Aim: The Italian Journal of Animal Science is an international journal publishing original scientific papers, reviews and short communications on animal production and related areas, as well as news for the members of the Scientific Association of Animal Production. Upon request to the Editor, announcements of congresses, presentations of universities, research institutes, books and proceedings may also be published.

Review policy: the publication of manuscripts is subject to the approval of referees and in agreement with the Advisory Board's opinions; referees are selected from among qualified scientists in the international scientific community.
