Tourism spending in Calloway County reported up in 2012

Growth exceeds state average

Special to the Ledger

In keeping with a statewide trend, the annual survey of tourism spending in Kentucky shows an increase in Calloway County in 2012. All nine of the state's tourism regions registered gains for 2012 compared with 2011.

According to the Kentucky Department of Travel and Tourism's annual economic impact study, tourism expenditures in Calloway County rose 6.2 percent in 2012. The state's average growth from 2011-2012 was 4.4 percent. The 2012 total expenditures for Calloway County were $71,994,967, up over 2011's $67,486,531.

Erin Carrico, executive director of the Murray Convention & Visitors Bureau said, "The dollars spent by visitors have strengthened our local economy by creating jobs, supporting local businesses and generating tax revenues. Last year was very big for tourism in Murray. We had a nationally-ranked MSU basketball team. We hosted multiple sporting events that brought overnight stays, including the Kentucky Senior Games, a USTA (United States Tennis Association) Kentucky tournament and an FLW Tour Stop, which is a national event. On top of that, Murray was awarded the Friendliest Small Town in America by Rand McNally and USA Today mid-way through the year. There is no denying the impact that had on tourism spending."

Carrico

Tourism is one of Kentucky's top industries, with an annual economic impact in 2012 of more than $12.2 billion, an increase of 4.4 percent from 2011.

The annual survey also showed that tourism was responsible for 174,006 jobs in Kentucky in 2012, an increase of 4,078 jobs from the previous year. These jobs generated more than $2.7 billion in wages for Kentucky workers, an increase of $117 million from 2011.

Tourism generated $1.227 billion in tax revenues for local and state governments in 2012, an increase from $1.223 billion in 2011.

"The Kentucky tourism industry continues to do well, which is good news for all of us," Gov. Steve Beshear said. "These figures illustrate the importance of tourism in Kentucky as well as in communities big and small across the Commonwealth."

The release of the figures coincides with National Travel and Tourism Week, celebrated May 4-12 this year.

The survey was produced for the Kentucky Tourism, Arts and Heritage Cabinet by Certec Inc. of Versailles. More details about the tourism economic impact study are available at www.kentuckytourism.com/industry.

IT'S THE END OF THE YEAR ... GIVE 'EM A BREAK: Murray Middle School eighth-grade student Hal Bogard eats a pair of strawberry wafer cookies Wednesday as he participates in the cookie-eating contest that was part of Field Day activities at Murray-Calloway County Chestnut Park. The rather unusual event was part of a full day of competition that allowed the students to let off some steam after enduring standardized testing and finals in the final days of the school year.

Biomass crops, use focal points for MSU

By EDWARD MARLOWE
Staff Writer

It is not every day you hear wood shavings, wheat straw, sorghum, switchgrass and miscanthus described as energy-and-cost efficient crops wielding enough power to heat barns, enhance ethanol and provide feedstock for farm animals.

However, step into the Hutson School of Agriculture or the Department of Science, Engineering and Technology at Murray State University, and suddenly it is all you can do to not talk about the major innovations taking place in the region involving biomass crops and technology.

Merriam-Webster Dictionary describes biomass as "plant materials and animal waste used especially as a source of fuel," but Loretta Daniel, director of the Business and Innovation Center at MSU, said the research being conducted at MSU may lead to so much more.

At the forefront of the West Kentucky AgBioWorks project, which is helping facilitate a regional and multi-state network of farmers and businesses to commercialize bio-energy crops, is Murray State.

Ragsdale comforts children with Bears, Blankets and Books

By HAWKINS TEAGUE
Staff Writer

Several charities in and outside of Calloway County have been grateful to one local woman over the last year for her work helping displaced children feel more comfortable with three simple items — a bear, a blanket and a book.

Murray resident Mayda Ragsdale started Bears, Blankets and Books in 2011. It is a small program that she organizes herself with the help of donations to comfort children who have to enter a shelter or foster care, whether for a short or longer period of time. Each child who benefits from the program receives a drawstring bag that contains a stuffed Teddy bear, a blanket and a kids' book. Ragsdale brings the bags when needed to several area charities, including Gentry House homeless shelter in Murray; Merryman House Domestic Crisis Center, which has its headquarters in Paducah and an outreach center in Murray; the Department of Community-Based Services in Calloway County; and the Purchase Area Sexual Assault and Child Advocacy Center, which has offices in Murray and Paducah. ## House panel set to OK cut in food stamp program

By MARY CLARE JALONICK
Associated Press

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Agriculture Committee is considering a five-year farm bill that would make small cuts to the $80 billion-a-year food stamp program.

The cuts are part of massive legislation that costs almost $100 billion annually and would set policy for farm subsidies, rural programs and the food aid. The House panel started work on the legislation Wednesday, one day after the Senate Agriculture Committee approved its version.

The House bill would cut about $2.5 billion a year — or a little more than 3 percent — from the food stamp program, now known as the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program, or SNAP. The legislation would achieve the cuts partly by eliminating an eligibility category that mandates automatic food stamp benefits when people sign up for certain other benefit programs.

Last year more than 47 million people used the SNAP program, or about 1 in 7 Americans, with the cost more than doubling since 2008. The rolls rose rapidly because of the economic downturn, rising food prices and expanded eligibility under President Barack Obama's 2009 economic stimulus law.

Republicans criticized Obama in last year's presidential campaign for his expansion of the program, and many House conservatives have refused to consider a farm bill without cuts to food stamps, which make up about 80 percent of the bill's cost.

The Senate approved much smaller cuts to the program, about $400 million a year. House Agriculture Committee Chairman Frank Lucas, R-Okla., will have to appease all sides as he tries to push the farm bill through for the third year in a row, balancing calls from House conservatives to cut the program with Senate Democrats who are reluctant to touch it.

"I expect it to come from all directions," Lucas said last week of the food stamp debate.

The House bill would cut around $4 billion a year from food aid and farm spending, while the Senate bill would trim roughly $2.4 billion. Those reductions include more than $600 million in yearly savings from across-the-board cuts that took effect earlier this year.

Much of the savings in the House and Senate bills comes from eliminating $5 billion in annual direct payments, a subsidy frequently criticized because it isn't tied to production or crop prices. Part of that savings would go toward the deficit reduction, but the rest of the money would create new programs and raise subsidies for some crops while business is booming in the agricultural sector.

The Senate bill would eliminate direct payments immediately, while the House bill would phase out payments to cotton farmers, who rely on the program, over the next two years.

Like the Senate bill, the House measure also includes concessions to Southern rice and peanut growers who also depend on direct payments. The bills would lower the threshold for rice and peanut subsidies to kick in when prices drop.

There are protections for other crops as well. Both bills would boost federally subsidized crop insurance and create a new program that covers smaller losses on planted crops before crop insurance kicks in, favoring Midwestern corn and soybean farmers, who use crop insurance most often.

Lucas made no apologies for broadening some farm programs.

"Let's give certainty to an industry that has been a bright spot in an otherwise dismal economy," he said Wednesday as he opened the committee meeting.

Bears, Blankets...

From Front

University and was taking the university's introductory youth and non-profit leadership class in the fall of 2011 when she received an assignment in which she had to help a cause for which she had passion. She said she wanted to help children in need of comfort, but at first had a hard time figuring out how she wanted to proceed. She said she prayed about it and had the idea after she woke up one morning.

"I knew bears, blankets and books bring comfort to a child in need," she said. "I knew I wanted to give a bear so that they would have someone to tell their secrets to or give a hug to. I wanted to give them a book because often children escape into reading. But also, if your mom read to you and you end up in a domestic violence shelter, sitting in her lap and her reading to you would bring a sense of normalcy and comfort to you. And I wanted to give them a blanket because my children, as many children do, had a certain blanket that they carried everywhere. You could hide under it if you needed to or you could draw it around you for comfort.

"I knew I wanted to put it in a backpack because children in those situations have to move often sometimes and they have to move quickly, so I wanted them to have something to take to take their items with them, and I wanted them to know that, 'This belongs to you. When you move, you get to keep it with you.'"

After working on it for several months, Ragsdale brought her first bag to Merryman House in June 2012. At first, she collected donated items from friends and family members, but since then, several student organizations and churches have also helped collect donations. So far, she has put together a total of about 150 bags. If the organizations need additional bags, they just call her, she said.

IRS probe into Tea Party leads to Miller resignation

By STEPHEN OHLEMACHER
Associated Press

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hurrying to check a growing controversy, President Barack Obama ousted the acting commissioner of the Internal Revenue Service late Wednesday amid an outcry over revelations that the agency had improperly targeted tea party groups for scrutiny when they filed for tax-exempt status.

Obama said Treasury Secretary Jacob Lew had asked for and accepted Steven T. Miller's resignation. Obama made no public criticism of Miller but spoke of inexcusable "misconduct" by IRS employees and said new leadership at the agency was critical.

"Americans are right to be angry about it, and I am angry about it," Obama said in a televised statement from the White House. "I will not tolerate this kind of behavior in any agency but especially in the IRS, given the power that it has and the reach that it has into all of our lives."

Miller's ouster came five days after an IRS supervisor publicly revealed that agents had improperly targeted groups with "tea party" or "patriots" in their applications for tax exempt status. It came a day after an inspector general's report blamed ineffective management in Washington for allowing it to happen for more than 18 months.

The report said tea party groups were asked inappropriate questions about their donors, their political affiliations and their positions on political issues, resulting in delays averaging nearly two years for applications to be processed.

Miller's departure hardly ends the matter. Three congressional committees are investigating, and the FBI is looking into potential civil rights violations at the IRS, Attorney General Eric Holder said earlier Wednesday.

Other potential crimes include making false statements to authorities and violating the Hatch Act, which prohibits federal employees from engaging in some partisan political activities, Holder said.

Miller, a 25-year IRS veteran, took over the agency in November, when the five-year term of Commissioner Douglas Shulman ended. Shulman was appointed by President George W. Bush.

Obama has yet to nominate a permanent successor. A new acting commissioner was not announced Wednesday evening.

In an email to employees, Miller said, "This has been an incredibly difficult time for the IRS given the events of the past few days, and there is a strong and immediate need to restore public trust in the nation's tax agency. I believe the service will benefit from having a new acting commissioner in place during this challenging period."

In Lew's letter asking for Miller's resignation, Lew wrote that the inspector general's report "has created an urgent need to restore public trust and confidence in the IRS by installing new leadership for the service."

At the time when tea party groups were targeted, Miller was a deputy commissioner who oversaw the division that dealt with tax-exempt organizations.

The report by the Treasury inspector general for tax administration does not indicate that Miller knew conservative groups were being targeted until after the practice ended. But documents show that Miller repeatedly failed to tell Congress that tea party groups were being targeted, even after he had been briefed on the matter.

Biomass crops...

From Front

As such, Daniel said MSU has established a demonstration site at the Garrett Conference Center, in which a biomass burner was installed during winter 2012 to help heat the building.

With the assistance of $309,000 provided by the Kentucky Energy and Environment grant, Daniel said the next step for MSU will be the installation of two 500K BTU units at the Instructional Equine Center at the start of the warming season for 2013-2014 — generally in October most years.

With the arrival of burners, Daniel said, comes the follow through, as a local and mobile training center are both in the plan moving forward.

"We'll be working actively to test the burners and seeing what works and what doesn't," Daniel said. "We'll be conducting pod research, burning equine waste and collecting applied research data to teach MSU students and industries about the possible applications."

Daniel said a broader picture is already forming in Murray — beyond the units, the school farms are working with regional farmers trying to grow the biomass crops, in turn using the crops in multiple ways.

"We're starting to form a complete, closed-loop system," she said. "Plant, grow, harvest, heating and application...all right here in the same location."

Helping close the loop, Daniel said, is the local business called LEI Products, which has provided the burners for the Hutson School of Agriculture.

Based out of Madisonville, Daniel said the college had been looking for several years for a company with the cutting edge technology and know-how to get this project off the ground.

"And it's right in our backyard," she said.

Missing juvenile found safe in Old Fine Arts at MSU

Staff Report

A juvenile, who was reported missing Wednesday morning, was found unharmed later in the afternoon.

The Calloway County Sheriff's Office said it received a call at about 10 a.m., in regards to a missing juvenile that possibly had run away from home. Units responded to the Murray Estates subdivision.

The CCSO said it was determined that the juvenile had run away from home at about 5 a.m. This prompted a response from Calloway County Fire-Rescue, the Calloway County Office of Emergency Management, Kentucky State Police and Murray State University police.

Later, additional investigation showed that the juvenile was possibly on the MSU campus. A search of the Old Fine Arts building on the campus then resulted in the juvenile being located in one of the music practice rooms. The juvenile was unharmed and was released to the custody of parents, the CCSO reported.

Brick Garden will honor Elkins couple

Special to the Ledger

The Murray-Calloway Endowment for Healthcare will dedicate the Spring Creek Health Care Brick Garden in honor of Calloway County Judge Executive Larry Elkins and wife, Janie., at 11 a.m. Wednesday at Spring Creek located at 1401 S. 16th Street.

"We are honored to recognize Judge Elkins and his wife Janie for their donation in helping us create a beautiful area where residents and families can enjoy the outdoors," said Keith Travis, vice president of Institutional Development at MCCH.

The Elkins' have had multiple family members that have been residents at the facility. Judge Elkins, who visits regularly, has always put focus on keeping Spring Creek updated and continually improving the quality of care. He was also instrumental in combining long term care services that were previously at MCCH and West View into one location.

"The Judge has always been the biggest supporter in Calloway for Spring Creek and no one deserves this honor more. I really appreciate both Janie and Judge Elkins for supporting our residents, employees, and the families of both," said Sandra Dick, VP of Spring Creek Health Care.

Dedication bricks can honor or memorialize a loved one, or celebrate and commemorate a special occasion in your life. If you are interested in learning more about naming opportunities available with the Endowment for Healthcare, contact Travis at 762-1908.

Kentucky News in Brief

Act to halt dam fishing restrictions passes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Senate has passed a bill that includes legislation aimed at halting controversial fishing restrictions near Cumberland River dams.

U.S. Sens. Mitch McConnell of Kentucky and Lamar Alexander of Tennessee, both Republicans, said Wednesday a measure they sponsored to halt the restrictions passed as part of the Water Resources Development Act.

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers has begun implementing a ban on fishing from boats both above and below Cumberland River watershed dams, in areas known as headwaters and tailwaters. The Corps has said the ban is for the safety of boaters, but fishermen in Kentucky and Tennessee have been vocal in their opposition to losing access to what they say are prime fishing spots.

The legislation would delegate enforcement of fishing restrictions to state wildlife agencies, taking it out of the hands of the Corps.

Beshear active in seeking McConnell challenger

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Gov. Steve Beshear says he's part of efforts to recruit a Democrat to challenge Senate Minority Leader Mitch McConnell in next year's election in Kentucky.

Beshear told reporters Wednesday that McConnell is vulnerable as the Republican prepares to face voters in his bid for a sixth term.

Secretary of State Alison Lundergan Grimes, seen as a rising star in Democratic ranks, is considering a Senate bid but has given no timeframe for making a decision.

Beshear says others may be pondering a run against McConnell. He says he doesn't know who the Democratic nominee will ultimately be.

Meanwhile, tea party activist David Adams says McConnell will face a tea party challenger in the GOP primary.

Adams says two possible candidates are weighing the race, and one of them will join the campaign.

Campaign to back health exchange

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Gov. Steve Beshear's administration is planning a campaign to publicize Kentucky's health benefits exchange ahead of the enrollment period for people seeking health coverage.

The exchange will help more than 600,000 uninsured Kentuckians arrange coverage under the Affordable Care Act.

Beshear said Wednesday that staff will attend community events, open a toll-free hotline and update the exchange website. The goal is to spread the word about the program to expand coverage in a state with daunting health problems.

Beshear says the outreach will be backed by an advertising campaign.

The exchange will offer a website that's supposed to make picking health insurance similar to buying an airline ticket from an online travel site.

Beshear says the result will be a healthier state.

A lawsuit is challenging the legality of the Kentucky exchange.

Lourdes closes transitional unit

PADUCAH, Ky. (AP) — Lourdes Hospital in Paducah is closing its transitional care unit and a spokesman says as many as 30 jobs have been "consolidated."

The Paducah Sun reported hospital spokesman David Simmons declined to say whether the people holding the management and nonclinical positions still work at Lourdes. However, Simmons said affected employees are encouraged to apply for 40 vacant positions at the hospital.

Simmons said all patients now in Lourdes Transitional Care will complete their care at reputable nursing homes.

In an emailed statement, Simmons stated the future of health care calls for transforming the way Lourdes practices medicine.

He declined to say how many people work at Lourdes, but the Paducah Area Chamber of Commerce said the hospital employed 1,550 in 2012.

Troopers hope to solve slaying for family

CAMPBELLSVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Kentucky State Police investigators are hoping to solve a 25-year-old slaying of a trooper for the daughter he never met.

Police are still searching for who shot and killed 34-year-old Trooper Johnny Edrington on Dec. 20, 1988 about seven miles west of London. His death is one of only two unsolved slayings of a trooper in Kentucky.

Edrington's daughter, Callie, was born months after the fatal shooting. She knows her father only through photos and the stories of others.

After a memorial for Edrington on Wednesday at Campbellsville University, the slain trooper's sister, Barbara Curtis, says her niece is still emotional about the death.

The memorial took place on National Peace Officers Memorial Day, which marks the passing of law enforcement officers who died while on duty.

Hazel Spring trash pickup scheduled

Special to the Ledger

As in previous Hazel Spring trash pickups, all items must be placed along the street in front of residential property not more than 20 feet from the edge of the street. The contractor will pick up the following: appliances, furniture, scrap metal, bundled limbs and brush, lawn clippings, etc.

The contractor will not pick up: old tires, batteries, hazardous waste of any kind, household garbage (food), used oil, etc. The city advises residents to have trash out for pick up by Monday since the contractors will be picking it up in grids, and it is not known where they will begin.

This is an annual service paid for from the general fund of the City of Hazel. This service is provided to residential property only and is not meant to be a substitute for regular household trash removal. Business and industrial waste is not included in this pick up. This service is provided only for residents located within the city limits of Hazel, it was reported.

The recipient of a 2011 Ruth Lilly Fellowship, Wicker has also held fellowships from Cave Canem, the Fine Arts Work Center, and Indiana University where he received his MFA. A reception and book signing will follow in the Faculty Club and is open to the public.

LowerTown artists' cultural exchange to be held Saturday

Special to the Ledger

PADUCAH, Ky. — The Paducah artists who traveled to Innsbruck, Austria as part of an artist-in-residence cultural exchange will present a talk and share photos of their experience at 3 p.m. Saturday at the Yeiser Art Center, 200 Broadway.

Printmaker Freda Fairchild, ceramist John Hasegawa, ceramist/fiber artist Lily Liu, abstract artist Paul Lorenz, 2D multimedia artist Teri Moore — all of Paducah — and May Wong of Florida were invited to exhibit their work at the Imperial Palace at Innsbruck, Austria as part of Project Wide West. Wide West is an art project for cultural exchange between foreign and local artists in cooperation with the Burghauptmannschaft of Austria, the ceramic association IKSIT and schools in Innsbruck. As part of the program, the Paducah artists were required to conduct 20 hours of workshops for students at various schools in Innsbruck.

Paducah's cultural connection and exchange with Innsbruck, a city deep in the Alpine Mountains, is a direct result of Paducah's Artist-in-Residence Program. Paul Lorenz met Elisabeth Melkonyan, fiber artist and curator at the Imperial Palace, at an international art event in Innsbruck in 2010 where Lorenz was exhibiting. Their meeting resulted in Melkonyan's participation in Paducah Arts Alliance (PAA) artist-in-residence program in 2011. Melkonyan was enthralled with Paducah and the quality of artists she encountered during her residency. Upon her return to Austria, she maintained contact with her American creative cohorts and facilitated the inclusion of select artists in the "Wide West" exhibit.

Fairchild, Lorenz, Liu and Moore will conduct the power point presentation as part of Second Saturday. Teri Moore will display an 8-foot-wide drawing of the mountains and her view of the Austrian environment during the talk at Yeiser. The City of Innsbruck had voiced interest in keeping the large drawing which was executed on paper and gesso; however, Moore was not satisfied that the drawing was complete. She brought it back to Paducah to put the final touches on it before it returns to Innsbruck.

A sampling of the work that was seen at the Imperial Palace is on display at Miska Studio, 627 Madison and studioMARS, 418 North Seventh Street.

Ice House Gallery presents 'Just Gourds' exhibition

Special to the Ledger

MAYFIELD, Ky. — For the month of May, The Ice House Gallery presents an exhibition of sculptures by Frederick Merida made entirely from gourds. Merida's work in this sculpture medium is so masterful, the viewer might be fooled into thinking the pieces were crafted from clay, metal, or wood. The wonderful depictions of animals, birds, and anthropomorphic figures reveal the potential of the gourd as a material and show off Merida's skill.

Merida has been active as an artist since 1954. As an entrepreneur, he ran an art gallery business in Louisville, Kentucky from 1964 to 1982. After that, he did antique shows until 1999. He has been a corporate art curator, consultant and a professional certified fine art appraiser.

In 1989, he and his wife moved to Graves County where they spent several years restoring an old farm house. He is an award-winning artist, and he was one of the original organizers of the annual Gourd Patch Arts Festival in Mayfield. He has spent the last several years devoting his time to making wood and gourd sculptures.

Glover to present slide shows, films at MAC

Special to the Ledger

PADUCAH, Ky. — Actor/director Crispin Glover ("Back to the Future," "River's Edge," "Willard") comes to Maiden Alley Cinema May 27 and 28 with his Big Slideshow and two films followed by post-screening Q & A and book signings.

At 7 p.m. Monday, May 27, the theater will present "Crispin Hellion Glover's Big Slide Show Part 2" and "It Is Fine! Everything is Fine!" For the slide show, Glover performs a one-hour dramatic narration of eight different profusely illustrated books as the images from the books are projected behind him.

"It Is Fine! Everything is Fine!" which was an official selection of the 2007 Sundance Film Festival, goes into uncharted cinematic territory with the late screenwriter Steven C. Stewart starring in this disturbing, semi-autobiographical story.

On Tuesday, May 28, Glover's appearance continues with "Crispin Hellion Glover's Big

Glover

Slide Show Part 1" and "What Is It?" "What Is It?" is a bewildering, unnerving, surreal, blackly comic film that tells the inner and outer struggles of a young man facing villains and demons on multiple planes.

The theater issued the following disclaimer about Glover's appearance: "The ideas and images being utilized in the performance as well as films are of an explicit nature. Please take care in purchasing your tickets as there will not be any refunds. No one under 18 will be allowed."

MURRAY STATE VOLLEYBALL Racers release 2013 schedule

From MSU Athletics

Eight home matches and three trips to the state of North Carolina highlight the 2013 Murray State volleyball schedule released by head coach David Schwepker on Wednesday.

Head coach David Schwepker said of the schedule, "I think this schedule is going to put us in a great position for the OVC portion schedule." "If use the early season tournaments to our advantage", said Schwepker, "and learn and grow from them, I think we will be in the position to have a successful OVC campaign."

The Racers will kick-off their 2013 slate on August 30-31 at the North Carolina Central Invitational in Durham, N.C. The season opener will take place on August 31 in Durham against regional foe Evansville.

Murray State will return to North Carolina the following weekend when they take part in the Spartan-Aggie Invitational in Greensboro, N.C., hosted by UNC Greensboro and North Carolina A&T.

On Sept. 13-14, Murray State will travel to Dayton Ohio for the Wright State Tournament, followed by a final trip to North Carolina on September 20-21 for the High Point University Classic. The Racers will also have two stand-alone non-conference matches this season, a September 10 contest at Evansville and a September 17 affair at Southern Illinois.

The Racers will open OVC play on September 27 when they travel to Cookeville for a date with Tennessee Tech. On October 5, MSU will host its first of eight home matches at Racer Arena this season against last year's OVC regular-season champion Morehead State.

The last home game of the season will be on November 12 against OVC rival Austin Peay. On November 16, the Racers will close out their 2013 campaign on the road at Eastern Kentucky. The 2013 OVC Volleyball Championship will take place November 21-23 at the site of the regular-season champion.

RACER SENIOR TRAVELS TO FAYETTEVILLE FOR NCAA REGIONAL

By RICKY MARTIN
Sports Editor

Patrick Newcomb isn't kidding when he says he has to win.

Good thing the Murray State senior can't play golf any other way.

Primarily a team event, this week's NCAA golf regional in Fayetteville, Ark. only awards one individual spot into the NCAA Championship later this month in Atlanta.

So to qualify for the tournament-of-all-tournaments, Newcomb has to finish as the lowest scorer not on a top-5 finishing team.

Simple enough, says the two-time Ohio Valley Conference Player of the Year.

"I'm excited," he said Tuesday morning, en route to The Blessings Golf Club in Fayetteville. "I have to win this. At first I knew I just had to get here, because it's my last year."

"I wanted a chance, I wanted an opportunity to play with the big schools. This is it for me."

Newcomb earned a spot in this week's regional after claiming his second-straight OVC title. The senior will tee-off at 9:20 a.m. today for the 54-hole event, which concludes Saturday.

As a tune-up for this week's event, Newcomb competed in a qualifier for the US Open in Springfield, Ill. His even-par 72 was one stroke short of forcing a seven-way playoff for four qualifying spots at the event.

Murray State's Patrick Newcomb will tee off at 9:20 a.m. today in the NCAA Golf Regional in Fayetteville, Ark. Newcomb, a senior, is the two-time defending Ohio Valley Conference Champion and two-time league Player of the Year. A win this week would assure him a berth into the NCAA Championships later this month in Atlanta.

Newcomb with one final competitive scenario entering this week's NCAA regional, and he says he hasn't changed much of anything over the past couple of weeks.

"I'm a big believer in sticking with what you did to get there," he said. "I've worked a little more since school has been out, but that's just the norm when you don't have to go to class or take tests or anything like that. It gives you a little more time.

"I've just a little bit more time to practice, that's all."

That's a chilling thought for any of his opponents.

Newcomb says he hasn't given much thought to his Racer legacy yet, but does know this weekend could add one more impressive chapter to an already illustrious novel.

"I don't know what my legacy is or will be. I've never really thought about it," he said. "I do know that I want to keep adding to it, though. I've really enjoyed the ride, it's been a lot of fun being at Murray State."

"Everyone has been behind me."

And that's usually where Newcomb keeps people -- behind him.

In his storied, four-year career with the Racers, Newcomb has never lost a tournament in which he held the lead.

While some golfers cringe at the idea of pacing the field, Newcomb thrives and relishes in it.

"I haven't given up a lead in college," he recalls. "If I've had it, I've kept it. If I'm playing well enough to have the lead, then I'm playing well enough to win the golf tournament, so mentally it's

COLLEGE ATHLETICS

Rutgers makes Louisville's Hermann AD

By DAVID PORTER
Associated Press

PISCATAWAY, N.J. (AP) — Rutgers named Julie Hermann its new athletic director Wednesday, and the former No. 2 athletic administrator at Louisville promised a restart for the scandal-scarred program following the ouster of its men's basketball coach and the resignation of other officials.

Hermann replaces Tim Perneti, who quit last month after the firing of basketball coach Mike Rice. Practice videos surfaced of Rice shoving and throwing basketballs at players and yelling gay slurs at them.

"No one on the coaching staff doesn't believe that we need to be an open book, that we will no longer have any practice, anywhere at any time, that anybody couldn't walk into and be pleased about what's going on in that environment. It is a new day. It is already fixed," Hermann said at a news conference Wednesday.

Hermann will be paid $450,000 annually as a base salary with $50,000 in incentives and $35,000 contributed to a deferred compensation plan, according to a university release.

Perneti received $1.2 million in salary, plus an iPad, car allowance and more than two years of health insurance coverage under a settlement agreement, according to documents released under open public records laws.

Hermann had been senior associate athletic director at Louisville. She becomes the first woman to head Rutgers' athletic program and one of three female ADs at the schools which make up the 124 playing at college football's top tier.

Rutgers will join the Big Ten in 2014, and Hermann said the Scarlet Knights won't try to match schools like Michigan dollar for dollar. The athletics program already has come under criticism from some corners of the university for spending millions on expanding its football stadium while cutting some non-revenue sports.

"We do not need to spend what Michigan spends; I don't know how they spend all that money," Hermann said. "We will do more with less. That's what we did at Louisville. We need to be really smart stewards of the money that we have."

At Louisville, Hermann supervised marketing and brand management. Prior to Louisville she coached Tennessee women's volleyball for six seasons and was an assistant coach for USA Volleyball in 1997.

Rutgers President Robert Barchi called Hermann "a remarkable leader" and praised her involvement in Louisville's moving from Conference USA to the Big East and from the Big East to the Atlantic Coast Conference.

Rutgers' problems started in December when Rice was suspended three games and fined $75,000 by the school after a video of his conduct at practices was given to Perneti by Eric Murdock, a former assistant coach.

The video showed numerous clips of Rice firing basketballs at players, hitting them in the back, legs, feet and shoulders. It also showed him grabbing players by their jerseys and yanking them around the court. Rice can also be heard yelling obscenities and using anti-gay slurs.

The controversy went public in April when ESPN aired the videos and Barchi admitted he didn't view the video in the fall. Rice was fired and Perneti, assistant coach Jimmy Martelli and interim senior vice president and university counsel John Wolf resigned.

Derby winner Orb faces friend in Preakness

By MIKE FARRELL
Associated Press

BALTIMORE (AP) — Kentucky Derby winner Orb and Illinois Derby champion Departing played together as foals in the lush pastures of Claiborne Farm in central Kentucky.

It will be all business on Saturday, though, when the horses meet for the first time on the racetrack in the $1 million Preakness Stakes.

Orb is aiming for the second jewel of the Triple Crown, and a chance three weeks later at the Belmont Stakes to become the first horse to sweep the series since Affirmed in 1978.

Departing, it turns out, could be Orb's main obstacle as the leading "new shooter" in the Preakness.

"New shooters" are the fresh horses who bypass the Kentucky Derby and join the Triple Crown two weeks later at Pimlico. Departing, 4-0-1 in five starts, is the top newcomer.

"I think Departing is a pretty darn nice horse, and he's fresh; probably coming into the race the right way," said Shug McGaughey, Orb's trainer.

Preakness post positions will be drawn later Wednesday. Besides Orb and Departing, the probable lineup includes Goldencents, Governor Charlie, Itsmyluckyday, Mylute and a trio from trainer D. Wayne Lukas: Oxbow, Will Take Charge and Tittletown Five.

The fact that Orb and Departing have a prior connection adds spice to this showdown. The two rivals are homebreds, meaning the breeders retained the horses for racing instead of selling at auction.

The two ownership groups are of members of racing's aristocracy.

Cousins Ogden Mills "Dinny" Phipps and Stuart Janney III bred Orb. Ogden Phipps, Dinny's father, ran a racing empire that included nine champions, among them Buckpasser, Easy Goer and the undefeated filly Personal Ensign. Janney's parents owned the great filly Ruffian.

The Phipps Stable has about 100 horses, including 20 co-owned with Janney. The stable does not go to sales, like many owners today, to pick out their horses. Instead, they breed their own, and currently have 25 mares at Claiborne Farm in Paris, Ky.

That is where the Orb and Departing connection developed. Orb and Departing were foaled at Claiborne, a leading breeder for over 100 years that has been the birthplace of 10 Derby winners.

The two youngsters grew up in the same barn, and galloped

HORSE RACING

Orb draws rail as 1-1 favorite Saturday

By DAVID GINSBURG
AP Sports Writer

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Preakness draw was over, and trainer Shug McGaughey listed a variety of reasons why he was OK with having Kentucky Derby winner Orb starting Saturday's race from the rail.

Then someone asked him, "If you had your choice, where would you want to be?" Without hesitation, McGaughey responded, "The outside."

Despite getting the inside post in Wednesday's draw, Orb was made an even-money favorite to win the Preakness and keep alive his bid to become horse racing's first Triple Crown winner since Affirmed in 1978.

"I saw it bounced around in the papers that we would be 4-5," McGaughey said. "I am a little surprised that with him being even money, with the next shot was 5-1. That's a pretty good spread. We'll see what the public does. Like I always say, I wish every horse I run would be the favorite."

Championship, the dispute has shifted from players to volunteer marshals.

It started Saturday in the third round when Woods was deep in the trees, some 50 yards to the left of Garcia in the fairway. Woods pulled a 5-wood from his bag to play a high-risk shot through a gap in the trees, and the crowd cheered his decision — right about the time Garcia was playing his shot.

Woods said marshals told him Garcia had already played his shot.

Asked about the poor shot he hit that led to bogey, Garcia said that Woods should have known the Spaniard was about to hit, and he suggested that Woods might have instigated the disruptive cheer. Woods said later Saturday that Garcia didn't have all the facts.

The brown colt is looking for his sixth straight victory as part of the smallest Preakness field since 2007. Governor Charlie, trained by Bob Baffert, added his name to the list Wednesday for the 1 3/16th-mile race.

Starting from the inside won't help, but McGaughey reasoned it's a lot better than getting the No. 1 post at Churchill Downs for the Derby.

"It's not nearly the problem it would be in the Derby," he said. "The Derby is kind of catty-cornered. You got to shove your way out of there or you get shut off down in there. It's pretty straightforward here. There are only nine horses. There's not going to be that kind of jockeying into the first turn. We'll just hold our position and see how the race plays out."

Still, the last horse to win the Preakness from the inside post was Tabasco Cat in 1994. That was the lone winner from the rail in the last 52 runnings of the race. Starting from the rail is a disadvantage because, if a horse does not get out in front from that spot, it can easily get pushed to the back of the field by the other competitors.

"He'll get a clean break and he'll be able to sit where he wants to sit," McGaughey said. "If he's good enough he'll be able to make that run, and hopefully he gets there."

Mylute, the second favorite at 5-1, hopes to take advantage of working out the No. 5 post.

"The draw was great. We're in the middle and we've got Orb and Departing inside of us, which is great because we can watch and see what happens," said Todd Quast, general manager of GoldMark Farm, co-owner of Mylute. "Our horse ran the same race Orb did in the Derby but was three to four lengths behind him. So this time, maybe if we can stay a little closer to him at the beginning, we can maybe turn the tables on him. No disrespect to him, he's a fantastic horse, but I think our horse is pretty good too."

Not to mention, Orb is on the rail.

"We need to make up three or four lengths, and that may be one of the factors that helps us," Quast said.

Orb won the Derby by 2 1/2 lengths, so he remains the horse to beat — even from the rail.

"I don't know that the rail's all that bad," said Hall of Fame trainer D. Wayne Lukas, who has three horses in the race — Oxbow, Will Take Charge and Titledown Five. "Orb is still the one to beat."

The field, from the rail, with odds in parenthesis: Orb, Goldencents (8-1), Titledown Five (30-1), Departing (6-1), Mylute (5-1), Oxbow (15-1), Will Take Charge (12-1), Governor Charlie (12-1) and Itsmyluckyday (10-1).

Lukas was delighted with the post positions drawn by his three entrants.

"I love mine. I thought it was real good," he said. "Oxbow for a change got inside a little bit. He'll be forwardly placed. We shouldn't have any trouble. I'm going to have to come up with a different excuse when we get beat."

update on its website Wednesday that it had a follow-up interview with North, who said with an earpiece in one ear, it was possible that other officials had an exchange with Woods that he didn't hear. North said his statement about "lacking character" was based on his understanding that no marshal had said anything to Woods.

Woods' agent, Mark Steinberg, said in a statement that the comments from the marshals in the Florida Times-Union story "definitively show that Tiger was telling the truth about being told Sergio had hit. I hope this demonstrates to some reporters the importance of accuracy and not jumping to misplaced conclusions."

actually easier.

"When you are playing well, it's easy. So when I'm in the lead I know I'm playing well enough to win and I'm not really worried about where the ball is going."

Usually, it's heading for the cup.

Newcomb played a practice round at Blessings Wednesday, but prior to that had no clue what the course would hold in store.

All he knew was that it's a tough course, and that was a reason to smile.

"It's extremely tough, and that will play to my benefit," he said. "I don't need to play an easy golf course and have to make a bunch of birdies. I have the ability to do that, but playing at a really tough golf course and just having to hit good, quality shots and shoot around even par is kind of my game."

"If I can consistently shoot around par or 1 or 2-under, that's a great score. And from what I've been told, that's what this golf course is."

Newcomb will have an extra guest this week at Blessings in his father Monty, who missed the OVC Championships because of illness. Monty was Newcomb's caddy for both of his Kentucky State Amateur titles.

"Having (Monty) there is going to be awesome," Newcomb said. "This is kind of my last go-around, this is kind of it. He's been coming to tournaments since my freshman year, watching me all the way up through high school and this week is kind of like a culmination of the last eight years."

"My ultimate goal is to make it to the national championships and have a chance to win there. That's the end goal. That's what I want to do."

through the same pastures. If history is a guide, Orb will eventually return to Claiborne as a stallion when his racing career concludes.

Departing, gelded when he failed to focus on his early training, will not join his childhood friend in that assignment.

Departing is latest in a long line of stakes winners for Claiborne, best known recently for Blame, the horse who pinned the first — and only — career defeat on champion mare Zenyatta in the 2010 Breeders' Cup Classic.

Following a third place finish in the Louisiana Derby, the ownership team of Claiborne and Adele Dilschneider, along with trainer Al Stall, Jr., removed Departing from Kentucky Derby consideration.

"After that race we said, well, the Derby's just too tough and he's a gelding and we're looking for quite a bit of longevity out of him," Stall said. "We didn't even really consider it, to be quite honest with you."

Departing instead headed to Hawthorne Racecourse, rallying from ninth in the Illinois Derby to win by 3/4 lengths.

The Preakness became the next logical stop.

"After he ran such a good race, then we started considering the Preakness," Stall said. "So we just fell into that."

And into a showdown between the former playmates.

Orb has carved his name into racing history in the Derby. Stall hopes Departing does the same in the Preakness.

"A nice 3-year-old will raise his hand and say, you know, 'I want to get better and I'm going forward,' and he certainly gives us every indication that he's that type of horse," he said.

That could set the stage for a replay of 1988 when the Phipps' Seeking the Gold, trained by McGaughey, and Claiborne's Forty Niner squared off. Forty Niner edged Seeking the Gold by a nose in both the Haskell Invitational and the Travers.

"We went through it before with Seeking the Gold and Forty Niner, so it's not something that I'm altogether not used to," McGaughey said. "Departing is a very worthy participant in the Preakness, and just as we do, they've got every right to be there. I hope we both have some good racing luck."

Angelina Jolie says she had double mastectomy

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Angelina Jolie says that she has had a preventive double mastectomy after learning she carried a gene that made it extremely likely she would get breast cancer.

The Oscar-winning actress and partner to Brad Pitt made the announcement in the form of an op-ed she authored for Tuesday's New York Times (http://nyti.ms/17o4A0f) under the headline, "My Medical Choice." She writes that between early February and late April she completed three months of surgical procedures to remove both breasts.

Jolie, 37, writes that she made the choice with thoughts of her six children after watching her own mother, actress Marcheline Bertrand, die too young from cancer.

"My mother fought cancer for almost a decade and died at 56," Jolie writes. "She held out long enough to meet the first of her grandchildren and to hold them in her arms. But my other children will never have the chance to know her and experience how loving and gracious she was."

She writes that, "They have asked if the same could happen to me."

Jolie said that after genetic testing she learned she carries the "faulty" BRCA1 gene and had an 87 percent chance of getting the disease herself.

She said she has kept the process private so far, but wrote about it with hopes of helping other women.

"I wanted to write this to tell other women that the decision to have a mastectomy was not easy. But it is one I am very happy that I made," Jolie writes. "My chances of developing breast cancer have dropped from 87 percent to under 5 percent. I can tell my children that they don't need to fear they will lose me to breast cancer."

Phone and email messages left by The Associated Press late Monday night seeking comment from Jolie representatives were not immediately returned.

She is anything but private in the details she provides, giving a description of the procedures.

"My own process began on Feb. 2 with a procedure known as a 'nipple delay,'" she writes, "which rules out disease in the breast ducts behind the nipple and draws extra blood flow to the area."

She then describes the major surgery two weeks later where breast tissue was removed, saying it felt "like a scene out of a science-fiction film," then writes that nine weeks later she had a third surgery to reconstruct the breasts and receive implants.

Many women have chosen preventive mastectomy since genetic screening for breast cancer was developed, but the move and public announcement is unprecedented from a star so young and widely known as Jolie.

She briefly addresses the effects of the surgery on the idealized sexuality and iconic womanhood that have fueled her fame.

"I do not feel any less of a woman," Jolie writes. "I feel empowered that I made a strong choice that in no way diminishes my femininity."

She also wrote that Brad Pitt, her partner of eight years, was at the Pink Lotus Breast Center in Southern California for "every minute of the surgeries."

Bertrand, Jolie's mother, died in January 2007. She had small roles in the movies "Lookin' to Get Out" in 1982 and "The Man Who Loved Women" in 1983. She raised Jolie and her brother after divorcing their father, Oscar-winning actor Jon Voight, when Jolie was a toddler.

Jolie has appeared in dozens of films including 2010's "The Tourist" and "Salt," the "Tomb Raider" films and 1999's "Girl, Interrupted," for which she won an Oscar.

But she has appeared more often in the news in recent years for her relationship with Pitt and her charitable work with refugees as a United Nations ambassador.

Meanwhile, CNN anchor Zoraida Sambolin announced Tuesday that she has breast cancer and is getting a double mastectomy.

Sambolin, who anchors CNN's "Early Start" morning show, talked about her condition on the show Tuesday.

Horoscope

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Friday, May 17, 2013:

This year you will curb a tendency to be grumpy or touchy, as that behavior could undermine the quality of your year. You will hit a financial high, but with more money coming in, you also might increase your spending. If you are single, you have great potential to meet someone you really can communicate with. This relationship could evolve into more, if you choose. If you are attached, both of you enjoy your time together more and more. Make time for special dates and getaways as a couple. LEO remains a loyal friend.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
*** If you feel as if you are investing too much in a key area of your life -- whether it is time, emotionally or financially -- stop. Consider initiating a discussion with the other people involved. You could learn a lot as a result. Tonight: Communication remains vital.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
***** You could be overwhelmed by a situation and want to express your frustration in anger. Many people will stop and take notice of your fiery display, as it is rare for you to lose your temper. Be willing to make a caring gesture if you hurt someone's feelings. Tonight: Be yourself.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
***** Your instincts guide you. You need to express your feelings in a way that others can hear. Once you are acknowledged, good will and upbeat choices will follow. Do not allow your anger to build -- just be the cooperative Twin. Tonight: Out and about with loved ones.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
***** Observe what is going on behind the scenes. You might have a sense that everything will work out fine. A friend displays quite a temper. This person does not express his or her anger often, but when he or she does, step back. Tonight: Listen to what is not being said.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
***** You could be put off by someone's actions. You are likely to say so in a harsh manner, which potentially could cause a lot more uproar. Use your sunny personality to express your discomfort so that it doesn't trigger any problems. Tonight: Get together with friends.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
*** You could be irritated by a miscommunication. You might need to bite your tongue and not say what you think until later. You need time to think. Touch base with an older friend, and ask for his or her advice. Good news is forthcoming. Tonight: Off doing your own thing.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
***** Just be yourself, and everything will fall into place. Try to work through a conflict by understanding where the other person is coming from. You could feel slightly off-kilter until you do. You are a sign that rarely is comfortable with disagreeable emotions. Tonight: TGIF!

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
*** You have a knee-jerk response, which often can be a problem, especially when harsh words are the result. Keep in mind that the wittier your words are, the more likely they will be remembered! Optimism surrounds a relationship. Tonight: Have fun till the wee hours.

by Jacqueline Bigar

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
***** You have a fiery personality right now. Try to funnel your frustration into a project or some other activity. You might need to make a change. Detach, and you will be delighted by incoming news or an offer. Say "yes" to an adventure. Tonight: Do something different.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
*** You enjoy relating to one specific person, be it personally or professionally. The energy that exists between you will open doors and allow more options than you originally thought possible. A money-making opportunity could come forward for both of you. Tonight: Add in some spice.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
***** Many people don't agree with you, but your friends enjoy your company and far-out ideas. Your popularity soars. You also have the opportunity to strengthen a bond. Others trust you more than you might realize; your integrity counts. Tonight: Where the action is.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
***** You are determined to complete a project. You're even willing to take it home this weekend to work on it if it need be. A close friend might offer to pitch in, and you could be surprised at how much fun you have while working together. Tonight: Play it relaxed.

Woman needs courage to end man's plan for future together

DEAR ABBY: I am a divorcee with college-aged children. I love my children, and I thought I loved my ex. However, after my divorce I wonder if I'm capable of loving anyone other than my children again.

Two years after the divorce I started a relationship with a man who is 10 years older. He had recently ended a long-term dating/living together relationship. I wasn't particularly drawn to him, but he was very persistent. We finally, jokingly, agreed to be "exclusively casual" and began dating. My children don't dislike him; they are indifferent to him.

We have been dating for six years. I do not love him. He, however, professes to adore me and wants us to spend our lives together. I do NOT want this to go on any longer. I have some serious health issues and I'm not interested in having him as my caretaker. He has already made plans for us to be together for this. I don't want him doing this for me.

He's a good man. He deserves someone who wants the devotion he is so willing to give. How do I tell him to move on? I'm financially stable. He's not after my money; he's very comfortable on his own. Many of his friends think I take advantage of his feelings. I don't want to be in this position any longer. Any advice you could offer would be a gift. -- DRAGGING MY FEET IN TEXAS

DEAR DRAGGING YOUR FEET: The longer you put this off, the harder it will be, and if you don't open your mouth you are going to find yourself in exactly the position you say you don't want to be. The magic words are: "John, I have enjoyed your friendship, but I'm not in love with you. I had hoped that as time passed I would fall in love with you, but it hasn't happened and now I realize it isn't going to. I want to deal with my health issues on my own. I don't want you to be my caretaker. What I DO want is to end our relationship so you can find a woman who will love you the way you deserve to be loved. Sadly, that's not me -- but I wish you well and ... goodbye."

Do not expect him to welcome this, but those are the words that will set you -- and him -- free.

DEAR ABBY: I am a veteran and while I have spent this past year in school, I can't seem to connect with any of the younger students there. It's disheartening, to be honest, and I feel it's part of the reason I can't enjoy school at my age (23) after all my experiences in combat.

I can't decide whether to drop out and join a private security company, or tough it out and deal with these kids who don't take education seriously. I miss work at the same time. Any thoughts? -- TORN IN MILFORD, CONN.

DEAR TORN: The students you describe are at a very different level of maturity than you -- and I don't mean chronologically. After having experienced combat, you have a different perspective on what's important in life than someone who hasn't been tested.

You have EARNED the right to a college degree, so please don't waste the opportunity. If you complete your education, you will have more career options than if you quit now. If you feel you want to go into security work after graduation, that option will still be open. Others may not be.

Calcium supplements may not be right for men

DEAR DOCTOR K: I'm a man in my 60s. I've been taking a calcium supplement to protect my bones, but I recently read that men shouldn't take calcium supplements. Why not?

DEAR READER: I wish I could give you a clear answer. Several recent studies have raised a question about whether regular use of calcium supplements might be bad for the heart. The bottom line: It's too early to know if this risk is real.

There's no doubt that we need calcium. It helps muscles to contract, blood to clot and nerves to communicate. And it plays an important role in building strong teeth and bones. As a result, many people take calcium supplements for bone health.

One new study followed the health of nearly 400,000 men and women. The study was published in the medical journal JAMA Internal Medicine. At the study's start, the participants reported how much supplemental calcium they took. From diet surveys, the researchers estimated how much calcium the study participants were getting from food.

During 12 years of follow-up, men who took more than 1,000 milligrams (mg) of supplemental calcium per day were 20 percent more likely to succumb to heart disease than those who didn't take calcium supplements. But there was no connection between calcium supplements and heart disease in women, and there was no connection with calcium from food.

Another recent study that followed more than 61,000 women in Sweden was published in the medical journal BMJ. Among women who took more than 1,400 milligrams per day of calcium supplements, the risk of premature death was more than doubled -- particularly death from heart disease.

Both of these studies, and others that have pointed in a similar direction, involve large numbers of people and were carefully conducted. Yet they are observational studies, and you can't make judgments about cause and effect from such studies. They clearly showed that men and women who took relatively high doses of calcium supplements had higher risks. But that doesn't prove that the calcium supplements were the cause of higher rates of heart problems and death.

Surely, these studies don't mean that you should forsake all calcium. Everyone needs calcium to keep bones strong, taken in conjunction with the bone-building vitamin, vitamin D. Losing calcium weakens bones and leaves them more prone to breaking. (I've put a table listing the daily recommended intakes of calcium and vitamin D on my website, AskDoctorK.com.)

With the safety of calcium supplements in question, try to get as much calcium as possible from food. Good calcium sources include:

- Low-fat milk and cheese;
- Calcium-fortified orange juice or soy milk;
- Breakfast cereals (which are also fortified);
- Leafy greens, particularly, kale, turnip greens and Swiss chard. (Go easy on spinach. It is high in iron, which tends to block calcium absorption.)
- Sardines and other canned fish with bones included.

I'm sure there will be more research studies on this important question. I'll keep you posted.

CLEAN BOTTLES

Dear Heloise: I wanted to wash a bottle, but I had no bottle brush.

Rice was the answer. I shook a mixture of soapy water and raw rice in the bottle. The rice gave the scrubbing action needed to get the bottle sparkling again. -- Bonnie B. in Indiana

DETER DANGER OF UNATTACHED ITEMS

Dear Readers: Is the furniture in your home a POSSIBLE HAZARD to young children? Did you know that TVs, appliances and furniture falling on children is an extreme hazard? According to the Consumer Product Safety Commission, every two weeks (on average) a child dies from an unsecured item tipping over and landing on him or her. Here are some hints on how to prevent this tragedy from occurring in your home:

* TVs should be securely hung (on a wall) out of reach, or placed on a stable, secure stand or base, and as far back as possible.

* Keep electrical cords out of reach so children cannot pull them and the objects attached to them onto themselves.

* Anchor ANY furniture, such as TV stands, bookcases and dressers, or any other high, heavy, free-standing furniture or appliance, to the wall so it cannot fall over.

* Don't place small items on the furniture that a child might try to reach for (such as remote controls).

FREE CARDBOARD

Dear Heloise: At the big warehouse stores where merchandise (especially cereal boxes, etc.) is stacked on pallets, the stores put large cardboard pieces between each layer of merchandise. These make great poster board for kids' art projects, science reports and other projects. The best part is that they are free! -- Gloria H. in California

Gloria, you are right! Two warehouse stores that were contacted said absolutely! One asked that you call ahead so that cardboard can be set aside, because the pieces don't stay around for long. The other store stated that a customer can just take what he or she finds while walking around the store shopping. The cardboard is free for members, but one store reuses it in the store, and the other recycles it when not needed. -- Heloise

NECKLACE HOLDER

Dear Heloise: Years ago, a friend, after seeing all my necklaces tangled in a drawer, gave me an idea: Why not take the "head" off an old-fashioned rake? We did, painted it and hung it on my bedroom wall. The end of it has twisted metal to form a hole, which makes it easy to put a nail through. Hang it so the "teeth" face out, and then hang your necklaces on the teeth to keep tangles away. -- Virginia J. in New Jersey

COLOR-COORDINATED

Dear Heloise: I never thought I would have a hint for you, but a friend of mine suggested that I send you this timesaving one. To get the color top I want, I hang my navy-blue tops on a blue hanger and my black tops on a black hanger. -- Neda T. in Pennsylvania
