Officials: Medical crisis is looming

By TOM BERRY
Staff Writer
Church, relief agency, government and medical officials in Murray-Calloway County are organizing a concerted effort to deal with a looming medical care crisis locally created by state budget cuts to Kentucky Homeplace and other programs. During a meeting of the Community Concerns group Friday morning at First United Methodist Church, Bryant Hileman, a community organizer for the Kentucky Patient Assistance Program (KPAP), said the cuts have created a crisis for low-income Kentuckians that depend on public and private assistance in obtaining prescription medications and other medical care. "I don't use the term 'crisis' loosely," Hileman told the

Summit students to meet at MSU

Special to the Ledger
Kentucky Child Now, a statewide non-profit organization, has partnered with state and local community and educational leaders to address the needs of more than 300 teenagers from the western region of Kentucky by presenting the 2009 Regional Great Kids Summit. The Murray Great Kids Summit, one of six that will be held on college campuses across Kentucky, will be held on Friday, Feb. 20, at Murray State University from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. The regional conference is a lively one-day event that will focus on inspiring youth to be "Ready for School, Ready for Work, Ready for Life." Youth participating in the Great Kids Summit will learn how they can be successful through college and technical school readiness, marketable and social skills training to help secure employment. Youth will also be asked for their input by engaging in a problem-solving activity that will help address the increasing high school drop-out rate and the lack of interest in the skilled labor force. "It is important that we invest in our youth and that we are there to support them as they work to achieve their goals in life," said Stacy Thomas, Business/Education & Leadership director for the Paducah Area Chamber of Commerce. "This conference will give our local youth the knowledge and tools necessary to succeed in life and business, as well as help them to build confidence and belief in their own abilities." ■ See Page 2A

Local soldier wants to help Iraqi children

By TOM BERRY
Staff Writer
A Murray native stationed with U.S. Army forces in Iraq is asking folks back home for help in aiding Iraqi children in the classroom. Matthew Harris, a specialist with the 23rd Ordnance Company at Joint Base Balad, Iraq, and platoon members are conducting a team-building project that will provide community services to the city's children as part of Operation Creative Learning. "Our goal is to provide school and art supplies to as many children of Balad as possible," said Harris, a 2005 Calloway County High School graduate. "We want to collect supplies through the month of March and deliver to the local Balad community in April." The project involves collection of color pens, markers, pencils and small water-paint sets as well as art paper, construction paper and writing paper. Other supplies sought include glitter, beads, yarn, child-proof scissors, cotton balls, and glue sticks. "We do not recommend that any clay, putty, rubber cement, liquid glue or paint that is non-water-based be sent," he said. Harris said he and platoon members will provide thank you cards and feed back to all contributors. ■ See Page 2A

Special features eyed for annual Trivia Night

Teams to gather at Curris Center for night of fun

Murray Main Street's fourth Annual Trivia Night will once again have special fun-filled games between the rounds of competition. "In addition to the popular '50-50' give-away, half of the proceeds to the winner; half to the program, we are bringing back 'Dead or Alive,' which was an instant hit last year," commented Deana Wright, program manager. "At the suggestion of our emcee, John McFerron, we are adding a 'Will It Float?' competition this year," she continued. "Everyone who wants to play is initially standing. Then, as objects are about to be dropped into an aquarium, each person has to indicate whether or not the object will float. If it does, they remain standing. If it doesn't, they sit down. The last person standing wins! It's really quick and really fun," she concluded. Trivia Night is Saturday, Feb. 7, in Murray State University's Curris Center Ballroom. Tables seating up to eight-member teams are $120. Advance reservations are necessary and may be made by calling (270) 759-9474.

Darrel McFerron, Trivia Night chair, is viewed at the aquarium holding a seashell. He was quick to point out "the seashell will not be one of the items to be used in the guessing game, just in case someone is trying to get a head start!"

group of about 20. "But we have got people in this county right now that are not going to be with us very much longer if we do not do something."

Hileman is part of a statewide volunteer effort promoting the recently-formed Kentucky Patients Assistance Program that helps low-income Kentuckians obtain medications free or at a reduced cost. About 3,000 residents living in the Purchase area now benefit from the program. A number Hileman said is expected to grow dramatically as the state and national economy in recession leads job losses and other financial problems for those that are least able to weather the storm.

Much of the increase in need results from the loss of state funding to the Kentucky Homeplace program during the next six months, possibly indefinitely.

Citing the minimal cost of providing vital medications to those that need them to the cost of increased medical crises and visits to hospital emergency rooms, the all-volunteer program operates under the principal that an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure.

Hileman cited the need for some elderly and low-income persons to receive medicines regularly to avert a health care crisis.

"Because of a $200 (per month) medicine shortfall, we are going to see $100,000 heart attacks as patients that are not getting their medications show up in hospital emergency rooms," he said.

Several members of the Community Concerns group were appointed to spearhead a committee to gather financial and volunteer support from public and private agencies. The effort is aimed at hiring someone to spearhead a local KPAP office that would administer the program in Murray-Calloway County. The former director of the now defunct Kentucky Homeplace program, previously located in an office inside the Calloway County Health Center was mentioned as a possibility.

However if enough funding cannot be found to hire a full or part-time director, volunteers will be sought to administer the effort with help from KPAP.

"If everyone helped a little we could make a tremendous impact here," said Donna Herndon, who was selected to chair the committee.

Hileman said the major emphasis of the program involves providing assistance to patients needing free or reduced cost medications through programs already existing and sponsored by the nation's pharmaceutical companies. Another goal is to find ways to provide medical services to underserved or uninsured residents through Murray-Calloway County Hospital, the health department, Angel's Clinic and other venues.

Hileman said another benefit to the program would include providing relief to local doctors that are sought to write medical prescriptions.

"Physicians are behind this," Hileman said. "They are really going the extra mile to support this."

According to recent data, KPAP offices in Paducah operate with about 50 volunteers that have helped patients obtain access to more than $2 million in prescription drug assistance in 11 counties. Statewide, about $10 million in prescription medications have been obtained either free or at a reduced cost, primarily benefitting senior citizens and the disabled but anyone that qualifies may apply.

However Hileman said that current outreach efforts do not cover the scope of the problem. He said a united effort by many agencies locally and statewide will be required to meet the growing need.

"This is an effort to united health care efforts statewide to tackle the problem," he said.

Summit ... From Front

"In poor economic times we realize it is critical that we partner with communities across Kentucky to ensure that our youth benefit from effective training," said Mary Kate Poling, executive director of Kentucky Child Now. "By holding a Great Kids Summit in Murray, we are able to make leadership training more affordable and accessible to youth. The greatest benefit to regional Great Kids Summits is the opportunity for youth to learn from local business leaders who have built success in their own life impacting their communities."

The Murray Great Kids Summit planning committee consists of more than 20 community leaders from the local area including Jennifer Van Waes, director of GEAR UP & SOAR and Stacy Thomas representing the Paducah Chamber of Commerce. Tim Todd, dean of Murray State University's College of Business and Public Affairs will share a message of encouragement and inspiration to the youth as the keynote speaker. Partners included GEAR UP and SOAR, KnowHow2GOKy, the Kentucky Department of Education's Family Resource and Youth Service Centers, Kentucky Higher Education, USEC, Inc. and Murray State University.

Kentucky Child Now, a visionary leader working proactively on statewide and grassroots levels, is committed to ensuring that each and every one of our youth experience the fundamental resources they need to succeed in life: 1) caring adults, 2) safe places, 3) a healthy start, 4) marketable skills, and 5) opportunities to serve...The Five Promises.

"(That's) so they can be sure that their generous donations are well received," he said.

Harris said American efforts to aid youth in Iraq will pay dividends.

"Today's younger generation will be the leaders of tomorrow," he said. "It is our belief that providing a good education is important to all children regardless of country, nationality or religion. We also believe that a child can excel in the form of art."

Harris said allowing children to express creativity at an early age can inspire continuing education and expand skills in "a creative, artistic manner."

"A child's potential may never be known unless given the opportunity to demonstrate it," he said.

Individuals, businesses, civic organizations or any group wanting to donate are asked to ship suggested supplies to: SPC Matthew Harris, Operation Creative Learning, 23rd Ordinance Co., Bldg. 6856, Joint Base Balad, Iraq, APO AE 09391.

RACER FOOTBALL

Family was 'major factor' for Nagy

MURRAY STATE DEFENSIVE COORDINATOR DEPARTS FOR HOFSTRA

By MICHAEL DANN
Sports Editor

Rich Nagy is leaving the Murray State football program to head up the same position at Hofstra University.

Nagy cited multiple reasons for the move, but did note that a move to be closer to family was a major factor in his decision.

"There are a ton of reasons why, anytime you make a move," Nagy said. "Being close to home was one that did factor into it. There was a familiarity factor with both the head coach and the athletic director at Hofstra and just a familiarity with Hofstra and the league they play in."

Nagy has spent the last three seasons as the defensive coordinator and linebackers coach for Murray State, joining Matt Griffin when he took over for Joe Panunzio in 2006. Prior to his stint at Murray State, Nagy held the same post at Maine from 2001 to 2005 and was the defensive coordinator, defensive backs coach and recruiting coordinator at Fordham from 1998-2000.

Hofstra is the largest private college on Long Island, New York. The Pride football team finished 4-8 this past fall.

This season was the culmination of Nagy's three years of hard work as the defense made its mark on the league. The cornerstone of that defense, however, was Murray High School product Nathan Williams, who not only was a Buchanan Award finalist for the best defensive player at the FCS level, but was named to the Walter Camp All-America Team and was the Ohio Valley Conference Defensive Player of the Year.

The Racer defense as a whole ranked 22nd in the nation in tackles-for-loss at 7.0 a game and was second in the OVC in total defense. Nagy said his proudest moment on the sidelines was in the season finale when the Racer defense held Tennessee State on multiple goal-line stands to hang on for a 24-17 victory.

Nagy also wishes there would have been more games like that.

"We would have liked to have won some more games, but the good part is I think we've recruited some good players here and I had great players to coach and to work with," he said.

Nagy, his wife Erika and his two daughters, Jordan and Erin leave a community that they were proud to call home for the past three and half years.

"The people in Murray were nothing but open to my family and I," he said. "We've met some great people and some that are good friends now. It's hard to leave friends."

"Sometimes our business is kind of shaped that way, but at the same point, I wouldn't trade my experience here for anything. It's been nothing but a great experience."

Union County win redemptive for Calloway

LAKERS UPSET DEFENDING STATE CHAMPS ON THURSDAY

By TOMMY DILLARD
Sports Writer

The Calloway County wrestling program got the biggest win of its short, four-year lifespan on Thursday night when the Lakers defeated defending state champion Union County at Jeffrey Gymnasium.

The Braves brought home KHSAA state titles in both 2007 and 2008 and are one of the most traditional-rich programs in the state. But it was the Lakers who owned the mats on Thursday, getting a 45-30 win over Union as well as a 45-30 victory over Caldwell County.

Union County was without six of its starting wrestlers, but four of those weight classes were negated by either Laker losses or forfeits. Still, the Braves can chalk up two defeats to the absence of No. 1 ranked wrestlers in the 130 and 135-pound weight classes.

But that doesn't diminish the Lakers' accomplishment, said coach Dickie Walls.

"That was the team he put on the mat, and what he brought were some really good kids," said Walls, who founded the program six years ago and began competing as a KHSAA member in 2005.

"When you have six kids that are ranked No. 1 in the state in their classes, the guys who wrestle behind them are really good wrestlers. Our guys were just fired up and ready to wrestle."

The tide of the evening turned during the 145-pound match between Calloway sophomore Aaron

FIRST REGION ALL 'A' CLASSIC MURRAY 73, ST. MARY 63

Back in the saddle

DARNALL RETURNS; TIGERS PUNCH TICKET TO TITLE GAME

By TOMMY DILLARD
Sports Writer

MAYFIELD, Ky. — In his own assessment, Blake Darnall figured he started Murray's Friday night First Region All 'A' semifinal at 80 percent strength.

But a less-than-perfect Darnall combined with a balanced Murray scoring attack was more than good enough to propel the Tigers into tonight's championship game for the second consecutive season with a 73-63 win over St. Mary.

Top-seeded Murray played with the services of its starting point guard for the first time since Darnall went down with a wrist injury on Dec. 29 during the Tigers' post-Christmas tournament in Russellville.

The senior spark plug tossed in 10 points and distributed the ball evenly among his teammates as the Tigers put five players in double figures and kept a comfortable distance between themselves and the Vikings for the majority of the game.

"I wasn't really nervous," said Darnall, who hadn't played in four weeks. "I was actually ready to get out there. I've been trying to practice all week and the trainer won't let me."

The Tigers will face Carlisle County in tonight's title game at 8 p.m. at Graves County after the Comets defeated Mayfield, 56-41, in Friday's other semifinal.

Murray used a second quarter in which they outscored the Vikings 20-8 to take control of the game and never looked back. St. Mary cut the lead to five on two separate occasions in the third quarter, but never got any closer.

It took the black and gold a while to get the engine cranked in the early-going, however. The Tigers struggled to defend St. Mary in the post in the first quarter, but were able to effectively shut down the Vikings' inside game after switching to a zone defense in the second.

"What we did against them worked, but I don't like to have to rely on that to play defense," said Murray coach Ron Greene. "We should be able to do a little better than that, but we've regressed on our man-to-man defense. It's not nearly as solid as it was a month-and-a-half ago."

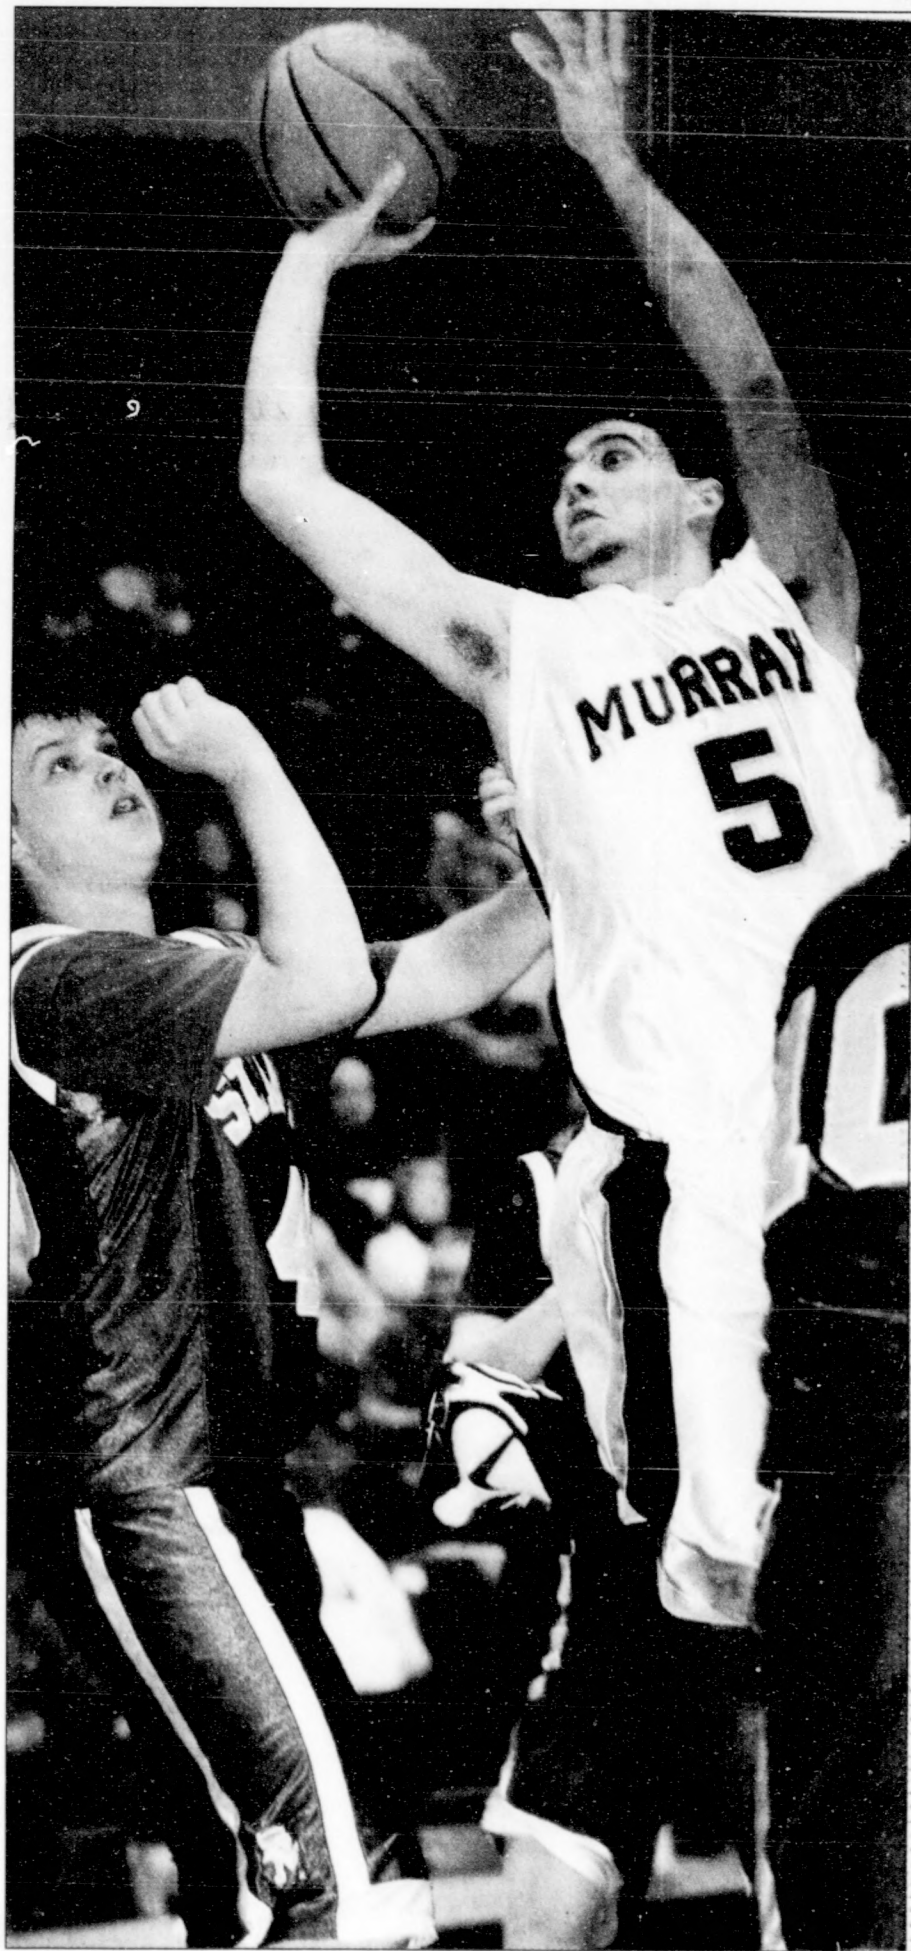

After playing the role of hero in the Tigers' quarterfinal overtime victory over Fulton County on Monday, Cole Hurt was Murray's go-to-scorer once again, notching 20 points on 9-for-12 shooting.

Murray also got 17 points from senior forward Chastin Sheppard, 14 from senior Aaron Jones and 12 from guard Jarvae Langford, who injured his arm when he collided loudly with the bleachers during a fourth-quarter drive out of bounds.

Greene said he didn't expect Langford to miss any time due to the injury.

Despite the balanced scoring, most eyes were on Darnall, who averaged 10.6 points per game and shot 55 percent from the field during seven games

KENTUCKY BASKETBALL

Stephenson trying to stop playing Mild-cat

WILDCATS FACE ALABAMA TODAY

By WILL GRAVES
AP Sports Writer

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Perry Stephenson saw the ball bound high off the rim, extended both of his arms and snagged it at the top of his jump.

When he landed the Kentucky forward kept his arms high and swung his decidedly pointy elbows side to side, during an Auburn player to take a swipe.

And then, just for a second, it looked like the player chastised by coach Billy Gillispie for being almost too nice, snarled.

Asked where all that aggression came from during his 13-point, 12-rebound performance in Kentucky's 83-74 victory over the Tigers, Stephenson just kind of shrugs.

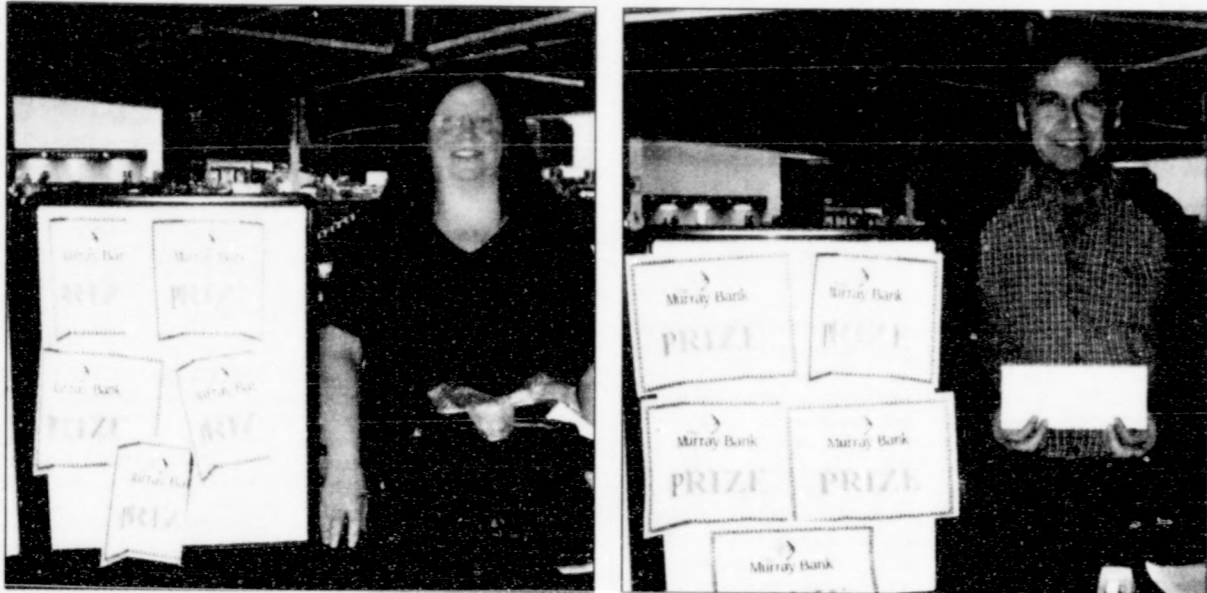

"I'm not a very assertive person, but it happens sometimes," he said.

The Wildcats (15-4, 4-0 Southeastern Conference) wouldn't mind it happening a little more often, starting on Saturday against Alabama (12-6, 2-2).

While Kentucky has quickly risen to the top of the SEC behind the spectacular play of Jodie Meeks and Patrick Patterson, the Wildcats know they need some-

Owner of a failed business looks for words of sympathy

DEAR ABBY: Because of the downturn in the economy, I had to close my business. Let me tell you this -- if anyone wants to know who their real friends are, here's how: Own your own business.

Dear Abby

realize that it's enough to say, 'I heard what happened and I'm sorry,' which would give you a chance to vent or change the subject if you didn't feel like talking.

I'm glad you wrote because your letter is timely. With businesses closing and people being laid off in record numbers, it is important that they not feel more isolated than they already do.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I were married five years ago. We had a lovely, informal wedding with close friends and loved ones.

I am ashamed to say that I am such a procrastinator that I never mailed any thank-you notes for our gifts. I was raised that it is proper to send them in a timely fashion, but after a certain amount of time passed, I felt too embarrassed to do it.

DEAR ABBY: My wife says it's impolite to point at a person or thing when drawing attention to it. We argue about this small matter all the time. Am I wrong in insisting it's OK? Thanks for your response.

DEAR CHARLES: It is considered bad manners to point at a person because to do so conveys the message that he or she -- is being talked about and possibly made fun of. Pointing at objects is a lazy way of communicating something you should be able to put into words, but it's nothing to argue about. On a scale of 10, it's a zero.

Since the Alzheimer's Association doesn't address virgin coconut oil as a recommended supplement to be taken with oil in place of FDA-approved drugs, I must defer. I recommend you speak with her specialist and be guided accordingly.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I would appreciate information on helping people like me who have lost their sense of smell and taste. My ear-nose-and-throat doctor said it was nerve damage but offered no cures.

DEAR READER: There are numerous reasons for losing a sense of smell and taste. Prolonged exposure to toxic chemicals, head injury, sinusitis and nasal polyps might be the cause. Antibiotics for infection and medications for high blood pressure can compromise the senses.

DEAR READER: There are numerous herbal remedies, supplements and vitamins promoted as memory enhancers. They include coenzyme Q-10, coral calcium, ginkgo biloba and omega-3 fatty acids. Issues that come in to play with supplements are that purity and effectiveness are unknown and may vary between manufacturers or even batches.
