Make A Difference Day a success

Saturday's Make A Difference Day is being touted as yet another success by organizers.

Preliminary totals are as follows:

Need Line collected more than 100 items of food and 120 items of school available.

items of school supplies.

Taylor Bus Sales collected more than 400 gallons of used motor oil

The City of Murray collected more than 2 tons of glass and plastic.

Murray Lions Club members collected 371 pairs of eyeglasses. In just four events more than 1,283 pairs of eyeglasses have been collected to be recycled.

The Murray W.A.T.C.H. Center collected more than 900 pounds of aluminum cans.

According to Bill Wells of the Murray Family Resource Center, in 12 events residents have recycled enough paper to fill Murray State Univerity's Sparks Hall.

"That equates to more than 1 million tons of paper that's been kept out of our landfill since we began this," Wells said. "Both the city and county give the resource centers $25 each for every ton of paper collected. We then take that to Paducah which gives us another $10 to recycle it. It works out that every ton of paper collected is worth $30 to each

Wells said the next Make A Difference Day is set for Oct. 25 from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m./at Roy Stewart Stadium.

Blues fest supporting local Habitats

By JIM MAHANES Staff Writer

Organizers are busy with lastminute details for this weekend's Kenlake Hot August Blues Festival at the Kenlake State Resort Park.

And once again the lineup includes some of the region's top blues acts as well as national talent.

Each year, blues fans pack their blankets and coolers and descend on the small town of Aurora for the three-day festival. Along with a land-based audience, blues fans in boats flock to the area and dock behind the Kenlake Amphitheater to enjoy the show.

"Last year, we counted more than 350 boats that docked out in the harbor and close to 10,000 people for the three days," said coordinator Gloria Peck-Hargrove. "This started eight years ago as a one-day festival and that year, we drew about 500 people. It's now grown to what it is today. We're proud of what it's become."

Peck-Hargrove said the festival is somewhat of an oddity for the Jasckson Purchase area.

Zoning change benefits churches

By DAVID RAMEY Staff Writer

The Murray Planning Commission will again consider changing the city's zoning laws to benefit local churches.

The commission will meet Tuesday at 7 p.m. at the Murray City Hall.

In last month's meeting, commissioners were asked to approve a change in the city's zoning ordinance that would allow churches in all zoning districts, based on a conditional use permit.

The commissioners voted 4-1 to table the ordinance change, in order to study the issue.

First Presbyterian Church, located at 16th and Main, wants to purchase property behind the church for a parking lot. The church is zoned R-2, and under current zoning laws, churches are not allowed in residential zones.

First Presbyterian Church is one of 13 churches in the city that were built in residential zones before the current zoning law was passed in 1989. Because the churches do not conform to the city's zoning laws, they cannot be granted conditional use permits to upgrade or expand.

MSU will be new home to law center

Murray State University has been selected to receive the Center for Law and Education from Illinois State University.

The center, which has been at ISU for more than 10 years, is a clearinghouse for school law and finance equity cases.

According to president Kern Alexander, materials associated with the center will be moved to Murray State. Dr. Alan Hickrod, retired distinguished professor emeritus at ISU, will visit MSU Aug. 20-21 to facilitate the transfer of information.

"He will tell us what we need to do in order to establish the center," Alexander said. "We will take all their records, which include files and computer disks, and eventually condense everything to an electronic format."

The university is currently advertising for an assistant professor to teach educational leadership courses and serve as director of the center, which will be housed in Wells Hall.

The legal materials contain information about school finance constitutional litigation around the country. Lawyers from around the country will contact the center to request materials as they prepare their cases.

"We have records regarding 34 cases decided on the state supreme court level and seven more that were decided at the appellate level," Hickrod said. "We are transferring the maintenance of the bank of legal briefs, which includes a substantial amount of legal materials, to Murray. Much of the information is hard to get because the cases are on the district and appellate levels."

Alexander is well-known expert on public school finance, having written numerous books

Residents afraid after violence erupts at hog farm

DUBLIN, Ky. (AP) — Residents say they are afraid and have begun carrying guns following the shooting of an opponent of a large hog farrowing operation in western Kentucky.

Malcolm Blount, 51, of Fancy Farm, was in stable condition at Lourdes Hospital in Paducah. He suffered gunshot wounds in the shoulder and neck, his wife said.

Tensions have been growing in the area since Buckman Farms Inc. announced it was building a 5,760-sow breeding operation nearby in Hickman County. Signs in front of many of the tidy homes read: "Pig boy go home" and "Back Off Buckman."

After Blount was wounded during the scuffle Thursday in western Grayes County, police charged Henry Spivey, 44, of Mayfield, with assault. He was released on bond and will be arraigned Aug. 27 in Graves District Court.

Spivey is construction/land manager for Buckman Farms, being built by Mayfield businessman Kenneth Buckman. The shooting happened on the Hickman-Graves county line, about a half-mile from the hog facility site.

Neither Spivey nor Buckman could be reached for comment. "People are packing guns. It's got everybody tensed up," said Bobby Carter, a farmer.

McVeigh said he gave the peace sign to jurors after they convicted him. News accounts at the time noted that he clasped his hands and stared impassively when he was convicted, then as mouthed the words "It's OK" to his family and held up two fingers to his family and the jury. McVeigh did not take the stand in his defense and appeared unemotional during his trial. But the News said his voice rose in intensity during the interview Friday when he discussed the government's case, especially FBI lab work and prosecutors' characterizations of his past.

"Some of it (the evidence) was false or some could be reasonably explained by other phenomenon," McVeigh said. He believes tests could have shown that traces of explosive materials found on the clothes he was wearing when he was arrested were from his own handgun.

"I'm 99 percent sure it was from my gun. That's why I got expressive during that part of the testimony. The unburnt powder had come out of the barrel of my gun," McVeigh said.

Tobacco farmers divided on lawsuit

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) - As tobacco growers prepare their bid for a chunk of the $368.5 billion settlement between the cigarette industry and 40 states, they remain divided on the big issue of Flue-cured tobacco growers in North and South Carolina want farmers to be able to sell their quotas - the amount of tobacco the federal government lets farmers grow under price supports.

Kentucky burley growers would rather see an end to quotas and the start of a system of supplemental payments to assist farmers instead.

The difference between the growers' desires lies in the difference between their tobacco crops and the laws governing them.

Flue-cured tobacco laws don't allow farmers to lease quota rights while burley laws do. And flue-cured growers produce far more tobacco than burley growers, so selling quota rights fetches a tidier sum for them, said Rod Kuegel, president of the Lexington-based Burley Tobacco Growers Cooperative Association.

Those differences have led to the consolidation of quotas in North Carolina, while in Kentucky, smaller family farms have survived. Last year, 31,554 tobacco marketing cards were issued in North Carolina, while 64,630 cards were issued in Kentucky, according to the federal Farm Service Agency. However North Carolina's flue-cured tobacco brought in 572 million pounds, compared with 336 million pounds of burley in Kentucky.

"They could buy the Winnebago, and we could just buy the gas," Kuegel said.

The rift over quotas is something that needs to be settled soon, Kuegel said. If left to fester, it could spoil every tobacco farmer's chance at a piece of the $368.5 billion settlement.

So far, nothing has been set aside for farmers. Much of the settlement is expected to go to the states to cover Medicare costs for smoking-related illnesses. Another big chunk is tagged for anti-smoking initiatives.

U.S. Rep. Scotty Baesler, a Democrat from Kentucky's 6th District, believes the two faces of tobacco will have to come together soon for any of the farmers to get in on the settlement.

He is proposing a compromise - a new quota system that he believes would benefit both sides. It involves quota retirement. Baesler's system would allow farmers who want to sell their quotas and get out of the business to auction them off to the government. The government, in turn, would offer those quotas for sale to farmers in the same counties.

But Jaspar Womach, an agriculture policy analyst with the Congressional Research Service, said there will be some in Congress who will prefer the straight buy-out system because they will see it as a way to end the tobacco price-support program.

That would strike a blow to rural Kentucky because most growers wouldn't get much from it, and the local economy would lose the annual influx of tobacco money, said John Berry Jr., an attorney for the burley co-op.

"It would just kill Kentucky's rural economy for the sake of letting farmers have a little cash payment and then end it all," Berry said

Baesler agreed with Berry. He said tobacco-state lawmakers historically have been able to fight for growers' interests by arguing that they are protecting the livelihood of entire communities. A buy-out wouldn't support that 'Because we would be saying the person that had the quota would have the money, and the rest of the community would be at a loss," Baesler said. It's not clear what the final

Computer troubles Mir

By MITCHELL LANDSBERG Associated Press Writer

MOSCOW (AP) - The main computer on the Mir space station failed today during a cargo ship docking, sending the problem-plagued space station wobbling in its orbit and forcing the crew to shut off central Russian space officials said the problem was not life-threatening for the Russian-American crew. But they acknowledged the situawas serious and said the Mir's orbits will be "chaotic" until the problem is fixed.

"It's not extraordinary, because we've had such situations earlier," said Mission Control chief Vladimir Solovyov. "It's not a super-complex situation."

However, Solovyov said flight controllers don't know the cause of the failure. He said the breakdown would force yet another delay in a long-awaited mission to repair damage caused by collision

NASA officials at Russian Mission Control also said they did not consider the situation dangerous.

"It's a situation that we'll watch carefully, but we're not worried," said Kathleen Maliga, a spokeswoman for the U.S. space agency.

As a result of the computer failure, Mir's solar panels are no longer held in proper orientation to the sun, which will deprive the station of its main power source.

To conserve power, the crew has shut down most of the station's operating systems. Life support systems did not appear to be in any danger — even without the main computer, the crew has enough oxygen and food.

"Unfortunately, right now the system of station orientation is not operational," Solovyov said. "The computer will be switched off until morning. There will be no altitude control at all. It will be chaotic. We don't know the consequences of this chaotic flight.'

To maintain some control of the station, Solovyov said the crew can use thruster engines on the newly docked Progress resupply ship and the Soyuz capsule that brought the current team to the Mir earlier this month.

Asked how the two Russian cosmonauts and their American crisis, Solovyov said, "Well, they're trained to deal with such consequences.'

during the docking of a Progress cargo ship. On instructions from Mission Control, Mir commander Anatoly Solovyov switched off the automatic docking system and successfully moored the vessel manually.

"The commander of the crew started manual operations," the Mission Control chief said

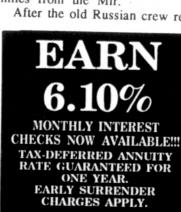

Today's manual docking was the same kind of maneuver that on June 25 resulted in the worst accident in the space outpost's 11-year history. In that incident, a similar cargo ship went out of control during a practice manual docking, crashing into the station's Spektr module.

The collision forced the crew to seal off the depressurized Spektr module and disconnect electric cables leading to its solar batteries, reducing the station's power by about half.

The crash and power loss were the worst in a long series of misfortunes to beset the Mir. Others included a fire and breakdowns in the oxygen and cooling systems.

The new Progress ship, which brought supplies to Mir in July, was disconnected to make room for a Soyuz capsule carrying the new crew. It has been flying 43 miles from the Mir. After the old Russian crew re-

The first was to have taken place Wednesday. In that operation, mission commander Solovyov and Pavel Vinogradov plan to venture into the dark and airless Spektr module to reconnect power cables leading to its solar panels. If successful, the mission would restore the Mir to 90 percent of its normal power supply.

A second mission, a spacewalk outside the Mir, is aimed at pinpointing and possibly patching up the holes in the Spektr.

All together, about six spacewalks may be needed to complete the repair job, depending on the location and severity of the

Is this the big one for the Dow Jones?

By JOYCE M. ROSENBERG AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — It looks scary — the Dow Jones industrial average loses 247 points in one day, 565 points in just over a week. Is it finally time to worry about a free fall? Or is this just another of those periodic pullbacks the market goes through after climbing very high, very fast?

Wall Street had one of its most volatile weeks in years, with the Dow average dropping 336 points, including Friday's 247-point slide. Yet only the week before, on Aug. 6, the blue chip index had set a new closing high of 8,259.31, which means the average has lost nearly 7 percent in seven trading days.

It's almost inevitable since the crash of 1987, when the Dow dropped 508 points in one day, that people seeing a big decline start wondering if this will be another big one.

But it's important to remember who was doing the selling Friday. It wasn't individual investors who have been pouring money into mutual funds the past few years, propelling the market to new highs. It was professional money managers whose job depends on delivering big returns for their clients.

Individual investors have already proved they can withstand a lot of volatility. They didn't abandon the market during a big slump in the summer of 1996, and they didn't flee last spring, when the Dow lost 10 percent of its value in about a month before recovering all its lost ground and climbing 1,200 points to this month's record

There's no reason to believe individual investors are going to bail out en masse this time. They're largely in for the long haul. Besides, if they did want to take their money out of the market, they know they're not going to make much money by putting it in a bank certificate of deposit that averages less than 6 percent for a Market watchers, mindful of the fact stocks began 1997 with the Dow at 6,448, have come to expect — and even endorse — corrections, occasional periods when traders take their profits and reassess how high the market should be. Many believe that's what's

At 7,694.66 after Friday's fall, the Dow remains more than 19 percent higher than when it began the year.

Still, the people who sold on Friday had their reasons. Probably the biggest is that investor nervousness increases in direct proportion to the market's rising value. So people who believe that the market must inevitably fall, and worry about preserving their profits, will jump at the first sign of trouble — or, as the market showed last week, no sign of trouble. The government released wholesale and consumer price reports that showed inflation remained under control. No matter. Investors agonized over the numbers and the market surged up and down through much of the week before taking its big dive Friday. Their concern was that in spite of these and other indications of a moderately growing economy, the Federal Reserve's policywriting committee, which meets Tuesday, will raise interest rates to ensure that inflation doesn't regain momentum. Rising interest rates, which make it more expensive for everyone to borrow, undermine corporate profits. Some analysts said the decline of the dollar, which fell sharply against the German mark Friday, also contributed to the stock market's drop. Traders were worried about speculation that German interest rates would rise and put pressure on the Fed to raise U.S. rates to keep them competitive.

And when Wall Street analysts lowered their expectations for Gillette Co's. profits, the market was further unnerved. Gillette sells staples like razors and deodorant; if its profits are slipping, traders theorized, any company is vulnerable, especially those selling big-ticket items like cars and computers.

There also is a break now for sellers, since President Clinton's Aug. 5 signing of a bill that included lower capital gains tax rates.

Patton gets rid of Henry

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) - In the old gangster movies, the hitman is often dispatched to go after his latest victim with the sage advice - "Make it look like an accident."

But in a more modern political thriller worthy of Raymond Chandler, Paul Patton may be getting away with knocking off Steve Henry and making it look like an accident - even Henry's own idea.

Remember, the Patton-Henry marriage was one of convenience. For the first time in more than a century, a candidate for governor had to run with a candidate for lieutenant governor in 1995 and actually mean it.

Historically, the candidates have been thrown together after winning their own separate primaries. That usually meant a governor had to watch his back, because even if the two shared the same political registration, they rarely shared the same ambitions or agendas.

Henry, an ambitious county commissioner in Jefferson County, shopped himself around as a potential running mate to a couple of campaigns in 1994. Patton found Henry's Jefferson County base, with family roots in used to trot Henry out to virtually all of his own public appearances. These days, they are rarely seen together and they speak of each other in that strained, pronoun sort of a way. The timing is somewhat fuzzy, but a couple of things happened along the way. Patton told Henry it would not be in Henry's political best interests to serve eight years as lieutenant governor, becoming stale before the voters. Lieutenant governor, after all, is not the capstone of any political resume — at least by choice. Then Wendell Ford ended the speculation and said he would leave Washington after 24 years in the Senate.

There are two basic strains of politicians in Kentucky — those for whom the office of governor is the end all and be all, and those who want to go to Washington. Henry has been more of the latter.

With Henry's official announcement for the Senate, Patton is now effectively rid of him as a running mate in 1999, when he will be the first governor in a century to be able to run for a ruccessive term.

It gives Patton a chance to add some freshness to a campaign that voters will almost surely be a bit weary of, given the ingrained habit of replacing governors every four years.

In the meantime, Patton says he's for Henry for the Senate, but won't do anything about it, such governor gets to show loyalty, but not exactly have to demonstrate it and thereby offend others in the Senate race.

It could end up a political, if not exactly policy, accomplishment that rivals Patton's overhaul of a a fractious, self-absorbed higher education system or repair of a broken workers' compensation program.

But what of Henry? He could win the seat in the U.S. Senate now held by his Owensboro political idol, Wendell Ford. On its face, it seems a daunting task and one that two sitting congressmen and a millionaire have different ideas

He's only 43 and already has a distinguished career as an orthopedic surgeon.

Or he could end up a footnote to history, the answer to some future political trivia question.

But whatever he becomes, he is no longer Paul Patton's to worry about.

Judicial vacancies remain

WASHINGTON (AP) — It's a crisis, according to Attorney General Janet Reno. But the controversy over 101 federal judges who aren't there - vacancies she blames on a Senate stall — is an inside argument, lacking the clamor and the drama of highprofile confirmation disputes.

President Clinton hasn't said much about it, leaving the issue to Reno, who says an "unprecedented slowdown" in the Senate has created a vacancy crisis.

The Republicans counter that they are handling judicial confirmations properly. Sen. Orrin Hatch says the approval of judges for life tenure jobs shouldn't be "a numbers game," and that besides, the administration has lagged in choosing nominees.

But as Reno counters, there is no lack of candidates for confirmation to the bench. And Hatch's Senate Judiciary Committee has held only four hearings on them Nomination disputes have been a recurring headache for Clinton. This one doesn't involve an individual, but a process.

Clinton hasn't been inclined to undertake high-risk campaigns for his nominees.

In the case of William Weld. his endangered appointee to be ambassador to Mexico, the White House insists the administration will fight for confirmation. But Clinton said he's had a productive relationship with Sen. Jesse Helms, the Foreign Relations est complaint about unconfirmed Committee chairman blocking Weld's way, and doesn't sound as though he's about to risk it in that case.

The Weld confirmation is the summer's political theater. The winter confirmation drama was over a CIA director, until Clinton's first choice Anthony Lake withdrew, saying he wanted no more of a Senate process that was "nasty and brutish without being Except at the very top, the Supreme Court, judicial nominees seldom stir high-visibility debates like those. They are names on lists, known in their circles and districts, not nationally. So the debate about judicial nominees is about the system and the confirmation rate - and about politics. Hatch said earlier that the Senate should be sure that new judges "will not engage in politically motivated judicial

That's the underlying issue, as a Democratic president sends judicial nominees to a Republican

Reno took note of it in her lat-

"I, too, oppose judicial action that ignores the law for the purpose of advancing a particular political or social agenda," she

The administration, she said, is taking great care to make sure that nominees to the bench understand the proper role of a judge. But defining that role in rulings can stir political disputes. A majority of the judges serving on federal trial and appeals courts were put there by Republican presidents Ronald Reagan and George Bush.

Clinton appointees are changing the mix. He's appointed just over one quarter of the district court judges and just under onethird of appeals court judges, according to the journal "Judicature."

The irony in the confirmation system is that the highest-volume debates involve short term jobs.

Ambassadors come and go. Judges stay, with life tenure, and those installed now will long outlast Clinton's presidency. That's why Republicans are trying to use the confirmation system to influence his choices. Democrats did the same when they held the Senate during Republican presidencies, although not at the current slowdown rate.

Reno said too many Americans are waiting for justice in a clogged court system because of vacancies on the federal bench. "We have seen an unprecedented slowdown of the Senate confirmation machinery," she told the American Bar Association on Aug. 5. "... One out of every eight judgeships remains vacant. Today there are 101 vacancies on the federal bench, almost 12 percent of the judiciary."

While Republicans have argued that Clinton has been slow in selecting judges, Reno said that isn't the problem, that he's sent the Senate "an ample number of superbly qualified nominees" to fill well over half the vacancies, but can't get them confirmed.

She said the Senate has confirmed only nine of 62 judges nominated this year. "At this rate, it would take almost seven years just to fill the existing vacancies," Reno said.

Well before then there will be more vacancies, of course. And a new president.

Great Beginnings to kickoff Murray State's year Conceived just four years ago, Murray State University's "Great Beginnings" program has proven its value. MSU's faculty and staff participate in the program designed to help both new and returning students feel right at home, right away.

"Great Beginnings" offers parents an excellent opportunity to ask questions about their son's or daughter's stay on campus. University personnel get into the act by making themselves available to students and parents by serving as sources of information and extra hands during the moving process.

On Saturday, Aug. 23, the residential colleges on campus will open. Freshmen and transfer students who will be residing on campus may move in from 9 a.m.-3 p.m. Commuter freshmen and transfer students may check in during Residential colleges are celebrating their one-year anniversary on MSU's campus. They are designed to give students a complete college living experience. With residential halls at the center of the colleges, students have an opportunity to interact with one another, faculty and staff outside of the classroom. Residential colleges include both resident and commuter students. Activities vary college by college, offering students an opportunity to expand their horizons in different ways.

An information tent will be manned in the Winslow Commons from 10 a.m.-3 p.m. on Saturday. Free ice cream and soft drinks will be offered as well as information about sorority rush, the Parent's Association and Student Health. Representatives from local banks, the cablevision company and carpet rentals will also be available for

From 1-3 p.m. representatives from the campus admissions, financial aid and bursar's office will be available to answer questions in the Curris Center. Receptions at the individual residential colleges will run from 3 p.m.-5 p.m. At 5 p.m., students and their parents are asked to attend an opening ceremony in Lovett Auditorium, followed by a dinner on the lawn of Oakhurst at 6

New Racers will be introduced to athletics at Murray State with a Spirit Event in Racer Arena at 7:30 p.m. A street dance will follow on the Winslow Commons, beginning at 9:30 p.m.

On Sunday, Aug. 24, new students can breakfast with their orientation groups from 7:30-9 a.m. Academic sessions will follow until 11 a.m. in Lovett Auditorium. Students will be introduced to time management and study tips, e-mail training and survival training for college students. Residential colleges will open at noon for all students. Individual residential college activities will take place from 12:30-9 p.m. The movie, "Sinbad in Concert," will be shown on the intramural field at 9 p.m.

A "Great Beginnings for Adult Students" will be held at 1 p.m. on Sunday. This event is hosted by the Center for Continuing Education and Academic Outreach. Activities on Monday, Aug. 25, include more orientation sessions, tours, registration and drop/add of classes, and additional e-mail training. A New Student Convocation will be held in Lovett Auditorium at 1 p.m., with academic college sessions following at 2 p.m.

On Tuesday, Aug. 26 classes begin. All classes, including those on campus, evening classes and classes held at off-campus loca-floor of the Curris Center. •Student parking permits will be issued in the rocking chair lounge of the Curris Center on Aug. 23-24 from 3-6 p.m. On Aug. 25, they may be purchased in the Hart College Coffeehouse from 8:30 a.m.-2:30 p.m. On Aug. 26, they will be available in the Curris Center once again in the ballroom from 8:30 a.m.-2:30 p.m. They will be available in the lobby of Regents College on Aug. 27 from 8:30 a.m.-2:30

Nitrate levels pose threat

Kentucky farmers trying to salvage their drought-stressed corn crop by feeding it as green chop face the potential for nitrate poisoning.

"Farmers should have corn silage tested for nitrate levels before feeding it to livestock, or at the very least feed it in moderation. Don't make an entire meal of this year's crop," said Roy Smith, a toxicologist with the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture's Livestock Disease Diagnostic Center.

"Analyses thus far have shown alarmingly high nitrate levels," Smith added.

Under certain conditions, farmers should use caution feeding summer annual grasses to livestock - particularly pregnant or young animals that are especially sensitive to nitrate poisoning, according to Jimmy Henning, Extension forages spe-

"All summer annual grasses are nitrate accumulators with the highest levels concentrated in the lower stems," he said. "For nitrates to build to toxic levels two conditions are necessary. First, drought like we've had in many areas of Kentucky. Second, high levels of nitrogen fertilizer. If you are unsure of the nitrate level of any forage, have a sample tested. "Be especially cautious about feeding hay from highly-nitrated summer annual grasses because the nitrates won't disappear with time; they will remain for months after-

Smith said the potential for nitrate poisoning could be as serious this year, as it was during the droughts of 1983, 1984 and 1988.

"Drought-stressed corn absorbs nitrate from the soil and can't get rid of it so nitrates build up in the plant," he explained. "When animals eat corn silage with extremely high nitrate levels, a reaction can reduce the animals' ability to carry oxygen in the blood. This often leads to abortions and, in severe cases, can cause animal death.

"Affected animals often appear lethargic because of the blood's reduced oxygen carrying capacity. If animals look sick, contact your veterinarian.'

Nitrate poisoning can affect beef and dairy cattle, horses, sheep and other livestock.

For more information on nitrate poisoning, consult Drought-Stressed Corn" (ID-86) that is available through your county Extension office.

Calloway County Judge Executive J.D. Williams and Murray Mayor William N. Cherry are shown here with Paschall Truck Lines representatives Deane Sager and Cathy Hovekamp, with a proclamation declaring Aug. 17-23 as "Truck Driver Appreciation Week" in Calloway County and the City of Murray. Paschall Truck Lines initiated this effort to include local government in joining in recognition of the proclamation for "Truck Driver Appreciation Week" made nationally and also by Governor Patton for the state of Kentucky. Activities for drivers employed by PTL are scheduled at the locally owned business for that time period as part of the effort to build awareness of the truck drivers contribution to the American economy and way of life.

Hicks will present demonstration Wednesday

By GERRY REED Library Staff Writer

Eileen Hicks, porcelain doll artisan, has an exhibit of her work now at the Calloway County Public Library.

A native of New Zealand, Mrs. Hicks met her G.I. husband, Bill, there while he was recuperating from Pearl Harbor injuries for which he received the Purple Heart. They have lived in the States since the 1950s, but she has not lost her delightful accent.

Although their offspring have all married and have children of their own, Eileen never suffers from "empty nest syndrome." She has a houseful of little ones she has made from porcelain.

From pouring her own molds, some of which are Lladro which she acquired when they sold off in Spain, to dressing them in handmade clothing, all of them are entirely her own creations.

From her earliest childhood memories art has fascinated her, but her father always discouraged her from pursuing it. He considered it to be a frivolous waste of time

Her father would not allow her to accept a scholarship she won in the Eighth grade and directed that her college courses to be of a more practical nature.

For years her talent found expression through dressmaking and other types of sewing.

Finally in 1975 while she and her husband were living in Kansas, she enrolled in china painting classes which led to painting porcelain dolls. She now makes 250 different styles of dolls and dresses them in wigs and clothing authentic to their eras.

One of the very special dolls currently exhibited at the library is titled 5H. It is a French porcelain reproduction in appropriate dress, all of which was crafted by Eileen, down to the handmade leather shoes.

Her husband makes templates for her and she recycles old purses, drying them to match the costumes of her dolls. She has appeared in the magazines, Women's Household and National Doll World, illustrating the process of porcelain doll reproduction.

Perhaps the most unique doll she makes employs the "lost art" of face draping. Small porcelain dolls are draped in a special natural fiber lace that has been treated with liquid porcelain. When it is fired at 2300 degrees in a kiln, the lace burns out leaving the delicate porcelain in a lace pattern.

Eileen will be practicing this lace draping of dolls on Wednesday, Aug. 20, from 10 a.m. to noon at the Calloway County Public Library.

The public is invited to drop in and observe at any time during the demonstration.

Free concert on Wednesday

The Frontline Continentals will present a free concert on Wednesday, Aug. 20, at 6:30 p.m. in the sanctuary of First Baptist Church, Murray. The Continentals 1997 anniversary "Reachin' Out!" tour will feature a dynamic, evangelical program of contemporary Christian music. "Featuring over 30 singers, dancers, and technicians, the Continentals' program includes music for all ages and will challenge today's Christian to extend the hand of love through actions, as well as words, to those in need, both in the church and on the streets," said Boyd Smith, Students and Activities Minister at First Baptist Church. The public is invited to attend the free concert on Wednesday.

Johnson sees up, down sides in scrimmage

By MARK YOUNG Sports Editor

Typical for an early-season scrimmage, Denver Johnson saw both the good and the bad.

Despite some inconsistencies in the two-hour workout at Roy Stewart Stadium, the first-year Murray State football coach said his players gave a good effort in the hot Saturday afternoon sun.

"Our kids played hard, but we didn't execute well on either side," Johnson said. "That tends to glare more on the offensive side, but we were throwing a lot at them and using a lot of personnel grouping and formations, so it will take some time to work those things out.

"We're also struggling up front offensively, but some of that is because we've got new personnel in there," he added. "We haven't quite gotten it going yet, but we've seen a lot of improvement the last few days."

With the 1997 season opener against Indiana State just over a week away (Aug. 28) Johnson highlighted the passing game for the majority of Saturday's scrimmage, and while there were some overthrown passes and drops, he was encouraged by the play of some of the pass-catchers.

"I thought Wilbert Smith and Mat Davis stepped up," Johnson said. "Reggie Swinton looked good on a reverse pass and he caught a pass and made a good move. He's one guy who can alter the course of a game. I also thought Sam Greer and Brandon Warfield did some good things."

"We're going after the Braves," Alou said. "I think that's easier because we're only chasing one team. If we go after the wild card, we're in a race with four teams. I'd rather con centrate on the Braves. I think we can beat them.

Alou hit a three-run homer, his 16th of the season and 100th of his career, to put Florida ahead 6-0 in the third. He also had a

Griffey homers twice to reach 40 for season Mariners slugger tops majors

The Associated Press

CHICAGO (AP) — Despite his July slump, a big August has left Ken Griffey on pace to hit 53 home runs this year.

Griffey homered twice to reach 40 for the fourth time in his career and lead the Seattle Mariners over the Chicago White Sox 5-3 Sunday in the opener of their doubleheader

In the second game, rookie Mike Sirotka won his season debut to lead the White Sox to a 4-2 victory, stopping a four-game losing

"We've played a lot of baseball," said Seattle manager Lou Piniella, whose team split a twinbill Friday against Baltimore and originally was scheduled to play a doubleheader Saturday against Chicago. "It'll be good to get these doublheaders out of the way and get back on schedule.

Griffey, who went 4-for-5 in the first game, hit a two-run homer off Jaime Navarro (9-10)

Seattle's Ken Griffey Jr. hit two home runs in a doubleheader split with Chicago Sunday, marking the fourth time in his career he has hit at least 40 home runs in a single season.

in the first inning of the opener and a solo homer in the ninth off Chuck McElroy, giving him seven in 10 games.

"I haven't done anything differently," said Griffey, who hit three homers in July. "I'm just going up there hitting. Whatever happens, happens.

Griffey took over the major-league lead at 40, one more than Tino Martinez of the New York Yankees. Griffey finished the doubleheader 5-for-9, and struck out in the eighth inning of the second game with a runner on second. McElroy got the upper hand in the

"I don't look at their stats. I go right after them," McElroy said.

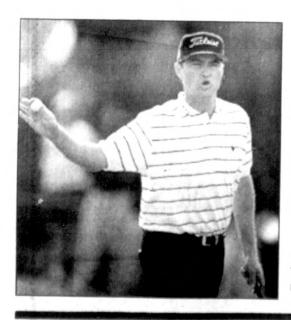

"Junior can hit them," Piniella said. "He went through a little dry spell there and he's starting to hit the ball well.' Griffey got off to a hot start, hitting 13 homers and 30 RBIs in April followed by 11 homers and 32 RBIs in May. He drove in only 19 runs and hit three homers in July.

He already has eight homers and 16 RBIs in August. The Mariners have 39 games remaining.

Defensively, Johnson noted the play of several players.

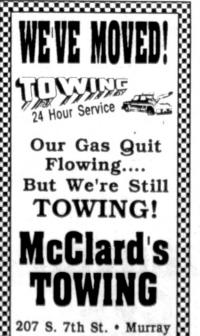

"Marcus Stepp looked good, and Beau Guest had a great week of practice, even though I wasn't watching him (Saturday)," he said. "I also noticed Chauncey McGhee and a few others."

Johnson said the next step for the Racer coaching staff was to evaluate the tapes of Saturday's scrimmage to develop a more updated depth chart.

"We'll try to get a good plan of where we're going and get a starting point for Indiana State," he said. "We looked at things (Saturday) that we felt like we needed to take a look at. If we had highlighted our backs more, the scrimmage would have taken on a different look."

Johnson said the Racers would continue with two-a-day practices for at least part of this week, with some of the afternoon practices in full pads. "We'll go full pads for at least one of the practices because we need to get in some work on our running game," he said. "In looking at the film of the scrimmage we'll determine where we are and start forming a plan for Indiana close out a season by winning the British Open and the PGA. "And he never, never let up.

Neither did Leonard. They started the round tied at 7 under, but it took only five holes for Love to put four strokes between them — Love rolled in a birdie from the fringe at No. 3 and twoputted for birdie at the par-5 fifth, Leonard missed the fairway and took bogey at the second and fourth.

The lead was at five after 11 holes until Love hit his only bad drive of the day that set up a bogey on the par-5 12th and Leonard rolled in a 6-foot birdie to cut the lead to three.

The pressure of the final round in a major began to increase almost as quickly as the storm clouds gathered. Leonard hit a 3-iron to 15 feet at the 212-yard 13th hole, and Love's 4-iron bounded down a slope behind the green, 20 feet of rough and 5 feet of green between him and the

"It really woke me up," Love said. "I went down there and was just going to try to find a way to get that ball up-and-down. That pitch shot ... I've hit some good ones when I've had to.'

This was one of them. The ball hit the back of the cup and spun out to set up a tap-in par, a shot that Love says "saved the championship.'

"And then, it started getting a little more interesting again,' Love said.

Leonard rolled in a 10-footer for birdie in a hard rain to cut the lead to three going into the 16th hole, where Love had failed in three previous rounds to hit a good drive. On Friday, it cost him the lead with a double

After Leonard hit his drive into the right rough, Love's 3-wood split the fairway, and a 6-iron to 10 feet sealed his victory.

"Those two shots he hit at 16 in a downpour were just incredible," Leonard said.

All that awaited Love was the final walk up the 18th fairway, a moment he had dreamed about since he turned pro and craved even more since the 1988 death of Davis Love Jr. in a plane

"The procedure is felt to provide a very costeffective, patientfriendly alternative to older forms of treatment," -Dr. Joe Mobley, Jr.

Paris urologist Joe Mobley, Jr., M.D. is one of a handful of physicians in this part of the country who is taking advantage of the latest technology in helping his patients deal with a common prostate problem. This new procedure, called TUNA (transurethral needle ablation) is expected to replace the more traditional forms of treatment for BPH, a noncancerous enlargement of the prostate that often strikes older males. "We have experienced good results in patients who have been treated," said Dr. Mobley, who is board certified in urology. He also explained that there are cases when this new procedure allows relief of symptoms for some patients who otherwise would not have been candidates for surgery.

The procedure is performed on an outpatient basis with the use of minimal

Referral for treatment with TUNA may be made through a personal

CLOSURE OF HAZARDOUS WASTE TANKS

FOR VANDERBILT CHEMICAL CORPORATION

EPA I.D. #KYD-053-350-229

The Kentucky Natural Resources and Environmental Protection

located at 396 Poor Farm Road-East, Murray (Calloway County), methanol tank & an evaporator tank). The above ground wet methanol tank has a capacity of 10,022 gallons but currently is empty. The above ground evaporator tank has a capacity of 6,000 gallons and is part of wastewater treatment process. The evaporator tank will be emptied and flushed before the closure activity starts.

The closure plan submitted by the Vanderbilt Chemical Corporation

Anyone wishing to request a public hearing or comment on the closure of these hazardous waste tanks should submit the request or comments to the Cabinet on or before September 22, 1997, the close of the public comment period. If a public hearing is requested, a public notice will be provided in the "Murray Ledger & Times," and the comment period will be extended automatically to the close of the hearing. All comments received by the close of the comment period will be considered in making the final decision on the closure plan.

Any person who may be aggrieved by the closing of these hazardous waste tanks may file with the Cabinet a petition, which sets forth the grounds of the objection and demands a formal hearing pursuant to KRS 224.10-420(2). This type of hearing is held before a hearing closure plan can be reviewed at the Calloway County Public officer and all parties are advised to have legal counsel present.

Shakespeare makes the parking lot

NEW YORK (AP) - Broadway it's not.

"Shakespeare in the Parking Lot" is theater for the masses, and then some. Actors compete with daily garbage trucks, an occasional drunk, sniffing dogs, car alarms and the like.

The 3-year-old summer festival of Shakespearean plays performs for free in a municipal parking lot, doing the Bard's "Macbeth, "A Midsummer's Night Dream," "The Tempest" and more.

It has its upside, said Bob D'Haene, a wiry actor who plays Macbeth.

In one recent play, teen-age boys taunted performers with howls and laughter during "Hamlet." About halfway through, they became quieter. The next night they returned and sat in a back row, silent and watching. "You could just tell, they were totally, totally getting everything that we're doing and enjoying it and having a great time, D'Haene said.

HOROSCOPES

BY JACQUELINE BIGAR

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Tuesday. Aug. 19, 1997:

This year, you worry too much and make more of fiscal changes than is necessary. Learn to go with the flow. Still, be careful with the details of financial interactions. Your ability to communicate is highlighted; your unusually soft, charming manner plans and domestic priorities. Acelicits favorable responses from others. Opportunities knock on your door. If you are single, you could have many appealing suitors. Deciding whom to commit to might be too much of a challenge. If attached, your love life heats up because of your caring words and actions. PI-SCES handles your money well.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)  The unexpected occurs with communications. You feel that things are out of control, and they are. Go within, for solutions. Dynamic thinking is necessary to get past a restriction. You find answers when you energize your mind and brainstorm. Tonight: Curl up with a good book.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) * Emphasize your ideas several times. Realize that a friend means well but might not have the right answer when it comes to a personal matter. A partner becomes a source of many ideas and offers choices. Tonight: Discuss goals. GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

* Others make professional demands on you. Determine the necessary course of action. Don't allow any room for misunderstandings to creep in. Confusion seems ingrained in what is going on. Remain optimistic and happy when dealing with a partner. Tonight: Let love in. CANCER (June 21-July 22)

* You are upset and need to reorient your plans. Be flexible. You gain, professionally and emotionally. Know that there are many different styles. Absorb information, and be an intellectual pioneer. Your ability to break through barriers is highlighted. Tonight: Go to the movies. LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

 Go for togetherness. It is important to work with the unexpected. Financially, you feel that you are on a roller-coaster ride. Creativity pours out, as the result of a loving conversation. Be gentle and open. Make important calls in the afternoon. Tonight: Be with a favorite person.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) * Be direct with others. If you are elusive and difficult, you might not be able to get what you want. Others might be somewhat dense. Let others talk, explain or vent. Take notes, especially if it affects your home and finances. Tonight: Accept an invitation to go out.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) ★★ Be open to what is happening, though your nerves could be strained. You might be working yourself into a lather for nothing. Concentrate on practical solutions, and do what can be done. Your caring ways open up a dialogue with a close associate. Tonight: Work late.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) ★★★★ You make more of a misunderstanding than you need to. Decide what you want from a loved one.

21/2 CAR (24x24)

LARGE 21/2 CAR (24x30)

PLUS OFF LEVEL LOT

Creativity surges and allows you to open up. Brainstorm, and enjoy your imagination. Communications become inspired when you tap into your feelings. Tonight: Be frisky! SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) ★★★★ Take the lead in a domestic matter. Others need your clarification about what works, and what doesn't. Think through your future cept another's caring gesture; he is sincere about what he offers. Tonight: Grin like a Cheshire cat! CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) ★ Sort through information that is important to you. Someone wants you to repeat yourself. Be patient. Explore options if you hit a snag. Intellectual curiosity proves to be your strong suit. Be instinctive when dealing with a boss. Tonight: Catch up on a friend's news. AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)  Make finances a high priority.

Another's error could be quite upsetting, and have implications for you left and right. Break patterns, and don't get plugged into a problem. Choose an unusual solution; the conventional might not work. Tonight: Make an important phone call. PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)  It seems that a partner is testy this morning. Present a concept later in the day, when everyone team. Worry less about what upsets you; it's wasted energy. Tonight: Do what makes you happy! BORN TODAY President William Jefferson Clinton

TODAY IN HISTORY

By The Associated Press

Today is Monday, Aug. 18, the 230th day of 1997. There are 135 days left in the year. Today's Highlight in History:

On Aug. 18, 1587, Virginia Dare became the first child of English parents to be born on American soil, on what is now Roanoke Island,

On this date:

In 1227, the Mongol conqueror Genghis Khan died. In 1846, U.S. forces led by Gen. Stephen W. Kearney captured

Santa Fe, N.M. In 1894, Congress established the Bureau of Immigration.

In 1914, President Wilson issued his Proclamation of Neutrality, aimed at keeping the United States out of World War I. In 1920, Tennessee became the 36th state to ratify the 19th Amendment to the Constitution, which guaranteed the right of all American women to vote. In 1938, President Roosevelt dedicated the Thousand Islands Bridge connecting the United States and Canada. In 1954, Assistant Secretary of Labor James E. Wilkins became the first black to attend a meeting of a president's Cabinet as he sat in for Labor Secretary James P. Mitchell.

In 1963, James Meredith became the first black to graduate from the University of Mississippi.

In 1983, Hurricane Alicia slammed into the Texas coast, leaving 22 dead and causing more than $1 billion damage.

In 1991, Soviet hard-liners launched a coup aimed at toppling President Mikhail S. Gorbachev, who was vacationing in the Crimea. (Gorbachev and members of his family remained effectively imprisoned until the coup collapsed three days later.)

Ten years ago: American journalist Charles Glass escaped his kidnappers in Beirut after 62 days in captivity. (Glass had been abducted June 17 with two Lebanese who were released after a week.)

Five years ago: On the second night of the Republican National Convention in Houston, U.S. Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, delivered the keynote address, denouncing Bill Clinton's economic program as "worse than sleaze." Basketball star Larry Bird announced his retirement after 13 years with the Boston Celtics.

One year ago: On the eve of his 50th birthday, President Clinton was guest of honor at a trio of events in New York that combined celebrating with fund-raising. Ross Perot, the presidential nominee of the Reform Party, launched his campaign with a speech in which he criticized the Republican and Democratic parties as captives of special interests.

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: I have received many phone calls since the appearance of Carol A. Tauer's letter in your column. Her otherwise interesting and informative letter concerning the ethical implications of the Catholic Church's position on the seal of the confessional contained a couple of errors that I hope you will correct. It is well known in the Bay Area professional community that I was the treating psychologist (not psychiatrist, as Ms. Tauer states) at Cowell Memorial Hospital on the University of California-Berkeley campus for the patient who murdered Tatina Tarasoff.

Ms. Tauer, an ethics teacher in a Catholic college, said in her letter, On appeal, the California Supreme Court rejected the psychiatrist's argument supporting absolute confidentiality, saying that a psychiatrist had a duty to warn or protect an identifiable potential victim But Abby, I never argued for complete confidentiality. When the patient told me of his intention to kill Ms. Tarasoff, I immediately informed the local police (in this case, the University of California Campus Police Department) and wrote a legal letter of commitment countersigned by the chief psychiatrist of our department) with the intent of hospitalizing my patient. This was exactly the procedure directed by law at that time (1969).

The campus police interviewed my patient and released him, stating that he was "harmless." I wrote a second letter of commitment again to no avail — and contacted the police several more times urging them to save Ms. Tarasoff. They refused to act, and the patient stabbed Ms. Tarasoff to death.

Ms. Tauer's letter implies that I sat back passively, allowing a bru'tal and unnecessary murder to occur. The truth is I fought vigorously (but unsuccessfully) to prevent this act. Probably, Ms. Tauer refers to a "friend of the court" brief offered by the American Psychiatric Association in which they (not I) argued for complete confidentiality.

LAWRENCE EARLE MOORE. PH.D., SAN FRANCISCO

DEAR DR. MOORE: Thank you for your letter. I received a great deal of mail concerning the issue of confidentiality, reflecting heated opinions on both sides of the question.

However, I want to make one point absolutely clear to my readers: You did, in fact, warn the police on at least two occasions. You did not rely upon any claim of confidentiality to keep the threats secret.

The Supreme Court opinion cited by Ms. Tauer does not make clear that you attempted to have the patient committed and did not keep the matter confidential.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 62-year-old man who has been divorced for 25 years. I recently retired on a modest income and would like to travel twice a year to various places.

The problem is when I see an ad or a bargain on travel prices, it is so much per person, double occupancy. enjoy my solitude and would prefer to take these trips alone. Aren't there more options for a single person other than singles cruises that don't penalize one for traveling alone? I would appreciate any information you can provide.

TROUBLED TOURIST

DEAR TROUBLED TOURIST: Several travel agents confirmed that there are no price breaks for people traveling alone. Rooms and/or cabins are made to accommodate a minimum of two people, and hotels or cruise lines lose money when space is provided to one individual. Single travelers are therefore chance, and she made the most of it. charged a "single supplement," She began by leading dummy's which is approximately 65 pernine of clubs and letting it ride after cent of the double occupancy Eastfollowed low. DR. GOTT

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My wife has fibroids. Would you suggest that she treat them with herbs such as cinnamon, rhubarb and sargassum?

DEAR READER: I think not. Fibroids (benign muscular tumors in the uterus) are extremely common and usually require no therapy unless they bleed or grow large. Millions of middle-aged women develop these painless growths of unknown cause which are not health hazards. They cause the uterus to swell and are diagnosed by ultrasound examinations. In most instances, fibroids grow slowly, causing no symptoms other than excessive menstrual bleeding. In some cases, they rapidly enlarge, mak ing intercourse uncomfortable. For some reason, such fibroids can suddenly disappear completely and not return. However, those that remain large may have to be surgically removed. No scientific studies have shown any beneficial effects from the use of herbal remedies - or from any standard medical therapy, for that matter.

Women with fibroids should be examined periodically by their gynecologists

DEAR DR. GOTT: Does purple grape juice have any protective effect on the heart?

DEAR READER: You're probably familiar with the current enthusiasm with which some cardiologists view red wine: A moderate amount (one or two glasses a day) seems to protect some people — especially the French from heart attacks. The reason is not known.

Counterbalancing this view is the observation that alcohol abuse is an enormous public-health concern.

Thus, it was with optimism that experts greeted a new study, presented at this year's American College of Cardiology meetings, showing that nonalcoholic purple grape juice appears to exert a mild anti-clotting effect that could help reduce the risk of heart attacks.

I must emphasize that these results are very preliminary and must be confirmed by other studies. However, the data is intriguing, particularly for those people who don't like wine or should avoid it. More important, if the active ingredient could be isolated as it surely will be someday — doctors might have vet another weapon with which to combat heart disease. I'll keep readers informed as new information becomes available.

Adult student session set for Sunday at MSU

As students arrive at Murray State University for the opening of the fall semester, new and returning adult students are invited to participate in a special session of Great Beginnings, Sunday, Aug. 24 from 1 to 4 p.m., in the Curris Center Mississippi Room.

Great Beginnings for Adult Students is a program planned to enhance confidence and give adult students answers to their specific questions about beginning school at Murray State University.

Organizers of Great Beginnings for Adult Students say taking the first steps into their educational future can be an exciting time for adult students, while at the same time it is normal to feel somewhat uncomfortable about this new and different experience. Information shared at this year's program will focus on making students feel more comfortable and confident as they start the academic year.

Attendance at Great Beginnings not mandatory, but students are encouraged to do so to supplement the introduction received from OA-SIS, to ease transition into Murray State, to increase opportunity for academic success and to provide a chance to meet other adult students who are starting school at MSU this fall. Dress is casual.

Due to a change in the format for Great Beginnings for Adult Students, participants should plan to arrive by the starting time of 1 p.m. Latecomers will not benefit if they do not attend the entire session.

Class scheduling is not part of Great Beginnings. Students who have not scheduled classes should call the admissions office at (502) 762-3741 or 1-800-272-4678 to obtain the name of their adviser, then call the adviser to schedule an advising appointment. Classes can then be scheduled through RACER-TOUCH by dialing (502) 762-3500.

Students who are unable to attend Great Beginnings for Adult Students are welcome to attend Great Beginnings sessions for traditional students that will be held Aug. 23-25. For more information on these sessions call (502) 762-4678 or 1-800-272-4678.

The $5 Great Beginnings registration fee is due by Friday, Aug 22 and may be paid at the Adults Belong in College office on the third floor of Sparks Hall between the hours of 8 a.m. and 4 p.m. To register by mail, call (502) 762-4678 or 1-800-272-4678 and request a registration form.

Print worth $250,000

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) - It was just an old print, but the frame was nice, so Wanda Bell plunked down $25.

Beneath the print was a portrait on wood that appraisers said could be worth up to $250,000. Mrs. Bell bought the print showing the signing of the Declaration of Independence a few vears ago at a local auction. Upon cleaning it up, she discovered the portrait of an unknown man who looks like a revolutionary soldier or dignitary.

In a free appraisal Saturday at Chubb's Antiques Roadshow, experts at Sotheby's and Wayne Pratt, Inc., determined it was an early painting by New England artist Sheldon Peck, dated around

"We're close to retirement, I think we'd have to think about retiring early," said Mrs. Bell, 52, who owns an antiques shop.

Peoples First takes over Montgomery County bank

Guaranty Federal Savings Bank today became Peoples First of Montgomery County. This represents the first offices operated by Peoples First outside the state of Kentucky.

In conjunction with the change, Peoples First of Montgomery County will build a new office in St. Bethlehem. Construction will begin later this year. The new 8,300 square-foot facility will become the main office in Clarksville. Peoples First is currently operating three offices in Clarksville.

We're excited by the change and the opportunities it gives us in Clarksville," said Keith Bennett, president of Peoples First of Montgomery County. "By becoming a part of one of the region's largest community-based banks, we are able to offer a wider range of products and services."

As a part of a group of community banks, Peoples First of Montgomery County gains the benefits of a large organization, while keeping the service philosophy and speedy response time of a small bank.

Peoples First of Montgomery County is an affiliate of Peoples First Corporation, a $1.5 billion holding company with 25 offices in Kentucky and three in Tennessee.
