Ky. Senate bill on midwifery grabs attention of MCCH Board
By MORGAN WILLIAMS
Staff Writer

Murray Calloway County Hospital CEO Jerry Penner mentioned a senate bill that has been received and reported favorably that could be detrimental to the hospital if it passes through the House and Senate.

"I'm really nervous about Senate Bill 85," Penner said. "It has to do with lay midwives and it makes me nervous because a lay midwife could come and take care of a patient, deliver the baby and be responsible for the care of the child up to six weeks afterward. That would include the circumcision or anything that needed to happen."

"The downside is that we are covered by EMTALA (Emergency Medical Treatment and Labor Act)," Penner said. "Let's say this baby goes into fetal stress during delivery or the mother goes into postpartum hemorrhage - in this case, moments count."

"I don't want to take anything away from birthing at home, I know a lot of it is a financial thing, but there's a reason we have gone from frontier medicine to where we are today."

Penner said that if there is a prolapsed uterus or a ruptured

Local Republicans count down days leading to caucus
By JOHN WRIGHT
Staff Writer

Calloway County's chairman for the Republican Party's Kentucky presidential caucus said Wednesday that he is telling voters not to look at the March 5 event as something that causes nerves to fray.

"What I tell everyone who comes up to me is this; when it all comes down to it, you're voting like it's any other election," said Bill Cowan, who was put in charge of the county's preparations for the caucus which marks history in Kentucky politics.

The Calloway portion of the caucus will be from 10 a.m.-4 p.m. on the 5th at the George Weak's Community Center on Poplar Street between South Sixth and South Seventh streets in downtown Murray.

This marks the first time in Kentucky for a separate caucus to happen for just a political

FIVE OFFICIALLY REMAIN: Kentucky Republicans will have the opportunity to vote for a total of 11 candidates in the March 5 presidential caucus. However, five of those candidates are officially still in the hunt for the GOP nomination. From left are business tycoon Donald Trump, Ohio Gov. John Kasich, Texas U.S. Sen. Ted Cruz, Florida physician Dr. Ben Carson and Florida U.S. Sen. Marco Rubio. Calloway County Republicans will have their chance to cast their votes from 10 a.m.-4 p.m. March 5 at the George Weak's Community Center in Murray.

Cable Commission keeps eye on state Supreme Court case
By JOHN WRIGHT
Staff Writer

A case the Kentucky Supreme Court has said it will hear more than has the attention of the City of Murray Cable Commission.

Chairman John Yates said during Wednesday's monthly Commission meeting that the case involves the Commonwealth's telecommunications tax that went into effect in 2006. He said that the state Court of Appeals recently ruled that tax unconstitutional because it prohibits local governments from collecting telecommunications franchise fees.

"At the time, it looked it was doing cities a favor. The state would collect the tax, then pass through money to the cities," Yates said. "Well, there was just one problem; they froze that amount and for cities that have grown, like Murray, it did not account for that growth."

"There was a provision in that previous law that an excise tax of 3 percent could be collected, but it also allowed for municipalities to collect 5 percent. Well, the way things have been has been based on that 3 percent and that's a lot of money for a city."

By ADAM BEAM

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Kentucky's Medicaid program is facing a $125 million deficit this year and a $611 million deficit over the next two years as it struggles to keep up with an aging population, a flood of new enrollees and the end of 100 percent federal funding for its expanded eligibility requirements.

This was the last of five properties to be demolished on both Vine and Mulberry streets to prepare those lots for possible business development. In fact, last week the Murray Planning Commission approved a request from the properties' owners to rezone the property to B-4 (medium density business) from R-2 (single family residential), a measure that the Murray City Council will consider during its meeting tonight. placenta, the mother is going to bleed out real quick and if they're at home, they're not going to make it to the hospital fast enough.
 "I've seen real-world situations where this stuff happens, it's just reality of the human body," Penner said. "I'm just afraid a lay midwife would not know how to handle that. I could just see our own morbidity and mortality rates suffering from this change."
 Penner said that there are pediatricians and obstetricians that are vehemently against this and that EMTALA provisions would require the hospital to take in a mother and child and have an on-call doctor come in. He added that the doctor coming in would have zero prenatal knowledge of this mother or the situation.
 "There is a lot of support behind this, but from my perspective and the perspective of the hospital, this would be a non-starter in Calloway County," Penner said. "I didn't think it would get out of committee, but right now it has the support of 16 senators, not including our senator Stan Humphries."

 This topic was met by dismay by the Board who asked who was supporting this and why.
 "It can be a financially backed, people claiming that it is expensive to birth in a hospital," Penner said. "Midwives are supporting it, of course. I support the use of midwives alongside a physician, but this seems like a very dangerous bill."
 Specifically, the senate bill would create the Kentucky Board of Midwifery, provide licensure and administrative regulation requirements regarding the practice of midwifery, establish a trust and agency fund to be administered by the board to implement the licensure of midwives and set forth informed consent requirements for patient care.
 The entire bill can be read online at lrc.ky.gov. The next MCCH Board meeting will be March 30 at noon. ■ party's presidential race, as opposed to a party primary. The primary still happens in May, only it will not include the GOP candidates for president on that ballot.

 "Something that adds a different element to this is you can have people supporting a candidate - electioneering, if you will (usually an illegal practice on election day in the Commonwealth). That's the actual 'caucusing part,'" explained Greg DeLancey, Calloway County GOP chairman. "Plus, those are not the only ones who will probably be there. We still do have the GOP primary after this and that means you can have people supporting GOP candidates who will be in races for that election, or the candidates themselves, showing up to try to get people's votes that day. It's a bit different."
 "You're also really not voting for one person, even though you really are. You're mainly voting for delegates for your candidate in this (even though a popular vote is recorded to show where candidates place in the election). This is proportional, meaning, for example, if Donald Trump (a New York business tycoon who is one of five candidates still officially in the race, along with Dr. Ben Carson, U.S. Senators Ted Cruz and Marco Rubio and Ohio Gov. John Kasich) gets 35 percent of the vote on caucus day, he gets 35 percent of Kentucky's delegates to the national convention (later this summer)."
 DeLancey said, though, that even though just five candidates officially remain in the race, all 11 who paid a $15,000 filing fee by the deadline of Jan. 7 will be on the ballot on March 5. Those remaining candidates are former Florida Gov. Jeb Bush, former Arkansas Gov. Mike Huckabee, New Jersey Gov. Chris Christie, former Pennsylvania U.S. Sen. Rick Santorum, former business technology executive Carly Fiorina and the person who probably had the largest role in Kentucky adopting the caucus idea, current Kentucky U.S. Sen. Rand Paul.

 It was Paul who brought up the concept last year, yet now he will participate as a candidate no longer officially in the competition, having dropped out of the race after a poor showing in the kickoff to the race for the White House, the Iowa caucuses.
 DeLancey said one of the rules of the caucus will be for officials to notify voters of which candidates are still officially in the race and which ones have dropped out.
 Cowan said his numbers show that 8,000 Calloway residents are eligible to vote in the caucus. DeLancey said that includes 300 voters who have changed their party affiliation, presumably just to participate in the caucus.
 "That's been about the norm for most counties throughout the state," DeLancey said. "I think, throughout the state, we've ended up with 9,000 people who have switched over to Republicans and a lot of that is because people want to participate in this. It's really generating a lot of excitement."
 "By holding a caucus on March 5, Republican voters in Kentucky will have an earlier impact on the presidential race at a time when candidates are still competing to win more states and their delegates to secure the presidential nomination," the Republican Party of Kentucky said in a release last week. Kentucky traditionally schedules its presidential primary elections in May, for both Democrats and Republicans, and usually, by that time, the races on both sides have largely long since been determined. The lead candidates usually have secured more than enough delegates to claim their nominations nationally.

 "For the first time in decades, Kentucky Republicans are relevant in choosing our nominee for president," said state party Chairman Mac Brown. "This is an exciting time, and we look forward to presidential candidates visiting our state as we get closer to March 5."
 DeLancey said he believes the setup for the Weaks Center will suit the event.
 Two entrances to the building will be available that day. The first is what many refer to as the main entrance of the Weaks Center from its main parking lot, leading to a lobby area that is connected to the Murray-Calloway County Senior Citizens Center area on the far-western half of the first floor.
 That second is less visible as it sits outside the far-west side of the building and leads into the Senior Citizens' dining area. The main lobby entrance also leads into that dining area, which is where DeLancey and Cowan both said is where the legal electioneering activity will also be happening.
 The actual voting will happen in an extension of the dining area that doubles as an activity area, featuring a basketball court. Cowan said no one but voters and officials will be allowed in that area.

 "We're going to be trying to also limit crowding at that entrance by having three separate registration tables set up (divided alphabetically). That should keep this from being a deal where people are lining up out of the doors. You don't want that," Cowan said, adding that votes will be counted at three different times of the day.
 "That's my idea," he said, relating back to his days as athletic director at Calloway County High School. "I'm taking the same philosophy here that I did for a project when I was athletic director. If you put me in charge, we're going to do it, though it might not be the way you're thinking."
 "Still, this is something that hasn't happened before. We really don't know what's going to happen here."
 As for predicting turnout, Cowan said he does not believe all 8,000 or so voters will participate. He is thinking conservatively, along the lines of 2,000-3,000. State officials are allotting 5,000 ballots, though.
 "That would be wonderful if we needed all of those," he said. "The only thing about this is I don't know how well the word on this has gotten out. I've had a lot of people ask me about it, but, quite honestly, not as many as I thought there would be."
 "Still, there's a reason the state is sending us 5,000 ballots. Maybe they're sensing something."
 Anyone with questions about the caucus can contact DeLancey at 270-227-8944 or Cowan at 270-753-8865. ■

Fort Campbell soldiers face impersonating police charges

CLARKSVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Two Fort Campbell soldiers have been arrested after Clarksville police say they were impersonating police officers.

The Clarksville Police Department says in a Facebook post that Brett Jewell and William Jones were arrested Tuesday on three counts each of criminal impersonation. Both men are Fort Campbell soldiers.

Media outlets report that Clarksville police had received several reports of drivers being pulled over by police impostors with flashing lights, badges and a dispatch radio.

Police say they had identified Jewell and Jones as suspects. A detective brought them in Tuesday for interviews, during which both men confessed. ■

Book to Movie Book Club Selection

By Sandy Linn

CCPL's Book to Movie Book Club February selection was Lorraine Hansberry's groundbreaking play, "A Raisin in the Sun."

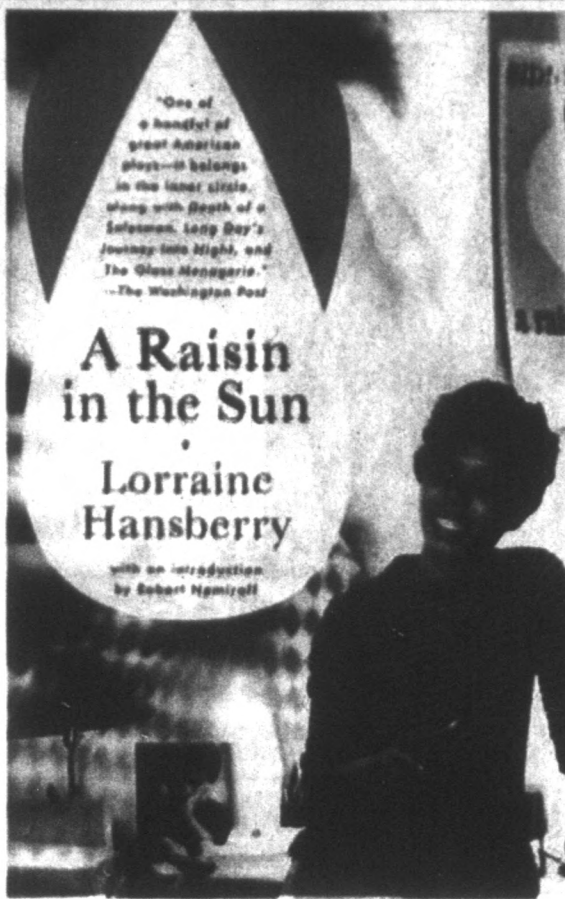

"A Raisin in the Sun" is the story of the Younger family, a struggling African-American family. Mama Lena Younger, a strong, proud woman has raised her family in a crowded two bedroom apartment on the South Side of Chicago. Lena and her husband, the late Big Walter, had moved into the little apartment when they first married, intending to only stay a year or so. Now, years later, there are three generations sharing the same small apartment: Mama Lena; Beneatha, her daughter; her son, Walter Lee; his wife, Ruth and his son, Travis.

When Mama Lena becomes the beneficiary of a $10,000 life insurance payment, suddenly the family is in conflict over how the money should be spent. Lena wants to use the money for a down payment on a house. Beneatha hopes for help with medical school expenses. And Walter Lee wants to go into business with friends who plan to open a liquor store, which he's convinced will be a sure money maker.

"The tensions and prejudice they face form this seminal American drama. Sacrifice, trust and love among the Younger family and their heroic struggle to retain dignity in a harsh and changing world is a searing and timeless document of hope and inspiration."

The original film version of "A Raisin in the Sun" was released in 1961. The film was directed by Daniel Petrie and starred Sidney Poitier, Claudia McNeil, Ruby Dee, Diana Sands, Ivan Dixon and Louis Gossett Jr.

Lorraine Hansberry (1930-1965), was the first African American playwright to achieve critical and popular success on Broadway. "A Raisin in the Sun" was her first completed play. Hansberry also wrote "The Sign in Sidney Brustein's Window" (1964). Before her death, Hansberry began a play about race relations in Africa. The unfinished work was published as Les Blancs (1970). Selections from Hansberry's letters and works were collected in To Be Young, Gifted and Black (1969).

CCPL's Book to Movie Club is an informal discussion group designed for adults. The group meets one Saturday a month at noon. Discussion of the book takes place as participants enjoy their lunch. The movie is viewed with a brief discussion after the film. The next meeting of Book to Movie Book Club is scheduled for March 19. The featured title will be "Inherent Vice" by Thomas Pynchon.

Grants workshop available for the arts

Special to the Ledger

A representative from the National Endowment for the Arts (NEA) will be in Paducah on March 4 to present a workshop about the availability of federal grants for the arts. Michael Killoren, Director of Local Arts Agencies and Challenge America with the NEA, will conduct the workshop beginning at 9 a.m. at the Commerce Center in the Paducah Bank Room, 300 South 3rd Street. The Paducah Area Chamber of Commerce and Paducah Convention and Visitors Bureau are sponsoring the workshop.

At NEA, Killoren is responsible for the grantmaking processes for Local Arts Agencies (LAA's), developing partnerships to advance the LAA field as a whole, and the Challenge America program. Prior to joining NEA, Killoren had previously served as director of Seattle, Washington's Office of Arts & Cultural Affairs, a cabinet-level position, from 2002 through 2010, where he led the city department's funding and public art programs, developed policy initiatives to increase public access to arts and culture, and established a groundbreaking partnership to restore arts education in Seattle Public Schools. He was Seattle's first director of cultural tourism for Seattle's Convention and Visitors Bureau, where he launched an initiative to promote the region's cultural assets.

Killoren's workshop is primarily geared towards the grants for non-profit organizations but anyone or organization interested in learning more is welcome to attend. He will focus on the NEA grants available and the application process. This will be an interactive workshop with time allotted for Q&A.

This workshop is a result of a meeting held with NEA during the local community leaders trip coordinated by the Paducah Chamber each fall to DC. "The Chamber's annual DC Fly-In has helped Paducah foster a strong relationship with leaders at the NEA," said Mary Hammond, Executive Director of the Paducah Convention & Visitors Bureau. "That continuing connection has presented this great opportunity for Paducah's arts and cultural organizations to pursue more grant applications through NEA to help maximize the impact of the arts on our community."

US Senator Mitch McConnell's office was also instrumental in arranging this visit from the NEA to Paducah.

Advance registration is suggested by contacting the Paducah Chamber at info@paducahchamber.org. For more information, contact the Chamber at 270-443-1746 or the Paducah Convention and Visitors Bureau at (270) 443-8783. ■

Management is also responsible for the design, implementation, and maintenance of internal control relevant to the preparation and fair presentation of a financial statement that is free from material misstatement, whether due to fraud or error.

Auditor's Responsibility
Our responsibility is to express an opinion on the financial statement based on our audit. We conducted our audit in accordance with auditing standards generally accepted in the United States of America, the standards applicable to financial audits contained in Government Auditing Standards issued by the Comptroller General of the United States, and the Audit Guide for Sheriff's Tax Settlements issued by the Auditor of Public Accounts, Commonwealth of Kentucky. Those standards require that we plan and perform the audit to obtain reasonable assurance about whether the financial statement is free from material misstatement.

An audit involves performing procedures to obtain audit evidence about the amounts and disclosures in the financial statement. The procedures selected depend on the auditor's judgment, including the assessment of the risks of material misstatement of the financial statement, whether due to fraud or error. In making those risk assessments, the auditor considers internal control relevant to the entity's preparation and fair presentation of the financial statement in order to design audit procedures that are appropriate in the circumstances, but not for the purpose of expressing an opinion on the effectiveness of the entity's internal control. Accordingly, we express no such opinion. An audit also includes evaluating the appropriateness of accounting policies used and the reasonableness of significant accounting estimates made by management, as well as evaluating the overall presentation of the financial statement. We believe that the audit evidence we have obtained is sufficient and appropriate to provide a basis for our audit opinion.

Basis for Adverse Opinion on U.S. Generally Accepted Accounting Principles
As described in Note 1 of the financial statement, the financial statement is prepared by the County Sheriff on the basis of the accounting practices prescribed or permitted by the laws of Kentucky to demonstrate compliance with the Commonwealth of Kentucky's regulatory basis of accounting, which is a basis of accounting other than accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America. The effects on the financial statement of the variances between the regulatory basis of accounting described in Note 1 and accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America, although not reasonably determinable, are presumed to be material.

Adverse Opinion on U.S. Generally Accepted Accounting Principles
In our opinion, because of the significance of the matter discussed in the Basis for Adverse Opinion on U.S. Generally Accepted Accounting Principles paragraph, the financial statement referred to above does not present fairly, in accordance with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America, the financial position of each fund of the former County Sheriff as of January 04, 2015, or changes in financial position or cash flows thereof for the year then ended.

Opinion on Regulatory Basis of Accounting
In our opinion, the financial statement referred to above presents fairly, in all material respects, the taxes charged, credited, and paid for the period April 17, 2014 through January 04, 2015 of the former Calloway County Sheriff, in accordance with the basis of accounting principles prescribed or permitted by the Commonwealth of Kentucky as described in Note 1.

Other Reporting Required by Government Auditing Standards
In accordance with Government Auditing Standards, we have also issued our report dated December 15, 2015 on our consideration of the former Calloway County Sheriff's internal control over financial reporting and on our tests of its compliance with certain provisions of laws, regulations, contracts and grant agreements, and other matters. The purpose of that report is to describe the scope of our testing of internal control over financial reporting and compliance and the results of that testing, and not to provide an opinion on the effectiveness of the former Calloway County Sheriff's internal control over financial reporting or on compliance. That report is an integral part of an audit performed in accordance with Government Auditing Standards in considering the former Calloway County Sheriff's internal control over financial reporting and compliance.

Respectfully submitted,

Mike Harmon

CABLE Commission...

particularly one like us in Murray. That is money that could've been going into our general fund."

Yates said this had been a primary issue of the late Bill Wells, a former Murray City Council member and City of Murray mayor, who had worked closely with the Kentucky League of Cities in tackling this issue. According to the League's website, the League filed a lawsuit over this issue in 2011, claiming that the law had short-changed cities in Kentucky about $30 million since it went into effect in January 2006.

Yates said he does not know how much of that $30 million might have belonged to Murray.

"This was something Bill lobbied hard for. It was one of his big issues and he had many dealings with local legislators over this," Yates said. "This is a big thing and, obviously, we're hoping that the Supreme Court will rule in favor of the Court of Appeals' ruling."

Yates also had news Wednesday that may directly affect consumers, not just in Murray but throughout the country.

He told Commission members of the Federal Communications Commission's recent decision to what it called "unlocking" set-top boxes that are given to customers by cable companies to provide access to channels.

Basically, this means that customers no longer have to pay a rental fee to the cable company for a box that allows for viewing channels on televisions. Yates said this allows for customers to purchase their own box from another provider, while they still pay the fee to the cable company for the channels they receive.

"What it means to the consumer, it appears, is you now have a choice. You can continue getting the box, which costs about $180 a year to lease (the FCC actually says the average costs per year is $231) or you can go out and buy a box for one price you pay and use it for the next 10 years," Yates said.

"Now, there is a catch to this. With the lease, if you have trouble, you're able to use the cable provider for help with getting it working again. If you buy it, though, it looks like you're kind of on your own, or you're dealing with the manufacturer of the product. If you don't know how to use it, or the ins and the outs about it, that could get kind of difficult."

Also, Yates continues to update the Commission on the progress of the highly-watched transfer of control from Time Warner Cable to Charter Communications that is currently still ongoing.

Yates said the latest on the case is that, after a temporary "stopping of the clock" for the FCC to examine information pertaining to the proposed merger, the clock has resumed ticking. However, he said there now may be another delay on the horizon as a new player has stepped into the mix.

"Yes, the company that owns Time Warner (Warner Communications) now appears to be opposed to the sale. However, from what I've seen, the merger appears to still now be on track to happen," he said. "However, with this latest development, who knows what's going to happen?"

Wednesday was also a welcome back to the Commission for Janice Thomasson, who began her second stint after departing in the Midas to pursue interests outside of Murray. While serving with the Commission at that time, Thomasson also was the chief information officer at Murray State University.

"Janice probably remembers us talking about that telecommunications tax issue from her first time here," Yates said, drawing a smile from not just Thomasson but nearly everyone else in the room. "I do remember her from her time both of the Commission and at Murray State. She was very proficient in her duties and I'd expect that to be the same now as she returns to the Commission." ■

Rockets program rings up big fundraising numbers at Polar Plunge

Murray's Chuck Williams, left, lets loose with a "Whoop!" as he accepts his trophy as the 2016 King of the Plunge for last week's seventh annual Western Kentucky Polar Plunge for Special Olympics at Kentucky Dam Village State Resort Park in Gilbertsville. Williams is a veteran coach and official for the Murray-Calloway County Rockets program and raised more than $6,000 for the cause. He then celebrated his accomplishment by jumping into Kentucky Lake.

JOHN WRIGHT/ Ledger & Times photos
Kelly Elkins, left, and Allison Salazar claim the trophy on behalf of the Murray-Calloway County Rockets program last week for being the top fundraising entity of the seventh annual Western Kentucky Polar Plunge at Kentucky Dam Village State Resort Park in Gilbertsville. The Rockets program raised more than $12,000.

State's MEDICAID program...

From Front

Secretary Vickie Yates Brown Glisson told House budget writers Wednesday the problem is so bad she worries about the sustainability of the program that provides health insurance for more than a quarter of Kentucky's population.

"Traditional Medicaid is hemorrhaging. It's not bleeding, it's hemorrhaging," Glisson said. "I think that was one of the most stunning and appalling things I found out when I first came to the Cabinet."

But Glisson could not tell lawmakers how she planned to make up the deficit. She promised to have details next week. That frustrated some state representatives, who are scheduled to vote on the budget proposal next week. She promised not to cut benefits, programs or employees. But Democratic state Rep. Jim Wayne of Louisville was skeptical.

"It's hard for me to say at this time that I trust you," Wayne told Glisson. "You continue to blame the previous administration. (Republican Governor Matt Bevin) bought this job with his $3.5 million. I think it's time for the blaming to stop."

Wayne was referring to the money Bevin, an investment manager, donated to his campaigns for governor. Republican state Rep. Addia Wuchner of Florence, one of the few Republicans who attended the meeting, angrily walked out during Wayne's comments. As she was leaving, she told Glisson: "This is not a campaign any longer. It's about issues."

Kentucky's Medicaid program will be a political battleground for years to come. When former Democratic Gov. Steve Beshear chose to expand Medicaid, it brought in more than 420,000 additional people and took Kentucky's uninsured rate from 20.5 percent to 7.5 percent, tied for the largest coverage gain in the nation.

But the program also brought in more than 60,000 people who were already eligible for Medicaid. Those people were added to the traditional program, where Kentucky taxpayers must pay 30 percent of the cost. They cost the state $124 million, money Glisson said the previous administration had not planned to spend. And beginning next year the federal government will stop paying 100 percent of the costs for the 420,000 people who were added to the program. That will cost Kentucky taxpayers $257 million.

Bevin wants to repeal Beshear's Medicaid expansion and replace it with something else. He needs permission from the federal government to do that. On Monday, he met with U.S. Health and Human Services Secretary Sylvia Burwell in Washington, a meeting Bevin's spokeswoman called "a constructive discussion."

Glisson said to weather the shortfalls, the Beshear administration cut the Department of Community Based Services — which oversees the state foster care and adoption systems and investigates allegations of child abuse — by $13 million last year and $42 million the year before that.

"I worry about that because ... lives are at stake," Glisson said.

Former Health and Family Services Cabinet Secretary Audrey Haynes, Glisson's predecessor, said from 2012 to 2014 it was the Medicaid budget that had to bail out the Department of Community Based Services. Over the last two years, community-based services paid Medicaid back.

"The new secretary has that ability, too," Haynes said. "She will appreciate that ability for one agency to help out the other so people are not hurt or minimized." ■

Senate bill would increase penalties for dealing heroin

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Anyone convicted of selling any amount of heroin for the first time would be a felon in Kentucky under a bill that has cleared the state Senate.

The Senate voted 31-6 to approve the bill on Wednesday. Kentucky lowered penalties for some heroin dealers in 2011. Since then, heroin use has increased significantly and overdose deaths have soared.

State Sen. John Schickel of Union said he voted to lower the penalties in 2011 and has regretted it ever since. Some Democrats opposed the bill, arguing it would put low-level addicts behind bars without treating their underlying substance abuse problem.

The bill now heads to the state House of Representatives.

Last year, the legislature agreed to spend more money on substance abuse treatment and require offenders to serve more of their sentences before being paroled. ■

Young moms feel pressure to succeed at parenting

DEAR ABBY: Why is there so much angst today over raising children, especially in young mothers? I don't remember my mother or my friends' mothers being so concerned about whether or not they were doing a good job, and I certainly didn't gather with my daughters' friends' moms to be-moan whether I was a bad mother.

Dear Abby by Abigail Van Buren

Now there are all these blogs and workshops, etc. on how to be the "best" mom, and all these lifestyle guides who constantly tell them not to worry, they're doing a great job. It just seems like a bunch of nonsense to me.

I think it's because a generation or so back, moms began to elevate their children to top priority in the family over their husbands. What's your take? -- PUZZLED GRANDMA IN THE SOUTH

DEAR PUZZLED: The world is different today. Many women feel torn because they want or need to work, while at the same time feel pressured to help their children succeed in an increasingly competitive world. (Is the child academically prepared for kindergarten?) Is the child able to work cooperatively with others? Is the school highly rated enough? What and how many extracurricular activities will boost their child's chances of excelling?

While it may seem like nonsense to you, I assure you it does not seem like nonsense to them. Women of your generation didn't second-guess themselves because parenting a generation ago was simpler. If children seem to be the No. 1 priority these days it may be because both parents feel driven to succeed and are determined that their children will, too.

DEAR ABBY: I have been married to my husband for 11 years. We are financially and emotionally stable. We recently became friendly with another couple who are newly married and not as financially secure as we are. They spend frivolously.

When we go on vacation, they invite themselves along and assume they are staying in our travel trailer without asking (they have their own trailer they could bring). They don't offer to help pay for gas. The last trip we took, the wife cooked only one meal, while I prepared the rest for a three-day trip. This upcoming trip, they haven't offered to bring anything.

We don't mind sharing what we have and helping our friends out, but what we are starting to resent is the assumption that because we make more money, we'll pick up the tab for everything. Are we wrong to feel this way? My husband and I both see this the same way. -- STARTING TO RESENT THEM

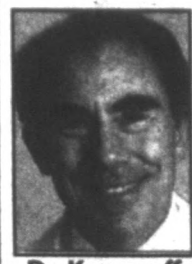

DEAR STARTING TO RESENT THEM: It's not wrong to not want to be taken advantage of. This wouldn't be happening if you had established some rules in the beginning, but it isn't too late to do it now.

Call the wife. Tell her what you expect her and her husband to bring on the next trip, and what chores they will be expected to perform. It isn't fair that you are doing all the work and paying for everything while they are on your vacation.

They should provide -- or pay for -- half the groceries, half the gas, and share any housekeeping responsibilities. Ditto if you go to a restaurant. And the next time they tell you they are coming with you on your vacation, don't hesitate or feel guilty when you reply, "We'd like some privacy this time, so it will just be the two of us."

The challenges of finding a new physician

DEAR DOCTOR K: I've recently moved and would like to find a doctor for my kids and myself. I don't know many people here yet, so I've hesitated to ask for personal recommendations. What do you think about physician-rating websites?

Dr. Komaroff by Dr. Anthony Komaroff

There are a lot of doctor rating sites out there, like Healthgrades.com or RateMDs.com. Even websites that offer reviews of restaurants and repairmen (such as Yelp and Angie's List) feature critiques of doctors, dentists and other clinicians.

Many of these sites have users give doctors a "star rating," as you would rate a movie on Netflix. But according to a recent article in the New England Journal of Medicine, narrative reviews, in which patients describe their experiences with clinicians in their own words, can add valuable context. They can allow readers to zero in on reviews from people with similar problems, needs and preferences. And if you understand why someone gave a clinician a certain score, you can weigh that information against what's most important to you.

But even doctor-rating websites that provide space for personal comments -- and many do -- could, in my opinion, be improved. Many of these websites don't present data on other important considerations. For example, does the doctor offer timely appointments? Does he or she follow authoritative guidelines for preventing and treating diseases? Do they follow up on recently discovered medical problems that need close monitoring?

In addition, most of the existing websites post comments from any source. There's no assurance that the reviews come from real or recent patients. Furthermore, the vast majority of doctors' patients don't offer their evaluations on doctor-rating websites. And the few that do often have an ax to grind.

Also in my opinion, there are a few doctors who have a great "bedside manner" but don't practice the best medicine. They order too many, or too few, diagnostic tests. They use the newest treatments when older treatments would be equally effective, less expensive and possibly safer. I say older drugs are safer because we know more about the safety of drugs that have been around for a while. Having said this, I think patients usually make accurate judgments about their doctors.

So what's the bottom line? Doctor-rating websites might provide some useful information. But don't use them as your only source of information. If you can, ask trusted friends or family members. If you're new to an area, as you are in this case, join a neighborhood email group and ask for a recommendation. Or call the local chapter of a condition-specific association and ask them for suggestions.

Of course, it makes the most sense to trust the judgments of people whom you know and respect. But you can learn something from people you don't know, and who may be anonymous on the ratings website. All the time, we hear people we don't know making judgments about things. We decide from what they've said and how they've said it whether we believe them. It's no different with doctor-rating websites.

(Dr. Komaroff is a physician and professor at Harvard Medical School. To send questions, go to AskDoctorK.com, or write: Ask Doctor K, 10 Shattuck St., Second Floor, Boston, MA 02115.)

Hints From Heloise

TOUTING TULIPS! Dear Readers: TULIPS are beautiful and such an amazing flower. I love them, even though they may not last as long as hardier flowers. Here is an interesting fact you might not know: Tulips will continue to grow even after they've been cut. Yes! They can still grow about an inch! They also bend toward the sun or light. If you've wondered why that beautiful bouquet you had seemed to get lopsided and the tulips droopy, that's the reason.

by Heloise

Tulips also drink a lot of water, and I mean a lot! Well, they are still growing. So check the vase daily, recut the stem an inch or so and add fresh water. They will last much longer this way. -- Heloise

BARGAIN BLANKET Dear Heloise: I needed a new electric blanket for my queen-size bed. After pricing them, I noticed a $10 or more difference in a full-size to a queen-size blanket. I realized I only need to warm my side of the bed (since my husband's passing), so I bought the full-size. It works perfectly, and in fact it covers the whole bed! -- Mary K., Waterbury, Conn.

Mary, thank you for sharing, and I'm sending you a big, gentle hug for the loss of your husband. A bed can be cold and lonely after sharing it with someone you love. -- Hugs, Heloise

SWEET SINK Dear Heloise: I reuse the boxes of baking soda in my refrigerator/freezer. I use them to freshen my garbage disposal, with this recipe: 1/2 cup baking soda 1 cup white vinegar Let sit in drain to work for a few minutes

Horoscope HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Friday, Feb. 26, 2016: This year you discover a compulsive quality in at least one area of your life. This driven attitude won't be long-term, but you could find it to be a little uncomfortable, as you might not understand where it is coming from. If you are single, this behavior could have to do with someone you meet. It is a strong possibility that a significant relationship could enter your life, especially after summer. If you are attached, the two of you have a way with each other that brings you back together, even when you get irritated and fight. LIBRA lightens up the moment.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You'll feel free to break past self-imposed boundaries. You often do the unexpected; those around you will experience a jolt or two as a result. You might be in the process of eliminating the frivolous stuff in your life.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You have a lot of ground to cover, and a shortcut might be tempting. An interaction with a friend will point you toward a more unorthodox approach, but one that might be more efficient. Have a discussion with someone you respect.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You might find a friend to be distracting. How you live your life and what you do with it is your call. Remember that one of the reasons you have this person in your life is because of his or her vibrant personality. Break past irrelevant boundaries.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You might find a work-related situation to be unpredictable and possibly explosive. Keep your cool, and don't become reactive. Watch how this issue plays out, and then make a decision. Communication might be quite active with a trusted loved one.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If you don't see the big picture, someone around you will make sure that you do. This person exposes you to new ideas and insights in an illuminating way. You like how his or her mind works. You often can be found having intense discussions.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You will be responsive to a partner, and in return, you'll want to have some important feedback from him or her. What you hear could surprise you and cause you to stop and think twice. This person has an eccentric way of speaking.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Defer to a friend who seems to be a walking whirlwind. It is easier to let this person have his or her way. You might be somewhat shocked by your friend's choices, but still give it some thought and perhaps have a discussion.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) Continue to get through as much as you can. You might prefer to work alone and not be as responsive as you normally are. Unexpected events and requests punctuate your day. Maintain a sense of humor, but also feel free to say "no."

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) You have what it takes to bring people together, though you might have some wild ideas at times. Someone is likely to add a bohemian touch to a get-together. Do not push this person away; instead, be more receptive to his or her ideas.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Pressure builds with a parent or supervisor. This person is quite capable of delivering some unexpected news. But then again, so are you. A discussion might help, but not if the other party is set on heading in a different direction.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) You might be ready for a change of scenery, yet someone close to you keeps tossing obstacles in your path. The frustration over this situation is likely to build, unless you decide to look at this person's efforts as flattering. Be the bigger person.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Use caution with someone who has a financial offer to which he or she thinks you'll say "yes." You could be unpredictable when dealing with your funds. Feel free to do what you want, but make sure that you don't cause any damage, either.

NCAA BASKETBALL

Louisville pulls away from Pitt.

The Associated Press

PITTSBURGH — Quentin Snider scored 14 points, Damian Lee added 13 and No. 11 Louisville pulled away from Pittsburgh in the final minutes of a 67-60 victory Wednesday night.

The Cardinals (22-6, 11-4 ACC) made their last nine field goals, with former walk-on David Levitch hitting a 3-pointer with 2:34 remaining that put Louisville up for good.

Ryan Luther finished with a career-high 17 points for Pitt (19-8, 8-7). Jamel Artis had 13 points and nine rebounds for the Panthers, but Pitt fell to 0-6 against ranked teams this season after letting a chance to bolster its NCAA Tournament resume disappear under a flurry of Louisville shots in the late stages.

A layup by Michael Young tied the game at 58 with 3:10 to play, but the Cardinals scored the next eight points and Louisville's smothering defense did the rest.

The Cardinals won the first matchup in Louisville last month, a brutal 59-41 victory that looked more like an MMA brawl.

The loss seemed to take some of the air out of the Panthers who entered ranked in the Top 25 and left with its confidence shaken. Pitt came in 4-6 in its last 10 and in need of a quality performance against a bold-faced name to give its NCAA hopes a needed boost.

Any other year and Louisville would be playing for a high seed in the field of 68. This year, the Cardinals won't make it thanks to a self-imposed ban as part of the fallout of an investigation into recruiting violations.

In the aftermath, coach Rick Pitino has tried to create the regular season as some sort of crusade. Louisville surged past Duke last weekend and backed it up with steady play under pressure.

The Cardinals overcame a slow start to take a 33-29 half-time lead, with Pitino finding help in unexpected places thanks to early foul trouble. Levitch, a former walk-on who plays in a limited role, provided a spark off the bench and Louisville found a way to get into the lane whenever it wanted.

Pitt coach Jamie Dixon has preached the Panthers would find a way to get better defensively and the Panthers received a major jolt from Luther, who was aggressive on both ends of the floor while helping the Panthers to a 48-40 lead.

It didn't last. When Luther briefly went to the bench to get a breather, the Cardinals attacked. Lee hit a 3-pointer to get Louisville going and Deng Adel followed with a dunk. Levitch's 3-pointer tied it and even though Luther quickly came back into the game, the Cardinals had found their rhythm.

The Cardinals made 7 of 16 3-pointers, including 6 of 8 in the second half. Adel finished with 12 points and seven boards, while the Cardinals forced 15 turnovers.

The Panthers won the rebounding battle 34-28, but were outscored in the paint 30-26. ■

BOYS DISTRICT 4 CHAMPIONSHIP BASKETBALL PREVIEW: MURRAY HIGH VS. MARSHALL COUNTY

With or without Boone?

By BRYCE RUDD
Sports Reporter

DONNIE PASCHALL/Ledger & Times

Murray High guard and recently named Region 1 KABC Player of the Year James Boone skies to the rim against Dj Pigg during a district 4 contest Feb. 9, at Reed Conder Gymnasium. The Tigers won 70-66 in an overtime thriller.

The last time the Murray High Tigers saw James Boone in a black and gold uniform, rather than garnished in street clothes, was Feb. 9, in a 70-66 overtime victory, when he exploded for a season high 28 points over a stout and scrappy Marshall County Marshals ball club; one that has every intention on crashing the show with then coach Dan Hudson.

Still, the Tigers made lemonade out of lemons, going a perfect 3-0 with Preston English, Duane Curtis and Tre Hornbuckle all stepping up into increased roles of production. No Boone, no problem; so far.

Flash forward over two weeks and, ironically enough, his potential first game back from a nagging knee contusion could be for the Boys District 4 Championship crown against the same Marshall County squad, where a third straight victory in the season series will be earned, not giftwrapped.

With its second Region 1 Boys Basketball Tournament ticket since 2001 already firmly punched and in place, the Murray High Tigers (25-5, 4-4 4th District) aren't looking past Thursday night, where a district title is highly coveted, something the Tigers haven't possessed since the year 2000. Yes, 2000, when Tom Masthay was running the show with then coach Dan Hudson.

"It's a big one," Tiger skipper Bart Flener admitted. "It's another one of those things that hasn't been done in a while around here. Our kids enjoy the pursuit of those opportunities. The district title is certainly one of our goals. We'll go after it with a passion and a pursuit tonight. When it's over though, it's over. Either way, whether we win or come in as runner up, we'll have to win three games to win the region and that's the biggest focus we have going forward."

Yes, washing away 16 years of a bitter taste would be ideal as they make just their second trip to the title game since 2001, but first and foremost, is the enigma of health in their leader, Boone.

"We'll dress James and we'll see how it goes in warmups," Flener said.

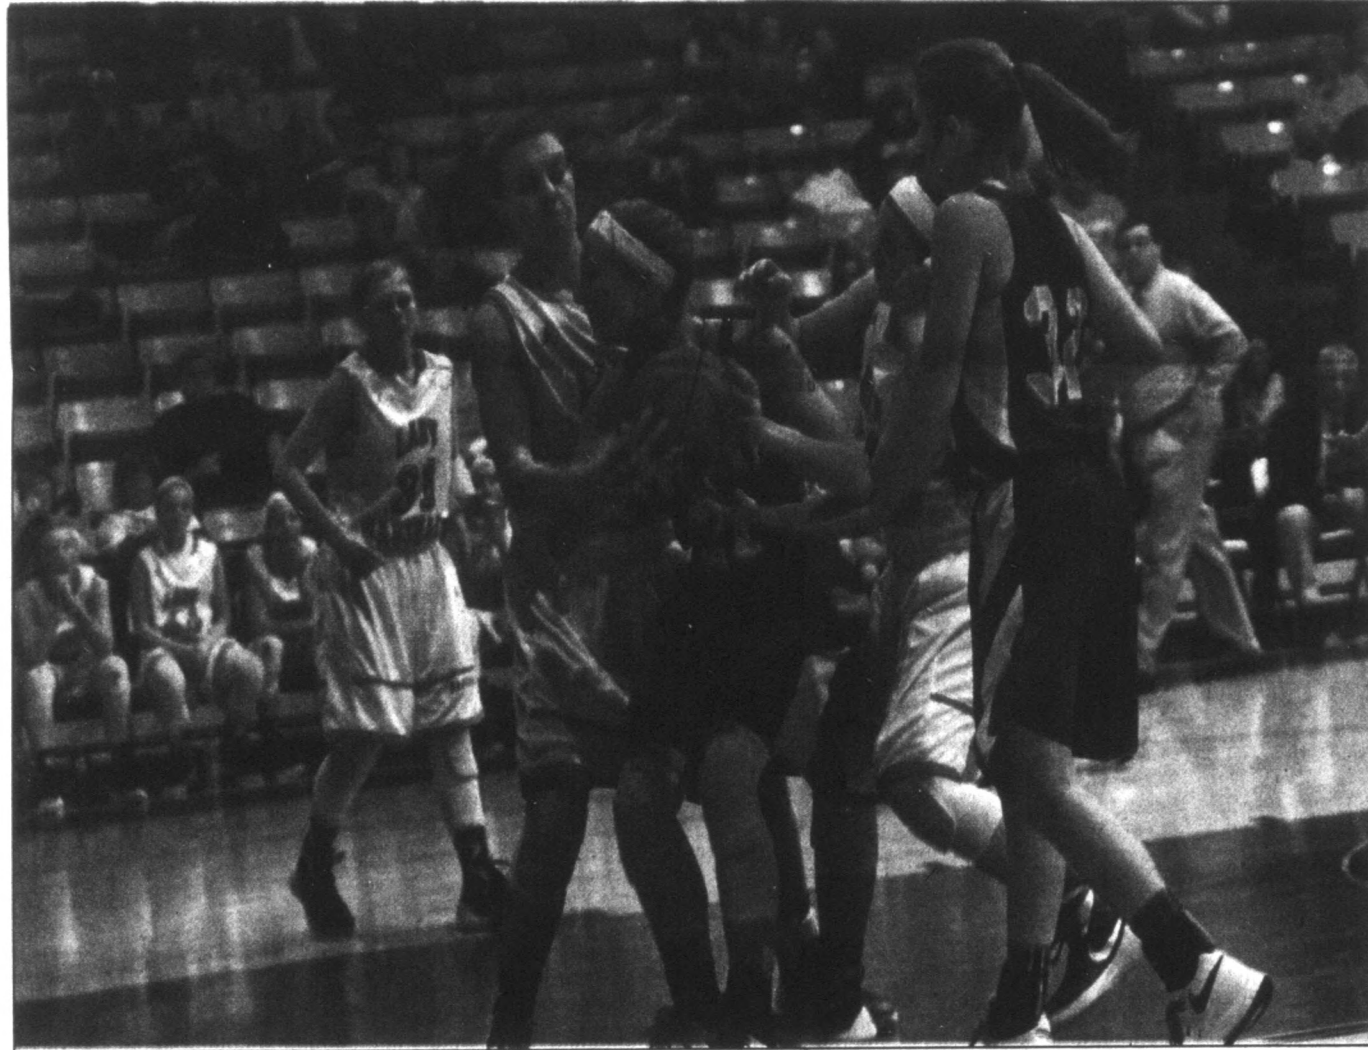

With the very realistic possibility that Boone doesn't take the floor past the warmup session, other Tigers have proven time and time again that roles are not always limitations of talent.

In their recent 3-game win streak against Carlisle County, McCracken County and University Heights, English has fired off nearly a double double every time, averaging 20 points and 9 rebounds during the span, with Hornbuckle putting up 20 points against University Heights and Curtis scoring a career-high 22 against the Mustangs. Whenever Boone does

GIRLS DISTRICT 4 CHAMPIONSHIP BASKETBALL PREVIEW: MURRAY VS. MARSHALL COUNTY

Here we go again!

DONNIE PASCHALL/Ledger & Times

Murray High's Maddie Waldrop battles with Marshall County's Hannah Langhi during a district 4 contest on Feb. 9 at Reed Conder Gymnasium. Waldrop averages 13 points in two wins during the season series, while Langhi averages 16 points.

Murray vs. Marshall, Waldrop vs. Langhi

By BRYCE RUDD
Sports Reporter

Murray High vs. Marshall County are about to duke it out a 5th consecutive time for the Girls District 4 Basketball Championship...expect anything different?

After 20 meetings in the already eventful history of the Joseph Simmons and Michelle Turner rivalry dating back six years to when Simmons took over for the great Howard Beth in 2010-2011, it's safe to say that there are no longer any secrets between the two clubs concerning basketball strategy or gimmecks.

The No. 4 Murray High Lady Tigers (29-1, 4-0 4th District) and the Marshall County Lady Marshals (23-6, 3-2 4th District), historically speaking, have split the last four district trophies (the first two by 2 points, the last two by 20 points) while the Lady Marshals have taken two regional trophies (13-14) to make up for the difference. Tonight at 6 p.m., they'll do it again.

This year, is another story entirely. Two teams with two different goals on the same path. For the Lady Marshals, avoid last years 53-32 drubbing from Turner and co. For the Lady Tigers? Avoid pure self destruction.

"There's no secrets with either team. They know what we do and we know what they do. It's all about who goes out and executes the gameplan and makes shots," Turner said.

"You know, we're just going into the game wanting to continue the things that has gotten us to this point this year. There are certain things defensively that we have to do in order to win this."

As for the offense, putting up 42 points in the first half tonight (as they did at Marshall County on Feb. 9) would be ideal, but a lot of that could depend on the health of shooting guard Lex Mayes, who missed action last week with a groin injury.

"She'll be good to go tonight," Turner assured. "Lance, our trainer, did an outstanding job of getting her therapy. Lex didn't like it, but she understood that it would be best for us to hold her out."

In her absence, Brittany Lawson emerged gracefully. Usually the first player off the bench, Lawson was the first player to make an impact against Carlisle County six days ago, scoring 14 points on four 3-point baskets, hardly any of the shots touching the rim.

"Brittany would start for any other team in the region. She's one of the kids that we realize how important she is to our basketball team coming off the bench," Turner said. "Brittany is the type of player to take advantage of the opportunity she is given. If she makes one 3, she's liable to make 10. She's the shooter that doesn't miss when she gets hot. We're hoping to get that rhythm back starting tomorrow night."

With Macey Turley running the point guard show as always, Alexis Burpo, Morgan Turley and Grace Campbell trading blows down low and Lily Ramey glued and locked in defensively to Lady Marshal sharpshooters Briley English and Miyah Davis, the Lady Tiger attack is poised for a repeat scenario as district 4 champions.

Throw in Maddie Waldrop (15 ppg and seven rebounds) and it seems like a formality for Murray High to take care of business. But the junior forward will once again be tested by the one post player who can make all the difference for Marshall County; another junior, Hannah Langhi.

Langhi (16 points and 11 rebounds per game) is as automatic as they come.

After notching 11 of her 20 points against Calloway County in the fourth quarter Tuesday night, Langhi will pose the same threat to the region 1 favorites tonight, while Briley English and Miyah Davis force the defense to think twice about double teaming Langhi down low.

"I think you have to pick your poison when you decide what your gameplan is. You have to decide what you're willing to give up and what you're not," Turner said. "The kids have done a great job of adjusting to our decisions. We've built our foundation on defense. I would put this team up against any team that I've ever coached in 20 years defensively. They pay attention to detail and they've gotten it done."

Even if Langhi gets her averages, this much is certain, Murray High must limit the sharpshooting Lady Marshals, who will be launching away after just one 3-point make against Calloway County.

"When you look at their wins this year, Briley and Miyah have been able to get their 3-point shots off. That's something that we have to pay attention to. I thought Calloway played well, their gameplan was outstanding. It was just too much Marshall County in the end," Turner said. ■

MURRAY STATE

Racers heading to EIU

MSU Sports Information

The Murray State Racers enter the final week of the regular season with a clear path to the championship of the Ohio Valley Conference's West Division.

It starts with a matchup on the road Thursday against the Eastern Illinois Panthers at Lantz Arena in Charleston, Ill.

The late tip of 8:35 p.m. will be seen on the CBS Sports Network. There will be no online streaming video for this game.

All Murray State games are heard over free radio on WFGE Froggy 103.7 FM and online at Froggy103.com and GoRacers.com. Neal Bradley is in his 25th season as the Voice of the Racers. Former MSU assistant coach Kenny Roth provides analysis and commentary.

The week that lay ahead for the Racers offers a simple goal. If MSU can win at EIU and at home Saturday against UT Martin, they'll be OVC West Division champions and become the No. 2 in next week's OVC Tournament in Nashville.

With it, they'll get a double-bye and not have to play until the semifinals. If MSU ends up in a tie with the Skyhawks, the likely scenario is that they lose a tie-breaker on the fact they split two games with Austin Peay, while UTM swept the Gobs this season.

The Racers won the first meeting with EIU at home 68-58 (Jan. 21). MSU has won their last two games at EIU since a loss in 2013.

Murray State picked the right time to be playing their best ball of the season.

The Racers are a season-high three games about the .500 mark and have won 7-of-9 in the OVC after starting 2-3. The Racers are 9-5 in league play with a three-game win streak.

MSU's Jeffery Moss has provided just what you want from a senior that will be making his 97th consecutive start at EIU. He's scored 20-plus points in four of the last five games including a 22-point effort in MSU's 76-60 road win Saturday at Austin Peay. Moss scored 19 in the second half and hit 5-of-7 from the 3-point line. In the last five games, Moss is the hottest 3-point marksman in the OVC hitting 23-of-39 attempts for a blistering clip of 59 percent.

A year ago, the scene at Lantz Arena was the best atmosphere of the season (Jan. 22, 2015). It was a sellout when the Panthers (6-0) met the Racers (5-0).

MSU came away with a 77-62 win. This time, there is more on the line as both teams need this game that comes in the final week of the regular season.

Saturday, the Racers have Senior Day when they host UT Martin at 7 p.m. ■

Down goes No. 1, again. Villanova falls to Xavier

The Associated Press

CINCINNATI — J.P. Macura got Xavier rolling with 19 points off the bench, and freshman point guard Edmond Sumner had 19 points and nine assists as fifth-ranked Xavier got the win that had eluded it, knocking off top-ranked Villanova 90-83 on Wednesday night.

The Musketeers (25-3, 13-3) led most of the way in the first matchup of Top 5 teams since the Big East was reconfigured, pulling away at the end against the only team they'd never beaten in league play.

Villanova (24-4, 13-2) was the first No. 1 team to play in the Cintas Center, which opened for the 2000-01 season. The Wildcats couldn't overcome foul trouble or Xavier's balance, losing for only the second time in their last 18 games.

Xavier got ahead by 15 points late and held on with free throws. The Musketeers dominated the boards 42-33.

Kris Jenkins scored 22 for Villanova but fouled out with 8:47 left. Daniel Ochefu also sat most of the second half with four fouls.

It was one of those measuring-up games for Xavier, which aspired to be one of the Big East's best when it left the Atlantic 10. The Musketeers had beaten every team except Villanova — going 0-6 — in the reconfigured league and knew this was the last obstacle to challenging the Wildcats' hold on the top of the league.

Sumner fell hard in the opening minutes of Villanova's 95-64 win at Philadelphia on Dec. 31 and was taken to a hospital with a concussion. He missed three games and has finally gotten back into form in the last few weeks, scoring 20 points twice in the last six games.

He made a driving bank shot to open the game on Wednesday, showing he was ready to make a difference.

Jenkins made three of his first four shots from beyond the arc, including one that sparked a 7-0 run, and put Villanova ahead 19-13, its biggest lead of the game. The Wildcats made eight of their first 11 shots.

Macura scored all of the points during a 7-0 run — two layups and a three-point play — that got Xavier rolling on a 14-3 surge. Macura's back-to-back 3-pointers pushed it to 36-27.

Ryan Arcidiacono made his first basket — a 3-pointer — as Villanova cut Xavier's lead to 40-37 at halftime. Jenkins had 19 points in the half, and opened the second half with a three-point play. He then picked up a pair of quick fouls, giving him four with 18:09 to go and costing the Wildcats their hottest shooter.

Villanova's troubles were compounded when Ochefu picked up his fourth foul as well. Sumner's three-point play and a pair of layups built the lead to 63-52.

Jenkins got back into the game and immediately picked up his fifth foul with 8:47 to go. Sumner's free throws pushed the lead to 12 points with 8:10 go, and Xavier led by as many as 14 down the stretch. ■

MEMPHIS GRIZZLIES

Grizzlies take down Lakers behind Barnes' 25

The Associated Press

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — Matt Barnes scored a season-high 25 points as the Grizzlies never trailed and beat the Los Angeles Lakers 128-119 Wednesday night in Kobe Bryant's final game in Memphis.

Six Grizzlies finished in double figures as Memphis finished with season highs in scoring and 3-pointers, going 13 of 27 from beyond the arc. Barnes was 5 of 9 on 3s and P.J. Hairston, who had 17 points, was 4 of 7.

Mike Conley scored 24 points and added eight assists as Memphis won its second straight and third in the last four.

Jordan Clarkson scored 21 of his 28 points in the second half to lead the Lakers, who lost their seventh straight. D'Angelo Russell and Lou Williams added 22 points each, and Bryant finished with 13 points, but was 5 of 14 from the field — including 2 for 7 on 3s.

Grizzlies fans gave Bryant a standing ovation and chanted "Ko-Be!" several times, the last when he left the game with a wave to the crowd with 1:03 remaining.

Memphis built an early lead and Los Angeles never really threatened in the second half. In the fourth quarter, the Lakers pulled within nine on a couple of occasions.

But by the time Bryant entered the game one last time with just under 5 minutes left, Memphis held its largest lead at 19. Bryant made a 3-point-er a short time later to pull the Lakers to 120-107.

After that, Memphis had enough of a buffer to close out the game.

The Grizzlies built an early 15-point lead, hitting seven of their first 10 shots, including three 3s. Bryant hit his first shot — a 3 — but missed his next three attempts.

The Lakers made a substantial dent in Memphis' lead with the help of their reserves, pulling to 61-58 in the second quarter.

But the Grizzlies used 18 points from Barnes and 12 from Conley for a 67-58 lead at the break.

Russell led the Lakers with 14 points in the opening half. Clarkson carried the Lakers' offense in the third quarter. By the midway point he had scored 13 points in the period. That wasn't enough to keep Los Angeles in the game as Memphis, fueled by 3-point shooting and balanced scoring, rebuilt its lead to 17.

Bryant has scored more points against the Grizzlies than any other opponent in franchise history. He also scored 60 points against Memphis on March 22, 2007, a record for an NBA player at FedExForum. ... Rookie F Larry Nance Jr., who injured his right knee in the Lakers' last game Monday at Milwaukee, played just under 15 minutes and finished with three points.

G/F Tony Allen missed his second straight game with a sore left knee. ... With a rebound in the second quarter, Randolph passed Johnny Green (9,083) for 48th in career rebounds. 2000 dunk contest champion Vince Carter (nine points) passed Charles Barkley (23,757) on the all-time scoring list during the contest, good enough for 24th in career points scored. ■

Tigers...

return, if not tonight, the aggressive expansion only makes them more dangerous full circle, in terms of depth.

"Definitely," coach Flenner said. "The last three games, we've adjusted without James. Our guys have stepped into increased scoring roles and ball handling roles. I think our guys are determined to keep winning amidst the obstacles. You can kind of get addicted to this winning thing and our guys are going to do whatever it takes to put themselves in a position to win that next one."

Not to mention guys like Zach Flenner, Bryant Foster and Jumonte McClure, role players who have even seen starters minutes in the recent stretch.

Enter Marshall County (15-13, 2-2 4th District), their only district blemishes coming from the Tigers...payback time.

"I thought they played with great passion. They played some of their best defense we have seen out of them. They seem to be playing well at the right time," Flenner said.

"It's a pretty good matchup. They present some defensive challenges. We provide more full court pressure and they provide more in the half court."

To the untrained eye, Dj Pigg (the Marshals all time leading 3-point shooter) is the assassin to contain with a 16 point average in the season series, but beneath the numbers, lie a potential new challenge; slashing forwards Dylan Walters and Dawson Jolley, who combined for 32 points and controlled the entire game against the Lakers Tuesday night.

"Obviously, Dj is a great shooter and scorer, but Walters and Jolley really have a knack of getting to the basket. They're hard to keep in front and they did a really good job on the offensive glass as well. We'll have to be ready for anything," Flenner said.

With or without Boone, the challenge belongs to Murray High. Tip-off is at 7:30 p.m. ■

SPEED FREAKS

A couple questions we had to ask — ourselves

Best Daytona 500 ever?
GODWIN: I can't say that, but the finish will go down as a Daytona classic.
WELLS CALL: Certainly a classic, but I'm still partial to the night Kevin Harvick won the drag race with Mark Martin to the stripe.

Favorite pre-500 moment of Speedweeks?
GODWIN: Chase Elliott winning the Daytona 500 pole was a pretty cool deal.
WELLS CALL: Chase's slamming battle with Joey Logano in the Saturday race. Highlight material for years to come.

How'd you like Jeff Gordon's work in the booth?
GODWIN: He's a rookie in the broadcast booth. He will find his groove.
WELLS CALL: Just as they said about him in '92, I think he's going to be very good.

3 THINGS WE LEARNED FROM THE DAYTONA 500

It's Denny Hamlin by a nose at the stripe to win the Daytona 500. GETTY IMAGES/CHRIS TROTMAN

- 1. Team play
 Joe Gibbs Racing drivers played nice until they got to the money lap in the Daytona 500. Denny Hamlin won his first 500 by muscling his way past Matt Kenseth in a last-lap power move that caught everyone by surprise. Teamwork goes as far as the white flag.
- 2. Hendrick blues
 Good news for Kasey Kahne: He was best in class for Hendrick Motorsports in the 500. Bad news for Rick Hendrick: Kahne finished 13th. Jimmie Johnson was 16th, while headline grabbers Dale Earnhardt Jr. and Chase Elliott were 36th and 37th.
- 3. Time to go?
 Michael Waltrip is a two-time Daytona 500 winner and a favorite among some NASCAR race fans, but he was never a factor in Sunday's race. He finished on the lead lap, but it was 30th. He will run another race at Talladega, and maybe we can talk him into racing retirement.

3 THINGS TO WATCH

It looks like NASCAR rookie Chase Elliott might be the next big thing in stock-car racing after his Daytona Speedweeks performance. GETTY IMAGES/JONATHAN FERRERY

- 1. Star power
 It looks like NASCAR has a new rising star in Chase Elliott, son of "Awesome Bill" Elliott, the 1988 Cup Series champion. Elliott earned Daytona 500 pole honors and won the Daytona Xfinity Series race after battling Joey Logano toe-to-toe on the last lap. The 20-year-old will likely rocket to fame after he scores that first win.
- 2. Toyota momentum
 Will Toyota build on its Daytona Speedweeks momentum, or did it use up its luck in Florida? Kyle Busch won a Daytona 500 qualifying race, and Denny Hamlin became the fifth driver to win the Sprint Unlimited and 500 in the same year. We will all know much more when the Cup Series teams race at Atlanta this weekend.
- 3. Gets real
 Most every driver in the Daytona 500 said the NASCAR Cup Series real season begins at Atlanta Motor Speedway. The 500 has become its own mini-championship. Race winner Denny Hamlin began a three-day, whirlwind media tour Monday. Oh, and let's not forget, Hamlin becomes the first driver to qualify for the Chase playoffs.

GODWIN'S PICKS FOR QUICKTRIP FOLDS OF HONOR 500

QUESTIONS & ATTITUDE

Compelling questions... and maybe a few actual answers

Not the way Junior expected to finish his Daytona 500. AP/PHILAN M. EBENHACK

Just how dominant will Toyota be this year?

Easy there, Speed Racer. Dominance at Daytona doesn't mean a whole lot once the teams unscrew those restrictor plates and move on to the "real" racing. Granted, Toyota has some great teams and showed strength at Daytona, but the next few weeks will tell us a lot more than we know right now.

What happened to Amelia?

Racers should be careful about bragging on their cars. Junior Earnhardt sounded awestruck by how good his car was running at Speedweeks, but then he lost it in Turn 4 and went home early. When you name a car after Amelia Earhart, you run the risk of not reaching your destination.

Were you right about charters?

My hunch said if there's an unintended consequence, it might be about the driver-owner salary agreements. And it's out there. Everyone talked nice at Daytona, and the drivers suggested it'll be worked out without problem. Financial details are always easily solved, right? Right?

FEUD OF THE WEEK

MATT KENSETH VS. DENNY HAMLIN: Hamlin muscled his way around his Joe Gibbs Racing teammate on the last lap to win the Daytona 500.
GODWIN KELLY'S TAKE: Kenseth led 40 of the last 41 laps and finished 14th. The 2003 champion played it cool after the race, but it was a bitter-pill finish.

DID YOU KNOW?

Atlanta Motor Speedway is actually south of the big city, in Hampton, which was named after Wade Hampton. Wade Hampton was an officer in both the Revolutionary War and the War of 1812. In between, he served two terms in the U.S. House of Representatives.
