We hereby certify that we have this day audited the foregoing accounts of the Treasurer of the town of Hudson, and find them correctly cast and properly vouched.

WILLIS P. CUMMINGS, JAMES F. WILSON, Town Auditors.

Report of the Trustees of the Public Library.

At the last annual meeting a vote was passed by the town to accept the provisions of the law of 1891, in relation to free public libraries in towns, and an appropriation of one hundred dollars was voted for that purpose; but no library trustees were elected at that meeting to carry the provisions of the law into effect.

Subsequently a board of trustees was appointed by the selectmen, and after an organization had been effected, a correspondence was commenced with the state library commissioners in regard to the books to be furnished by the state.

Before any substantial progress had been made, the trustees learned that by the will of the late Dr. Adoniram Judson Greeley, the town was bequeathed 500 volumes of books, to be selected from his private library of nearly 3000 volumes, for a free public library for the town of Hudson.

Dr. Greeley was a native of this town, and eldest son of the late Deacon Reuben, and Joanna C. (Merrill) Greeley, born Sept. 10, 1818, and died in Olneyville, R. I., 1893.

By the provision of the will of Dr. Greeley, the town was to have the first selection of the 500 books from his library, the remainder to go to his heirs—brothers, sisters, nephews and nieces.

These heirs very kindly and generously donated their shares of the library to the town, so far as the books were suitable for a public library.

The books were all shipped to this place, and have been assorted and classified, and a little more than 1900 volumes have been selected for the library.

These books are not new, but a great majority are in good condition; and when a catalogue shall have been completed, we believe it will show as good a list of books upon almost any subject—as can be found in any public library of its size in the state.

We appointed Mrs. Emma B. Merrill, librarian, and she now has charge of the books; but owing to numerous unavoidable delays, we have been unable as yet to open the library for the use of the citizens of the town. In honor to the memory of the late Dr. A. J. Greeley who made the bequest, and in respect to the Greeley family that made the generous donation, we have given the library the following name: The Greeley Public Library of Hudson, N. H.

The one hundred dollars worth of books to be furnished by the state have not yet been received but we presume they will be forwarded very soon. The printed matter, also, which was ordered through the state library commission, has not been received.

Within a few days after the state books and printed matter shall have come, the books will be labelled, numbered and arranged, and the library opened for the delivery of books. According to the rules and regulations we have adopted, the library will be kept open on Wednesday and Saturday afternoons from 2 to 5 o'clock, and Wednesday evening from 7 to 9 o'clock.

REPORT OF THE BOARD OF EDUCATION.

To the Inhabitants of the District of Hudson.

It being one of the duties assigned by law, to the Board of Education, we respectfully present for your consideration the Ninth Annual Report of the School District of Hudson, for the year ending March 1st, 1894.

We live in an age of progress, of change. Our "history is not a mere succession of events connected by chronology; it is a chain of causes and events," and in our country the education of the nation is the chief cause that determines its destiny.

Education, in its true sense, comprehends the symmetrical development of the intellectual, the moral and the physical nature. It is a sound governmental principle that national greatness keeps pace with national intelligence. The people of New England early recognizing the truth of this fact, made wise provision for the education of its people; and from this idea has grown our educational system. This love for education and faith in its power, has ever been one of the best elements of New England character. The people are chiefly interested in the results, as measured by their influence upon the intelligence, morals and prosperity of society, and any system which aims to accomplish less than this, is a failure.

It is not one sided, but many sided men and women that the world of to-day demands from our educational institutions. We do not underestimate the fact that there is a growing tendency toward special lines of work in business and in the professions; but you are called upon to consider such principles as form the groundwork of business and professional education, and leave that which is beyond to the specialist to follow out that line of thought and study for which the peculiar characteristics of the individual indicate him to be best fitted. The safety of a republic rests in the intelligence of its people; and, as a general rule, the intelligence of the people is circumscribed by the facilities for the acquisition of knowledge which are brought within the reach of the masses. Our school system is the pride of New England. In the public schools the boy and girl in their companionship and associations, become members of a small world, in which, to some degree, at least, they are surrounded by the same conditions with which they are to be surrounded in after life. They here, for the first time, appreciate the great American idea that all are upon an equality, and that each must achieve success by individual effort, or assume the responsibility for failure. Here, to the fullest extent, the pupil comprehends the idea of his own individuality, which is to become the touch-stone to success or failure in the great battle of life. The pupil's intellect is undeveloped His 'character is in the formative period, and the habits of thought and study formed are to make or mar the symmetry of a life. The lesson of obedience learned, the habits of industry acquired, and the ambition aroused,-all of which alike bear testimony to the character of the pupil and the excellence of the teacher,-will find their several counterparts in the life of the man and woman, and will then benefit society by an increased wealth of average intelligence and good morals.

Such influences as these, which are distinctively American in their scope and tendency; severally make up the essential characteristics of our common schools. The public school is the foundation of the entire educational system. It furnishes the material for our higher institutions of learning. So that every teacher is directly interested to make this institution practical, progressive and effective. While we recognize fully the fact that change of itself is not necessarily progress, we must not be unmindful of the equally evident fact that advancement must come, if at all, by changing the old order of things; and while we would on no account undervalue or despise the wisdom of the fathers, still it behooves us to be vigilant, not only that the excellences of former educational methods may be retained, but also that defects thereof may be pointed out and corrected. It is indeed a happy omen for the future of our country that now as never before is this subject " The improvement of our common school system," engaging the attention not only of the masses but of the ablest men of our day. Let us each and all strive, not to carry our point merely, not build up our own personal ends, but to accomplish the greatest good to the greatest number. Let us sink self, party, in fact everything that operates as a bar to harmonious progress in educational matters.

We have endeavored to impress upon teachers and pupils the importance of thoroughness of acquisition in their studies as far as they go. Some scholars are desirous of getting on fast, but are unwilling to make the effort necessary really to do it; so they will rush through their books, rapidly but superficially, and at the end know but little about them. We believe in order to acquire thoroughness there is need of frequent repetition and reviews of the text-books.

The school affairs during the year have shown nothing out of the ordinary course. No. 4, school the winter term closed for one week, Jan. 5th, the school commenced again Jan. 15th, and continued until Jan. 29th, when on account of illness, the teacher Miss Mabel F. Adams resigned. There being a number of the scholars out sick, the Board thought best to close the school for the term. School No. 5, winter term, closed for one week on account of illness of teacher Dec. 29th, Miss Hattie E. Thompson resigned, and Mr. James G. Wentworth was elected teacher to continue the school.

SCHOOL STUDIES.

The Board at the commencement of the year made a change of histories, the old Higginson had been long in use, and most of them were over 10 years old. The new Ellis History was adopted in its place. Raub's Lesson in English was also adopted for beginners in grammar with marked success.

Arithmetic, we think the study of mental arithmetic is too much neglected in our schools. It is obvious that the powers of the mind which are obtained by study of arithmetic are in proportion to the amount of mental labor performed. We have tested many pupils with simple little business problems and it is astonishing how many there are who fail to give a correct answer. This mental process trains the mind of the young in a correct, rapid, and systematic course of learning which is of infinite benefit all through life.

Penmanship has received considerable attention with good success.

It is not fair dealing for the teacher to allow a child to take his writing book and write a few words or sentences wholly by himself, with never a word of instruction, advice, kindly criticism or encouragement from the teacher. Practice should occupy the greater part of the time devoted to the study, but instruction, too, is necessary.

Geography and Physiology. To these the usual attention has been given with satisfactory results.

Spelling. There has been both oral and written spelling in the schools. And considerable improvement has been made in most of the schools. The committee have visited the school-rooms frequently during the year, and have ascertained for themselves their true condition and advancement; and are pleased with the progress that has been made the past year. The teachers with few exceptions have been those of experience and efficiency, and have been cordially supported by the patrons of the schools.
