Italian city in the province of Caserta, Campania. The ancient Suessa, principal city of the Aurunci, was an important Roman municipium on the Appian Way between Rome and Capua. The medieval town overlaps the Roman city, of which some monuments still survive. The medieval centre is enclosed by walls and dominated by the castle (the defensive system also includes the 13th-century tower of S Biagio). Medieval buildings include tower houses, the Gothic Sedile di S Matteo (15th century), which was one of four locations where the nobility met, and late medieval Durazzo-Catalan palaces (15th century)....
