Greeting from Old Main

Welcome to War Memorial Stadium and to your University of Wyoming.

Your presence here, during these lively Saturday afternoon contests, is greatly appreciated as evidence of the continuing and enthusiastic support so long accorded Cowboy athletic teams and University educational programs alike.

This support over the years has made both possible and necessary the expansion of campus facilities required for quality higher education—facilities which I am hopeful you will personally inspect. I would call your attention particularly to the Fine Arts Center immediately to the west of this stadium and to the new Physical Education building now under construction nearby.

Again, welcome to The University of Wyoming. This campus and the many educational opportunities contained within it belong to the people of Wyoming. You are cordially invited to examine any aspect of University life which interests you and to return at any time you find it convenient.

Once again it is my pleasure to welcome and to extend greetings to the students, alumni, and friends of the University of Wyoming at the opening of the Cowboy Along with many thousands of Cowboy fans I am looking forward to this year's schedule with anticipation of an outstanding season. With six home games this year we can look forward to watching the Pokes make a comeback with a lineup of many solid performers from last year's roster and many new faces.

While on campus I know you will be interested in visiting the facilities of which all Wyoming people and UW students are justly proud. Also, the students of the University urge you to tour the campus. The atmosphere of the football games is a great time to take the opportunity to share in the greatness of our University and our State.

Best wishes to you all for a most exciting and enjoyable 1974 Cowboy Year.

Sincerely yours,

Stan Harhaway

This is the sixth home game for the Cowboys. Something they haven't been accustomed to. Each autumn at this time the Pokes have been on a weary trail that usually stretched to four games.

So, it's good to be home.

Today 12 Wyoming seniors are making their last appearance in Memorial Stadium. They are tri-captains cornerback Al Duyn, offensive tackle Mike Lopiccolo and middle guard Tony Williams, and tight end John Dunn, split end Archie Gray, safety Ernie Jackson, defensive end Mike McGraw, offensive guard Bill Onacki, center John Schutterle, running back Charlie Shaw, offensive guard Mike Van Diest and cornerback Gary Wood.

This dozen will lead the Cowboys against University of the Pacific for the second time. Last year here Wyoming belted the Tigers 49-14 in the first meeting between the two schools. Pacific went on to fashion a 7-2-1 record and finish third in the Pacific Coast Athletic Association.

This year the Tigers leaped from the starting gate and posted a 3-0 record before some crippling injuries slowed their charge. They bring a 5-5 record into the game, which is the finale for them.

The man to watch offensively is tailback Willard Harrell, number 39. The 5-10, 182-pound senior has rushed for 1,161 yards and scored 10 touchdowns to assault the Pacific record books.

Next week the Cowboys close the season against Arizona at Tucson.

Lantz Heads State Youth Council

"The Wyoming Youth Council, created by legislative action in 1949, reflects the people's concern that there should be coordinated and comprehensive planning for Wyoming youth," said Everett Lantz, executive secretary of the Council and University of Wyoming professor of educational foundations.

"The basic purpose of the Wyoming Youth Council is to comprehend and propose possible solutions for issues and problems that face Wyoming youth and to identify the cause of these issues and problems," Lantz continued.

The major functions include:

Advocacy—the Youth Council speaks for Wyoming children and youth. This implies a need to have continuous lines of communication with those agencies concerned with youth.

Action—the Youth Council makes a continuous study of conditions affecting children and youth. This implies a need to study or survey problems, issues, or concerns that influence the welfare of young people. The chief task is to encourage, criticize, strengthen, support public agencies and individuals who have the courage to do the kind of things that should be done.

Coordination—the Council coordinates programs by participating in planning, developing, and supervising activities designed to protect and promote the well-being of young people.

Involvement—the Youth Council provides opportunity and motivation for citizens, particularly the youth, to become involved in the broad fields of public concern.

The Wyoming Youth Council determines, to the best of its abilities, the most pressing needs, issues and problems concerning Wyoming children and youth. Council members then determine what the Council can and should do to solve these selected tasks.

The Council does not become involved in the administration of direct service programs for children and youth. Direct administration could result in the determination of Council priorities by funding rather than by needs.

Duties of the Council are to make a continuous study of the education, health, recreation, welfare, moral environment, economic and working conditions of children and youth with the objective of improving conditions which will safeguard and improve their welfare; to review legislation pertaining to service for children and youth and to consider needed revision;

to appraise the adequacy and accessibility of existing services for children and youth within the state;

to formulate, after consultation with individuals and agencies concerned with the welfare of children and youth, programs for improving existing conditions; and to maintain contracts with governmental agencies and volunteer groups concerned with planning for children.

According to Lantz, problems related to employment and the abuse of drugs and alcohol are the two most significant issues facing Wyoming's young people. A survey conducted by the Youth Council identified seven major categories of concern:

Employment—scarcity of jobs in the state, lack of competent job training, inadequate labor laws, and economic considerations contingent upon the relative lack of opportunity.

Drugs, alcohol and health-problems related to drug abuse, alcoholism, venereal disease and the emotionally disturbed.

Education—an educational system that, despite is goodness, seems to disenchant some and fails to provide incentive for career or pursuit of higher education, lack of educational options, and inadequate programs for student financing of higher education.

Morals, crime, permissiveness—vandalism, permissive sexual behavior, degrading moral behavior, inadequate respect for established modes of behavior.

19-year-old rights and responsibilities—problems related to adjustment and acceptance of the 19-year-old drinking age and new contractual rights.

Community projects and responsibilties—lack of youth recreational centers and areas, apathy concerning state and local government and deficient involvement thereto.

Social concerns—the environment, racism, lack of knowledge about the urbanized setting, war and poverty.

Members of the Youth Council are: Lantz, executive secretary; Paul Bachman, Ray Fleming, Lloyd N. Hovee, Constance Ricci, Robert Schrader, Harvey Peterson, all of Cheyenne; Theresa McAuley, Casper; B. Bruce Bennion, Cody; Bob J. Burnett, Laramie; Edward "Bill' Bush, Lander; Rev. Lawrence Etchingham, Torrington; Marie McBride, Buffalo; Scott Sanders, Thomas Morgan, Gillette; Robert L. Novotny, Kinnear; Donna Sievers, Pinedale.

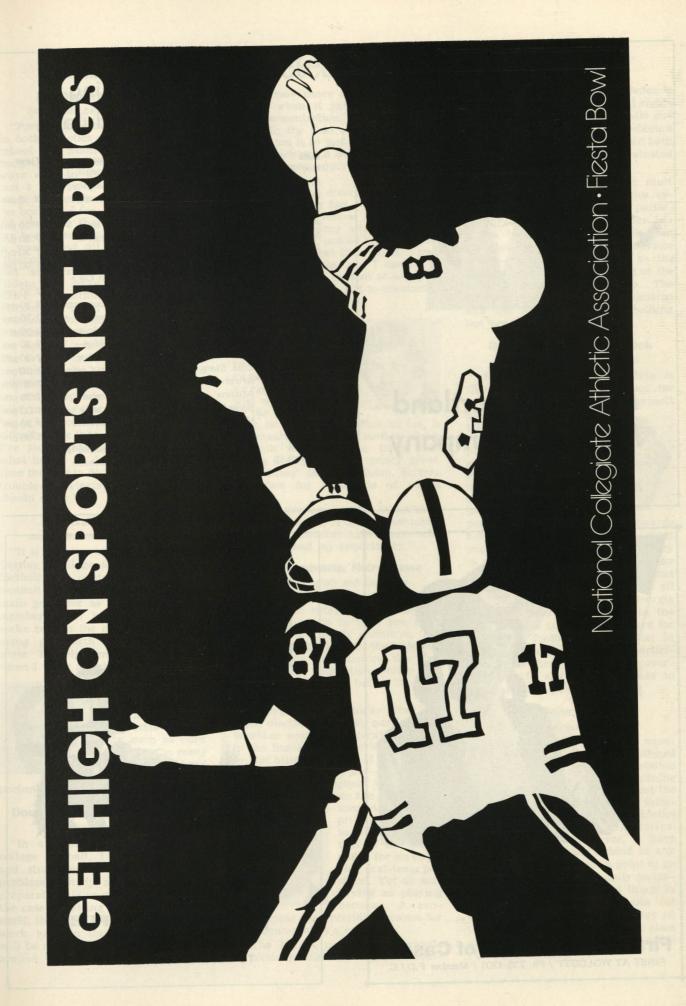

Two of the members are under age of 19. They are Miss Ray Fleming and Scott Sanders.

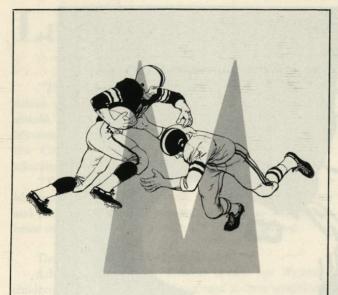

Auxiliary members are: Gloria Werner, Cheyenne; Ardon Wolfgang, Casper; Karen Hand, Douglas; Roger Youtz, Worland; Gordon Taylor, Kemmerer; Hugh Simmons, Rawlins; Steve Bogus, Torrington; Chuck Parsons, Wheatland; Larry Heslep, Green River; Larry Pigg, Sheridan; Janice Bodine, Evanston; Earl Christensen, Newcastle.

Staff members are Betsy Taggart and Pat Korp, both of Laramie.

"The Youth Council has been very well received," said Lantz. "Our whole hope is to encourage people to use the legal profession when needed, and to keep young people from coming in conflict with society."

Lantz also serves on the National Board of Directors of the National Council for Children and Youth.

Disciplined Athletes Gear for Classroom

Pat Donovan, Stanford

Senior, Mechanical Engineering

"Participation on a full scale level in both athletics and academics at a school like Stanford presents timebudgeting problems that are not always easy to solve. After practice and a film study in the early evening, it's tough to settle down to the books and forget the thing that has been foremost in your mind all afternoon. I doubt that any college athlete can make that transition without a real conscious effort; and, for me, it takes a concerted effort with emphasis on the detailed scheduling of my time. The average student has at least two or three hours a day to waste and still has plenty of time to study. But, an athlete spends that time on the field, meaning that his 'off-field' time has to be allotted to each subject specifically if he is to get the work done. I've found that once I'm aware of what has to be done and how little time there is to do it, I have a lot less trouble convincing myself that I should study."

Don Gaffney, Florida

Junior, Business Administration

"It is a matter of setting priorities. Getting a college degree and playing football and contributing to a top football program have been my two main goals for as long as I can remember. So, I budget my time to make certain the maximum effort is being put forth to achieve these goals. It helps me stay motivated when I think about the opportunities

I am being provided by playing football and getting an education at a state university such as ours. There are so many people who do not have such an opportunity."

Doug English, Texas at Austin Senior, Business

"In an athlete's preparation for college football, I think that work and study are obvious needs. The problem of study, as well as football preparation, is in self-motivation. In the case of getting ready for football itself, the need is to be motivated to work hard in the summer, so you will be ready when two-a-days come around. Then you must keep a certain perseverance of mind in midseason when it gets hard to keep your concentration on the game to come. In the field of academics, the temptation is to just have fun at college, never get a degree, and waste the four-year opportunity you have been given.

"In athletics I drew my main motivation from the fact that I have an obligation to fellow players and 'would-be' players who would be willing to work untold hours to start for a great school like Texas. I owe it to these people, and I owe it to myself, not to be content at any plateau I might reach, but to constantly work for the next one.

"I have newly founded motivation, however, for academics. It is from the thousands of guysacross America who were slighted by the recent cut-back in scholarships. This, to me, is the result of a selfish motive which I think overlooks the thing that makes college football really great. This 'thing' in my opinion, is free education for thousands of young athletes.

"As I prepare myself athletically and academically, I can be best motivated by remembering the guys who wish they had my opportunity."

Pete Demmerle, Notre Dame

Senior, English and Language

"The pageantry and glamour of college football today, so often alluded to by announcers in their pre-game build-ups, is scarcely definitive. The running starts before the opening kick-off, the pain before the first contact, the frustration before the first loss, the ecstasy before the final victory.

"College football today does demand discipline from its participants. Whether summer preparation begins in the humidity of the Northeast or in the blistering heat of the Southwest, it begins in June—alone. And it continues throughout the summer and is accented when the student returns to school to pit his willingness to sacrifice against that of his teammates for an enviable first-team position. Yet as satisfying as playing becomes, it cannot become the overriding reason for a student-athlete's existence.

"The NCAA no longer overlooks or condones the slighting of scholastics, but now stresses equal academic and athletic achievement—and rightfully so because increased media exposure has demolished the athlete's private shelter. He is scrutinized both on and off the field and is evaluated in both dimensions.

"Consequently, each player must come to realize that academics assumes equal importance with participation. One without the other becomes impossible. I am more than grateful for my experience at Notre Dame—from embarrassment in the Orange Bowl to the capturing of the 1973 National Championship. The winning, the losing, the education and the discipline can be nothing but beneficial."

Randy Rhino, Georgia Tech

Senior, General Management

"My philosophy on discipline is that there is a time and place for everything. I try to discipline myself physically, mentally and morally on and off the playing field. I am at Georgia Tech for two reasons: to graduate with a degree and to play football. I want to perform the best that I can towards both objectives. I believe if you shoot your best stick every time and try to do things right, you will finish on top more times than not. I know that I will not be playing football all my life. My degree from Georgia Tech will open many doors in the future. There is a time and place for study, for football and for fun in college. Training yourself to participate in all three without ever overindulging in any one is the key to successful discipline, I think."

Ritch Bahe, Nebraska

Senior, Accounting

"I have never really established any regimentation for disciplining myself to meet the demands of intercollegiate athletics and academics. However, I have tried to avoid getting behind in any of my studies. I make it a point to go to class and keep up on daily assignments. It's important to get things in on time. I guess my formula for academics and athletics is to stay on top of the situation, keep up in class and not resort to cramming because I've fallen behind."

America's Fastest Growing Post-Season Classic: The Fiesta

Wyoming will be one of eight teams vying for a berth in America's fastest growing post-season bowl game in 1974, the Fiesta Bowl, to be played on December 28.

The Western Athletic Conference Bowl game annually pits the WAC champion versus a top-ranked invited team—and each year the bowl has progressed in every way.

In 1970 the game was just an idea. Many conference officials were noticing that WAC teams were being shunned by major bowls, despite good records, and thought perhaps the WAC should have its own post-season classic.

That idea, nurtured by former WAC commissioner Wiles Hallock and present commissioner Stan Bates, became a reality in 1971 when the Fiesta received NCAA sanction.

And all of a sudden, a 1970 idea has turned into a well-established, fast growing post-season classic with the following credentials:

*The Rocky Mountain area's richest sporting event. Competing teams have taken home over $1 million in three years from game revenues.

*The most-attended event in the Rocky Mountain area. Crowds of over 50,000 have gathered each season in Tempe, Arizona, to view the classic.

*One of only two bowls to sell out for the last three years. The Rose Bowl is the only other classic to claim that distinction.

*The largest payoff ever by a first-year bowl. The money given to each of the first two competitors of the bowl was a record $168,237. Since that time, the payoff has jumped each season to $171,000 and $184,000.

And next season it will jump even higher, as the bowl reached an agreement in April with the CBS Television Network to telecast the 1974 contest.

A more lucrative network contract means more revenue and a larger TV audience. That allows the classic to compete more favorably for higher-ranked teams.

That goes along with another selling point Fiesta officials point to with great pride—unequalled hospitality.

"I can't get over what a great time we had over here," said former Florida State assistant coach Steve Sloan (now head coach at Vanderbilt) after the first Fiesta in 1971. "I'll tell everyone I see that I don't think any of the older, more established bowls could have done a better job of hosting us. You all were really terrific."

And Pitt coach Johnny Majors said after the 1973 contest:

"We have never been treated more hospitably; I have never seen things done in such a first-class manner and we have never met finer people. I will be your best ambassador in the East."

And the host conference, the WAC, has been happy, too.

"The marriage of the Western Athletic Conference and the Fiesta Bowl has been a happy one," Bates said. "Not only is the Fiesta Bowl assured a conference championship team for its annual game, but the WAC is guaranteed an enormous amount of national prestige and publicity by its participation.

"The Bowl has helped to show the rest of the country just how strong WAC football is and how it has progressed since the Bowl's inception. Every football fan knows the WAC now as a wide-open, offensive-minded conference, one which stresses the 'big play' with high scoring, entertaining collegiate football action." Shrine Contest Becoming State Prep Tradition

Plans are already on the drawing board for the second North-South high school Shrine Bowl game, a contest which the state's Shriners hope will become a Wyoming tradition.

The 1975 game is set for Aug. 9, in Wyoming's Memorial Stadium. It will be preceded by a 10 a.m. parade.

Sponsored by the Kalif Temple of Sheridan and the Korein Temple of Rawlins, last year's first-ever-contestof-its-kind-in-the-state attracted Wyoming's top prep football players.

Net proceeds from the '74 game reached in excess of $25,000, and went to help support the 19 Shrine orthopedic hospitals for crippled children and three burns institutes.

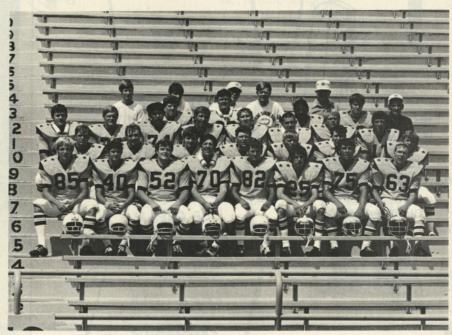

The South squad won last year's game easily, 37-0 in Memorial Stadium.

Coach John Deti's outfit scored three touchdowns in the third period of the contest to down the North. The Rebels only led 9-0 going into the third but turned two pass interceptions and a fumble into TD's in the span of 4:55.

South scores came on a 32-yard field goal by Star Valley's Ballard Johnson; a one-yard run by Cheyenne East quarterback Mike Rafferty; a four-yard burst by Laramie's William Black; and 18-yard run by Guernsey-Sunrise's Mark Gorman; a 40-yard pass interception by Laramie's Tom Bottom, and an 86-yard pass from Kemmerer quarterback Jerry Dolar to Johnson. Johnson added two extra points

The Shriners utilize a set of criteria for selecting coaches, players and all participants in the game. Probably the biggest is that every athletic district and school class must be represented. Head coaches are elected by football coaches from all the state's high schools. Head coaches appoint their assistants in compliance with criteria set up by the Shrine.

Outstanding players are recommended by their coaches and this information is given to the two head coaches who in turn select 33 players for each squad. Recommendations also are made for student manager and trainers.

The Shriners thank all of Wyoming for its support of this athletic event and solicit continued support for the 1975 game.

BICENTENNIAL

The Wyoming Bicentennial Commission SALUTES

The Laramie Plains Bicentennial Committee on the occasion of its designation as a NATIONAL BICENTENNIAL COMMUNITY

In 1976 the United States will observe the 200th Anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence, two centuries of nationhood, and the beginning of a third century. We all need ask ourselves what we can be as a nation, as a state, and as a community and then work toward that goal.

WHAT YOU CAN DO NOW

- Help establish a local Bicentennial Committee representative of all segments of your community. Encourage immediate Bicentennial planning.
- Look over your community. Decide what goals could be accomplished or set in motion by 1976 relating to the three Bicentennial themes: Heritage, Festival, and Horizons.
- Encourage your children, students and other young people to develop Bicentennial projects for their schools and organizations.
- Contribute your ideas to your local Bicentennial Committee or the WBC.
- Discuss the Bicentennial with your neighbors, friends, and organizations.
- *Keep up-to-date on the activities of the ARBA, the WBC, and your local Bicentennial Committee.

COWBOY JOE LIVESTOCK CLUB

A group of ranchers who are interested in the athletic program at the University suggested that a portion of "Cowboy Joe" income could be derived from a livestock club. It is their feeling that some ranchers would prefer to contribute in this manner in lieu of a regular membership. The value of the livestock donated will determine the club level as explained in the contribution

Arrangements will be made to pick up the livestock in the fall at the rancher's convenience. This will permit the ranchers an opportunity to support the athletic department as well as boost their own industry. Persons interested in this program are urged to contact Cowboy Joe Club headquarters, P. O. Box 3137, University Station, Laramie, Wyoming 82070.

MEET Rosemary Tobin

This is the last of the 1974 Wyoming football program covers depicting the UW Pepsters. The six covers were designed by Laramie artist Quita Pownall.

Today's cover features Rosemary (Romie) Tobin, a junior from Denver.

Romie, the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Peter Lawrence Tobin, majored in dietetics. She recently left school to be married.

At Machebeuf High School in Denver, Romie was a Student Council representative for two years and also a cheerleader for two years. She participated in intramural sports where her favorite was basketball. She also was a member of the National Honor Society.

At UW she was a member of Delta Delta Delta Sorority, Spurs, Chimes, Iron Skull and Phi Upsilon Omicron (Home Economics Honorary). Her hobbies include snow skiing, tennis and golf. K

Situation: The Brigham Young deep safety makes a legal fair catch signal several times during a game. In the fourth quarter, he fully extends his arm above his head but does not employ any waving motion. Following the catch, he runs for a TD.

What is the Ruling?

Coal. In Wyoming, Pacific Power produces electricity by taking the coal from the ground, burning it in steam-electric plants.

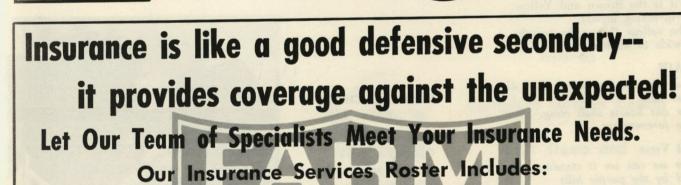

But getting it out is only half the job. Reclaiming the disturbed land is the other half. And, Pacific Power has a team that can't be beat when it comes to reclamation.

Near Glenrock (where this picture was taken) the restoration cycle is well under way. The topsoil is redistributed, groomed, and replanted with native vegetation.

We're proud of our ground game. And the part we're playing to make Wyoming a great place to live and work.

Cowboy Songs and Cheers

COWBOY JOE

He always sings ragged music to the cattle, As he swings back and forward in the saddle, On a horse, pretty good horse, got a syncopated gaiter;

And you ought to hear the meter to the roar of his repeater!

How they run, yes run, when they hear him comin'

For the Western folk all know, He's a high falutin', rootin', tootin', Son of a gun from old Wyoming, Rag-time Cowboy, talk about your Cowboy, Ragtime Cowboy Joe!

ALMA MATER

Where the western lights long shadows Over boundless prairie fling. And the mountain winds are vocal! With thy dear name, Wyoming, There it is the Brown and Yellow Floats in loving loylaty, And the college throws its portals Open wide to all men free.

And so our sons we bring, Our Alma Mater sing. To her our hearts shall cling, Shall cling forevermore.

Second Verse

Yonder we can see it standing. Circled by the purple hills While the flaming fire of sunset Every western window fills; 'Tis the College! Ah, we know it! Shrine of many joys and tears, And the rays that light upon it And the prophetic of its years.

WYOMING CHANTS

- 1. Rip 'em up, Tear 'em up, Give 'em hell Wyo.
- 2. Let's go Pokes! Go! Go! Go! 1-8-6 1
- 3. Here we go Wyo., here we go!

THE STAR-SPANGLED BANNER

O say can you see, by the dawn's early

What so proudly we hailed at the twilight's last gleaming.

Whose broad stripes and bright stars through the perilous fight

O'er the ramparts we watched, were so Gallantly streaming?

And the rocket's red glare, the bombs bursting in air,

Gave proof through the night that our flag was still there,

O say does that star-spangled banner yet

O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave?

WYOMING CHEERS

- 1. Give us a W...W! Give us a Y...Y! Give us an O...O! What have you got. Wvo! Louder....WYO! One more time....WYO!
- 2. V-I-C-T-O-R-Y Victory! Victory! Go Go Pokes!
- 3. Hey Hey! Let's go! A victory! Hey Hey! Let's fight! A victory! Hey Hey! Let's win! A victory!

HALFTIME HIGHLIGHTS

Wyoming's 110-piece marching band is a traditionally colorful feature of all Cowboy home games. The band's distinctive arrangements and the entire halftime production are the work of RONALD KUHN, UW band director.

MAYBE COLLEGE ISN'T YOUR THING YET!

Maybe you need a break from the pressure of grades and class standing. You may not be ready to take full advantage of college; some people are far better students at 21 than they are at 18. You might need time to learn about yourself, about others, and about what you want to do with your life. Today's Army offers you this time. Two years to train, travel, meet people, learn a skill, handle responsibility, mature. And you can begin college while in the Army . . . we'll pay 75% of your tuition. After your enlistment is over, there's 36 months of financial assistance at the college of your choice.

The 1974 UW pepsters would like to thank the following for their generous help during the football season. We appreciate it very much.

Watt Earns Medallion Award

Joe Watt, former president of the University Board of Trustees, received the Alumni Association Medallion Award for Outstanding Service in pregame ceremonies today.

The UW Athletic Department

The Board of Trustees, University of Wyoming

In connection with the presentation, Mr. and Mrs. Watt were honor guests at a dinner given by President and Mrs. Carlson last night. The Alumni Association also named them honor guests at the open house held today at the new Alumni House

The citation naming Watt the recipient of the Medallion Award said:

Few residents of Wyoming have served the University and the State in as many capacities as has Joe Watt. In recognition of that dedication, the Alumni Association has chosen to honor him with the Medallion Award for Outstanding Service.

From 1963 to 1969 while he served on the University Board of Trustees, Watt gave unselfishly of his time and effort to promote the University. He served as president of the Board in 1967.

During the current school year, funds he has given to the University support eleven scholarships in the College of Commerce and Industry and Engineering. Watt Brothers Scholarship Funds provide seven student grants in Agriculture and Law. Additional trust funds established by Watt assist in financing the College of Commerce and Industry Internship Program and the Western History Research

A member of a pioneer Wyoming family, whose parents began ranching in the Moorcroft area in the late 1890s, Watt and his wife operated the A Triangle T Ranch, which contains the original family homestead, until 1973, when they leased the land and moved to Sheridan.

Both Joe and Mrs. Watt attended the University in the mid 1920s.

Throughout his long career Watt has served on numerous state and national boards and commissions, including the UW Foundation. He is now first vice president of the Cowboy Hall of Fame.

Because he has served the University long and faithfully, the Alumni Association is proud to present Joe Watt with its Medallion Award.
