MPD helps with 'Buckle Up Campaign'

The Murray Police Department will continue locally a summer-long national and state effort to raise seat belt usage and drunken-driving awareness.

As part of the Memorial Day-to-Labor Day "Buckle Up Campaign," the police department, with the help of the state Department of Motor Vehicle Enforcement, has set up a speed display on North 12th Street by the Central Shopping Center.

The display, as well as increased enforcement of seat belt and child restraint laws, are reminders to "drive smart," according to a police press release. Police also will be conducting sobriety checkpoints throughout the summer.

Raising the national seat belt usage rate from 68 percent to 90 percent would prevent 5,536 deaths and 132,670 injuries and save $8.8 billion annually, said Assistant Chief Ken Claud, citing National Highway Traffic Safety Administration statistics.

TB test no longer requirement for Kentucky students

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Children entering Kentucky's public schools this fall will not be required to take a tuberculosis skin test.

More than 50,000 children were screened each year for the disease under a state law that required that all students, regardless of grade, be tested for tuberculosis within 18 months before entering a Kentucky school for the first time.

The General Assembly abandoned the requirement earlier this year.

The disease is a chronic bacterial infection, usually infecting the lungs, that can prove to be deadly. Symptoms include listlessness, vague chest pain, pleurisy, fever, weight loss and night sweats.

Gene Simmons, who directs tuberculosis programs for the Kentucky Department of Public Health, said the requirement was dropped because most doctors now think mass testing of school children is no longer a prudent use of public health money.

Another reason is that tuberculosis is no longer thought to be a major health threat in Kentucky. The number of reported cases has fallen by 50 percent since 1992 and only 199 cases were reported in the state last year, the fewest since records have been kept.

Simmons said individual positive cases have become rare. "Out of the thousands of children we were testing we would get a few positives every year, but many of those turned out to be false positives," Simmons said.

Board opts for new contract

By CHARLES WOLFE
Associated Press Writer

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — In a high-stakes game of Beat the Clock, the state school board has decided, generally, what it wants in a new contract for school testing.

Department of Education employees now must draw up specifications in time to float them past a legislative subcommittee next week.

The state board is to take a final vote a week from Monday, after which the Finance Cabinet would solicit bids.

A new test is supposed to hit classrooms in the spring. That means it will have to be designed before winter.

John Poggio, a University of Kansas researcher who is among test experts advising the board on technical issues, questioned Wednesday whether the schedule was too ambitious.

"My opinion is you don't have any days to waste. ... You are at the limit," Poggio told board members and department officials.

Helen Mountjoy, the board's chairwoman, said she was confident the deadlines would be met.

"Sometimes a tight time line is not necessarily a bad thing," Mountjoy, of Utica in Daviess County, said in an interview. "If we had another year, we'd waste another year."

The various groups that have a hand in the process will be forced to collaborate, she said. They collectively will have to rely on Poggio and the rest of a national technical panel headed by James Catterall, an education professor at UCLA, she said.

"I do not believe this board is going to sacrifice technical soundness ... to meet some artificial time line," Mountjoy said.

The new system — Commonwealth Accountability Testing System — is to replace KIRIS — the Kentucky Instructional Results Information System.

KIRIS, born of the 1990 Kentucky Education Reform Act, was created for the dual purpose of assessing student knowledge and school performance. Schools were judged by a unique "accountability index," with possible rewards and sanctions for gains or lapses.

Report questions readiness

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — A new report says state government's computers are not yet fully prepared to deal with the year 2000, when some systems could interpret the calendar as moving back a century.

The state auditor's report, released Wednesday, said that only two cabinets, the Tourism Cabinet and the Economic Development Cabinet, reported completion by March of this year of the renovations needed for their software systems. And no agency has done all the security and background work to ensure continued operations, the audit said.

"Difficult choices may result regarding which computer systems to repair or replace and which to shut down or repair at a later date," Auditor Ed Hatchett said.

Kentucky's chief information officer, Aldona Valicenti, said the audit does not accurately reflect the progress that is being made.

"In fact, the progress on year 2000 compliance is on par with other states facing this challenge," Valicenti said in a formal response to the audit.

The problem is not confined to state government. Computer systems everywhere are faced with the same issue. Many systems were built to refer to years by the final two digits in order to save computer space. When 2000 comes, some systems will believe the year is actually 1900.

Valicenti said the most critical computer systems in state government are the top priority in reviewing the issues connected with the calendar change.

According to the audit, 205 of the primary systems in state government were completed as of March, with another 103 under

Tyson works on odor dilemma

ROBARDS, Ky. (AP) — Tyson Foods Inc. is working to resolve the odor problems coming from a chicken processing complex, but company officials are warning outraged residents a permanent solution will take some time.

Plant general manager Doug Hester told the Henderson

County Fiscal Court that design mistakes have caused some of the stench from the plant, which Tyson Foods inherited when it acquired Hudson Foods Inc. in January.

"Some things were not done correctly from our perspective. We're coming to realize that," Hester said Tuesday.

Henderson County Judge-Executive Sandy Watkins said immediate action is needed.

"It's getting ridiculous, the stench out there," Watkins said. "The fact is, it stinks. Someone needs to fix it, and fix it today."

Rescue continues in train crash

By TONY CZUCZKA
Associated Press Writer

ESCHEDE, Germany (AP) — Using cranes and jackhammers, hundreds of workers lifted chunks of a collapsed overpass off crumpled train cars today, searching for those trapped when the swiftest train on Germany's rails jumped the tracks.

At least 92 people died when the lead locomotive of the Munich-to-Hamburg InterCity Express broke loose at 125 mph Wednesday morning, leaving behind 12 passenger cars and a second locomotive that careened off the tracks and crunched together like an accordion.

With few clues to the cause of the disaster, rail officials ordered all 100 InterCity Express trains to slow down to a maximum of 100 mph instead of the previous top speed of 175 mph.

Rescue workers hoped to recover more bodies today from a first-class car and a severed di-

Habitat seeks site for house

By DAVID RAMEY
Staff Writer

The Murray Habitat for Humanity wants to build a new home for a deserving family.

The problem is — where? Charles Homra of Habitat for Humanity said the group has the money in place to begin building its sixth house and continue its streak of building one a year, as they have over the last three years.

What they need is a building site. "We've got enough money to start a house," Homra said. "We've just got to have a lot to put one on. We're talking to everyone that we can think of that has some property we can afford."

The group has made an offer on a lot and is awaiting final approval from the property owner.

Homra said the group would like to have a lot in the city limits — giving the homeowner city water and sewer services and making the home cheaper to build.

But he said the organization would take a property donated that it is located in the county.

Habitat raised a little over $5,000 through its flamingo program — where ceramic birds "migrated" into property owners' yards and were removed for a fee. About 175 residences were visited by the flocks of birds.

But residents can rest easy — the birds have been retired for the summer.

Downtown plan moves forward

By DAVID RAMEY

With a helping hand from the Kentucky Heritage Council, Murray's Main Street program hopes to have a new manager in place by July 1.

The Murray program was recently added to the Kentucky Main Street program, qualifying it for funding.

The program also has received pledges of matching funds from the City of Murray and the Calloway County Fiscal Court.

Tom Ewing, president of Murray Main Street, said the hiring of a manager will be a great step forward for the way and 95 yet to be done. The audit said that amounted to just over half the state computer systems adequately modified.

 "We think the chances of finding further survivors are very small," police spokesman Peter Hoppe said.
 The four parallel tracks were strewn with stray wheels, shards of metal and other debris — much of it the result of rescuers cutting and smashing their way into the mangled hulks of train cars.

 The report estimated the cost of the revisions at $24 million, but Valicenti said the cost will actually be closer to $34 million. The funding is contained in most agency budgets and a $6.7 million contingency fund set aside by the 1998 General Assembly.

Doctor's discovery may end obesity

HILTON HEAD, S.C. — A doctor believes that a natural formula containing the extract of a small Asian fruit can help cause significant weight loss.
 Anthony A. Conte, M.D. reported in an American Medical Journal that the formula, now called Bio-Rex 3000, caused patients to lose more than twice as much weight as those in a control group on the same fat reduced diet. Neither group was instructed to decrease the amount of food they ate or to increase their exercise levels. An article published in the American Journal of Clinical Nutrition says that you don't have to reduce the amount of food you eat to lose weight, provided that you limit the fat.
 Dr. Conte says that animal studies suggest the mechanism behind the weight reduction is due to interruption of the "Krebs Cycle", an important step in the body's fat storage process. He says it may work the same way in humans. According to Dr. Conte, "The best part of this unique discovery is that it is not a drug, but a dietary food supplement. The Asian fruit, called garcinia, is similar to citrus fruit found in the United States with one big exception-- it may help some people fight obesity! While Dr. Conte's study may be preliminary, the exclusive North American distributor, Phillips Gulf Corp., is calling the Bio-Rex 3000 supplement "Nature's Ideal Diet Aid."
 According to a spokesperson for the company, Bio-Rex 3000 is now available through pharmacies and nutrition stores or call 1-800-729-8446 or visit www.phillipsgulf.com.

"How could we know that this horrible thing would happen in this beautiful place?" said Bernd Schlauer, 45, who provided a place to stay for one man from Hanover who had come searching for his wife.
 Christoph Kuenkel, the local Lutheran pastor, prepared for a memorial service this evening. Loudspeakers and bleacher seats were installed outside for those who won't be able to crowd into the simple, yellow wooden building.
 Twenty-four hours after the accident, there were no firm estimates of how many people were on board the train, or how many survivors might have walked away from the crash.
 Officials continued to give varying death tolls. Police said 90 bodies were recovered so far, two more people died in the hospital, and 95 had been treated in hospitals for serious injuries. Lower Saxony state officials earlier said 100 people were killed and 200 people were injured.
 The tragedy was the worst on Germany's rails since World War II. Flags flew at half-staff at all public buildings today, rail workers wore black ribbons. Upon hearing the news, many Germans rushed to donate blood.
 German Chancellor Helmut

Kohl, who cut short a trip to Italy to return home, visited the disaster scene this afternoon, pledging $550,000 in immediate government aid.
 His challenger in national elections in September, Lower Saxony state governor Gerhard Schroeder, also arrived today and offered to help victims. "This has brought more Germans closer together than in a long time," Schroeder said.
 It remained unclear why the lead locomotive decoupled from the rest of the train.
 Photos of the scene showed that five cars cleared the overpass before derailing. Still pushed by the rear engine, the others jumped the tracks into the concrete supports of the overpass, collapsing it and jackknifing into each other.
 Obvious to the catastrophe, the driver of the lead locomotive continued through the Eschede train station until the station master engaged the emergency brake. "There is no indication that the derailment was anything other than an accident," Hoppe said.
 Deutsche Bahn executive Peter Muenschwander confirmed that two workers doing signal maintenance on an adjacent track were still missing and presumed dead. Their car was crushed beneath the debris; it was unclear whether it had been parked along the tracks or on the overpass.

 At the accident site, a red crane hoisted a severed train car from the overpass today so workers with jackhammers could pull apart the overpass to reach the crushed train cars beneath.
 "Then there was a loud boom, a dust cloud, and then silence," Hannelore Domkewitz, who was peeling potatoes at her kitchen window when she saw the train speed by just before the crash.
 One passenger from a rear car told SAT 1 TV that he felt a jarring rattle minutes before the accident.
 "I held on and ducked down because you had the feeling you'd be thrown through the air," Wolf-Ruediger Schliebener said. "Thank God, it came to a standstill."
 As screams rang out from the wounded, dazed and bloodied survivors staggered toward residents, who came running out of houses just 150 feet away. More than 1,100 rescue workers rushed to the scene, including trauma surgeons.
 The accident was the worst on Germany's premier ICE line, inaugurated in 1991 and prized for both its speed and safety.

Man, teen-ager injured in separate accidents

Staff Report
 Murray Ledger & Times
 A College Farm Road man was treated at the hospital for neck injuries and released Thursday morning after wrecking his car on a rain-slickened Kentucky 94 West.
 Jimmy Jones, 28, apparently lost control of his car about 7 a.m. when it hydroplaned as he was westbound about four miles from Murray, according to a Calloway County Sheriff's Department report. The car hit a culvert and went into a ditch, the report said.
 Jones later complained of neck injuries and was taken to the Murray-Calloway County Fire Department.
 In other sheriff's department reports, Whitney C. Joseph, 16, of Southwest Villa Drive, was released from the hospital Wednesday after being treated for a head injury she received when her car overturned Tuesday night.

 Joseph lost control of her car about 8 p.m. Tuesday as she was eastbound on Wiswell Road, the report said.
 Her car reportedly dropped off the south side of the road, began fish-tailing, went off the north side and overturned about one-quarter mile outside the city limits.
 Workers from Murray Emergency Medical Services, the Murray Fire Department and Calloway County Fire-Rescue assisted at the scene.
 Joseph was admitted overnight Tuesday for observation, a hospital spokesman said.

 organization.
 "We are a Main Street designated city now and that puts us on par with 50 other cities in Kentucky," Ewing said. "It allows us to search for a manager and with a manager in place, we will have someone working on a day-to-day basis pulling all of the programs together."
 The Kentucky Heritage Council's Main Street program is designed as a downtown economic development/preservation program. The Main Street program involves the development of a positive image for the central business district based on the historic and architectural features of the community.
 The program has four parts — organization, design, promotion and economic restructuring — that have been developed by the National Trust for Historic Preservation to revitalize downtown.
 The local project started in January of this year, when it conducted its first organizational meeting. A board of directors has been elected and a committee structure is in place.
 Ewing said there have been some misconceptions about what the Main Street program will be doing. It will not be paying for improving property for property owners.

 "We will work with property owners and with lending institutions to help them," Ewing said. "But it will be the role of Main Street to assist."
 The Main Street program has been particularly effective for both Mayfield and Paducah.
 Paducah was recently honored nationally for its efforts in improving the downtown business district.
 Ewing said the board is continuing to seek support for the Main Street program and will be visiting service clubs in the community this month to publicize the effort.
 In addition to hiring a manager, immediate projects for the program include improving lighting downtown and to help attract people to live downtown.
 "We would like to see some people living in the upper floors of some of the older buildings," Ewing said. "Paducah has shown that if people are living downtown, then you will have businesses downtown."

 the problems, Hester said. But some solutions are weeks away, and more permanent solutions could take longer. Some odor problems can't be completely wiped out "until we can do a long-term fix, which will take some dollars," Hester said.
 Hester said that Tyson "has shown more urgency than ... I could get out of our Hudson folks."
 But Watkins said solutions already are long overdue.
 "This isn't a problem that started two weeks ago or six weeks ago," he said. "You and I discussed it two years ago."
 Odor complaints reached a peak in recent weeks because of problems related to wastewater from Tyson's protein rendering plant, which processes chicken wastes from four poultry plants into animal feed and other products. Tyson releases that wastewater to a treatment plant that the city of Henderson built as part of the effort to recruit the chicken plant.
 City officials say Tyson has been producing more wastewater than was originally expected — as much as 2.8 million gallons or more a day — and that the wastewater has recently contained up to twice as much chicken waste as the treatment plant was intended to handle.

The problem was exacerbated a few weeks ago by a huge concentration of organic waste by Tyson that killed the microbes crucial to the treatment process. Hester said it was caused by equipment failure.
 That resulted not only in the waste treatment plant violating state standards for the quality of water it releases into the Green River, but also raised the amount of unpleasant odors around the complex.
 Tyson hopes to decide on a short-term fix by week's end, Hester said. One option is to add chemicals during Tyson's pre-treatment of its wastewater.
 It's also possible to install additional equipment to pump oxygen to microbes in the treatment basins. But that could cost $600,000, a cost city water sewer officials say Tyson should be responsible for paying.
 And Tyson has been investigating longer-term solutions as well, such as building an additional treatment facility to handle excess volumes.

 Other odor issues exist.
 The smell of burnt chicken feathers has been a leading complaint. New equipment used to dry the wet chicken feathers is being brought in and should be on line in the next three weeks, Hester said.
 Area residents complained Tuesday of trucks going to and from the plant that spread foul odors.
 "The smell is really bad in the restaurant," said Angie West of the North South Truck Stop just north of the Tyson complex. "I know we've lost probably a third of our business because of the smell."
 "I've had customers tell me they pull up to the restaurant, get out of the car, smell that smell and drive off."

Board...

 KIRIS' accountability component was bedeviled by technical and managerial problems. The General Assembly passed legislation this year.
 The new law requires the test to have a "norm-referenced" component by which Kentucky students could be compared with students across the country.
 The board decided to use an "off-the-shelf" commercial test for that part, rather than having a test customized. Still to be determined is whether that part of the test will figure into a school's accountability score.

 The new law also mandated some way of measuring one class of students year after year to assess their progress over time. It is called longitudinal comparison.
 Catterall said his technical panel questioned the wisdom of that requirement, since longitudinal studies are fraught with problems. The state board decided to ask prospective contractors to present models for such studies.

Daschle circulates proposal for election year tax cut

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Democratic Leader Tom Daschle circulated a proposal for an election-year tax cut today to ease the impact of the so-called "marriage penalty" and provide relief for self-employed workers who buy health insurance, The Associated Press has learned.
 The provision was drafted as an amendment to tobacco legislation pending in the Senate, and is aimed at countering a tax cut proposal that Sen. Phil Gramm of Texas and many fellow Republicans support.
 Congressional sources, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said the Democratic alternative would be less costly than Gramm's proposal, although no final figures were immediately available.
 In political terms, these sources said that Daschle was bidding to give Democrats, particularly those seeking re-election next year, a chance to vote for a tax cut without jeopardizing chances for passage of the tobacco measure.

 Taxes aside, numerous other thorny issues remain unresolved on the tobacco bill, including how to protect tobacco farmers from economic hardship; whether to grant Big Tobacco limited liability from lawsuits and what type of penalties to impose on tobacco firms that fail to meet pre-set targets for reductions in teen smoking.
 The tobacco bill would raise billions, largely through a $1.10 per pack increase in the price of cigarettes, and tax cuts would come from those funds — which already had been earmarked in the legislation for the states for national health care research and other efforts.
 Democratic officials said Daschle was hoping for votes in the Senate during the day on the tax cut issue as the Senate renews work on the tobacco legislation.

Board grants district reprieve

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Augusta Independent schools, fighting for survival in a funding dispute with neighboring Mason County, has been given a one-year reprieve from the Kentucky Board of Education.

The two districts are at odds over 49 students who live at Dover in Mason County but attend school in nearby Augusta, where total enrollment is 294. State funding for those students is about $200,000 per year.

The Mason County school board decided it no longer would agree for Augusta to have the money. Without an agreement, Augusta could not count the students in its average daily attendance, on which state funding of local schools is based.

However, Mason County would not receive the money, either, unless the students enrolled in the county's schools.

Missing woman's body found in park

MAMMOTH CAVE NATIONAL PARK, Ky. (AP) — A body found in the Green River at Mammoth Cave National Park has been identified as that of a woman whose car plunged into a rain-swollen creek 75 miles upstream.

Dorothy Louise Milby, 47, had been missing since Sunday night when she failed to report to work at a hospital in Columbia.

The Summersville woman would have been driving on Kentucky 61 south of Greensburg, where a creek washed the blacktop off the road. Sheriff Ronnie Marcum said the car was found about seven miles south of Greensburg, but not where the blacktop was washed away.

Boyd cocaine overdoses increase

ASHLAND, Ky. (AP) — A Boyd County hospital has reported seeing several patients with cocaine overdoses within the last week. Toxicology tests show the drug is being mixed with atropine, which is used as a cardiac stimulant.

Physicians from the King's Daughters' Medical Center in Ashland began notifying other area hospitals Tuesday of the deadly drug combination that is not detectable by standard toxicology tests.

Boone plans seek preservation

BURLINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Boone County's plan for preserving the rural character of its western area includes regulations to encourage developers to leave open space and a non-profit foundation to find riverfront land for recreation.

The plan, undertaken in 1996 and nearing completion now, doesn't ban development. Instead, it seeks to offer incentives to try to maintain the region's natural and cultural integrity.

Without a plan in place, public access to the Ohio River will be gobbled up, hilltop development will scar the landscape and views along roads will look suburban, planners say.

Hancock students' drug use up

HAWESVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The Hancock County school system says its study of drug use among students turned up some alarming results.

Although there was a decrease among fifth-graders, a significant increase was seen among 10th- and 11th-graders, reaching or surpassing the national average in the use of alcohol and marijuana.

School officials said the biggest concern was where and when students reported using drugs: Drug use was most common not at school, but at home, at a friend's home, at parties and on weekends.

Prosecutors close case against teen

PHILADELPHIA, Miss. (AP) — After testimony about his mother's gruesome death, the prosecution closed its case Wednesday against a teen-ager accused of fatally stabbing his mother before killing two classmates at school.

The pathologist who performed an autopsy after 50-year-old Mary Woodham's slaying was the last prosecution witness in Luke Woodham's trial. Dr. Steven Hayne testified that Ms. Woodham suffered 11 slashes to her arms as she tried to ward off a knife attack. She had seven stab wounds, including three to the chest.

Hayne said she likely lived another 20 to 40 minutes as her chest cavity filled with blood.

Woodham, 17, is on trial here for his mother's death Oct. 1. He will be tried next week in Hattiesburg in the shooting deaths of two Pearl High School students and wounding of seven others later that morning.

Both trials were moved from Pearl because of pretrial publicity.

Earlier Wednesday, an expert testified that a hickory-handled knife that was repeatedly plunged into Ms. Woodham had Woodham's blood on its handle, and that her blood was identified on an aluminum baseball bat found in her son's room.

Investigators had testified Woodham had a cut on his hand after he was arrested and told them he got the wound "stabbing my mother."

Also Wednesday, Circuit Judge Samac Richardson agreed to make public the testimony that Daniel Lucas Thompson, 16, gave Tuesday in closed court. His decision to keep the juvenile's testimony secret had been challenged by various media outlets, including The Associated Press.

Thompson is one of six other teens arrested in an alleged conspiracy to kill fellow Pearl High students. Charges against Thompson were moved to youth court, where records are closed in Mississippi. The other defendants are being prosecuted as adults.

Police say the six conspiracy suspects and Woodham were members of a cult-like group called "The Kroth."

On Tuesday, jurors heard two lawmen testify that Woodham spontaneously confessed to his mother's death in their presence. Jurors also heard testimony about a formal, written confession and watched a videotaped confession in which Woodham tearfully said his mother "never loved me."

In cross-examinations, defense attorney Leslie Roussell has been laying groundwork for a defense that claims Woodham was controlled by 19-year-old Grant Boyette, alleged leader of "The Kroth."

If convicted of his mother's death, Woodham faces a maximum of life in prison. He faces the same penalty if convicted in the school shootings.

In the eight months since the Pearl High shootings, similar rampages have occurred at schools in Jonesboro, Ark., West Paducah, Ky., and Springfield, Ore.

Right to Life group targets school, Patton

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — The president of an anti-abortion group in northern Kentucky is continuing to wage a public relations war with Gov. Paul Patton.

Northern Kentucky Right to Life President Robert Cetrulo is now criticizing Covington Catholic High School for inviting Patton to speak at an awards luncheon and fund-raiser last month in Fort Mitchell. They objected to the invitation because Patton vetoed an anti-abortion bill in April.

The Right to Life protest turned out to be moot: Patton declined the invitation because of a prior commitment. But Cetrulo said in an interview that Patton's position on abortion should disqualify him from speaking at any Catholic-sponsored event.

"We would welcome him as a church attendee," Cetrulo said. "But when you're talking about honoring him as a principal presenter, you unavoidably give the misimpression of acceptance, and his position obviously cannot be accepted."

The uproar over the high school program marked the second time in as many months that Right to Life has objected to the governor being invited to appear at a Catholic event in northern Kentucky.

Patton, who is Presbyterian, signed two anti-abortion measures into law in April, but he vetoed a bill that requires a woman seeking an abortion to wait 24 hours and receive state-produced booklets that contain photos and other information about a developing fetus. The General Assembly eventually overrode Patton's veto, and the law will take effect next month.

Patton was scheduled to speak in May at a fund-raiser in Fort Mitchell for the Diocesan Catholic Children's Home. But after he vetoed the abortion bill, Right to Life mounted a telephone and letter-writing campaign to protest his appearance.

Bishop Robert Muench of the Diocese of Covington withdrew the governor's invitation and canceled the event but said he was not influenced by the Right to Life protest.

Covington Catholic Principal Jack Kennevan said he never considered withdrawing the invitation. By the time the controversy over the veto had developed, Patton already had notified the school that he would be unable to attend.

AROUND THE NATION

Officials red-faced about exam

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — State education officials were embarrassed to learn that a health exam with explicit questions about sex was given to hundreds of 11th-graders.

The Illinois Board of Education apologized Wednesday for sending the test to 61 high schools as part of a statewide pilot project. Schools Superintendent Joseph Spagnolo said a newly appointed panel of citizens would thoroughly review any future tests.

An education employee sent the tests to the schools without first running them by a committee of state experts as required, officials said.

Court: NYC can rezone businesses

NEW YORK (AP) — A federal appeals court ruled that the city can force almost all X-rated businesses into the city's version of the boondocks — industrial districts.

The decision by a three-judge panel Wednesday allows the city to enforce a zoning change that affects as many as 146 of the city's 164 sex businesses that are within 500 feet of each other or near schools or houses of worship.

Mayor Rudolph Giuliani declared victory, but sex businesses still have 21 days to ask the full appeals court to review the panel's opinion. Normally, the full court does not take up issues resolved by some of its members, which would leave the Supreme Court the last avenue of appeal.

Lewinsky's new team seeks deal

WASHINGTON (AP) — Monica Lewinsky's new defense team has made initial contact with prosecutors, marking a fresh start in efforts to save the former White House intern from a possible criminal indictment, legal sources say.

But a difficult task lies ahead for veteran lawyers Jacob Stein and Plato Cacheris: negotiating a binding agreement with prosecutor Kenneth Starr that would trade the former White House intern's cooperation for immunity from prosecution.

White House officials, meanwhile, said presidential aide Sidney Blumenthal, who previously refused to answer some questions before Starr's grand jury, was expected to testify today.

Government redefines 'overweight'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Millions of Americans maintaining what they think is a healthy weight are in for some bad news from government scientists who are changing a widely used standard for what's safe.

5-foot-4, 145 pounds? Better lose a few to stay healthy. 5-foot-10, 174 pounds? Cut down on the calories and step up the exercise, according to the guidelines released Wednesday by the National Institutes of Health.

A group of experts convened by NIH concluded that body mass index, a way to measure body weight in relation to height, provides patients and doctors with the most accurate way to determine when extra pounds begin to hold health risks.

Judge ends English-only policy

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — When Martha Sandoval's doctor ordered her to stop walking to work, driving was the logical solution. The problem: Mrs. Sandoval speaks only Spanish, and Alabama only offers drivers' license tests in English.

She sued, and a judge on Wednesday struck down the English-only policy, ordering the state to offer tests in other languages. U.S. District Judge Ira DeMent said the policy created "continuing irreparable injury" to non-English-speaking citizens. He compared non-English-speaking Alabamians to handicapped, illiterate and deaf applicants, all of whom take special driver's tests.

SENATOR WENDELL FORD

U.S. Senate, Washington, D.C. 20510

DON'T LET WELL RUN DRY

Because the tobacco program is crucial to maintaining a rural economy in Kentucky until alternatives are found, farmers, health groups, and tobacco-state Senators spent months working to ensure protections for the program were included in tobacco legislation. But just as debate was to begin in the Senate, the Republican leadership snuck in a provision by Senators McConnell and Lugar to kill the tobacco program, and with it the livelihoods of thousands of Kentucky farmers.

It made me wonder if these Senators truly understand the value of the program. Benjamin Franklin once commented that "when the well's dry, we know the worth of water." I feel certain Senators McConnell and Lugar would see very quickly how much the program is worth to 60,000 tobacco farmers in Kentucky if they let it run dry. But I'm not ready to let them measure the program's worth that way.

Kentuckians understand that the program not only keeps the price of tobacco high and stable, but also serves as a crucial bargaining tool for the nation's 124,000 tobacco farmers, who sell their crops to just four controlling companies. And because the program is run at no-net cost, taxpayers won't save a penny by shutting down the program. But eliminating the program will save tobacco companies about $1 billion per year in lower prices—all coming from the pockets of tobacco farmers.

That means when Congress soon takes up the tobacco bill again, there'll be a showdown between those who've thrown their support behind the tobacco companies and those who remain committed to helping tobacco farmers and their communities with the LEAF Act.

Some say farmers are merely being transitioned to the free market. But under the McConnell-Lugar plan, tobacco farmers are being transitioned out of business. So at a time when we need to be giving back to our tobacco farmers and their communities, Senators McConnell and Lugar would rather give them the back of our hand.

That's why 45 farming and health groups, including virtually every tobacco growers association in the Southeast, have come out in support of my LEAF Act. And another 16 groups, including the National Governors Association, have written in support of keeping a tobacco program.

They support the LEAF Act because they understand that the McConnell-Lugar plan forces tobacco farmers out of business. Most tobacco farmers are small, family-run operations with just a few acres of tobacco. The McConnell-Lugar plan makes promises that simply can't be kept, meaning most farmers will never see the cash they've been promised over three years. And with no program, the price of a pound of tobacco will drop dramatically, putting small farmers out of business. Agriculture economists predict Kentucky could lose well over half of its tobacco farms.

The McConnell-Lugar plan would eliminate the program, but force farmers to continue to pay the "Tobacco Marketing Assessment," which raises over $30 million annually for federal coffers. And under McConnell-Lugar, farmers who didn't produce crops for any single year between 1995 to 1997, will receive no transition payments, regardless of the reason they were unable to grow.

That's not all the bad news. If Senators McConnell and Lugar have their way, rural communities would see little in the way of transition assistance. With just $200 million a year for the next five years, Kentucky would see just a nickel for every dollar of income tobacco brings the state's farmers.

In the next few weeks, Kentuckians need to send a strong message to supporters of the McConnell-Lugar plan that we don't need to wait until the well's dry to know the worth of the tobacco program. It's the price of 60,000 tobacco farms and the rural communities they support.

Grad project a 'success'

Dear Editor:

Calloway County High School's Project Graduation was a tremendous success.

Project Graduation is a national initiative designed to provide a safe, drug and alcohol free evening for the graduates. The evening truly was spent sharing exciting events with friends, parents, and teachers.

Because of the generosity of a wonderful, caring community CCHS Project Graduation 98 was an unforgettable night for the graduates. The parents of the 1998 Seniors would like to thank every business and individual who played any part in making this evening such a success. We are proud to live in an area where we know our young people will always be unselfishly supported.

Boating piques interest

After completing my master's degree, my husband thought that I would have more leisure time on my hands.

He bought me a set of golf clubs, feeling sure that the lessons he would give me would turn me into a proficient golfer in no time.

After all, golf is one of his favorite sports. In his mind, I am sure that he had already mapped out golf weekends with the two of us on the course, sporting matching golf duds.

Somehow I think he forgot that he tried to teach me how to play golf once before. By the time he was finished, the trees and the grass were begging for mercy. My divots probably could have been considered a safety hazard because they were so deep.

This time around, I did a better job during our practice sessions. Could it be because Mike was a little wiser and gave me those plastic balls instead of real ones?

Unlike him, I get very little satisfaction out of hitting a golf ball. However, I have come across something that I would like to spend more time doing — boating.

Up until two weeks ago, my excursions to the lake had been limited to trips as a young girl. Back then, I had no qualms about hopping in the water and splashing around.

WILLFUL THOUGHTS

AMY WILSON
Managing Editor

I remember eagerly jumping out of the car with my towel in hand and dashing to the beach area, urging the rest of my family to hurry.

Mom always had a lunch packed, usually fried chicken with potato salad and baked beans. We had cold soft drinks in the cooler, which were welcome on those hot days.

My sisters and I would grab our rafts and head for the water while Mom and Dad relaxed on the blanket. Those were the days before I realized that it was "cooler" for me to set up camp a few spots down from the family and sunbathe.

We never rented a boat, so my experience with them were limited to the few times I had gone out with friends.

The family picnics eventually ended, and I began to pursue other interests. Since I wasn't an avid boater, I never really knew what I was missing.

So when Mike and I rounded up a high school friend and headed to the lake two weeks ago, our intent was to rent a boat.

Since it was Memorial Day weekend, we were fortunate to get the last deckboat available. And clutching my lifejacket in one hand, I prepared myself for our day's adventure.

After getting repeated assurances that the boat would not tip over, I became more confident and began to relax. The wind whipping through my hair and the cool spray of the water against my skin felt delightful.

We zipped here, there and everywhere taking in the sights. The rock quarry was especially fascinating to me, not only for the sheer daring of those jumping from the cliffs into the water, but also for the number of people on boats in the area.

We had so much fun that we returned to the lake the following weekend. This time, we had fishing poles in hand and rented a pontoon.

My first lesson was that a pontoon doesn't have as much "get up and go" as other boats, although they are certainly sturdy. Rather than join the fishing expedition, I chose to bask in the sun with my book.

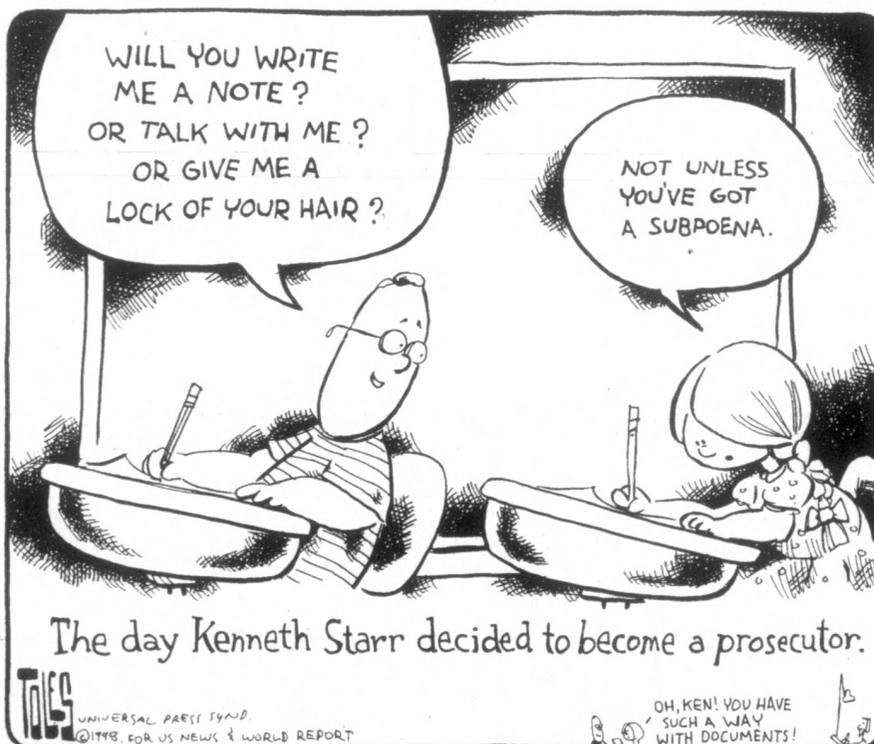

Every time Mike yelled "I've got one!" I would jump up, eager to see that big catch. Unfortunately, the only thing he caught was a large branch — and that was when he was pulling up the anchor.

We may not have caught any fish, but we did see our share of the lake's other inhabitants, including snakes and turtles. I stayed comfortably inside the boat while my companions cooled off because the sight of those snakes left a solid impression on me.

After two trips to the lake, I have a better appreciation of the impact it has on our region. We have some wonderful recreational opportunities in our backyard just waiting for us.

I just can't wait to get back out on the lake and catch some fish of my own. And once we become more boat-savvy, we can bring Austin with us so he can enjoy the experience.

At least I know that I can cast a line and not worry too much about divots. Of course, I still have to worry about those trees...

Goldwater book still 'fresh'

On hearing reports that former Arizona Republican Sen. Barry Goldwater had died, I reached for my original copy of "The Conscience of a Conservative," published in 1960, and re-read it.

This 127-page book was the American equivalent of the Communist Manifesto and trumped every other political document in the world. It remains remarkably fresh and reminds us of how "Mr. Conservative" was the ideological godfather to Ronald Reagan and the entire modern conservative movement.

While Goldwater offended social conservatives with his libertarian views on abortion and "gay rights," he felt he was being true to his convictions that limited government ought to be, well, limited.

Goldwater began his book with a lament, still heard today, that not everyone who accepts the label "conservative" is one.

On the difference between conservatives and liberals: "Conservatives take account of the whole man, while the Liberals tend to look only at the material side of man's nature. The Conservative believes that man is, in part, an economic, an animal creature; but that he is also a spiritual creature with spiritual needs and spiritual desires. What is more, these needs and desires reflect the superior side of man's nature, and thus take precedence over his economic wants. Conservatism therefore looks upon the enhancement of man's spiritual nature as the primary concern of political philosophy. Liberals, on the other hand — in the name of concern for 'human beings' — regard the satisfaction of economic wants as the dominant mission of society. They are, moreover, in a hurry. So that their characteristic approach is to harness the society's political and economic forces into a collective effort to compel progress. In this approach, I believe they fight against Nature."

CAL'S THOUGHTS

On limited government: "(The Framers of the Constitution) knew from vivid, personal experience that freedom depends on effective restraints against the accumulation of power in a single authority."

On taxes: "Government does not have an unlimited claim on the earnings of individuals. One of the foremost precepts of the natural law is man's right to the possession and the use of his property. And a man's earnings are his property as much as his land and the house in which he lives."

On spending: "Neither of our political parties has seriously faced up to the problem of government spending ... The root evil is that government is engaged in activities in which it has no legitimate business."

It was about how to fight communism, however, that Goldwater was his most prophetic and profound. He outlined a nine-point program and concluded with a paragraph that accurately predicted the collapse of the Soviet Union 30 years later: "The future, as I see it, will unfold along one of two paths. Either the Communists will retain the offensive; will lay down one challenge after another; will invite us in local crisis after local crisis to choose between all-out war and limited retreat; and will force us, ultimately, to surrender or accept war under the most disadvantageous circumstances. Or we will summon the will and the means for taking the initiative, and wage a war of attrition against them — and hope, thereby, to bring about the internal disintegration of the Communist empire."

Which is precisely what happened in 1990 when the Berlin Wall and Soviet communism collapsed, just as Goldwater predicted.

Barry Goldwater was smeared as a nuclear madman in the 1964 presidential campaign. Unlike Lyndon Johnson, whose legacy was a lost war in Vietnam and failed Great Society programs, Goldwater's legacy is the entire modern conservative movement which is bringing change not only to America but also around the world as millions are taking their first breath of freedom.

In our hearts, we really did know he was right.

MSU professors get fellowships

Two professors at Murray State University have been awarded Presidential Research Fellowships by the university. Receiving the award for the 1998-99 academic year are Dr. "Gerry" Nkombo Muuka, lecturer in the department of management and marketing, and Dr. Kevin Binfield, assistant professor in the department of English.

This year marks the 22nd anniversary of the awards presented through the university Committee on Institutional Studies and Research (CISR). Fellowship criteria is based on academic performance and promise.

Muuka began his work, "Zambia's Privatization Program: A Model for Africa," earlier with research. The CISR grant will enable him to complete the book on privatization which he has already begun writing.

His project specifically addresses privatization in Zambia and its success thus far. Empirical research involving 24 companies in Zambia and 184 sources of material/references are being used in an effort to answer the question of whether privatization is actually working in Africa.

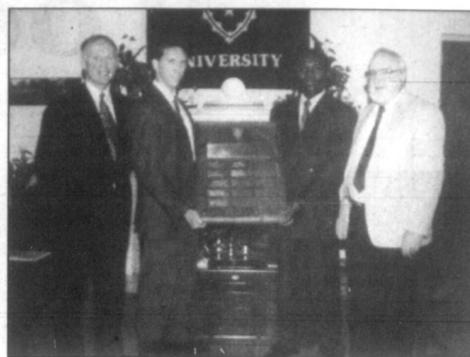

According to Muuka, part of the solution in raising the economic level of Africa is to take commerce and industry out of the hands of the government and put it into the private sector. Muuka said that Zambia's privatization program has been widely praised and it is anticipated that recommendations will be made to other African nations based on Zambia's experience.

Muuka joined the Murray State faculty in 1994. He received his bachelor's degree in 1984 from the University of Zambia, his master's in business administration in 1988 from Murray State University, and the Ph.D. in 1993 from the University of Edinburgh.

He is a member of the Zambia Institute of Marketing and the Economics Association of Zambia. He has had more than a dozen papers published in referred journals and has served as a book reviewer as well.

Most recently, he completed "Electronic Versus Print Publishing in the Business Area: Comparing Traditional With Non-Traditional Publication Outlets." The research for that paper was entirely Internet-based. Muuka has published two papers in exclusively Internet-based referred journals in addition to his print publications.

Binfield's project also will culminate in a published book. His study, "The Writings of the Luddites," is approaching completion and is under advance contract with Johns

Hopkins University Press. Plans are for the book to be marketed as a work in British cultural studies and in the history of technology.

The manuscript collects the threatening letters, proclamations and ballads of the Luddites and provides a critical and historical introduction to the Luddites' use of rhetoric. The Luddites were English textile workers who protested declines in wages by breaking machinery in Nottinghamshire, Lancashire and Yorkshire between 1811 and 1817. Recently, there has been a surge of interest in the Luddites; however, study of that group is hindered by the lack of an exhaustive collection of their writings. Scholars, Binfield noted, wishing to study Luddite writings must either rely on secondary texts or must travel to locations throughout Britain.

In order to complete his study, Binfield will spend the summer traveling to four archives in England to collect the few remaining Luddite documents he has not yet transcribed. He will also be finishing the introductory chapters.

Also during the summer, Binfield will be presenting "Authority and Mimicry in Collective Writings: The Cases of the Luddites and the Sierra Leone Settlers" at the "Scenes of Writing Conference" in Wales.

Binfield began teaching at Murray State in 1997. He earned both a Ph.D. and an M.A. from the University of Nebraska, in 1993 and 1987, respectively, and received a bachelor of arts degree from Nebraska Wesleyan University in 1984.

He is a member of several professional societies including the Modern Language Association of America, the American Society for 18th-Century Studies, the North American Society for the Study of Romanticism and the Keats-Shelley Association.

He had three articles and one book review published in 1997, and has presented at many conferences in his field of interest. The recipient of many honors, Binfield was named to Who's Who Among America's Teachers in 1996, received the University of Nebraska Alumni Association Graduate Teaching Assistant Award in 1993, and was given the Teaching Council/Parents Association Recognition Award at the University of Nebraska on three separate occasions.

1998 NBA Finals

Stockton sparks Jazz to 88-85 win in Game 1

Utah overcomes Malone's off night

By BOB BAUM
AP Sports Writer

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Game 1 of the NBA Finals was a Utah victory, Chicago-style.

As they marched to their five championships of the 1990s, the Bulls won big games by doing just enough, making the crucial plays down the stretch, overcoming all adversity, getting all the necessary breaks.

On Wednesday night, when Karl Malone's jump shot was wandering somewhere in the Wasatch Range, when Chicago rallied in the fourth quarter to force an overtime, the stage was set for another remarkable triumph.

A year ago, in Game 1 of the finals against the Jazz, Michael Jordan hit the game-winner over Bryon Russell.

But in this intense opener, John Stockton made a running floater over Steve Kerr and two free throws in the final 10 seconds of overtime for an 88-85

Utah victory.

"You watch Chicago, and they've won games just like this," Malone said, "where they really didn't play well, they didn't shoot the basketball well, and they won the game."

The Bulls were uncharacteristically rattled in the overtime, committing three turnovers, including an unthinkable 24-second violation when Jordan, of all people, lost track of time.

The Bulls knew they had kicked away a huge opportunity to take the road game they must get in Salt Lake City if they are to keep their crown.

"I couldn't ask for a better game and a better opportunity to win on their court, and we feel like we let one slip away," Chicago coach Phil Jackson said. "It's obvious we had our chances, and it took a heck of a shot by John Stockton at the end to extinguish our hopes."

They'll get another chance in Game 2 Friday night.

Stockton, at age 36, usually isn't a big scorer anymore. He leaves that to Malone and the crowd of younger players the Jazz have assembled. But on this night, when Malone was misfiring, Stockton took the offensive load himself.

He finished with 24 points, his playoff high this year, along with eight assists.

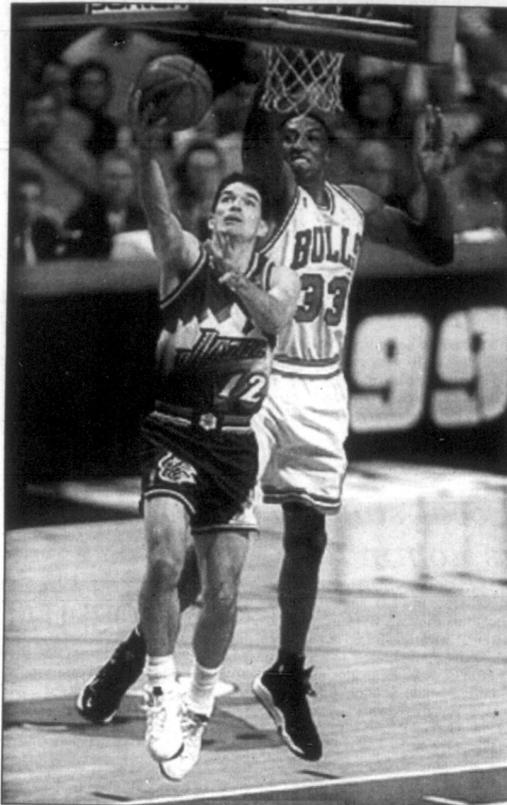

The Jazz won even though Malone missed a dozen or so jump shots before he finally made two crucial ones in the fourth quarter. He finished 9-for-25 from the field for 21 points.

"In the past, when I didn't have a great game, we lost," Malone said. "This team has matured a lot. Here, in the playoffs, when I haven't played well, we still managed to win, and that's really neat to see when you're trying to win a championship."

The Bulls lost Game 1 only once in their five title years —

Real Quiet looks to win Triple Crown at Belmont

By RICHARD ROSENBLATT
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Just after Real Quiet added the Preakness to his Kentucky Derby victory, Bob Baffert became concerned that he was making too much fun of his knock-kneed, light-boned thoroughbred with the paltry price tag.

"I've made so much fun of this horse, calling him 'The Fish,' the way that he looks, and everything else," Baffert said of Real Quiet, who Saturday goes for the Triple Crown sweep in the Belmont Stakes.

"We treated him like a $17,000 horse, but Seattle Slew was a $17,000 horse. You never know where they're going to come from."

But on Oct. 18 of last year, after winning a 1 1/16 mile maiden race at Santa Anita, Baffert knew exactly where his next Derby horse was coming from.

"He was just a big, skinny, gawking-looking kid," Baffert said, "and all of a sudden his body changed. We put blinders on him, gave him a longer race, and he was unbelievable."

After winning for the first time in seven tries, Real Quiet had what Baffert called a "horrible day," with a third-place finish under jockey Kent Desormeaux behind Cape Town and Limit Out in the Kentucky Jockey Cup at Churchill Downs. He ended his 2-year-old campaign, though, with a rousing victory in the Hollywood Futurity.

"Kent came back and said, 'Man, this horse has a lot of energy,'" Baffert said.

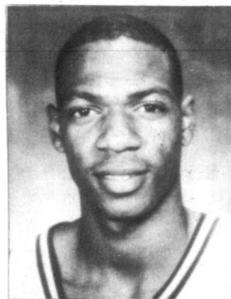

Baffert, his instincts confirmed, turned around and told owner Mike Pegram, "There's your Derby horse."

Just like that, Real Quiet began getting into it, growing stronger with each race and obviously loving the longer distances.

Even though Baffert switched

Knee injury halts Brown's season

Marcus Brown

■ Former Racer now rehabilitating torn ACL in Birmingham hospital; could return to NBA

By MARK YOUNG
Sports Editor

Marcus Brown's first season playing in France didn't end quite the way he wanted.

A Murray State standout from 1993-96, Brown, playing for the Pau-Orthez squad, suffered a torn anterior cruciate li-gament in his left knee last month as his team practiced for the French League finals.

"He hurt it two days before they found out who they would play in the finals," Brown's mother, Gladys, said by telephone from the Browns' home in West Memphis, Ark. "It was just one of those things."

Pau-Orthez went on to win its fifth French championship.

Mrs. Brown said Marcus had surgery to repair the torn ACL and is now undergoing rehabilitation in a Birmingham, Ala., hospital.

"He's doing really well now," she said. "Before the week is over they will find him a place to stay down there. With it being the offseason now, that helps. Between now and the first of October he should get back to about 85 to 90 percent, so the rest is really a plus in his favor."

"He's doing a lot of stretching and lifting," Mrs. Brown added. "I feel like he'll be OK. Sometimes things like this are a blessing in disguise."

She said that Marcus, a 6-2 guard, has had contacts from several NBA teams who may be interested in him for next season. Brown has spent time with both the Portland Trail Blazers and the Vancouver Grizzlies.

"There's a lot still up in the air about that," Mrs. Brown said. "He's had a couple of looks from teams, and one or two of them were in the playoffs. Hopefully he can get back to playing in the United States, but if not, he'll probably go back to France."

Marcus Brown was unavailable for comment.

Wood aggressive in 5-1 victory over Marlins; Chicago wins sixth straight

By JOHN NICHOLSON
Associated Press Writer

Kerry Wood got the message.

"I just told him to get after it, be aggressive," Chicago catcher Scott Servais said, explaining that he wasn't comfortable with the rookie star's attitude before the Cubs' 5-1 victory over Florida on Wednesday.

The 20-year-old right-hander responded in style, striking out nine and giving up five hits in eight innings for his fifth straight victory.

"Warming up, I didn't have good stuff," said Wood, 4-0 at Wrigley Field. "I wasn't throwing strikes."

He was much better when it counted, striking out at least one batter in every inning except the second.

"I go out and try to battle as long as I can," Wood said. "It's the team's job to score runs. It's my job to keep the other team from scoring."

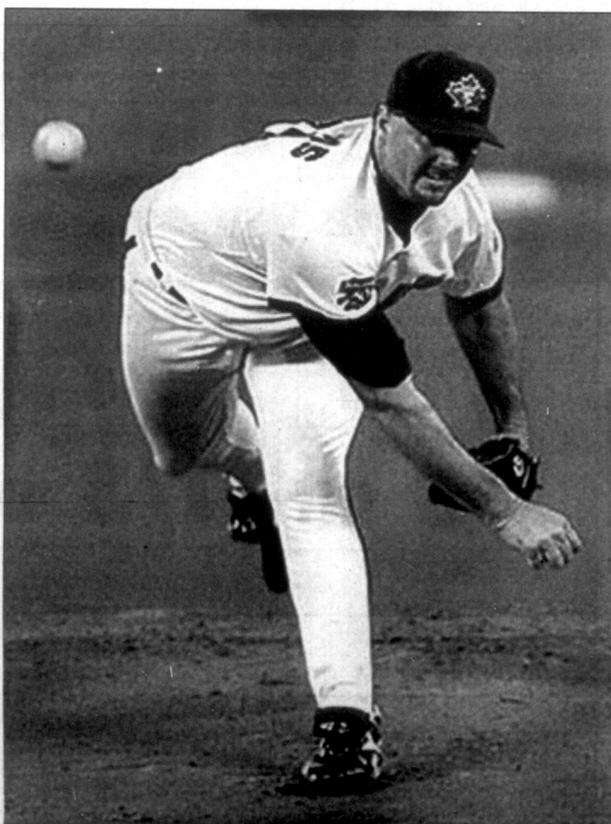

Wood, 6-foot-5 and 225 pounds, faces some lofty expectations after his record-tying 20 strikeouts last month against Houston.

"Every time he pitches, people go to the ballpark thinking, 'Kerry Wood's going to strike out 20.' That isn't going to happen," Servais said.

In other NL games, it was Atlanta 5, Milwaukee 2; San Francisco 8, Cincinnati 5; Pittsburgh 3, New York 0; Los Angeles 7, St. Louis 4; Colorado 3, Arizona 2; Houston 8, San Diego 2; and Montreal 3, Philadelphia 2.

Sammy Sosa hit a two-run homer and Servais had a two-run double to help Chicago extend its winning streak to six games. At 34-24, the Cubs are 10 games over .500 for the first time since finishing the 1989 season 93-69.

"This might be the best Cub team I've seen since I've been in the league," Marlins manager Jim Leyland said.

Roger Clemens struck out 10 and went the distance in leading the Toronto Blue Jays past the Detroit Tigers 5-1 Wednesday. Clemens, who didn't allow a walk, improved to 6-6 on the season with the win.

Clemens clamps down on Tigers in four-hit win

Strikes out 10 as Jays win 5-1

Forget "The Rocket." They should call Roger Clemens "The Stopper."

Clemens pitched a four-hitter for his first complete game of the season as Toronto snapped a three-game losing streak with a 5-1 victory over Detroit on Wednesday night.

Clemens (6-6), who lost three of his previous four starts, is 124-53 following a loss by his team.

"We needed a big game from the Rocket," Blue Jays manager Tim Johnson said. "He was focused tonight and he showed it. He had tremendous stuff."

Clemens struck out 10 and didn't allow a walk as Toronto handed the Tigers their fourth straight loss.

"When you don't walk any guys and beat yourself, usually the outcome is good," Clemens said.

Although he was the losing pitcher in his major league debut, Detroit's Seth Greisinger enjoyed watching Clemens on the mound.

"I found myself watching Roger more than our hitters," said the 22-year-old Greisinger, who gave up five runs and eight hits in 6 1/3 innings. "Ever since he first came out and threw 95 and 98 (mph), I've always idolized the Rocket, so it was fun to go out there and pitch against him."

Shawn Green drove in two runs for the Blue Jays.

In other AL games, it was Baltimore 3, Boston 0; New York 7, Tampa Bay 1; Chicago 10, Kansas City 5; Minnesota 3, Cleveland 2; Anaheim 8, Seattle 1; and Texas 16, Oakland 10.

Orioles 3, Red Sox 0

Doug Johns allowed four hits in 7 1/3 innings, and Eric Davis had an RBI double as Baltimore won for the eighth time in 11 games.

Johns (2-1), back at full strength after a stint on the disabled list because of insomnia, didn't give up a hit at Fenway Park until Damon Buford's leadoff single in the sixth. He has allowed only four earned runs in 24 2/3 innings in his last three starts.

Arthur Rhodes completed the shutout — the first against Boston this season — with one-hit relief for his second save.

against the Los Angeles Lakers in 1991. Chicago won the next four.

Seven years later, the much older Bulls were weary from a seven-game struggle with Indiana in the Eastern Conference finals. Still, they almost pulled it off against the well-rested, if slightly rusty, Jazz.

Jordan had a magnificent 15-point second quarter, but managed only 13 in the second half to finish with 33. Pippen scored 21 on 7-for-19 shooting.

But the rest of the Bulls were little help, and none of them could hit from long range. Chicago was 3-of-16 on 3-pointers.

The Bulls never led after the first quarter, but were never down more than eight.

Trailing 67-59 entering the final quarter, the Bulls rallied behind — who else? — Jordan. He sank consecutive jumpers to cut Utah's lead to 75-72 then, after yet another Malone miss, Pippen sank a wide-open 3-pointer from the top of the key to tie it 75-75.

Malone's two jumpers put Utah up 79-75 with 55 seconds left in regulation.

Pippen made two free throws to make it 79-77, and after Russell missed, Chicago got the ball to Jordan. He drove across the key, but the shot wasn't there. Instead, he passed to Luc Longley, who scored to tie it with 14 seconds left.

Stockton missed a wild shot from the corner, and the game went into overtime.

The Jazz scored the first five points of the overtime on Malone's layup and Stockton's three-point play.

Down 84-82, Chicago had a chance to tie, but as Jordan drove to the basket, Utah's Greg Oster-tag blocked his path. Jordan had to pass the ball out, and the 24-second clock expired.

"It was a mental lapse," Jordan said. "We had our play set and I think Scottie got confused in terms of what the play was, so we had to start it back over again. The next thing you know we had a 24-second violation. I didn't know how much time was left. Nobody knew how much time was left."

After a Utah turnover, Chicago had another chance to tie with less than a minute to play. With Jordan, Pippen, Kerr and Toni Kukoc in the lineup, the ball somehow wound up in the hands of the No. 5 choice, Longley. He drove to the basket, lost control and a diving Russell grabbed the ball and called timeout.

Stockton took the ball downcourt, and when the offense broke down, he drove to the hoop and floated the shot in.

"I was in the paint and just drove in there, and it seemed like some guys fanned out to the passing lanes, and I just shot it," Stockton said. "Fortunately, it went in." The Bulls weren't dead quite yet. Kukoc, just 3-for-11 overall and 0-for-4 from 3-point range up to that point, sank a 3-pointer with 4.8 seconds left to slice Utah's lead to 86-85.

Chicago fouled twice to get Utah to the line. Stockton rattled in the first free throw, then cleanly sank the second to make it 88-85.

"It was an awfully good win for us," Utah coach Jerry Sloan said.

seven strong innings in his major league debut as New York beat Tampa Bay.

Cheered on by a Yankee Stadium crowd of 27,291 waving Cuban flags, "El Duque" limited the Devil Rays to one run and five hits. The half-brother of World Series MVP Liván Hernandez of the Florida Marlins struck out seven and walked two.

Scott Brosius supported Hernandez with a pair of two-run doubles. The Yankees won their third in a row, defeating the expansion Devil Rays in their first-ever meeting.

Twins 3, Indians 2
Marty Cordova's two-out, two-run single in the eighth inning gave Minnesota a victory over Cleveland.

The loss was just the second in nine games for the Indians, who still lead the second-place Twins by 7½ games in the AL Central. Visiting Cleveland took a 2-1 lead in the seventh when David Justice led off with his 11th homer of the season. But the Twins went ahead in the eighth on Cordova's bases-loaded single off Jose Mesa.

White Sox 10, Royals 5
One night after brawling with the Anaheim Angels, Kansas City went down without a fight.

Wil Cordero went 4-for-5 with three doubles and Magglio Ordonez had a career-high four RBIs as Chicago beat the Royals for their 10th straight victory in Kauffman Stadium.

There were no beanballs or brawls like the ones that marred Kansas City's 7-5 loss to Anaheim on Tuesday night. There were 12 ejections in that game, and more penalties are expected to be announced Friday by AL president Gene Budig, who attended the fight-filled game.

Angels 8, Mariners 1
Damon Mashore triggered a five-run inning by hitting a tie-breaking homer off Randy Johnson in the seventh, and Chuck Finley pitched eight strong innings for Anaheim at Seattle.

After Mashore's second homer of the season broke a 1-1 tie, the Angels broke the game open and chased Johnson (5-4).

Following Gary DiSarcina's double, Johnson hit Darin Erstad with a pitch and walked Dave Hollins to load the bases. Tim Salmon's fielder's choice ground-out brought in DiSarcina, and Cecil Fielder's single scored Erstad to put Anaheim ahead 4-1.

Pinch-hitter Garrett Anderson added an RBI single off Mike Timlin, and Fielder came in from third on center fielder Ken Griffey Jr.'s throwing error on the play. Anaheim won its fourth in a row, while Seattle lost its third straight.

Rangers 16, Athletics 10
Juan Gonzalez and Luis Alicea homered in a six-run fifth inning, and Texas overcame Rickey Henderson's grand slam to win at Oakland.

Lee Stevens had four hits and two RBIs, and Will Clark added a three-run double for the Rangers.

Real Quiet...

his allegiance to stablemate Indian Charlie by the time the Derby rolled around, he always considered Real Quiet "his first string," well aware his bay colt could get the classic distances with ease.

On Saturday, Real Quiet needs a victory in the 1½-mile Belmont Stakes to become racing's 12th Triple Crown winner and first since Affirmed in 1978.

"He's just a big, long-striding, puts-'em-away, makes-that-move, keeps-on-going, comes-back-great-kind of horse," said Baffert, who along with Real Quiet arrived at Belmont Park on Wednesday.

For a colt with just four wins in 14 career starts — the Derby and Preakness gave him his first two-race win streak — it's tough to figure how he's so close to a Triple Crown.

Baffert, who nearly won the Triple Crown last year with Silver Charm, had a tough time early with Real Quiet, too.

The trainer, with help from Florida-based buyers J.B. and Kevin McKathan, picked him out at the Keeneland yearling sale in September 1996, even though his front legs were crooked despite earlier surgery to correct the problem.

While the top 2-year-olds were going against each other at Saratoga and Del Mar last summer, Baffert took Real Quiet to tiny Santa Fe Downs in New Mexico. Real Quiet fared poorly, finishing third in a $10,000 allowance and third in the little-known, but big-paying ($500,000) Indian Nations Futurity.

Oliver! to open June 11

Beginning June 11, Playhouse in the Park turns into a little piece of 19th century London as the musical "Oliver!" is presented for everyone's enjoyment.

The musical has music and lyrics by Lionel Bart, featuring many well known songs such as "As Long As He Needs Me," "Consider Yourself," and "I'd Do Anything."

"Oliver!" is the musical version of Charles Dickens' somber tale, "Oliver Twist," his third published work. The story has a strong main character and plot, and readers are introduced to an orphaned boy named Oliver, who was pitted against poverty and cruelty.

The men, women and children working in British factories at the time were not being paid fairly or treated well, Dickens observed this and wrote "Oliver Twist" to bring these conditions before the public, hoping to incite the population to ask for better laws and conditions for the poor.

As the musical begins, young orphan Oliver Twist is living in a workhouse. When he dares to ask for more food, he is sold by the overseer, Mr. Bumble. Oliver is sent to work for an undertaker.

Abused there, too, Oliver runs away to London, where he meets the Artful Dodger, one of a gang of youthful thieves who live with and are trained by Fagin. Oliver is brought into this group, whom he naively accepts as friends.

From this point, Oliver has more adventures and is exposed to a world filled with both love and evil. The story ends with a thrilling and satisfying conclusion.

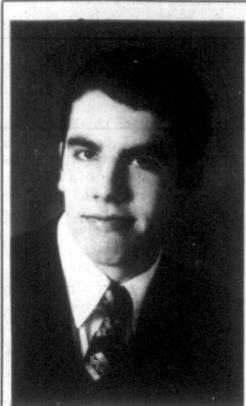

Although the book "Oliver Twist" is a somber tale, the musical "Oliver!" certainly is not. While retaining the most important incidents of the original book, the musical has actually become more of a comedy. The villains become funnier, the gang of child thieves become lovable, and London becomes less disagreeable.

The musical is quite enjoyable, showing a bit of tragedy surrounded by joy, laughter, and dancing, presented by almost 40 local actors and actresses. In other words, "Oliver!" ends up being loads of fun for all ages.

"Oliver" is being presented at Playhouse in the Park at 8 p.m., June 11-13, 18-20, 25-27 with 2 p.m. matinees June 21 and 28.

The musical is being directed by new Playhouse director Michael Dunnagan, with Amy Brown as musical director and Jessica Skinner as the director of choreography. For reservations and information, call 759-1752.

Nathan Hughes will perform a senior piano recital at 2 p.m., Sunday in the Farrell Recital Hall at Murray State University. The event is open to the public.

Wallace to tell of life in Between the Rivers

Before the turn of the last century, W.D. Sykes was a hard-working young man who hauled cross-ties to the river to make extra money so he could attend the Academy at Cumberland City and earn his teaching credentials.

By the time of his death at 81 in 1959, Sykes had developed a reputation as a visionary Southern leader and entrepreneur from Stewart County, Tennessee. Throughout his life, Walton Dill Sykes was known as an educator, merchant, farmer, lumberman, miller, politician — and above all — a humanitarian.

W.D. Sykes' 93-year-old daughter, Vara Lillian Sykes Wallace, of Clarksville, Tenn., pays tribute to her talented and energetic father in an upcoming segment of "Connecting People & Place," a radio series that airs June 11 at 6:30 p.m. on WKMS-FM, 91.3 on the dial in Murray, and 92.1 in Paducah.

The show will be re-broadcast June 13 at 6:30 a.m. Wallace tells vivid stories of life Between the Rivers in the early part of this century. She recalls the annual visits of showboats that tied up at Sykes Landing, near her father's store in Tharp, Tenn.

Wallace offers many examples of her father's civic-mindedness, including the country doctor he recruited from Nashville; the lumber he donated to help build a high school in Dover; and the musical instruments and sports equipment that he made sure were always on hand at his store, for whoever wanted to borrow them.

When a group of Tharp's young men left to serve in World War I, Wallace watched them play touch football in front of her father's store. They were waiting for the mailboat to Dover, so they could be inducted into the military.

"I remember that day very well," she declared. "They had a lot of fine young men in that community."

Nearly 80 years later, she can recite the names of those who came back and those who did not.

Also featured in the half-hour show is an interview with Maggie Carter, editor of a new magazine called "Between the Rivers: Keep the Promise." Premiering this month, the 52-page, full-color publication tells stories of former Between the Rivers residents — their churches, cemeteries and communities.

"Between the Rivers" is produced by King's Publishing of Mayfield and is available in various retail and commercial outlets in the Land Between The Lakes region.

"Connecting People & Place" is made possible through grants from the Kentucky Oral History Commission and the Kentucky Arts Council, with matching funds provided through Land Between The Lakes Association; Land Between The Lakes; Carolyn Roof, Paducah; Bank of Livingston County; Bank of Lyon County; Elf Atochem, Calvert City; Vanderbilt Chemical, Murray; and Stewart County Historical Society, Dover, Tenn.

Constance Alexander, award-winning writer from Murray is writing, producing and editing the series, with technical support from WKMS-FM.

In Loving Memory

In Loving Memory
 What can you say about someone who has always been one of the most essential parts of your world; someone who took you by the hand when you were little and helped to show the way?
 What do you say about someone who stood by you to help you grow, providing love, strength, and support, so you could become the person you are today?
 What can you say to let him know that he's the best there is, and that you hope you have inherited some of his kindness, wisdom and strength?
 What words would you say? Maybe you say, "we love you Daddy, with all our hearts," and hope he understands.
 Always in our hearts and memories.
 Eloise, Billy, Rhonda, Don, Lana, Debra
 The family of Frank Kavanagh

DR. GOTT

DEAR DR. GOTT: How is homocysteine related to heart disease?

DEAR READER: Homocysteine is a product of metabolism and can be measured in the blood. The higher the level, the greater the risk of cardiovascular disease.

Elevated blood homocysteine is associated with cigarette smoking, excessive coffee consumption and a deficiency of folic acid in the diet. Therefore, many researchers suggest that homocysteine levels be obtained routinely in healthy adults. If excess quantities are discovered, the patients should stop smoking, reduce coffee consumption and take folic acid supplements.

As yet, doctors have not determined whether the compound itself causes heart disease or if it is merely a marker that indicates a potentially serious metabolic derangement. Further investigation is underway in a number of medical centers.

To tell you more about heart disease, I am sending you my Health Report "Understanding Heart Disease." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2017, Murray Hill Station, these lab findings can be replicated and refined to the point where an elixir of youth could be marketed to the general public. However, it's reassuring to know that scientists have taken the first step on the long journey toward modifying the aging process. There will be bumps in the road, no doubt, as well as enormous moral and ethical considerations. For example, what's the point of maintaining life to 120 or 130 years if the person has advanced senility and is confined to a nursing home? Unfortunately, new scientific discoveries (for instance, cloning) often exceed society's ability to cope with them. However, keep your eye on telomerase; it may be the discovery of the century.

New York, NY 10156. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Is there any medicine available to slow the aging process?

DEAR READER: Normal human cells undergo a finite number of cell divisions and ultimately stop dividing. This state is called "replicative senescence," and is the reason that we all eventually die. Many experts place absolute limits (of about 110 years) on human life.

Therefore, a recent medical report in the journal Science sparked a great deal of interest because the researchers may have hit upon a method to prolong cell division.

The key here is something called telomere shortening. Such shortening, in the genetic makeup of cells, can be blocked using a compound called telomerase, which lengthens telomere and causes cells to divide vigorously. In the study, telomerase-negative cells were exposed to telomerase. In contrast to untreated cells, the treated cells exceeded their normal lifespan by at least 20 doublings. The findings suggest that our genetically-determined lifespan might be prolonged if our cells could be treated with telomerase.

Of course, decades will pass before

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: I had to write after reading the letter from "Mom in Denver," who asked how to be a great mother. She wanted to avoid the mistakes her own mother had made with her and her siblings.

I have no children, but my life was enriched and greatly blessed by my own wonderful mother. She loved unconditionally, whether we were good or mischievous. She taught us humility and respect for our fellow beings by her altruistic example. She encouraged us to learn about the magnificent world in which we live, and gave us the freedom to learn about our place in it. She gave us the courage to explore our gifts and talents. When we failed, she never once said, "I told you it wouldn't work," or, "What a waste of time and money."

Instead, she praised our efforts and, in so doing provided us with self-confidence and determination so we could persevere and achieve. Our mother made mistakes, but when she did, she apologized with her heart and soul. When we made mistakes, she accepted our apologies. Conversations with Mother were never "adult talks and children listen." She taught us to express our emotions and thoughts on issues we faced. In short, we learned that we were valued for what we thought and how we felt, because she listened patiently and sincerely.

There was never a question of who was in charge; all it took was a stern look to know when we were on the outskirts of good standing. She knew what decisions a child could and should make and which were the responsibility of an adult, as well as age-appropriateness in relinquishing those decisions. By example we learned to nourish ourselves properly, value our health, and strive to lead full, balanced lives. We learned about God and were schooled in religion, but were also given the opportunity to question, ponder and disagree.

We shared in laughter and in tears. We told jokes and hilarious stories to each other. We had fun and learned to always have time for a friend. We shared stories and photographs from Mom's childhood and teens, so that we could know who she was before she became our mom. When one of us lost a friend struck by tragedy, she'd cry with us and share our grief.

This letter may be too long for your column, but if you print it, I hope it helps mothers like the one in Denver. Our beloved mom passed away from ovarian cancer at the age of 48 almost 11 years ago. From her, each of her children learned to navigate in a world from which she is physically absent. We celebrate each other's lives because we see her within each of us. Now, after having completed my Ph.D. in neurobiology, I'm finishing my M.D. and pursuing a future in neurosurgery. I have wanted to be a doctor for as long as I can remember, but I wonder sometimes if such would be the case had I not had such an extraordinarily great mom.

MELISSA Y. MACIAS, ORIGINALLY FROM EL PASO, TEXAS

DEAR MELISSA: Not only have you provided great insight in what it takes to be a terrific parent, you have written a loving and eloquent tribute to your own mother. Please accept my deepest sympathy for having lost her at such a young age.

I know she would be proud of raising a daughter who is pursuing her dream, and who is already so intellectually accomplished. I hope that someday you can pass on what your mother taught you to children of your own.

Readers: I have received more wonderful letters on this subject than I can print in one, or even several columns. Therefore, I will continue to print them in the coming weeks.

Opening lead — jack of diamonds.

It is sometimes necessary for declarer to risk losing two tricks in a suit where he has only one loser. This may sound like a counterproductive philosophy, but if it provides the best or only means of making the contract, it is clearly the play of choice.

Take this case where South wound up in four spades and West led the jack of diamonds. When the jack held, West shifted to a trump. East took his ace and continued with a trump to South's king, West following suit.

Since he had already lost two tricks and could not escape losing another to the ace of clubs, declarer had to find a way to avoid losing a trick in hearts. The only practical possibility that existed was to score an extra club trick. If this could be arranged, dummy's third heart could be discarded on South's third club, and the heart loser would be averted.

Accordingly, at trick three declarer played the king of clubs, taken by West with the ace. West exited with the ten of diamonds, ruffed by South, and a heart was led to dummy's king, bringing declarer to the moment of truth.

A club was then led from dummy, and after East followed low, the ten was finessed. When it held, South cashed the queen, discarded a heart from dummy, and the game was home.

Of course South was fortunate to find East with the jack of clubs. But actually, the extra club loser he seemingly risked by finessing the ten — a card he could have ruffed in dummy — really involved no risk at all.

Even if the finesse had failed, he still would have been able to discard a heart on the queen of clubs to go down only one. Thus, nothing could be lost by taking the finesse. If the ten won the trick, declarer would show a decided gain; if it lost, he would break even.

Tomorrow: Bidding quiz.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Thursday, June 4, the 155th day of 1998. There are 210 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On June 4, 1942, the Battle of Midway began during World War II.

In 1954, French Premier Joseph Laniel and Vietnamese Premier Buu Loc initiated treaties in Paris according to "complete independence" to Vietnam.

In 1986, Jonathan Jay Pollard, a former Navy intelligence analyst, pleaded guilty in Washington, D.C., to spying for Israel. He is serving a life prison term.

In 1989, Chinese army troops stormed Beijing to crush the Tiananmen Square pro-democracy movement.

Ten years ago: Secretary of State George Shultz flew to Jordan, where he met with King Hussein. Afterward, Shultz said the Jordanian monarch was reluctant to engage in peace talks with Israel unless Israel agreed to give up land on the West Bank.

Five years ago: The U.N. Security Council agreed to send up to 10,000 more U.N. peacekeepers to six Bosnian cities to protect Muslim havens. Rejecting allegations of "quota queen," Lani Guinier expressed regret President Clinton had dropped her nomination to head the Justice Department's civil rights division.

One year ago: At the Oklahoma City bombing trial, prosecutors urged the jury to sentence Timothy McVeigh to death, calling relatives of victims to testify about agonizing losses.

HOROSCOPES

BY JACQUELINE BIGAR

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Friday, June 5, 1998: Your sense of direction, high energy and intellectual prowess make you a winner. As a result of your success and popularity, an old friend could become jealous. Be sensitive to this person, if you value the friendship and want it to continue. Your creativity and ingenuity rise, allowing new opportunities, especially of the amorous variety. If you are single, love blossoms during this birthday year, most likely through an association with romantic overtones. How it develops is your call, however. If attached, a partner responds to your energy. 1999 can be truly magical. SCORPIO plays devil's advocate.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) ★★★★ Get the job done, and return all calls. Make a lunch appointment with a key associate. Your ability to zoom in on the nitty-gritty counts. Network, socialize and touch base with others, who readily agree with you. Tonight: To bed, but only when you tire of the fun.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) ★★★★ You tend to project negativity more than you are aware. Work is your primary focus, but even there you might be sending out negative vibes. Be more in touch with your limitations, and develop boundaries accordingly. Plan for downtime this weekend, to recycle. Tonight: Make it an early night.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) ★★★★ A friend disappoints you, but this is no reason to change plans. Allow your creativity to flow into your ventures. Your incisive wit and professional acumen make you a winner. Allow more flirtation and caring into your life. Emotions run high. Tonight: Flirt the night away.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) ★★★★ A boss pressures you beyond your level of tolerance. You might need to cancel plans this evening, so you can meet these requirements. You see through a problem, and come up with a clear solution. Be careful with your temper. It could erupt! Tonight: Chill out as soon as you can.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) ★★★★ You see through someone's maneuvers. Call it as you see it, though this is very different from your normal style. Return messages, and stay on top of communications. News from a distance forces you to reassess, and possibly change, plans. Tonight: Hang out with a friend.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) ★★★★ A partner puts a negative slant on one of your financial projects, which puts you off. Talk about your career objectives with a boss, or someone who understands. You get powerful feedback. Check out different types of checking accounts. Tonight: Keep to your budget!

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) ★★★★ You can't believe what you are hearing, but it's true. Take action, which might involve a trip. Be careful with a loved one who is hyperactive and feels challenged. Steer clear of a cantankerous person. Nothing good is happening here. Tonight: Join a friend.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) ★★★★ Listen to instincts, and follow through on what you feel is needed. A partner gives you powerful information about finances and how to manage them. Absorb what is being said. Be honest with yourself about your job. You might need a change. Tonight: Early to bed.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) ★★★★ Friends have strong ideas. You might want to listen to partners' feedback more carefully. Their understanding is clear. A child or love relationship becomes difficult. Is this person jealous? Listen more carefully to what others are saying.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) ★★★★ Think through a decision that could affect your work. Others have excellent suggestions. Don't toss them by the wayside. Sometimes you might not like the answers you get, but they are worth listening to. A family member is out of sorts; back off. Tonight: Out late.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) ★★★★ A misunderstanding won't throw you the same way it does others. Your independence takes control here. Follow through on what is important to you. A lover or child is demanding. It is your pleasure to comply! Be more sensitive to another's needs. Tonight: Start the weekend, ASAP.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) ★★★★ It's easy to understand what someone is complaining about, especially when the complaints are so explicit. Be in touch with the confusion, and talk about the ideas that arise. Your empathy makes you special. Avoid any actions that involve your checkbook. Tonight: Candlelight and togetherness.
