GUILTY: Ramey convicted on all counts

By TOM BERRY
 Staff Writer

A Murray man accused of murder in the death of Elm Grove Road resident Jerry Eldridge Sr. was convicted on that charge and five others Friday afternoon by a Calloway County jury.

Brock Riley Ramey, 30, was found guilty of murder, first-degree wanton and a germicide, first-degree burglary, two counts of first-degree assault and two counts of tampering with physical evidence in connection to October 21, 2008 shooting that also injured Eldridge's son, Eddie, and Eddie's girlfriend, Melissa Price, by gunfire.

Following about two hours of deliberations behind closed doors, jurors - in an individual voice vote requested by Jason Priel, a public defender from

Regents vote for 5 percent raise in tuition

By HAWKINS TEAGUE
 Staff Writer

The Murray State Board of Regents voted 9-1 on Friday to raise undergraduate tuition for the 2010-2011 school year by 5 percent, the maximum amount the Kentucky Council on Postsecondary Education has allowed for next year.

Dunn said that although a state budget has not yet been passed, both the House and Senate budgets included a 1.5 percent cut in appropriations to public universities. He said a 5 percent increase would absorb the amount of money he expected to be cut. He said the 5 percent increase brings the maximum amount to approximately $3,567,537 before scholarships and waivers, which would amount to $2,938,643 in net revenue.

Nine board members voted yes on the increase and Student Regent Kara Mantooh voted no.

Dunn also presented three possibilities for graduate student tuition and fees. The board opted to support the first option, which would raise base tuition by 5 percent with a cap at 12 hours and also attach a $396 fee per credit hour for hours between 10 and 12. Dunn added that international students were more likely than most to "bulk up" on hours, since they are often in the country on a student visa for a limited time.

The board voted 9-1 in favor of the increase, with Mantooh voting no.

The board voted to raise dining rates for the 125,000 meal by 7.5 percent and the $5150 plan by 4.2 percent.

The financial aid and commuter rates will not increase and the board also approved a new unlimited meal plan. The board also voted 9-1 to increase standard residential housing rates by 6 percent, or $108, with Mantooh voting no.

The board also confirmed Dunn's appointment of Bonnie Higginson as the next provost and vice president of

Jobs raising funds for Kids Against Hunger

By KYSER LOUGH
 Staff Writer

A local woman is working hard to organize a satellite branch of a national non-profit food-aid organization after seeing it in action in Florida.

Kids Against Hunger strives to significantly reduce the number of hungry children in the nation and world through the packaging and distribution of a simple, but nutritious, casserole.

Sid and Loretta Jobs first experienced Kids Against Hunger in Naples, Fla. through the First United Methodist Church and Rotary Club and now are trying to bring it to Murray.

"In two hours on a Saturday morning in Naples with 100 volunteers we assembled 1,800 meals... we were told that those 1,800 meals for the local children would be gone by Friday," Loretta said.

To establish the branch, Jobs said she needed to raise $8,000. The initial cost goes toward the first round of ingredients and setup materials. Currently, she has $3,019.94 in donations.

Despite the recent drop in donations for local help organizations, Jobs said she is confident the program will

High lake levels impacting county resorts

By KYSER LOUGH

It's no comparison to the death and devastation in other areas, but the significant rise in lake levels due to recent rain is certainly having an impact on lakeside property owners in Calloway County.

At Paradise Resort, manager Tracy Markum said many of her guests have checked out early after lake levels rose close to 10 feet above where it should have been. She still has a fair share of devoted regulars that are sticking around.

"They might not be able to fish, but they're still having a good family vacation," Markum said.

The normally clear water in the Blood River area now swirls brown with the mud stirred up as Kentucky Dam continues to spill over. Markum said this translates to a very poor fishing environment for her clients.

The dock at Paradise Resort is precariously anchored while they wait for water levels to recede. As most walkways are submerged, a pontoon platform has been rigged to ferry people out to the dock. After boarding the platform, one must manually pull it across using ropes that have been tied to either end.

Bubble of methane triggered rig blast in Gulf of Mexico

By NOAKI SCHWARTZ and HARRY E. WEBER
 Associated Press Writers

ON THE GULF OF MEXICO (AP) — The deadly blowout of an oil rig in the Gulf of Mexico was triggered by a bubble of methane gas that escaped from the well and shot up the drill column, expanding quickly as it burst through several seals and barriers before exploding, according to interviews with rig workers conducted during BP's internal investigations.

While the cause of the explosion is still under investigation, the sequence of events described in the interviews provides the most detailed account of the April 20 blast that killed 11 workers and touched off the underwater gusher that has poured more than 3 million gallons of crude into the Gulf.

Portions of the interviews, two written and one taped, were described in detail to an Associated Press reporter by Robert Bea, a University of California Berkeley engineering professor who serves on a National Academy of Engineering panel on oil pipeline safety and worked for BP PLC as a risk assessment consultant during the 1990s. He received them from the Kentucky Department of Public Advocacy's Henderson office - in turn told Judge Dennis Foust that unanimous guilty verdicts on all six counts was the decision of the jury collectively and individually. Ramey appeared to show little emotion as the verdicts were read by Foust and confirmed by the jury. Foust told the court that the next move would be to enter the sentencing phase. However following a brief break, prosecution and defense attorneys met with Foust in chambers and a decision was made to delay the sentencing hearing to another day, according to Assistant Commonwealth's Attorney Cirris Hatfield.

take off. She said it complements what other food-related organizations are doing, like Need Line and the Backpack program. "We are going to help those organizations. I feel like it complements the programs, not takes away from them," she said. "Need Line fed 925 families in March of this year compared to 691 families fed in March 2009. The need is growing here in Murray and Calloway County. There are 211 children on the backpack program."

In following the organization's namesake, Jobs said she will be reaching out to local children to help in packaging the meals. She eventually hopes to have the capability to travel to schools and other places for assembly. "We want families and kids involved. It warmed our hearts to see the children excited in the assembling of the food. One little boy said 'if I were starving, they would do it for me,'" Jobs said.

Jobs said she'll start the program out of an old welding shop owned by Jason Stahler. Volunteers will come to the office to assemble the meals and Jobs said she hopes to have school, church and other children's groups come help.

The director of each satellite branch determines how the meals are distributed, and Jobs said she'd focus locally first. However, she said that other satellites have helped on a national and global level when faced with widespread disaster, such as Hurricane Katrina and the earthquake in Haiti.

The average meal costs $0.23 and is packaged in a three-ply plastic bag that contains six one-cup servings. The food itself is a four-ingredient casserole that contains soy, rice, vegetables and a vitamin powder. All that is needed to finish the meal is six cups of boiling water. Jobs said Kids Against Hunger brought in a team of experts to create the meal to taste good and meet stringent nutritional requirements.

MSU Regents express disapproval of campus newspaper's special section

By HAWKINS TEAGUE
Staff Writer

The Murray State University Board of Regents voted 6-2, with two abstentions, to express disapproval of a recent student publication.

Board member Bill Adams said he had gotten a call from a business owner who was a distribution point for the Murray State News and had set up weekly ads with the paper, but had considered breaking ties with the publication after it released a tabloid insert in March called a "Special SEXtion." He said it contained articles the man found offensive, including embarrassing sexual anecdotes from students and survey results on the back page in which 114 sampled students responded to intimate questions. He said he didn't think it fit with the new university brand, "Your World to Explore."

"This wasn't the direction I was hoping for," he said. Adams said he was not suggesting censorship, but that he thought the newspaper should be respectful of the fact that much of their funding comes from taxpayer dollars. He said he thought the publication was inappropriate, in poor taste and not fitting with the culture of the university or community.

Board member Vickie Travis said she was shocked and disappointed when she read the tabloid in her kitchen and made sure to push it to the bottom of her trash can when she was finished. She said she had heard many comments from university supporters who were upset about the section.

"We're working hard on enrollment and this doesn't serve us well," she said.

Travis added that she would like to see the numbers showing how much tax money went to the paper's budget. Board member Marilyn Buchanan said she agreed that a respectful line had been crossed and Sharon Green said she was concerned because the Murray State News was not just on campus, but distributed in the community. MSU President Dr. Randy Dunn said the board had the right to look at the newspaper's funding, but that he felt compelled to say the board could be entering "dangerous territory" if there was talk about taking action affecting the newspaper's budget.

Adams said he was not making that suggestion and made a motion to declare a resolution directing the president to "correct" the newspaper's funding. He said he thought that if the board proposed any cuts to the newspaper's budget, it would be viewed unfavorably by many and would be seen as retaliation. He said the staff had discussed doing the section for about a year before its publication and that an effort was made to ensure that it would not be in poor taste. He said the advertisements in the section paid for its publication and that advertisers were provided with a list of story topics.

for the 2009-2010 school year.

Adams, Buchanan, Green, Travis, Alan Stout and Stephen Williams voted yes, while Mantooth and staff regent Phil Schooley voted no. Faculty regent Jay Morgan abstained, as did Constantine "Deno" Curris, who said he couldn't weigh in because he had not seen the publication.

After the meeting, Murray State News faculty advisor Joe Hedges said he thought that if the board proposed any cuts to the newspaper's budget, it would be viewed unfavorably by many and would be seen as retaliation. He said the staff had discussed doing the section for about a year before its publication and that an effort was made to ensure that it would not be in poor taste. He said the advertisements in the section paid for its publication and that advertisers were provided with a list of story topics.

Kentucky News in Brief

Body of missing Ky. kayaker found

A south-central Kentucky coroner says a search team along the swollen Green River has found the body of a Kentucky kayaker who had been missing since Monday.

The discovery raises the death toll to five as a result of flooding in Kentucky last weekend.

Hart County Coroner Jeff Roten said Friday that the body of 55-year-old Robert Atcher was found about six miles downriver from where Atcher started his kayaking trip on the flooded river. Authorities say the kayak Atcher was using hit a logjam and the current pulled him under.

Louisville school chief proposes school closure

Robert Frost Middle School is on the fringes in more ways than one.

It's the very last place noted on the far left-hand corner of a map of the Louisville metro area, barely within the Jefferson County line.

And it's one of the very worst schools in the state of Kentucky, an urban middle school struggling with dismal test scores, low enrollment and high teacher turnover. When a state audit this week recommended a major staff overhaul at the 400-student school, no one was surprised.

The surprise came Thursday, when the chief of state's largest public school system went to the school board with a dramatic proposal: shut down Frost Middle, move the students and staff to better schools, and use that building instead for an innovative program begun under the No Child Left Behind law called the Phoenix School of Discovery.

If the school board approves, Frost will become the first school in Kentucky to shut down under the Obama administration's new, aggressive School Improvement Grants program spotlighting struggling schools, she said.

Program gives aspiring doctors rural work

BEDFORD, Ky. — Centers that bring doctors to rural, underserved areas may get more funding now that health care reform has passed.

In Kentucky, where doctor shortages in rural areas are a continuing problem, those centers operate through a collaborative effort between University of Louisville and the University of Kentucky. Dr. Faye Jones, program director for the U of L education center, told The Courier-Journal that the expected support would be welcomed. She says her center's budget has been decreasing as the problems it faces are increasing.

Jones said one way to help produce more doctors for underserved areas is to expose medical students to rural medicine.

Resorts ...

From Front

South of Paradise Resort, Susan and Joe Walker are experiencing a similar situation. As co-owners of Kentucky Beach Resort, they've been facing the rising waters as well. A swimming pool that overlooks the boat ramp and dock area is now completely submerged, as is the fence surrounding it. The water has reached all the way back to cover the volleyball and basketball courts, leaving only portions of the nets and goals visible.

"This is the highest it has been since we've been here," said Susan. "We hear it's going to maintain until Sunday and then maybe start receding. It's anyone's guess."

Susan regularly checks the Tennessee Valley Authority's Web site for lake updates and enters the numbers into a spreadsheet to track. The site currently states that the dam will be spilling until further notice. According to her estimations, the current 368.95 feet above sea level is 10 feet above what it should be.

Much more of the Walker's land is covered by water currently, including parking spaces and other dock access points. Driftwood and other debris piles up against wooden stairways that normally only get wet from rainfall. Joe said local wildlife has been affected by the rise, and pointed out a male Canada goose wandering around by the submerged basketball courts.

"His mate had laid eggs and they had a nest before the flooding. We found her floating in the river a few days ago, and he's been lost ever since," Joe said.

As lake levels do begin to decline, both resorts will have a major clean-up job on their hands. In addition to the debris that washed in, anything not anchored firmly to the ground will need to be replaced. This includes anything from picnic tables all the way down to the sand on the beaches. Repairs will need to be made to any portions of docks and walkways that broke under the strain of the rising water and gravel roads will need to be checked and worked on. The resort owners say they hope to be able to have everything in order before Memorial Day weekend.

KYSER LOUGH / Ledger & Times

Top photo, a boat-themed playground may seem in place in the water, but is actually meant to be anchored to dry land. The playground and surrounding area at Paradise Resort is currently under around 10 feet of water. Bottom photo, the original walkway to the dock at Paradise Resort is now impassable, leaving staff and guests to ferry across on a pontoon platform. Using a series of ropes, some of which are seen in the water, the platform must be manually pulled from shore to the dock.

Kids Book Week coming up soon

"A great nation is a reading nation," said Frederic Melcher, the editor of Publisher's Weekly and one of the people who helped found Children's Book Week, which has been celebrated each year since its founding in 1919.

In 2010, Children's Book Week kicks off May 10. On May 12, the results of the Children's Choice Book Awards for this year will be announced, and a list of kids' current favorite books will be published.

In honor of Children's Book Week, a number of Murray residents shared some of their favorite reading from childhood with "Main Street." Read on to discover books voted "thumbs up" from a range of local readers.

Pre-schooler Ella Bryant is just five years old and the youngest interviewee, but she already knows what reading she likes best. Ella's top choice is "The Wizard of Oz" because — like so many girls of all ages — she covets those ruby red slippers.

Etta Danielson is in high school, but she has been an avid reader since she was Ella Bryant's age. An equestrian, Etta has fond memories of the classic series about Billy and his horse Blaze, by C.W. Anderson. Etta's parents remember Blaze and Billy too.

Her father, Robert Danielson, says that sometimes parents remember the books better than the kids, "because we read them every night." Etta's mom, Debi, recalls having to use inter-library loan to get a copy of the last book in the Blaze series to satisfy her daughter's voracious reading.

Growing up in Napoli, Italy, Giuseppe Gentile remembers reading about Sandokan, a noble pirate.

"He was gallant and chivalrous," Giuseppe says. Italian author Emilio Salgari penned eleven novels, featuring the swashbuckling hero, Sandokan, and Giuseppe loved every one.

Growing up in western Kentucky, Bryan Warner favored a story with an exotic locale. Bryan smiles when he describes his best-loved book from childhood, "Little Toot on the Thames." "I still have it," he remarks, adding that he liked the book because it was colorful.

An artist, Bryan finds the illustrations memorable, including the lively red face on the boat and its striking contrast with the blue water. Bryan also has some of his late father's childhood favorites. Veterinarian Charlie Warner, enjoyed the "Horatio Alger" series, which also featured themes about overcoming adversity. Long before Nicole Schmittou was an art major at Murray State University, she was beguiled by the perennial favorite kids' book, "Goodnight, Moon."

"I really liked the imagery and the faces," Nicole explains. "I could picture myself in those spaces." When Kathy Cohen was a child, she was surrounded by a family library of books favored by several generations. Her earliest book memory goes back to "Raggedy Ann." "I wasn't particularly fond of it," she admits. "It was just there with the other books."

But when she got a little older, Kathy confesses that she "soaked up" Nancy Drew books. "I was Nancy Drew," she insists. During his childhood, Michael Cohen remembers that, "the librarian wanted me to stay in the kids' section of the library."

Nevertheless, the future English professor was not deterred. In the adults' section, he found non-fiction books about flying and other topics that interested him. In addition, he devoured the works of Robert Louis Stevenson and the adventures of Sherlock Holmes.

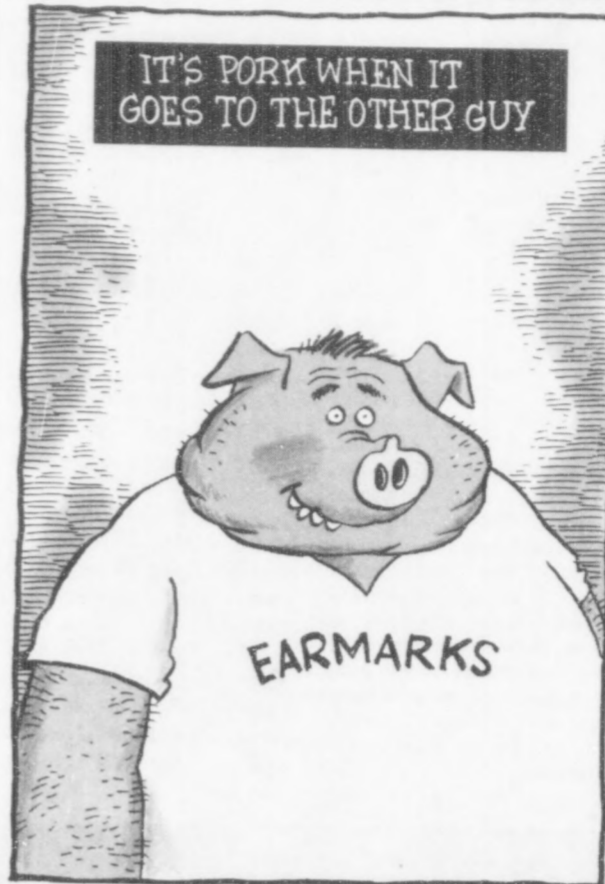

My husband, Roy Davis, remembers reading "Toby Tyler" in third or fourth grade. Though the story of a boy running away to the circus might have attracted other young readers to the book, originally published in 1880, Roy confesses his attachment to Toby Tyler is that, "It might be the first book I made myself read all the way through."

One of my earliest faves was "Big Susan," the story of a dollhouse coming alive on Christmas Eve.

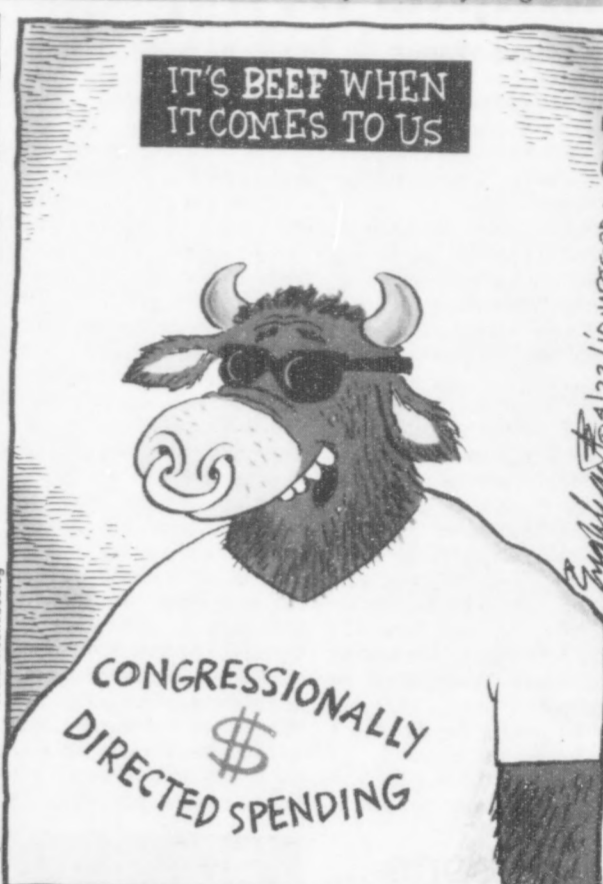

All the dolls could talk, a notion that still intrigues me. Last but not least, Mary Jane Littleton loved A.A. Milne's "Now We Are Six" as a young reader. "I liked the poetry. In fact, it's all poetry," she declares.

IT'S PORK WHEN IT GOES TO THE OTHER GUY

IT'S BEEF WHEN IT COMES TO US

Workable budget compromise not hard to find

Of all the legislation the General Assembly enacts, none speaks louder than the budget that guides state government. It provides for our present-day needs, of course, but just as importantly, it points us toward the future.

And it's all built on a system of compromises. With one governor, 100 House members and 38 senators, there are 139 opinions about the best way to move forward. But in the end, we are elected to speak with one voice. Your voice.

That, unfortunately, did not happen on April 15, the final day of the 2010 Regular Session. Despite the broad agreement House leaders thought they had with their counterparts in the Senate as we approached April 15th, and despite the House's willingness to more than meet halfway, it was the Senate chamber that was empty when many of my colleagues and I voted for a continuation budget that would have at least kept state government working this summer without any threat of closure, a distinct possibility because of a 2005 Kentucky Supreme Court ruling.

I sincerely apologize to all our citizens for the lack of the Legislature's ability to reach agreement, although we rank and file members can only stand and watch as leadership members of both the House and the Senate do battle over which side is to give in the most of their differences.

The House's goals all along have been fairly simple: Continue streamlining many services that have already absorbed more than a billion dollars in cuts during the last two years by reducing the number of state employees even further than what has already been done; keep protecting classroom spending for elementary and secondary schools, and protect educational programs like the KES scholarships that students entering university this fall are counting on; shield core health services that have become more critical in light of the deep recession; and bring more jobs to a workforce decimated by high unemployment.

The House's "Kentucky Jobs for Kentucky Families" program was thought by some House members to be a highlight of our budget. It sought to replace or renovate those school facilities that were in the worst shape while building new and improved water and sewer services as well as roads. I did not agree with selling bonds to do project spending, in part because the average citizen does not discern between spending bond proceeds and spending general fund revenues.

When they see spending for projects of several kinds, and state workers, as well as university employees, have had no cost of living raise for several years, they do not understand how the state can be spending money on other things.

I was obviously overruled in my opinion, and I understand that many legislators representing counties where unemployment has decimated their constituents, while Calloway County continues to have the second lowest unemployment rate in the state.

Things do not seem quite as bleak in Calloway County as they do in many other parts of the state. Much of this is due to the excellent work of our Economic Development Corporation that has brought in many new jobs and is still actively pursuing industrial prospects. We have a paid-for industrial park, with utilities being run into the property at the present time.

However, when it became apparent that projects were to be part of the proposed House budget bill, I secured as much funding for Calloway County as was humanly possible, millions of dollars in road projects as well as rural water projects. I do not apologize for representing Calloway and Trigg Counties to the best of my ability. If money is to be spent, we must be represented at the table.

There is broad agreement that these projects need to be done at some point, and if we could accomplish them now when bond rates are low and construction bids are coming in at 10 to 20 percent under estimated costs, while helping many of the 200,000 Kentuckians drawing an unemployment check, it would be certainly be a worthwhile investment, even if it were politicized to the point that most citizens would not understand the advantages. The cost would be spread over 20 years, and there will likely not be a better time to build than now, given the low costs of borrowing and construction.

Nonetheless, in an effort to address Senate concerns, the House voted for a continuation budget on the last session day, a budget that had no new projects while recommending that the governor continue having broad authority to make short-term cuts in state government until next year's legislative session.

This would not be an ideal solution, but as I mentioned, it would have avoided the threat of closing much of state government. Under the Supreme Court ruling, only those services included in Kentucky's constitution — schools and jails, for example — or programs with a federal mandate, such as Medicaid, could continue.

Governor Beshear has said he will call a special legislative session before the end of May to avoid that possibility. Like you, I am not happy that it has come to this. We should not have to be in this situation, and the House did all it could last week to avoid it. If we do not pass a budget by June 1 we will lose an opportunity to do a refunding bond issue that will save more than $164 million over 20 years. If we do not pass a budget by July 1, most of state government, including universities, will have to be shut down.

What makes this even tougher is that our differences are small in comparison to the total budget — less than one percent. The House believes we can overcome that difference, and the deficit facing us during the next two years, without cutting classrooms or critical programs. Hopefully, we will finally be able to do just that in the weeks ahead. It is a more than workable compromise.

Legislative Update
By Rep. Melvin Henley D-Murray

Debate over financial reform will be interesting

WASHINGTON (AP) — Forget the inflated rhetoric, the polls showing public anger about Wall Street, the convoluted details of financial derivatives and even the Capitol barbecue of Goldman Sachs money men.

Republicans and Democrats both got what they wanted from last week's opening round of a Senate struggle over legislation to crack down on Wall Street. And did it in enough time to take a long weekend away from the Capitol.

When lawmakers return to work, they will face days or even weeks of politically difficult votes on the bill, the final details of which are little more clear now than they were a week ago.

It could be months before legislation reaches President Barack Obama's desk, and even later when any impact on the midterm elections becomes clear.

But there is virtual unanimity in the Senate that the issue — in which both parties are maneuvering to take the side of the middle class over Wall Street — is worth the struggle. "By blocking us from even opening debate on how to hold Wall Street accountable, Republicans are voting to protect the big banks and their bonuses and to keep this important debate hidden from public scrutiny," Majority Leader Harry Reid said at one point in a week in which the GOP voted unanimously three times in as many days to block debate on the legislation.

When the blockade was taken down, Reid offered a postscript: "Obstruction has wasted enough of the American people's time and now it's time to get to work."

Not surprisingly, Republicans judged their week's work differently.

Reid and his rank and file "got nothing for their trouble," Sen. Chuck Grassley of Iowa said, dismissing claims that his own party would suffer this fall at the polls because of its votes. The GOP "stood together to make some gains," he said, citing a pledge from the bill's backers to jettison a $50 billion fund that Republicans said — and Democrats denied — would lead to future bailouts of failing financial giants.

In political terms, Democrats did, in fact, maneuver Republicans into voting three times to block debate on politically popular legislation designed to prevent another economic calamity like the one that occurred in 2008.

Inside the Democratic caucus, there was resolve not to yield too soon on changes in the bill, according to officials, lest Republicans be perceived as having gained a political victory.

In more substantive terms, when Republicans agreed at midweek to drop their stalling tactics, it meant Reid had probably cleared a path for eventual passage of a bill that the White House and its allies seek. As a minority party looking for success in the fall, Republicans defined success differently.

Their top objective was to reassure voters, angry conservatives among them, they will never again support a taxpayer bailout, as they did when President George W. Bush requested one in 2008, and Bush and then-president-elect Obama did in 2009.

They also made the case that the Democratic-drafted bill, rather than focusing on big banks, would instead "reach into every nook and cranny" of the economy, as Republican Leader Mitch McConnell of Kentucky said ominously at one point.

When unable to prevent passage, they still try to make their opposition as close to unanimous as possible, each time arguing in the run-up to the 2010 elections that Obama's true purpose is to spend too much and grow government too large.

Another day, another scare in a cautious New York

NEW YORK (AP) — Police cleared the streets around Times Square on Friday and called in the bomb squad to dismantle what turned out to be a cooler full of water bottles. Earlier in the day, police were called in to check a suspicious package that turned out to be someone's lunch. Since a Pakistani-American tried unsuccessfully to set off a car bomb in the heart of the city last weekend, false-alarm calls are up dramatically, nerves are jangled, and media and law enforcement are rushing to the scenes to make sure the reports aren't something bigger. More than 600 calls came in since Saturday's attempted car bombing of a busy street near Times Square — about 30 percent higher than normal, police said. "This is something that happens fairly regularly," Police Commissioner Raymond Kelly said Friday. "I think to a certain extent, people are becoming more suspicious, more vigilant. ... We understand that's what happens, and we're prepared to respond." Bombing suspect Faisal Shahzad remained in custody and did not appear in court Friday. Kelly said he continued to cooperate, while Gen. David Petraeus debunked theories that Shahzad had help, saying he apparently worked alone and did not have contact with foreign terror groups. Investigators were looking into how Shahzad's preparations were financed, focusing on a money courier they believe helped him pay for the used SUV and other materials used to assemble the car bomb, a law enforcement official told The Associated Press on Thursday. The official spoke on condition of anonymity because of the sensitivity of the investigation.

Correction

A story about the Murray State University tuition forum printed on April 30 should have quoted MSU President Dr. Randy Dunn as saying he thought it would be irresponsible to raise undergraduate tuition by less than 4 percent, not 5 percent. Riley to participate in Leadership Kentucky

Keith Riley, executive vice president of Peel & Holland Financial Group, was recently selected as one of 60 participants in the annual Leadership Kentucky program. Founded in 1984 as a non-profit educational organization, Leadership Kentucky brings together a select group of Kentuckians who possess a broad variety of leadership abilities, career accomplishments and volunteer activities to gain insight into complex issues facing the state. Riley has 17 years experience in insurance as an agent and business risk consultant in the Corporate Solutions Group at Peel & Holland. He specializes in designing and implementing plans to lower clients' total cost of risk, enabling those clients to become more profitable and to achieve their long-term goals. Previously, Riley has served as president of the Independent Insurance Agents of Kentucky. He has also been active on the national level with Independent Insurance Agents and Brokers of America and is a member of the Institute of Workers Compensation Advisors. As a member of the 2010 Leadership Kentucky class, Riley will travel across Kentucky for seven monthly sessions.

A group of BP executives were on board the Deepwater Horizon rig celebrating the project's safety record, according to the transcripts. Meanwhile, far below, the rig was being converted from an exploration well to a production well.

Based on the interviews, Bea believes that the workers set and then tested a cement seal at the bottom of the well. Then they reduced the pressure in the drill column and attempted to set a second seal below the sea floor. A chemical reaction caused by the setting cement created heat and a gas bubble which destroyed the seal.

Deep beneath the seafloor, methane is in a slushy, crystalline form. Deep sea oil drillers often encounter pockets of methane crystals as they dig into the earth.

As the bubble rose up the drill column from the high-pressure environs of the deep to the less pressurized shallows, it intensified and grew, breaking through various safety barriers, Bea said.

"A small bubble becomes a really big bubble," Bea said. "So the expanding bubble becomes like a cannon shooting the gas into your face."

On the rig, the first thing workers noticed was the sea water in the drill column suddenly shooting back at them, rocketing 240 feet in the air, he said. Then, gas surfaced. Then oil.

"What we had learned when I worked as a drill rig laborer was swoosh, boom, run," Bea said. "The swoosh is the gas, boom is the explosion and run is what you better be doing."

The gas flooded into an adjoining room with exposed ignition sources, he said.

"That's where the first explosion happened," said Bea, who worked for Shell Oil in the 1960s during the last big northern Gulf of Mexico oil well blowout. "The mud room was next to the quarters where the party was. Then there was a series of explosions that subsequently ignited the oil that was coming from below."

According to one interview transcript, a gas cloud covered the rig, causing giant engines on the drill floor to run too fast and explode. The engines blew off the rig and set "everything on fire," the account said. Another explosion below blew more equipment overboard.

BP spokesman John Curry would not comment Friday night on whether methane gas or the series of events described in the internal documents caused the accident.

"Clearly, what happened on the Deepwater Horizon was a tragic accident," said Curry, who is based at an oil spill command center in Robert, La. "We anticipate all the facts will come out in a full investigation."

The BP executives were injured but survived, according to one account. Nine rig crew on the rig floor and two engineers died.

"The furniture and walls trapped some and broke some bones but they managed to get in the life boats with assistance from others," said the transcript.

The reports made Bea, the 73-year-old industry veteran, cry.

"It sure as hell is painful," he said. "Tears of frustration and anger."

On Friday, a BP-chartered vessel lowered a 100-ton concrete-and-steel vault onto the ruptured well, an important step in a delicate and unprecedented attempt to stop most of the gushing crude fouling the sea.

"We are essentially taking a four-story building and lowering it 5,000 feet and setting it on the head of a pin," BP spokesman Bill Salvin told The Associated Press.

Underwater robots guided the 40-foot-tall box into place in a slow-moving drama. Now that the contraption is on the seafloor, workers will need at least 12 hours to let it settle and make sure it's stable before the robots can hook up a pipe and hose that will funnel the oil up to a tanker.

"It appears to be going exactly as we hoped," Salvin said on Friday afternoon, shortly after the four-story device hit the seafloor. "Still lots of challenges ahead, but this is very good progress."

This aerial photo shows oil in the Gulf of Mexico, eight miles off the Southwest Pass of the Mississippi River at the Southern tip of Louisiana on Wednesday, April 28, 2010. About 42,000 gallons of oil a day are leaking into the Gulf from the blown-out well drilled by the Deepwater Horizon oil rig.

By Sunday, the box the size of a house could be capturing up to 85 percent of the oil.

The task became increasingly urgent as toxic oil crept deeper into the bays and marshes of the Mississippi Delta.

A sheen of oil began arriving on land last week, and crews have been laying booms, spraying chemical dispersants and setting fire to the slick to try to keep it from coming ashore. But now the thicker, stickier goo — arrayed in vivid, brick-colored ribbons — is drawing ever closer to Louisiana's coastal communities.

There are still untold risks and unknowns with the containment box: The approach has never been tried at such depths, where the water pressure is enough to crush a submarine, and any wrong move could damage the leaking pipe and make the problem worse. The seafloor is pitch black and the water murky, though lights on the rig illuminate the area where they are working.

If the box works, another one will be dropped onto a second, smaller leak at the bottom of the Gulf.

At the same time, crews are drilling sideways into the well in hopes of plugging it up with mud and concrete, and they are working on other ways to cap it.

Investigators looking into the cause of the explosion have been focusing on the so-called blowout preventer. Federal regulators told The Associated Press Friday that they are going to examine whether these last-resort cutoff valves on offshore oil wells are reliable.

Blowouts are infrequent, because well holes are blocked by piping and pumped-in materials like synthetic mud, cement and even sea water. The pipes are plugged with cement, so fluid and gas can't typically push up inside the pipes.

Instead, a typical blowout surges up a channel around the piping. The narrow space between the well walls and the piping is usually filled with cement, so there is no pathway for a blowout. But if the cement or broken piping leaves enough space, a surge can rise to the surface.

There, at the wellhead of exploratory wells, sits the massive steel contraption known as a blowout preventer. It can snuff a blowout by squeezing rubber seals tightly around the pipes with up to 1 million pounds of force. If the seals fail, the blowout preventer deploys a last line of defense: a set of rams that can slice right through the pipes and cap the blowout.

Deepwater Horizon was also equipped with an automated backup system called a Deadman. It should have activated the blowout preventer even if workers could not.

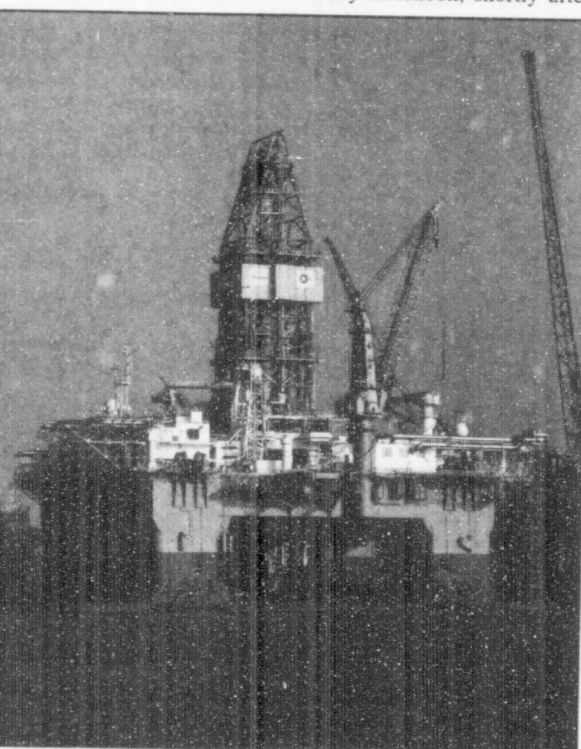

Based on the interviews with rig workers, none of those safeguards worked.

Associated Press writers Cain Burdeau, Vicki Smith and Ray Henry in Louisiana, Jeff Donn in Boston, Michael Graczyk in Houston and Noaki Schwartz in Los Angeles contributed to this report.

Racer Athletics plans Sneakers & Scholarships auction

AUCTION INCLUDES SECTION OF RACER ARENA BASKETBALL COURT

By MSU Sports Information
The Murray State University department of athletics is holding a benefit auction, Sneakers & Scholarships, on Saturday, May 22 at the Regional Special Events Center (RSEC).

The auction will raise funds to support the athletic program with a special emphasis on raising scholarship support for summer school. Funds will also go to support the overall mission of the athletic program and to assist in enhancing the visibility of Racer Athletics.

"We are fortunate to have such a supportive community which has donated several nice items for the auction," Associate Athletic Director Paul Bubb said. "From a new power engine to dinners to movie passes to fashion items and everything in-between, the response has been great for this first-time Racer auction."

The evening will begin at 5:00 p.m. with a silent auction and social hour. A buffet dinner will follow at 6:30 p.m. with a short program. The evening will conclude with a live auction featuring a wide range of items from vacation packages and getaways to unique Racer Athletic memorabilia.

What will have fans excited are the special and unique items being offered.

"Our volleyball coach and his wife, David and Kendra Schwepker, will be preparing a romantic candlelight dinner for two," Bubb explained. "Racer head football coach Chris Hatcher has agreed to allow someone to be a guest coach for a road game, allowing them to attend all practices, receive official team gear, travel with the team and be on the sideline for a game."

"President Dann will host a private dinner party at Oakhurst, Director of Athletics Allen Ward will host a group in his press box for a home football game, Racer Head Men's Basketball Coach Billy Kennedy and his wife Mary will host a BBQ dinner for 10 at their home and we have 20 game tickets and the use of the President's Suite in the RSEC for a home basketball game for a group."

There will also be some special and exclusive items available at the auction. A framed autographed front page of the Murray Ledger & Times photograph of Danero Thomas, taken by staff photographer Michael Dann, hitting the game winner against Vanderbilt as well as an autographed collage featuring OVC Men's Basketball Tournament MVP Isaiah Canaan will both be up for bid. The auction will even include ascension of the Racer Arena basketball court (20' x 24' free throw lane).

"The Racer Arena free throw lane is definitely unique," Bubb said. "For someone who is a diehard Racer fan, this would be the perfect floor to have in their den, family room or game room."

Additional items for auction include golf packages to several local and regional courses; vacation getaway packages to Green Turtle Bay Resort and Branson, Mo.; and tickets to concerts and sporting events.

For additional information contact Paul Bubb at 270-809-3369. Reservations may be made on-line at www.goracers.com or by calling 270-809-3000.

4TH DISTRICT SOFTBALL: MURRAY 3, MARSHALL CO. 1

Lady Tigers end long district losing streak

AMANDA WINCHESTER DELIVERS BIG HITS, THREE PITCHERS COMBINE TO SHUT DOWN MARSHALL

By TOMMY DILLARD
Sports Writer

After four years of futility, Murray finally walked off the diamond a winner in a district game Friday night at Marshall County.

First-year head coach Ted Booth threw all three of his top pitchers two innings apiece, putting the stops on Marshall County's offense and getting just enough hitting from his own lineup to step into the win column with a 3-1 victory.

The win was the Lady Tigers' first over a 4th District opponent since defeating Marshall in the first round of the tournament in 2005.

It comes after nearly an entire season of futility against district opponents this year — Murray fell to Marshall County 14-3 in April and were outscored by a combined 17-1 in two losses against Calloway County.

None of that matters now, says Booth.

"I give the girls all the credit," he said via cell phone Friday night. "They finally bought into me telling them they could beat anybody if they just gave the extra effort."

School	Dist. (Overall)
Marshall County	3-1 (21-10)
Calloway County	2-2 (11-11)
Murray	1-3 (12-7)

Murray has had its share of success this season prior to Friday night, posting an 11-7 overall record. The success just hadn't come against district foes.

"I've been telling them all year if they gave 110 percent, we could win these games," he said. "We went down to Border Wars in Tennessee and beat several 4A and 5A teams, so I knew they were capable."

"... It's just a huge win, the best thing that could have happened to us."

The Lady Tigers' hardest thrower, Taylor Alvey, got the starting nod and pitched the first two innings before turning the game over to senior Chelcie Winchester, whose slower pace offered hitters a different look.

Morgan Huston tossed the final two innings to close the

WORLD'S NO. 1 SURVIVES CUT, BUT HAS WORK CUT OUT TO CATCH WESTWOOD

By DOUG FERGUSON
AP Golf Writer

PONTE VEDRA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The perception of Tiger Woods on the golf course has changed so much in a week, evident by the first question he faced Friday after scratching out a 1-under 71 at The Players Championship.

"It looks like you did make the cut, so you're playing on the weekend. Feel good?" Woods once went seven years without missing the cut. Last week at Quail Hollow was only the sixth missed cut of his career.

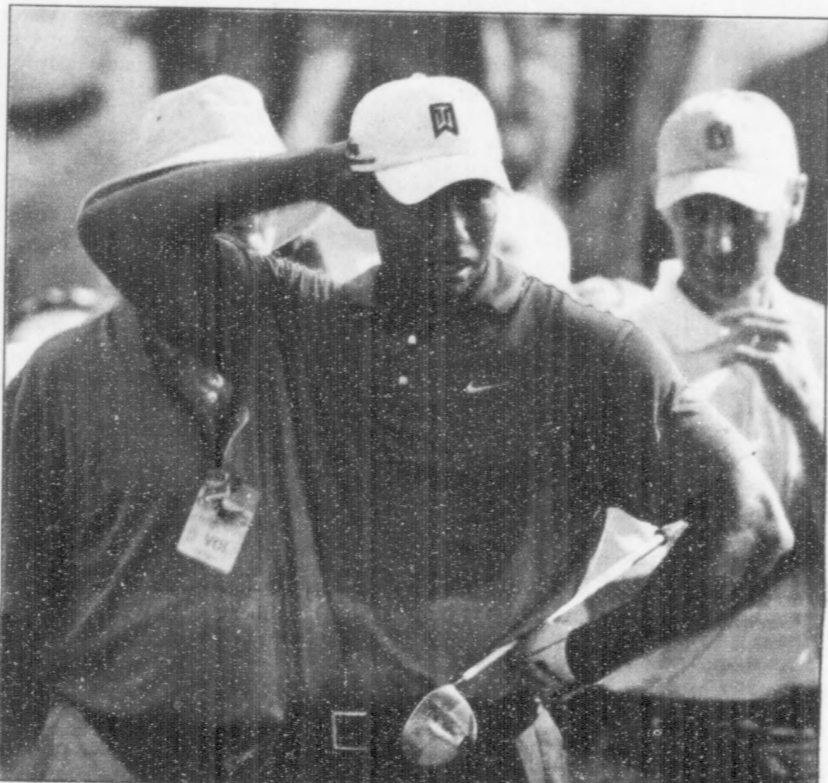

Yet there were so many questions whether his personal turmoil was a distraction in his golf game that even Woods playing on the weekend at the TPC Sawgrass was not such a sure thing until he settled into fairways and greens and pars over the final hour.

He wound up at 3-under 141, and was safe. He wasn't celebrating, not when he was nine shots behind Lee Westwood, the 36-hole leader among early starters.

"I wasn't quite as sharp today as I was yesterday," Woods said.

It was an ordinary score given the easiest conditions on the Stadium Course in 16 years. What made it extraordinary were some of the shots that he did, memorable for other reasons.

Woods hit a 3-wood on the seventh hole Thursday that he popped up so he barely reached the fairway and went only 190 yards. On Friday, such a breathtaking moment came on the 14th hole with a 3-wood in hand.

Tiger Woods looks away after an errant tee shot on the 14th hole during the second round of The Players Championship golf tournament Friday in Ponte Vedra Beach, Fla. Woods' shot landed in the middle of a small pond on the 12th fairway.

He started it out to the right — well right — and it kept right on going. The ball left the tee at a 45-degree angle, beyond the fairway, beyond the gallery, beyond the rough, over some trees. It finally landed in the middle of a small pond on the 12th fairway.

Woods' reaction? "I couldn't stop," he said under his breath, dropping a few choice words while repeating the phrase.

He felt something out of position in his swing somewhere before impact. Trouble was, it was too late to do anything about it. Had he felt it sooner, Woods said he would have stopped in mid-swing and started over. Once he got past a certain point, the only question was whether it would be way right or way left. Either way, it was headed for the water.

WIND PICKS UP, SO DO RACERS' SCORES IN INDIANA

By MSU Sports Information

COLUMBUS, Ind. — The Murray State Racers had a rough day in round two of the NCAA Women's Golf Championship when they came home with a 347 on a day when windy conditions caused havoc on an already tough track at Otter Creek GC in Columbus, Ind.

The Racers, who advanced to the NCAA Championship for the second straight season after winning the Ohio Valley Conference title, had rounds of 336-347-683 in the first two days of the event and stand in 22nd place out of 24 teams.

MSU leads Detroit-Mercy (706) and Jackson State (714) and are behind 21st place Tulsa (654).

Leading the way for the Racers was Andrea Downer, who carded an 84 after a first round 81 and stood at 165 for two rounds and had a spot in 90th place in the field of 123 competitors.

Joyce Trus had an 84 to go with a first round 85 for a 169 total and a spot in 102nd place, while Morgan Cross was in 111th place after rounds of 87-88=175.

Megan McKinney was in 114th place with scores of 88-90=178, while Caroline Lagerborg was in 119th place after scores of 84-100=184.

Southern California trailed Arizona State by two shots after the first round, but managed to jump into the lead with a 304 today while the Sun Devils carded a 310. With 18 holes to go on Saturday,

Faried to return for senior season

MOREHEAD STATE BIG MAN CALLS PROCESS TREMENDOUS EXPERIENCE

By OVC Sports Information

BRENTWOOD, Tenn. — Morehead State junior Kenneth Faried announced Friday that he has removed his name from NBA draft consideration and will return for his senior year with Eagle men's basketball.

"After carefully looking at all my options and talking it over with my family - especially my mom, I have decided to return to Morehead State University for my senior season," Faried said. "This process has been a tremendous experience and a great learning experience for me. I want to thank coach [Donnie] Tyndall and all of my coaches as well as my teammates and all of the MSU fans for their support. However I want to thank my mom even more - She is my heart and soul and her support means the world to me."

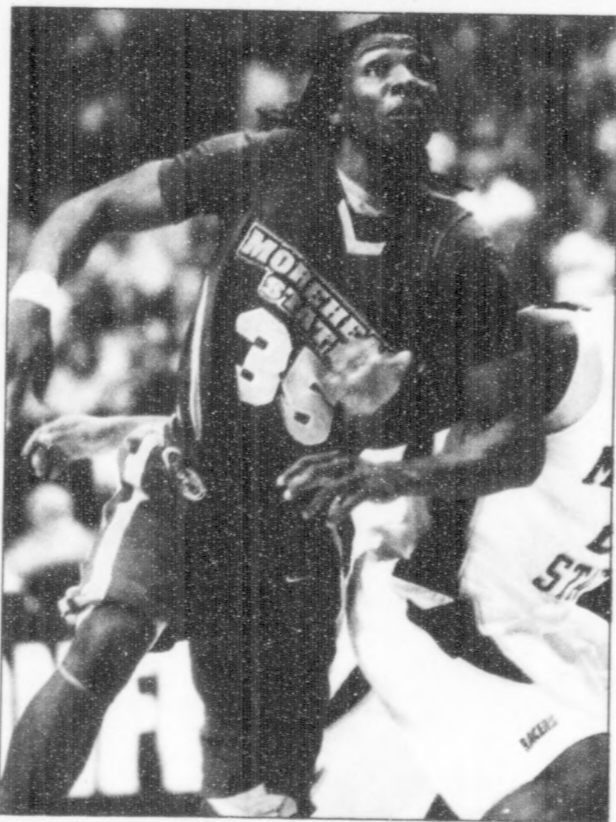

The Newark, N.J. native, returns to help coach Tyndall, the coaching staff, and his teammates make another run at the Ohio Valley Conference Championship and NCAA berth. It will also give Faried a chance to further develop his skills and maturation as a basketball player.

"This was a very difficult decision for Kenneth, but after visiting with many NBA teams and listening to their opinions and evaluations he felt like it was in his best interest to return to school," Tyndall said. "As I have said all along this would be a decision Kenneth and his mom would make on their own and they did. Kenneth Faried is a fantastic basketball player, but is an even better person. His unselfish attitude and team first mentality have helped make him the most popular player in Morehead State University history. The good news for MSU fans is that they will get to see him in an Eagle uniform for his senior season!"

Faried's decision also means that he will fulfill a dream he and his mother share of seeing him graduate from college. "I am very happy to be coming back to MSU - we have a lot of work to do to reach our goals," Faried said. "I will work as hard as I possibly can to achieve our team goals and most importantly to fulfill my promise to Mom to graduate so she can see me walk across that stage and receive my degree next May."

On Friday, Morehead State junior Kenneth Faried pulled his name from NBA consideration and will return next season. Faried swept the OVC top awards, earning Player of the Year, Defensive Player of the Year and First Team All-Conference.

Lakers put Graves on four-game losing skid

COWEN DELIVERS FIVE STRONG INNINGS AS CALLOWAY OFFENSE ROLLS OVER EAGLES

Staff Report
Scarcely 24 hours after Murray upended First Region co-favorite Graves County, Calloway County followed suit Friday night, handing the Eagles a 9-6 defeat at Laker Field.

Garrett Cowen held the Eagles to just two runs over five strong innings of relief while the win went to starter Ryan Butler, who surrendered four runs over two innings but put his team in a position to win thanks to some early offensive firepower from Calloway. The Lakers scored one run in the first inning and put six on the board in the second, while Graves scored one in the first and three in the second. The three-run lead held up for Calloway as each squad put two more runs on the board in the sixth.

Dylan Dwyer and Grant Williams paced the Lakers offensively. Dwyer went 3-for-4 while Williams was 2-for-3. Calloway scored its first run when Ben Hudson came home on a wild pitch in the first inning. The six-run second began when Austin Hargrove singled home Cowen.

Jordan Dawson then scored when Hudson walked and Dwyer delivered a two-RBI single, scoring Hargrove and Tyler Greer.

In the sixth, Cody Redden notched an RBI when he was hit by a pitch, then Cowen delivered a second RBI on a ground-out.

The Lakers improved their record to 14-12 on the season while Graves fell to 14-10.

Calloway returns to action Monday when they travel to Heath for a 7 p.m. start in West Paducah.

Lady Tigers

It was a scheme Booth had played around with against Calloway earlier this week, and decided to fully employ on Friday.

"I told them all I just needed the best two innings they could throw, and that was what they gave me," he said. "I got the idea against Calloway, but I didn't trust myself completely and stuck with a couple girls too long. This time, we stuck with the two-two-two setup."

Marshall scored its only run off Winchester in the fourth, tying the game at one.

The Lady Tigers plated the go-ahead runs in the fifth inning when Christina Duncan, pinch-running for Chelcie Winchester, who reached on a base hit, scored on a wild pitch. Emily Benson then drove in Amanda Winchester.

Murray scored its first run of the game in the third inning thanks to another table-setting base hit by Chelcie Winchester. Duncan once again served as the courtesy runner and scored on an RBI base hit by Amanda Winchester.

Amanda Winchester led the Lady Tiger offense, going 3-for-4 with an RBI. Julia Curtis was 2-for-3 and Emily Benson was 1-for-3 with an RBI.

As a team, Murray managed eight hits while surrendering eight to the Lady Marshals. The Lady Tigers committed one error.

Marshall County falls to 2-10 overall and 3-1 in the 4th District.

Caroline Lagerberg has MSU's first tee time at 1:25 p.m. eastern time, with Megan McKinney starting at 1:36 p.m. Morgan Cross has the 1:47 p.m. tee time, while Joyce Trus goes at 1:58 p.m. and Andrea Downer at 2:09 p.m.

Oklahoma State was in third at 613, while Oregon (621), Purdue (623), New Mexico (624), Denver (313), Mississippi (626), Michigan State (626), Georgia (626), Kent State (628) and Florida State (629) made up the top 12 teams.

The final round will set the top eight teams that will advance to the NCAA Finals, May 18-21 at the Country Club of Landfall in Wilmington, N.C.

The Racers will again play with Jackson State and Detroit-Mercy in the final round.

Faried

"I fully expect Kenneth to work harder this summer than he has ever worked in his life," Tyndall said. "Kenneth has set his goals for next season very high and at the top of his list is to graduate in May 2011 and have his mom watch him walk across the stage - he is on course to do that as well!"

An Associated Press All-American honorable mention, Faried also was named NABC All-District and he swept the Ohio Valley Conference top awards, earning Player of the Year, Defensive Player of the Year, First Team All-Conference. He garnered attention from NBA scouts all season long while averaging 16.9 points a game and 13.0 boards per contest to lead the OVC and rank second in the nation. He also ranked second nationally in double-doubles, recording 25 in 35 total games.

Titans owner donates to flood victims

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The owner of the Tennessee Titans has joined with the NFL and the NFL Players Association in giving $400,000 to the American Red Cross and a Tennessee group to help the state recover from floods that killed at least 31 people in three states.

The Titans announced the donations Friday.

Owner Bud Adams decided to donate $200,000 from his Titans Foundation and encouraged the league and the players union to match his gift.

The money will be split between the Red Cross and the Community Foundation of Middle Tennessee, which also runs the Metro Nashville Disaster Relief Fund and the Tennessee Emergency Relief Fund.

Adams also promises that Titans players and staff will be out in Nashville next week to help with recovery.

"I was in a bad spot," Woods said. "It was not the spot I wanted to be in to hit the shot I wanted to hit, and I was trying to stop. By the time I realized I was in that spot, I physically couldn't do it."

Woods took a penalty drop among murmurs in the gallery, which could not believe what it saw. He hit short of the green, hit wedges to about 10 feet and had to make a 4-foot putt coming back for double bogey.

He did enough right to make up for the few bad shots — consecutive birdies on the 12th and 13th, and he followed the double bogey with birdies on the 15th and 16th.

But this was not the day to stay around even par, not with Westwood shooting a 65, along with Lucas Glover and two others. Twenty-one players among the early starters shot in the 60s, and more low scores were sure to follow in the afternoon.

At nine shots back, Woods didn't see it any differently than if he had been playing the last six months, and playing well.

"It's the same," he said. "Got to keep plodding along, and on this golf course, anything can happen. You know that. There are guys that can make 3s and guys that can make 6s out here on the same hole."

SPECIAL OLYMPICS PRESENTATION

NEW CONCORD HIGH SCHOOL REUNION

ARBOR DAY APPRECIATION

Spring Creek Health Care's Bee Positive Club hosted their second Annual Plant A Tree for Arbor Day giveaway. The Bee Positive Club purchased and distributed over 200 seedlings to the employees. This year the seedlings were Flowering Dogwood and Pecan.

THERE'S NO PLACE LIKE HOME

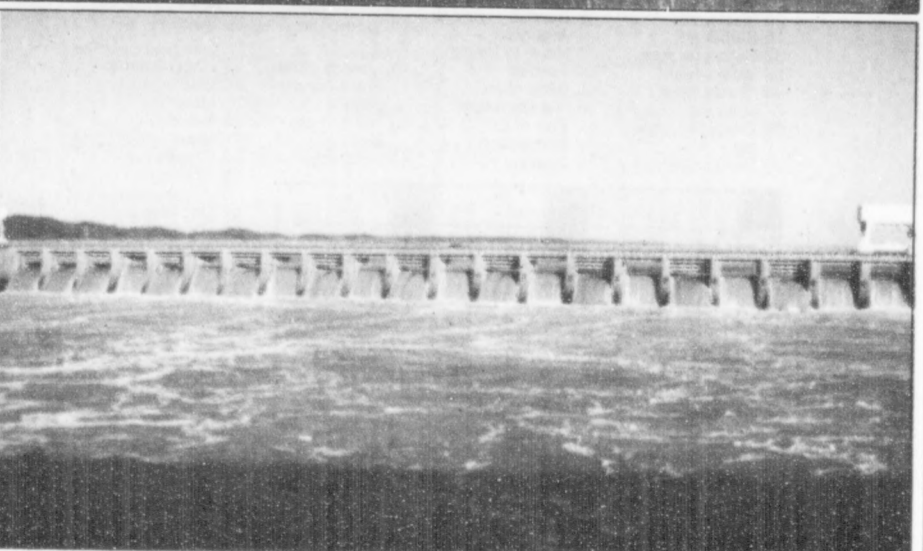

Staff at Murray State University dressed up as characters from The Wizard of Oz for the MSU Senior Breakfast recently. Seniors graduating in May were honored at the event.

WATER RELEASE

Flood waters at the Barkley Dam and the Kentucky Dam are still quite extensive and water traffic is prohibited until at least Monday, May 10. These pictures of all the locks at Barkley Dam, top photo, and all 23 locks at the Kentucky Dam were taken showing the water rushing through.

Looking Back

10 years ago The Murray City Council finance committee voted 5-1 to accept the proposed 2000-2001 budget.

Dr. William H. Mulligan Jr., an associate professor of history and director of the Forest C. Pogue Public History Institute at Murray State University, was elected vice president of the Kentucky Association of Museums.

Murray Police investigated a weekend burglary in which someone took more than $800 from the downtown Boone's Laundry.

Calloway-County Fire Rescue was summoned to a structure fire on Post Oak Drive. The fire was reported by a 911 call.

20 years ago According to a study conducted by Dr. Concetta Culliver, assistant professor in the Department of Political Science, less than 8 percent of those ages 60 or older have been victims of crime in Murray in the past five years.

The 19 members of the 1990 graduating class of Leadership Of Murray were challenged to use their leadership roles to build community strength and erase poor self-image that Kentucky has had in the past year.

Dr. James P. McCoy and Samuel E. McNeely have been selected to receive awards for research and teaching for 1980-1990 by the College of Business and Public Affairs at Murray State University.

30 years ago Mrs. Omega Gargus, Murray, retired after 26 years as a staff member at Murray State University, most of which was spent in the cafeteria. The Calloway County Circuit Court Grand Jury returned 14 criminal indictments and a report on county properties.

Work is underway to convert the old L and N Freight Depot into a home for Murray Calloway County Community Theatre and other community activities. Murray State University junior tight end Kris Robbins, was presented his award for being named to the I-AA Football Academic All-America second team for 1979-1980.

40 years ago The Grand Jury of Calloway County Circuit Court returned 12 indictments in its report to Circuit Court Judge James M. Lassiter yesterday.

Elected as officers of Murray High School Student Council for 1970-1971 are Amy Wilson, Leah Fulton, Dixie Hook and Ruth Titsworth.

50 years ago First Class William O. Downey is now serving with 2nd Armored Division at Fort Hood, Texas. Gil Manis, veteran Detroit tackle, has agreed to terms on his 1960 contract, a graduate and former football player of Murray State University in 1953.

60 years ago May 12 was observed nationally as Hospital Day. Murray observed the day with an open house from 3-6 p.m. at Murray Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. H.B. Bailey Sr., had an advertisement in The Ledger and Times thanking people for their patronage of their jewelry business for the past 37 years. Their store on the west side of Murray court square, has been purchased by the Lindsey Family.

Today in History

By The Associated Press Today is Saturday, May 8, the 128th day of 2010. There are 237 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History: On May 8, 1945, President Harry S. Truman announced in a radio address that Nazi Germany's forces had surrendered in World War II, and that "the flags of freedom fly all over Europe."

On this date: In 1846, the first major battle of the Mexican-American War was fought at Palo Alto, Texas, U.S. forces led by Gen. Zachary Taylor were able to beat back the Mexican forces.

In 1884, the 33rd president of the United States, Harry S. Truman, was born in Lamar, Mo.

In 1958, Vice President Richard Nixon was shoved, stoned, booed and spat upon by anti-American protesters in Lima, Peru.

In 1962, the musical comedy "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum" opened on Broadway.

In 1970, antiwar protests took place across the United States and around the world; in New York, construction workers broke up a demonstration on Wall Street.

Love child grows up feeling sting of her mother's regret

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have been diagnosed with cat-scratch fever. Could you explain the disease and its side effects? How long will it last, and what treatment is available?

DEAR DR. GOTT: I am a 54-year-old male. I've had ED problems for about 10 years, resolved through the use of Viagra. But why? I do have low testosterone levels, for which I take injections, but for the most part I am healthy, fit, not overweight, a nonsmoker, a nonalcoholic-beverage drinker and, per my physician, do not suffer from any other cardiovascular problems. So why do I have blood-flow problems in this one department?

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have been diagnosed with cat-scratch fever. Could you explain the disease and its side effects? How long will it last, and what treatment is available?

DEAR DR. GOTT: Before my husband died, we used to enjoy visiting with "Frank" and his wife, "Julie." They were happy get-togethers between couples. After my husband's death, Frank said he wanted to stay in touch. As time went on, we'd meet for holidays and home visits, which were as pleasant as before. But as time passed, Julie became bored and the visits became awkward.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I know my mother believed he would leave his wife for her, and because I closely resemble him she must have felt terrible when I was growing up. I always felt she didn't love me as much as she loved my brothers.

I have grown up with a hole inside me where a dad was supposed to be. I have never felt worthy or deserving of anything in my life, and now my mother has cut me off from the family.

Should I try to see if my father wants to know me now? -- ALONE AND UNLOVED, MONROE, LA.

DEAR ALONE AND UNLOVED: Life has dealt you a difficult hand through no fault of your own. You are hurting right now, and that is why I'm urging you to talk to a counselor about what you have been through and how you feel about yourself BEFORE reaching out to your father. Before you try to make contact it's important that you have more inner resources than you have now -- just in case he doesn't turn out to be the man you would like him to be. Contacting him through a third party might also be wise.

After my husband's death, Frank said he wanted to stay in touch. As time went on, we'd meet for holidays and home visits, which were as pleasant as before. But as time passed, Julie became bored and the visits became awkward.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I know my mother believed he would leave his wife for her, and because I closely resemble him she must have felt terrible when I was growing up. I always felt she didn't love me as much as she loved my brothers.

I have grown up with a hole inside me where a dad was supposed to be. I have never felt worthy or deserving of anything in my life, and now my mother has cut me off from the family.

Should I try to see if my father wants to know me now? -- ALONE AND UNLOVED, MONROE, LA.

DEAR ALONE AND UNLOVED: Life has dealt you a difficult hand through no fault of your own. You are hurting right now, and that is why I'm urging you to talk to a counselor about what you have been through and how you feel about yourself BEFORE reaching out to your father. Before you try to make contact it's important that you have more inner resources than you have now -- just in case he doesn't turn out to be the man you would like him to be. Contacting him through a third party might also be wise.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have been diagnosed with cat-scratch fever. Could you explain the disease and its side effects? How long will it last, and what treatment is available?

DEAR DR. GOTT: I am a 54-year-old male. I've had ED problems for about 10 years, resolved through the use of Viagra. But why? I do have low testosterone levels, for which I take injections, but for the most part I am healthy, fit, not overweight, a nonsmoker, a nonalcoholic-beverage drinker and, per my physician, do not suffer from any other cardiovascular problems. So why do I have blood-flow problems in this one department?

Horoscope

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Monday, May 10, 2010: This year, you often feel challenged by those closest to you. At times you could find this trend upsetting. Use criticism positively. If you are single, you could meet someone with whom you feel wonderful. Make sure you are seeing this person as he or she really is before deciding this is "it." If you are attached, the two of you need to share more, especially the social side of your life. SCORPIO often plays devil's advocate.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have been diagnosed with cat-scratch fever. Could you explain the disease and its side effects? How long will it last, and what treatment is available?

what is key is to remain content. SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) You might feel out of sorts and overwhelmed by a current situation. If you do, just detach and pull away. You could get a lot of personal or reflective work done.

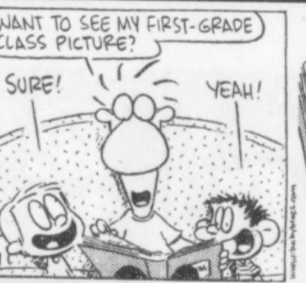

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) Share your ideas in a meeting, and make your choices accordingly. You'll go in a new direction, and you can move a situation in a new direction. Your sixth sense kicks in, though you might not want to share everything.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Be aware of undercurrents around different issues. People aren't always clear. Sort out a situation that surrounds funds and a work-related matter. Some of you might be thinking in terms of putting in overtime. Have a long-overdue talk.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Read past the obvious. You might not want to share everything that you see. Others might not be able to integrate your perspective.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Be aware of the conversation. What someone shares is for your ears only. Be discreet -- even more so with sharing your thoughts. Somehow, you might not be sure which way is best to proceed.

In Memory

Laurie Barlow
 8-20-61 5-8-09

When tomorrow starts without me, And I'm not here to see, If the sun should rise and find your eyes filled with tears for me.

I wish so much you wouldn't cry, the way you did today, While thinking of the many things we didn't get to say.

I know how much you love me, as much as I love you. And each time you think of me, I know you'll miss me, too.

But when tomorrow starts without me, Please try to understand, That Jesus came and called my name, And took me by the hand.

And said my place was ready in heaven far above, And that I'd have to leave behind all those I dearly love.

So when tomorrow starts without me, Don't think we're far apart, For every time you think of me, I'm right here in your heart.

Until we meet again,
 Your Family
