A MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT

On behalf of Eastern Michigan University, I welcome you here today. This is one of the signature moments in your life. I remember that instant when I walked in cap and gown to receive my first degree. It was a thrill for me. It also was a thrill for my parents—they did not have the chance to earn a college degree.

I was a first generation college student, as many of you are. Others who will receive their degrees today share a strong family legacy and join generations of EMU graduates—grandparents, fathers and mothers, and brothers and sisters.

Whatever life path has brought you here, it is an exciting moment as you walk across the stage, take your diploma and launch your future. Let me tell you a little secret. Each commencement is also a profound and important moment for a president and our faculty and staff. We know how hard you have worked, and we are overjoyed to watch the culmination of your effort. We look forward to all you will do with your education!

The value of a college degree is more important than ever before. Your EMU diploma is not only a meaningful credential, but it is the foundation on which you will build a fulfilling career and offer many contributions to your community and state.

So to all the graduates, families and friends who join us here today: take pause to celebrate this important milestone. Stroll the campus as you remember all the generations of EMU graduates who have made significant contributions to our state and our world. You have earned your place among the University's proud alumni family, more than 160,000 strong. And I know your future accomplishments will continue to shine a bright light on your alma mater.

Congratulations!

Susan Martin, Ph.D.
President

ACADEMIC PROCESSION AND SYMBOLS

The academic procession preceding the commencement ceremony is the direct descendant of ecclesiastical processions, which included a stately and orderly movement of celebrants to the place of sacred ceremony. As the church was for centuries the main force behind intellectual enrichment, the religious overtones of the academic procession are not surprising.

The procession begins with the University mace, a symbol of authority of the President and the Board of Regents (see description and photo). The mace represents the golden flame of learning and is carried by the grand marshal, who is chosen on the basis of service to the University. Distinguished faculty lead their colleagues. The charter represents the original academic design of the University. The keys represent permission to enter and employ the University's resources for the advancement of knowledge. The colors symbolize a heraldic representation of the University. The chief academic officer carries the book representing knowledge, the source of wisdom. The medallion, worn by the president, represents the distinguished office of the University's leader.

All undergraduates wear gowns of the same color. The colors of the hoods signify the different graduate degrees. The custom of wearing gowns, or robes, stems from the time when all students of higher learning were members of the clergy and wore garments that the church considered appropriate. The wearing of caps dates from early Roman history. The mortar board may be a combination of tight-fitting caps worn indoors by the scholars in the Middle Ages and the soft biretta worn outdoors. The tuft of the early cap has been replaced by a tassel. The green and white tassel worn by the graduates represents the colors of Eastern Michigan University.

Meaning of hood colors of academic dress:

For all academic purposes, including trimmings of doctors' gowns, edging of hoods, and tassels of caps, the colors associated with the different disciplines are as follows:

- AgricultureMaize
- Arts, Letters, HumanitiesWhite

The University Mace

Historically, the mace was a battle club used by men on horseback to injure footmen. With the passage of time, however, it became a symbol of learning and power.

Constructed of sterling silver, gold plated brass and paduak, a wood resembling mahogany, the mace carries the symbols of each area of the University: the arts and sciences, business, education, health and human services, and technology.

The University mace was designed and constructed by Mark Hall, who earned his bachelor's degree in art from Eastern Michigan University and completed requirements for his master's degree in fine arts at the Cranbrook Art Academy.

THE STAR SPANGLED BANNER

Oh, say, can you see by the dawn's early light
 What so proudly we hailed at the twilight's last gleaming?
 Whose broad stripes and bright stars
 through the perilous fight
 O'er the ramparts we watched were so gallantly streaming?
 And the rockets' red glare, the bombs bursting in air gave proof through the night that our flag was still there
 Oh, say, does that star spangled banner yet wave
 O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave?

OUR PLEDGE

Eastern, sacred Alma Mater
 to your name we shall be true,
 Ever marching on to victory,
 we'll stand by to see you through.
 Softly floating on the breeze,
 verdant green with white of snow
 This our banner we will carry in our hearts
 where'er we go.

Photographers: Photos should be taken before or after the ceremony. Please remain seated during the distribution of diplomas. Photographers will not be allowed in front of or near the stage. However, a professional photographer will take color photos of all graduates as they receive their diplomas on stage. There is no obligation to buy enlargements, although this opportunity will be available when graduates receive their proofs, typically via email shortly after the ceremony.

ABOUT EMU

HISTORY

Established by the State of Michigan in 1849, Eastern Michigan University opened its doors as the Michigan State Normal School in 1853, focused on preparing students for the teaching professions. Michigan State Normal School grew rapidly, and added a number of ground-breaking programs. In 1899, the name changed to Michigan State Normal College.

The school was the first in the nation to train teachers of the disabled, and the first teacher training school to offer a program in library services. During World War II, the school trained soldiers for the military as well as civilian students. In 1956, reflecting the range of programs, the school became known as Eastern Michigan College. Three years later, with the establishment of the Graduate School, it changed its name to Eastern Michigan University.

The University has expanded dramatically during its 160+ years, yet remains true to its roots as an educator of tomorrow's leaders.

Dr. Thomas Verner,
Dean

To offer a liberal arts education that embodies knowledge of the disciplines, effective communication, quantitative reasoning, perspectives on a diverse world, and learning beyond the classroom, the College supports independent study, study abroad, biology field stations, the Parsons Center for the Study of Art and Science, community research projects, internships, field trips, and academic clubs including nationally-ranked Forensics and United Nations teams. Student research is showcased annually during a nationally recognized Undergraduate Symposium. The College of Arts and Sciences fosters success for all its members, to prepare them for service in local, national, and global communities and to instill knowledge of and respect for human diversity.

COLLEGE OF BUSINESS

The College of Business, offering 12 undergraduate, five graduate and 10 graduate certificate programs, provides an academic learning environment that fosters an innovative, applied and global business education. It supports the economic development of southeastern Michigan by preparing graduates to perform effectively in a "knowledge and information age" business world shaped by a global economy. The College works to develop business leaders who understand and use innovative approaches to address the forces shaping their environment as they create and manage businesses with the highest ethical standards.

Dr. Michael Tidwell,
Dean

The College focuses first and foremost on teaching and learning. Academic programs, professional education opportunities, university and business partnerships, and economic development initiatives are all based on new approaches to education grounded in strong fundamentals, with a practical and real-world emphasis incorporating an international perspective. As the first business school in the country to have an Ethos Statement, Ethos Week and Ethos Honor Society, the College of Business demonstrates that its emphasis on ethics and professional values is not only the foundation for the College, but also the basis for students to enjoy successful careers.

COLLEGE OF EDUCATION

Founded in 1849 as the first "normal school" west of the Alleghenies, Eastern Michigan University is one of the largest producers of educational personnel in the country. The College of Education offers a comprehensive range of bachelor's, master's and doctoral degrees as well as extensive non-degree and certification learning experiences. All professional education programs are accredited by the National Council for Accreditation of Teacher Education (NCATE) and approved by the Michigan Department of Education. Many programs hold an additional national recognition. As a community of teachers and learners, the College strives to support schools and other learning communities throughout Michigan and across the nation.

Dr. Jann Joseph, Dean

The overriding goal of the College of Education is to help candidates become caring, knowledgeable, and reflective professionals who support the twin goals of diversity and democracy in schools and society. These two interconnected themes help create an exemplary educational environment to develop students' intellectual curiosity, creativity, critical and reflective thinking and problem-solving abilities so that they may become ethical, productive and contributing participants and leaders in a democratic and diverse society.

COLLEGE OF HEALTH AND HUMAN SERVICES

The College of Health and Human Services, offering 17 undergraduate majors, 17 graduate degrees, and a range of minors and certificate programs, works in partnership with communities to prepare caring and competent professionals, generate knowledge, and advocate for social justice in order to enhance quality of life, health, and well-being. To fulfill this mission, the College provides a collaborative, hands-on, community-based learning environment; emphasizes intellectual rigor, ethics, and cultural competence for professional practice in a diverse society; and supports disciplinary and multidisciplinary research applied to relevant social and health concerns.

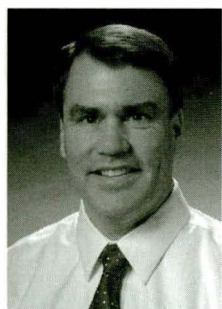

Dr. Murali Nair, Dean

Academic activities based in the community are an integral part of the College's culture. Through academic service-learning and observation experiences in individual courses, internship and fieldwork requirements in degree programs, clinical education, and volunteer involvements, faculty, staff, and students contribute to regional communities and schools. College of Health and Human Services faculty and students also engage in a wide variety of interdisciplinary, community-based research projects, many of which include attention to diversity as a key component. Throughout the College, research is focused on improving health and quality of life.

COLLEGE OF TECHNOLOGY

The College of Technology meets the need for well-prepared individuals for a variety of business and industrial positions, for teachers of business and industrial education, and for commissioned officers for the United States Army, Army Reserve and National Guard. Twenty-two undergraduate and 13 graduate programs provide a solid foundation in mathematics, science, technology management, and human relations, together with hands-on learning activities, in order to effectively support students' educational aspirations.

The College is committed to excellence in applied science and technology, to continuous professional development, to raising the awareness and appreciation of technology, and to the integration of technology with the human experience. As the only institution in Michigan approved to participate in the federally funded Project Lead the Way program, the College annually helps more than 50 middle and high school science, technology and math teachers from across the country develop cutting-edge teaching skills. Four College of Technology centers and institutes link faculty, student, and staff capabilities with business, industry, academia, and government to meet regional, national, and global needs.

GRADUATE SCHOOL

The Graduate School provides leadership, oversight, and service for all graduate programs at the University. These programs include certificate and degree programs at the master's, master of fine arts, specialist, and doctoral levels. offers highly qualified and motivated students a small college experience with all the benefits of a large comprehensive university. About 250 students are welcomed into the College each year, selected on the basis of a variety of factors--including test scores, GPA, personal statement essay, letters of recommendation, and community service--that point toward fitness for advanced work. Honors College students receive a rich educational experience marked by originality, critical thinking, intellectual diversity, and academic excellence. The College is strongly committed to the value of community service, and takes great pride in the work that Honors students do in the community and on campus.

The Honors experience provides outstanding preparation for careers and graduate study. Three-quarters of Honors College graduates go on to further professional and graduate training. Many receive graduate fellowships and national scholarships. The Honors experience leads to fulfilling careers in the professions, business, academia, and the arts.

HALLE LIBRARY

The University's librarians acquire and manage materials in many formats—books, periodicals, music scores, sound recordings, videos, electronic journals, microforms—in all subjects. Research and reference services are provided to promote effective and efficient use of library and Internet resources.

Dr. Tara Lynn Fulton,
Dean

Halle Library includes computer labs, study spaces, the Holman Learning Center, the Faculty Development Center, the IT Help Desk, a multi-media area, a theater, an auditorium, and the University archives. It houses one of the largest collections of children's literature in the United States. The building has full wireless connectivity, as well as the Automated Retrieval Collection (ARC) system, capable of housing 1 million items. While the most-used books are still on shelves, the majority of the school's books are stored within this system, which runs several stories underneath the library itself.
