The facility only has one ramp design but is open for skateboard and bicycle enthusiasts during park hours of 8 a.m. to dusk. More ramps will arrive in the future. Helmets are strictly required, it was reported.

kid out here with a trainingwheel bike trying to do stuff on this," remarked Tab Brockman, Murray-Calloway County parks superintendent. "But this day is for several people on the skate park committee that was formed many years ago who just would not let the dream die, and I give a tip of my cap to those people today. They just kept pushing."

The biggest push came courtesy of the group for whom the park is named. The Murray Lions presented the park board with $25,000 a few weeks ago to help finance the park. Thursday, Jim Nance, chairman of the Lions' finance committee, gave backstory on how the Lions came to become involved with the project.

"Years ago, we thought we wanted to build our own club house, and for years we had a CD sitting in a bank. Eventually, though, we decided we don't need a clubhouse so we wanted to use it for something the community could use and we came to settle on this and it looks like it's going over pretty well so far," said Nance, who has at least one person totally in agreement with his statement about the reception of the park so far.

"This is awesome," said Michael Agnew, a senior student at Murray State University from Madisonville, who enjoys both skateboard and bike activity in such a venue. "Usually we have to go far away, like to Paducah, to do this, so we've been waiting a long time for one here. It looks like it has great structure to the ramp they have and they've got a couple more coming in. It's going to be a great place when it's complet-

Social media renders rapid judgment on presidential debate

By BETH FOUHY Associated Press

WASHINGTON (AP) — Big Bird is endangered. Jim Lehrer lost control. And Mitt Romney crushed President Barack Obama.

Those were the judgments rendered across Twitter and Facebook Wednesday during the first debate of the 2012 presidential contest. While millions turned on their televisions to watch the 90-minute showdown, a smaller but highly engaged subset took to social networks to discuss and score the debate as it unspooled in real time.

Until recently, debate watchers would have waited through the entire broadcast to hear analysis and reaction from a small cadre of television pundits. Social media has democratized the commentary, giving voice to a far wider range of participants who can shape the narrative long before the candidates reach their closing state-

"People still use old media to watch the debates, but they use social networks and other new media to have influence, voice opinions and be involved," said Scott Talan, an assistant professor of communication at American University who studies social media and politics. "Old media is not dead; it's growing. But now we have more people involved and engaged because of digital means.

The political conversation plays out across a range of social platforms, especially on the industry giant Facebook and on Twitter, the social networking hub where opinions are shared through 140-character comments known as tweets. Reflecting the changing times. many television analysts now monitor Twitter and Facebook feeds and use information gleaned from those platforms to inform their punditry.

Twitter announced shortly after Wednesday's debate that it had been the most tweeted event in U.S. political history, topping this year's Republican and Democratic National Conventions.

With 11.1 million comments. Wednesday's debate was the fourth most tweeted telecast of any kind, coming in just behind the most recent Grammy awards, MTV's Video Music Awards and the Super Bowl, according to William Powers. director of the Crowdwire, an election project of the social analytics firm Bluefin Labs. The project found 55 percent of the social comments about the debate were made by women, 45 percent by men.

Unlike the wider viewing audience, debate watchers who comment on social media "are politically engaged in the strongest possible way," Powers said. But, he added, "it's a bit of a hothouse population. It does skew younger, and I'm not sure how much middle America is represented."

Twitter scored Romney the debate's clear winner according to Peoplebrowsr, a web analytics firm. The group found 47,141 tweets mentioning Romney and "win or winner" compared to just 29,677 mentioning Obama and "win or very, very seriously ill and may die," Tennessee health official Dr. David Reagan said of the state's patients.

The incubation period is estimated at anywhere from two to 28 days, so some people may not have fallen ill yet, Tennessee health officials said. At three clinics in Tennessee, officials are contacting the more than 900 people who received the steroid in the past three months.

Investigators also have been looking into the antiseptic and anesthetic used during the injections. Neither has been ruled out. However, the primary suspicion is on the steroid medication. Steroid shots are common for back pain, often given together with an anesthetic.

In 2010, the Chamber hosted a Business@Breakfast for the purpose of staging a forum for Murray mayoral candidates Bill Wells and Butch Seargent. Allison said that as far as he knew, the Oct. 30 event would be only the second political forum the chamber has hosted and the first to feature candidates for state office. He said he thought it was especially important this year to give the candidates an opportunity to talk to the business community about their platforms because Republican Sen. Ken Winters and Democratic Rep. Melvin Henley, both of Murray, had both decided to retire once their current terms end this year. "We did a mayor debate in 2010, but that's the only time we've done it before," Allison said. "So I thought with a changeover completely - you know, somebody new is going to be in both those offices - I thought it would be neat to do it again. I'm going to take questions from members so we're not just doing plank speeches, so that we maybe can get some answers.

'Hopefully, they might be business-related questions that they could answer to kind of give the business community a feel of where they stand. So we're in the process of taking questions. We're not guaranteeing we're going to use them all, we just want to get as many as we can to see what we can do with them."

Allison said that with four candidates at the forum, the breakfast would likely take longer than usual, so it is scheduled to last until 8:45 a.m.

A federal grand jury in Louisville on Thursday charged 42-yearold Pedro "Peter" Bello of Miami, his sister, Caridad Bello of St. Louis, and her husband, Juan Hernandez of St. Louis, with conspiracy to commit wire fraud and money laundering in an effort to avoid paying $2 million to Kentucky in taxes on cigarettes.

Pedro Bello's attorney, Kent Westberry of Louisville, did not immediately return a message seeking comment. Caridad Bello and Hernandez did not have attorneys listed in the court record.

State investigating Scott school district

GEORGETOWN, Ky. (AP) — State officials are investigating a central Kentucky school district.

Scott County schools' board chair Phyllis Young told the Georgetown News-Graphic that an investigator from the Office for Education Accountability visited the district last week and questioned administrators, board members and site-based decision making councils. She said school officials were questioned about a 15 percent pay raise for the superintendent, a school board trip last year to Northern Kentucky University and hiring at middle schools. She declined to be more specific.

Investigator Karen Timmel-Hatzell confirmed that she visited the district, but declined to answer questions about the investiga-

Police said in a statement that they responded to a complaint that several child pornography images had been found at a home in Flatwoods. Church members watching building

LUDLOW, Ky. (AP) — The pastor of a northern Kentucky church has organized around-the-clock surveillance after repeated thefts of copper from the building.

It was unclear Thursday whether Raasch had an attorney.

Anglin said thieves also tore off a wire mesh cover to open a water spigot, causing a nearly 600 percent increase in the church's quarterly water bill to $1,700.

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) - The group Friends of Coal will continue its public relations campaign this weekend by serving as signature sponsor for the upcoming University of Kentucky vs. Mississippi State football game.

The organization has been trying to improve the image of the state's mining industry through such public outreach efforts.

Kentucky Coal Association President Bill Bissett said the campaign is aimed at educating people about the importance of coal in maintaining an affordable supply of electricity.

Bissett said Kentuckians have been responding favorably to the public relations efforts. More than 58,000 people have purchased "Friends of Coal" license plates.

Drought worsens in some farming states

ST. LOUIS (AP) - The nation's Kansas and Iowa, the nation's worst drought in decades is showing no sign of letting up in several key Midwest farming states, worrying farmers harvesting the summer's withered corn crop in record time that their winter crops may also be at risk. Overall drought conditions in the lower 48 states held steady over the seven-day period ending Tuesday, with about one-fifth of the total land area in extreme or exceptional drought, the two worst classifications, according to the U.S. Drought Monitor's weekly update of its drought map released

Thursday. Conditions worsened, though, in biggest corn producer, and nearly 98 percent of Nebraska was still deemed to be in one of the two worst categories.

The unrelenting dryness won't have much effect on the region's corn and soybean crops, which are already being plucked from the fields. But it could hurt other crops, such as winter wheat. According to the map, which is put out by the National Drought Mitigation Center at the University of Nebraska in Lincoln, 75 percent of Iowa is enduring extreme or exceptional drought. That's up roughly 10 percentage points from the previous week.

Scottish man dies, taking town's dialect with him

By RAPHAEL SATTER Associated Press

LONDON (AP) — In a remote fishing town on the tip of Scotland's Black Isle, the last native speaker of the Cromarty dialect has passed away, taking with him a little fragment of the English linguistic mosaic.

Academics said Wednesday that Bobby Hogg, who passed away last week at age 92, was the last person fluent in the dialect once common to the seaside town of Cromarty, about 175 miles (280 kilometers) north of Edinburgh.

"I think that's a terrible thing," said Robert Millar, a linguistics expert at the University of Aberdeen in northern Scotland. "The more diversity in terms of nature we have, the healthier we are. It's the same with lan-

Cromarty, which counts just over 700 people, is at the very end of a sparsely-populated peninsula of forest and farmland. It's separated from Inverness, the closest city, by the Beauly Firth, a wide body of cold water where salmon run and dolphins frolic.

The Cromarty dialect included a helping of Biblically-influenced "thees" and "thous" as well as a wealth of seafaring vocabulary (including three sets of words for "second fishing

The aspirate "h" was often added or subtracted, so that "house" would be pronounced "oos" and "apple" would be pronounced "haypel." The "wh" sound was often dropped entire-

A lexicon of Cromarty words, relying in large part on Hogg's speech, gave "Oo thee keepan?" as the town's translation of "How're you?"

The demise of an obscure dialect spoken by a few hundred people at the edge of Scotland may not register for most English speakers — "we'll all live," Millar said - but it's part of a relentless trend toward standardization which has driven many regional dialects and other local languages into oblivion.

Divided We Stood: Kentucky in the Civil War

'I have been brutally murdered'

By BERRY CRAIG

Around this date in 1862, bad blood was brewing between two Civil War generals that would end in fatal gunplay.

Both brass hats were Yankees. One had almost the same name as the Rebel president.

Gen. Jefferson C. Davis of Indiana shot and killed Gen. William O. "Bull" Nelson of Kentucky at the old Galt House Hotel in Louisville on Sept. 29,

The bizarre slaying triggered a rumor that the Confederacy's Jefferson Davis had somehow sneaked into town and assassinated Nelson, according to City of Conflict: Louisville in the Civil War 1861-1865 by Robert Emmett McDowell.

Anyway, a state historical society marker at Second and Main streets, the hotel site, commemorates the 1862 assassination, one of the strangest episodes in America's bloodiest war. (The current Galt House is at 140 N. 4th St.)

At 6-4 and 300 pounds, Nelson, from Maysville, was a big target. "He was said to be pretty mean and nasty-tempered, too," said George H. Yater, who wrote Two Hundred Years at the Falls of the Ohio: A History of Louisville and Jefferson County. Nelson hated Hoosiers, and

Davis was from Indiana. The two started feuding after the Confederates invaded Kentucky in August, 1862. The Rebel forces threatened

Louisville, where Nelson was in command. He charged Davis, who was under him, with incompetence. But Davis wasn't the only Indiana Yankee stung by Nelson's wrath. The Kentuckian claimed another Hoosier general's "stupidity and disobedience" lost the battle of Richmond, Ky., to the Rebels. Nelson was wounded in the fight. He also tried to hound an Indiana colonel out of the army, claiming the officer had "pusillanimously" run from the Rebels in a scrap at Lexington, McDowell wrote.

Never mind that Davis' parents were Bluegrass State-born. Nelson claimed Indiana was inhabited by "uncouth descendants of 'poor trash' from the mountains of Kentucky, Tennessee and North Carolina, according to McDowell.

Davis didn't confront Nelson were Indiana Gov. Oliver P. Morton, a powerful political ally of Lincoln; and Thomas W. Gibson, Louisville lawver and Indiana native,

McDowell

Davis told Nelson he had insulted him. He demanded satisfaction from the Kentucky giant. "Go away, you damned puppy," Nelson roared, according to McDowell. "I don't want anything to do with you."

Davis flipped a crumpled hotel card in Nelson's face. Nelson slapped Davis, then walked toward the stairs.

Enraged, Davis grabbed Gibson's pistol and shot the unarmed Nelson in the chest. Nelson managed to climb the steps, but collapsed at the top. "Send for a clergyman," McDowell quoted the general's dying whisper. "I wish to be baptized. I have been brutally .murdered.'

Nelson died minutes later.

Davis pleaded self-defense though Nelson was weaponless. He was briefly jailed but released and restored to duty. He fought in several battles and survived the war.

Kentucky Unionists were outraged when Davis was not punished for shooting Nelson. They charged that the Hoosier got away with murder thanks to his friend Morton, who used his political pull to prevent a trial. McDowell said the governor helped perpetrate a "cold-blooded and cynical miscarriage of justice." He praised Nelson as a hero who was "murdered with impunity.'

Acclaimed session guitarist Big Jim Sullivan dead at 71

LONDON (AP) — Acclaimed session guitarist Big Jim Sullivan, who played on dozens of hits in the 1960s and 1970s, has died, his wife said Thursday.

Norma Sullivan said that Sullivan had died at their home in West Sussex, England, on Tuesday. He suffered from heart disease and diabetes and had stopped performing live recently because of his health problems.

Sullivan learned guitar as a teenager and turned professional when he was just 16. He played with many of the biggest names in British pop at the height of the "Swinging London" era.

Along with Jimmy Page, who would later star in Led Zeppelin, Sullivan was one of the most indemand session guitarists of his era. His website lists sessions with the Tom Jones, Marianne Faithfull, David Bowie, Gerry and the Pacemakers and many others. He claimed to have played on more than 1,000 singles that entered the British charts.

Sullivan's website said he joined his first band, the Wildcats, at age 17, in 1958. which he described as "the early days of rock and roll in this coun-He said he and his friends were fifth annual 4-H National Youth Science Day (NYSD), The Ohio State University Extension has designed the 4-H Eco-Bot Challenge: the 2012 National Science Experiment. The experiment will introduce youth to robotic engineering concepts as they program an autonomous robot to clean up a simulated environmental spill.

■ 4-H Youth Demonstrate

Environmental Responsibility On Oct. 10, young people across the nation will become scientists for the day during 4-H National Youth Science Day. In this year's experiment, the 4-H Eco-Bot Challenge, youth will enhance their engineering skills by assembling their own Eco-Bots and surface controls to manage an environmental clean-up. Youth will then test the interaction between the Eco-Bot's design features and various surface control configurations to determine the most effective clean-up solution for the simulated spill.

Throughout the year, 4-H Science programming researched and developed by the 111 land-grant colleges and universities across the nation that oversee 4-H youth development programs in every state -provides youth with an opportunity to take on science challenges and understand the impact of the top issues that face their region.

■ 4-H High-Quality Positive Youth Development

With high-quality positive youth development programs like 4-H NYSD, youth are introduced to highly relevant concepts and solutions that will ensure their contributions to their communities today, and their success as global leaders tomorrow. Youth development scholar, Dr. Richard Lerner, works with researchers at the Institute for Applied Research in Youth Development at Tufts University to conduct the 4-H Study of Positive Youth Development. The longitudinal

As the nation looks to address study has found that, when important environmental issues, compared to their peers, young people involved in 4-H are: Nearly two times more likely to get better grades in school; nearly two times more likely to plan to go to college and nearly three times more likely to participate in science, engineering, or computer technology programs.

> By connecting important scientific lessons to civic engagement, 4-H youth become a living, breathing, culture-changing movement for doing the right thing, breaking through obstacles and pushing the country forward to successfully face the challenges of the future.

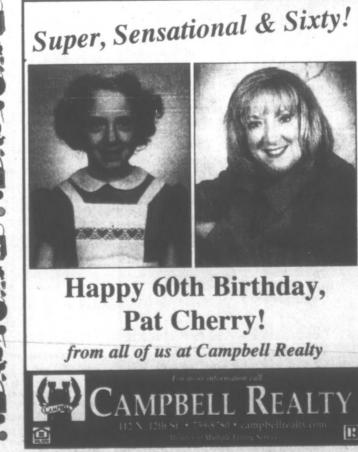

One Million New Scientists. One Million New

For more than 100 years, 4-H has been at the forefront of teaching youth about science, engineering and technology. 4-H National Youth Science Day is an important annual part of 4-H's One Million New Scientists, with a bold goal of attracting one million new youth to science, engineering and technology programs by the year 2013.

Now entering its fifth year, 4-H National Youth Science Day seeks to spark an early youth interest and leadership in science. Currently, more than five million young people across the nation participate in 4?H science, engineering and technology programming in topics as varied as robotics, rocketry, wind power, GPS mapping, agricultural science, water quality and biofuels.

Goshen United Methodist Church homecoming set Special to the Ledger

One hundred seventy-eight years ago, in 1834, under the leadership of Clough Anderson Warterfield, his brother Peter Fletcher Warterfield and Daniel Frazer, a house of worship for the benefit of the members of the Methodist Episcopal Church was constructed. The church leaders named the church Goshen after the land of Goshen referred to in Genesis 45:10, "You shall live in the land of Goshen so that you can be near me with all your children, your grandchildren, your flocks and herds, and all that you have"

In 1867, a new frame building was erected to replace the original log structure. The log church was moved approximately one-half mile to the south and was subsequently used to begin the community school. Fire soon destroyed the newly constructed frame church. The third structure was completed in 1877. This structure served as a place of worship for the community until it was torn down in 1914, to make room for a new building. In the spring of 1955, under the leadership and spiritual guidance of the Rev. Leslie C. Lee, the Goshen congregation felt the need for and approved the construction of a modern brick building; this building included Sunday school.

rooms, a kitchen, a pastor's study, restrooms, and a recreational hall. The building committee was composed of Pat Jones (Chairman), Lennis Hale, James A. Parker, Groover A. Parker, and Otto W. Swann. This new structure was placed to the east of the original site. Today, a granite marker marks the original site of Goshen Methodist Church. In 2004, under the leadership of the Rev. Mark Earheart, the church broke ground for a family fellowship center. The new structure includes six classrooms, nursery, restrooms, kitchen, pantry, and fellowship hall and is located directly behind the church. The building committee was composed of Marlene Beach, Carol Brunn, Pat Brunn, Bobby Etheridge, Robert Doyle, Purdom Lovett, Brian Maynard, Steve Sexton (co-chairman) Tom Villaflor (co-chairman), and Kathy West.

On Sunday, Oct. 7, Goshen United Methodist Church will celebrate 178 years of service to the Lord with its special homecoming service. The Rev. Kendrick Lewis, former pastor, will speak at the 11 a.m. worship service. The Rev. Lewis served the Kirksey-Goshen Charge from 1997-2003. The Rev. David Allbritten, current pastor will introduce the speaker. The pastor and congregation extend a special invitation to descendants of the founders' families.

Guests will be greeted by Marlene Beach and Jackie Cassity. Acolytes for the special service will be Emily Brunn and Brittney Lane. Young people's church will be directed Ashley Barnard. Tom Villaflor will serve as the liturgist. Choir director, Tina Sexton will direct the congregational singing with Renee Doyle and Pat Brunn as accompanists. The church choir, under the direction of Tina Sexton, will sing "Precious Lord, Take My Hand" and "Where the Soul Never Dies'

A pot luck meal will be served in the Family Fellowship Center at 12:15 p.m. The church's scrapbooks and other historical items will be on display in the Family Fellowship Center for guests and members to view.

On the 178h anniversary of Goshen United Methodist Church, let us remember Hebrews 13:8 (NIV) "Jesus Christ is the same yesterday and today and forever." Goshen Church, as in the past, stands ready to serve the Lord's Kingdom. We look to the past with pleasure, and may we look forward with hope. We enter to worship and depart to serve.

"Due to the extreme drought LBL and the region experienced, visitors can expect leaves to be changing several weeks earlier than normal. Fall colors should reach their peak by early to mid-October," explained Dennis Wilson, Forester at Land Between The Lakes.

Temperature, light, and water supply triggers the natural process of leaves turning from green to a variety of colors. This also influences the degree and duration of fall color. The timing of the color changes also depends on species. Blackgums and sumacs usually turn first. Tulip poplars, sweetgums, sassafras, and maples follow soon after. Oak leaves turn last, long after other species have already shed their primarily hardwood species. Certain colors are characteristic of particular species. Blackgums, sumacs and Virginia creepers turn bright shades of red; sassafras turns a brilliant orange; tulip poplars and hickories turn shades of yellow. Oaks turn red, brown, or russet. Maples and sweetgums display the most vibrant colors of fiery reds, yellows, and oranges.

Sales parties take advantage of loyalties among friends

DEAR ABBY: Your column has been a fixture in my life. Thank you for the smiles and the tears. My dilemma: I received yet

Of course that's not exactly entirely true because it's a sales party, and "guests" are pressured in various ways to buy the product. People often buy things they don't need or want because they fear they'd be disloyal to the hostess if they

When I was growing up, my father said, "You don't invite friends to your house to sell them things." Maybe Dad was on to something.

Abby, how should unwanted invitations be handled? -- IRKED IN INDIANA

DEAR IRKED: Continue to decline the invitations. Tell the hostess you have "a conflict" and cannot change your plans. (You don't have to give any details.)

P.S. To ease your conscience, your "conflict" can be your plan to watch your favorite "I Love Lucy" rerun on TV.

DEAR ABBY: I'm wondering what I should do when my biological father dies. He and my mother divorced before I was born. I've had little contact with him, but my older sister and brother lived with him growing up and are close to him.

My mother died 20 years ago, and afterward I tried to get to know him, but he didn't want to know me. He never paid child support. Both he and my mother remarried. I was fortunate to have a loving stepfather, and I was very close to him until his death.

When the time comes, I am considering not going to my birth father's funeral. I have not told my sister how I feel because she thinks he is the greatest. I think he is a dirt ball.

What do you advise, under these circumstances? -- CONFUSED IN SIOUX CITY

DEAR ABBY: Several years ago, when I read one of your letters about pennies from heaven, I laughed about it to myself. My sister-in-law had died a few months earlier and I said, "OK, Sharyn, if you're there, send me a penny from heaven."

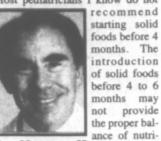

Abby, the next day when I arrived at work, there on my keyboard was a perfectly placed penny. And for weeks afterward I kept finding more pennies. Finally I had to say, "OK, Sharyn, I get it." And the pennies stopped. -- A BELIEVER NOW IN SOMERS,

Babies can begin eating solid foods after 4 to 6 months

DEAR DOCTOR K: When should I start giving my baby solid foods? Will starting solids too early increase her risk of food

DEAR READER: Breast milk or iron-fortified infant formula provides all the nutrients your baby needs for the first 6 months. Most pediatricians I know do not

Dr. Komaroff ents -- and it may increase the risk of Dr. Anthony your infant's Komaroff developing food allergies.

Before you begin, discuss the introduction of solid foods with your pediatrician. Most recommend one of the iron-fortified infant cereals, such as rice, oatmeal or barley, for the first food. These types of cereals are least likely to cause allergies. Mix the cereal with breast milk or formula.

Watch for signs and symptoms of allergy, such as rash, wheezing, stomachache, diarrhea, gas, fussiness or vomiting. True food allergies are rare, but if you notice any of these things and suspect an allergy, stop giving the food in question and call your pediatrician. Keep these things in mind:

Add only one new food at a time. Wait from five to seven days between new foods so that you have time to watch for a possible allergy. (Choose a longer interval if you have a strong family history of allergies.)

-- Commercially prepared baby foods are nutritious and safe for

-- You also can make your own baby food. Except for bananas, all fruits and vegetables should be cooked first and then pureed. Do not add salt, sugar or other seasonings. Refrigerate or freeze homemade baby food right after

-- Do not feed your baby directly from a jar unless you plan to use the entire jar at one meal. That's because the spoon will contain bacteria from the baby's mouth, and if you leave some of the food in the jar for a future meal, the food may be ruined by the bacteria. So if you aren't going to use the whole jar for one feeding, then use a clean spoon to place the food you are going to feed the baby into a clean bowl. Refrigerate opened jars of

Wait until your infant is at least 1 year old to give foods that commonly cause allergies: egg whites, peanut butter, other nut butters, oranges, grapefruit, other citrus fruits, shrimp, lobster, other shellfish.

Do not give honey to your infant before 1 year; honey can cause life-threatening food poi-

-- Finally, don't give your child solid foods that could get stuck in the child's windpipe and cause choking until the child is at least 3 years old. I'm referring to foods such as raw carrots, grapes, popcorn, raisins, nuts, jelly beans, pieces of hot dog, hard candies.

This may all seem like obvious advice, but you'd be surprised how often parents make these mistakes. Usually no harm is done, but the child has been put at unnecessary risk.

WEEDS GET WHACKED

VINEGAR Dear Heloise: When there are WEEDS

Heloise in the cracks of our driveway. I use vinegar to kill them. The next day, they are drying up, and eventually, no more weeds. It works great. - Lorena S., Plymouth, Ind.

Lorena, this is a cheap, Earthfriendly way to keep weeds not only out of the driveway, but from between cracks in the sidewalk or steppingstones. Just pour or spray full-strength vinegar on any unwanted weeds around your home. This is one of many cost-saving hints in my vinegar pamphlet. Want to know even more? Order my pamphlet by sending $5 and a long, selfaddressed, stamped (65 cents) envelope to: Heloise/Vinegar, P.O. Box 795001, San Antonio, TX 78279-5001. CHANGING COVERS Dear Heloise: I love my smartphone and the different covers I can use. It can get quite expensive to constantly change the cover. I found a way without the cost. I bought a clearcover and cut scrapbook paper to fit inside it. Now I can easily change it out to reflect my mood or outfit. It works well with photos, too. Just be careful not to cover any ports or the camera! Love your column. Wendi, via email

RECIPE HOLDER

Dear Heloise: I had trouble keeping a recipe book or even a copy of a page from a recipe book handy so that I could easily read it and put the recipe together. At my annual girl's lunch, I mentioned my dilemma, and my friend Laura came up with the best solution ever!

She suggested that I get one of the skirt or pants hangers from the closet. Use one that is nice and sturdy, whose clips are strong and tight. Then put the hanger over a knob on an upper cabinet and attach the book or page to it! Oh my gosh it worked fabulously Marlene R., via email

TRAVEL HINT

Dear Heloise: I save the wire hangers from the dry cleaners and take them with me when I travel. Most hotels provide only a couple of hangers, and between my wife and me, we usually need more than that. There is no stress, either, if they get left behind. - Tim in Oregon

RACERS LOOK FOR FIRST ROAD WIN AGAINST LOWLY 0-5 GOVERNORS, WILL TRY TO DUPLICATE LAST WEEK'S SCORING BARRAGE

From MSU Athletics Murray State has not had any problems scoring against Austin Peay in the Chris Hatcher era. Through two games, the Racers have scored 117 points in a pair of victories. They scored 61 points in their last visit to Governors Stadium in 2010, and put 56 on the board last season at Stewart Stadium.

Offense is not the only way the Racers are putting points on the board over the last four years against the Govs. The Racers defense has scored in each of the last four meetings. After getting a safety in 2008, Austen Lane returned an interception for a touchdown in 2009, Dontrell Johnson returned an interception in 2010 and Qua Huzzie (fumble) and Julian Whitehead (interception) each scored last sason.

Junior Walter Powell is coming off a career game as he had 10 catches for 162 yards and a touchdown, while also returning a punt 70 yards for a touchdown. He ranks 9th in the FCS in punt returns (14.75), 2nd in receptions per/game (10.20) and 10th in receiving yards per game (108.80).

The Racers scored 10 touchdowns in the victory over Tennessee Tech. It is the second time they have scored 10 touchdowns in a game, and the second time it has happened in the Chris Hatcher era.
