Workshop Agenda
Pedagogy of the Digitally Oppressed:
An Introduction to Anti-colonial Digital Humanities Virtual Workshop
Faculty Development Program, Office of the Provost, Columbia College, Chicago, May 17, 2022

Workshop Facilitators:
Dr. Ashley Caranto Morford (she/her), Pennsylvania Academy of the Fine Arts, USA
Dr. Kush Patel (they/he), Srishti Manipal Institute of Art, Design, and Technology, India
Arun Jacob (he/him), University of Toronto, Canada for Pedagogy of the Digitally Oppressed Collective:

https://pedagogyofthedigitallyoppressed.hcommons.org/

Abstract:
This virtual workshop will introduce participants to anti-colonial digital humanities, reflecting particularly on how to practice a digital pedagogy committed to anti-colonialism. We will invite workshop participants to do a collective reading and annotation of the institution's academic diversity, equity and inclusion (DEI) framework and DEI mission statement and expand upon its specific commitments with respect to anti-colonial digitally focused classroom and community learning. We will also consider the concrete possibilities of working at the intersections of digital humanities and anti-colonialism, including a discussion on unanswered questions in our current approach as well as guidelines for ongoing community and institution building.