Officials ask TVA to delay spraying

GUNTERSVILLE, Ala. (AP) — Lt. Gov. Don Siegelman and a group of bass fishermen are urging the Tennessee Valley Authority not to resume spraying herbicides on Guntersville Lake to control aquatic weeds. TVA says the herbicides have been approved by federal environmental officials and spraying won't be as widespread as it was in the past. Instead, it will be done in small amounts and in specific areas.

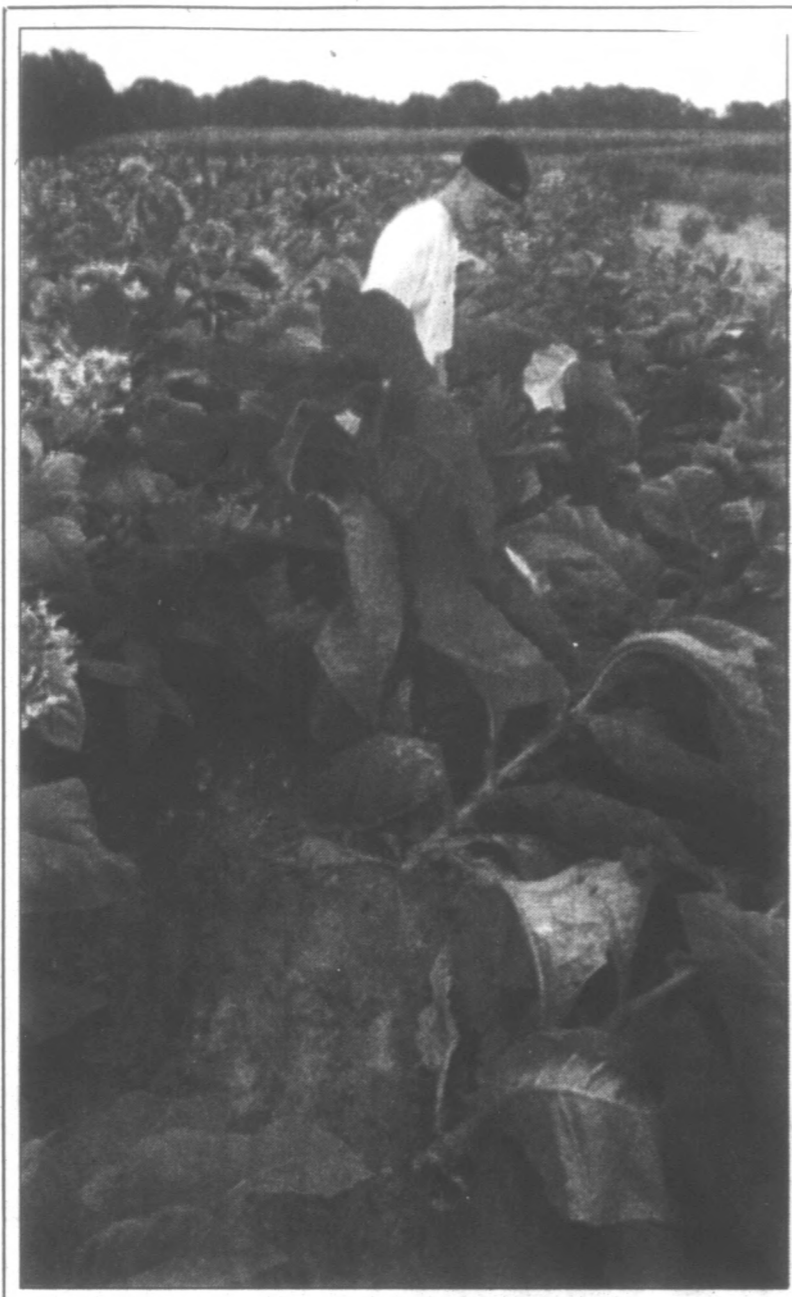

That's not good enough for Siegelman, who wants TVA to delay spraying until another public hearing can be held on the issue.

In a letter sent earlier this week to TVA Chairman Craven Crowell, Siegelman said he was "personally opposed to the use of poisonous chemicals to control vegetation in the waters of the State of Alabama."

Bass fishermen who are also opposed to the spraying, plan to drive while pulling their boats behind them from Scottsboro Plaza to Guntersville on Aug. 29 in protest.

"The vast majority feel that pesticides are not the way to go," said Gary Douglas, director of the Alabama BASS Federation's northeast Alabama district.

A committee of environmental experts, property owners and local, state and federal officials did a study into the use of herbicides and recommended using them in areas of the lake where vegetation cannot be reached by its mechanical harvesters.

International bombings: Workers free victims

By KARIN DAVIES
Associated Press Writer

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Spurred by cries for help, rescue workers used backhoes and bare hands today to free people trapped under mangled steel and concrete shattered by two terrorist bombings at U.S. embassies in Kenya and Tanzania.

The death toll rose to at least 107 by this morning.

"Help me, help me. I have gone now," gasped the latest victim, a Kenyan man buried in rubble, just before he died.

Just a few minutes apart, the suspected car bombings 450 miles from each other Friday turned busy streets in two African capitals into bloody piles of concrete and knots of steel.

The number of injured topped 1,700. At least eight Americans died in Kenya, U.S. Embassy spokesman Chris Scharf said. The State Department said a child was among those killed and five other Americans were missing.

More than two dozen FBI agents and bomb examiners boarded U.S. military flights for Africa within hours of the bombings to investigate.

"Our top priority at the scene is to determine the kind of explosive device that was used and the kind of vehicle that carried it there," FBI spokesman Frank Scafidi said in Washington. "Knowing the kind of explosive and vehicle can be like a fingerprint of who did it."

No one has claimed responsibility for the attacks.

"This appears to have been a very well-coordinated, very well-planned attack — clearly not the work of amateurs," National Security Council spokesman P.J. Crowley said in Washington.

As dawn broke under a drizzle in Nairobi today, rescuers could hear at least three people calling out from inside a debris-choked elevator

Class promotes health

By SCOTT NANNEY
Staff Writer

Hoping to boost health awareness locally, one Murray woman has taken it upon herself to help make older adults more physically fit.

With the help of the Murray Family YMCA, Pat Clapper, a registered nurse at Murray-Calloway County Hospital, has recently started a wellness program designed to be "interesting and fun" for local elderly residents.

"I work with acute health situations," said Clapper. "But what I really want to do is promote health instead of trying to cure sickness."

Seeing the need for a wellness program locally, Clapper approached YMCA Director Dean Ehrenheim about beginning such a class.

The YMCA agreed with Clapper's idea, and assigned Angie Mercadante to assist her in teaching the class.

Clapper was also aided in finding a location for the class when First United Methodist Church volunteered its newly-built Christian Life Center to the project.

FUMC also helped fill the class by promoting it in its weekly bulletin.

"The Methodist church deserves a lot of credit because they wanted to see older adults be active and they want their facility to be utilized," Clapper said. "Without this building, there wouldn't be a program because the YMCA doesn't have a facility big enough to house it."

The program, which has been in operation for about one month, meets every Tuesday from 9 to 11 a.m.

It is broken into three sessions, with one-third of the class devoted to exercise and another third to socialization and health education. The other one-third of the class is used for a "gourmet" cooking demonstration. It is free to the public.

"This is a class that is designed for people who are age 55 and up," Clapper noted. "Most of our people are around age 70."

"The class has basically been female-oriented. We've only had one male to attend the class so far. So, I don't think we'll attract many men," she added.

In four meetings, the class has an average attendance of around 14 people.

In addition to FUMC members,

Reformatory stops program

LA GRANGE, Ky. (AP) — The Kentucky State Reformatory has stopped sending inmate work release crews into the community following the alleged rape of a 12-year-old girl by a prisoner last month.

Police said the incident occurred July 3 in woods near the Oldham County Convention-Community and Aquatic Center at Buckner. It was reported July 18.

The suspect is one of three inmates from the La Grange reformatory who were on work release at the center on Kentucky 393. Police aren't releasing his name because he has not been charged.

Procedures for managing the work-release program, including supervision requirements, are under review, said Jim Stephens, deputy warden for security and operations. It's not known when or if the prison will resume the program, he said.

Oldham County Parks director Tom Boyd said inmates have worked in the parks for years. The inmates, who wear street clothes, have worked around patrons from picnickers to people fishing, Boyd said, and "we've never had a problem."

Machinists turn in winning ticket

By PATRICK L. THIMANGU
Associated Press Writer

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A group of Ohio machinists and assembly workers who call themselves the "Lucky 13" will receive about $6.5 million each once federal, state and local taxes take a bite out of their record Powerball jackpot.

The men's lawyer claimed their $161.5 million Powerball prize Friday, handing the winning ticket over to lottery officials for validation because his clients preferred not to step into the glare of the media spotlight.

"It's been quite a zoo for this past week, but the nice part of it is, I've taken that heat. It's easier for me to take the heat than it is the 13 of them," said Larry Sturtz, who was escorted by private security guards to Indianapolis from his home in a Columbus, Ohio, suburb.

The multistate Powerball offered a record $295.7 million jackpot in last month's drawing, but the winning ticket was a lump-sum cash payment option — generally worth about half the actual jackpot. The annuity option, paid out over 25 years, would have been worth the full jackpot.

After handing in the ticket, Sturtz said his clients were shunning media attention and wanted to keep their lives as normal as possible.

Starr placed in spotlight

By LARRY MARGASAK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — After a series of court victories and negotiated agreements quickened the pace of his investigation, Independent Counsel Kenneth Starr must pause to convince a judge he should not be held in contempt for news leaks.

In court papers unsealed Friday, U.S. District Judge Norma Holloway Johnson said Starr could face civil or criminal contempt, unless he can prove his office was not responsible for disclosure of secret grand jury information.

Johnson made clear that she was incensed about the disclosures and said a contempt proceeding against Starr "could serve to stop the flow of leaks damaging to the targets of this grand jury investigation. Even if the ... allegations are found to be false, the ... hearing should set an example for those parties who are the source of the damaging leaks."

In opinions and orders issued in June and July, Johnson said

Starr's own comments to a magazine — and statements he made before television cameras acknowledging one of her secret rulings — were evidence he may have violated grand jury secrecy rules.

Johnson noted that in sworn affidavits, Starr's aides "do not deny" they were the source of information for news articles submitted by President Clinton's lawyers.

She said prosecutors "too nar-

Survey analyzes candidate response

By MARK R. CHELLGREN
Associated Press Writer

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Not only do Kentucky candidates have a poor record in answering questions about issues, some may have a formal policy to duck the substantive inquiries, the head of a national nonpartisan survey said.

"That would be the most dangerous attitude in American society. They are in fact stripping citizens of their ability to govern themselves," said Richard Kimball, president of the Oregon-based Project Vote Smart, which conducts surveys in all 50 states.

Kimball said Kentucky was the only state where he had ever heard of formal political advice given candidates to refuse to take part in the survey.

Kimball said Rep. Tom Burch, D-Louisville, and Democratic state Senate candidate Joe Evans told Project Vote Smart interviewers they had been advised by party leaders to avoid the survey.

"That one and the Christian Coalition were the ones we were told not to fill out," Evans confirmed on Friday.

Evans said he is a relative novice in politics and he was acting on advice from someone he trusted, whom he declined to identify. "I fill out about everything else," Evans said.

Burch could not be reached for comment.

Kentucky Democratic Party Chairman Ron McCloud said he had never heard of Project Vote Smart and knew of no one who had advised candidates to avoid its survey. "It's certainly not our official position. The candidates can fill out whatever they want to," McCloud said.

Both senatorial candidates, Democrat Scotty Baesler and Republican Jim Bunning, responded to the lengthy questionnaire that asks candidates for their positions on a number of topics of public debate.

But only four of the 12 major party candidates for Congress,

Government reviewing bus safety

WASHINGTON (AP) — Amid a public debate over seat belts in school buses, the government is ordering a major review of school bus safety.

Federal regulators, in a report today to Congress, find that large school buses are one of the safest forms of transportation.

But mindful that buses ferry "the nation's most precious cargo — children," the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration is conducting the first comprehensive review of school bus safety since the 1970s.

The $1 million, two-year review will examine all school bus crash data and agency crash testing and consider all possible safety upgrades, including padding the sides and roofs of buses or adding padded arm rests.

As the review begins, safety officials are writing guidelines recommending that new buses transporting children 4 or younger have lap belts or anchors to secure child or booster seats.

Agency officials said they probably would recommend changing only a few rows of seats because the seats would have to be spaced wider to accommodate child seats.

The recommendations would affect about 3 percent of the 23.5 million children who ride 440,000 school buses to and from class each day.

NHTSA contends school buses are among the safest vehicles on the road, noting that large buses are more massive than most vehicles they collide with and better able to absorb crash energy. The high-backed bus seats are padded and spaced about 24 inches apart to cushion students in a crash.

Only 11 children under age 19 are killed in school bus crashes each year, the report to Congress found. More children are killed each year — about 25 — trying to get off or on the bus, many of them hit either by a passing car or the bus.

In addition, about 8,500 children are injured in school buses nationwide each year, 350 seriously, the report said.

Phil Recht, NHTSA's deputy administrator, said the school bus seat system, known as compartmentalization, "has proven to be extremely effective," but officials want to take "a comprehensive look to see if we can do better."

Several groups have strongly advocated installing seat belts in buses, arguing that padded seats do not help when a large truck slams into the side of a school bus or the bus rolls over.

"We need seat belts to keep the kids in the compartment," said Arthur Yeager of the National Coalition for School Bus Safety.

Government officials, though, worry that lap seat belts could cause children to double over, hitting their heads in accidents, while shoulder belts might be impractical to install.

Only about 20 percent of school bus deaths are in side-impact or rollover crashes, NHTSA officials said.

Ted Finlayson-Schueler, executive director of the Pupil Transportation Safety Institute in Syracuse, N.Y., said he welcomed the government research, since so many children are injured in school buses.

The actual crash data is sparse. Two states require seat belts on large school buses — New York and New Jersey, but only New Jersey mandates that the belts be used.

Archives to cut up Nixon tapes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Acting under court order, the National Archives on Monday will begin cutting up the original Nixon White House tapes so that portions dealing with private matters can be returned to the Nixon estate.

"As ordered by the courts, the National Archives will have to destroy or return copies it has made as well as return the original portions," the archives said in a statement.

Archives officials said they hoped the Nixon estate itself would preserve and someday make public at least some of the private conversations.

National Archivist John Carlin asked the Nixon estate to accept a full master preservation copy of the tapes so that the full record will be preserved intact someplace.

"This would allow the 'political' conversations, which are included in those private or personal materials, to be preserved in context with other conversations and possibly to be made available to the public in the future," the archives said in a statement.

In the years after Nixon resigned in 1974 to avoid impeachment because of the Watergate scandal, the government seized Nixon's tapes. The former president — and later his estate — went to court to get them back.

The Supreme Court in 1977 ruled that the portions of the 3,700 hours of tapes which contain personal and private conversations, such as talks with his wife and daughters or conversations of a purely political nature, would have to be returned.

So far, the public has heard only about 350 hours of the tapes, and Nixon's estate went to court to make sure no one hears the 820 hours that contain personal conversations.

In 1997, a federal court directed the archives to provide the Nixon estate "with all personal or private conversations identified to date."

Under the order, the archives will physically cut out of the original tapes all segments identified as private or personal, a painstaking process that could take from three to six years.

AROUND THE NATION

Candidate's precinct in question

WEST BLOOMFIELD TOWNSHIP, Mich. (AP) — The camera bulbs flashed and the spectators ogled as Democratic gubernatorial candidate Geoffrey Fieger cast his vote Tuesday.

Problem is, he might have cast it in the wrong place.

Oakland County officials said Thursday that Fieger voted in a West Bloomfield Township precinct where he no longer lives.

"If anyone wants to claim I voted in the wrong place, they can go to hell," Fieger said. "What difference does it make? I suppose you're not supposed to tear off the tags on pillows and mattresses, too."

According to state elections director Chris Thomas, after someone moves, there is a 60-day grace period to return to the old precinct to vote. Fieger had said earlier that he moved in June, which means he was within the 60-day grace period unless he moved the first week of June. An attempt to clarify was not immediately successful, as his campaign said he was out of town today.

HUD gives $30 million to South Dakota

PINE RIDGE, S.D. (AP) — The federal government will give $30 million to Indian tribes in South Dakota to improve housing on reservations.

Housing and Urban Development Secretary Andrew Cuomo announced the grants Thursday after touring the Pine Ridge and Lower Brule Indian reservations.

Some of South Dakota's reservations make up among the nation's poorest counties. Cuomo said the conditions on the reservations were about as bad as he's seen.

Many tribal members live in substandard housing. Some three-room houses have dozens of family members living inside, and some have no indoor plumbing.

Nebraska mayor offers to walk naked

NORTH PLATTE, Neb. (AP) — Some mayors crack down on public nudity. North Platte Mayor Jim Whitaker plans to wear his birthday suit downtown.

Hoping to draw attention to the problem of an uncontrolled pet population, Whitaker offered to take a naked stroll during the Fall Fun Fest celebration Sept. 12 if the Paws-itive Partners Humane Society receives $5,000 in donations by that date.

"I hope there is a Nebraska football game that day so everyone will stay inside and watch that," the mayor said. Sorry, mayor. The Huskers are playing at night in California, so folks in this central Nebraska city of 22,000 are more likely to be downtown.

But Whitaker may not be the only one walking in the buff. The business or organization that raises the most money for the promotion, Naked Kaper 5000, can select a member of its staff to accompany the mayor — sans clothing.

Inmate dies in car crash

SPARTA, N.C. (AP) — An inmate who escaped from jail during a recreation period died early the next day when he flipped his stolen getaway car.

Charles M. Askew, 63, had been in and out of federal prisons all of his adult life. Deputy U.S. Marshal Richard Carleton said the times apparently caught up with him — he hadn't driven since he was 18.

"After 45 years, he got in that thing and thought it was a spaceship," Carleton said. Askew was thrown from the car and died of head and chest injuries, authorities said.

Woman sues former employer

MARTINEZ, Calif. (AP) — Zippy the office mail-delivering robot apparently threw his weight around, and Pamela Bachman couldn't get out of the way.

The robot injured her when it went out of control and squashed her against a filing cabinet, she claims in a lawsuit against her former employer, Pacific Bell.

The mishap last year left her with an injured shoulder, back, feet, hand and right big toe, she says. The lawsuit, filed Wednesday, seeks unspecified compensation for lost wages and medical bills as well as lost earning capacity.

Pacific Bell spokesman John Britton said the robots have been in service for 13 years at the company and have clean safety records.

"They move at a snail's pace," Britton said. "I can't imagine anyone getting in the way of it."

Book list causes furor

In the nine days from July 20-July 29, the New York Times website book forum had 622 opinions about the Modern Library list of 100 novels published in English and the 20th century.

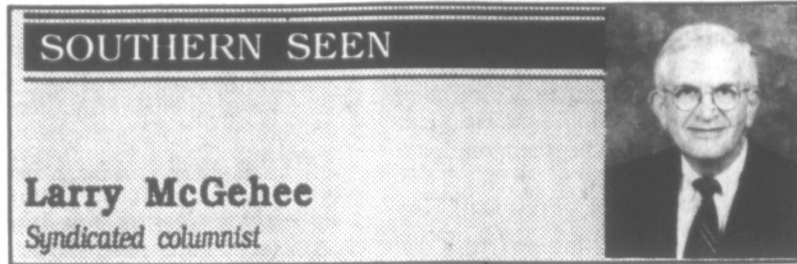

Hardly anyone agrees with the list selected by novelists A.S. Byatt, William Styron, and Gore Vidal; historians Daniel Boorstin, Arthur Schlesinger, Jr., Edmund Morris, and John Richardson; novelist/historian Shelby Foote; Carnegie Corporation head Vartan Gregorian; and Modern Library board chairman Christopher Cerf.

The dominance of white male elderly historians is conspicuous.

Some dissenters question what is meant by "best" - historical importance, number of copies sold, familiarity of title, frequency of use in classrooms, years in print? U.S. News & World Report annually triggers similar controversies by publishing lists of the "best colleges and universities" without clear agreements on what is the definition of "best."

Some dissenters question why certain authors or books are included (e.g., Max Beerbohm, Arthur Koestler, Erskine Caldwell or V.S. Naipaul).

Some dissenters question why

SOUTHERN SEEN

certain authors or books are ignored (e.g., Eudora Welty; Flannery O'Connor; John Irving; Thomas Pynchon; Ayn Rand; Mary McCarthy; Gone With the Wind; To Kill a Mockingbird; Absalom, Absalom; Look Homeward Angel; A Confederacy of Dunces).

Some dissenters agree with the choice of writers or works, but disagree with the rankings (e.g., James Dickey #42 above Ernest Hemingway #45, and so many D.H. Lawrence, Henry James, and Joseph Conrad choices).

A few dissenters, misreading the category, want to include Mark Twain, Herman Melville, Charles Dickens, and Stephen Crane, all associated more with the 19th century than with the 20th. Maybe that century's novelists were better than this century's.

Quite a few dissenters feel the absence of non-American and non-

English writers published in English (especially South American writers and Australian Patrick White) is bad, as is the shortage of women writers and African-American writers.

Undressed in the forum opinions is the correlation between Book of the Month Club selections over the years and the list. On the surface, it seems suspiciously to be a close link. Certainly the correlation between the list and the number of books (59 of the 100) printed by Modern Library gives pause for thought.

Some 100 students from the Radcliff Publishing Course made their own list, and it contains more contemporary novels, more women writers and more African-American works than does the Modern Library list.

One group of opinions distresses me more than the others. A number of the opinion-expressers in the forum count the number of books on the list they had read. A couple boast of having read 70 or more, but most express chagrin that they have read only 10 or 15 of them.

While it is certainly no barometer of American literacy, the fact that so many literate people in the forum sampling have not read most of these novels tells us something about how fiction-in-print has declined as serious entertainment while movies, motoring, television, NASCAR and Disneyworld have prospered.

If the reader audience for fiction has dwindled, it is likely that the number of publishing writers has declined as well.

The relegation of fiction to a tiny corner of American life by the public and publishers of books is a frightening development. What kind of society are we creating that has such little time for or interest in good books?

If the average American reads less than one novel a year - likely by Danielle Steele or John Grisham - what dire fate awaits the world of letters (and the world itself) in the 21st century? Does our listing show us sinking?

Scandal threatens Gore

WASHINGTON (AP) — Al Gore is only a bystander as President Clinton tries to cope with the case of the White House intern. But the vice president is said to be a core figure in the investigation of questions about Democratic fund-raising practices — and that could haunt him as he runs for a promotion in 2000.

Despite the Monica Lewinsky sex and cover-up investigation, Clinton is holding high in job-approval ratings. That is to Gore's advantage, since popular presidents almost invariably boost the prospects of their preferred successors. Let the president's standing sink, and it could turn that asset into an undertow. The accusations Clinton has weathered with denials could drag him down should special prosecutor Kenneth Starr bring a solid case against him.

That wouldn't involve Gore, short of the improbable possibility that Clinton could be forced from office and succeeded by the vice president. A sag in Clinton's standing wouldn't help his chosen successor in the next campaign. But it probably wouldn't undermine him unless the thriving economy sagged, too.

There's no such shelter in the fund-raising investigation, which involves illicit foreign contributions and tainted donations the Democrats had to return to senders. The Justice Department has 120

Walter Mears
Associated Press columnist

people on the case, and it may yet be turned over to a special prosecutor.

Either way, Gore's rivals in 2000 will try to make an issue of it.

FBI Director Louis Freeh, who recommended an independent counsel nine months ago, said the fund-raising investigation involves Gore, Clinton and associates of both.

The attorney general is considering an independent counsel to take it over. She decided against one in 1997, saying the Justice Department could deal with the case. It has been, with seven indictments to date.

Resisting a special prosecutor again, against the earlier advice from Freeh and now the recommendation of Charles LaBella, who's been running the Justice Department task force on the case, would be a doubly difficult call. James Desarno, lead FBI investigator on the task force, also said an independent counsel is needed.

To reject that would guarantee a bitter political backlash in Congress, where Republicans already have been demanding her resignation.

The Republican-run House Government Operations Committee voted Thursday to have her held in contempt for refusing its subpoena for the Freeh and LaBella memos.

She said she is reviewing the case, and a new decision will take another three weeks or so.

After a review last fall, she decided against an independent counsel in fund-raising cases that would have included Gore's Democratic calls to donors from the White House. Gore said he'd done nothing wrong, but wouldn't do it again.

The attorney general said then and now that she will decide on the basis of the law as she sees it and won't be influenced by politics.

Politics will be influenced by what she does. Republicans argue that the fund-raising investigation is made to order for an independent counsel because it involves the top figures in the administration, covered officials under the law involved and therefore a conflict of interest for the Justice Department.

Freeh explained his recommendation to the House committee on Tuesday:

"I would say generally that the subject matter of the investigation, both in 1997 and certainly now in 1998, involves a core group of individuals who, in my view, are indisputably covered persons, and that the nature of that inquiry revolved around those covered persons, their associates and what I believe are potential violations of federal law."

He said he meant that in "a much larger context than the White House."

Then this exchange:

Rep. Dan Burton: "I don't know if you're going to want to answer this, but does that include the president and the vice president?" Freeh: "Yes, sir."

That points to the political risks Gore is likely to face in the next presidential campaign over Democratic fund-raising conduct in the last one.

The News-Enterprise, Elizabethtown

Stoking the fire of the national tobacco debate has been teen smoking. Not just how America curbs youth's habits, but how do we snuff it out altogether?

The answer is simple.

Enforcement.

We've done it with underage drinking. Why can't we do it with underage smoking?

Take a look around. There are teens smoking everywhere. ...

The law prohibits the sale of tobacco products to those under age 18. It's supposed to prohibit kids from using.

Still, somehow, cigarettes and snuff make their way into the hands of teens in staggering numbers. Maybe they get it from someone old enough to purchase it for them, maybe from their parents, maybe from an unknowledgeable store clerk.

What matters is they get it.

Oddly, it's not too uncommon to see cigarettes dangle from the mouths of teens in plain view. ... But generally, the scene gets ignored.

We just walk on by.

Some members of Congress and others lobbying to abolish the tobacco industry, or at least severely cripple it, instead see the key to eliminating teen smoking as wiping out popular advertising campaigns and hiking prices. After months of discussion, the debate has flared into little more than a publicized stalemate.

Forget the bickering, and take a stand. Like the stand we've taken against underage drinkers. ...

Admittedly, it goes on. But underage drinking arguably is not as widespread — or as visible — as teen smoking.

We need to be more vigilant against kids who smoke. ...

July 14 -- Mainichi Shimbun, Tokyo, on Japan's election:

Voters had vented their anger at the failed economic policies of Hashimoto's Cabinet and the Liberal Democratic Party (LDP). We feel, therefore, that it is only fitting that the prime minister and the leaders of the LDP should resign.

The LDP has already begun the process of selecting a successor to Hashimoto. A Cabinet would normally be compelled to dissolve the Diet and hold elections for the House of Representatives after such a humiliating setback. But Japan needs to respond immediately to its economic crisis and cannot allow a political vacuum to develop.

After passing emergency economic and financial legislation during the extraordinary Diet session, the new Cabinet must dissolve the Diet and hold early elections in order to win the confidence of the people. The new Cabinet should be content to manage the economic crisis and prepare for the next election.

July 15 -- Times of India, New Delhi, on Japan's election:

In ordinary times, the fall of yet another Japanese prime minister would not be such big news. But these are not ordinary times. If Japan fails to recover, it will drag much of Asia down the tube and also rattle economies as far afield as Russia, Chile and Brazil. Thus, the world anxiously waits to see what concrete steps Mr. (Ryutaro) Hashimoto's successor will take to revive the economy. The options, of course, are limited and will have to include sweeping bank reforms and a broad reflationary package. There are indications Mr. Hashimoto was beginning to grapple with this reality, though the measures he undertook were half-hearted and too diffused to instill much confidence. If his exit has opened up the possibility for change, it is only because voters have demonstrated that mismanagement of the economy will not go unpunished.

U.S. SENATOR FOR KENTUCKY

Mitch McConnell

MAKING HEALTH CARE MORE AFFORDABLE AND HELPING PATIENTS TO BETTER UNDERSTAND THEIR MEDICAL COVERAGE

When it comes to health care, every Kentuckian deserves affordable, quality care and access to the best doctors and specialists available. In the coming weeks, the Senate will consider S.2330, The Patients' Bill of Rights and Health Care Quality Act, legislation designed to improve managed care health plans. The result of a comprehensive, seven-month examination of our nation's health care system, this bill will provide patients fewer hassles, greater security, more choices and overall better service from their health plans.

The bill's primary benefit is that it will expand health care coverage to more Kentuckians by making care more accessible and enhancing its affordability. One group that has traditionally had difficulty getting the coverage they need is the self-employed. This bill should increase access for the self-employed by allowing them to deduct the full cost of their health care premiums, rather than the 45% they can deduct now. The bill will also expand Medical Savings Accounts — currently available only to employees in companies of 50 or less — to every single person.

One of the other frequent complaints I hear — this from people who are covered — is that they are apprehensive because they are uncertain of what their plan covers in cases involving newly developed medical procedures. They are concerned that if they develop a serious medical condition, they may not be covered for all necessary treatment. Our bill will also make it easier for patients to understand their coverage and medical options. Health plans will be required to provide patients accurate, easy-to-understand information about their providers and their doctors, as well as what their health care plan covers, including information about out-of-pocket expenses.

There are several other provisions which will make you better informed about your coverage and health care options. First, our legislation will eliminate so-called "gag rules," which prevent doctors from discussing with their patients certain treatment options that may not be covered by their plan. In addition, providers will be required to cover — without prior approval — any emergency care that a "prudent lay person" would consider necessary.

Another important component of our plan sets a quick, fair procedure for settlement of any disputes about your coverage. Rather than leaving patients' health vulnerable to costly and time consuming lawsuits, our bill allows patients to appeal coverage determinations to medical experts with no affiliation to their health plan. The expert's ruling will then be binding on the health plans, and it will not cost the patient exorbitant lawyers fees. The appeal comes at no cost to the patient, as the plan is responsible for covering the entire cost of the process.

Our bill also contains several provisions to expand and improve women's health care and services. Health plans will be required to allow women to visit an ob-gyn, without a referral from a "gatekeeper." The bill also prohibits health plans from setting caps on how long women may stay in the hospital following breast cancer treatment. Finally, the bill continues funding for several important research programs on early detection of breast and ovarian cancer, as well as a study on osteoporosis and continued research into the causes and prevention of cardiovascular diseases, which are the leading cause of death among women.

Unlike the bill offered by Senator Kennedy and the Democrats — which would make health insurance more costly and drive some small businesses to altogether drop coverage of their employees — our legislation will reduce many burdensome federal requirements that would otherwise make almost every health plan resemble a Health Maintenance Organization (HMO). Rather than expanding regulation and forcing a "one-size-fits-all" approach to health care, similar to the Clinton plan of 1993, The Patients' Bill of Rights and Health Care Quality Act will give more people better access to quality health care and will allow every Kentuckian to better understand the health care that they are paying for.

Racers strong on defense, QB

■ Johnson must fill holes on O-line; defense remains solid with eight returnees from No. 2 unit last year

By MARK YOUNG
Sports Editor

NASHVILLE, Tenn. -- A year later, and Denver Johnson's dilemma is just the opposite of last year.

Johnson headed into 1997, his first as head coach at Murray State, with a veteran offensive line, quality receivers and a good running attack, but no proven quarterback.

This year, he seems to have the quarterback situation solved, but now Johnson must replace almost an entire offense, including all but one starter on the offensive line.

Johnson's early assessment of his offense?

"I don't know what we can do," he said at Friday's Ohio Valley Conference media day, held at the Crowne Plaza Hotel. "We'll just have to find our best 11 offensively, but I don't know how we'll look on offense until we play."

Oklahoma transfer Justin Fuente emerged from spring practice as the starting quarterback. Fuente passed for 1,018 yards at Oklahoma last year and 1,271 as a redshirt freshman in 1996.

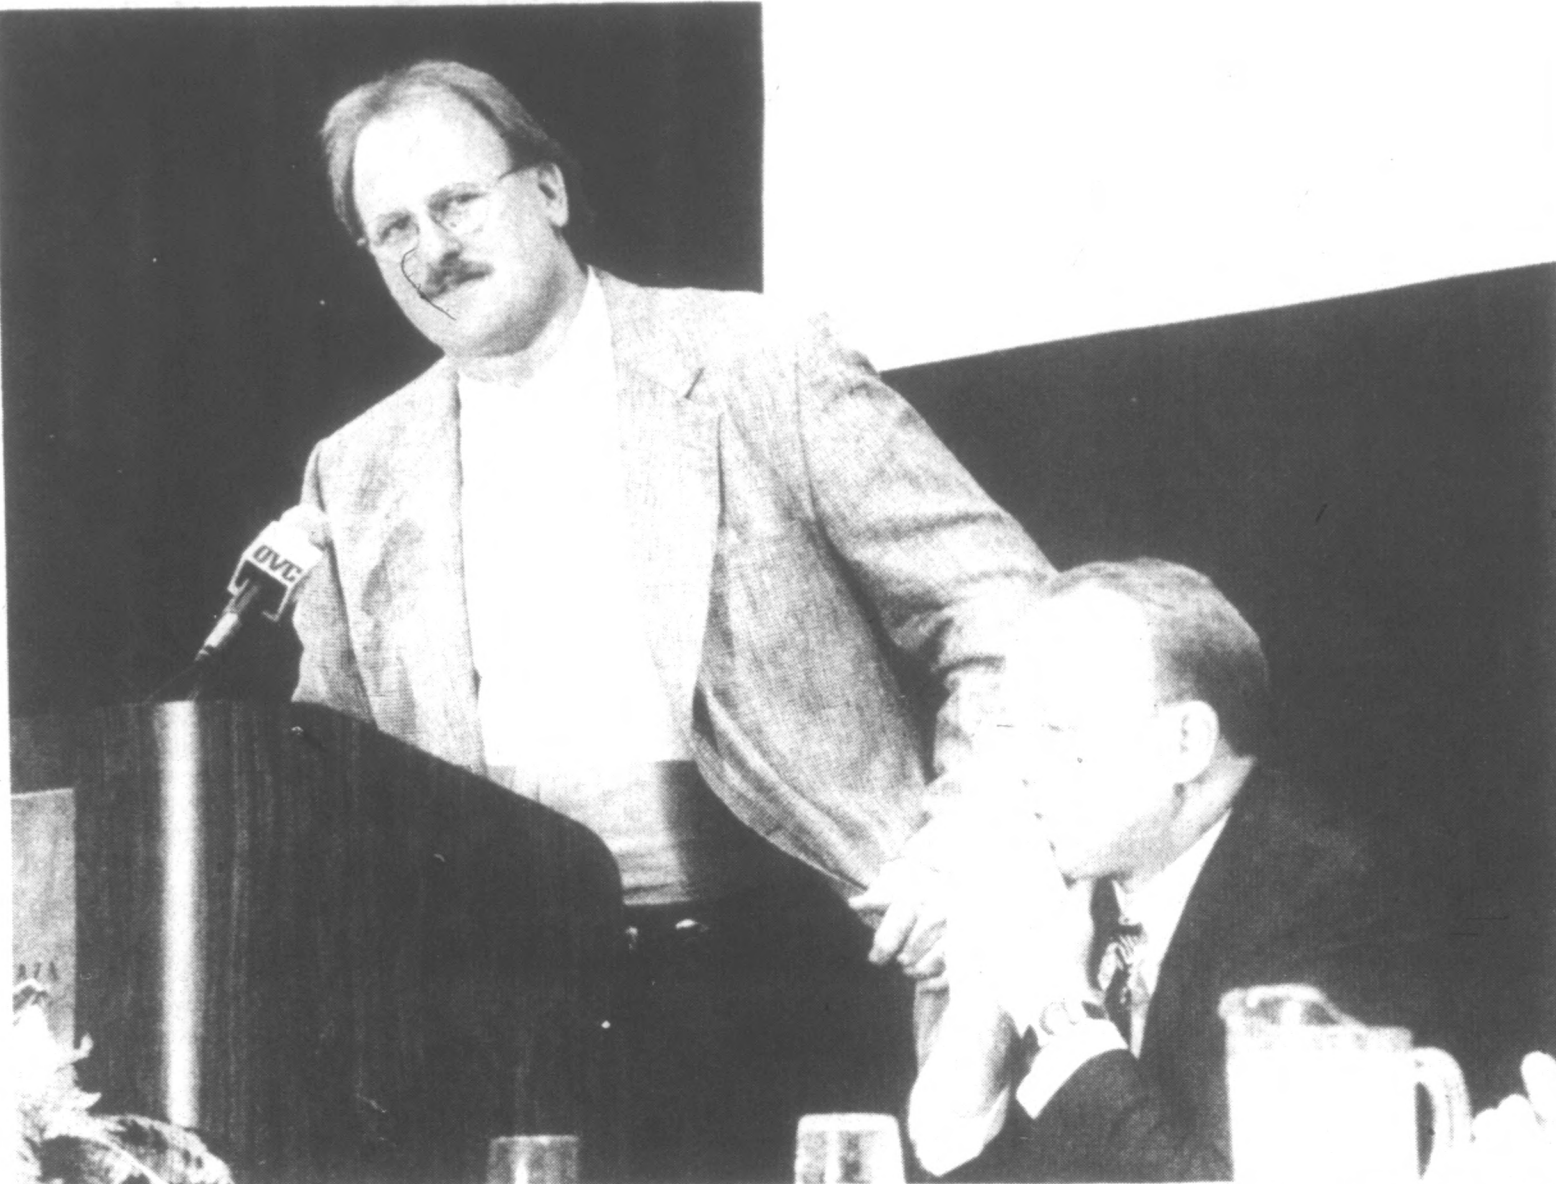

"Justin broke some of Troy Aikman's high school passing records in Oklahoma, and with him, (Texas Tech transfer) Shayne Stevens and last year's quarterback, Dan Loyd, we have three quality quarterbacks," Johnson said.

The Racer defense, which ranked second in the nation in total defense last season and returns eight starters, appears solid.

MSU's only two preseason All-Ohio Valley selections are both on the defensive side of the ball in end Marcus Stepp and linebacker Chris Vaughn.

Stepp led the OVC in sacks last year, averaging 8.5 per contest, along with eight tackles for loss. Vaughn contributed 4.5 sacks per game with 10 tackles for loss.

"I'll be very surprised if we're not good defensively," Johnson said. "I thought we would have a few more (preseason all-conference) picks on defense, though; I'm surprised (linebacker) Tony Esters and (end) Kenneth Knotts weren't on there, but I'm thankful we got two. It's the vote after the season that makes a difference, anyway.

Murray State is picked to finish third in the league race behind defending champion Eastern Kentucky and Eastern Illinois. The Racers tied for second in the league race last year.

"We could be number three; we feel like if the right things happen we can play for the championship," Johnson said. "But we'll have to avoid some bad things, and if we do, there's a chance we can be very good.

OVC's first big battle: Who will get Woods?

NASHVILLE, Tenn. -- Tony Woods is transferring from Kentucky.

Where he'll end up is anyone's guess.

Murray State and Eastern Kentucky are his likely choices. In fact, both schools had Woods listed on their respective rosters at Ohio Valley Conference football media day Friday.

So will Woods be a Racer or a Colonel this season?

"I don't know his intentions," Murray State coach Denver Johnson said. "There's probably some kind of rule, and I probably shouldn't comment on it at all. But I guess Tony Woods shouldn't show up on either one of our rosters since he hasn't yet committed to either one of us."

Word is that Woods' mother was pushing him to transfer to Murray State while his girlfriend prefers he attend Eastern.

Woods, one of Johnson's "several (transfers) we're still dealing with," would certainly be an impact player at either school and would boost an already strong Racer defense, especially since MSU has some questions in its defensive backfield.

Murray State already has several I-A transfers for this season, as does Eastern, most notably quarterback Jon Denton from Nevada-Las Vegas.

But that has become the very nature of I-AA football. The right I-A transfers can make a huge impact on a team's season.

"What you get in the summer are impact players who make a difference in your program," Johnson said on that subject. "So that's why I-AA football is so hard to predict."

Boots and Roy: Despite all of the changes the Ohio Valley Conference has seen in the last 20 years, one thing has remained constant: Boots Donnelly vs. Roy Kidd remains a classic, both on and off the field.

For years, Donnelly's Middle Tennessee Blue Raiders and Kidd's Eastern Kentucky Colonels battled it out for the OVC championship. Preseason polls always had them 1-2 in some order.

Their rivalry off the field was just as intense, albeit a bit friendlier.

With Middle Tennessee set to move up to Division I-A in football next season, Friday's OVC media day was Donnelly's last. And he took every opportunity to get in some good-natured -- and often biting -- jabs on Kidd.

Some examples:
On the relationship between Kidd and his wife Sue: "It's easy to see why they've been married so long -- they both love the same man."

On battling Eastern Kentucky for the OVC championship one last time: "This conference is the Roy Kidd show. It's very similar to Jerry Springer, the rest of us fight like hell, but it's still his show."

On what he would like as a going away gift: "The only gift I want is one time for the officials to give me a call against Eastern Kentucky."

Kidd wasn't totally silent, remarking on the Donnellys' recent cancellation of dinner with the Kidds: "All of this I-A crap has gone to Boots' head."

Cardinals bomb Cubs 16-3 Friday

By JIM SALTER
Associated Press Writer

ST. LOUIS (AP) — It was a big night for the St. Louis offense, but not for Mark McGwire.

While the Cardinals scored 11 runs in the first inning, McGwire stayed stuck at 45 homers as the Cardinals routed the Chicago Cubs 16-3 Friday night.

"That's about the wildest thing I've ever experienced," said Ray Lankford, who hit a three-run homer to cap the first. "Tonight was just one of those games that everything went well."

McGwire went 1-for-4 with a walk and has not homered in 28 at-bats since July 28 against Milwaukee. McGwire, who didn't speak with reporters after the game, was given the day off on Wednesday when the Cardinals played at the Brewers.

Sammy Sosa, second to McGwire with 43 homers, went 0-for-3 with a walk.

St. Louis, which rallied from a 3-0 deficit, had its biggest inning since an 11-run eighth in a 16-8 win over San Francisco on May 9, 1996 — also the last time the Cardinals scored 16 runs. The team record is a 12-run third of a 23-3 win against Philadelphia on Sept. 16, 1926.

"That's baseball," Cardinals manager Tony La Russa said. "You see the top half like that — and you get the 11 spot. I still don't understand it."

It was the biggest inning against Chicago since a 12-run fifth during a 17-15 loss to Montreal at Wrigley Field on Sept. 24, 1985.

Kent Bottenfield (4-5) pitched seven innings allowing three runs — one earned — and five hits. Steve Trachsel (11-6) got just one out, getting pounded for nine runs — seven earned — five hits and three walks.

"I get staked to a three-run lead and I immediately walk the leadoff guy. I'm my own worst enemy," Trachsel said. "I just pitched pretty poorly."

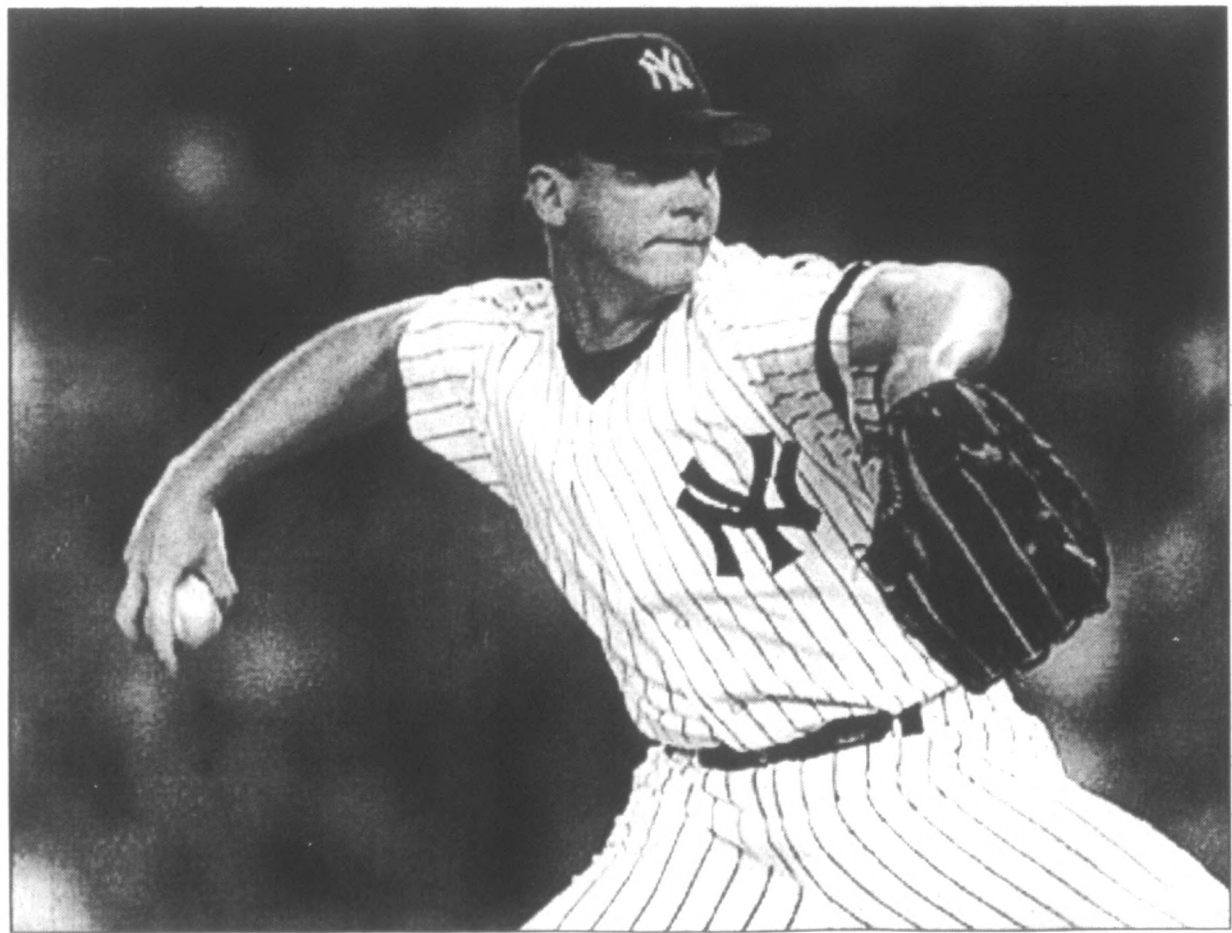

St. Louis sent 15 batters to the plate in the first against Trachsel and Dave Stevens, piling up two singles, three doubles, one homer and four walks. The Cubs also allowed two men to reach on errors.

"After that first inning there was no chance for the offense to come back," Trachsel said.

Kelly, Jordan and Ray Lankford each scored twice in the inning. McGwire started the scoring with a two-run single after Pat Kelly walked and Brian Jordan hit the first of his three doubles. One out later, Fernando Tatis hit an RBI double, and two more runs scored on Trachsel's throwing error to make it 5-3.

Luis Ordez followed with an RBI single, and Kelly chased Trachsel with a two-run double. Lankford, 2-for-3 with four RBIs, hit a three-run homer, reaching 20 for the fifth season.

New York pitcher David Cone became the Major League's first 16-game winner Friday night as the Yankees swept a doubleheader from Kansas City.

Yankees sweep two from K.C., move to 82-29

By TOM WITHERS

NEW YORK (AP) — They win in the daylight or at night, with their stars in the lineup or sitting on the bench.

The New York Yankees just win, period.

"I say, 'Wow' a lot, either out loud or to myself," New York manager Joe Torre said Friday after the Yankees swept a day-night doubleheader from the Kansas City Royals 8-2 and 14-2. "This ballclub just continues to come at you."

Despite sitting several regulars, New York pushed its record to 53 games over .500 for the first time this season with the sweep.

In the second game, Rookie Shane Spencer, playing right field so Paul O'Neill could get some rest, went 5-for-5 with his first two major league homers and David Wells (14-2) ran his home record to 9-0 for the Yankees, who have beaten the Royals six straight times this season.

In the opener, David Cone became the majors' first 16-game winner and Darryl Strawberry homered.

Bernie Williams hit a two-run homer and Luis Sojo drove in three runs in the night game.

Spencer hit a solo homer in the seventh inning, then connected on a two-run shot in a five-run eighth. It was the first five-hit game for a Yankee this season.

"I've never had five hits in my life," a beaming Spencer said. "Not even in Little League. A couple of home runs, but nothing like this."

Chuck Knoblauch also homered in the second game as the Yankees improved to 82-29. On pace to break the 1906 Chicago Cubs' record of 116 wins, the Yankees will play 33 of their final 51 games at Yankee Stadium, where they are 40-8.

Anglers seek white-striped bass

Most of the anglers in this area now have their attention focused on catching white-striped bass and catfish.

There are still bass chasers out each day, but I'm talking about numbers. Crappie, stripes and catfish, bluegill and sauger are the species we expect to catch and eat.

Smallmouth and largemouth bass have received so much attention these last few years as a money fish. People find it hard to keep them for food anymore.

We are blessed with good clean water, and this is just one reason the fish in Kentucky are Barkley lakes have such a good flavor.

We don't want to step on anyone's toes as far as their homemade batter recipes, but the really true key to good taste starts where they grow!

Many anglers enjoy the chase and catch, but will give their share to someone else and dine out when they want fish.

Last week we were surrounded by good people who enjoy catching and eating the white stripes they prepare themselves.

Ed, Patsy, Brett and Craig Burgin came down again to add some more great memories to the files already stored in our minds. We have fished together for many years and have actually grown quite fond of each other.

I remember when the boys - Brett and Craig - were just barely able to make a footprint in the sand. And now, all too soon, they tell me Brett's getting married.

FISHING LINE

Jerry Maupin
Ledger Outdoor Columnist

Naturally, we wanted the stripes to be real hungry and bite hard. They did!

It was a trip to file away with a new star angler being born! Patsy has always been there, but she never did take center stage until this trip. Her smile was marvelous!

She stood up front with me in the boat and showed the guys how to catch stripes.

Before our trips were over she was using bait casting reels, making long casts and then catching fish to boot! They will have plenty to eat this winter - thanks to Mom!

I fished again with Skip and Mike Price while the stripes were still feeding hard, and it could not have been better.

We were using the one half ounce roostertail spinner to take some really big whoppers.

The Price men are good anglers - so this was a real treat for me too! We kept a limit of heavy-bodied stripes that will taste mighty fine.

I finally made connections with Steve and Molly Neiers while they were staying at the Nice Paradise resort. We were out early on a morning that looked like it might rain soon.

This was okay because the stripes usually get turned on when the barometer dips low.

We fished last year and had a great time, but we didn't know about this trip until we got out there.

Molly stood right there and cranked the stripes in as fast as could be. She was in a maternal stage again, so I guess we could be fair and help her cast some and let her catch and retrieve the fish.

It worked great! Before the weather got bad, we were able to put 40 big stripes in the cooler.

Molly caught the most - just as she said she would.

Jeff and Ryan Roxon came down and brought Robert and Eric Dube with them. We fished out of two boats as Brad Weakly helped me.

The Dubes were brand new to the art of fishing, and just a little behind in the catching department at first.

Eric is about nine years young,

So learning to cast and catch fish was real easy for him.

We had a good first day. They kept 81 thick stripes.

I took the two nine-year-olds the next day while Brad had the pair of dads.

They really did get into some fish and after lunch we were about to fill a cooler also. We ended up with a total of 141 for both boats. I was lucky enough to get to clean all of them.

Tommy Conley brought his son, Eric, and a father-in-law, Bob, over to chase the stripers a little while.

The water had begun to rise again and we could see a slow down in sight.

The fish jumped a little bit, but we caught most of them on a cast and retrieve, Eric and I teamed up as partners and proceeded to catch some nice fish.

We worked each school as they came by and were about to catch a good number. I think 52 was the count and we could see a lowering of bodies taken even though the weather was great.

Eric and I were victorious and really had a great time fishing together.

I could see the old pattern of the full moon and rising water slowing the stripers feeding habits.

The water remains clear and 82 degrees with a strong current on Thursday.

Maybe Friday will be better. Happy Fishing!

Jakes Event set Sept. 5

The Calloway County Longbeards will sponsor a Jakes Event Sept. 5 at the John Young farm off Hwy. 783.

Registration for the event, which will include a dove shoot, fishing and games, will begin at 11 a.m. The cost of the event will be $5 per child, which includes membership in the National Wild Turkey Federation and a place in the drawing for a gun.

Pre-registration will also be held at Benson's and BHB sporting goods stores.

The dove shoot is scheduled for a noon start, and will continue through sunset.

The shoot is open to children ages 10-17. Each hunter must have adult supervision and a hunter safety card. Only the first 40 hunters will be allowed on the hunt.

Fishing and games will be from noon to 2 p.m. The number of children is not limited.

A lunch will be served between 11 a.m. and noon.

A three-day hunter safety course will be offered from 6 to 9:30 p.m. Aug. 21 and 22 and from 9 to 11:30 a.m. Aug. 22. The class will be held at the National Guard Armory on Hwy. 121 in Murray.

For more information on the Jakes Event, contact Mitch Phillips at (502) 527-2072 or Chris Drew at 753-0347.

A reply is needed by Aug. 15.

LBL workshop scheduled

GOLDEN POND, Ky. - The Nature Station at TVA's Land Between the Lakes National Recreation Area will host a Field Journal Writing workshop on Saturday, Aug. 15 from 10-11:30 a.m.

The first-time event is designed to introduce nature and wildlife enthusiasts to the idea of keeping a field journal, which is typically used by naturalists and others to record their observations of the natural world.

"Keeping a field journal can be a richly rewarding experience, and one doesn't need to be an expert artist or scientist to do it," said LBL Education Team Leader Peggy Gray.

"One of the best things keeping a field journal does is help us improve our observation skills. There are many things such as habitat changes or observations of animal behavior that have been noted by people as they have kept journals.

These are things we often miss because we don't slow our pace and actively look for them."

All journal-writing supplies such as paper and pencils will be provided. Participants are encouraged to bring binoculars or field guides if they have them, but it is not required.

Gray said those attending should plan on wearing clothing appropriate for being outdoors. A short hike will be part of the morning program.

Reservations are required, and can be made by calling (502) 924-2020, weekdays from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Program cost is $3.50 ages 5-12, $5.50 ages 13 and up. Gray added the program is not recommended for children ages nine and under.

For more information, contact Land Between the Lakes at (502) 924-2000, or visit the LBL website at www.lbl.org.

Quota deer hunt applications available

FRANKFORT, Ky. - If you plan to apply for one of the quota deer hunts coordinated by the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, take note: the toll-free number to call is 1-877-86U-HUNT (1-877-868-4868). Hunters interested in a chance at being drawn for a quota hunt must apply between Aug. 1 and Aug. 31.

This year the application process is being handled by an automated system available to hunters by telephone only. Instructions for applying are given during the call.

Also new this year, hunters may register for a first and second choice of quota hunts. Plus, hunters that apply but aren't drawn may receive preference points that will increase their odds of being drawn for a quota hunt the following year.

To register a hunting party (up to four individuals), the caller must have Social Security numbers for each member of the party.

At the end of the call, a confirmation number is given. Hunters must write down this number and keep it until the quota hunt.

There is no way to replace this number if it is lost. The confirmation number will be used to determine whether a hunter has been drawn for a quota hunt.

Applicants still pay a $3 processing fee. This can be paid by major credit card during the call, or applicants may send a check of money order to the address given at the end of the call.

Drawings for some quota hunts on areas not owned or operated by the department are conducted by the governing agencies of those lands.

McDonald's helping with immunizations

Nearly one million American children under age 2 go unprotected against life-threatening, yet preventable, childhood diseases every year because they are not fully immunized, according to the Purchase District Health Department.

To help improve immunization rates, McDonald's restaurants are teaming up with the local health department on "Immunize for Healthy Lives," an immunization education program.

Throughout August, participating McDonald's will distribute immunization education materials, such as a trayliner and leaflet, which feature the vaccination schedule recommended by the American Academy of Pediatrics.

August is the natural back-to-school vaccination time period when most parents take their school-aged children to be immunized before returning to the classrooms.

But many parents may not know that vaccinations need to begin at infancy, and that health professionals recommend a vaccine for chicken pox.

Locally, McDonald's of Murray will give free ice cream cones to those children with a certificate from their participating health department.

Also partnering with McDonald's is Blue Cross and Blue Shield, which is donating bandages featuring Ronald McDonald for McDonald's restaurants to provide to local health departments.

"McDonald's has always been concerned with the well-being of children and families," said Mike Love, McDonald's owner. "By working with Purchase District Health Department, we can encourage parents to get their children vaccinated on time to help stay healthy."

Last year, more than 6,500 McDonald's restaurants across the country participated in "Immunize for Healthy Lives," reaching over 65 million people with important immunization messages. These efforts helped increase immunization rates in many communities, anywhere from 2 to 21 percent.

Local Sirloin Stockade receives franchise honor

Adam and Lisa Carver of Murray, were named Sirloin Stockade International's Franchisee of the Year at the company's annual franchise convention.

President Tom Jullie praised the Carvers for their outstanding scores in quality, service and cleanliness. He also noted the impressive sales gains in Murray over the past several years and Adam Carver's commitment to the community. The Carvers recently did an extensive remodeling of their restaurant and are very active in community projects.

"Adam and his wife Lisa represent the very best of Sirloin Stockade," Jullie said. "High quality standards, community involvement and a passion for excellent food put Murray on everyone's list as our top franchisee for 1998. The entire Sirloin Stockade International community salutes you."

"I want to thank the people of Murray for visiting our restaurant and supporting us as we try to build the best restaurant experience in Murray," Adam Carver said. "It is an honor to receive this award."

Sirloin Stockade International is a steakhouse and buffet chain with 75 locations in the Midwest and Mexico.

Serving high quality steaks, seafood, chicken and a buffet for a moderate price, Sirloin Stockade International has been a favorite dining occasion for over 30 years.

Wal-Mart Vision Center to help with program

Wal-Mart Vision Center associates will join forces with 5,000 other eyecare professionals in locations nationwide to raise community awareness about children's eye health problems and to raise funds for the sight-saving programs at Prevent Blindness America.

Since 1908, Prevent Blindness America has fought vision loss through public and professional education, community and patient services programs and research.

Together with a network of affiliates, divisions and chapters, they seek to end preventable blindness in the United States.

"Our associates are excited to partner with Prevent Blindness," said Nellie Lewis, manager. "The research done daily by Prevent Blindness is contributing to the defeat of preventable blindness."

Fundraising activities have started and conclude Aug. 31. Contact your local Vision Center for more details. Last year, Wal-Mart Vision Centers raised and donated more than $150,000 for Prevent Blindness America.

New law extends time limit on new hires

As of July 15, Kentucky employers have 20 days - up from the previous seven day time limit - to report new employees to the Cabinet for Families and Children's Division of Child Support.

Although changes to the Commonwealth's new-hire reporting law gave employers more time to file with the New-Hire Reporting Center, employers may now face penalties for failing to comply with reporting requirements.

New-hire reporting helps in locating non-custodial parents and withholding child-support payments from their wages.

In 1997, Kentucky's program matched 34,134 child-support cases to the 354,618 newly hired employees reported that year and collected about $10 million in child support.

Kentucky's new-hire information is also entered in the National Directory of New-Hires, which has located more than one million delinquent parents since its Oct. 1, 1997, launch.

The directory was established as part of the 1996 welfare reform law; it helps track delinquent parents across state lines and withhold their wages by matching their records with wage records throughout the nation.

About one-third of all child support cases involve parents living in different states.

All new-hire reports must contain:

- Employee's Name
- Employee's Address
- Employee's Social Security Number
- Employer's Name
- Employer's Address
- Employer's Federal Identification Number

If available, the reports should also include the following information:

- Employee's date of birth
- Employee's date of hire
- Employee's state of hire
- Whether health insurance is available to the employee.

DR. GOTT

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have osteoporosis and have been prescribed Miacalcin Nasal Spray. Is this an effective antidote?
DEAR READER: In treating osteoporosis, doctors must judge whether patients need prescription drugs that reverse the calcium loss from bones or those that merely stabilize the situation by preventing further bone loss.

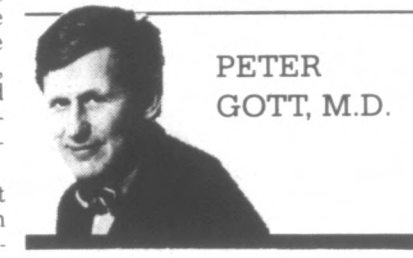

sions were offered about whether normal people should consume the herb as a preventative.
An occasional user may experience a bleeding tendency.
The Medical Letter consultants concluded that the purity and potency of ginkgo extracts in the United States are unknown, because the compound is licensed as a dietary supplement.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Because of a history of breast cancer, I cannot take female hormones. Nonetheless, menopause has resulted in incapacitating hot flashes. Do I have other options for treatment?
DEAR READER: Unfortunately, no. Your body is reacting to the deficiency of female hormones.

Although its effectiveness was based largely on foreign studies, the herb was judged to have some value in treating dementia. Apparently, ginkgo is available in France and Germany as a licensed drug, an indication that its production is scrupulously monitored.
The experiments revealed that ginkgo may help improve thinking in patients with dementia. No conclu-

PETER GOTT, M.D.

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: The number of people who take the time to write a letter, address it, stamp it and mail it only to complain about ridiculous, everyday things blows my mind.
The lady who wrote complaining that restaurants don't slice lemons the way she likes them for her iced tea flabbergasted me. Maybe she should take a reality check.
When someone or something starts getting on my nerves, I find that taking a moment to think about its importance in the grand scheme of things really helps. This may seem morbid, but I do so by imagining that I am on my deathbed. Think about it: Do I want to lie there and say, "I've had a wonderful life full of challenges, beauty and love," or do I want to say, "I should have worried more about that snotty salesperson, or the paperclip requisition form?"

We can't all be easygoing all the time — and we shouldn't be — but the key is keeping things in their proper perspective.
Abby, the advice you gave the lemon-wedge lady was right on. If she doesn't like what's offered, she should bring her own darn lemons. That's a pretty good concept to keep in mind when it comes to just about anything.

MONIQUE BYRNE, FREMONT, CALIF.

DEAR MONIQUE: Thank you for your support. I received a fistful of criticism for having printed that letter. Read on for a sample:

DEAR ABBY: I'm writing in response to "Incognito," who wrote to complain about her lemons being sliced instead of being cut into wedges in restaurants. Abby, I am only 16 years old, but I have enough sense to keep my mouth shut about small things. If I ever complain about my lemons being sliced wrong, I would hope to God that someone would slap my face.
There are people starving all over the world who would love to have a sliced lemon. I think your response to "Incognito" was way out of line. You told her it would be a "no-brainer" for chefs to provide lemon wedges. Hello? Lemon wedges?

Abby, with all the problems we have in the world today, lemon wedges should be the least of our worries. Don't you think that a more appropriate response to "Incognito" would have been, "Get over it?!" I do.

SKYLAR HOLBROOK, MIDDLETHIAN, VA.

DEAR SKYLAR: Not all problems are of equal importance to all people. I thought "Incognito's" letter provided an interesting change of pace and I'm sorry you did not agree that it was worthy of my column. Telling people to "get over it" is not very helpful; furthermore, it's not my style. I'm here to help my readers.

DEAR ABBY: Ever since you printed the letter from the lady who said that reading sexy books had improved her sex life, romance and sexy books have been flying off the shelves, according to the Friends of the Library bookstore here in Hot Springs, Ark.

There used to be a glut of these books in the store, but now the managers are begging for more books to be donated to fill the shelves again. What a novel way to promote literacy.

FRIENDS OF THE LIBRARY VOLUNTEER

DEAR FRIENDS VOLUNTEER: If it's getting the job done, then I'm all for it. I have always encouraged people to read, read, read. Read for information and read for pleasure. Our libraries are filled with knowledge and joy, and it's all there, free for the taking.

Pass 3♥ Pass 3NT
Opening lead — six of spades.

Assume you've reached three notrump on the bidding shown and West leads the six of spades, which you win with the ten. How would you continue?

At this point, you can count six top tricks — four clubs, the ace of diamonds and the spade already won. In the fullness of time, you can also count on three others — a heart, either the queen or jack of diamonds, and another spade.

The trouble is that you have to lose a trick in each of these suits before you can collect the three additional tricks, and by that time, West will probably have collected three spades, the ace of hearts and the king of diamonds — all of which he presumably has for his opening bid.

Another possibility is to try to establish a second heart trick, but this means depending on a favorable position of the heart jack (a card West doesn't need for his opening bid), or a 3-3 heart split.

When the deal occurred, South found the right answer. At trick two, he led a low diamond toward dummy's jack! This put West in an impossible position. If he took his king, he would hand declarer three diamond tricks to bring South's total to eight, with an easy ninth to come from either hearts or spades.

So West ducked the diamond, and when the jack won, declarer had his seventh winner. Now a heart was led to the queen and ace, and South was up to eight tricks. Since he had another trick in spades yet to come, he was certain to make nine tricks and his game.

As the cards lie, declarer would have come up a trick short had he finessed West for the jack of hearts or taken a diamond finesse by leading from dummy. But given West's opening bid, South rejected both of these alternatives in favor of the virtual certainty offered by leading a low diamond toward dummy at trick two.

In 1973, Vice President Spiro T. Agnew branded as "damned lies" reports he had taken kickbacks from government contracts in Maryland, and vowed not to resign — which he eventually did.

In 1978, the U.S. launched Pioneer Venus II, which carried scientific probes to study the atmosphere of Venus.

Company shift helps protestors

NANAIMO, British Columbia (AP) — The environmental activists are back five years after hundreds were jailed in a crusade to block logging of pristine forests. But this time, they are celebrating.

Veterans of the 1993 Clayoquot Sound protest — Canada's biggest act of civil disobedience — are holding a reunion this weekend that coincides with dramatic changes in British Columbia's forest industry.

MacMillan Bloedel, the logging company targeted during the 1993 protest, announced in June that it would phase out all clear-cutting in British Columbia in the next five years.

For environmentalists, it was a stunning victory. Greenpeace activists drank champagne toasts to MacMillan Bloedel's chief executive, Tom Stephens, an American hired last year to reverse a sharp drop in profits.

"There's no doubt this marks a big shift in forestry in British Columbia," said Valerie Langer, a key organizer of the 1993 protests and the weekend reunion. "This is MacMillan Bloedel breaking from what we call the clear-cutting cartel. It woke up to the fact that the markets were demanding something different."

Among those attending the reunion is Robert F. Kennedy Jr., an attorney for the Natural Resources Defense Council. He made repeated visits to the 1993 Clayoquot protest, where more than 800 people were arrested.

"It's really a profound victory," he said. "We can look back and say 'What did we accomplish?' and pat ourselves on the back. We really did something historic."

Before the protests, he said, logging policy was set by a few corporate executives.

"We helped democratize the process," Kennedy said. "Now you've got everybody involved — environmentalists, Indians, workers, companies. Everybody's talking about the sustainable use of this land."

There also has been a change of attitude at MacMillan Bloedel, said Glen Dunsforth, a biodiversity expert at the company's office in Nanaimo.

"You tend to demonize your adversaries," he said. "But in fact, there's a lot of common ground between us."

MacMillan Bloedel's five-year plan calls for varying the number of trees on different types of logging sites.

In the mountainous woodlands around Nanaimo, some recently-logged tracts had just a few trees left for an effect that was slightly more attractive than traditional clear-cutting. But on other tracts, loggers left up to 15 percent of the trees.

Esthetics is one of several priorities under the new program, which also considers economics, wildlife preservation and post-logging reforestation. Longstanding beliefs that clear-cutting is safer than selective cutting also have placed importance on worker safety.

Baby denied by parents dies

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — The short, sad life of Alek Smith — a baby rejected by his adoptive parents when he was born with severe medical problems — came to an end with his mother by his side.

Early Tuesday morning, after six months of life, Alek was removed from the respirator keeping him alive. His mother, Nicole Smith, who had put him up for adoption before he was born, was on hand to say goodbye.

"The decision, at least from the medical side, is that he had terminal lung disease, that his lungs were not able to support him," said Dr. Kevin Lorah, a neonatologist who cared for Alek.

Miss Smith, 25, rejected the baby's father's advice to get an abortion. She arranged Alek's adoption before he was born, saying she did not want to be a single parent and he would be better off with a loving couple.

An agency found a couple from North Carolina to adopt Alek. Miss Smith said she talked to them about the baby's life and her hopes for him. But her pregnancy ran into difficulties. Alek was born three months premature in February, weighing less than two pounds and with lung problems and brain damage.

Faced with the complications, the adoptive parents backed out. Miss Smith accused the couple of rejecting the boy for not being "perfect," and she vowed to find a family for him.

But as she publicized her search and fielded more than 200 inquiries, she grew closer to the little boy, remaining by his hospital bedside, cooing at him and caressing his skin.

In April, she decided to keep him. "I fell in love with him," she said. But Alek was unable to overcome his medical difficulties, and the end came this week.

Ron Turo, an attorney for Miss Smith, said she called him Wednesday to tell him of Alek's death.

"She called me from God-knows-where," he said. "She said, 'I can't handle this. I've got to get out of here.'"

Elvis exhibit opens at Hall of Fame

CLEVELAND (AP) — The home of rock 'n' roll's royalty is about to welcome the King.

The Rock and Roll Hall of Fame and Museum on Saturday is opening an exhibit dedicated to Elvis Presley, the first time the hall has put up a display honoring a single artist.

"Elvis was the logical choice. He was the first real rock 'n' roll star," said Jim Henke, the hall's deputy director and curator.

The exhibit is billed as the largest collection of Presley memorabilia ever assembled outside of Graceland, Elvis' home in Memphis, Tenn. It features objects that fans would expect (guitars and jumpsuits) and some they may not (crayons and a TV with a bullet hole).

The artifacts, posters and pictures trace Presley's journey from poverty in Tupelo, Miss., to the height of stardom to his decline and death at age 42 in 1977.

For Presley aficionados who have made the pilgrimage to Graceland, some of the show will be familiar. About 70 percent of the items are on loan from Graceland, while others are borrowed from private collectors.

The rarest pieces in the exhibit offer a glimpse into Elvis' life before he was a star.

There's a now-ragged trunk the Presley family used to move from Tupelo to Memphis. It contains a box of crayons Elvis used when he was 8.

Elvis' seventh-grade report card shows he was an "A" student in spelling but could manage only a "D" in science.

A job application Elvis filled out for a trucking company shows him described as a "playboy-looking type" by his interviewer. He didn't get the job.

A high school band program shows the first time Presley's name was ever in print for a performance. It was spelled "Presly."

From the 1950s, the exhibit features some of Presley's guitars, including the one he used on his early singles for Sun Records, along with kitschy Elvis merchandise: Elvis pencils, Elvis change purses, Elvis lipstick, Elvis skirts, and Elvis playing cards.

Removing Wrinkles Ask the Doctor

Dear Dr. Torabi,

I would like to have some facial wrinkles removed, but I do not want to "go under the knife (have surgery)". What other options are available for removing wrinkles?

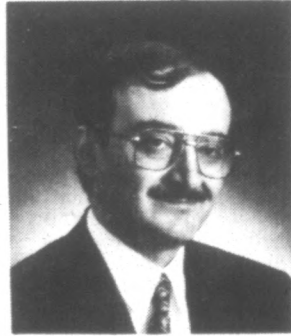

J.E., Murray

Dear J.E.,

There are several methods one can use to smooth, minimize, and/or remove wrinkles. Since you have ruled out surgery, the facelift is not an option. This leaves peels and laser resurfacing as methods you might want to consider for removing your wrinkles.

A peel is simply the application of an exfoliating agent to the skin that causes the outer layers of the skin to sluff or peel away more rapidly. The new skin growth will be smoother and fresher in appearance. Peels using Kojic acid, alpha hydroxy acid, or glycolic acid are very effective in removing superficial skin features such as hyperpigmentation (discoloration), or shallow wrinkles and acne scars. Please understand that this is not a one-time, overnight process. Depending upon your situation, I recommend 2-6 weeks of daily or nightly applications of the peel. Your skin will gain a smoother and more youthful appearance in about 14 days, but to achieve your desired results, you may need to continue your peels for up to 6 weeks.

Laser skin resurfacing is another option for removing wrinkles and other undesirable skin features such as scars, discolorations/spots, and moles. Currently, the erbium laser is, by far, the best skin resurfacing tool available. The erbium laser is much more precise and controllable than CO2 lasers, and was designed specifically for skin resurfacing. This is an outpatient procedure performed in the doctor's office, using a local anesthetic. Recovery time is 6-10 days, and some patients who have this procedure done on Monday, can go out on the following Saturday night.
