This week the search for answers to the question we chose led us to Deyo Hall where the "elite" of the campus reside. The question has not been asked before but we feel that there is enough interest to ask it in.

The question is, "Would you have gone to college if there had not been any G. I. or Rehabilitation bills passed by Congress?"

The first to be interviewed was Daniel O'Keefe Ribbons of 21 Deyo Hall and North Vassalboro, Maine, and Augusta. He says, "No, I don't think I would. Unless maybe if I could have gotten a scholarship."

John Chase of Millinocket, Maine, and 10 Deyo Hall says, "No, because I would not have the dough."

Raymond L. Pooler, 9 Deyo Hall, Vassalboro, Milo, and places known and otherwise remarked, "Of course. One with my mental abilities could not afford to miss the benefits of a higher education."

Earl Tibbetts, 20 Deyo Hall and Morrill, Me., says, "Most certainly! In the complex world of today one soon realizes that there will always be plenty of men to work with a pick and shovel. A college man may expect something better. At least he should be able to sell pencils on a corner with a tree of intelligence." See you next week.

Big Hoe Down Tonight At The OI' Student Union

By Dave Powers

Yes sir, tonight is the night for the big hoe down up at the ole gray S. U. It should be a big affair. Jebe Leaman and his wash board boys providing the audience with melodic strains. At an interview the other day with Jebe he said that he was featuring Slim Jim on the violin and creeping Moe on the oboe not to mention "Mups Muldoon" on the washboard and "Fingers" Flanagan on the piano. All in all it should be a gala affair; so men put on your blue jeans and burlap bags and shag up there at eight tonight. It should be brought out that the feline femininity from Westbrook Junior College to provide you with extra entertainment, and if it's a warm night there should be numerous other things to do besides dance—drink coke that is.

And while the subject is at hand, we of the U. of M. Annex student body and those girls who are fortunate (or unfortunate) to read this column. It isn't often that we are honored enough to have such beautiful women in our midst as we have here tonight, so don't feel badly if some of the boys make seemingly mad advances at you—they mean well—just tell them that you will report them to Captain Malaney. You will also probably note that many of the same boys whom you have had the misfortune of meeting at MacArthur Gym will be among the burlap bags positioned around the hall. Just go up to some of them and ask for the next hardy and hake and watch their faces redden. Don't get the impression that they're shy of bashful because they're not—they just don't know how to act as they aren't accustomed to such privileges.

Well here comes "Jebe" up to the rostrum to call out the Virginia Reel, so grab your partners and promenade down the hall. Swing your partner!

Hear ye! Hear ye! In this issue it is our proud duty to announce to the world the arrival of two new additions to that world. Proud parents of a baby girls are Mr. and Mrs. Donald Moore of Lambert Park in the metropolis of Bath. Also newly arrived at the state of parenthood are Mr. and Mrs. Albert Libby, who on March 15 found themselves the supporters of a baby boy.

Campus Talent, Girls Featured In New Variety

Oz Ellis To Act As MC For Gala Variety Show Next Thursday Evening

Girls, tap dancers, girls, minstrel acts, girls, singers, girls, and many other acts, fourteen in all, including girls, will be on the agenda of the Student Senate's gala Variety Show to be held in the gymnasium this coming Thursday evening.

Burt DeFrees New Senate President

By Robert Cormier

The election of new officers in the Senate this week was one of the main points of interest during last meeting. Those elected were: president Bert DeFrees, Vice president, Singer, Secretary-Treasurer, Paradis. The executive committee consists of the above named officials in addition to Ken Murphy, Jack Berman, and Dick Barney. Singer as general chairman. Don Barbour will supervise things from the sidelines as chairman of the dance committee.

The Senate is sponsoring these Variety Shows so that they may raise enough money to make the dance the biggest and the best of the entire year. They sure need your help to do this job. Let's have a big turn-out for the Variety Shows!

Man alive! The Senate can think up some darn good projects. The newest one on the fire is a "Freshman Brunswick Campus Booklet" This booklet will contain all kinds of different hints for the incoming frosh. Some of the things that will be covered are the functioning of the various clubs that have been formed during our stay at Annex.

And who have our noble senators persuaded to act as Master of Ceremonies? None other than our Prince of Privies, Oz Ellis. Yup, Oz is going to be dishing out some whimsical wit and unsane introductions at the greatest talent show that has yet come to our fair Campus.

The acts which will include the fairer sex hailing from Brunswick and Bath, and, together with those from here on the base, which some of our vaudevillian students have dreamt up, should prove to make for a very pleasant evening. Tickets will be sold at the door, so come tech. aggies and A & S boys, for it will be a night of hilarity for all.

By the way, the purpose of this show is not only to provide a night of diversion from our daily grind, but also to drum up a little cash with which to make our Senate-sponsored Spring formal a bigger and better affair. So here's the most sensational bargain that you have yet to be offered—for the price of one ticket you not only get your fill (don't take that the wrong way) of beautiful women and wistful wise cracks, but you also help underwrite our biggest dance of the year.

Howling Alleys And Gym Prove Most Popular In Campus Survey

By Maynard Miller and Barnaby McAuslan

As a result of the recreational survey taken during Registration Week, it was found out that 382 out of 745, or roughly 51% of the total number of students registered here for this semester, use the howling alley regularly. The gym followed close behind with a total of 337, or 45% of the student body.

These and many more interesting facts about the extra-curricular habits of the Brunswick male were gleaned from the questionnaires which were finished Tuesday afternoon by the survey committee.

Editor's note: The following is a portion of a letter to the ANNEX received from Mr. Curtis of the Athletic Department.

Dear Editor,

I should like to take this opportunity to sincerely thank the MAINE ANNEX, and its two reporters, Maynard Miller and Barnaby McAuslan, for their efforts so freely given in compiling the results of our recent recreational survey.

(signed) S. L. Curtis
Faculty Chairman of Recreation

The first question asked was, "What extra-curricular activities did you engage in during the past semester?" To this question 186 said that they were in intramural basketball; 142 were in the Outing Club; 79 were engaged in intramural bowling; 48 sang in the Glee Club; 37 were members of the Camera Club; 35 were members of the varsity football team; 31 were members of the Rifle Club, and an equal number of men were in the weight-lifting room trying to out-lift the other fellow. There were 29 actively engaged in the Commuters Club; 28 were on the staff of the

Last Sunday a number of the members of the Brunswick Campus Photography Club took part in a nature-taking expedition to the hitherto unexplored wilderness of Cham Beach, with their attention centered upon the ruins of old Fort Cham. The trip got underway at 10 A. M., with transportation furnished by Don Richardson, a member, and Mr. Fred Oleson, faculty advisor. After braving the terms of U. S. Route 1 from the pool to Bath, and of numerous smaller roads beyond that last out of civilization, the intrepid members of the camera caravan braved themselves upon the shore of the Atlantic Ocean, the proximity of which had been suspected by us, but had as yet not been recorded for the official records. After much travel along the edge of a body of water, the members grew weary of discussing among themselves the subject of lenses, apertures, filters, meters, shutters, f-kroom procedure, and the possibilities of joint meetings and field trips with the Photo Club from Westbrook Junior College; and finally their attention was turned to the terrain which whizzed by the windows. Soon the destination came into view, across the hills and leys and broad expanses of salt

D'ARTAGNAN COMES TO SCREEN IN "MAN IN THE IRON MASK"

Dashing D'Artagnan one of the most popular heroes the screen has ever known and a man whose name stands out in history to typify the undying spirit of France, rides again—this time in "The Man in the Iron Mask", an Edward Small production which Producers Releasing Corporation is re-releasing and is to be shown at the Gym under the sponsorship of the MAINE ANNEX. Shows will start at 3:30 and 7:30 on Tuesday, March 23rd. Admission will be charged.

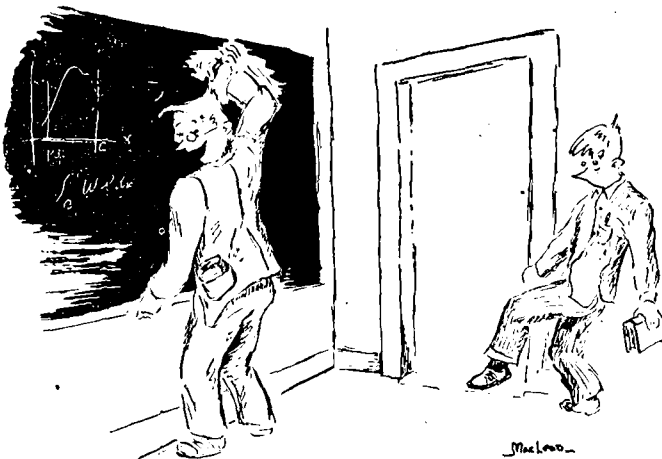

In this current version of the famous Alexandre Dumas novel, D'Artagnan comes to life in the hands of Alan Hale. James Whale directed the production.

D'Artagnan has come to be known as one of the screen's most solid heroes. A dependable lad, he has fought and slashed his way over his adversaries and into the hearts of millions of people who person of Warren Williams, who carries out the role in the company of a cast including Louis Hayward, Joan Bennett, Joseph Schildkraut have enjoyed him both on the stage and screen.

As a matter of fact, D'Artagnan motion pictures began early in the industry. He was portrayed several times in the one and two reelers, but he made his debut in the type of pictures now known as a feature when the old Biograph company started turning out five reelers in 1915.

In 1921 D'Artagnan attained his present day entertainment mark when Douglas Fairbanks Sr. portrayed the role in the first lavish version of "The Three Musketeers". Fairbanks returned to the role in 1928 when he made the initial screen version of "The Man in the Iron Mask." These were still in silent days.

THE EDITOR'S DESK . . .

On March 11, 1938, Austria was invaded by the Reichswehr. Six months later on September 30, 1938, Daladier, Chamberlain, and Mussolini signed a pact turning the Sudetenland over to the Third Reich. The trail of the Nazi meteorite had begun. At the time no one knew the fiery path of destruction and misery it was to leave in its wake. Little Poland next fell victim to the sanguinary thirst of the "Super Race". Country after country, Holland, Belgium, France, tiny Luxembourg, all were subjected to ignoble defeat and virtual chained slavery by the Germans.

The world stood aghast at the crimes of the great German juggernaut. Conference after conference was held by the nations not at war. The people in America sat in their rockers on their back porches screaming defiance at the world and they strove for a complete isolationist position on the international fence. For a while we lived in the aura of smug security afforded us by the protecting walls of the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans and our "neutrality". Ah, but what happened? Out of the obscure past came a precipitous slashing attack upon the great inviolable democracy, America.

Oh yes, we learned our lesson from the brutal teachings of imperialist Germany in '17 and '18. We all admit that there is no teacher better than Old Man Experience. He taught us a harsh lesson in World War I. But, wasn't World War I the war to end all wars? Oh, that's right, we must have forgotten. We're so sorry about the needless loss of life brought about in World War II.

We sat back so complacently and watched Hitler rape, raze, and pillage. And, when it got to be too much for our stomachs, why . . . we closed our eyes and dreamed wistfully of peaceful days. We had in our power the means for bringing Hitler's war machine to a jarring stop. But we held back. After all, hadn't Hitler promised to stop at a certain line in Europe. He just wanted "live space" for the German people.

Today Joe Stalin and his boys are sitting back carefully picking their teeth of the remnants of the tender morsel that was once Czechoslovakia. We have just witnessed the clearest example of "savoir faire" in conquest ever to be presented on this earth. The subtle and ingenious infamy of the Russians has at last been laid bare for all to see.

Will we see and heed? I doubt it. Sincerely and frankly, I doubt it. We, the citizens of the world, have not changed. We here in America seem to be of the opinion that just because the United States has never lost a war, it is impossible for defeat to come to us.

In recent reports to the State Department it was revealed that the strongest communist party outside the Soviet Union is the one in Italy. The Italian Red Army now numbers well over one hundred and fifty thousand men. On April 18th next, there is to be held the Italian election. Premier deGasperi of Italy was quoted a little over a week ago as

CAMPUS CUTIES

By Alvan Mersky

Pretty Irene Percey of Winterport, Maine, gets our three cheers this week for being "the girl we'd most like to dig salt in Siberia with" by becoming No. 13 in our "campus cutie" parade. If you'll all look closer, I'm sure you'll agree with me that Irene does ample justice to a pair of very hazel eyes. If you would like further proof of her capabilities see Milton Stimson over in Hotel Deyo. As Milt will be chorused in "I do" with Irene come next June when they are going to be married. Irene is at present a senior in Winterport High School. According to Milt, her chances are very good in being awarded an honor in her graduating class this year. She is seventeen years old and carries around 115 pounds built into a 5'8" frame. Besides her high ranks in school, she also is a star on the girls' basketball team. We think Milt and Irene will make a swell couple and hope to see much of them next year at the "Promised Land" in Orono.

saying that if America does not prove within the next month that the American type of government is far superior to that of the U. S. S. R., then April 18th, 1948, will be the last time the Italian people will ever vote. Finland is at this moment being set up for a knockout punch. The small country is now undergoing a rigid program of coercive measures designed by Moscow to bring it to its knees. How can we help but wonder who is next on the agenda?

It is a known fact that the ultimate goal of the communist doctrine is world domination, a state earth-encompassing in its boundaries, with the controlling reins leading to the brain in Moscow.

I am a veteran, a veteran of infantry service against the Germans. War leaves a foul, acrid taste in my mouth, and I know what another world struggle will mean in terms of suffering, hardship, and privations. I now pose this question—Isn't it far better to fight in the next year or so a short and vicious war than to wait until we are attacked and be forced to wage a long and bitter war? With the international situation as it stands, and considering what it portends, it is my opinion that war with the Soviet Union is an inevitable eventuality of the near future.

Let's be at it and have over with the ignorant bliss which is so evident in the American people and in our Congress.

Beverage Speaks At Student Union

Albion Beverage, Republican Senatorial candidate, spoke at the Student Union Wednesday night under the auspices of the Maine Annex Political Forum. His speech which was a scathing criticism of the present government in Washington aroused the wrath of many in the audience. He declared that the present government is fast heading us into a Fascist military state. He asked for an honest accounting of those men who have been in Washington for the past sixteen years.

He denounced the techniques by which those in power have destroyed the integrity of the present political system, the Balkanization of the American people, and the means by which they have destroyed all political opposition.

A lively discussion period followed. The speaker, who is the second in a series of speakers to be heard at Brunswick, was introduced by Charles Lewis.

Summer Sewall and Governor Horace Hildreth will speak at a later date.

In response to the second question which was, "What extra-curricular activities do you participate in during the co-semester?", 162 said that would play intramural basketball. The Outing Club was close behind with 141 members for this semester. Eighty-nine are going to report varsity baseball, and intramural baseball will have 85 men reported for practice. Intramural boys has lost ground in the popularity rating with only 69 on the list this semester as compared to 79 last semester. There will only 59 out for intramural softball, varsity track will claim 57, glee club will have 52 men in ranks, and spring football practice will see 51 out for the team. Meet Coach Hamm

Phillip L. Hamm is the coach of the runners on the track squad. Coach Hamm is a true Maine Man having his home in Charleston, Maine. He graduated from Ricker Classical in 1938 and the University of Maine in 1943. Immediately after his graduation, he enlisted in the Army. As Coach Hamm is an extremely modest man, I could not find out much about his Army life except he served in New Guinea and was discharged in April of 1946 after two and one half years in the service. Since that time he has been active here at the Annex as a mathematics instructor and Cross Country and Track Coach.

Coach Hamm left behind him a brilliant track record at Maine. As a senior he won the New England two mile championship and finished second in the I. C. A. A. As a freshman on the cross-country team, he was one of the placers of the National Cross Country Championship.

A quotation from Coach Jenkins of the Maine Track Team describes Coach Hamm correctly. "Phillip Hamm is the best trackman and prospective coach to come out of Maine in many years."

Thus far Coach Hamm has lived up to this. His cross country team of this year finished third in the New England and eighth in the Nationals, and last year's team was exceptionally strong.

Coach Hamm will not commit himself as to this year's team, except that the distance runners look good. He also says that if numbers counted the Annex would not lose a meet. Here's wishing Coach Hamm another successful season in track.

It will be an elimination type with the winning team being declared the Annex Champions. All students are eligible and teams are not restricted to one wing or down.

Winter Sports Banquet Monday Night

The Annual Winter Sports Banquet will be held on Monday March 22, at 6:45. Members of the varsity ski, basketball, and hockey teams will attend. The pool champion Ralph Ouellette, the ping-pong champion Arthur Levanian, and the members of the championship bowling team will also be present.

Mr. Crouse will act as toastmaster and Ted Curtis will be guest speaker. He will present pictures of the Maine and the Maine Annex Ski Teams. A special feature of these films will be the jumping done by our Bill Cummings at the Dartmouth Winter Carnival.

Members of the winning basketball team will not be able to attend the banquet because the play-offs will not be held in time for them to attend.

Intramural Sports

The results of the bowling tournament which is in full swing are as follows: team 14 composed of Peterson, Roberst, Smith, and Robbins defeated team 8 consisting of Ellis, Derby, McCowan, and Kilbuck by a score of 1953 to 1829. Team 16, the faculty team of Raymond, Clark, Zabilisky, and Olsen defeated Dunbar, Clark, Libbey, and Whalen of team 4 by a score of 1988 to 1909.

Paul Peterson of team 14 set a new official record of 248. This is slightly under his unofficial record of 267. He also holds the two and three string records of 420 and 607 respectively.

These matches are the first of the finals. Other teams entered are team 11, with a season's average of 1077, team 2, 1071; team 8, 1000; team 11, 1083; team 14, 1252; team 15, 1128; and team 16, 1189.

More results will be in next weeks paper.

DAY DREAMS

By Sid Folsom

The room was filled with an awful quiet. The only element in evidence was a distinct lack of interest. Silence seemed to reach to the very extremities of the room. If the incident had been described in a novel, it might have been glowingly compared with the well-known "calm before the storm." But this

Notices

To all those who have wished to bowl with small balls, your chance will arrive shortly. Following the finals in bowling the duck pins will be replaced by candle pins and smaller balls will be substituted. Speaking of bowling, there is going to be a two man bowling team tournament. From this corner it looks like a set up for Coaches Bob Raymond and Joe Zabilisky who are the first tea mentored. So all men who wish to defeat this team sign up at once at the athletic office.

(Continued from page two) is in last place with six. The number of activities that a person is going to engage in during this semester is 1.71, which is a substantial increase over the preceding semester.

The third question asked was, "What recreational facilities did you regularly use during the last semester?" To this question 382, or 51% of those surveyed, replied that they had used the bowling alleys regularly during the past semester. The gym was close behind with 337, or 46% of those surveyed. The pool room had 290 habitual users, and the ping pong room was occupied by 198 students. Over 100, 115 to be exact, used the weight-lifting room with some regularity. Ninety-six would-be athletes used the outdoor athletic fields, and during the winter 78 enjoyed the use of the hockey rink. Seventy-two used the outdoor basketball courts, 63 the boxing room, 56 the tennis court, and 50 the off campus lounge which is a feather in the cap of the Commuters Club which planned the room and is responsible for its operation. The ski room was the least used of all the facilities with only twenty skiers taking advantage of it, which is a large number in comparison with the size of the room and the amount of equipment in it.

Out of a total registration of 745, 723 filled out the questionnaire. Out of these, 649 men, which is 90% of all those who answered the survey, or 87.2% of the total registration, were engaged in at least one activity. Seventy-four participate in no activity what so ever, and of these 23, or 31% are commuters.

Twenty-six were kind enough to give suggestions as to what they would like to see around here for activities in the future. Here are a few of the suggestions and an answer to them: More dances, there is one coming up the 19th of this month, and there is another one scheduled for the 23rd of April.

was no story-book tale. Somehow, somewhere, a spark burned. It flickered and flamed in an unceasing effort to enliven the atmosphere. At first, its endeavors passed unnoticed. Then it began to spread. With a burst of power, it managed to fill the entire room. Indifferent at first, the atmosphere now seemed to have passed through a renaissance, a rebirth, a complete revision. Tension mounted. Suspicion filled the air. The silence, once passive, was now electrified until one's very thoughts seemed to be audible. And still the tension grew. The atmosphere was filled with suspicion, fringing on belligerence and hate. The silence seemed louder and louder. And still the tension increased. Nerves were strained almost to the breaking point. It seemed that one small room could not be filled with so many conflicting emotions. And yet there it was, for all to witness and remember. Each occupant of the room eyed the others shiftily, suspiciously, nervously, ready to rise and defend himself and his ideas to the last. It seemed that each was determined to go down fighting.

Then it happened! A hypothetical Russian delegate to the United Nations rose to his feet, delivered a fiery speech denouncing Capitalism, then turned, drew a pistol, and fired a shot, fatally wounding Eleanor Roosevelt. A mob filled the room! A mob, which had once been a group of distinguished diplomats and statesmen, were now struggling amongst itself on the floor of the UN Assembly Hall. Police officers scrambled among them, endeavoring to calm their pent-up emotions. Newspaper reporters and cameramen were in paradise as they swung from chandeliers to get eyewitness reports and on-the-spot pictures of the greatest political upheaval since Roosevelt's third term.

And then, almost as quickly as it had happened, it was over. The delegates suddenly remembered their positions and responsibilities, their pride and honor which must be maintained, and withdrew from the fray. While they stood on the sidelines, adjusting monocles and brushing their striped pants, the police, hardly noticing the resultant calm, were left struggling with reporters in defense of the delegates. Slowly it dawned upon all present. A catastrophe had taken place. An international incident had occurred which could absolutely not be overlooked. The statesmen and politicians began gathering their notes and making plans for the reports they would deliver to their home governments. And then they were gone, all hopes for appeasement vanished, while their threats and promises still echoed in the assembly hall, now empty but for a few cameramen still clinging to the chandeliers.

The next morning's papers were filled with the disastrous news. Government Officials Run Amok; UN Disbanded in Fury; Eleanor Roosevelt Fatally Wounded; Fala to Apply for Old Age Assistance! So ran the headlines. And a war was on. Atomic bombs began falling right and left, and while they were constantly being made more and more destructive, rapid advancements were also being made in means of protection from them. Truly, a war was on, one which might easily determine the future of the Earth and of the whole human race.

And then, much to the regret of all, the class bell rang, the discussion was called to a close, and Mr. Mazlish dismissed the class.

D'Artagnan

Warren Williams appears as D'Artagnan in his early swashbuckling years when he was Captain of the Guard of King Louis XIII, and then as the same man twenty-two years later, older in years but not in the least deterred in spirit. At his side are his battling companions, Porthos, Athos and Aramis, the famous Three Musketeers.

Annex Shutterbugs

water, and the photo fiends began collecting their equipment and prepared to sally forth into the unknown. As the cars finally moved in front of the fort, all looked up at its crumbling walls, wondering if any of the defenders had managed to hold out against the weather and seagulls, until the present day. The yard was deserted as they entered, and it was evident that the fort had long since been evacuated, as there was no sign of existing or recently existing human life. There were, however, within the fort, any number of possibilities for excellent photographic work, and all hands unlimbered their weapons and pitched in. Before long, the dust and snow were covered with footprints, and voices could be heard in all parts of the edifice as the explorers went after their own pictures in their own ways. The gunports, the arches, the corridors, the towers, the turrets, and the walls all afforded excellent photographic material. Time passed, and the sun rose to the zenith, and commenced its downward flight. Murmurs rose of hunger, and before long, the cries of joy over the scenery had changed to cries of impatience over noon chow. The men piled into the cars once more, and the search began for the spot (scenic if possible) where they would build a fire and take care of the steak dinner which had been provided them. The search was long, and the tired travelers finally arrived at the home of the Oleson family, where Mrs. Oleson took charge of the steaks and turned them over to the kind ness of an electric stove. End said. A fine time was had by all and the boys got some swell snapshots. Everyone appreciated the kindness of the Oleson family which made the trip possible and successful, all hands are looking forward to next trip. Come to the next printing, Tuesday, March 23, usual time, usual place, and hear all about yourself.

WHY I smoke Chesterfield
(FROM A SERIES OF STATEMENTS BY PROMINENT TOBACCO FARMERS)
"I smoke Chesterfield. I think it's a good cigarette. It has a real good tobacco flavor."
"Liggett & Myers buy a good percentage of my best tobaccos...mild, ripe, sweet tobaccos. When they see a basket of tobacco they want they pay the top price to get it."
