Says Bill Would Kill 'Home' Permanents

The home hair wave with kit-type preparations should be outlawed for Kentucky women if a bill now before the Kentucky Legislature passes in its present form. So warned E. M. Josey, secretary of the Kentucky Pharmaceutical Association, in a statement just issued.

"A working girl couldn't legally give her roommate a package-type home wave if this bill passes," he said. For one thing, it would be illegal for anybody in Kentucky to sell her the kit.

The bill, H. B. 238, seeks to prohibit the sale of any device or material to be used for the purpose of applying a permanent wave in the home and to prevent anyone except a qualified beauty specialist from using such materials.

Josey said the bill is "a brief rehash of proposals that have been beaten in the Kentucky Legislature and in other states when the attempt was made to deprive women of this popular and less expensive method of beauty care."

He said former allegations of "danger to health" and "damage to hair" by the home kit preparations "long ago have been proved groundless by authorities including the Federal Pure Food and Drug Administration."

Industry sources estimate that women have bought approximately 255,000,000 such sets made by the various concerns.

Work of Two Morehead College Art Students Displayed There

The art work of two Morehead College students, Wendell Dobyns and Frank Proffitt, both of whom graduated at the end of the first semester this year, was exhibited in the college art gallery recently.

The exhibit was opened with a tea, which about 200 persons attended. In the receiving line were Dr. Charles Spaul, president of Morehead College, and Mrs. Spain, Mrs. Naomi Clayport, both of the art department, Tom Young, art professor, Dean Maurice Palmquist, and the honor students, Mr. Dobyns and Mr. Proffitt.

Work exhibited represented what Dobyns and Proffitt considered the best pieces they had executed during their four years of college work. It consisted of oils and water colors, along with other work in many fields.

Upon graduation, Proffitt will become a commercial artist with Martin Department Stores, which includes a chain of about 20 retail stores in this section. He will supervise window decorations and other aspects of the commercial art work.

Proffitt is a veteran of World War II, married and has a two-year-old son.

Dobyns is president of Beaux Arts Club at the College, art editor of the Raconteur, the college year book, and is cartoonist for the college publication, The Trail Blazer. He is to enter the armed forces but plans to teach art in the future.

Senior exhibits and teas were instituted last year under the sponsorship of Beaux Arts Club.

Sweethearts 60 Years Ago, Married Recently

Childhood sweethearts before the turn of the century, a Clearfield man and a Carter County woman were married here last week.

In the interim each had married, raised a family and become widowed.

H. F. Wilder, 76, of Clearfield, was wed to Mrs. Ida Arliss, 76, of Leon, Carter County, Judge Sam Green performed the ceremony in his office.

The couple pointed out they were "sweethearts" 62 years ago, when only 16 years old. Each raised a large family and both became widowed.

Recently each learned that the other was still living and decided to complete the ceremony which had been planned in the 1890's.

Roy Day was best man for Mr. Wilder. Josephine Roberts served as Mrs. Arliss' matron of honor.

Senate Approves Bill Of Sample, Kiser

Student Song Writer Now Back on Campus

Song writing and basketball are two of the accomplishments of Morehead College's versatile Paul Gilley Gilley who has just returned to Morehead after an absence of one semester. He is a lyrics writer of "hillbilly" and popular songs, the most recent of which is the current hit, "Cold, Cold Heart."

Paul Gilley

Mr. Gilley first became interested in the writing of lyrics in 1944; his first song was published in 1946. Since that time he has had 35 songs published and recorded. In addition to "Cold, Cold Heart," Mr. Gilley has written the words to such hits as "I Overlooked An Orchid," "Please Don't Let Me Love You," "They'll Never Take Her Love From Me" (which Mr. Gilley regards as his best song), and another current hit, "If Teardrops Were Pennies."

Among his other accomplishments he is skilled in journalism, basketball, and retail merchandising. He formerly wrote a column on the current song hits for "Prairie Roundup" magazine. During his absence from the campus last fall, he organized a retail mail-order distributorship.

Probably the second biggest talent for this six feet, nine inch boy, however, is in basketball. He is attending Morehead on a basketball scholarship, and although he will not play any ball for the remainder of the season, he is expected to be an active member of the Eagle squad next season.

Mr. Gilley the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clell Gilley of Maytown, Morgan County, Ky., is a graduate of Hazelgreen Academy, Hazelgreen, Ky. He first came to Morehead during the fall semester of 1950, and is now a sophomore.

Some folks aren't so bad until you get to know them.

Tree Planting Program In Rowan Off To Good Start; Orders May Be Placed Now

"The tree planting program for 1952 is off to a good start in Rowan County," says Bernard H. Mauer, Service Forester for the Kentucky Division of Forestry.

Mauer reported today that John Thornberry of Cranston, J. D. White of Pine Grove and Robert Curtis, Sharkey, together ordered more than 4,000 pine trees last week.

The division will supply seedlings at a very low cost to landowners, Mauer said. Purchasers also receive assistance in selecting the species they should plant, methods and time of planting.

Order blanks will be supplied to landowners upon request and orders for trees may be placed with anyone employed by the division in this county, or with the Soil Conservation Service or Extension Service. Trees will be banded and shipped by the Division of Forestry and the receiver will be notified of the time and place they will be delivered.

Persons in Rowan County interested in planting trees should contact Bernard Mauer, Service Forester, or George Cline, Fire Guard, at the Lyons Building in Morehead. Trees available for ordering from the state nurseries are white ash, black locust, yellow poplar, black walnut, white pine and loblolly pine. Last spring approximately 30,000 seedlings were set out in this county. The landowners who planted these trees on idle land and badly stocked woodlands are the Lee Clay Products Company, Clearfield; Morehead State College; Bert Dean, Little Ferry; Everett Gattineau and J. C. Flannery; Bluestone; John Thornberry, Cranston; Leland Hall, Pine Grove; Orville Caudill and Harve McBrayer, Poplar Grove; and Paul Overstreet, Little Ferry.

Tree planting is not a hit or miss proposition when correct planting procedures and protection are practiced, Mauer pointed out. Proper knowledge of the soils and the trees that will grow on them is necessary. Survival of 75 per cent or better means a successful planting. Examination this winter of plantations set out last spring reveal a survival count of seedlings from 70 to almost 100 per cent.

Music Of Shakespeare's Day Brought To Life By Local Group

A group of Morehead College musicians who are literally giving life to music unheard since the time of Shakespeare, is attracting the attention of specialists and scholars to their work.

The group, one of three or four in the United States that study and perform 16th century polyphonic music, has been urged by the Folger Library in Washington, D. C., to make recordings of their performances, and has been requested by the Spenser-Milton unit of the South Atlantic Modern Language Association to send a list of all the music they have collected—a list which now consists of 150 authentic scores of 16th century music.

The organization began research and practice in the field of concert music of that century less than a year ago, and has limited its activities to practice and experimental recordings. Present members—John Long of the English department, Mrs. Long and Helen Greim, Keith Huffman, Marie Johnson and Faith Sears, all of the college music department—plan to present a public concert in the spring.

The activity of the local group is part of a nation-wide revival of 16th century polyphonic music in contrast to the heavy orchestrations and modern harmonies of the 20th century. Modern instruments used by members of the group have to be modified so as to resemble the tones that were produced by the viols, citrens, lutes, pandoras, and other instruments of the period.

Even in the 16th century, there was no music written specifically for instrumental groups. Then, in 1899, Thomas Morley edited and compiled a collection called "The First Book of Consort Lessons." This collection was made to include music for all occasions, and it also includes music of several instrumental forms.

Members of the Morehead College Consort at the time of its organization last spring were:

Miss Greim, Mr. Long, Mr. Huffman, and two former members of the music department, Mrs. Corinne Barrows and Lucette Stumberg.

Miss Walker Is Bride Of Col. Young

The marriage of Miss Patricia Ann Walker, to Zane Taylor Young took place Saturday afternoon, February 8, at 3:30 o'clock in the Christian Church at Ravenna, Ky. The Rev. Mansie Stevens performed the beautiful double ring ceremony being an impressive altar of white flowers and ferns.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white tulle, ballerina length dress fashioned with hatter neck and a fitted jacket with long sleeves. The shoulder length veil was held in place with a halo of the same material as the dress. Seed pearls and rhinestones were used on the jacket and cap. She carried a white Bible mounted with an orchid.

Mrs. Dewitt Purdon of Lexington was matron of honor and the brides' only attendant. She wore a dress of blue tulle, shantung and carried a bouquet of yellow roses.

Clayton Wehman served as best man for Mr. Young. Arthur Stewart, Morehead and James Hamilton, Lexington were ushers.

Mr. Harold Servner accompanied by Mrs. E. Caywood, Jr. organist, sang "Becomes" and "Always."

Following the wedding, a reception was held in the church basement.

Miss Young is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Walker of Ravenna. She is a graduate of the Woodlands School in Lexington.

Mr. Young is the son of Mr. Vivian Young and the late Taylor Young.

Rowan Soldier's Last Letter To His Mother Indicates That He Knew End Was Near

Sgt. Henry C. McKinney, 23, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sylvan McKinney of the Licking River section of Rowan County, probably had a premonition that death was near when he fell in Korea, for in his last letter home he said: "The sun is shining beautifully this morning but it looks like winter is just around the corner."

Sgt. Henry C. McKinney quoted 23rd Psalm.

McKinney wrote that on November 4, three days later he was mortally wounded in action on the front lines, the sixth Rowan Countian to die in the Korean war.

The young sergeant was back on defensive lines when he mailed his last letter, but was probably moved into the combat zone the next day.

Reading between the lines of his last written words, one repeatedly gains the impression Sgt. McKinney felt the end might be close. For example, he says in the first paragraph: "Everything is quiet and peaceful like maybe the war will end. I am praying it will if it is God's will."

Here are other excerpts from the four-page letter, which the

Business Places Asked To Close One Hour

Directors of Morehead's Board of Trade, in session yesterday, passed a resolution asking all business places to close for one hour from 3:15 to 4:10 on Friday, Feb. 29 to participate in the World Day of Prayer.

Business establishments throughout the world are being asked to close this one hour while many churches and organizations are planning special services.

Sunday School since I have been over here and I expect to keep going when I get home.

"Mother, I don't regret coming to Korea, because I think there is a reason for my being here. I know one thing it has made a different man of me.

"Mother, I am very thankful to be alive this morning. Some call it luck, I know different. I think God has willed for me not to go yet. A man couldn't come as close to death as I have and not get a scratch. I remember a lot of his promises.

"Sunday morning, October 17, just before daybreak, we went through the valley to take a hill that we had lost when the Chinese attacked the day before. While we were slipping through that valley before the sun came up the 23rd Psalm came to me. As though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death I will fear no evil, for thou art with me. I kept repeating it over and over and it gave me relief. It is wonderful to have someone like Him to go with.

"I have found that living the kind of life that God wants for man is very hard. Salvation is sort of like planting a crop back from when you lost it. Cultivated the seeds will smother it out. Over here we are not around too many people, and there is Satan's temptation everywhere.

"I have a boy in my squad who uses God's name in vain. I asked him why he said that. He said it was just a habit. I tried to explain that his name wasn't to be thrown around and that it was something sacred like his mother's picture. I guess he had never known it that day.

"Well, mother, I guess you know what I'm trying to say for I was never good at explaining things. I just wanted you to know that His name means something to me. I can't do anything in life. I think that all my life I have brought up that way. I have had plenty of time over here and I don't see how much time I have made and if I could live my life over it would be different.

"Mother, you did a great job in raising us kids. I guess when we left home we stayed at the chance we had. I have met so many men in the service who never taught anything about God.

Sgt. McKinney ended his last letter with this final paragraph:

"Mother, someday we will be together and everything will be so sweet."

Ex-POWs Should File For Pay By March 31

Ex-prisoners of war, who have not filed for benefits under the War Claims Act of 1948, were reminded this week that March 31 is the deadline for filing.

Stanley Hudson, acting director of the Kentucky Disabled Ex-Servicemen's Board, said today that many living ex-prisoners of war and a number of survivors who are eligible for benefits have not made application.

Benefits available are $1 per day for each day of the internment period, in most cases. Claim forms and assistance in filing them may be had from the Kentucky Disabled Ex-Servicemen's Board, 1405 West Broadway, Louisville, Ky.

The great trouble with luck is that it often disappears when you need it most.

An honest man, after reviewing his own life, will be inclined to let your chart its own course.

Extension Program Expands; New Week-End Plan Offered

Morehead College is meeting an unexpectedly great demand for extension courses with a new series of Friday evening and Saturday morning courses. Director of Public Relations W. M. Caudill announced today.

Enrollment in extension courses is steadily increasing, Caudill said, as new study centers are being formed and classes organized.

Under the new "week-end plan," teachers in this vicinity may acquire as many as eight hours of academic credit each semester by enrolling in these on-campus courses now being set up. On Friday nights there will be offered an advanced course in English, and on Saturday mornings an advanced course at West Liberty.

Other extension classes already organized include Regional Geography for Elementary Teachers taught at Olive Hill by Opelia Wilkes, associate professor of geography, and a course in Entomology taught at Grayson by William Owsley, professor of biology. Fenton West, head of the chemistry and mathematics department, will offer Teaching of Elementary Science at Paintsville on two days: Friday nights for city teachers and Saturday mornings for the rural teachers. Pikeville will have two classes taught by Thomas Young, assistant professor of art, Public School Art and Appreciation of Fine Arts. Two courses will also be offered at Owensville. They are Nutrition 102 under Patti Bolin, head of the home economics department, and Human Anatomy, taught by Wilhelm Josephus Caudill.

Additional courses are being offered at both Vanceburg and Greenup, Mr. Caudill said.

The extension courses offered last semester were very successful, Mr. Caudill said. "The students were pleased with them and the instructors found the students willing to do their work."

College Heads Debate Value Of Athletics

Presidents Of State Schools Vary On Good Derived

The value of post-season tournaments and special athletic contests, the assistance major sports give to other campus activities, and the percentage of college athletes who graduate were considered in recent radio broadcasts by a panel of Kentucky college presidents.

Recorded discussions by the panel, which included the head of state, Dr. Charles R. Spain, are presented during the half-hour period of basketball game broadcasts over the Reynolds Aluminum Network.

President H. L. Donovan of the University of Kentucky made a staunch defense of post-season tournaments. "The University of Kentucky has participated in four bowl games and a number of basketball tournaments," he said.

ball. President Garrett reported that the intramural program at Western is "largely supported by the income from basketball" and that "group attendance at athletic contests is a major factor in building student unity and school spirit."

However, President Davidson reported that the intercollegiate program at the University of Western does not carry the weight of the athletic program financially. Dr. Spain's opinion was that benefits from intercollegiate athletics are indirect: gate receipts at Morehead "do not contribute to the support of minor sports or other activities." On the question of what percentage of participants in major sports graduate, much the same situation was found to exist in all the colleges represented.

Moderator of the discussions is Keen Johnson, vice president of Reynolds Metals Co.

AT LAST - In Chicago, Edward Grochowalski and Freda Webster have wedding delayed by car crash last April. She is paralyzed from chest down and said vows from hospital table.

Morehead to Observe World Day of Prayer

Morehead "Monopolizes" Art Supervisory Jobs In Kentucky

A state-wide "monopoly" on the positions of county art supervisor is held by students and graduates of Morehead. The state's county school systems employ, at the present time, a total of three supervisors, two who graduated from Morehead last year, and one who is a senior student now.

The three counties employing art supervisors are Rowan, Carter and Lee. The supervisors are Delores Gibson, Rowan County; Maxine Yates Jayne, Carter County; and Josephine Hill Osborne, Rowan County. They all received their college art training under the direction of Naomi Claypool and Thomas Young of the art department here.

The art program in Carter County is carried on in three of the five consolidated schools there, according to Mrs. Jayne. It now includes only the first six grades, but plans are being made to include the junior and senior high grades in the future. In addition to her work in these consolidated schools, Mrs. Jayne is working with 33 Carter County teachers to broaden the art program in the smaller schools. There are 72 rural schools in Carter County that Mrs. Jayne hopes to reach by conducting a workshop for teachers this summer. The teachers will then be better prepared to teach art in their schools next fall.

In Lee County the art program is supervised by Mrs. Osborne, one high school and three graded schools. However, the main subject for the future is to have a county-wide art program, according to Mrs. Osborne who is visited each of the rural school teachers before the opening of the fall semester in an effort to broaden the art program.

Mrs. Osborne and her husband, who is the music director in a

Lee County high school, have combined their efforts in a Fine Arts Club at that school.

Mrs. Osborne was Rowan County art supervisor during her senior year at Morehead. Present Rowan County supervisor is Delores Gibson, a senior.

About the same type of art work is done by the children in the three counties. This includes murals, tempera paintings, frieze crayon drawings and posters. The art work is collected, as much as possible, with other school lessons. "The subject matter seems more alive to the students now that we try to work in the art along with what they are studying," Mrs. Osborne explained.

Art exhibits are planned in each of the three counties this spring. The exhibits will consist mainly of work done by the children, but work by local artists also will be included in addition to personal exhibits by the art supervisors.

Production Up On Kentucky Maintained Farms

Kentucky's penal and charitable institution farms produced more food last year than any previous period in history and greater gains have been set for 1952. Charles M. Stagner, director of the Division of Agricultural Production in the Department of Welfare reported this week.

Total value of the vegetables, milk and eggs produced was $1,163,624.31 Stagner said.

Not included in the total were given a dollar valuation were 15,980,000 pounds of field crops.

Stagner said the production of the year was equivalent to $146,737 worth of food produced on each acre, sufficient milk produced to provide each patient with more than a pint a day, and enough vegetables to provide each patient and inmate with more than two pounds a day.

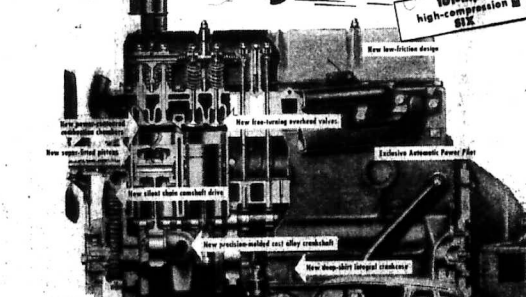

In addition, on January 1, the farms had 2,971 head and pigs, 461 producing cows, 346 heifers and 701 beef cattle, and more than 28,000 chickens.

"We feel that substantial strides have been made in the direction of making the farms produce more wholesome, nourishing food for our patients," said Stagner. "Greater goals have been set for 1952."

Registration Figure Of 599 To Go Higher

Morehead State College's registration stood at 599 this week, as enrollment for the second semester of the 1951-52 school year, with 25 to 40 more students expected to enroll in evening and Saturday on-campus courses.

An enrollment increase of nearly 50 over last semester's 553 was predicted by Registrar Linda A. Fair.

An additional 190 students are expected to be enrolled in extension courses according to William M. Caudill, Director of Public Relations. The towns in which these courses are to be offered are Ovingtonville, Pikeville, Olive Hill, Paintsville, Cranston, Ashland, Vanceburg, Greenup, West Liberty and Whitesburg.

Tobacco Sales Cease After This Week

Auction sales of the 1951 Burley tobacco crop will end with final sales at Lexington, on February 15. Carrollton, originally scheduled to close the 8th, will hold one more sale on the 12th. Mayville, the only other market to operate this week will close the 14th.

The Federal-State Market News Service reports average prices for most grades during the ninth week of sales fairly steady with the previous week. Quality of offerings was lower and volume was light.

Fish And Game Preserve To Be Opened Here

A fish and game preserve will be established on 600 acres of land belonging to Morehead State College, according to a recent contract with the State Division of Game and Fish. The contract, covering a period of five years, was approved by the college's Board of Regents at its January 31 meeting.

The area to comprise the preserve includes the reservoir behind the new dam on Evans Branch, and the land back of the campus down to Oxley Branch.

The Division of Game and Fish has agreed to post the area and to furnish quail, grouse, squirrel and other game animals according to Herbert H. Hogan, assistant manager for the college. The Division will also furnish seedlings of plants and trees which produce wild-life food. These include blue-color poplars, mulberry and walnut trees. The college will do the actual planting in locations marked out by the Division experts.

The 25 acre reservoir will be stocked with large mouth bass and blue gill so that college students, Boy Scouts, and members of other organizations in Morehead may enjoy fishing.

According to Mr. Hogan, the project is really an experiment. In the event that it works out well, the contract can be renewed at the end of the specified five years.

Heart Disease Number One Killer In State

An estimated 126,000 Kentuckians are victims of heart disease, according to the February issue of the Bulletin of the Kentucky State Department of Health. Though heart disease is the leading cause of death in the state, it gets special emphasis in February to coincide with Valentine's Day and the month-long campaign of the Kentucky Heart Association.

Heart disease has led Kentucky deaths since 1930, the Bulletin points out, and the percentage is steadily increasing. In 1950, the last reported year, 9,205 Kentuckians died of heart disease.

The Heart Disease Control Section of the Kentucky State Department of Health works with the Kentucky Heart Association in programs of education, prevention, case-finding and follow-through. All programs are carried out in cooperation with the private physician, the Bulletin explains.

Case-finding is done through heart clinics in Louisville, Lexington, Ashland and Murray. Admission is limited to great illidents and is by referral from private physicians or local health department physicians only.

Case-finding is also done in reading the X-ray film taken during the Division of Tuberculosis Control. If a heart abnormality is spotted, this is reported to the individual's private physician.

Mystic Club's Sweetheart Ball Saturday Night

Morehead State College's Mystic Club will present its annual Sweetheart Ball Saturday night from 9 p. m. to midnight in the college gymnasium. Music will be by Mrs. Andy Caudill and his orchestra.

A Sweetheart Queen and her court will be chosen from five girls and five men who received the most number of votes among the candidates presented to the student body at convocation last week. These students are George Ann Barber, Cozette Phillips, Peggy Wilson, Jay Lockhart, Barbara Hyden, Joe Corbett, Clinton Hickman, Frank Bloss, David Bingham, and Izzy Porter. Tickets for the dance are now on sale by members of the Mystic Club.

FORD MEANS MORE IN TRACTORS, TOO!

A Name can promise sterling value, pledge lasting satisfaction. A name, proved over the years, can certify to an especially high type of performance. A name can stand for productive ability that is backed by good service and assurance. A name can be representative of enlightened scientific research to create new prosperity and better living.

If ever a name in business has come to mean all of these things, that name is "Ford." It has held the confidence of three generations of Americans—and, particularly, of America's farmers and... To farmers, too, the Ford name is a reminder of millions of research dollars such as those invested in the exploration of soybean possibilities, which opened huge new markets for this cash crop and pointed the way to vastly widened uses for many other farm products.

The name "Ford" on a tractor today has a meaning even beyond all this. It means manufacturing skill and volume production resources unique in the farm equipment field. It means engineering leadership—distinctly keeping ahead with such new developments as the Ford Tractor "Froom-Meter." It is backed by good service and assurance that parts will be available. It means low price and a generous measure of extra value for that price.

And, finally, the name "Ford" is the symbol of a sound investment, for a Ford Tractor, even after years of use, will still bring a good price.

FORD TRACTORS AND DEARBORN IMPLEMENTS... the ideal working combination
Dearborn implements are designed to team with the Ford Tractor, to give you the advantages of built-in hydraulic control, of ability to be attached or removed quickly or faster, easier, more economical operation and better work on a surprisingly wide variety of jobs.

Need For Erosion Control Is Stressed In Rowan Report

By Leland S. Hall
 To the operators of Rowan County Soil Conservation District, we your supervisors, make the following report.
 Last year the population of this nation increased two and one-half million people. This rate of increase will continue as time goes on. On the average about four pounds of food is required for each person per day, or five thousand tons of extra food must be had each day. To put this amount of food on a yearly basis, goes into big figures. It is high time we awaken to the situation that is confronting us and attempt to prepare our resources to meet it.

One thing is certain we cannot continue to let our fertile, food producing, life giving soil run away, as we have in the past if we are to continue our present way of life. No truer expression was ever said than "eroded soil makes eroded people." Low yielding soils produce low incomes and crops that are low in food value. People who live on such soils are apt to be more susceptible to disease and their physical stamina is such that they cannot do the work they would do if they were fed from the food produced on soils containing an ample supply of minerals.

Your soil conservation district was formed with these thoughts in mind and has worked toward a solution of the problems confronting us today. If we are not careful these problems today will certainly boom up more forcibly in the future.
 The future of our nation rests in the top eight inches of soil covering our land. It is from this precious topsoil that the major portion of our food, clothing and shelter must come. The better condition we maintain this rich dirt, the easier it will be for us to produce the necessities of life.
 Eighty-five per cent of the food crops grown on our farms must be converted to some other form before it is ready for human consumption. Since the largest of our crops is of the forage nature, cattle are the best consumers of them all. The milk cow comes first and beef cattle run a close second. It is only fitting and in keeping with good conservation practices, that we have sod on our pastures. Sod is the best soil for erosion, but earns a good income for the owner. At the same time a large amount of the crop returns to the soil helping to maintain its fertility.
 It is gratifying to see so much interest in improved pastures in Rowan County. Not so many years ago five acres were required to pasture one cow for about five months. The rest of the year poor old bony had to make out weather beaten corn "fodder" or over-ripe fibrous millet hay. Today, on some farms the same old cow would find more and better food on three-fourths acre for nine months than she had of the former five acres. We have made a good start but the job is not done yet. The good grass is to be found on several acres but too many depend on "Kore" alone. There are altogether too many fields that are not operated to produce what they should.

off the wet land, is one of the much needed practices that is lagging behind. More feet of alfalfa being planted each year. Four thousand nine hundred and fifty feet was laid in 1951. Most of this was placed on the farm of J. C. Wells and Jerry Brewer. The property of the Morehead State College receives a good portion. One and three-tenths miles of terraces and one-tenth miles of diversion ditches were constructed this past year in the Sharkey farm. Some of the farmers are growing more tobacco on the terraced acres.
 Seventy-five farmers asked for help in laying out contour rows on four hundred acres this past year. Contour cultivation was one of the first major conservation practices accepted by your cooperators. We are sorry that insufficient assistance is available to take care of all the calls we have on this service.
 Very little soil in our district is suitable for growing alfalfa. Sericea is the best substitute. More seed was sown in this county last year than ever before. Those who succeeded in getting a stand of alfalfa the first year and the plants continue to die each year. The reverse is true with sericea. The stand thickens each year and the much built up by falling leaves improves the soil. Sericea can be cut and put up the same day, weather conditions being favorable, and from two to three crops harvested each year. R. C. Penner, and Orville Caudill of Poplar Grove, are well pleased with their sericea plantings.
 A new practice started last year was the establishing of wildlife plantings. Bicolor and Multiflora rose were used—13,000 Bicolor and 6,000 rose seedlings. Sharkey way, and Orville Caudill of Poplar Grove, are well pleased with their sericea plantings. W. Y. Bailey and A. D. While many acres need planting, more acres that are already in trees need better protection. Fire is not the only hazard to guard against. The woodman axe is equally as destructive. Cut only the mature or defective trees. Give the young growth a chance. Some of these 8,000 new faces in this country each day will need another new home here. Let's be ready to help them.
 During the year 1951, complete and partial conservation plans were developed on 74 farms in Rowan County. This makes a total of 213 cooperators who are carrying out some phase of a complete soil conservation plan on their farms.
 We wish to express our sincere gratitude for the cooperation of the personnel in our Soil Conservation District office, the County Agent, Farm Forester, U.S. Forest Service, Teachers of Vocational Agriculture and you as cooperators.
 1951 was a good year for us. Help us make 1952 better.

Defeat of School Levy, Tragic Fire, Loss By Morehead To Eastern, Resignation of Ted Crosthwait, Road Order, Made Headlines

Rowan Countians talked about the following five stories more than any others during the final quarter of 1951, according to a rating of the News staff today...

(1) The Board of Education's proposal to build new schools at Morehead, Clearfield and North Park and improvements at Haldeman, Elliottville and Farmers...

(2) Eastern's hard-fought win over Morehead College, 6-0 in a game which Coach Ellis Johnson charged the Maroons with liberally "running" the star quarterback Chuck Porter...

(3) The resignation of Ted Crosthwait as Superintendent of Rowan County Schools...

(4) A tragic fire which claimed the lives of Mrs. Edith Mays Fraley and her three-year-old daughter on Christmas Creek...

(5) And an unprecedented road order which would have county machinery in each magisterial district one week of each year...

The Board of Education's proposal was defeated almost 2-1 by a vote of 10-2 in favor of the measure...

Verbal repercussions were leveled following Morehead College's 6-0 loss to Eastern Morehead College...

Superintendent of Schools Ted Crosthwait resigned to accept a position in the Louisville school system, and Mrs. Eunice Cecil was named by the Board of Education to fill the remainder of Crosthwait's contract...

Fire, which started when Mrs. Edith Mays Fraley poured kerosene on an open baby, burned her three-year-old daughter immediately and Mrs. Fraley several days later in a Lexington hospital...

Rowan Fiscal Court approved, after a bitter controversy, an order which would make all of the county's road machinery available to each magisterial district one week out of each month...

Rowan County's Board of Education voted to submit to the electorate a proposal to levy a 3-cent tax on each $100 property assessment to construct new school buildings at Morehead, Clearfield, on North Park and improvements at Haldeman, Elliottville and Farmers...

Morehead College won its first football game of the season, defeating East Tennessee State University, 13-0...

Both Democrats and Republicans held organization meetings at Morehead...

Stress Insect Control In Forestry Reports

Forest Service annual report stresses control of forest insects and diseases.

The need for more progress in protecting the nation's forests against insects and disease was noted recently by Lytle F. Watts, chief, Forest Service, in his annual report to the Secretary of Agriculture. Mr. Watts stated that millions of board feet of timber badly needed for defense, housing, industry and home use are lost each year to insects and disease.

Insects and diseases cause a greater loss of timber than fire. During the 10-year period 1934-43, losses from fire averaged 460 million cubic feet of timber a year. During the same period, about 622 million cubic feet were lost to insects and disease, it is estimated.

In 1951 national forests returned to the U. S. Treasury $1,984,000 more than the total cost of their protection and management, and are contributing increasingly to the nation's supply of forest products. During the year approximately 4,688 million board feet of timber were cut from work must be continued in the summer of 1952 and follow-up control for several years thereafter will probably be necessary, the report indicates.

Other serious pests, according to the report, include such leaf-eating insects as the spruce budworm, tussock moth, larch sawfly, tent caterpillar and poppy moth. During the past two years the Forest Service, the State and private forest land owners cooperated in a control project against the spruce budworm. Around two million acres of infested timber have been successfully treated through aerial spraying during the last three years. Present estimates are that treatment will be needed on about one million additional acres during the next two years.

"Like mankind, the trees of the forest are subject to many ills," the chief forester said. Various fungi and bacteria produce rusts, warts, blights and rots. White pine blister rust is one of the most serious forest tree diseases because it threatens to wipe out one of the country's most valuable commercial trees. Since the disease is spread by spores, it can be controlled through the eradication of these plants in white pine forest areas.

Other destructive diseases are brown spot, which attacks the southern longleaf pine, leaf little disease of short leaf pine, oak wilt and pole blight which is attacking western white pine of pole timber size.

The Department's Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine and the Bureau of Plant Industry, Soils and Engineering give the Forest Service technical assistance in insect and disease control on the national forests. When an outbreak is reported the cost is weighed against the value of the timber involved to determine if public money should be spent on control work. Where private land is intermingled with national forest land, cooperative agreements for insect control may be made among the Federal agencies, the States and the private land owners.

Many of the forest insects and diseases are so widespread and well established that complete eradication is not feasible, but Mr. Watts believes it is possible to control the most serious pests and keep new pests from entering the country.

To keep timber losses from insects and disease as low as possible, the most serious pests recommends more Federal research on insects and disease, a well organized system of detecting infestations, and quick control attacks.

He believes good forest management that maintains vigorously growing stands will help considerably in insect and disease control since healthy trees are more resistant to many of the diseases and insects than over-mature ones.

Protection of forests against fire also is necessary for eventual forest abundance. Mr. Watts commended the forest fire prevention campaigns carried on by State and Federal forest services with the sponsorship of the Advertising Council, Inc. and through "Keep Green" programs.

The percentage of lumbering, railroad and other industrial fires has dropped materially in the past three decades. However, they still do great damage. Much stronger efforts to eliminate forest fires are needed, as 66 million acres of forest and watershed land in this country are as yet without organized fire protection.

Good forest management is another essential part of the program outlined by the chief forester. Even if all losses from fire, insects and disease were eliminated, saw - timber use would still exceed annual saw-timber growth.

On one-fourth of the commercial forest lands of this country, mostly public forest lands and large industrial holdings, management is good and on another segment is good and on another "But more than half of the commercial forest land is still being handled poorly or destructively," Mr. Watts declared.

To aid private land owners in good forest management and marketing, the Forest Service cooperates with the States in supplying on-the-ground technical assistance. In 1951 some 4,716 esters gave assistance to 4,716 private land owners, an all-time high but were still unable to meet the demand.

Another part of the program for timber abundance calls for action to stop further forest destruction and deterioration through public control of cutting by the individual States. Sixteen States already have laws regulating forest practices. "To assure a consistent nation-wide pattern, a Federal law setting up basic standards will be needed," Mr. Watts said.

Mr. Watts reports that hundreds of new mining claims were filed on national forest land last year, adding to the management problem created by some two million acres presently covered by mining claims. Many of these claims, which make effective land management impossible in many areas, are believed to have been located for other purposes than mining, such as summer home sites, rights to value timber, large tracts of government timber.

Mr. Watts presented two possible solutions to the mining claim problem which would enable legitimate miners to prospect for and develop needed mineral resources and enable the Forest Service to manage the non-mineral resources of the national forests for the interests of all. These solutions are: (1) separation of surface and mineral rights, or (2) leasing of lands for minerals.

The chief forester pointed out that recreation use of national forests hit the record high in 1951 of 49 million visits.

Forest Service experiment stations and the Forest Products Laboratory at Madison, Wis., continue, in cooperation with non-Federal agencies, to contribute substantially to improve forest, range and watershed management and forest utilization.
