Explosion kills 4 U.S. soldiers

BAGRAM, Afghanistan (AP) — Two new attacks against U.S.-led forces in Afghanistan were reported Monday, and U.S. officials said at least four American soldiers were killed and several wounded in an accidental explosion.

At the time of the blast, officials said, a team of about 10 Americans was handling Soviet-era missiles or artillery rounds, which can be extremely unstable and difficult to move without detonating.

Yusuf Pashtun, chief spokesman for the regional government, said the explosion took place next to Taliban leader Mullah Mohammed Omar's former compound in an area where ordnance is normally destroyed in controlled detonations.

The wounded were being treated at a U.S. hospital set up months ago at the Kandahar airport, said Pentagon spokesman Lt. Col. Dave Lapan.

The increase in combat activity, meanwhile, occurred as winter is drawing to a close in the Afghan mountains, enabling fighters to move more freely in the rugged terrain.

In the most recent incident, there were two explosions Sunday night at an airfield used by coalition forces in the southeastern city of Khost on the Pakistan border, said Maj. Bryan Hilferty, a U.S. military spokesman. The blasts were near the spot where two rocket-propelled grenades exploded Saturday night, he said.

Hilferty also said a joint U.S.-Afghan patrol came under fire Saturday night, and five al-Qaida or Taliban attackers were killed when the coalition troops called in an AC-130 gunship airstrike. It was the second attack Saturday on a joint U.S.-Afghan patrol, he said.

In the earlier attack, before dawn Saturday, U.S. officials said they believed several attackers were killed — again by an AC-130 called in to drive off the raiders.

There were no U.S. or coalition fatalities in the weekend attacks, which broke a several week lull in fighting between U.S. and Afghan troops and fighters from the Taliban or Osama bin Laden's al-Qaida movement.

However, Afghan authorities said three Afghans were wounded in the Saturday night attack on the Khost airstrip.

New bin Laden tape discovered

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Osama bin Laden, his top deputy and a man identified as a Sept. 11 attacker were shown in brief video excerpts aired Monday by the pan-Arab satellite station Al-Jazeera. It wasn't clear when the tapes were made.

The deputy, Ayman al-Zawahri, was shown claiming the Sept. 11 attacks as a "great victory."

An Al-Jazeera official told The Associated Press the tapes were received a few days ago at its headquarters in Doha, Qatar. Al-Jazeera, known for airing bin Laden statements, said it would air the complete tapes Thursday.

U.S. officials have refused to say where the attacks against patrols occurred but they were

What started out as a 4-H project for a young girl in Louisville has now become a state-wide program, and one of the Calloway County Sheriff's Department's most important officers has a new bulletproof vest.

The deputy's name? Alex, the department's K-9 officer. Stephanie Garcia saw a show where a K-9 officer gave its life to save another officer. This inspired a canine vest fund to raise money to have all K-9 officers receive bullet proof vests.

Alex was presented his last fall. "Anytime you expose a dog to a crime scene, there is a chance of injury," said Capt. Dennis McDaniel. "There are dogs that are shot in the line of duty, and that started the program."

McDaniel said the vest provides a great deal of protection for the dog.

"It not only protects him from being shot but also any booby traps he might come across," McDaniel explained. "It will also absorb blunt trauma in case someone hits him."

Dogs like Alex, an Austrian-born German Shepherd, are very special to the law enforcement agency. Alex is a tracker, which means his primary job is to find drugs or track people using scent and ground disturbance.

McDaniel said Alex is not an aggressive dog, so he doesn't patrol. He said what determines a tracker's worth is their natural ability to chase a ball. If Alex finds what he is supposed to, then he is paid by being given a green tennis ball.

"Even if he tracks for hours and still doesn't find anything, he still has to be paid as an incentive to go back," McDaniel said.

McDaniel said he participates in many training exercises and allows the dog to track him. "I'll climb a tree and watch him," he said.

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Secretary of State Colin Powell took soundings in Syria and Lebanon Monday on a proposed Mideast peace conference and warned leaders of the two nations that guerrilla attacks on Israel could spill over into a wider conflict.

Powell said in Damascus that he wanted Syrian President Bashar Assad's assessment on "a way forward to negotiations" to settle the Arab-Israeli conflict.

He also took up with the Syrian leader, as he had with Lebanese leaders in Beirut earlier in the day, "some of the danger with respect to firing over the Blue Line," the U.N.-drawn border between Lebanon and Israel.

Hezbollah guerrillas have fired rockets almost daily into Israel, Syria, which holds effective political and military control over Lebanon, is considered the militia group's patron, helping to funnel weapons from Iran to southern

Tax Time

Filing taxes has become more complicated

By CURT ANDERSON
AP Tax Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The wealthy and low-income people stand a better chance of being audited than the typical middle-class family, which is paying the lowest share of its income to the Treasury since 1957.

Rich, poor and the middle class all are affected by one tax trend — the 17,000-page, 2.8 million-word tax code is more complex than ever. One estimate is that it now takes 28 hours and six minutes to tackle the Internal Revenue Service's 1040 form and do the necessary record keeping.

This year's filing deadline is midnight Monday for most of the country.

IRS date and reports from several tax research organizations depict a tax system that does not treat everyone equally but is, by far, the single biggest source of government paperwork and red tape.

"An abomination," Treasury Secretary Paul O'Neill calls it.

Consider IRS audits. Individuals making $100,000 or more and those making $25,000 or less are much more likely to face an audit than the tens of millions in between. High-income people tend to have more complicated returns that invite more audits: about 0.69 percent of all these returns were audited in 2001.

Those making under $25,000 usually have simple returns, yet about 0.40 percent were audited last year. That is almost twice the rate of taxpayers in the middle-income range and is largely attributable to the earned income tax credit, effectively a low-income refund program on which the IRS has focused attention to cut down on mistakes and fraud.

When audits related to that tax credit are not included, the rate for those earning under $25,000 drops to 0.15 percent, the IRS says.

For all taxpayers, the audit rate in 2001 was 0.58 percent, a slight

Tax Trivia

By The Associated Press

Facts and figures about this year's income tax filing season, which ends with Monday's midnight deadline in most of the country:

Government revenue from individual income tax: $994 billion, about 50 percent.

Internal Revenue Service budget: $9.4 billion.

Total projected individual tax returns: 132 million.

Taxpayers using professional preparers: 69.2 million.

Taxpayers who itemize deductions: 40.2 million, or 32 percent.

Number of tax refunds: 93 million.

Average tax refund: $1,954 through April 5.

Audit rate for all tax returns in 2001: 0.58 percent.

Fire Sheriff's Logs

Murray Fire Department

• Three trucks and 14 firefighters responded to a refuse fire behind the Murray State University Public Safety Office at 16th and Olive streets Friday just after 9 p.m. A booster line was used to extinguish the fire. A MFD report said the cause of the fire is unknown.

• Three trucks and 12 firefighters responded to a refuse fire at 1005 County Cork Road Sunday at approximately 11 p.m. A pike pole was used to help extinguish the fire.

Calloway County Sheriff's Office

• Dawn Marie Smith, 24, Kirksey, was arrested and charged with fourth-degree domestic assault just after midnight this morning. According to a sheriff's office report, Smith allegedly struck her husband in the eye twice and caused other property damage by throwing a camcorder and a remote control, kicking an ironing board and breaking a car window with her head. The report stated that alcohol was involved in the incident. Smith is currently lodged in the Calloway County Jail, and no bond had been set as of press time this morning.

• Mark Douglas, 21, Murray, was arrested Friday at approximately 11:30 p.m. on a warrant from Marshall County and charged with possession of marijuana, possession of drug paraphernalia and driving under the influence. He was released from the Calloway County Jail on $500 unsecured bond.

• Lloyd L. Stevens, 49, Dexter, was arrested Saturday at 7:45 p.m. on a warrant from Marshall County and charged with second-degree burglary, terroristic threatening and third-degree criminal mischief. He was transferred from the Calloway County Jail to the Marshall County Jail after his arrest.

Two Almo residents and a Murray resident were involved in a two-vehicle accident with injuries on U.S. 641 N. Saturday morning. Betty L. Jackson, 70, Murray, was attempting to enter the southbound lane of traffic on 641.

According to a report from the Calloway County Sheriff's Office, Jackson said she was unfamiliar with the repairs that are currently being performed on the road.

Jackson, who said she was unaware that the southbound lane was completely shut down, said she pulled directly in front of the second vehicle, driven by Thomas J. Stom, 71, Almo. Stom's vehicle then hit Jackson's on the front passenger side.

Injury information on Jackson, Stom and a passenger in Stom's vehicle, Emma L. Stom, 71, was unavailable from Murray-Calloway County Hospital this morning.

Lebanon.

On the diplomatic track, Powell is trying to measure sentiment for an international peace conference. Among the versions is one by Israeli Prime Minister Ariel Sharon that would include Saudi Arabia, Syria, Lebanon and the Palestinians — without Yasser Arafat.

Lebanese Information Minister Ghazi Aridi scoffed at such an arrangement.

"What does he mean without Arafat and Europe? Talking to the American administration or talking to himself and taking whatever decisions he likes and that others should comply?" Aridi said.

In Beirut, Powell met with Foreign Minister Mahmoud Hammoud and then President Emile Lahoud and Prime Minister Rafiq Hariri, warning that violence along the border between Lebanon and Israel could spread the conflict throughout the region.

"It is critical for those who support peace to act immediately to stop attacks across the border," Powell said.

Hammoud, in a strongly worded anti-Israeli statement, suggested there was a need for some "objectivity" about the attacks, which he described as resistance to Israeli occupation.

"Israel is responsible for the current escalation because it blocked all efforts seeking peace and has rejected all international resolutions," he said.

Powell also is discussing the growing possibility of an international Mideast peace conference.

Thousands of Lebanese and Palestinians demonstrated on the airport highway as Powell arrived in Beirut. Protesters burned American and Israeli flags and shouted: "Oh, God! Powell Out!" and "Death to America! Death to Israel!"

Powell is urging both Lebanon and Syria to restrain Hezbollah guerrillas whose cross-border attacks on Israel are causing growing international concern.

The Lebanese officially support Hezbollah's shelling of Chebaa Farms, a small disputed enclave held by Israel along the border after a withdrawal from southern Lebanon. The attacks have been an almost daily occurrence, but there was no shelling Sunday on the eve of Powell's visit.

SHERIFF MURDERED ... Kentucky State Police spokesman Craig Sutton answer questions Saturday night at a news conference in London, Ky., about the murder of Pulaski County Sheriff Sam Catron during a political rally, Kentucky State Police said.

Pulaski Sheriff's motive still a mystery

By ROGER ALFORD
 Associated Press Writer

SOMERSET, Ky. (AP) — Pulaski County Sheriff Sam Catron was well-known as an enemy of drug traffickers, flying a helicopter to search for marijuana plants and filling courtrooms with offenders his department had nabbed.

One sting he helped orchestrate in September 2000 resulted in 73 arrests and 129 indictments, the largest drug roundup in the county's history.

But investigators aren't saying whether it was Catron's tough stance on drugs or some other motive that led to his sniper-style murder on Saturday night.

A bullet from a high-powered rifle killed the 48-year-old Catron shortly after he finished a campaign speech at a fish fry and political rally at a volunteer fire department in Shopville, a tiny community about 70 miles south of Lexington.

Catron was running for a fifth term as sheriff, and the man charged in the shooting — Danny Shelley, 30, of Eubank — was apprehended after wrecking a motorcycle registered to Jeff Morris, one of Catron's opponents in the May 28 primary.

Shelley's arraignment is scheduled for Monday morning.

Capt. Paul Hays, commander of the Kentucky State Police post in London, said Sunday that Morris was not a suspect in the case.

Morris did not return phone calls to his home.

Hays wouldn't speculate on the motive for the shooting. He sidestepped questions about the relationship between Morris and Shelley, saying "that's part of the investigation that we're following up on."

Jim McWhorter, the chief deputy sworn in as sheriff, said Morris was a deputy under Catron from 1996 to July 2001.

McWhorter would not say whether Morris' reason for leaving the sheriff's office, but he said Morris was of no ill will toward Catron.

Catron had been in a sparsely populated Kentucky county since he was elected in 1996.

Mourners on Sunday gathered outside the Stab Volunteer Fire Department site of the combative rally, fish fry and political event where Catron was killed.

"You wouldn't know who shot the son," said Fire Chief Hays. "He treated everyone like he was his son." He lives in London.

Catron was shot during the event at 8:30 p.m. EDT. Hays said the sheriff was "a considerable distance from the site of the shooting."

Pulaski County Sheriff Sam Catron was shot and killed during a political rally in Shopville, Ky., Saturday night. Catron had just finished speaking at the rally and was walking to his cruiser when he was shot.

Much to do on Ky. session's final day

By MARK R. CHELLGREN
Associated Press Writer

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — When the General Assembly convened on Jan. 8, the important topics it faced made for a relatively short list — budget, redistricting, telemarketing, seat belts, solid waste, cell towers, power plants, expanded gambling.

With a few exceptions, the business is unfinished as legislators convene for their final day today.

While the other topics could wait for another session, the budget was a requirement. And since there is no budget, there will be a special session, perhaps on April 22. The fiscal year ends June 30.

A philosophical disagreements over public financing of gubernatorial campaigns was the breaking point, more than the $9 million appropriation out of a $15 billion budget.

The Senate position is that public financing is wasteful during a time of tight budgets. And Republicans argue the system, in place since the 1995 election, has not worked. The argument that the system is a waste of money, though, appears secondary. The GOP has offered a compromise to publicly finance the 2003 primary elections and abandon the system for the general election.

The House position is to retain public financing and the $9 million in the budget. Gov. Paul Patton, who has twice run under public financing, said the system works to reduce the influence of big money in electoral campaigns, and would find money to expand the program is $9 million proves inadequate.

The budget breakdown on Friday between top Senate and House negotiators may have left a cloud over the remainder of the topics still on the table.

House Democratic leader Greg Stumbo, D-Prestonsburg, said he hoped the disagreement did not torpedo important bills, such as the solid waste legislation.

A compromise seemed to be worked out last week on cleaning up old landfills and dumps with money from a new tax imposed on trash taken to landfills.

There was less progress on finding middle ground on regulation of placing cellular telephone towers and power plants.

Pending in the Senate is a bill aimed at cutting the amount of soft drinks and fattening snacks sold in schools through vending machines. In its latest form, the bill would permit elementary schools to sell only "healthy beverages" — milk, water and juice — while middle and high schools could keep their pop machines. Snack sales would be permitted at all schools, though limited to food items deemed to be reasonably nutritious.

Also hanging are proposals to allow more widespread collective bargaining for firefighters and constitutional amendments to present to the voters in November.

Some other proposals drew a lot of attention and got hearings, but no definitive action.

A bill that would make it possible for law enforcement officers to stop motorists for not wearing a seat belt was killed in the Senate after close passage by the House. A bill to allow slot machines at Kentucky race tracks got its first formal introduction in the House, but other than a vote in a friendly committee never went any further.

Redistricting consumed most of the first month of the session.

Pulaski Sheriff slaying still a mystery

By MARK R. CHELLGREN
Associated Press Writer
LONDON, Ky. (AP) — Sheriff Sam Catron was an enemy of many people, including a helicopter pilot and political opponents. He was shot and killed Saturday night, Kentucky State Police said.

Catron had been the sheriff of the sparsely populated south-central Kentucky county since 1985.

Mourners on Sunday began placing flowers outside the Shopville-Stab Volunteer Fire Department, the site of the combination political rally, fish fry and auction where Catron was killed.

"You wouldn't meet a nicer person," said Fire Chief R.J. Riley. "He treated everyone like he wanted to be treated. He lived by the golden rule."

Catron was shot as he was leaving the event about 7:15 p.m. EDT. Hays said the shot came from "a considerable distance."

Pulaski County Coroner Alan Stringer said the bullet hit Catron in the head and killed him instantly.

Catron had just bought two cakes at the rally and was putting them into his cruiser when he was shot, said Shopville-Stab Volunteer Fire Department Chief R.J. Riley.

"The cake was still sitting on the car, on the trunk lid," said Darrell Beshears, the Pulaski County judge-executive.

Shelley was caught shortly after the shooting, when a sheriff's deputy and a Shopville firefighter gave chase and Shelley wrecked the motorcycle he was riding.

Commonwealth's Attorney Eddy Montgomery said he may seek the death penalty in the case. Hays said investigators so far had not turned up any past criminal record on Shelley.

Under Kentucky law, shooting a police officer in the line of duty is a capital offense. Montgomery said Catron was in uniform when he was shot, but he said it may be questionable whether he was technically on duty.

Catron was known to wear a bulletproof vest, because his father, then-Somerset Police Chief Harold Catron, had been shot and killed in 1964. He was wearing it on Saturday.

"He is still in wonderful shape," McDaniel said. "He still has the passion and desire to hunt and he's in excellent physical condition."

Capitol Ideas By Charles Wolfe/AP Writer

Merger boosts KEA

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — The Kentucky Education Association's merger with a growing but lesser known union for "classified" school employees gives the teacher union a needed membership boost.

It also gets the KEA out of hot water with its national organization. Kentucky was the only state in which its teacher union had failed to do what the National Education Association requires in its constitution: Give full voting rights to classifieds — in this case, the 3,100 members of the Kentucky Education Support Professionals Association.

"Kentucky was the only state not in compliance. We've been keenly interested in getting that done," an NEA spokeswoman, Kathleen Lyons, said last week.

It got done this month at the KEA's annual meeting in Louisville. Two previous merger proposals were defeated, though most had favored it. However, they failed to muster the two-thirds super majority needed to change the KEA's constitution.

Had the issue failed a third time, KEA delegates might have been refused seating at the NEA's convention in Dallas in July, Lyons said.

The state organization also was at risk of losing some types of funding that comes through NEA, said Steve Neal, executive director of the Jefferson County Teachers Association, which got a $2,000 grant from NEA to help promote merger.

In one respect, it was a shotgun marriage between partners who have sometimes had competing interests. But Lyons said: "We have a lot more in common than we do apart."

The merger's immediate effect is to give the KEA the prospect of added weight and numbers that go well beyond the smaller union's official membership.

Kentucky school districts have about 48,000 classified employees.

They include classroom aides, bus drivers, custodians and cooks. Many are part-timers. Many literally work for nothing but their family's health insurance.

"Even though we have only a small membership, we have a huge grass-roots lobbying effort," said Nancy Toombs, president of KESPA.

"Our people back home will call every legislator. In that aspect, we can benefit KEA. There are very few legislators who don't know the name of KESPA," Toombs said.

They also know KEA's name, and know it well, but the union's membership is on a slight decline. It has over 27,000 members, but the total has slipped by about 300 in the last year.

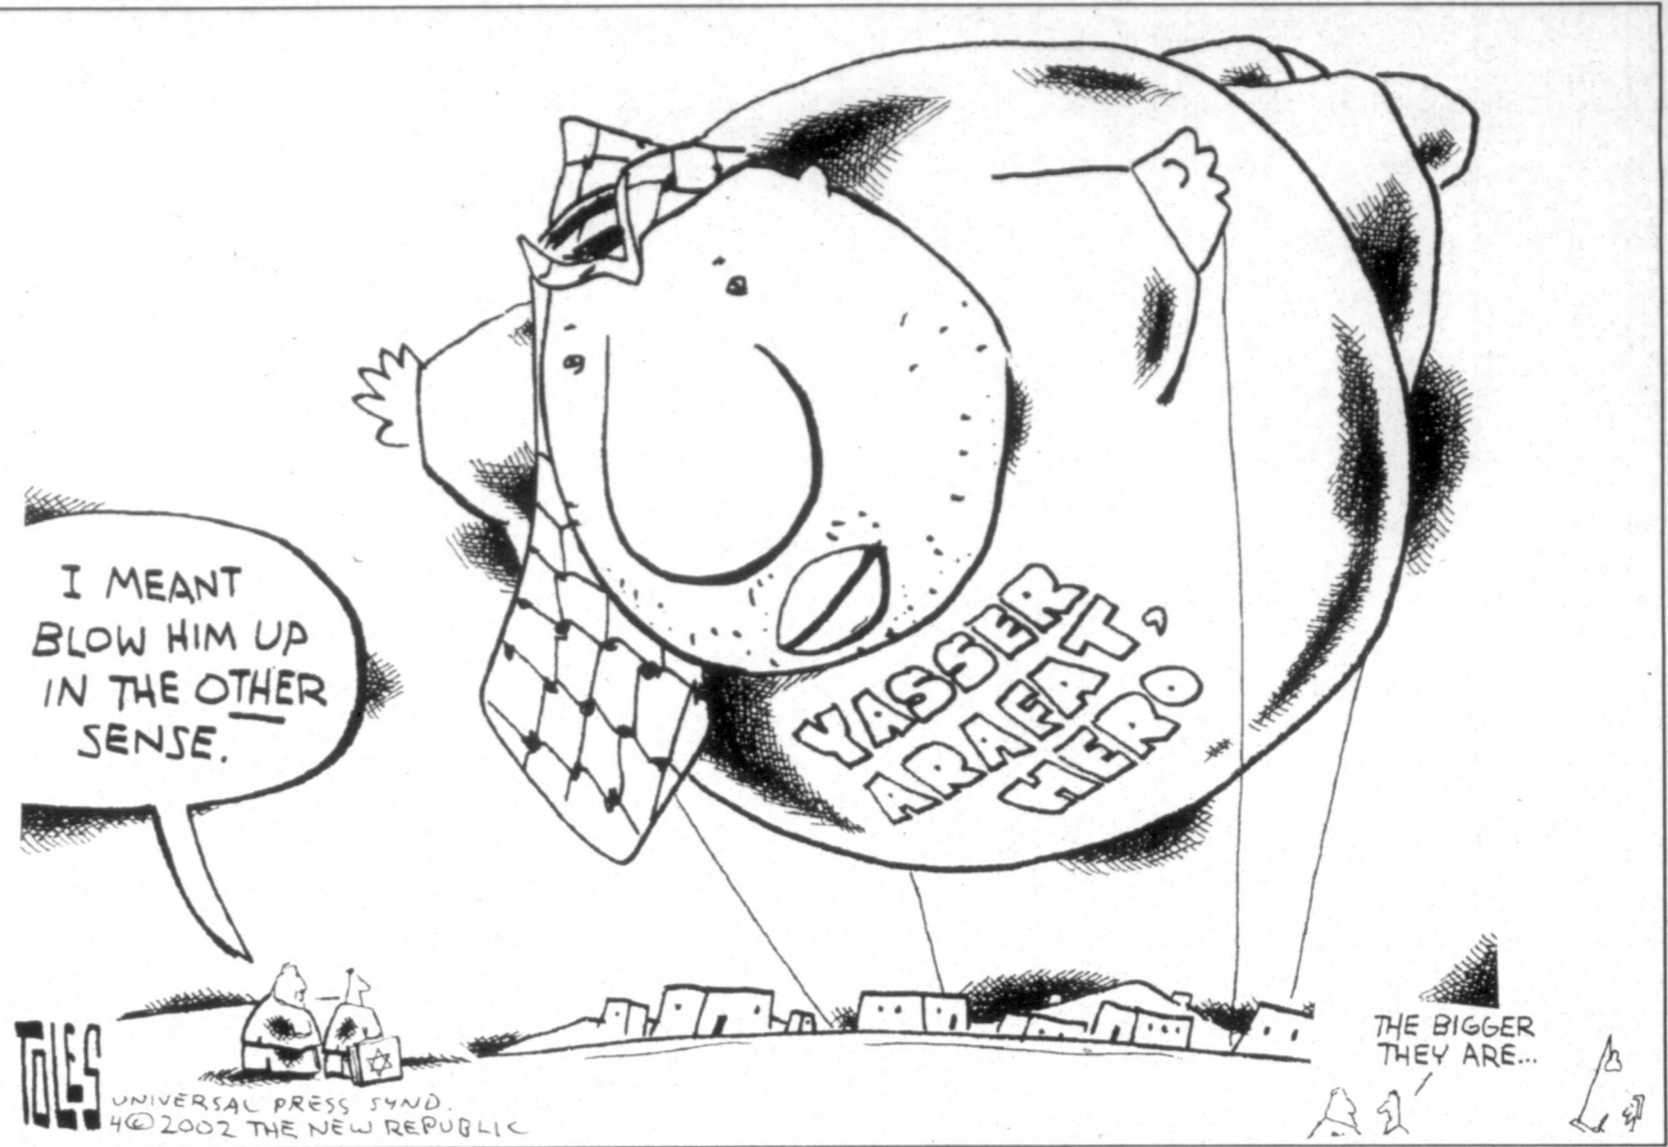

KEA President Judith Gambill attributes the decline in part to districts' increasing use of retirees who come back to work on limited contracts. Gambill estimates there are 6,000. She calls them "100-day wonders." They take up a teaching slot but don't join KEA.

Toombs, the KESPA president, says of the two unions: "We're better together." But her organization had to overcome elitism. Teachers are required to have advanced degrees. It took a sales job to convince some of them that they had much in common with cooks and custodians.

"We were able to come back and say that we all have to have some certification to hold our jobs," Toombs said.

A bus driver must have a commercial driver's license. Food handlers are certified, as are heating and air conditioning specialists. "We tried to tell them, even though their certificates were in different fields, we all had a place in the education field," Toombs said.

Oil & the political stakes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Iraq's oil boycott rekindled memories of embargoes, gas lines and soaring prices. Saddam Hussein failed to persuade his Arab neighbors to go along this time, but analysts suggest the fragile U.S. recovery remains vulnerable to a Mideast oil shock.

Washington Today
By Tom Raum
Associated Press Writer

Even though the United States is better positioned to weather a disruption in Mideast oil supplies now than during the 1973 Arab oil boycott, tensions in the area clearly have helped to drive up fuel costs for Americans.

With the summer driving season approaching, U.S. gasoline prices have already risen by 32 cents since February, to an average price of $1.46 per gallon last week.

"There's no oil shortage as such. It's all fear," said John Lichtblau, chairman of the nonprofit, New York-based Petroleum Industry Research Foundation. "If Powell does manage to get a cease-fire, there's no doubt that the price of oil would decline."

Iraq's cutoff of oil to Israel's allies — for up to 30 days — caused a spike in prices last week. The prices later eased, but situation remained volatile.

The risks were not lost on President Bush, who warned that higher oil prices could stall the U.S. recovery. He also prodded the Senate to pass his proposal to permit drilling in the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge in Alaska — even though oil from that site would not be pumped for a decade or so.

"You know my opinion about Saddam; the world's not going to follow him. But it just goes to show how important it is to diversify our supply away from places like Iraq," Bush said last week.

Republican Sen. Frank Murkowski of Alaska, the Senate sponsor of the Alaska drilling proposal, called the Mideast crisis "justification for moving as rapidly as possible" on the legislation. An expected Senate vote early this week faces strong Democratic opposition.

The last thing Republicans want is to see energy costs become a campaign issue, either in upcoming congressional races or for Bush's 2004 re-election prospects.

Failure by Powell to strike a deal could drive the price of crude to $30 a barrel, some analysts suggest. It has risen to about $26 from $16 last fall, and reached $27 right after the Iraqi cutback. The picture is complicated by labor turmoil affecting oil shipments in Venezuela, the world's No. 4 oil producer and a major direct importer of gasoline to the United States.

A deepening of the Venezuela strife and failure of Powell to secure an Israeli-Palestinian cease fire could combine to sharply drive up oil prices in the coming weeks, analysts suggest.

A $10 increase in oil prices costs the U.S. economy about $50 billion a year and slices about half a percentage point off the economy's growth rate, said Mark Zandi, chief economist at Economy.com, an economic consulting service based in West Chester, Pa.

"In the grand scheme of things, it doesn't sound like a lot. But in the early stages of a recovery, that can be significant," Zandi said. If oil goes to $30 a barrel and stays there a few months, he said, "It would be an important risk to the recovery."

There are some key mitigating factors. One is that the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries represents a smaller percentage of world oil production: roughly one-third now, down from 55 percent in 1973.

Furthermore, OPEC has pledged not to again use oil as a political weapon, one that could potentially backfire on its members, as it did in the 1973 boycott and during further oil supply disruptions in 1979 and 1980.

Saudi Arabia, the world's largest oil producer, has signaled it would increase production to fill any gap. Non-OPEC member Russia probably would do likewise.

The United States also has an underground Strategic Petroleum Reserve with 550 million barrels of oil, equivalent to nearly two months of imports. Germany and Japan have similar reserves. Private supplies held by energy companies are also substantial.

Iraq exports at least 1.8 million barrels a day under the close supervision of the United Nations. It is OPEC's third-largest producer but does not participate in the group's production agreements.

"In 1973, OPEC countries felt the West had no alternative to their oil. And they were not too far off," said Ed Porter, an economist with the American Petroleum Institute. That clearly is the case no longer, he said.

While he does not foresee an explosion in oil prices or a major interruption in supplies, "that obviously could change with a deterioration" in the Israeli-Palestinian standoff. "It all depends on the reaction of the producing countries," Porter said.

Z-I-G Diplomacy

By GEORGE GEDDA
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush's foreign policy has been a series of zigzags lately, as changing political realities have forced him to make complex adjustments.

Vice President Dick Cheney visited the Middle East a month ago intent on drumming up support for a tough stance against Iraq. His Arab hosts kept wanting to talk about the deteriorating situation between Israel and the Palestinians. Iraq got shorter shrift by far than Cheney wanted.

Since then, the Middle East has continued to stand in the way of Bush's goal of putting the fight against world terrorism at the top of his agenda.

On some days, Bush has been eager to support Israel, seeing repeated suicide bombings against Israeli civilians as an outrage. Not to stand up for Israel in such circumstances would be unseemly for a government committed to do battle with terror.

At other times, he is pulled the other way, heavily influenced by the wave of outrage among Muslims over an Israeli military offensive aimed at liquidating the terrorist infrastructure in the West Bank.

On March 30, Bush defended Israel's storming of Yasser Arafat's compound and demanded that the Palestinian leader do more to stem violence.

"I can understand why the Israeli government takes the actions they take," he said.

But Bush took a different tack five days later when he felt that Israel had gone too far. He renewed his criticism of Arafat, but he urged Israel pull its troops back from Palestinian areas.

It is an appeal that he has repeated almost daily since then, in increasingly exasperated tones. Bush's stand disappoints Israelis, who note that Bush didn't see any need for restraint in response to the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks. Why ask Israel to temper its response, they wonder.

Bush is eager for moderate Arab support for the war on terror but may not get it if Israel turns the West Bank into rubble.

Analysis

"The administration wants to broaden the war on terrorism and tends to be very sensitive to the Arab viewpoint, especially Egypt, Jordan and Saudi Arabia," says James Phillips, Middle East analyst at the Heritage Foundation.

Meanwhile, the war on terror, while not on hold, is being carried out in undramatic ways.

The administration continues efforts to prevent financial transfers to terrorist groups.

And it has sent or plans to send military personnel to such countries as Georgia, Yemen and the Philippines to upgrade their anti-terrorism capability.

There also is less talk these days about a move to dislodge Iraqi President Saddam Hussein, by U.S. calculations one of the world's top terror exporters. This is a function not only of the continuing crisis between Israel and the Palestinians but also because the U.S. campaign against terrorist forces in Afghanistan remains unfinished.

As a result, Saddam has been able to breathe easier, at least compared with the time 10 weeks ago when Bush designated Iraq as a charter member of the "axis of evil."

It was not long thereafter that Iraqi officials talked for the first time in years about allowing U.N. weapons inspectors back into the country.

But things have gone Saddam's way since then, and he must feel safer nowadays than he has in some time. The Arab League has come down unambiguously in support of Iraq in its standoff with Washington. The prospect for a U.S. move to oust Saddam soon seems remote.

Iran, another "axis" country, has drawn harsh criticism lately from Defense Secretary Donald H. Rumsfeld. He accused Tehran of harboring al-Qaida terrorists and of joining Syria in "inspiring and financing a culture of political murder and suicide bombing" in the Middle East. But there has been no obvious sign of any increase in American pressure on that country.

One piece of good news for Bush was the willingness of North Korea, the third "axis" country, to accept Bush's proposal to reopen a dialogue on security issues. After more than 50 years of hostility, no one is predicting an early convergence of views.

Chinese passenger plane crashes in South Korean city

KIMHAE, South Korea (AP) — An Air China airplane carrying 166 people crashed into a mountain in rain and fog today as it was preparing to land in South Korea's second largest city. Fifty-four people survived, police said.

The Boeing 767-200, on a direct flight from Beijing, was approaching Kimhae Airport near Busan when it hit the mountainside near a residential area, police said. There were no casualties on the ground, they said.

One survivor, Kim Mun-hak, 35, told the cable news network YTN that Flight CA-129 crashed shortly after an announcement advising passengers to buckle their seat belts.

"The plane crashed with a roaring sound, and I managed to come out from the plane, and I saw thick smoke and blaze," he said.

The plane hit one side of the 1,000-foot-high mountain and then plowed toward the peak, leaving a 30-yard-wide, 100-yard-long trail of fallen trees.

What's left of the plane looks like shredded pieces of paper. Burned plane parts were scattered for 300 yards in all directions. The plane's broken tail and nose rested near the top of the mountain. There were almost no seats left. The air reeked with burning oil.

Hundreds of police, military and civilian workers were combing through debris. However, their efforts were hampered by rain. Poor-quality roads slowed a land rescue.

Aviation officials said many of the survivors were passengers in the front part of the aircraft, indicating that the plane crashed with its tail and fuselage hitting the ground first.

Quoting survivors, police said there was no explosion on the plane before the crash, an indication that it was an accident, not an act of terrorism.

Television footage showed police and volunteers carrying survivors and bodies on stretchers down the mountain, which was shrouded in thick fog.

Bae Han-sol, 15, said the plane skimmed over his village with roaring sound and crashed soon afterward.

"We seldom see planes flying over our village, so I thought it was strange that the plane, trembling, flew toward the mountain in fog," Bae said.

Bae was one of the first who reached the crash site. "Bodies were burning on the mud. Survivors were crying in pain," he said.

A group of Air China officials including its president, Wang Kaiyuan, was headed to South Korea, said Kim Jung-hee, a spokeswoman for Air China's regional office in Busan.

There was no indication the plane's pilots put out distress calls before the crash. The pilot and two co-pilot were identified as Wu Ning, Hou Xiang Ning and Gao Li Jie. It was not immediately clear whether they had survived.

Aviation officials said that the airport's control tower permitted the plane to land but asked the pilot to approach the runway from the opposite direction due to a strong headwind. The plane hit the mountain while circling around to other side of the airport.

Kimhae Airport is used for both civilian and military planes and air force personnel staff the control tower. Air force Col. Kim Sung-hwi said the plane was given permission to land because weather conditions were good enough.

Police said it was raining at the time of the crash and that low cloud and dense fog reduced visibility.

The plane's flight recorder had been recovered. Transportation Ministry official Kim Young-woon said. The plane's speed and altitude at the time of the crash would not be available until after the flight data was decoded, officials said.

Those on board included 11 Chinese crew members, 135 Koreans, 19 Chinese and one Uzbek passenger, China's official Xinhua News Agency quoted the Civil Aviation Administration of China as saying. The plane was equipped to seat 211 passengers.

It said an investigation into the crash had been launched and the victims' families would be notified.

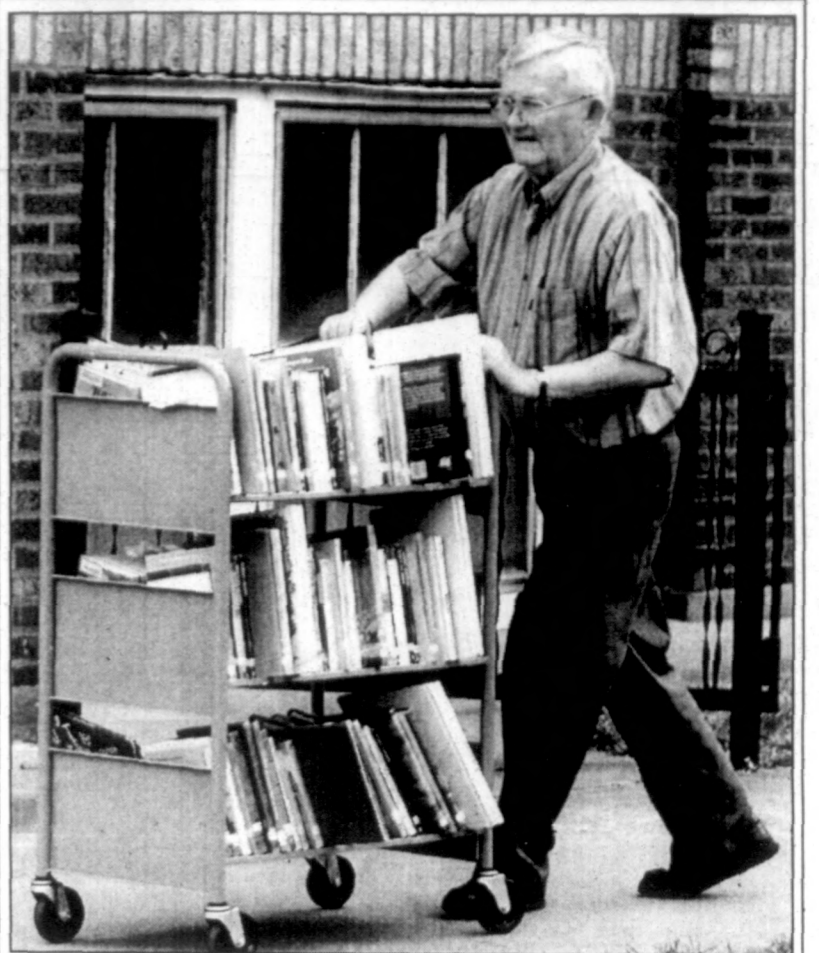

YTN said 16 employees of Seoul's LG Insurance Co. were on the plane, returning from a company-funded vacation in China. Eight were confirmed to have survived.

President Kim Dae-jung expressed regrets over the disaster and offered condolences to the families of the victims, including those from abroad.

Following the crash, flights into Busan were canceled due to the poor weather, aviation officials said.

The crash happened at about 11:40 a.m. local time. Busan is about 200 miles southeast of Seoul.

Headquartered in Beijing, Air China is the country's national carrier and one of three major international carriers based in China.

Mourners of daycare crash stress forgiveness

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Family and friends attending the funeral of one of the four children killed in the crash of a day-care van stressed forgiveness for the van's driver, who also died.

About 150 people crowded into St. Mary Missionary Baptist Church on Sunday to pay their respects to 6-year-old Brayna Robinson, also known as "Moo Moo."

Brayna, who died from injuries suffered in the April 4 crash, was dressed in a lacy white dress with a white ribbon in her hair. A pink and white pillow next to her in the tiny rose-colored coffin read "Angels watch over Brayna."

The other three children killed were: Cardarrus Bonner, 9, his sister Tika Bonner, 6, and 8-year-old Marquon McCray. Their funerals were Saturday.

Two other children, Taurus Showers, 11, and Jerry McCray, 10, were seriously hurt in the crash. Taurus has been moved from the hospital to a medical rehabilitation center, while Jerry remains in intensive care at LeBonheur Children's Medical Center.

In the funeral program for Sunday, Brayna's grandmother, Camelia Gibson, wrote about forgiving the day-care van driver, 27-year-old Wesley Hudson, who some children called "Smockey."

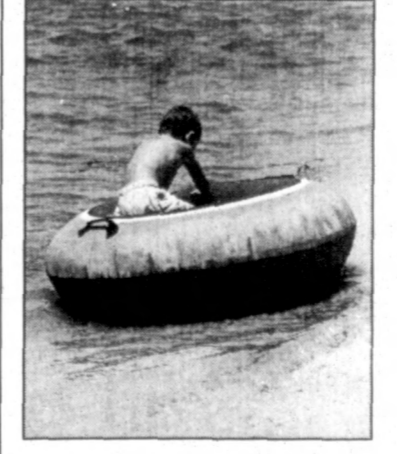

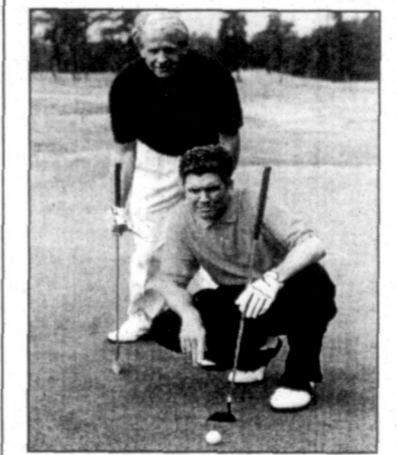

"Brayna 'Moo Moo,' please tell 'Smockey' that you are not mad with him and we are not mad with him," Gibson wrote. "God was just doing his will."

Exhibition, workshop planned at Murray State

On Wednesday, April 17, at 7 p.m., artist Dave Morrison will give a slide presentation and discussion of his work in Eagle Gallery on the Murray State University campus. An exhibition of his work will be on display in the Clara M. Eagle Gallery from April 16 to May 12.

Murray State University Art Department will be hosting a collaborative printmaking workshop with Dave Morrison. The workshop will start Monday, April 15, and run through Friday, April 19, in room 1006 in the Fine Arts Building on campus. The hours of the workshop are 9 a.m. to noon and 1 p.m. to 5 p.m.

During the workshop, a multiple plate lithograph will be editioned by the MSU advanced printmaking students. The print will be an edition of 30, and half of each edition will be donated to the Clara M. Eagle Gallery for fundraising purposes.

Morrison is an associate professor of art at Herron School of Art Indiana University - Purdue University in Indianapolis, Ind. He received his bachelor's in fine arts from the University of South Dakota and his master's in fine arts from the University of Wisconsin - Madison.

Morrison was a recipient of a National Endowment for the Arts Fellowship in 1995 and has exhibited his work nationally and internationally for the past 20 years. His work is in numerous collections including The National Museum of American Art, Washington, D.C., and Cranbrook Academy of Arts.

Murray native to star in play

Alexandria M. Farris, a 7th-grade student at Murray Middle School, will be featured at the on stage production of "Alice In Wonderland," which will play April 19 at 7:30 p.m. and April 20 at 2 p.m. at the Krider Performing Arts Center in Paris, Tenn.

Farris has been in many local Theatre Productions. She was last seen on stage as the Raven in Michael Dunnigan and Bret Webster's adaptation of "Pinocchio" at Playhouse in the Park.

In the production of "Alice in Wonderland," which is directed by Rush H. Trowel IV, Farris will be accompanied by Camilla Buckingham, O'Fallen, III.; Mark Borum, Custer, Ky.; and Jonathan Clark, Hopkinsville, Ky.

General admission to the play is $5. For more information call (731) 644-2517.

Kipphut earns scholarship

Murray High School's Shannon Noelle Kipphut has been awarded a scholarship from Salem College. She is the daughter of Dr. George and Lorilyn Kipphut. Founded in 1772, Salem College is the nation's oldest women's college.

A PLANNING PROJECT ... The Decorating Committee for Murray High School Project Graduation met recently to go over plans. The members present were Donna Cathey, Amy Houston, Terri Futrell, Linda Darnell and Sue Vonnahme.

WKMS staff wins press awards

WKMS 91.3 FM News Director Gary Scott and Program Director Mark Welch were among radio broadcasters from around the state receiving awards for excellence from the Kentucky Associated Press at a luncheon in Louisville Wednesday.

Scott won first place in the Feature/Human Interest category for "Revisiting the Hotel Metropolitan," a reminiscence of the vibrant African-American business community in Paducah in the first half of the 20th century.

Scott visited with retired, former baseball players from the Negro League about the hotel's "hey day" while they were in town participating in a fund-raising event for its restoration.

In the same category, Scott received an honorable mention for his story of the frog choruses of Land Between the Lakes heralding the arrival of spring.

Welch placed second in the Feature/Human Interest category for his feature about the people, sights and sounds of Murray's Annual Rotary Club Soap Box Derby. Welch captured the thrill of victory and the agony of defeat shared by kids between the ages of nine and 16 who build and raced "soap box" cars.

Hear WKMS on-line at wkms.org, at 91.3 FM and through translators in Paducah at 92.1 FM and in Paris, Tenn., at 99.5 FM. Call WKMS at 800-599-4737 for a program guide and for more information about Murray State University's listener supported National Public Radio station, both of which are also available on-line at wkms.org.

Daycare awarded two STAR rating

The Apple Tree School child care program is participating in STARS for KIDS NOW, this is a voluntary child care rating system. The Apple Tree School has been awarded a two Star rating, indicating that the Apple Tree School is seeking higher quality standards than required by state licensing.

Star ratings are based on factors associated with exceptional child development such as staff to child ratios, program curriculum and staff education and training. Children who are cared for in a safe, stable and nurturing environment overall develop better social skills and are more likely to be well-prepared to enter the school system.

Child care programs that participate in STARS for KIDS NOW are eligible for awards and incentives that encourage programs to maintain as well as increase quality standards. Child care programs have access to a college scholarship fund and technical assistance from specially trained personnel is available to help the program meet quality standards that are an important part of STARS for KIDS NOW.

The Apple Tree School is participating in STARS for KIDS NOW to indicate to the community and parents that the quality of care provided is important to Apple Tree School.

Recent rain replenishing moisture for spring crops

PRINCETON, Ky. — As spring arrives, farmers are counting the days until heading to the fields for another planting season. The recent rains will help ensure those crops will have enough soil moisture to get off to a good start.

Rains have saturated the soils and filled creeks and rivers. Flooding and flash flooding occurred across many sections of the state, with Doppler radar rainfall estimates of up to eight inches in the Bluegrass area.

Only a few weeks earlier, the state was moving in the opposite direction.

Until the recent rains came, the state had seen about six weeks of below-normal rainfall that had sent the eastern section of Kentucky back into a slight hydrologic drought, said Tom Priddy, University of Kentucky College of Agriculture meteorologist.

Currently, all parts of the state are considered moist based on the Palmer Drought Severity Index with only western Kentucky listed as very moist.

"We needed rain," Priddy said, "but perhaps not quite as much as we received last week and again this week."

Other parts of the country have seen suffering through dry conditions all winter with the Carolinas through New Jersey dealing with serious drought issues.

Once the saturated fields dry, farmers will begin moving their equipment into the field to plant corn.

Peoples Estate And Investment Services

Is pleased to announce The National Association of Financial and Estate Planners has recently accepted into its membership:

JOSEPH W. BOLIN

314 Main Street, Murray, Ky.

as a result of the completion by Bolin of an extensive review course and testing in estate and financial planning. Bolin is one of less than 300 professionals in the USA who currently have the specific training to put in place a 72(b) tax deferral program that:

- 1) allows individuals to sell appreciated assets (such as real estate, businesses, stocks, and other tangible property) and defer over one's lifetime the payment of capital gains taxes; and
- 2) allows the immediate removal of the total value of the asset from the estate of the seller thereby completely avoiding inheritance or estate taxes.

Bolin serves as legal counsel for Peoples Estate and Investment Services.

Murray-Calloway County Animal Shelter, located on Shelter Lane, has listed this Basset mix, female, eight months old, as well as a six week old Calico kitten among the many animals available for adoption. Shelter officials urge persons to call the shelter if they have lost or found an animal. Hours of the shelter are 10 a.m.-4 p.m. Monday-Friday, and 10 a.m.-3 p.m. Saturday (closed Sunday). For further information, call 759-4141.

Asst. Manager named at local co-op

Jody Hayden has joined the staff of the Southern States Calloway Service as assistant manager. A native of Paducah, Hayden is a graduate of Murray State University. Before being promoted to his new position, he worked at the Southern States Lexington Cooperative.

Hayden and his wife, Dava, are in the process of moving to the Murray area.

Jeff Chiles, manager at Calloway Service, said that Hayden's arrival means the local Southern States operation now has three Certified Crop Advisors (CCA) on its staff. In addition to Hayden, Chiles and Gail Doron, a field sales associate, also have earned the CCA designation.

Also, the local co-op is extending its store hours.

According to Chiles, the store will be open from 7 a.m.-6 p.m. Monday through Friday, and from 7 a.m.-3 p.m. on Saturday during the warmer weather seasons to accommodate customers needing supplies and equipment for projects around the farm and home.

Woods claims third green jacket Sunday

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Tiger Woods knew the routine.

Tug the brim of the cap coming up the 18th fairway. Tap in the winning putt. Smile and wave to the gallery. Give mom and dad a big hug, as well as the new girlfriend. Head to the putting green to pick up a green jacket.

Woods, the meticulous Master of Augusta, has been planning these moments for a lifetime — and Sunday, it was time to win his third championship on one of golf's hallowed grounds.

Don't forget, Jack Nicklaus was 26 when he won his third Masters in 1966, which also made him the first to win back-to-back titles. Woods won his second title last year and turned 26 in December.

By winning Sunday, he could check a couple more things off his list.

"Besides Jack Nicklaus, Tiger is the best player (ever)," said runner-up Retief Goosen, a helpless bystander as Woods cruised to a three-stroke victory. "Give him a couple more years and I think Tiger will be even greater than Jack Nicklaus. It's just a matter of time."

For the final round of the Masters, a superb collection of players lined up to challenge Woods.

Goosen, the U.S. Open champion, was tied for the lead. Vijay Singh, Ernie Els, Phil Mickelson, Sergio Garcia and Jose Maria Olazabal were in the wings, waiting to challenge.

Was Woods worried? Nah. "I always felt that I had the game that was good enough to win here."

THE CHAMP, AGAIN...Tiger Woods finished with a four-round total of 276 to win his third Masters tournament.

Woods said. "You have to just kind of focus and bear down and you know which shots are crucial, especially those par putts. You've got to make those. I've always said it's a better feeling inside when you make a big par putt than it is a birdie."

On this day, par was good enough. Woods shot 1-under 71 — his worst score of the tournament — but all the contenders went down hard.

Goosen dropped four strokes in the first four holes. Mickelson started with two birdies, then bogeyed the next two holes. Els had a glimmer of hope until he put two balls in Rae's Creek and took triple bogey. Singh deposited four balls in various bodies of water — including one he threw in himself after missing a putt.

Woods cruised to victory with a 12-under 276 on the toughened-up, redesigned Augusta National. Goosen made a couple of late birdies for a 74 — and seemed satisfied with his position.

"Tiger was really never in any trouble," the South African said. "It was good to finish second."

Mickelson shot 71, wound up four strokes back and is still the best player never to win a major.

"I thought I was very lucky to be able to play the final round of the Masters here at Augusta, play the back nine and be on the leaderboard, play this game for a living and be very fortunate," he said.

Is the gap as big as it looked? "No," said Padraig Harrington, who finished six strokes behind Woods. "But I think he's good enough that he can build his game up. And he builds up for the weeks he needs it."

Like Augusta, which gave Woods his seventh major. He's 11 behind Nicklaus' career record with no one showing much willingness to challenge him.

At the start of Sunday's round, six of the seven top players in the world rankings were on the leaderboard. If there was ever a day for someone to overtake Woods in the final round of a major, this was it.

Instead, he had the look of a champion all day, making Woods 7-for-7 when he goes to the final round with the lead in the biggest tournaments.

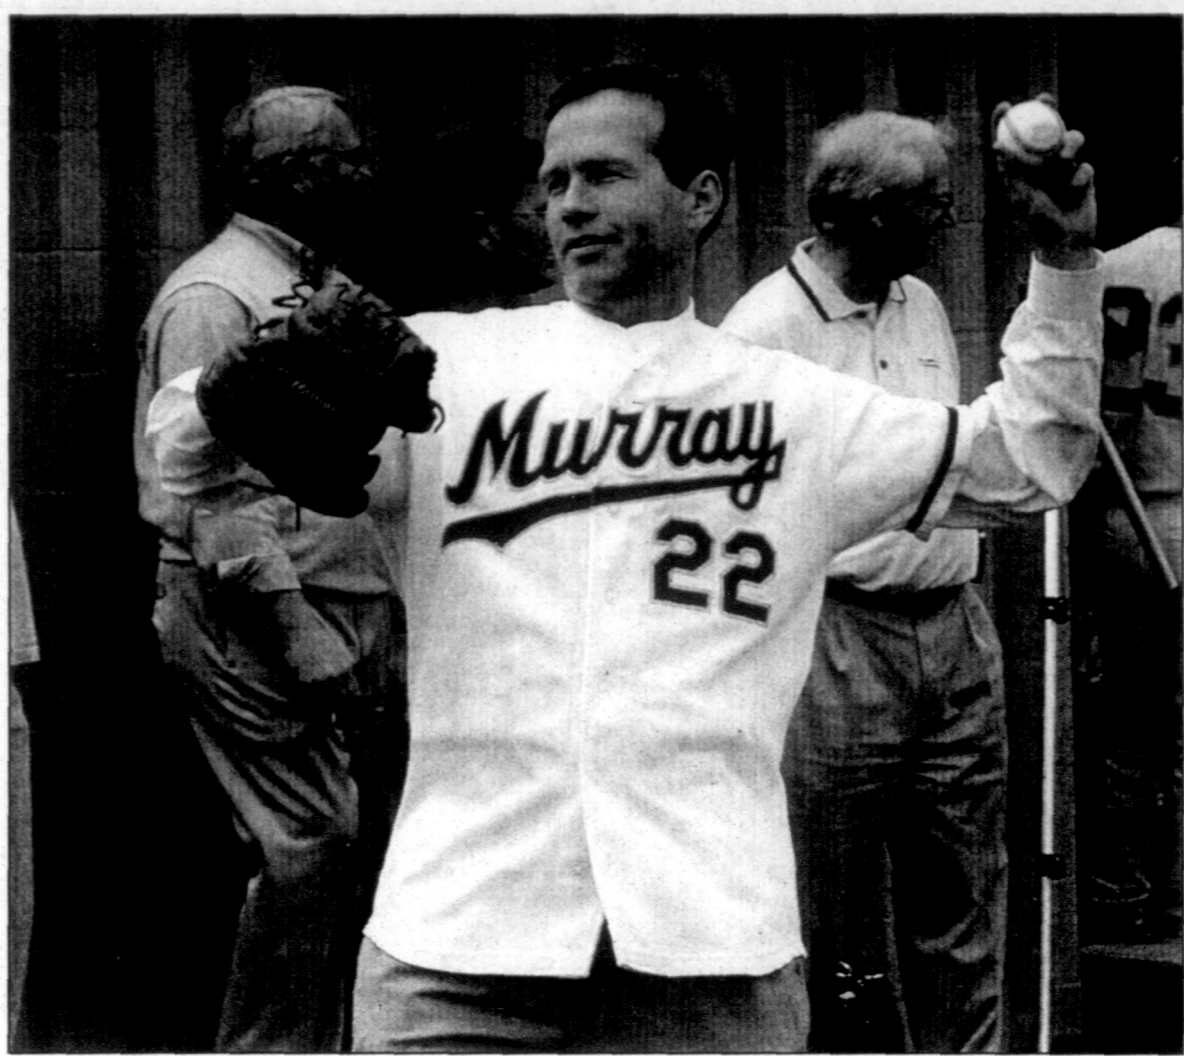

"The thing about Tiger, he's the only leader that you don't have any hope that he'll falter," Mickelson said.

"When other guys are up there, you know that if you can just stay around, there's a good chance they might come back with two or three shots. But Tiger doesn't ever seem to do that."

Woods seized control with an early burst of birdies and watched his rivals crash in a desperate and reckless attempt to catch him.

"You know that you have to go after him," Mickelson said. "We saw guys taking aggressive plays and making bogeys and doubles because of it."

The result was another march into history, with Woods becoming only the third player to win back-to-back titles. The first was Nicklaus, followed by Nick Faldo in 1989-90.

JUST ONE MORE...Murray State President Dr. King Alexander warms up before throwing the first pitch during pre-game ceremonies of the 2,000th game in Thoroughbreds' history Saturday morning at Reagan Field. The 'Breds fell to visiting Eastern Kentucky 3-2 in the historic contest.

'Breds drop 2,000th game, series to ECU

Staff Report
Murray Ledger & Times

The Murray State baseball team salvaged the final game of the three-game home series with Eastern Kentucky by taking an 8-7 win over the Colonels at Reagan Field Sunday afternoon in Ohio Valley Conference action.

The host Thoroughbreds (11-18, 4-5 OVC) got a bases-loaded infield single by Mike Voyles in the ninth inning to plate the winning run.

The 'Breds trailed on four different occasions, with the last coming when ECU took a 7-6 lead in the top of the ninth before MSU scored two runs in the bottom half of the inning for the win.

The Colonels rained on Murray's 2,000th game Saturday, sweeping a doubleheader 3-2 and 10-7.

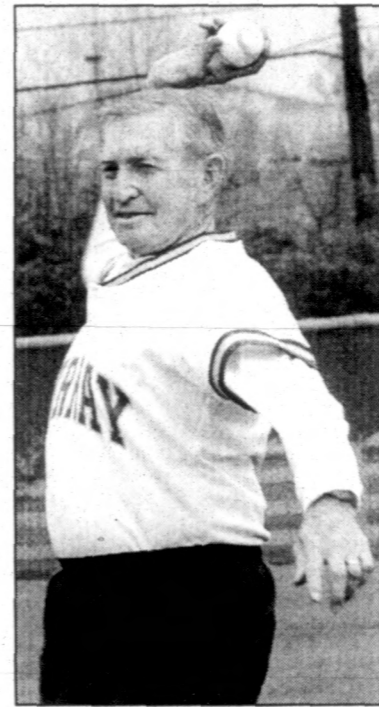

Eastern Kentucky (9-23, 6-6 OVC) opened Sunday's game with three runs — one earned — in the first inning, capped by a two-run double by Phillip Robertson.

The 'Breds were able to respond, scoring a run when Billy Moore led off with an infield single and moved to second on Todd Satterfield's sacrifice bunt. Ronnie Seets' single drove in Moore as MSU cut the Colonel lead to 3-1 after the first inning.

Murray State tied the game in the bottom of the second when John David Thieke doubled in Charlie Ward, and Moore doubled to right to score Thieke to knot the game at 3-3.

ECU answered with two runs in the top of the third inning when Aaron Williams hit his first home run of the season over the center-field wall, a two-run shot to put the Colonels ahead 5-3.

Murray State countered with a two-run third of its own, as Brett McCutchan launched his third home run of the season, a two-run shot that tied the game 5-5.

FIRST TOSS...Hall of Fame coach Johnny Reagan throws one of two first pitches before the 2,000th game in 'Breds' history. Reagan served as MSU's head coach for over half of them, compiling a 776-508-11 record in 36 seasons.

Eastern Kentucky scored in the fourth when Chris Clark hit a one-out single, Chris Grynawski followed with a single, moving Clark to second, and Josh Anderson singled to load the bases. Williams hit a sacrifice fly to score Clark and give the Colonels a 6-5 lead.

The score remained 6-5 until the bottom of the seventh inning, when Satterfield hit a leadoff double. Seets' groundout moved Satterfield to third, and McCutchan hit a sacrifice fly to score Satterfield and again tie the game at 6-6.

In the top of the ninth inning, Eastern Kentucky took the lead again when Anderson hit a one-out single, moved to second when Williams was hit by a pitch, and scored when Neil Sellers singled to left to give ECU a 7-6 lead.

In the bottom of the ninth, Satterfield led off with a walk. Seets singled Satterfield to second, and McCutchan singled to right to score Satterfield and tie the game at 7-7.

Garner Byars had a sacrifice bunt to move Seets to third and McCutchan to second, and ECU pitcher Scott Goetz intentionally walked Charlie Ward to load the bases with one out.

Voyles chopped a 1-2 pitch toward second baseman Sellers, who was playing back at double-play depth. The ball got to Sellers too slowly to turn a double play, so Sellers came home with the throw, but it was not in time to get Seets, and Murray State won the game 8-7.

"The big key was that we were able to overcome the three-run inning that put us in a hole early," said MSU head coach Mike Thieke. "After that, Mike Noonan and Gordon Dugan managed to keep the game within reach while we pecked away. We fought and scratched our way back, and came up with the big hits in the ninth inning."

McCutchan went 3-for-4 with a home run, a run scored and four RBIs. Moore went 2-for-5 with a double, a run and an RBI, while Satterfield went 2-for-3 with a double and two runs.

Voyles went 2-for-5 with a double and the game-winning RBI. Seets went 2-for-4 with two runs and an RBI. Thieke also had a double for the 'Breds.

Dugan (2-0) got the win in relief for Murray State, striking out both batters he faced in the ninth inning. Craig Ringwald started the game, allowing six runs (four earned) on 10 hits, striking out four and walking one in 4 2-3 innings.

Astros avoid sweep by Cards 5-4

ST. LOUIS (AP) — In a game that went down to the wire, the Houston Astros avoided getting swept by their chief rival in the NL Central.

Shane Reynolds allowed one earned run in 5 1-3 innings as the Houston Astros built a four-run, fifth-inning cushion and held on for a 5-4 victory Sunday.

St. Louis cut the deficit to one on Jim Edmonds' two-run homer in the seventh off Nelson Cruz, but settled for taking two of three — just like last weekend in Houston.

The issue wasn't settled until right fielder Richard Hidalgo made a running, leaping catch of Placido Polanco's liner for the final out with the tying run in scoring position. Manager Jimmy Williams said he hadn't been nervous when Hidalgo jumped and then grabbed the ball on the way down.

"No, because if you hold your breath too long, you're going to pass out," Williams said. "You just hope gravity grabs that ball a little bit and it goes in that glove."

Lance Berkman, Daryle Ward, Geoff Blum and Adam Everett drove in a run apiece for the Astros, who last were swept by the Cardinals Sept. 2-4, 1996.

"You don't ever want to get swept," catcher Brad Ausmus said. "We've been scuffling a little bit. We haven't been able to put the pitching and the offense together and it was tough and go at the end, but we were able to hang on."

The Cardinals' five-game winning streak came to an end as they finished 5-1 on the homestand.

"All you can do is go out like we did today," manager Tony La Russa said. "If anybody has any complaints, they're not watching the game."

St. Louis' Eli Marrero was 3-for-3 with two steals and an intentional walk and is batting .567 (17-for-30) with a home run and six RBIs. He had the winning hit Saturday, a bases-loaded liner off the left-field wall in the eighth inning of a 2-1 victory.

Bobby Labonte wins Virginia 500

MARTINSVILLE, Va. (AP) — Clean-driving Bobby Labonte provided a storybook ending to Kevin Harvick's day of reckoning, proving that drivers don't have to beat and bang to win in NASCAR's Winston Cup Series.

The former champion drove like one again Sunday, getting himself into position for a late move and then being handed a lead he would not relinquish by Tony Stewart to win the Virginia 500 Winston Cup race.

Even on a day when Kevin

Labonte

Harvick wasn't allowed to race because of his rough driving in the past, the race featured lots of the bumping and banging that typifies Martinsville and other short tracks in the series.

Labonte, though, declined to engage in the paint-swapping, choosing to bide his time and set himself up for a run at the checkered flag.

"I'm never going to push anybody out of the way like I've seen other guys do, so I figured if I was up front I probably had a better shot than being behind somebody," Labonte said of his first short-track victory.

Harvick's growing status as NASCAR's bad boy was solidified hours before the race, when the governing body made him the first driver barred from an event because of rough driving in the series' 54-year history.

Harvick's penalty came after he clashed several times with Coy Gibbs during the Advance Auto Parts 250 NASCAR Craftsman Truck Series race Saturday, and ultimately was told to park his truck after 188 of 250 laps.

Harvick's Richard Childress-owned Chevrolet was driven instead by fill-in Kenny Wallace, who spun out after 73 laps and wound up 32nd.

Labonte took home a first-place prize of $168,078.

Bonds injured; Brewers rally 4-3

By The Associated Press
Only Barry Bonds' body is stopping him these days.

Bonds left after the third inning with a mild right hamstring strain, and the Milwaukee Brewers rallied past the San Francisco Giants 4-3 Sunday to stop a seven-game losing streak.

Bonds

A day after hitting his 574th home run to move past Harmon Killebrew into sole possession of sixth place on the career list, Bonds walked leading off the third inning, advanced on an infield groundout and scored on Shawn Dunston's single.

Bonds, who left at the end of the inning, said he first felt the injury during the final week of spring training.

Giants trainer Stan Conte said the injury is likely to linger for several weeks, but Bonds has been able to keep it loose.

In other games it was San Diego 1, Los Angeles 0; Florida 7, Atlanta 0; New York 6, Montreal 4; Philadelphia 3, Cincinnati 1; Houston 5, St. Louis 4; Arizona 6, Colorado 3; and Chicago 5, Pittsburgh 1 in a game cut to 7 1/2 innings by rain.

At San Francisco, Milwaukee trailed 3-2 in the eighth when Matt Stairs had a tying double off Felix Rodriguez (0-1) and Alex Sanchez hit a go-ahead single.

Luis Vizcaino (1-1) induced a seventh-inning double-play grounder by Yorvit Torrealba, and Mike DeJean pitched two scoreless innings for Milwaukee's first save this season.

Padres 1, Dodgers 0

D'Angelo Jimenez hit a two-out RBI single in the seventh, and Brian Lawrence (2-0) out-pitched Hideo Nomo (1-2) as San Diego won for the fifth time in six games.

Rotary Invite washed out

Staff Report

Murray Ledger & Times

Youth baseball traveling teams lived up to their description over the weekend when the Murray Rotary Club Invitational was shifted south to Paris, Tenn. for Saturday play after weekend thunderstorms nearly wiped out the event.

The 53 teams — covering 9-under through 14-under age groups from Detroit to Montgomery, Ala. — occupied diamonds throughout the Murray community during Friday night's opening rounds.

But severe thunderstorms early Saturday morning rendered the Murray fields unplayable, despite efforts from the Murray Parks Department to re-condition the playing surfaces.

By early afternoon, the teams were playing at two separate complexes in Paris. Time limits for those games were slightly condensed, but every team was able to play at least two games in an effort to seed clubs for semifinal and championship-round play on Sunday.

However, Sunday's play was canceled because of a morning shower, rendering the fields unplayable.

Losing most of Saturday's action and all of Sunday's play was a big setback to the event financially.

However, the tournament is still expected to yield proceeds to the Rotary Club for a donation to the Murray-Calloway County Parks Department's amphitheater project.

The exact donation amount will not be available until all tournament refunds and expenses are calculated.

The following is a summary of how the five Murray teams fared during weekend play at the Rotary Invitational.

Murray Mud Dogs

The Mud Dogs decided to withdraw in the middle of their pivotal 12-under game with the Millington (Tenn.) Trojans with the score tied 2-2 in the third inning. The contest began at 1:30 a.m. on Sunday, but the field lights overheated and shut down

The Mud Dogs won their only other game, 9-0, on Friday against the West Paducah Pirates.

Murray Thunder

The Thunder rolled to an impressive 3-0 mark in the 10-under divisional pool play with wins over the Shelby Shockers (15-1), Evansville (Ind.) Rivermen (5-4) and Hopkinsville Diamond Dogs (7-4).

The Thunder was ranked fourth heading into Sunday's play and wound up with that final placement in the 10-team field.

Murray Vipers

The Vipers, a first-year 10-under traveling team, dropped each of their three games — falling to the West Kentucky Cubs (11-8), the Central Kentucky Comets (10-0) and the Jackson (Tenn.) Coyotes (17-1).

Murray Chaos

On Friday, the 11-under Chaos fell to the Coughlin Cubs 13-2 and dropped an 11-8 contest to the Madison Maulers in a game that was tied heading into the last inning.

Western Kentucky Reds

The 14-under Reds lost two close games on Friday — to the Paducah Storm (7-6) and the Millington Trojans (5-2) — and wound up fourth in their division.

Authorities estimate 10,000 gallons oil spilled in Michigan river

DETROIT (AP) — A mysterious spill has sent more than 10,000 gallons of oil into the Rouge River near Detroit in the last five days, baffling officials who have been unsuccessful in pinpointing its source.

The spill has gotten bigger each day since it was discovered last week. The oil is believed to be industrial-grade waste oil.

"From Wednesday until now, there's been more than 10,000 gallons spilled, and we expect that number to increase," said Adam Wine, chief petty officer with the U.S. Coast Guard.

The river, which flows eastward into the Detroit River, was closed for a second straight day on Sunday as cleanup work continued, creating potential problems for industries that rely on the waterway to transport goods.

"There will be a need to move ships up and down to Ford and Rouge Steel to provide raw materials — iron ore, coal and limestone," said Rep. John Dingell.

The Coast Guard hoped the river would be reopened Monday.

The cleanup could last three to six weeks and cost more than $2 million, officials estimated.

The spill's environmental impact is unknown, although about 70 birds have been found with oil on their feathers, according to Dan Sheill, special agent with the U.S. Department of Fish and Wildlife.

The spill is the largest on a Great Lakes waterway in more than a decade. Wine said the last major spill that affected Great Lakes waters was a 1991 gasoline spill in the Bay City area. The source of that spill was an explosion on the tanker Jupiter.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Tuesday, April 16, 2002.

Those who are around you frequently serve as sources of inspiration. Getting together with others frequently develops into a brainstorming session. You have an innate ability to draw interesting and creative people toward you. When you speak your mind, you're absolutely clear and direct. If you can, do not make any major purchases involving a car or computer this year. If you are single, a relationship will heat up considerably. You might think this is the person of your dreams. You will not know for sure until next year. If you are attached, your relationship will become a lot more as you visualize. Talk, share and live your dreams together. GEMINI can be tough at times.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

***** Carry some of your innate enthusiasm about life into your work and communication. A friend helps you build the feeling that anything is possible. Be sure to convey your seriousness during a conversation. Discuss boundaries with a frivolous associate. Tonight: At a favorite spot.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

*** A discussion occurs with a boss or respected associate. Talking about the here and now will help you find answers. Together, this team could be unbeatable. Don't commit to anything you're not comfortable with financially. Tonight: Your treat.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

***** You're empowered right now. Stop. Think. What could make a difference to you? Move that project or item further along while the planets give you the green light. Focus on what you want. Keep your perspective in any case. Tonight: Anything is possible.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

*** Slow down. You're able to make a difference when it counts. Use your instincts with a money matter. Don't listen to someone who might be airy-fairy. Still, you could be tired and dragging. Take some time to yourself to refresh. Tonight: Take your time.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

***** You will not let go right now. You might be a little like a dog with a bone. You know what you want, and you're determined to get it. Others learn from your creativity and determination. Still, look around. Gain a new perspective.

ive. Be sure that you have a complete perspective. Tonight: Keep that focus.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

***** Stand up and make your position known. You often push yourself beyond your limits. Think in terms of responsibility. If you're unhappy with the direction in which your career is going, think about taking a seminar or class to develop your skills. Tonight: A must appearance.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)

***** Reach out for someone at a distance. Consider signing up for a course or scheduling a vacation. You could be closer to burning out than you realize. Relax by spreading your wings some. New perspectives help invigorate you. Tonight: Hop on your computer.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)

***** Carefully listen to someone who often has a lot to share. You might look at this person as if he or she rains on your parade. In any case, there might be a grain of truth in what this person says. Be realistic before you get into trouble! Tonight: Work on your finances.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

***** You have a way of picking and choosing your words. Conceptualize an idea for others who might not be as visual as you. Others could be difficult and testy. You know how to cruise right over their moods and still gain through your interactions. Tonight: Out to dinner.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

*** Understand that your fatigue could be playing into your work and attitude. Some Goats might be not be tired, but experiencing burnout. Be careful with financial decisions, as you could think one thing and discover another. Tonight: Clear out of work. Do something totally different.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

***** You might be more serious about an emotional matter than another realizes. Also, your imagination could be creating a problem where there might not be one. Lighten up, but definitely schedule an important talk. Tonight: Time for a one-on-one talk.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)

*** Deal with a domestic matter head-on. You might want to forget it or, being the typical Fish, turn the other direction. Trust your astrologer. You cannot keep avoiding this issue. How you bring it to the table can make all the difference in another's responses. Tonight: A quiet evening.

Study: Patients want their doctors to be well-dressed

CHICAGO (AP) — Despite the casual appearance of their TV counterparts, patients want their doctors to dress formally and not show up in blue jeans and sandals, a new study suggests.

Name badges, white coats and dress shoes are preferable for both male and female doctors, the patients in the study said.

"A carefully dressed provider might convey the image that he or she is meticulous and careful," said the researchers, Drs. Matthew Kanzler and David Gorsulowsky, two northern California dermatologists.

The findings, based on 275 patients surveyed in dermatology offices in San Jose and Fremont, Calif., appear in April's Archives of Dermatology.

The informal image of doctors on television shows such as "ER" is "far different from that of past television physicians such as Marcus Welby, MD, and Dr. Kildare," but apparently hasn't greatly influenced patients' preferences for their own doctors' appearances, the researchers said.

In an Archives editorial, Dr. W. Mitchell Sams Jr. of Charlottesville, Va., said that while society is entering an "age of casualness," the findings echo those of similar surveys conducted two decades ago.

Professional appearance helps instill a sense of trust, and patients expect doctors to convey professionalism, Sams said.

More than one in three patients surveyed said sandals, clogs and blue jeans were significantly undesirable in doctors of both genders. Similar numbers said male doctors should wear dress pants and avoid open shirts, earrings and long hair or ponytails.

At least one in four said they preferred traditional hairstyles for male and female doctors, and skirts or dresses or dress pants for women. Similar numbers frowned on surgical scrubs and cologne for male doctors.

The patients surveyed were men and women ages 24 to over 60. The study found that preferences were similar among age groups and sexes.

Lindbergh's grandson begins re-creation of historic flight

CHESTERFIELD, Mo. (AP) — Pushed by strong tail winds, the grandson of aviation icon Charles Lindbergh touched down Sunday in this St. Louis suburb in the first leg of a journey to duplicate his grandfather's historic 1927 solo crossing of the Atlantic.

About two hours ahead of schedule, Erik Lindbergh, 36, arrived Sunday evening in the New Spirit of St. Louis, a state-of-the-art Lancair Columbia 300 equipped with modern communications technology and safety gear.

The flight re-creation is part of the 75th anniversary celebration of Charles Lindbergh's cross-Atlantic flight, which began in San Diego, where the original Spirit of St. Louis was built.

Wearing a blue flight suit, the young Lindbergh left San Diego's Lindbergh Field Sunday morning without speaking to reporters. Arriving at the Spirit of St. Louis Airport, he stepped from his tiny plane and gave a couple of thumbs-up signs.

Lindbergh called the flight uneventful, besides three hours of turbulence he weathered while trying to eat a sandwich.

"I'm ready to rest for a couple of days," Lindbergh said. He was asked what he thought his famous grandfather might say about his plans.

“He (Lindbergh) might say, ‘Why are you doing this crazy thing?’”

—Erik Lindbergh

"He might say, 'Why are you doing this crazy thing?' I have no idea," Lindbergh said. "I'm very excited."

Lindbergh's arrival was greeted by about 20 spectators, some with binoculars and cameras. The observers applauded and wished him well.

He plans to fly on April 20 to Farmingdale, N.Y., where he will begin the 17- to 21-hour flight to Paris on May 1. The cross-Atlantic trip took Charles Lindbergh 33 1/2 hours.

The quest will be monitored by a mission control center at the St. Louis Science Center.

The new aircraft, made of a glass and carbon composite, was built in Bend, Ore., for $289,000. Its average cruise speed is 184 mph, compared with the 108 mph of the original Spirit of St. Louis, which was built for $10,580.

The Missouri stop was significant because two St. Louis movers and shakers of decades past financed the 1927 flight. En route to New York in his new silver monoplane, Charles Lindbergh stopped in St. Louis to show his backers what their money had built.

In San Diego, dozens of reporters and supporters gathered to see off the young Lindbergh, a commercial pilot and artist who lives in the Seattle area.

The adventure is intended to raise awareness of rheumatoid arthritis, which disabled Erik Lindbergh for 15 years before drug treatment helped restore his mobility.

Organizers also hope the journey will promote the X Prize Foundation, a St. Louis-based nonprofit group that is offering $10 million to the first private group that can build and launch a manned spacecraft into space, then repeat the feat within two weeks.

The competition is modeled after the Orteig Prize, the $25,000 bounty won by Charles Lindbergh for making the New York-to-Paris trip.

Mo. traffic accident takes five, two of those children

DEERFIELD, Mo. (AP) — Five people were killed in a traffic accident in southwest Missouri on Sunday, police said.

Authorities said three adults and two children were killed in the accident on U.S. 54, about one mile west of Deerfield.

Police were investigating the cause and did not have details of the accident.

Jellyfish sting kills American tourist

TOWNSVILLE, Australia (AP) — An American tourist stung by a jellyfish while snorkeling off Australia's northeast coast has died, his partner said today.

Robert King, 44, from Columbus, Ohio, was stung late last month while snorkeling on the Great Barrier Reef.

King died Friday afternoon in the Townsville Hospital, his partner Michele Carlson said today.

Tests revealed the jellyfish to be a previously unknown species likely related to the deadly box jellyfish that infests Australia's northern coastal waters each Southern Hemisphere summer.

King is believed to have developed irukandji syndrome from the sting, causing a rapid rise in blood pressure and a cerebral hemorrhage.

"I had warned Bob of the deadly creatures in Australia," Carlson said in a statement. "We had joked in an e-mail recently about the poisonous snakes and ... jellyfish."

King's death came less than three months after British tourist Richard Jordan became the first person on record in Australia to die from irukandji syndrome after he was stung.

Navy drone missile washes up on Puerto Rican beach

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — An inert 13-foot U.S. Navy missile washed up on a northern beach of Puerto Rico on Sunday, not far from where children swam and played.

Most likely the drone was used in military maneuvers in the area "and got lost in the ocean," Navy spokeswoman Lt. Cmdr Katherine Goode said. "It happens sometimes."

A local man found the inert cruise missile, painted orange and gray and marked "target," in shallow water at Jarealito beach, near the town of Arecibo, on Sunday morning, police spokesman Rodrigo Perez said.

The man alerted police, and two other men dragged the missile onto the sand, police said. Children played and people swam near the drone until the Navy arrived at about 2 p.m. and cleared a 50-foot perimeter around it.

"I'm not against the Navy, but they should take better precautions," said resident Ricardo Lopez, who was at the beach with his 7-year-old daughter, Paultette.

Goode said the drone was unlikely to be from exercises that began two weeks ago around the Navy's contested bombing range on the outlying island of Vieques, off Puerto Rico's east coast.

Twenty-three protesters have been arrested for trespassing on Navy land during the current round of war games, in ongoing efforts to force the Navy to abandon its range on the island inhabited by 9,100 people.

There were no exercises Sunday, the Navy said.

DR. GOTT

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My husband, 69, is very forgetful and testy. He is also quite confused. An MRI scan showed "cortical atrophy." What is this? Could it be the cause of his problems? Is it treatable?

PETER GOTT, M.D.

DEAR READER: As we age, our brains shrink. The current theory is that this inescapable situation is related to death of neurons (brain cells), probably caused by tiny blood clots that deprive the nerve tissue of oxygen and nutrients. Doctors believe that such clots form in cycles over a period of decades. Each event is so tiny that we fail to notice anything is amiss; however, the cumulative effect eventually leads to a significant loss of cognitive function, memory and judgment. No one knows why this process is accelerated in certain people. For instance, many adults in their 80s (and beyond) continue to function at relatively high levels of cognition; they may forget names and have to make lists, but their reasoning, judgment and personality characteristics are not dramatically affected. On the other hand, some men and women in their 60s and 70s suffer definite and progressive difficulty with thinking; they often exhibit early disability that quickly progresses to senility and dementia. On a positive note, many authorities are convinced that these neurological abnormalities can be arrested — or at least minimized — if older people continue to stimulate their brains with intellectual projects, such as learning, reading, problem-solving and working. The theory is that new neurons may form and begin to function (to compensate for the shrunken tissue) as a consequence of intellectual challenge.

Because your husband had an MRI, I assume that he has seen a doctor who ordered the scan. Therefore, I believe this physician is the logical resource to answer your specific questions about treatment. He may choose to refer your spouse to a neurologist — my preferred option. Or he may suggest that your husband take an aspirin a day (to reduce the formation of tiny clots) or have further testing (such as a carotid ultrasound to examine the arteries in the neck for sources of clots); he may prescribe Aricept (a medication that improves memory in some patients) or involve your husband in a program of intellectual stimulation designed for patients with cortical atrophy and other causes of dementia, such as Alzheimer's disease.

I suspect that the major thrust of therapy will be to retard the speed of intellectual deterioration; that is, your husband may not improve but even arresting the process at this point would be a worthy goal. Remember that the physician can also prescribe medicine to combat the rage, frustration and belligerency that commonly accompany the process of brain-cell malfunction. Such therapy may permit your husband to remain at home for several years, rather than having to be cared for in a nursing facility.

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: I have been engaged for 18 months, and we still have not set a wedding date. Every time I talk to my fiancé about it, he suggests we elope to Australia or something. At first, it was because of his job. When I finally pinned him down about what was bothering him, he confessed that he absolutely does not want a wedding reception. He wants to marry me, but he wants it to be just the two of us. No guests.

Abby, the irony of it is that I am a professional wedding planner. My dream is to have the wedding I have always pictured. I want about 100 friends around me at this important time. However, my fiancé cannot stand to be the focus of attention, and he says he would be miserable if I make him go through with it.

I tried to draw an analogy by asking him how he would feel if I told him he could not be a policeman anymore because I would be miserable. He says it's not the same because that is his job. Well, I am a professional wedding planner and coordinator. This would be my ultimate dream job. Please don't tell me to scale down the wedding — it is not possible to invite one cousin and explain you cannot invite the other, etc. I'm at a loss about what to do.

FRUSTRATED IN TEXAS

DEAR FRUSTRATED: I have good news and bad news. The good news is I'm not going to tell you to scale down the wedding. The bad news is I think you should rethink marrying your fiancé at all. A man would have to have his head encased in concrete not to know that a woman's wedding day is one of the most important events of her life. As a professional event coordinator, your life revolves around social events.

Please think beyond the wedding to birthdays, anniversaries, events around babies — all the occasions you will want to mark with a celebration. He won't want to participate, and if he does, he won't enjoy it. You two can try counseling and perhaps compromise. But will you be happy with someone who is so introverted and self-centered? Only you can answer that one.

***

DEAR ABBY: My husband rejects my romantic overtures, my attempts at conversation or a social life with him, and any efforts to discuss our few disagreements. (We almost never argue because he often refuses to talk or even reply to my greetings.) He also refuses counseling of any kind and rejects literature on relationships or depression.

Abby, please tell your readers to run, don't walk, away from a man who's been divorced more than once. There's a reason why he's single. I trusted his version of how his past marriages fell apart. I trusted that his courting behavior was the real him. Wrong. It was just dating behavior. The happy part of our marriage lasted only a few months. His ex-wives must be laughing at me because I've discovered what they knew years ago. I am intelligent, capable and educated — and still I made a profoundly stupid mistake when it came to love.

DISILLUSIONED IN MILWAUKEE

DEAR DISILLUSIONED: Please don't be so hard on yourself. Intelligence, education and competence do not guarantee that a person of either sex will automatically choose the right spouse. And why do you think your husband's former wives are laughing at you? If anyone can empathize with your unhappiness, they can.

Since your husband refuses counseling and is unwilling to work on your marriage, go without him — if only to understand why you have tolerated this hostile living arrangement for as long as you have. After that, you'll know what to do.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

Famous Hand

West dealer. North-South vulnerable.

NORTH: ♠ 9 7 2, ♥ K Q 2, ♦ 10 9 7 6 5, ♣ 9 6. WEST: ♠ —, ♥ 8 7 6 4, ♦ J 8 3 2, ♣ J 10 8 5 4. EAST: ♠ J 8 3, ♥ J 10 9 5 3, ♦ A K Q 4, ♣ 3. SOUTH: ♠ A K Q 10 6 5 4, ♥ A, ♦ —, ♣ A K Q 7 2.

The bidding: West Pass, North Pass, East 1♥, South 2♥. Opening lead — two of diamonds.

This extraordinary hand was played many years ago by Lee Hazen, a top-flight player who for many years was the chief attorney for the American Contract Bridge League.

Hazen was East, and South reached six spades on the bidding shown. West led a diamond, and here is Hazen's account of what happened after that, as related by him in Bridge World magazine: "I was of course disappointed when declarer ruffed the opening lead. South then went into a long trance and finally emerged from it by cashing the ace of hearts and leading the ten of spades next.

"My partner discarded a heart, and I reacted like the typical young lawyer I was. The first thing you learn in law school is to be suspicious. You spend several hours a day being suspicious of people, of things and of ideas. If you're really good at it, you eventually develop the ability to be just abstractly suspicious.

"I found it easy to be suspicious at this particular moment. What was declarer trying to do to me? I didn't bother to work it out. I just knew that if declarer wanted me to take the ten of spades, it couldn't be good for me to oblige him. So I played the three and stared at declarer with a cold legal eye.

"South went into a new trance and then led the A-K of clubs. By now I was carried away by the spirit of the thing. I had refused one trump trick, and nobody was going to bully me into taking another.

"So I discarded a heart instead of ruffing. South struggled quietly for a while but eventually went down one."

Of course, Hazen had found the only defense to beat the slam.

TODAY IN HISTORY

By The Associated Press Today is Monday, April 15, the 105th day of 2002. There are 260 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History: In the early hours of April 15, 1912, the British luxury liner Titanic sank in the North Atlantic off Newfoundland, less than three hours after striking an iceberg. About 1,500 people died.

On this date: In 1850, the city of San Francisco was incorporated.

In 1861, three days after the Confederate attack on Fort Sumter, President Lincoln declared a state of insurrection and called out Union troops.

In 1865, President Lincoln died, several hours after he was shot at Ford's Theater in Washington by John Wilkes Booth. Andrew Johnson became the nation's 17th president.

In 1892, General Electric Co., formed by the merger of the Edison Electric Light Co. and other firms, was incorporated in New York State.

In 1947, Jackie Robinson, baseball's first black major league player, made his official debut with the Brooklyn Dodgers on opening day. (The Dodgers defeated the Boston Braves, 5-3.)

In 1959, Cuban leader Fidel Castro arrived in Washington to begin a goodwill tour of the United States.

In 1989, 95 people died in a crush of soccer fans at Hillsborough Stadium in Sheffield, England.

Applications up at law school after shooting

GRUNDY, Va. (AP) — Applications to the Appalachian School of Law have increased dramatically three months after the dean, a professor and a student were killed in a shooting spree at the school.

"When (the shooting) first happened, one of my biggest fears was that it would have a negative connotation that could essentially ruin a young school," said Paul Dull, a Roanoke lawyer who graduated from the school and heads its alumni association.

But as of April 6, the school had received 587 applications for the coming academic year. At the same time one year ago, 387 people had applied.

"We've had applications come from Alaska, from Maine, from all four corners of the continental United States," said Lucius Ellsworth, president of the school.

Officials credit in part the national publicity that resulted from the Jan. 16 shooting and also highlighted the school's mission to train young lawyers in the Appalachian region. The school also won provisional accreditation last year from the American Bar Association.

Some applicants who visited the school or who spoke to admissions counselors over the phone said they first heard of the school through media coverage of the shooting, Ellsworth said.

Ellsworth said Sunday he didn't know exactly how many applicants said they learned of the school from media coverage of the shooting, but estimated it was "several dozens."

"There's no question. There's no doubt about that," he said. Some applicants were surprised to learn there was a law school in such a place as Grundy, a tiny town in the coalfields of southwest Virginia. They were equally surprised to learn that the little law school had attracted some big names.

Anthony Sutin, a Harvard Law School graduate, left a high-ranking job with the U.S. Justice Department in Washington, D.C., to teach law at the school. He later became dean and was instrumental in helping the school win accreditation rapidly.

"I think the word got out that we have some tremendous faculty members," Dull said. "Unfortunately, two less tremendous faculty members now."

Sutin was killed Jan. 16 along with Thomas Blackwell, a respected professor. Angela Dales, a former recruiter at the school who was halfway through her first year as a student, also was shot to death.

Former student Peter Odighizuwa has been charged with capital murder. Police said Odighizuwa was angry after learning he had flunked out of school. He is being held without bond, awaiting a June 20 preliminary hearing.

Since the shooting, however, community support for the law school has grown even stronger, Ellsworth said. The school has always had close ties to Grundy and Buchanan County, partly because every student and faculty member is required to perform at least 25 hours of community service each semester.

The requirement is part of the school's mission to improve conditions in the economically depressed region of central Appalachia. Although it draws many of its students from the mountains of Virginia, West Virginia, Tennessee, Kentucky and North Carolina, the school is now receiving applications from a much broader area.

Ellsworth said the school expects to have an incoming class of 125 in the fall. That will boost total enrollment to about 300.

Audiences veer into Affleck, Jackson's 'Changing Lanes'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ben Affleck and Samuel L. Jackson's "Changing Lanes" drew heavy traffic as the drama about two men bent on revenge after a fender-bender debuted in the No. 1 spot with $17.6 million.

"Panic Room," the top film for the last two weekends, slipped to second place with $11.3 million, while Cameron Diaz's romantic comedy "The Sweetest Thing" opened at No. 3 with $10 million, according to studio estimates Sunday.

The horror flick "Frailty," starring Matthew McConaughey and Bill Paxton, premiered with $4.2 million, tying for eighth place with "National Lampoon's Van Wilder."

In narrower release, the satiric comedy "Human Nature" opened weakly with $300,000, averaging a meager $1,339 in 224 theaters. The film stars Patricia Arquette and Tim Robbins and was written by Charlie Kaufman ("Being John Malkovich").

"Changing Lanes" averaged $6,716 in 2,613 theaters, compared with $3,745 in 2,670 cinemas for "The Sweetest Thing" and $2,806 in 1,497 locations for "Frailty."

The overall box office continued a string of up weekends. The top 12 films grossed $84.1 million, an 11.5 percent increase from the same weekend a year ago.

So far this year, Hollywood has posted domestic revenues of about $2.25 billion, 18 percent ahead of last year's pace, when the industry set a year-long record of $8.4 billion, said Paul Dergarabedian, president of box-office tracker Exhibitor Relations.

Healthy spring business could boost Hollywood's busy summer season, which gets an early start next weekend with the debut of "The Scorpion King," a spinoff of "The Mummy" franchise starring pro wrestler The Rock.

"The fact that people are in theaters in pretty big numbers in March and April bodes well for summer's chances," Dergarabedian said. "The summer onslaught's right around the corner, and lots of movie-goers are being exposed to all the trailers for the big summer films."

"Changing Lanes" benefitted from generally positive reviews, Affleck's allure to women and Jackson's appeal to black audiences, said Wayne Lewellen, head of distribution for Paramount, which released the film. The audience was split 50-50 between men and women, and about 70 percent was older than 25, he said.

That demographic breakdown should help "Changing Lanes" hold up against "The Scorpion King," which is expected to appeal largely to teen-age boys and young males, Lewellen said.

"That movie should have a younger audience than ours," Lewellen said.

"The Sweetest Thing" drew mainly 17- to 25-year-olds and a largely female audience, said Jeff Blake, president of worldwide marketing and distribution for Sony, which released the movie.

With the eye-candy appeal of Diaz and co-stars Christina Applegate and Selma Blair, "young males liked it just as much for obvious reasons," Blake said. "As one of the few comedies out there right now, it gives us a good chance to hold well."

The reissue of "E.T. the Extra-Terrestrial" took in $1.5 million, pushing its four-week gross to $32.9 million. The movie's 20-year total climbed to $432.7 million, edging past "Star Wars: Episode I — The Phantom Menace" for No. 3 on the all-time domestic box-office chart.

Estimated ticket sales for Friday through Sunday at North American theaters, according to Exhibitor Relations Co. Inc. Final figures will be released later today.

1. "Changing Lanes," $17.6 million.
2. "Panic Room," $11.3 million.
3. "The Sweetest Thing," $10 million.
4. "Ice Age," $8.7 million.
5. "The Rookie," $8.1 million.
6. "High Crimes," $8 million.
7. "Clockstoppers," $4.8 million.
- 8 (tie). "Frailty," $4.2 million.
- 8 (tie). "National Lampoon's Van Wilder," $4.2 million.
10. "Blade II," $4.1 million.
