The Associated Press

Today is Wednesday, April 2, the 92nd day of 1997. There are 273 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:
On April 2, 1792, Congress passed the Coinage Act, which authorized establishment of the U.S. Mint.

On this date:
In 1513, Spanish explorer Juan Ponce de Leon landed in Florida.
In 1860, the first Italian Parliament met at Turin.
In 1865, Confederate President Davis and most of his Cabinet fled the Confederate capital of Richmond, Va.

In 1917, President Wilson asked Congress to declare war against Germany, saying, "The world must be made safe for democracy."

In 1932, aviator Charles A. Lindbergh and Dr. John F. Condon turned over $50,000 in ransom to an unidentified man in a New York City cemetery in the Bronx, in exchange for Lindbergh's kidnapped son. (The infant, however, was not returned, and was found dead the following month.)

In 1942, Glenn Miller and his orchestra recorded "American Patrol" at the RCA Victor studios in Hollywood.

In 1974, French President Georges Pompidou died in Paris.

In 1982, several thousand troops from Argentina seized the disputed Falkland Islands, located in the south Atlantic, from Britain. (Britain seized the islands back the following June.)

In 1986, four American passengers were killed when a bomb exploded aboard a TWA jetliner en route from Rome to Athens, Greece.
In 1995, baseball owners accepted the players' union offer to play without a contract, ending the longest and costliest strike in the history of professional sports.

Ten years ago: The U.S. Senate, rejecting a plea from President Reagan, overrode his veto of an $88 billion highway and mass transit bill that the president had denounced as containing "pork-barrel" items.

Five years ago: Mob boss John Gotti was convicted in New York of murder and racketeering; he was later sentenced to life in prison.
French Premier Edith Cresson, who had served 10 turbulent months as France's first woman prime minister, resigned after election setbacks for the ruling Socialists. The space shuttle Atlantis returned from a nine-day mission.

One year ago: A federal appeals court rejected New York state laws banning doctor-assisted suicide, saying it would be discriminatory to let people disconnect life support systems while refusing to let others end their lives with medication.

Today's Birthdays: Actor Buddy Ebsen is 89.

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: I have been involved with a kind and generous man for four years. We have a child together who is now 16 months old. We are not married because he is still married to his first wife.

"Joe" and his wife have filed for divorce and all that remains to finalize it are their signatures. However, when I asked him about it, he gave me excuses such as it would ruin him financially, or they must remain together for the sake of their two children. He said that his youngest daughter is afraid that if he and her mother got divorced, she will never see him again. Both Joe and his wife want the divorce, but the decree just sits there unsigned. I don't understand his procrastination because I am sure he wants to be married to me and be a full-time father to our child.

Joe is a very good father to our baby and a wonderful lover, but I want him to be more than that — I want him to be my husband.

Abby, do you think if I'm patient Joe will eventually finalize his divorce and marry me?

WAITING PATIENTLY

DEAR WAITING: I'm sorry to burst your bubble, but if Joe really wanted to marry you, he would not be offering weak excuses and leaving the divorce papers unsigned. It appears that he wants to have his cake and eat it, too.

It may not be easy for you to face reality, but the sooner you do, the sooner you will be able to liberate yourself from this hopeless situation and find someone who is free to marry you.

DEAR ABBY: I am a very con-

South was in six hearts and West led a diamond. Had West led anything else, declarer would have made the slam without much trouble.

Even with the diamond lead, the contract seemed sure to make, but when declarer won with the king and played the ace of hearts, East showed out and presented South with a delicate problem as to how to continue.
