CONCERT PROGRAM

At last, to be identified! (1992)Richard Pearson Thomas (b. 1957)

Doubt me! My Dim Companion! What if I say I shall not wait! Wild Nights—Wild Nights! I never saw a Moor There's a certain Slant of light At last, to be identified

Los dos miedos Las Locas por amor del Valle de los Caídos as well as other performances in both Spain and Italy. Her opera credits include Micaela (Carmen), Lady with the Cake Box (Postcard from Morocco), Rosalinde (Die Fledermaus), Fiordiligi (Cosi fan tutte), Countess (Le Nozze di Figaro), Pamina (Die Zauberflöte) and the title role in Dominick Argento's Miss Havisham's Wedding Night.

An award winning vocal artist, Hill-LaRoche has earned praise for her "power, virtuosity...and elegance" with "a thrilling instrument at the top of its range." She was a 2003 finalist in the Southeast Regional Metropolitan Opera Auditions, a 2012 and 2008 NATS Artist Award Regional Finalist and the 2006 Artist of the Year with FBN Productions, Inc. In 2003, she was the Bizet Award winner for the Orpheus National Young Artist Vocal Competition and a Palmetto Opera Competition Finalist in 2005.

CATHERINE H. GARNER, DMA, a pianist and assistant teaching instructor on faculty at East Carolina University, received a doctorate in collaborative arts and chamber music under the direction of Dr. Jean Barr from the Eastman School of Music. She received a master of music degree in vocal accompanying and coaching from Florida State University and a bachelors of music in piano performance at Louisiana State University. Dr. Garner has performed as a soloist with the Louisiana State University Orchestra, Garner the Monroe (La.) Symphony Orchestra, the Tallahassee Symphony Orchestra, the Tallahassee Ballet, and the Big Bend Orchestra. She was a staff pianist at the American Institute for Musical Studies summer program in Graz, Austria as well as a participant at the Summer Academy in Nice, France with Dalton Baldwin. She participated in both the New Music@ECU Festival and the Festival of New Music at Florida State University and was the official pianist at the East Carolina University Brass Festival and Flute Symposium. Dr. Garner was also a featured performer at the Pershing's Own Tuba/ Euphonium Conference in Washington DC and at SERTEC at NC School of the Arts with Tom McCaslin, tuba. She has performed as a collaborative pianist with such groups as The New Music Collective in Charleston and with various soloists around the southeast, such as Aaron Goldman, assistant principal flutist of the National Symphony. She is a founding member along with Susan Hochmiller and Tabatha Easley of the Blue Ridge Trio, a group dedicated to the performance and exposure of music for voice, flute, and piano. Dr. Garner is also the founder and director of Music on a WIM (Women's Initiative Music Series), a monthly concert series featuring compositions by women, performed in high traffic areas around the university. She has also been a participant in master classes with Marilyn Home, William Bolcom, Richard Hundley, Janos Starker and John Wustman, among others. For three years prior to starting her doctoral program, she was the faculty pianist at East Carolina University. Dr. Garner rejoined the East Carolina faculty after completing her studies from the Eastman School, were she held a teaching assistantship for the undergraduate accompanying classes, and assistantships in studio accompanying and opera coaching. She resides in Greenville, North Carolina with her family.

And after the night had passed, She, close to me, said: Why do you move away from me? I am afraid without you!

Las locas por amor (The extremes of love)
I will love you, Divine Venus, if you desire that I love you eternally and with discretion.
The goddess of Cythera replied to me:
I prefer, as all women do,
that you love me for a short time and passionately.
I will love you. Divine Venus, I will love you.

At last, to be identified

- texts by Emily Dickinson

The second song cycle that Thomas wrote is a group of six settings of poems by Emily Dickinson titled, At last, to be identified! The title of the cycle comes from the title of the sixth and final piece of the cycle. At last, to be identified! was finished in 1992. The text chosen by the composer is varied and runs the gamut of human emotion. "Doubt me! My Dim Companion!" is hymn-like with stoic chords that staunchly support the voice. "What if I say I shall not wait!" begins frustrated and impatient but soon gives way to self-assurance. "Wild Nights—Wild Nights!" is exciting and simplistic in its longing for a loved one. The most well-known in the cycle is the stately and poignant song "I never saw a moor." The largely a cappella song "There's a certain Slant of light" leads us lastly, into the final song of the final piece, "At last, to be identified."

PROGRAM NOTES

Ch'io mi scordi di te?...Non temer amato bene

- anonymous text

Mozart himself premiered this scena con rondo K. 505 with soprano Nancy Storace in Vienna. In 1786, Storace gave a farewell concert before leaving Vienna to take up an engagement in London. Mozart had already set the anonymous text a few months earlier when he reworked his opera Idomeneo for a concert performance in Vienna and inserted it as a new aria for Idamante (K. 490). For K. 505, he made minor changes to the original text so that the declaration of love now comes from a woman's perspective.

Recitative:

I forget you? Can you counsel me to give myself to him, and still wish me to live? Ah, no! My life would be far worse than death.
Let death come: I await it calmly. But that I could be consumed by another flame and bestow my love on another, how could I attempt it?
Ah, I should die of sorrow.

Rondo:

Do not fear, my love, my heart shall be yours forever. I can no longer bear such pain; my spirit fails me.

Do you sigh? Oh bitter sorrow! But think at least of my predicament! Oh heaven! I cannot explain.

Cruel stars, pitiless stars, why so harsh?

Kind souls who see my anguish at this moment, say if a faithful heart can suffer such torment as this.

-translations by Küster

Excerpts from Sieben frühe Lieder

- texts by Carl Houptmann, Theodor Storm, and Johannes Schlaf

Berg had penned perhaps 80 songs by the time he became a composition student of the not-yet-famous Arnold Schoenberg in 1904. During the seven years he studied with Schoenberg, his approach to text-setting deepened as his technical facility flowered. In 1928 he gathered seven songs of those student years (composed 1905-08) into the collection from which these songs are excerpted. Berg's harmonic practice had not yet achieved atonality, let alone anything suggesting his eventual 12-tone method. Still, the chromatic lushness of these songs does push the 19th century's musical language to the limits of its expressivity.

Nacht (Night)

The clouds grow dark over night and vale,

Mist hovers, water gently murmurs.

Suddenly, it reveals itself:

O beware! Beware!

A vast wonderland opens up.

Silver mountains, deliriously large, thrust upwards,

Still paths of silvery light lead down the valley

From the hidden castle;

And the noble world is so marvelously pure.

A mute beech tree stands by the way,

Shadow-black; from the distant grove a breath

Ripples softly in its loneliness.

And from the deep valley's gloom

Lights flash in the silent night. Drink, soul! Drink, solitude!

O. beware! Beware!

Die Nachtigall (The Nightingale)

It was because the nightingale

Sang all through the night

That from its sweet sound, Echoing and re-echoeing,

The roses burst into bloom.

She used to be a wild one,

Now she is lost in thought;

Carries her summer hat in her hand

And quietly hears the torrid heat,

Not knowing what to do next.

Im Zimmer (In the Room)

Autumn sunshine.

The fair evening looks quietly inside.

A little red fire

Blazes and crackles in the hearth.

Thus, with my head on your knees,

Thus I am content.

When my eyes look into yours,

How gently do the minutes pass.

Poema en forma de canciones

texts by Ramón de Campoamor

Poema en forma de canciones (Poem in the Form of Songs) was first performed in 1917, while Turina was living in Madrid. His compositional style combines Spanish folk rhythms, tonality, and sentiment with that of traditional European form. It is in this threading of these two musical worlds in which he (along with de Falla and Albéniz) created a rich, homogenous, national musical identity. His musical language is complex as well as graceful, delicate, and elegant. The Poema contains four poems by the Spanish poet and political philosopher Ramón de Campoamor (1817–1901), preceded by an introductory piano Dedicatoria, which sets the whole tone scale highlighting his mastery in composing for the piano. The following songs are full of contrast, from the wistful vocal melody floating above soft piano chords in Nunca olvida (Never forget) and the lilting sweetness and eroticism of Los dos miedos (The two fears) to the agitated and vibrant piano figuration and Spanish farruca of Cantares (Songs) and the joyful exuberance of Las locas por amor (The extremes of love).

Nunca olvida (Never forget)

Since I am leaving this world, and before I give my account to the lord, I will confess to you, here, between the two of us.
With all my soul I forgive those whom I have always hated.
You, whom I have deeply loved, I will never forgive!

Cantares (Song)

Flee as I may your embraces, closer forever I'm caught; my ev'ry dream, ev'ry thought your haunting vision retraces.

Speak more to me, for yesterday, as I was enraptured, I listened to you without bearing, I looked at you without seeing.

Los dos miedos (The two fears)

With the onset of that night, She, remote from me, said: Why do you come so close to me? I am afraid of you.

GIVING AND SUPPORT

Our musical offerings are supported by contributions from alumni, friends, and generous benefactors. If you enjoy our concerts, please consider giving to support our continued efforts. Giving is simple and can be made through the University system by visiting www.onlinegiving.uark.edu. Simply designate the Department of Music for your gift, choose an amount, and fill out the online submission or call Fulbright Development at (479) 575-4272. Your gifts will help the Department better our students through scholarships, performance, and the best in instruction.

The University of Arkansas, Department of Music is housed in the Billingsley Music Building and is accredited by the National Association of Schools of Music. Home to over 300 music students and fifty faculty members, we offer a variety of degree programs at the undergraduate and graduate levels.

Through generous support from alumni and friends, the Department of Music became an All-Steinway School in 2010. The University of Arkansas is the third SEC school to gain the distinction and one of only 150 universities worldwide with the honor.

Department faculty and students perform over 600 concerts per year, on and off campus. Large concerts are performed at the 600-seat Faulkner Performing Arts Center with intimate chamber and solo concerts primarily presented at the 200-seat Stella Boyle Smith Concert Hall. Additionally, students and faculty perform throughout the region, including the Pryor Center for the Arkansas Oral and Visual History.
