STAGG

Amos Alonzo Stagg, who brings his College of Pacific Tigers here for today's game, is completing fifty years in football this season.

Termed the "grand old man of American football," Stagg began his coaching career at Springfield College in 1890, leaving there for the University of Chicago in 1892. He remained at the Maroon institution for forty-one years where he gained nation-wide recognition for his progressiveness in the pigskin sport. Six years ago he took over coaching duties at the College of Pacific.

Stagg first led his Tigers against California in 1934. He lost that year, but only one point separated the two teams after the contest.

Since that time his teams have played in the California Memorial Stadium every year and each contest has been an interesting, vigorous affair.

Despite his 76 years, Stagg includes no worn-out systems or old fashioned plays in his coaching, but is continually experimenting. He was one of the first to make use of the forward pass. He originated the idea of drawing ends into the backfield in "ends back" plays, and invented the fake kick-off, the double delayed pass and the "flanker play" which is often employed by the Tigers. His progressive and modern technique has earned C. O. P. the recognition of being one of the most colorful teams on the coast.

Vern
HICKEY

Coach Vern Hickey of the California Aggie team, which meets California today, has not always faced a Bear eleven in the capacity of a coach.

For three years he played end for the Washington State Cougars, and competed against California as a player. His ability at Washington State earned him a position as All-Coast end, and he participated in the East-West Annual Shrine game at the end of his collegiate career.

Before going to Washington State, Hickey was a four-year letterman in football, baseball and track at Everett high school in Washington.

The Aggie mentor first began his coaching career at Fort Bragg in 1924, where his teams lost but four games in five years. His term at Davis was preceded by eight years at Santa Rosa high school, starting in 1929. Hickey-tutored elevens at Santa Rosa set an impressive record, losing only six league games during his entire stay there. For three seasons his teams were undefeated champions.

As a coach Hickey first met California in 1937, his initial term at the Aggie institution. The score that season, 14 to 0, marked the first time that an Aggie team had held the Bears under three touchdowns in six years of rivalry. Last season the Mustangs dropped a 48 to 0 tussle to Stub Allison's charges, but Aggie followers are predicting the score will be closer today because of an improved squad.

Today's double-header opens the fifth season for California under the coaching genius of LEONARD B. ALLISON, who prefers to be known as just plain "Stub". During his four years as head coach, his teams have lost but five conference games.

An All-American tackle on the 1926 Navy eleven, FRANK WICKHORST, line coach, has helped develop several All-American linemen including Bob Herwig, Vard Stockton, and Perry Schwartz.

IRWIN UTERITZ'S job is tutoring the backfield men. Judging by some of the backs who have performed for the Blue and Gold, "Utiz", like "Wick", has done exceedingly well.

1939 PREMIERE

Dual Duel for New Edition of Golden Bears

By DICK KELLY

Hostilities on the Strawberry Canyon front of the 1939 Pacific Coast grid war commence this afternoon with the entire Blue and Gold standing army engaging in four hours of football warfare.

The "enemy" for the first two hours is one of California's seven possessions—the California Aggies—who have plotted a revolt against their sovereign. Zero hour is 1 p. m.

At 3 p. m. "Top Sarge" Allison, generalissimo of the Bear army, sends his troops against C. O. P., commanded by one of the greatest strategists and leaders in the annals of grid battles, Amos Alonzo Stagg.

Despite the fact that casualties and expiration of terms of service have depleted the ranks of the Berkeley troops, Allison can field a grizzled band of war-veterans this afternoon, thanks to the policy of frequent substitutions employed in past campaigns. However, unofficial but reliable sources say that the Bear General plans to start the shock troops in the first battle and use every man in uniform before the last shot of the day is fired.

Six of the eleven regulars who started the 1938 season are missing from the ranks because their period of service ended: Vic Bottari, Dave Anderson, Bill Stoll, Dave de Varona, Will Dolman, and Tommy Ray. Seven additional lettermen also graduated. Injury has forced Fred Anderson and, more recently, first string center Dave Queen to the sidelines. The starting lineup includes but two members of last year's top team, Louie Smith and Bill Elmore.

Reports from the California Aggies' minister of propaganda, Don Montgomery, say that the Davis contingent has the best balanced squad yet during the reign of General Vern Hickey. The Aggie chieftain is well satisfied with the development of his men after two weeks of practice.

Outstanding members of the Farmers' army include Mits Nitta, All-Far Western conference end last fall; left half Rip Francis, a teammate of Bottari in high school, and Merrill Sharp, right half.

C. O. P.'s official spokesman, Bob Monagan, issues communiques of the same vein about the Tigers. Despite the fact that the Tiger troops had trouble dispersing the South Dakota Coyotes last weekend, their supporters look for Pacific to offer the Bears stubborn resistance to conquest.

An advantage from the standpoint of morale, a vital factor in successful conduct of any war, is the fact that Field Marshall Stagg is celebrating his golden jubilee year of coaching. The C. O. P. army has been nicknamed "Golden Tigers" in honor of those 50 years of service.

As in past campaigns of Stagg's armies, the Tigers expect to rely on a "blitzkrieg" attack featuring a spectacular aerial offen-

LADEEZ AN' GENTS

Between themselves the two Smith boys keep things humming in the Bear line and backfield. This Smith was christened JOHN GORDON but is best known as "Jack". Big, blond and possessed of a tremendous offensive charge Smith II is one of Allison's most prized pupils.

AN' OVER HERE

Moved to right half to fill Sam Chapman's shoes last year, LOUIE SMITH threatens to outshine his predecessor before the current season is over. Keep your eyes on this quintuple-threater. He kicks, passes, runs, blocks and calls signals.

By Way of INTRODUCTION

Top

Replacing All-American Vic Bottari is no easy assignment but if anyone can do it, it'll be Tony Firpo, popularly dubbed the "Wild Bull of the Campus". Tony has gained weight this year without losing speed and his added heft is going to spell disaster to many an opposing tackler.

Second

This well might be "the year" for Ted Hubert. An all-around utility man for the past two years, Hubert has played every position in the backfield. A strong runner, an excellent passer and one of the best punters on the Pacific Coast, this senior makes the fourth unit in what might be one of California's greatest backfields.

Third

The "mighty mite" Dave Queen will see most of his football from the player's bench this year. A junior, Dave had the misfortune of fracturing a bone in his right foot in the second scrimmage of the year. His presence on the sidelines, however, will act as an inspiration to his teammates.

Bottom

After being an understudy to Dave de Varona for two years, big, booming Jim Lang comes into his own this year. Fast and shifty for his size, Lang has an uncanny ability of getting down under punts and smearing the safety man. Jim has been voted in as one of the "most likely to succeed after graduation" boys by his classmates.

Do you remember

... When emotion got the best of big Bob Herwig as he dashed up to end Hank Sparks and planted a kiss on his brow just after Hank had caught a pass for the first touchdown in the 1937 Big Game? Quarter Johnny Meek is on the left, while the big 99 belongs to Perry Schwartz. The final score was 20-0 in favor of California.

... When the Erittingham brothers, Jack (left) and Bob, cavorted at end for the Blue and Gold during the '33, '34, and '35 seasons?

... When Chief Loane West decided to return to California to finish his gridiron eligibility? Chief West was a standout during the picture day practice session, then suddenly lost interest.

... It was only last season when Vic Bottari and Dave Anderson opened their final performance on the collegiate gridiron and went on to live up to this picture stunt "cooked up" by the camera-men.

FOR THE FAN

By BOB PRESCOTT

THREE separate grid systems will be presented in today's traditional "double-header" in Memorial Stadium. It will be "Stub" Allison's staid and back-to-the-fundamentals California system versus the razzle-dazzle tactics of Amos Alonzo Stagg's College of Pacific Tigers and the conservative efforts of Vern Hickey's California Aggies.

California's Golden Bears, leading Coast exponents of the block-hard and tackle-hard school of gridiron philosophy, employ an unbalanced line and backfield, with two main formations. In the first, the "single wing", the line is unbalanced, with four men to the right of the center. Power is concentrated on the strong side. All blocking backs are to the right, or strong side, with the tailback about five yards directly behind the center. This formation may also be used with a balanced line.

In the "short punt" formation, the only distinct change from the "single wing" is that the right half shifts from the strong side to the weak side and lines up almost parallel with the fullback. From this formation the Bears may quick kick, pass, or run either to the right or left.

Basically, C. O. P. uses a "Z" formation, featuring an unbalanced line and backfield. Five men may line up on one side of the center, or four men may make up the strong side. From the huddle the backfield goes into position ready to execute the play, rarely employing a shift. Here the end on the strong side plays out about five yards from the nearest lineman, while the rest of the line is in standard unbalanced formation. Plays frequently used from this line-up are end runs, short line bucks, and spinners.

Spreader plays and Stagg's famous "peadinger" are commonly used by the Tigers. The tricky "peadinger" utilizes the "Z" formation, with the exception of the right halfback shifting from the weak side to the strong side, one yard behind the ball receiver and some twenty yards toward the sidelines. As soon as the ball is centered, the receiver laterals to this flanker, who has the alternatives of running, passing, or again lateralling.

Superficially the California Aggies employ the same basic formations as "Stub" Allison's Bears. The major difference between the two systems is that the Aggies' line is spread out slightly, a position rarely found in unbalanced lines. The backfield lines up on the strong side, and does not shift. In the Short Punt formation, the line is balanced, with the backs in their usual positions.

33 YEARS OF PASSING

"BRICK" MULLER—
ONE OF THE
GREATEST PASSERS OF ALL TIME.

"BOB" ZUPPKE—
ORIGINATOR OF THE
"FLEA FLICKER"

Football has been "up in the air" for 33 years.

This season marks the 33rd anniversary of the "football revolution of 1906," which introduced the forward pass, an element then foreign to American football.

The play was suggested by John C. Bell, of Pennsylvania, and Paul J. Dashiell, of the Naval Academy, at a meeting of a rules committee which gathered to decide what was to be done to eliminate criticism of American football as played at that time. Too much close play was considered the greatest evil, and the forward pass was adopted as the most obvious remedy.

It is doubtful if Messrs. Bell and Dashiell dreamed of such innovations as were to be in vogue 33 years later—the Zuppke "flea-flicker" and "flying trapeze" plays, Amos Alonzo Stagg's "flanker pea-dinger" attack, the S. M. U. and T. C. U. "aerial circus" maneuvers, Colgate's seemingly reckless flipping of laterals and forwards, to name only a few of the outstanding developments—because no one took up their invention with any great amount of enthusiasm. In fact, the colleges at first shunned the pass as "too new-fangled."

Originally a pass had to cross the scrimmage line five yards from the point where the ball was put in play. In 1909 this restriction was repealed, but a rule requiring the passer to be five yards behind the line of scrimmage was substituted, and this rule is still in force. An important modification in 1909 was a rule declaring the ball dead if it traveled more than 20 yards in the air without being touched by a player. This limitation was repealed in 1912.

During the first six years of passing, the rules declared that a ball caught behind the goal line was a touchback, not a touch-down. But in 1912 the field was shortened to 100 yards, and the now familiar end zones provided. The rules were changed so that passes caught in these zones were good for six points.

The longest scoring pass of all time was made 33 years ago, by Bradbury Robinson, of St. Louis, to John Schneider, 87 yards against Kansas. The play was unknown to the record-book compilers until a year or so ago, when "Brick" Muller's pass to "Brodie" Stephens in the California-Ohio State game of 1920 was considered the longest pass on record.

Since 1912 the rules governing the play have been modified to meet changing conditions of the game: In 1924 the "screen pass" was legislated against to protect defensive players; in 1926 the "prayerful passes" of losing teams attempting to come from behind by desperate measures in the last minutes of play, became obnoxious, and the rule calling for a penalty of a down and the loss of five yards for the second incompleting pass in a series of downs was passed, later to be modified.

sive and unorthodox but dangerous ground maneuvers. Pigskin sharpshooters from Pacific to keep your eyes on are Bob Adamina, Emil Seifert, and Bill Thomas. Key men in the pea-dinger ground plays are Bobby Kientz, Little College All-American, Roy Cooper, Seifert, Thomas, and Phil Ritchie; all speed burners and good open field runners.

The Tiger defense is expected to outdo any Pacific resistance in past battles with the California forces. Hugh McWilliams, veteran center, and Stan Vaughn, junior tackle, head a tough Tiger front line that may prove strong enough to bog down the Bear attack.

On paper it appears that Mr. Football Fan will be able to venture an "educated guess" when the smoke has cleared in today's hostilities as to the fortunes of the Blue and Gold Army during the balance of the 1939 grid war which promises to increase in intensity week by week.
