Ogilvie - President of UNI?

Richard Ogilvie

In a surprise announcement last week, the Presidential Screening Committee revealed that it has narrowed its selection for President Sachs' successor to two choices, and made a strong statement of preference to the Board of Governors in favor of the candidates.

The two are former Illinois Governor Richard B. Ogilvie and Former Malcolm X College President Charles Hurst, both unemployed since the beginning of this year.

The Committee, firmly controlled by unusually conservative students and older faculty members, blocked earlier moves by UNI administration to have a "house" liberal appointed to the job. The conservative block within the Committee has now assured that the job will go outside, either to Ogilvie, or to Hurst, the choice of the Committee's liberal faction.

A highly-placed spokesperson for the Committee explained that the selection of Ogilvie was based on his promise to "clean up" the operation of Northeastern in general. It is rumored that Ogilvie's proposed economic policy for the University will call for drastic changes, including the immediate dismissal of over 85 civil service employees and 175 faculty considered to be what Ogilvie termed "political appointments loyal to the previous administration."

Immediate victims of the new administration would reportedly be the departments of Sociology and Psychology, neither of which he considers a true science worthy of study. Ogilvie also reportedly won support on the Committee by condemning the Physical Plant services in general, calling particular attention to an old, abandoned car in the B-wing parking area. "Abandoned cars such as these breed rats, which carry rabies and social diseases," Ogilvie explained, reportedly claiming that he would never tolerate stripped autos on campus. He allegedly proposes tripling the campus security, allowing security guards to carry aerosol rat poison, and contracting with Lincoln Towing Service to tow away wrecked cars and other vehicles parking illegally.

Other Committee members, unimpressed by Ogilvie's promises, charged that Ogilvie had "secret plans" to eliminate most scholarships, raise tuition to over $33 per trimester, and charge $10 for the '74 yearbook. Ogilvie reportedly had no response to the charges, although it is considered unlikely that he could raise tuitions before December if he takes office in August. Another possibility, that he will levy a "classroom usage tax" is considered likely to pass the Faculty Senate shortly after his inauguration.

The dissident Committee members charged that Ogilvie would be a "fiscal disaster," and advocated the appointment of Charles Hurst instead. Hurst made few statements about his plans, commenting only that he "stands on his record." The Ogilvie advocates, however, immediately accused Hurst of conspiring to dissolve the Commuter Center, so that he could manage the cafeteria funds himself. Hurst dismisses the charges as "racist."

The surprise announcement cut short rumors that the Administration was having its way in handpicking one of two liberals for the job. Earlier reports were that the Presidency was literally a toss-up between Campus Planning Director Melvyn A. Skvarla and University Communications Director Jerry Cannon.

Subject to approval by the Board of Governors this week, Richard B. Ogilvie should be arriving on campus shortly to begin the arduous task of studying the daily routine of his close personal friend, Dr. Sachs, and to see how he can improve on it.

One committee member summed up the situation gleefully. "Northeastern is in a state of financial crisis. We believe Richard Ogilvie is the one man who can put us back on a solid fiscal foundation... if he can just get some money from that idiot Walker."

Parking Facility To Be Built at Northeastern

Mel Skvarla, Campus Planning Officer, announced that plans for a new parking lot facility have been approved. At the last Parking Advisory Committee meeting, Mr. Skvarla told the other committee members that the plan was approved by the Board of Governors. The author of the proposal to solve the problem is President Sachs. His plan calls for the clearance of all the buildings across from the school as far east as Kimball. Catalpa will be the southern boundary of the new site, and the facility will extend as far north as Bryn Mawr.

Ground-breaking ceremonies for the parking facility are expected to take place in June 1974. The lot is expected to have a capacity of 800 cars. The expected completion date for the facility will be sometime in the latter part of 1976. Nick Messina of the Hollywood Park Improvement Association said that those residents who are affected by the plans for the new site will be receiving their notices to move shortly. Mr. Messina said that a committee for the relocation of the residents is currently contacting those affected by the plan. The government will exercise the right of eminent domain to secure the land so as to prevent any court action that would only delay the building of the needed parking facility.

Alderman Seymour Simon congratulated President Sachs on his solution to the problem. Simon said, "The parking problem at Northeastern has caused hard feelings between the community and the college. I am glad that President Sachs finally solved the problem. Maybe the relations between the community and the college will become better now."

Representative Bernard Wolfe was also among the local community leaders who wished to congratulate President Sachs on his new parking lot facility. Wolfe said, "Those buildings across from the school have been an eyesore to the expanding Northeastern community. This program along with other projects of the Urban Renewal Program for this area is a step forward to establish pride in one's community."

Sachs - Future Dean of culture

The Illinois Board of Governors of State Universities and Colleges announced today that Northeastern Illinois University is to have a new College — the College of Agriculture. The Board announced that its intention was to reverse the trend of students going to school and subsequently leaving the farm for city life. "Once the youth of the city samples farm life, they will not be able to resist the temptation to move out to the country and become farmers," said the president of the Board. He went on to say, "The city is entirely too congested with college educated people. There is an abundance of jobs out on the farm."

The plans call for the primary utilization of the land recently acquired from the Chicago Parental school as fields. These fields will be used for the testing of hybrid corn. The auxiliary parking lot will be used as a pen for the pigs that the college will use for livestock, while the handball courts will be used as the chicken coop.

The Biology and Earth Science Departments will combine efforts in the area of Soil Research. Dr. Qutab has been named Chairman of the Department of Earth Studies.

Jerome Sachs

Ecology Club members have volunteered to help tend the fields, while Biology majors will be required to work with pigs.

Dr. Jerome Sachs on the verge of retirement from the office of President of UNI, has accepted the position of Dean of the College of Agriculture. When interviewed about his acceptance of this new position, he said, "I was going to retire to farm life anyway."

Governor Walker approved a Bill allocating over 15 million dollars for funding of the project. Northeastern has already begun the process of purchasing needed equipment. One of the first purchased was a tractor which can be seen moving about the campus at this time.

Excavation will begin in time for the start of the next trimester. All lots but the North Parking Lot will be closed.

Pope Paul Moves Into Newman Community!

Dear Father Hurley and Father Price,

Here's yer 20 buck deposit to keep while I live in this flea trap. I'll expect you to invest it judiciously. Also a buck and a half phone payment. The rent you are charging me is outrageous. I shall report it to Ralph Nader — a personal friend of mine. Along with the publicity for the PRINT, I will be submitting an exhaustive expose of this questionable establishment, naming names and dates. I can assure you that as ring leaders you will head the list.

Although I did not mention it before, I shall require the temperature on the second floor to be evenly maintained at 88° at all times. You see, I am cultivating some interesting little plants. Do not worry, there is talk afoot of legalizing them. Anyway, through the chain of retailers I have set up at key high school and grammar school playgrounds, me thinks it shall be quite lucrative. We all must make a living somehow, mustn't we? Any wrong you may feel about this may be placed directly upon your shoulders, since you have forced me to act thus by not remunerating me for my services. So, shall we say 88°F? By the way, if I am not here Tuesday, will you please sign for a shipment (80 cu. yd. to be exact) of potting (no pun intended) soil? Have someone spread it under the violet lights I had set up in the chapel. As a sideline, my constituents and I shall be entering the printing business turning out various "art" magazines, playing cards, and calendars. We have some girls who will pose for the stuff. They are not really bad girls, and will be living in Rick Ruiz's old room, where they will be able to comfort lonely students. Proceeds to go to the coffee house supplies.

Now being set up in the Coke Room are some harmless little devices to amuse our members. Games of chance, I believe, are considered unlawful, but knowing our Godfather's influence with Chicago's finest, leads me to believe we shall not be disturbed. The pass signal is 3 short knocks and passable impression of George Raft.

Marge will be moving in next Friday and shall be in charge of our loan service. It should provide Newman (oops, Catholic Student Center) with some considerable unexpected funds, since our interest rates are several times what Friendly Bob Adams gets. Myron will be charge of collections.

Remember how Marty seemed never to have time to keep up with the housework? And how he spent so much time in his room? In regards to this, please have his hobby, an eight foot ball of tin foil, removed from my closet by sundown. It is impinging upon my bottle-top collection — 366 thousand in all. He was a real nut!

Linda Roberts and Joanne

Draths will run our massage parlour in what was the storeroom, while Pete Welsch assumes the capacity of photographer for the art publications. Bill Wysocki, as resident chem. major, will concoct demolition mixtures for assorted radical groups with whom Charlotte Ann has connections. I think we'll make quite a profit on that also.

Inquisitions, like the old days, will start Wednesday, April 4, and continue for 8 consecutive weeks. Newman chaplains will be examined first. A major issue will be their treatment of housekeepers at various Newman Centers. Oh, about the fire. . . .

Your Holiness,
Paul

Commentary

It Is Time

by Art Staniec

Over the past few months, the morality of the Newman Club (alias the Catholic Student Center) has been taking a tumble. People have been taking advantage of the facilities (which is what is wanted), but to the point: visitors that come to the Center fall over prone nude bodies when they walk through the door. Where do these people get off using this holy place to take out their sexual frustrations? This must be stopped.

It is time, therefore, to call for two things. 1. We must call for a new Statement of Policy, and 2. I think that it is time to call for another Inquisition. The statement of policy will be one that states, in part, that everyone that comes to or even thinks of coming to CSC, must hold right-on to the strict teachings of the Catholic Church. The consequences for not following the above part of this policy will be death by torture. Some examples of the torture methods to be used are: the Rack and Fire, the Pit and the Pendulum, and the Maidens Bath. For those extreme cases, there will be 24 straight hours of Sociology Lectures. The reason that I feel it is time for another Inquisition is that the Catholic Church has gone just a bit too far with its liberalities and is slowly being taken over by radicals that are trying to subvert the Church and all that it stands for. Our first attacks should be on two chief radicals: Pope Paul VI, and Cardinal John Cody. While these two are not the most radical, they are the present leaders of this new movement to subvert Christendom.

To get back to the topic at hand, which is, UNI Newman Club, subversives have already started to infiltrate and are trying to turn us into socio-communists. Having things like communal dinners, working on Bail Bond Projects to release criminals, communist oriented sensitivity sessions, etc. These subversives must be stopped. It is time to cleanse our bodies and spirits, and it is also time to cleanse our environment of these pseudo-Christians.

We have the will, we have the means, we have the motivation, all we need in the action.

Now, It Is The Time!

This issue holds no truths — It's our way of celebrating April Fools Day.

Air Rights Over The Cementary

Friendship, respect and compromise was met as the expanding UNI representatives and North Park Civic Association finally agreed. This meeting was held March 29th in UNI's Little Theatre. Alderman Seymour Simon was in attendance to hear the arguments of UNI to become a partially residential school and the wish of the NPCA to hold Northeastern's enrollment to what it originally was built to hold — 2500.

The agreement came about as the item of air rights over the Bohemian Cemetery came to light. When the dorms are built over the cemetery the community will have no objection to UNI opening its doors to more students.

Response to the compromise was, on the whole, a bursting enthusiasm from attending students, staff, alumna, faculty and administration. The meeting ended on a note of relative silence instead of the usual shouting.

Plans are already being drawn up to provide about 8 blimps painted brown and gold. Each blimp will house 20 people each with one communal kitchen in each. Each unit of two rooms will have the potential to have one phone and one bathroom with shower.

UNI's Planning director, Mel Skavala said, "This is a marvelous thing. You see we did not know where to build next. We hated to see dorm building go up in front of the beehive. We plan to use that land for academic considerations. As of now our priority is for a complex to house our newly instituted school of Urban Planning and Environment."

Cliff Harralson, director, Commuter Center stated, "Students will be given the opportunity to vote on a up to $50 increase of Student Union Fee to pay for the dorm blimps."

Student reaction in favor of the compromise can be summed up by the statement of freshman Joe Cannon "I feel that although only a few people will be able to move into the blimps all Northeastern students will benefit by it. After all, a view could be had of green area some miles away and there will be more people around." With students living right on campus apathy may be somewhat lessen and events here may one day be a time for students to show pride in being allowed to come to UNI.

We recently found Jack Holt, assistant chief of security at Northeastern, hard at work protecting the students, guarding the property, and generally keeping a mindful eye on the overall operations of the school, at large.

To give the other side of some misgivings students had may be expressed by Sue Arlen, a Senior. Arlen said "This is downright silly. How can one live in a blimp?" She offered no programs and no alternatives.

Voting for the proposed SU fee increase is tentatively planned for April 18, 19 and 20th, from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. More next week.

Lt. Flood to Head New UWS Program

Lt. Francis Flood, erstwhile head of the UNI Security Force, was appointed head of the brand-new UWS, University Without Students, by recently appointed UNI President, Richard Ogilvie.

Obviously delighted in his new post, Lt. Flood said, reading from notes hastily prepared for him by some UNI Education professors, that UWS was merely a logical outgrowth of the already outmoded UWW (University Without Walls.)

"I don't know why people laugh at this newest of concepts," said Lt. Flood. "The one that preceded it wasn't all that logical. University Without Walls. Hell (he often blasphemes when excited), they needed 12-inch thick walls in the old UWW programs just to support the thousands of Xerox'd copies of proposals, resumes, biographies, life histories and memos. Shucks, they needed more walls than the Cook County Jail.

"Now the beauty of my scheme is no walls, no proposals, no resumes, no darned students, in fact. Betcha that's gonna make some o' your instructors happy. Think of it: no IBM cards to process, no registration, no grades (that's the latest thing y'know — no grades.) and they'll really love the 4-1 administrator-teacher ratio down in Springfield.

"But we won't cut out the things really important to modern education: committee meetings, federal grants, modular scheduling, and no parking lots. But I want to add before I forget, that you don't really learn from classes or students. Heck, I learned more from giving out tickets on our parking lot than you can learn by driving a cab or spending an educational weekend at some state park chateau."

Dr. Iven Named to Board of Playboy Magazine, Inc.

At his news conference yesterday at the newest of the Bunny Clubs in Hymen, Minn., Hugh Hefner, Pres. of Playboy Enterprises, announced that UNI's Prof. of Sociology, Dr. Donna Iven, has been named to the board of the Playboy organization.

"I know a lot of people will be a little surprised," said the suave Sultan of Sex, "but Prof. Iven's entire position on the role of the female as the key integral unit in her social milieu has long been misunderstood. In fact, we believe her latest monograph, "The World's Most Forgotten Soul, the White, Anglo-Saxon Male," is the greatest single piece on sex since Dr. Ebbing Crafty's great article, "The Traumatic Role of the Water Bed in the Life of the Non-Swimmer Nymphomaniac."

Farewell to 9 Chicago Landmark

Another Chicagoland institution will end this coming April 30, 1999 when the famous Charley's Shell station will close its pumps. The station, located at 4000 W. Irving Pk. Rd., has been a neighborhood institution since it opened in 1973.

In a rousing show of support, some 3000 demonstrators called on the City Council to save the station by denying private entrepreneurs permission to build an ice cream parlor on the site.

Rev. Gary Stumpf told a rally in front of the Shell grease rack that the station was worth saving because it was one of the few that still offered to wipe your windshield for only $1.00 additional charge. The Reverend defended the station as a meeting place for youth and part of the community's history.

Teen-agers with rags in hand, cheered as community representatives promised to fight to prevent the station's demolition. Another speaker, Ms. Ann Weed, vice president of the Gas Station Anti-Defamation League, said, "There are too many ice cream parlors already. A couple of years ago, just across the street from this very spot, we lost another famous Chicago landmark, Eddies Texaco, in favor of a neighborhood movie and a candy store."

As the rally broke up, demonstrators of all ages crowded their autos into the ornate station, causing a massive tie-up.

"It's a piece of everyone's childhood," continued the Reverend; "It's a place where you went with you Dad on Sunday morning to check your tires or where you got your first car wash."

Chicago's service stations began closing a few years ago when the world's petroleum resources dwindled and it was discovered that cars run better on Richard's Wild Irish Rose Wine.

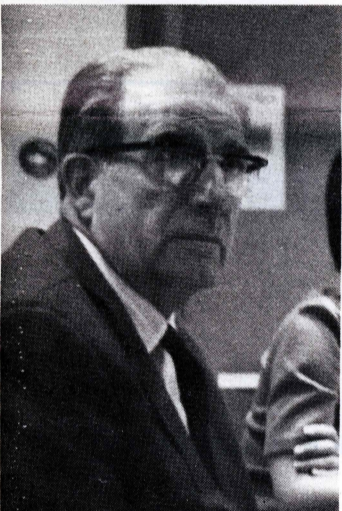

Rev. Stumpf concluded his speech by saying that it was a great shock to hear the station was coming down, especially at a time when you hardly hear those three marvelous little words, "Fill 'er up."

Foot Wear

by R. Langerman

The Administration has requested that all students, faculty, and employees remove their footwear while in the new classroom building on April 2.

The floors of the building will have been cleaned and polished for dedication. Ceremonies at 3 p.m. on April 2. Presiding over the dedication will be Illinois governor, Daniel Walker and Northeastern President Jerome Sachs.

For convenience, footwear receptacles will be placed by all entrances to the building.

School authorities also ask that everyone wear socks or stockings while in the building, as sanitary status P.A. 77-28 prohibits bare feet in public buildings.

The administration suggests that everyone wear old shoes to school so as to discourage thieves.

Psychology Department To Offer New Degree in Conditioning

The innovative psychology department has decided to let students be truly participatory in their new "specialist in conditioning" degree. Students will spend four full years in boxes and get their degrees when the right responses have been produced.

Due to lack of space, these boxes will be spread out all over campus. It has already been decided that some lockers south of the library will be enlarged for this purpose.

While in these boxes, students will be shown daily films of actual rat behavior, so that they may know exactly how they are to act.

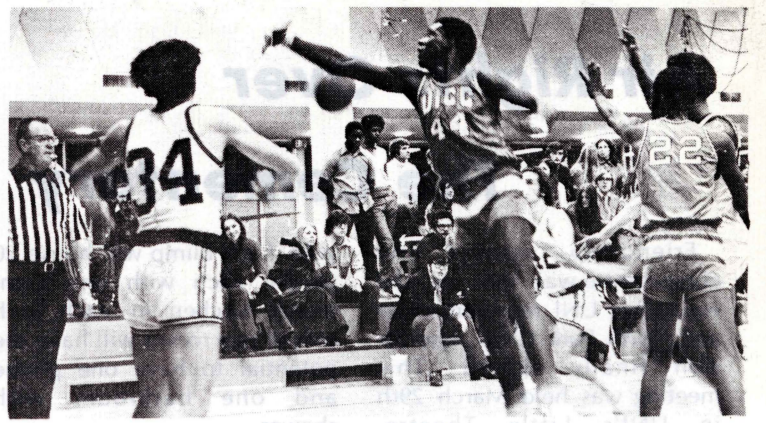

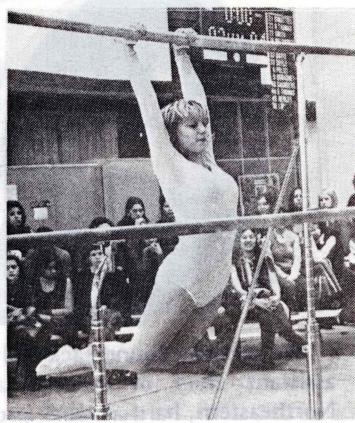

There will be buttons on two walls of the boxes which will have to be pecked with the nose to receive food. Some objection has been raised as to the Northeastern hamburgers that will be used as reward. It is questionable if the students would really peck the right buttons for the reward of Northeastern hamburgers.

The education process will be an exceptional one in that students will have to learn everything the instructor wants them to or they will receive a slight shock.

Upon graduation, students will receive a white albino rat of their own as a special reward from the university.

The university administration has decided to back this new program as it is beneficial to all students on campus. When there is a shortage of other animals in the science building, biology and chemistry, students will be able to use the students in this program for experimentation.

Sights never to be seen again at UNI.

Athletic Activities Cancelled

In a surprise announcement President Sachs has cancelled all athletic activities at Northeastern. His reasons for doing this were the budgetary strain the Physical Education program has put on the school and in support of the Indians at Wounded Knee.

Gus Ziagos was shocked by the announcement and said the athletic program would not start again until the budget is increased and the Indians in the country are given the Civil Rights they deserve. He supported the Presidents action though after it was announced.

All varsity competition is cancelled and all PE faculty are being put into a non-teaching status. Intramural games are not going to be affected but will not be held in the gymnasium because that area of the school will be closed until the crisis is over.

An Indian spokesman for Northeastern praised the action of President Sachs and stated discrimination in sports against Indians as a basis for the societal problems. There will be a national representative of the Indian movement here at Northeastern today to help explain the Presidents actions. Gov. Walker is expected to speak at 3:00 PM and will share the platform with the Indian representative.

There will also be a meeting of the Concerned PE Majors who are expected to picket the meeting in front of the Classroom building. John Demas, spokesman of the irrate group of students said that "Politics should not be brought in to athletics," and thought he would be now transferring to another school which appreciated the sports activities.

General reaction from the student body was one of apathy, much the same as that attitude toward their varsity sports. There was however some concern over the required PE course which is in the basic curriculum. President Sachs thought that it could be waived in such an emergency situation as this.

Faculty cheered the action as it is likely the free up funds to be used in their disciplinary areas.
