The history of women in the accounting profession has been one of long years, but of small numbers. Early records show that a woman, Florence Crowley, was listed as an accountant in the directory of the City of New York in 1797. The first woman to become a certified public accountant was Christine Ross who received New York certificate number 143 in 1899.

The American Woman's Society of Certified Public Accountants was founded in 1933 with nine members. In 1975 it has grown to 2,153 including Active Members, Associates and International Associates.

The three primary objectives of this Society are:

1. Encouragement of women accountants in their professional advancement.
2. Improvement of knowledge within the accounting profession concerning the ability and achievements of women certified public accountants.
3. Increase in the number of women who are members and active participants in programs of technical accounting organizations.

In order to encourage more women to enter the profession, in 1938 the American Woman's Society of Certified Public Accountants organized an affiliate, The American Society of Women Accountants, which provides a professional membership for women who may not be certified public accountants but who are engaged in accounting work, who are instructors of accounting, or who otherwise have a substantial interest in accounting. The joint efforts of these two Societies have brought a growing recognition and prestige to all women in accounting.

The two Societies join in issuing quarterly an official publication, THE WOMAN CPA, which carries articles on technical accounting subjects written usually by members of the Societies.
