

SOCIAL ANALYSIS OF SECURITY

Financial, Economic and Ecological Crime – Crime (In)security and (Dis)trust – Public and Private Policing

Edited by Paul Ponsaers

G_{of}S

G_{of}S

eleven

international publishing

Published, sold and distributed by Eleven International Publishing

P.O. Box 85576
2508 CG The Hague
The Netherlands
Tel.: +31 70 33 070 33
Fax: +31 70 33 070 30
e-mail: sales@budh.nl
www.elevenpub.com

Sold and distributed in USA and Canada

International Specialized Book Services
920 NE 58th Avenue, Suite 300
Portland, OR 97213-3786, USA
Tel.: 1-800-944-6190 (toll-free)
Fax: +1 503 280-8832
orders@isbs.com
www.isbs.com

Eleven International Publishing is an imprint of Boom uitgevers Den Haag.

ISBN 978-94-90947-74-3

© 2012 Paul Ponsaers | Eleven international publishing

This publication is protected by international copyright law.

All rights reserved. No part of this publication may be reproduced, stored in a retrieval system, or transmitted in any form or by any means, electronic, mechanical, photocopying, recording or otherwise, without the prior permission of the publisher.

Printed in The Netherlands

TABLE OF CONTENTS

1	On the development and the transition of empirically based criminological theory	15
	Paul Ponsaers, PhD
	Part 1. Financial, Economic and Ecological Crime	17
	Part 2. Crime, security and trust	19
	Part 3. Public & Private Policing	21
	Part 4. Past and Future of Social Analysis of Security	26
	PART I FINANCIAL, ECONOMIC AND ECOLOGICAL CRIME	29
2	Conflict resolution or risk management? – A study of conflicts between victims and businesses in the pharmaceutical sector	31
	Gudrun Vande Walle, PhD
	Introduction	31
1	Methodology and the research trajectory	33
1.1	A sector study	33
1.2	Case studies of conflict handling	35
2	Conflict handling or risk management	39
2.1	Limiting one's own responsibility on the basis of the control system	39
2.2	Limiting one's own responsibility on the basis of the state of art	40
2.3	Side effect: a passe-partout	41
2.4	Business culture and business structure as kinds of risk management	41
2.5	Abuse of the monopoly of knowledge	42
2.6	The pharmaceutical complex	42
3	The victims	43
3.1	Features of victimisation	43
3.2	What do victims expect from conflict handling?	44
3.3	The prerequisites for conflict handling	44
4	Conflict resolution	46
4.1	Conflict resolution in the event of collective victimisation	46
4.2	Towards conflict resolution: a legal responsibility	47

6		Social Analysis of Security
5	Concluding reflections	50
5.1	Based on the research	50
5.2	A look at the future	52
3	The social analysis of the anti-money laundering complex and the compliance industry	57
	Antoinette Verhage, PhD
	Introduction	57
1	The anti-money laundering complex and the compliance industry: an empirical research into the private actors in the battle against money laundering	57
2	Hypotheses: the anti-money laundering complex and the compliance industry	59
3	Research questions	60
4	Methods and design	62
4.1	Planning in phases	62
4.2	Methodological conclusions	65
5	Research results	66
5.1	Room for discretion in the AML system	66
5.2	The compliance officer	67
5.3	Suspicious transactions	68
5.4	The functioning of the AML complex	72
6	The compliance industry as a vehicle for investments	74
7	Effects and side effects of the anti-money laundering complex	75
7.1	A limited view on effects of the AML chain	75
7.2	Side effects	76
8	Conclusions	76
9	Research programme resulting from this PhD study	77
10	How does this PhD fit into in the research tradition of the Research Unit Social Analysis of Security and future outlook?	79
4	Transnational environmental crime and its governance – Case study research on illegal transports of e-waste and tropical timber	83
	Lieselot Bisschop, candidate PhD and Gudrun Vande Walle, PhD
	Introduction	83
1	Social relevance of transnational environmental crime	84
2	Scientific attention for transnational environmental crime	86
3	The governance of transnational environmental crime	88
4	PhD research on transnational environmental crime and its governance	91
4.1	Cases	91
4.2	Method	93

Table of contents	7
4.3 Research questions	94
5 Conclusion	95
5 Applying 'Differential Association Theory' to understand differences in the judgments of corrupt situations	103
Arne Dormaels, candidate PhD and Marleen Easton, PhD
Introduction: Social construction of crime	103
1 Corruption and the research agenda	104
2 Research questions	106
2.1 Social construct of corruption: normative conflict	106
2.2 Differentiation association process: knowledge and network	107
2.3 Differential social organisation	109
3 Research design	110
3.1 Quantitative research: scenario-based questionnaire	110
3.2 Sampling	111
4 Reflections on researching security	112
6 Regulating the informal economy in Belgium – A case study in three sectors	117
Dominique Boels, candidate PhD and Antoinette Verhage, PhD
Introduction	117
1 Description of the PhD study	119
1.1 The informal economy in this study	119
1.2 Aims and research questions of the PhD	120
1.3 Methodology	121
1.4 Relevance of the study	124
2 PhD study within the research units Social Analysis of Security and Governance of Security	125
3 Wish for the future	126
PART II CRIME, INSECURITY AND DISTRUST	131
7 Social disorganisation and adolescent offending in Antwerp – A multilevel study of the effect of neighbourhood disadvantage on individual involvement in offending	133
Lieven Pauwels, PhD
Introduction and goal of the present study	133
1 Theoretical framework	134
1.1 Social disorganisation and the Chicago School	134
1.2 Shaw and McKay and the theory of neighbourhood disorganisation	135
2 Criticisms of the classic model of neighbourhood disorganisation	137
3 Testing social disorganisation theory as an aggregate level theory	139

8		Social Analysis of Security
4	Some previous contextual studies of adolescent offending	141
5	The situational action theory as integrated framework in the study of the neighbourhood context of adolescent offending	142
6	A multi-methodological approach to the study of offending in an urban context	144
7	The Antwerp Youth Survey	144
8	Hypotheses derived from the aggregate level model of social disorganization	146
9	Hypotheses derived from the contextual model of social disorganisation	147
10	Measurement of key concepts	149
11	Results	151
11.1	Neighbourhood deprivation, social disorganisation and juvenile offender rates	151
11.2	Neighbourhood deprivation, social disorganisation and individual involvement in offending	154
12	New challenges for the ongoing study of neighbourhood effects on offending	159
13	Neighbourhood studies within the institutional context of the research unit Social Analysis of Security	162
8	Collective efficacy and fear of crime in the Flemish region – Looking back on the results and a preview of additional research	167
	Wim Hardyngs, PhD
	Introduction	167
1	A multilevel study of collective efficacy, victimisation and fear of crime	167
1.1	Preliminary considerations	167
1.2	Origin and meaning of collective efficacy	169
1.3	The measuring of collective efficacy	172
1.4	The data sets	174
1.5	Results	178
1.6	Interpretation of the results and policy relevance	180
2	Opportunities for additional research	184
2.1	Optimisation of the measurement instrument	184
2.2	Studying different levels of aggregation	185
2.3	Understanding cross-level interaction between individuals and settings	185
2.4	Theoretical integration and the measurement of actual exposure	186
2.5	Towards a longitudinal design	188
2.6	A better understanding of the socially differentiated nature of fear of crime	188

3	Research Unit Social Analysis of Security	189
3.1	Theoretical importance	189
3.2	Methodological importance	191
3.3	Word of thanks	192
	Appendix 1. Operationalisation avoidance behaviour	198
	Appendix 2. Operationalisations macro model	199
	Appendix 3. Operationalisations cross-level model	200
	Appendix 4. The 3-R Model of Wikström & Sampson (2003)	202
9	Interpreting the play and rethinking the script – How adolescent victims cope with their victimisation experience of violence or property crime	203
	Gerwinde Vynckier, PhD
	Introduction	203
1	Theoretical backdrop	204
1.1	Coping strategies	204
1.2	Role of situation, the victim and others	207
2	This study	209
3	Results: interpretations and thoughts of the victim	212
3.1	Some preliminary remarks	212
3.2	Cognitive coping with the incident	212
3.3	Factors influencing coping	219
4	Discussion and conclusion: interpretations and thoughts of the academic	222
4.1	Some reflections on the results	222
4.2	Some reflections of a researcher working within a research unit focused on the social analysis of security	226
10	Constructions and sources of people's perception of safety – Toward an alternative approach to understand a relative phenomenon	233
	Evelien Van denHerrewegen, PhD
	Introduction	233
1	The Traditional Approach	234
2	Interpretative approach: social constructionism	236
3	Research design	238
4	Constructions of perception of safety	240
4.1	Unforeseen perception of safety	241
4.2	Irregular perception of safety	241
4.3	Habitual perception of safety	242
4.4	Manageable perception of safety	243
5	Sources of perception of safety	243
5.1	The importance of identity and interaction	244

5.2	Stable and unstable perceptions of safety	245
5.3	Problematic or non-problematic perception of safety	248
6	Conclusion	252
11	Explaining and preventing distrust in the criminal justice system – A combined quantitative and qualitative approach	257
	Anjuli Van Damme, candidate PhD and Lieven Pauwels, PhD
	Introduction: the aim of the PhD study	258
1	Previous research	259
2	Structure of the PhD study	260
3	Theoretical framework	260
3.1	The role of municipality level characteristics	261
3.2	The role of background characteristics	262
3.3	The role of social capital	263
3.4	The role of feelings of discontent	264
4	Measuring distrust in the criminal justice system	265
5	Policy implications	266
6	Trust in the criminal justice system and the research unit Social Analysis of Security	266
	PART III PUBLIC & PRIVATE POLICING	271
12	Craftsmanship is mastery – About the need to professionalise police leadership	273
	Sofie De Kimpe, PhD
	Introduction	273
1	‘Professionalisation’, a problem?	274
1.1	The professionalism concept	274
1.2	Professionalisation: an approach to the discourse	275
1.3	The discipline development process	277
2	Once upon a time	279
2.1	Research into the profile and discourse of the chief constable of the local police	279
2.2	Methodology	279
2.3	Dominant accounts and discourses	281
2.4	Highlighted from the discourse: professionalisation of police leadership	284
3	Back to the present	287
3.1	Need for professionalisation of police leadership	287
3.2	Themes of professionalisation	289
3.3	Professionalisation methods	290
4	Conclusion	291

13	Training police investigative interview competences – An interpersonal approach	295
	Lotte Smets, PhD
	Introduction	295
1	Interpersonal interview competences	296
1.1	The unique nature of police interviews	296
1.2	Evidenced based interview techniques	297
2	The coaching research	298
2.1	Two new training procedures	298
2.2	Participants	299
2.3	Design	300
2.4	Hypotheses	302
2.5	Method	303
3	Results	305
3.1	The general additional value of individual coaching	305
3.2	The development of personally coached competences	307
4	Discussion	309
4.1	The general additional value of personal coaching	309
4.2	The evolution of personally coached competences	310
4.3	The application of coaching to interview training practices	311
5	Policing and coaching	313
14	Mind the Gap – Changes in social control and two decennia of community-oriented policing and local governance of crime	317
	Tom Van den Broeck, PhD
	Introduction	317
1	The social control perspective	318
2	Improving police community relations through more and sustainable contact?	321
3	New forms of social control: synergy or fragmentation?	323
4	The dialectics of partnership: connection or absorption?	325
5	Legitimacy of policing and citizen's trust and involvement in policing	327
6	Two decennia of changes in social control reconsidered	328
	Postscript	330
15	What does one expect from the police? The police service as a caretaker of safety or an emergency call service?	333
	Isabel Verwee, PhD and Els Enhus, PhD
	Introduction	333
1	Studying the role of the police	334
2	Methodology: A qualitative inductive research	336
3	The expectations of the respondents toward the police	338

3.1	Introduction	338
3.2	Behaviour	338
3.3	Tasks	339
3.4	Contact	340
3.5	The construction of police roles inspired by Cooley's interaction frameworks	340
4	Discussion	350
16	A swelling culture of control? The genesis and the application of the law on incivilities in Belgium	355
	Elke Devroe, PhD
1	Introduction	355
2	The problem issue: the central research question	356
3	Methodology: the case study with multi-method approach	358
4	The context of the incivility law in Belgium	359
5	The policy presumptions	360
6	Stakeholders	360
6	Criminological theories	360
7	The involvement of scientific research	361
8	The governance of incivilities in Antwerp and Liège	361
9	Conclusion	362
17	The discretionary powers of operational police officers – Case study of decision-making process in the deprivation of personal freedom	369
	Fien Gilleir, PhD and Marleen Easton, PhD
	Introduction	369
1	The application of coercion by the police: a grey area with daggers drawn?	370
2	Context of the research against the background of scientific disciplines and in (inter)national literature	373
3	The design of the empirical research in a nutshell	375
4	Some preliminary findings	378
5	Reflection	380
18	Explaining growth in the private security industry – The multifacet model	383
	Stefanie Van der Burght, candicate PhD
	Introduction	383
1	The changing role of the government	384
1.1	Marketisation through partnerships	385
1.2	Citizen's responsibility	386
2	Democracy or not?	386

Table of contents	13
3	Causing technological progress	386
3.1	Technological and financial complexity	386
3.2	An international and global perspective	388
3.3	A general prosperity	389
4	Responding to current demands	391
4.1	The police	391
4.2	The criminal justice system	394
5	Research initiatives	394
6	Concluding thoughts	395
PART IV PAST AND FUTURE OF SOCIAL ANALYSIS OF SECURITY		403
19	Toward a modern criminological theatre play: the door to theoretical development in police science	405
	Els Enhus, PhD
	Preface	405
	Introduction	406
1	Police science: a traditional theatre play	406
2	Facilities matter	408
3	Multidimensional thinking: more levels in the theatre play	410
	Conclusion	413
20	An intellectual spin-off in the public-private security management training partnership debate	417
	Marc Cools, PhD
	Introduction	417
1	Recent history: the permanent collaboration platform for corporate security	418
2	Paul Ponsaers and his research on private security	419
3	The Higher Studies Police, Justice & Corporate Security	420
4	Looking into the future	421
5	Conclusion	423
21	Social Analysis of security, an epilogue	425
	Antoinette Verhage, PhD and Lieven Pauwels, PhD
1	The need for an ongoing study of the key issues that characterised the research unit SVA	426
2	The changes in the current research climate	427
3	Publish (in English) or perish: issues on the obliteration of academic mankind	428
	Het groene gras	433

About the author

435