News and Views Of The World

By George J. Phocas

Probably the biggest news of the past week was Marshal Stalin's proposed desire to cooperate with the United States in accordance with the Wallace Open Letter. This comes as a great surprise, especially because many of the statements incorporated in the Open Letter had been advocated previously as topics for international discussion by the United States in an effort to secure continued world peace. It seems hard to believe, in view of their past policy, that the Russians so suddenly would grasp an opportunity to cooperate merely because they sincerely desire peace. The Red wish to cooperate comes as a complete about face, indeed, since conditions as they stand with regard to world power have not been greatly altered in the past year, it seems to me that Stalin's purpose in "using" the open letter stems from a deeper, and probably more political motive.

Stalin gave a complete and concise factual summary of the points Wallace addressed to him and to the United States Government at the Madison Square Garden rally. He listed the proposals as:

1. A general armaments reduction and the prohibition of atomic weapons.

2. Conclusion of peace treaties with Germany and Japan, and the question of evacuating troops from China and Korea.

4. Respect for the sovereignty of individual countries and non-interference in their domestic affairs.

5. The inadmissibility of military bases in member countries of the United Nations.

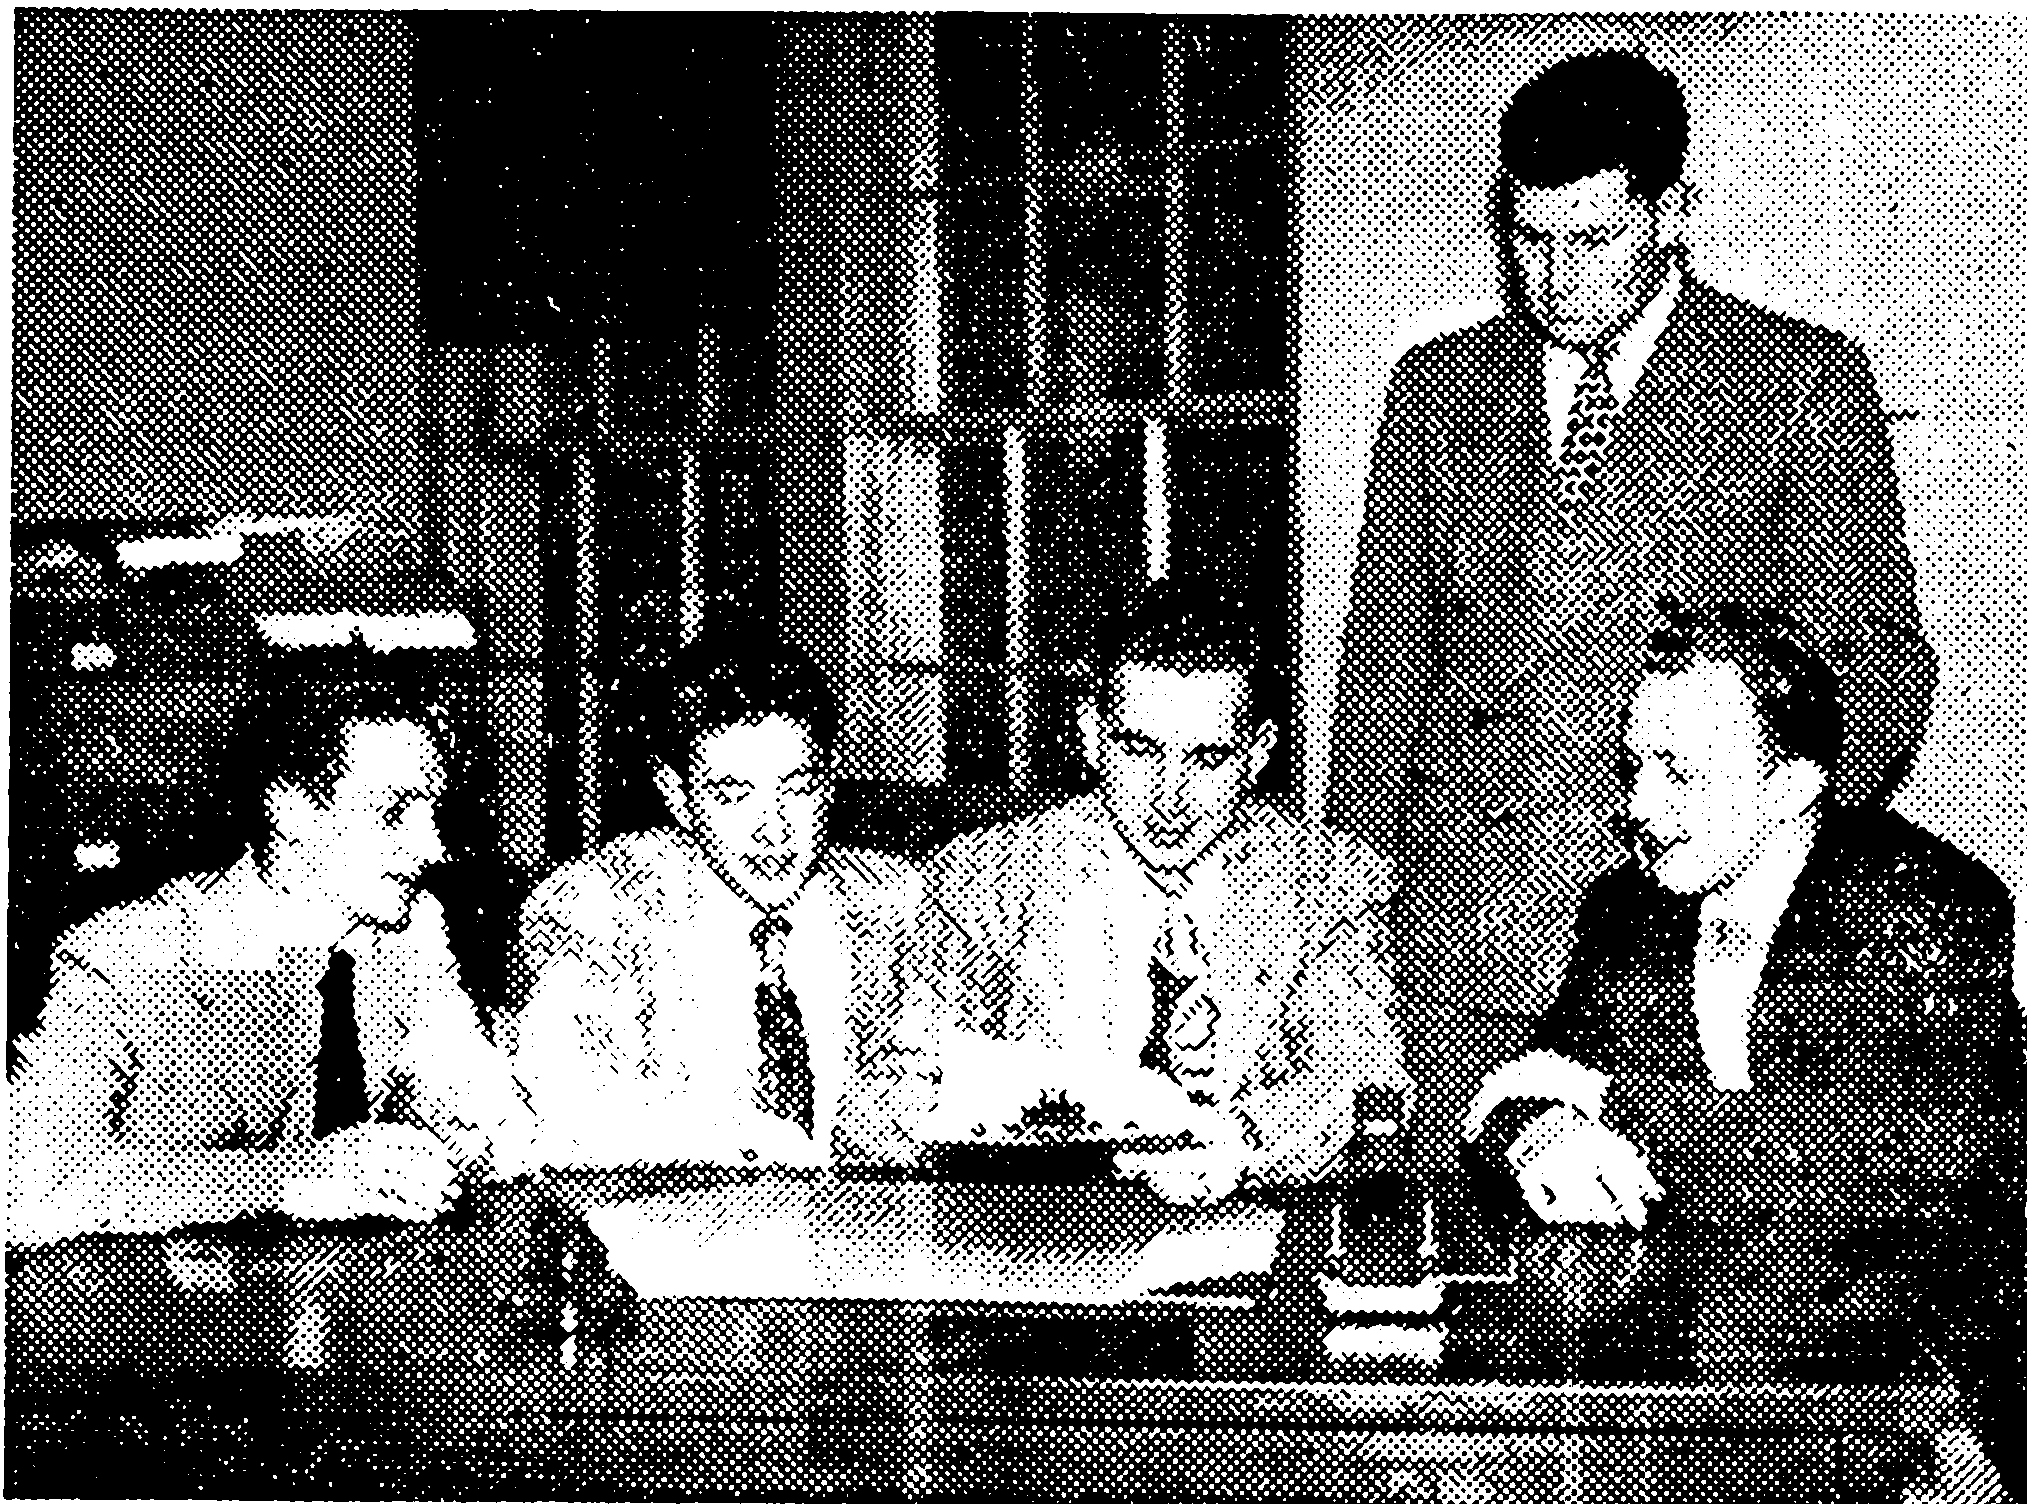

6. World development of international trade. No discrimination within the United Nations framework in assistance to, and economic restoration of, countries which suffered during the war.

7. The defense of democracy and ensuring the civil rights in all countries.

From the tone of his reply it is possible to believe that Stalin sincerely desires to cooperate, however it seems well to bear in mind the fact that the problems set forth for consideration in the Wallace text are problems which have already been brought to the attention of the Russians, and, except for the proposals which would definitely enhance Soviet power, the Russians have been on the whole extremely uncooperative, except as was previously stated when the obvious advantage, through a settlement would be to Soviet advantage.

Wallace has consistently maintained a policy of cooperation with Russia. His policy, however, seems to be to be more advantageous to the Reds than it is to the United States in the fact that it would most probably leave the U. S. a prey to aggression. And, however honest Mr. Wallace may be in his convictions and intentions, history

Verrill Speaks Before Annex Students Here

By Roy W. Nickerson

Mr. Robinson Verrill, a native of Portland and a candidate for the governorship of Maine, spoke informally to a group of students at the Student Union Building Wednesday evening.

Mr. Verrill proved to be an interesting and well-informed speaker who brought home his ideas in a way that held the interest of the group.

In the question period, Mr. Verrill answered several questions put to him by the students. One veteran was interested in knowing his position on a veteran's bonus in the State of Maine. The gubernatorial aspirant replied that he was not in favor of one because of the fact that the majority of Maine's veterans are young people who are starting out in their careers and have enough taxes to pay as it is, without adding a new one. He pointed out that such a bonus would require state funds equal to that of the entire present budget to be of any size at all, and would therefore

The question of the week seems to be "What would you do if you were a baseball coach and your team was leading the opposition by nearly a dozen runs going into the final frame?" Seems pretty easy, doesn't it? But the impossible happened to the Annex pastimers last week at Bowdoin in that weird 17-16 contest.

The game is over now, and argument would be senseless. No accusations would reverse the score. But we would like to point out a couple of things. Many individuals have blamed Coach Raymond for substituting too freely, while just as many fellows have found fault with the players' sloppy fielding. Neither side seems justifiable. Certainly Coach Raymond could rightfully ask, "When can I substitute if I can't win with a ten-run lead?" And certainly the players didn't drop

Student Union Drive Gets Top Support

By Alvan Mersky

The initial phase of our Student Union Memorial Fund drive took the form of a kick-off dinner for the workers at the Hotel Eagle last Sunday night, and the Assembly for the Student body at large on Monday morning. Mr. Raymond H. Fogler set the keynote of the campaign at both the dinner and the Assembly. Both the students and the Union Drive workers were inspired by the enthusiastic school spirit of this distinguished alumnus who has done so much for the University of Maine. Through his sincere but informal speeches the student body at large gained a more comprehensive insight into the purpose, functions and aims of the Student Union Building. Mr. Fogler ably pointed out that through our generosity and foresight we ourselves will not only benefit from the erection of a new Student Union, but we shall also have contributed our gift to future generations who shall pass through

The Lost Week End Is Finally Here!

At last, the MAINE SPRING FESTIVAL is here. After much hard work, and after the members of the various committees have lost many hours of sleep, the fruits of their labors can now be seen. By the time you read this the festivities will already have started. Beginning at 1:30, girls from as far south as Baltimore, Maryland, and Washington, D. C., and as far north as Quebec, Canada, will be here or will arrive soon. There will be something doing from that time until 11:00 a. m. Sunday so you can rest assured that you will be kept busy.

NOTICE

Next week there will be no MAINE ANNEX. We are spending all our time so we can have a bang-up issue for you for a final one, as a souvenir of your year at Brunswick. It will contain photos and write-ups of all the important activities of the year. Watch for it! -- The Editors.

Maine Masque To Present Play Friday

On Friday night at 7:30 the Maine Masque will present its spring play, "The Bishop Misbehaves", by Frederick Jackson. A rollicking comedy, "The Bishop Misbehaves" tells of an Anglican bishop and his spinster sister, Lady Emily, and their hilarious adventures when they participate as amateur sleuths and by unorthodox methods succeed in solving a jewel robbery and capturing the "desperate" criminals. And the criminals are truly "desperate" when faced by the intrepid bishop and his sister.

The plot as devised by the author is a simple one, but the characters themselves are unique. Perhaps Mr. Jackson was inspired in choosing a remote corner of England for the locale of his play, for his people are surely "different". In addition to the bishop and his sister, there are a timid little man who is called on to display superhuman courage; a social-climbing female fugger-naut; a whining master-criminal; in fact, a veritable galaxy of impossible and improbable people. One is sure that none of these people could ever really have lived, but yet one wishes that they might have. At any rate you will be delighted with the story they have to tell on Friday evening.

The title role of the Bishop will be played by Emil E. Winter, Jr., and Mrs. Hanson will play Lady Emily. Others in the cast are: Red Eagan Emile L. Geist Donald Meadows,

George B. Sherman Hester Grantham,

Jacqueline Johnson Guy Waller Dave Powers Mrs. Waller Frances McLeary Colins Paul E. Violette Frenchy,

Eugene A. VanDenKerchoven Jr. Mr. Brooke, William M. Goodrich

The entire play is under the direction of Mr. Hanson. Assisting him will be Paul Violette as assistant director, Clarence Barrett as

The Student Senate here at the Annex, led by its president, Burt DeFrees, first conceived the idea of a social event to end all social events here at the Annex. Dick Singer was the man to whom fell the task of leading the Maine Spring Festival to a successful conclusion. It was he who appointed the heads of the various committees and saw to it that each person did his appointed task. Not to be forgotten, has been the effort of the Administration and the faculty who have been more than cooperative in all the tasks that have come before the various committees. Without them, the job would have been impossible.

Here is a complete list of the various committees and the committee heads: Richard Singer, general chairman; Don Barbour, finance committee; Robert Hutchinson and John Findler, co-chairmen, decorating committee; Alvan Mersky, chairman, housing committee; Don Povich, chairman, publicity committee; and Mrs. S. R. Curtis, faculty advisor.

Housing committee: Philip Ames, Richard Barney, Arthur Fernald, Wilfred Mackie, and Maynard Miller.

Decoration committee: Jim Eliot, William Hall, Julian Humphrey, Oliver Jackson, Vance Norton, Wilford White, and Robert Young.

Publicity committee: Richard Barney, Roger Briggs, Seymour Card, Gerald Lelong, Gerald Kominsky, and Sid Folsom.

Bowdoin - Maine Faculty Reception

On last Monday afternoon from the University of Maine, Brunswick, 4:00 to 6:00 P.M., the faculty of the Brunswick Campus, held a reception for the Bowdoin Faculty.

The party had been scheduled to be held on the lawn of the director's house but because of the rain it was held in the Student Union. Despite the bad weather over 175 people passed through the receiving line which included President and Mrs. Arthur A. Hauck of the University, President and Mrs. Kenneth C. M. Sills of Bowdoin, and Mr. and Mrs. Jasper F. Crouse of the Brunswick Campus. Mr. Stanton Curtis headed the faculty reception committee which was made up of Mrs. Neil Halkyard and other faculty wives.

EDITOR'S DESK . . .

May 15, 1948

Dear Mr. Crouse:

I want to send you this morning my very warm thanks for the beautiful roses that were sent for my anniversary dinner last night with the best wishes of the Faculty and Students of Brunswick Campus, University of Maine. I know that all the other members of the faculty appreciated too this exhibition of good will.

I am happy to feel that Bowdoin and the University have been good neighbors, and I know that much of the credit belongs to you and your associates. It may interest you to hear that one of those who was present at the dinner reported that the greeting from the Brunswick division of the University was one of the most interesting points of the affair.

With kindest regards.

Cordially yours.

K. C. M. SILLS

The above letter recently received by Mr. Crouse seems to say something for the students both here and at Bowdoin. Though it has not been generally realized, it was largely thru the efforts of Bowdoin that the University of Maine was able to enjoy its present facilities here at the Annex, and thus provided more than 700 of us with a place to come to college, who might otherwise be on that still-huge list of those who are waiting to be admitted.

The traditional rivalry between the two colleges, not only as individual colleges, but the the spirit of rivalry that seems to essentially prevail between any two colleges, either thru sports or otherwise, has in our case been amazingly well kept to the field where it does belong -- sports. In other fields, we have been the best of good neighbors. Bowdoin has been kind enough on many occasions to issue invitations to the general student body to attend its functions, and various of its offices have been most cooperative to both the Annex as a whole and to many individual students.

It is this sort of thing that we should recognize and be thankful for. Bowdoin and Maine -- traditional sporting enemies -- have nevertheless lived on the same home grounds, and come thru admirably, each contributing something to the other. This spirit deserves both attention and the thanks of us all.

create a burden on the taxpayers, a majority of whom would be the veterans themselves, and ultimately be of no value to the veteran.

In its stead, Mr. Verrill proposed a revolving state fund from which Maine Vets could draw in the form of liberal loans with a rate of interest only high enough to pay for its administration, and remain in effect for a long time. In this way, Mr. Verrill believes, the veteran would have something of more practical use which would help him in his business or practical life.

Faculty Facts

This week our facts center around a member of the science faculty, Mr. James Rees, currently instructing botany.

Mr. Rees is a Southern boy, born and brought up around Fayetteville, Tenn. He stayed in Tennessee for his first tussle with college, entering Carson Newman at Jefferson City. He walked out of there with a B.A. degree in biology.

Mr. Rees made a turn-about then, and took up the ministry. Entering Andover Newton Theological School in Boston, besides bringing him a change of studies, also brought him north of the Mason-Dixon for the first time. It didn't take him long to catch on to northern ways, though, and he not only got his B.D. (Bachelor of Divinity) but also obtained a wife from Massachusetts!

Being a Baptist preacher meant travel, so Mr. Rees found himself in parishes at Demarest, N. J., Berlin, N. H., a summer at East Lebanon, Maine, and a while back home in Tennessee.

In 1947 he received his M.A. in religious education from New York University, and now he's working on a master's degree in biology. He says he has three or four years of prerequisite work to do first, then he will probably go back to N. Y. U. for his biology doctor's degree.

Mr. Rees was married in 1942 and has a son, David Jackson, who is two years old.

Searching around to see what his main interests in life are, I found that though Mr. Rees is deeply interested in religion, he doubts that he will go back to preaching. He plans to stick to the professorship.

He is very much interested in religious education, though, and especially in racial problems. He has made quite a study of this, and hopes that someday he might be able to work on it.

Racial discriminations, he believes, is one of the greatest problems in America today. He related, as an instance, that the South isn't the only place where prejudice against the Negroes is found. While preaching in N. J., as well as in New Hampshire, he had a Negro as his house guest on more than one occasion. Mr. Rees reported that several of his parish members were quite shocked to learn about it. It was all right for them to come to church, perhaps, but in your own home . . .

Mr. Rees explains this by stating that racial prejudices aren't necessarily territorial. It depends upon the family a person is from. He believes it is purely a matter of personal background.

He admitted that the South was in general quite strongly against Negroes, explaining that there it has become more of a tradition, which customs, handed down through the generations, had enforced. This, of course, goes back again to individual backgrounds.

Throwing a little scientific light on the subject, Mr. Rees said that

POETRY

Ed. note: By dint of much arm-twisting we finally managed to squeeze a contribution out of one of our students who indulges in occasional poetic expression, Robey of Weller Hall. While we do not necessarily take Robey's cynical point of view, we do consider his work worthy of note. So we take this opportunity to launch him on his career as a poet.

MAN

By Robey

Hurrying, scurrying, thither and yon.

Knowing not what is to come, ignorant of what has gone.

Whimpering, cringing, fearing, searching for success.

Taking no time for thought, warped idea of happiness.

The insanity of trying to out rank another.

With gold and power, the essence of life smother.

Sweat and blood and greed and shame --

All cruel milestones on the road to fame.

Failure, success, the unholy measurement of man.

Riches, poverty, the false standards showing where one ran.

Those who place gold as the glittering purpose --

A ranting, raging mass, hoarding, trampling, plundering all that pass.

Power mongers, seekers of vast influence.

Blathering mouthed idiots, sliming thither and thence.

Hypocritical fiends in shame and lies --

Hiding with oily words their baseness from men's eyes.

Gullible, treacherous, praising him who advances --

Fearing with bared fangs he who fails.

Corrupt yet pure, cruel yet compassionate,

A silent user of expediency and a preacher of complete honesty.

A lover of peace, the cause of war --

The mass, the pulp, the thinker, the destroyer, the builder, the doubter of the universe.

there is actually only one race -- the human race. The names white race, black race, and such, are misnomers which are commonly used but scientifically incorrect. A black man is exactly the same as a white, except for the pigment of his skin.

Racial problems and religious intolerance, Mr. Rees stated, is nothing that can be remedied by words. He hopes that some day there will be some definite action taken on the matter, and this, he believes, will go toward the making of a much happier world.

Mr. Rees will conduct chapel services on the Campus Sunday morning, for the special Spring Festival week end.

ROD and GUN POTPOURRI

By Dick Gordon

"Tis an ill-wind that blows, n' good." The somewhat damp weather we've been having of late is doing good in some quarters at least. It is insurance that the woods will not be closed to hunting and fishing right away. A dry spring and summer would undoubtedly mean closed woods, because the power that be like to blame the forest fires on inexperienced sportsmen. So perhaps those of you who enjoy hunting and fishing can rationalize a bit and ignore the wet feet and miserable colds. Pass the aspirin please . . .

Brethren who have fished Moosehead Lake this year report that the salmon are biting surprisingly well and that they will take a variety of lures. This is a plug for stocker fish, because, if my memory serves me correctly, the salmon in Moosehead were put there by the State and at the time there were many misgivings about the plan . . .

Hint -- Last year's dry flies can be cleaned and renewed by simply holding them in live steam for a few minutes. The old dressing will come off, the hackles will rise and the fly will look like brand new . . .

According to the Fish and Game Commission, the deer in Maine are migrating to the southwestern part of the State. Since this is where the center of the population is located, the deer pack is at the mercy (or lack of mercy) of the "shotgun butchers", who like the taste of venison and care little for the sport of hunting. If the tragic slaughter, that takes place every fall, continues, in about ten years from now there will be damn few deer left. We can't do much about the migration, but perhaps we can do something about the butchers. If we don't, you might as well put the old "crutch" away in the gun-cabinet and leave it there . . .

For those who want a rifle, but shudder at the prohibitive prices that the merchants are exacting, here is an answer. Members of the National Rifleman's Association can buy from the government through the N.R.A., a limited number of Springfield .30-06's and Enfields. They are not all new, but are in a guaranteed condition, and the prices are reasonable. A little work will turn either of them into handsome sporting rifles, whose versatility is hard to beat. It is not difficult to become a member of the N. R. A. . . .

ANNEX DROPS BALL GAME TO BOWDOIN 17-16

In a grand slam, six-hit, eleven-run, eighth inning, the Bowdoin J.V.'s ran over the Annex baseball team to the tune of the huge score 16-17, a score which is, to say the least, an unusual one for a baseball game.

The Annex had the game all sewed up before that eighth inning. They had a comfortable lead of ten runs, the score being 16-6. Up until that big eighth Brenton, pitching for the Annex, managed to keep the Bowdoin boys at bay while his teammates were piling up the Annex score. In the eighth Brenton was relieved by Dunham after Brenton had given up three bases on balls, one after the other. Dunham pitched to just two men, walked them both, and was relieved by Woodberry. Woodberry pitched the rest of the game and was given the loss.

In the Bowdoin half of the eighth inning fourteen batters faced three Annex pitchers. They received seven bases on balls, six hits, one of which was a three-bagger by Decker. All this added up to the grand total of eleven runs which was just the number needed to overcome the Annex lead.

One reason for the surprising turn of events may have been the fact that the Annex first team were all on the bench when the visitors made their whirlwind drive.

The game goes to prove that it's not a good idea to leave the park before the last out of the last half of the ninth inning for all the runs that Bowdoin got in that big inning were after two men had been retired.

Festival Brings Sports Activities

By Barnaby McAuslan
The Maine Spring Festival besides being a big social event will also bring to the Annex a few sports events which will be worthy of watching and taking part in.

On Friday afternoon at three o'clock the Annex baseball team will take the field against Coburn Classical Institute in what promises to be a real diamond battle. The baseball team will go into this game with one win and one loss.

Men, are you already for the big softball game? This game promises to be the greatest struggle of the season, the battle of the sexes, a game between the fellows here at the Annex and their guests. The game will be played at ten o'clock on Saturday morning and real live girls will be the opposition. You won't want to miss it after seeing only men play all year. It will be a real thrill to see a fair young lady, swing a couple of bats, throw one away, step up to the plate, and park one in the bleachers. Meanwhile, there will be plenty of girls in the cheering section. This battle lines up to be the battle royal of the year. So roll out of your sack bright and early on Saturday morning, take a deep breath of Annex air, and make haste on your way out to the ball game.

Softball Play-offs To Begin Weedsday

The plays-offs for the intramural softball championship will begin on Wednesday the nineteenth. In the first round team 5 plays team 4 at field A, and team 6 will play 11 at field B. On following night teams 13 and 2 will play at field A and 14 and 15 at field B. The semi-finals will start Monday, the twenty-fourth, the winners of the first rounds competing. The championship game is going to be played at field A on the twenty-fifth.

All the teams look red-hot and competition should be keen. Pitchers have been improving steadily, and we should have some good duels.

away six or eight times before smacking a little white ball successfully, and then spend the rest of the day searching for said sphere. These men really take their game seriously and what some of them lack in real experience, they make up for with plenty of spirit. It is indeed unfortunate that golf is more or less a limited sport. The game requires plenty of serious practice, clear thinking, and, above all, the ability to play a consistently good round.

We have plenty of respect for club-swingers, especially after having attempted the game. Our scores for just nine holes resemble those usually run up by Rhode Island State's harmonica-playing basketball quintet. And if you still don't think Coach Macomber's boys deserve some sort of bouquet, we want to inform you that they went up against the Bates varsity last week and, led by Johnson, Moore, and MacDonald, kept the Bobcats very worried before finally being edged out 5-4. Don't be surprised if the team finished with an above-average season.

Much thanks should go to all of the men who participated in the first campus "boxer" of this school year. We think that every one of the leather pushers did a great job of putting on a fistic show which drew a capacity crowd. And don't forget that there was an excellent weight-lifting exhibition by Poli as well as some fancy wrestling by McKay and Wheeler. Thank also are in line for Coach (no hitting below the belt") Zibilski. The entire event was topped off in royal fashion through the generosity of Hermie Freeman who boxed with a sparring partner for three good rounds. We think another such ga-has proven time and again that only a sharp and outright skeptical attitude in regard to its foreign policy will enable a nation to survive.

We must, therefore, take into consideration the possible Soviet wish to delay the United States by an infinite series of useless discussion and thereby to so weaken us as to make us in event of war a vulnerable, easily vanquished foe.

Since the third party program advocates the most liberal view in regards to a pro-Soviet policy, it may be that Stalin wishes to see it in power merely to propogate his own ends.

Stalin has made his somewhat hypocritical bid for peace, and a peace hungry American populous may grasp it without realizing that they are only making it possible for Russia to expand and grow militarily, while we languish and sink in a sea of deals.

To Exhibit Wood Cuts

Mr. Carroll Berry, of Rockport, Maine, will exhibit wood cuts at the library during the Spring Festival. Mr. Berry is a well known artist, and his exhibit of seashore scenes and landscapes should be very interesting. According to all advance information on the subject, this is one more event that will take place that should not be missed.

thuring should be arranged providing time allows and interest will support it.

Well, the regular softball season is now officially over, and on top of the heap stands a winner in each league -- Team 4 and Team 13. But wait a minute! This means nothing because play-offs are in order.

No two ways about it, a hat is the mark of a man. You look your best in a hat, and you know others know it too. Matter of fact, 84 out of 100 women prefer men who wear hats. To go places with your girl, or even with your boss

Bet you do better in a hat

UNION DRIVE

the educational portals of the University.

As of this writing, the response to this appeal for funds for this Memorial Building from the student body has been magnanimous. The Drive Committee is indeed gratified that their efforts have not been spent in vain, and that the students here at the Annex realize the critical need for such a building as this at Orono. It is hoped that as many of you as possible will be able to attend our Victory Dance this Friday night when the announcement of the final sum of our collections will be announced.

I have been commissioned by the infamous "JACK", of "I GAVE TO THE UNION" fame, to tell you all for him that you have borne your responsibility well and that in making your contribution today you have deposited an investment in your future tomorrow. Thank you all for giving to the Union; I'm sure that in the future years when you look back on your college days you will be proud to say to yourself that you helped in the building of you university's recreational center. Ample reward for your generosity cannot be expressed in words; your reward will come not only when you see this building materialize before your eyes, but also in the knowledge that you aided in the construction of a facility which will knit the University of Maine student body into a more spirited and a more happy group.

The May issue of PROLOGUE, the inter-collegiate magazine, will feature art and an article by students from the Brunswick Annex.

An article on radio, centering around the occupation of the disc jockey, was illustrated by line drawings by William A. Fogler of Dawson Hall.

A story, illustrated by the author's photographs, was written by Roy Nickerson on the exciting sport of bull fighting. The story centers around the famous woman matador, Conchita Cintron.

This is PROLOGUE's final issue for this school year. Started last September, the magazine has been experiencing various growing pains, and with this issue it is believed that great improvements have been made.

The May issue not only shows better general make-up but an improvement in literary content as well. The issue is well illustrated with both photographs and drawings, and contains many articles and stories of interest.

This month's guest writer is Harold E. Stassen, Republican presidential hopeful, who expresses his views on the future of the American youth in politics.

Articles on Maine's great author-poet, Robert P. Tristram Coffin, and Gould Academy are among the other features present, as well as a choice selection of fiction.

The May issue will be on sale in the PX about the 24th.

PROLOGUE needs men to work in editorial and advertising capacities at the Orono Campus next year, and at Colby College as well if there are any students who will be transferring there and would be interested.

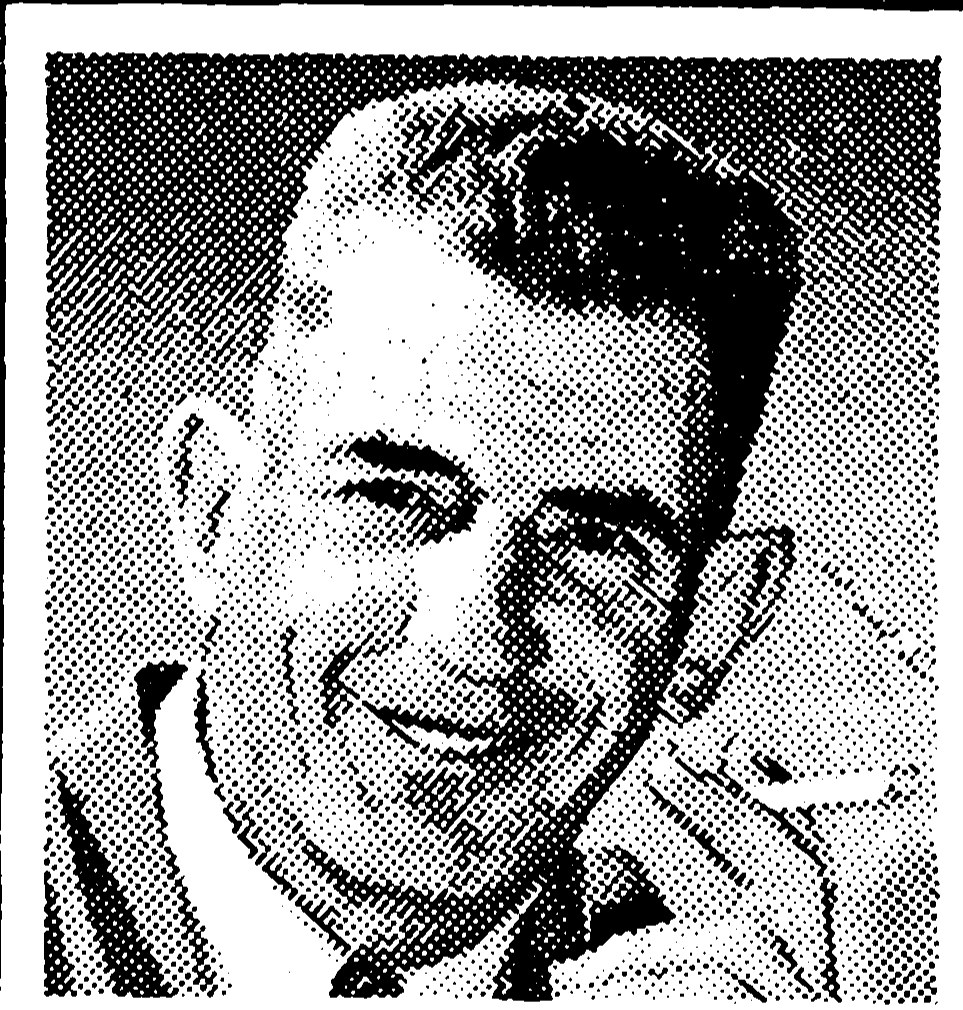

Advertising and circulation men receive liberal commissions for their work.

WHY...I smoke Chesterfield

(FROM A SERIES OF STATEMENTS BY PROMINENT TOBACCO FARMERS)

"I think Chesterfield is a good-smoking cigarette and I like them. They have a good, ripe-tobacco taste and they're mild.

"Nobody pays a higher price to get good-smoking tobacco than Chesterfield. They buy sweet, ripe tobacco. Looks like a gold dollar in the barn."
