

Rethinking Lyric Communities

Across different epochs and cultural traditions, lyric poetry manifests peculiar ways of making its language and forms shareable and emerges as a privileged site to explore models of community and their politics. By bringing the investigation of historical poetic communities into dialogue with recent developments in the theory of the lyric, this workshop will explore the lyric, in its longer history and transnational features, as a discursive mode that may offer alternative models of community formation.

Symposium
5 July 2022

Organized by Irene Fantappiè,
Francesco Giusti, and Laura Scuriatti

14:00 – 20:30
In English

In cooperation with ICI Berlin,
Bard College Berlin,
and the EXC Temporal Communities
With the support of the Oxford-Berlin Research Partnership

TEMPORAL COMMUNITIES
DOING LITERATURE IN A GLOBAL PERSPECTIVE
CLUSTER OF EXCELLENCE

ici
BERLIN
KUNSTLABOR
INSTITUTE FOR CULTURAL INQUIRY

Bard College Berlin
A LIBERAL ARTS UNIVERSITY

with Vahni Anthony Capriello, Christian Hawkey, and Daniel Tiffany who will read a selection of their poetry and offer reflections on poetry, community,
and translation.

Staged Reading
5 July 2022
19:00

