

P. C. Meeting Will Consider Race Problem

"Encyclicals and Negro" Theme Of Gathering Here On Sunday

HEARING SCHEDULED

Noted Catholics of Two Races
Will Participate in Discussions at College

Outstanding members of the white and negro races from this city and New York will meet at the Catholic Interracial Conference in Harkins Hall next Sunday afternoon to discuss "The Encyclicals and the Negro."

Dr. Hudson J. Oliver, noted Harlem medical authority, will conduct a "congressional hearing" in an attempt to solve the Negro problem. Assisting him as judges will be Shuyler N. Warren of New York City, a member of the board of the Catholic Interracial Council, and Dr. Harry McNeill, professor of psychology at Fordham University, New York.

Charles Houston, former dean at Howard University, Washington, and now attorney for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, will present the negro interpretation of the racial problem. Rev. John LaFarge, S.J., associate editor of "America" and author of "Interracial Justice" will uphold the white man's side of the issue. George K. Hunton and Gerard L. Carroll will be defense and prosecuting attorneys.

At the conclusion of the hearing, the Rev. Edward Hughes, O.P., editor of "The Torch," will address the delegates and guests on the life of Blessed Martin de Porres.

Student Meeting

Students representing invited colleges will present papers on various aspects of interracial justice. Prizes will be awarded to the authors of the best papers. Professor Fred J. Donovan of the R. I. College of Education faculty will head the committee which will judge the essays.

Colleges sending delegates to the conference include, besides Providence College, Albertus Magnus, New Haven; Assumption, Worcester; Emmanuel, Boston College, and Regis, Boston; Holy Cross, Worcester; Rivier, Hudson, N. H.; and St. Joseph's, Hartford.

Most Reverend Francis P. Keough, Bishop of Providence, heads the list of invited guests.

Ticket Sale Begins For "Friar Away"

Seats for April Show Will Be Sold in Rotunda and Bandroom

Tickets for "Friar Away," this year's "edition" of the annual student musical comedy, will go on sale next Monday at the rotunda and in the bandroom, Raymond A. Baker, '38, business manager of the production, announced yesterday. The show will continue to rehearse with a double cast of 20 students for at least another week.

"Friar Away" will run in Harkins Hall on the evenings of the April 26, 27, 28, and 29. Reserved seat tickets are priced at $.75 and ordinary seats will be $.50.

Those serving on the ticket committee are Vincent T. Aniello, '38, chairman, William Dolan, '39, Charles McConnell, '40, and Walter Boyle, '39.

INTRAMURALS CLOSE WEDNESDAY

A hectic intramural basketball season will come to a close next Wednesday night when the final set of games will be played. In the feature game of the evening, Guzman Hall and the Freshmen quintets, who are at present tied for first place, will clash for the intramural title.

Due to the conflict with baseball, football, and other extra-curricular activities it has been found impossible to conclude the schedule.

Debaters Close N. E. Road Trip Today at Orono

Victorious Last Night at Colby;
Beat Bowdoin Tuesday;
B. U. No Decision

(Special Wire to the Cowl)

By John H. Fanning, '38
WATERVILLE, ME., Mar. 17, 11:30 p. m.—Walter F. Gibbons, '39 Timothy R. Crawley, '38, and John H. Fanning, '38, defeated the Colby debating team in a discussion of the National Labor Relations Board question here tonight. The Providence College group also defeated Bowdoin College Tuesday night.

A no-decision debate was held in Boston on Monday afternoon with Boston University and another will be held at Orono, Me., tomorrow afternoon. The Colby debaters were Marble Thayer, Fletcher Eaton, and Kenneth Bickford.

The party, comprising Albert E. Paine, '38, John H. Fanning, '38, Timothy R. Crawley, '38, and Walter F. Gibbons, '39, left Providence by auto Monday at noon and will return late Saturday or Sunday. They are accompanied by the Rev. A. P. Regan, O.P., faculty Moderator of Debating.

The question in all the debates is "Resolved: That the National Labor Relations Board Be Empowered to Enforce Arbitration in All Labor Disputes." In the Boston University Debate the Providence College men upheld the negative, while in the other two they have the affirmative.

Fanning and Paine spoke after Joseph B. Nadolsky, '38, and John Eccleston, '39, of Boston University.

Busy Week Planned

An intense schedule of activities is to be opened immediately upon the return of the touring party.

A signed contract for the return debate with the University of Maine to be held here at Providence College next Friday evening was received at the College late yesterday. The subject and the sides will be the same, and there will be a three-judge decision.

Four on "Naval Committee"

Four Providence College men will represent the "Committee on Naval Affairs" when the U. S. Model Congress convenes at Rhode Island State College, Kingston, on April 7 and 8. They will debate the question "Resolved: That the United States Maintain a Navy Equal to the World's Strongest." Michael A. Coyne, '39, and Robert C. Healey, '39, will support the proposition, while Norman J. Carignan, '39, and John H. Fanning, '38, will take the negative stand.

Eugene J. McElroy, '39, will deliver an after-dinner speech on a national topic.

To Judge High School Contests

Nine representatives of the Providence College Union will judge the finals of the New England Interscholastic Debate series to be held at B. M. C. Durfee High School, in Fall (Continued on Page 3, Col. 2)

Swaying Dance Couples Crowd Harkins Hall

St. Patrick's Dance Sponsored by Freshman Class Draws
Thousands

SHEAN'S BAND PLAYS

Large Harp Provides Seasonal Centerpiece for Frosh
Social Debut

Two hundred and twenty-five couples taxed the capacity of Harkins Hall last Wednesday night as they danced to the music of Earl Shean and his orchestra at the St. Patrick's Eve dance of the Freshman class, the first affair of its kind to be staged by the class of '41.

A green and white colored harp, the handiwork of Joseph Cavanagh, chairman of the committee on decorations, was the centerpiece and the main feature in the decorative scheme which also included shamrocks and green and white streamers.

The members of the committee and their guests were William A. Quirk and Betty Auch, Joseph Cavanagh and Dixie Leyward, John Keenan and Betty Chute, Kenneth McGovern and Jean Van Alstyne, Francis Greene and Barbara Lamphrey, Casimir Potera and Mary Smith, Charles McGovern and Della Readle, Milton Krevolin and Virginia Van Wyte, Beryl Sack and Kay Lovett, Matthew Gallagher and Rosewater Tierney, Charles Avedesian and Joan Cross, James Pettine and Phyllis Riley, Albert Marchetti and Gloria Yappelli, Charles Sweeney and Bette Farnsworth, William Danahy and Charlotte Dolan, Paul Dunn and Margot Carter, Richard Blake and Dorothy Nolan, and Henry Grey and Doris Thornton.

FR. FITZGERALD TALKS TO IRISH SOCIETIES

The Rev. Jeremiah T. Fitzgerald, O.P., vice-president of the College, was one of the principal speakers at the annual dinner of the Elmwood Daughters and Sons of Erin which took place last Sunday evening at the Narragansett Hotel. His subject was "The Catholic Church."

During the course of his speech Father Fitzgerald expressed the opinion that Irishmen, who "are God's internationalists, offer hope to the troubled world because the Irish race has not lost its hope or its Christ."

Speaking again on Tuesday night in Pawtucket, Father Fitzgerald stated that present conditions in Europe may lead to the sending of Irish teachers over Europe to rekindle the torch of religion and learning as they did in the Dark Ages.

Saga of a Name—Or the Evolution of "Friar Away," '38 Musical Comedy

How The Coming Production
Finally Emerges From A Welter of Names

A musical comedy by any other name, it seems, would not pack them in quite so tightly. At least, the script committee of the forthcoming musical at Providence College is convinced that there is something in a name.

The plot, if any, of the production was conceived and the entire book written weeks ago. But the fledgling was as yet unnamed. Rehearsals were begun. Still no name. The situation was verging on the desperate. Great heads bowed in thought, great brows became furrowed. Names were produced, all right, but none of them

State to Appropriate $5000 Yearly for P.C.

ALEMBIC OUT TODAY
It was stated last night at the office of the printer that copies of the Alembic, College literary magazine, will be at the College for distribution sometime this afternoon. This is the third issue of the book.

Juniors Engage Shaw's Band For Promenade

Will Play at Biltmore Ballroom
On Evening of
May 9

Arrangements for the Junior Prom neared completion this week as negotiations were closed with Art Shaw and his orchestra, and the Biltmore Hotel ballroom was engaged for the evening of Monday, May 9. James J. Gallogly, chairman of the Prom committee, declared that the favor will also be chosen within the next two weeks.

Gallogly also announced that installments on the ticket for the annual affair would be accepted by the members of his committee and the officers of the class. These include J. Lawrence Hall, Joseph P. Martellino, Joseph T. Baldwin, Edward M. Burke, Robert C. Healey, Eugene J. McElroy, and Daniel F. Murphy. The installment system of payment is being tried this year in order to aid the committee in estimating the probable attendance, and to lessen the culmination of expenses in Junior Week.

Art Shaw's orchestra is generally regarded as one of the outstanding swing units in the world of dance music. This year will see him attending to establish his claims as heir apparent to the throne of the "King of Swing." Shaw, possibly the leading swing clarinetist in the nation, has played at collegiate functions in practically all of the Greater Boston schools, including Harvard, MIT, and Wellesley.

Events leading up to the climactic Prom are being rapidly made ready by the various Junior Week committees. The members of the class have been requested by the several chairmen to inform them of their contemplated attendance at the respective functions of the week. Final arrangements can not be completed until some idea of the support which will be accorded to the Week's affairs is received.

NEW ACT IN HOUSE

Law Provides for Establishing Post-Graduate Courses in Education

The bill providing for the annual appropriation of $5000 for the establishment of post-graduate courses in education at the College was reported out of committee in the State Senate late Wednesday afternoon and was immediately passed in concurrence on a unanimous vote. At the same time Rep. Napoleon J. Maynard of Pawtucket introduced into the House of Representatives an act under which an additional $5000 would be appropriated annually for scholarships in public education courses. It is expected that the second will meet with the same favorable action as the first.

The act passed Wednesday provides that the "State Department of Education . . . provide, in cooperation with Providence College suitable post-graduate courses in . . . Education at said College . . . and that the State Department of Education is authorized to appoint persons . . . to pursue such courses." It is to take effect July 1 of this year.

Approved by the House of Representatives early in February, the bill was sent to the Senate and referred to the committee on finance on Feb. 11. Sen. Edward J. Fenelon, Dem., of Westerly, heads the committee.

Text of Law

The complete text of the act follows:

IN AMENDMENT OF AND IN ADDITION TO CHAPTER 81 OF THE GENERAL LAWS, ENTITLED "OF STATE BENEFICIARIES AT CERTAIN INSTITUTIONS OF LEARNING," AS AMENDED.

SECTION 1. Chapter 84 of the general laws entitled "Of State beneficiaries at certain institutions of learning," as amended, is hereby further amended by adding thereto the following sections:

"Sec. 18. The state department of education is hereby authorized to provide, in co-operation with Providence College suitable post-graduate courses of instruction in said college in the principles and practice of education designed to prepare students for positions as superintendents of public schools and high school teachers and principals."

"Sec. 19. The state department of education is hereby authorized to appoint persons of proper age, character and acquirements who desire to become teachers, principals, or superintendents in the public schools of this state to state schools."

Kent County Alumni To Boost College

Will Hold Dance in West Warwick on May 5; Hear Hugh Devore Speak

At a supper meeting of the Providence College Club of Kent County held Monday night at the Progressive Club, Natick, a committee was appointed to acquaint prospective college students from Kent County with the benefits of Providence College. During a brief business session, tentative plans were made for a dance to be held at the West Warwick Country Club on May 5.

More than 50 members heard the Rev. Robert G. Quinn, O.P., urge wholehearted alumni support for all endeavors and activities of Providence College. Other speakers were Hugh Devore, new football coach; John Dulkie and Ed Crotty, his assistants, and Dr. Joseph E. Wittig of Arctic.

The committee includes Francis Mullen, Lawrence Moulou, John Kelly, Joseph McKee, William Flanagan, John McGivney, Francis O'Rourke and Philip Kelley.

In the Mail Bag

Dear Sirs:

A recent COWL editorial cited the necessity for the formation of a club. According to the editorial this proposed club would be, 1st, a representative Providence College group, not allied with any particular activity, but drawn from them all, and one which would be available to the authorities for work in any capacity. 2nd, its members should be intellectual representatives of high scholastic standing, should have a vibrant interest in the College, and should be actively participating in extra-curricular activities.

I, as president of the Friars Club, consider this editorial to be grossly unjust to the Friars Club in view of the assertion that such a club does not exist. To consider these qualifications individually: Are we not a representative group of Providence College? Have we not proffered our services to the College and to the authorities? Are we not intellectual representatives, approved by the Dean? Have not our actions shown us to have a vibrant interest in the College and in extra-curricular activity?

No student can honestly say that we do not live up to those qualifications. Class moderators and other officials at the College have been contacted individually and offered the services of the club should it ever be needed. We are available at all times to the authorities to work in any capacity. Our past work will show that we are willing and eager to serve the College. We do not offer to serve the college as representatives merely at conferences. We do that, but more, we are willing to do that which is off the intellectual plane, and it is for this reason that we have in the past been termed "laborers". We have done this so-called "labor". We are doing it now. We shall continue to do it. We only hope that this appellation, given in derision, truly designates the nature of our efforts in behalf of the College. Would that more were as faithful.

The editorial cited cases where the College should have been represented and was not. The Friars Club would have been pleased to have sent representatives to these conferences; representatives that would be scholastically proficient and intellectually suited, but we were not approached on the subject. Was it because we were deemed incapable? If so, why were not suitable representatives selected from the student body? It certainly is not necessary that they be members of a club to be eligible.

I do not hold that the formation of such a club would be worthless, but I do sincerely object to the obvious implication that there is not now in existence, a representative group which fulfills all these qualifications.

We are the object of much criticism. Most of this criticism is based upon the false assertion that our membership is politically determined. I can but offer vehement denial to this malicious allegation. I cannot answer for the club in past years, but it is now, in no way influenced by any form of politics. Our members are chosen on the basis of scholarship, personality and activity. There can, in my estimation, be no better criteria of selection. Those who steadfastly maintain that the club is basically political are but exhibiting their ignorance of the principles upon which the club is founded, and lay themselves open to the suspicion that their criticism springs from purely personal sources. From the student body, I ask only cooperation and not derision. If there be criticism, may it be constructive and not destructive. Be for the Friars Club for the College. It represents you!

Sincerely yours,

T. Casey Moher, '38, President.

(The Cowl is grateful to Mr. Moher for the enlightening letter in re: the Friars Club. We have been labor-

Cowl Editorials

THURSDAY AT NOON!

Two years ago, after insistent demand of faculty and students, a period on Thursday was set off for assemblies, meetings, etc. It was not to be a free period nor to be regarded as a free period. Attendance at all events scheduled for that time was to be strictly obligatory.

Now after two years we believe that some realignment of this program is necessary. From one angle no noticeable attempt has been made to present a consistent program of intelligently planned assemblies. At the only time during the week in which the College can unite we should have, and we deserve, assemblies expressly planned to give the student cultural expansion. Prominent speakers should give talks on vital topics. Interesting features, moving pictures, etc., could at the same time please and educate. But always the fact that the audience is a student group must be kept in mind.

Student cooperation in the matter of these assembly periods is notoriously lax. It is the common practice to walk off after the final class of the morning, whether or not there is an assembly or class meeting. Nominally, there is a penalty for this offense of losing all cuts but at present this penalty is not universally applied. Absence from an assembly or class meeting, except for a grave reason, should be subject to stricter penalty, and until it is strictly and indiscriminately applied we will not have a profitable assembly period. In fact, we would recommend its abolishment next year if we did not believe that an intelligent program of assemblies—three general assemblies each month and one class meeting—could succeed. With good planning by the College authorities, and student attendance, backed but not forced by the application of very strict penalties the assembly period could render very profitable service.

DO IT NOW —

Lent is in its third week, yet we have seen no considerable increase in attendance at the chapel, either for Mass in the morning or for visits during the day. It would be highly gratifying if this could be attributed to the high attendance throughout the year, but such certainly, and sadly, is not the case. The student body as a whole is simply not observing at the College the extra acts of devotion which are expected during this Holy Season. We doubt that it is observing them elsewhere.

It may be true that virtually every member of the student body is practicing some act of self-denial—no smoking, no confessions, no movies, no dances, etc. We have no quarrel with marking Lent in this manner. These acts of self-denial are excellent training for the will, and are indicative of the best possible intentions.

But they are not to be confused in importance with the devotion we should have to the Mass and to the Blessed Sacrament. It is deplorable that there should be such general negligence in this regard on the part of Providence College students. When the practice of their religion is probably easier now than it ever will be again for them.

Mass is celebrated for the students on the main altar of the chapel at 7, 7:30 and 8:15. If there were any demand for it, we are certain that these hours could be adjusted, although at present they seem most convenient. Why not daily attendance at Mass? The priests of the College are always ready to hear confession. Why not daily reception of the Holy Eucharist? The chapel is open all day, and every student has some free time. Why not at least one visit to say the Beads or the Stations?

WHY NOT DO IT NOW?

ing too, but laboring under a misapprehension; for we took the word of last year's Veritas: "The purpose of the organization can best be expressed in the slogan of the Friars Club: 'Welcome the coming; speed the parting guest.'" We presume this was written by a member of the Friars Club. If there have been innovations this year we had not been informed. We presumed that the Friars Club was still operating (if they resent the term "laboring" with the College as the scene of its activities. We did not know that the club was also a travelling unit. Again we thank Mr. Moher.

But we are taking our turn at resenting: "... vehement denial to this malicious allegation." We resent the accusation. We did not make any allegation against the Friars Club. We merely stated that Providence College needs a representative group ready to serve it as peripatetic intelligencia, and already serving it in other varied extra-curricular activities. It seems strange that Mr. Moher should read into our editorial reflections upon the methods of selecting members followed by the Friars Club. Ed. Note.)

Uncle Peter Overlooks The Alumni

(Note—The president of the alumni will address you this week. He came through splendidly; so fine in fact, that Uncle Pete will have to divide his interesting discourse in parts, and present the second section next week. I'm off to see Myrna Loy—will be back in two weeks.)

Mr. Lyons Speaks

Well, Uncle Peter finally cornered me and inveigled me into promising to take over his corner and say a few words to the alumni. This was entirely his idea. He tried to convince me that having guest contributors would stimulate interest in The Cowl and that the alumni would like to hear from their president.

Never having written so much as a line for publication, I held out as long as I could, but after putting him on the carpet for a few things two weeks ago, he floored me by challenging me to try my hand at putting my ideas in printed form. Being naturally stubborn because of an inherent racial characteristic I took up the challenge. So here goes.

15 Years Young

This year the association celebrates the fifteenth anniversary of the first graduating class. For the first time in our brief history, we will have three classes celebrating their five year reunions. Fifteen years is a long time in any man's life, but in the history of an organization such as ours, it is but the beginning. Up to now we have been lacking in numbers and well established members to show our real strength. But from this year on I think that we should be heard from.

There are many members of our organization who can see no value in active participation in the association. Personally, I think they are short-sighted. In the first place, we owe it to our Alma Mater to show an active interest in what she is doing. Many say they are strong supporters although they do not belong to the association. To my mind the best way to show that support is by active participation in the affairs of the alumni. Many of us would never have had an education if it weren't for Providence College. We needed Providence College and now she needs us.

Social vs. Business

Then on the other hand we can't lose sight of the business possibilities in the alumni association. There are enough capable P. C. men in all the professions to handle our needs in a capable manner. They deserve your patronage and you are only doing the right thing when you make it your business to seek a P. C. man when you need professional service. In addition to this, a better alumni organization would help the younger fellow get a start and keep the older fellow going.

Of course the social possibilities are well known and for many years that's about all the alumni association has meant to many. The social activities have their place but they should be subordinated to the real aims of the group.

Quotable Quotes

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

"It is probably the prevailing conservatism of our colleges and universities which is in large part responsible for their reputation for radicalism. Far from being red, or even liberal, they are, on the whole, strongholds of conservatism and important agencies in maintaining the status quo." University of Michigan's Pres. Alexander Ruthven believes this conservatism should "give grave concern to every person interested in human welfare."

"Good English is that which will pass current in any part of the English speaking world, will please cultivated listeners and will not disclose too much native or geographical origins." This new definition of Northwestern University's Ralph Dennis is a speech standardizer.

"There is only one way to provide a university education for the promising youths who are now debarred by economic and geographic factors, and that is by a generous subsidy—by large scholarships or by providing opportunities for earning a sizeable amount of money." Harvard's Chemist-Pres. James Bryant Conant voices the hopes of many a present and prospective collegian.

Dr. Robert Gordon Sproul, president of the University of California, maintains that "our educational institutions today are pioneering in a strange and unfamiliar world, and the old charts are no longer altogether reliable guides."

Dr. Sproul said: "The present problem is the continual adjustment of our institutions to the needs of a new age. But even the changes that may be made now to meet the needs of our constantly changing national life are no assurance that additional needs will not have to be met later."

Naval Man Speaks To Seniors Here

"Navy Wings" Will be Presented in Auditorium Friday, March 25

Nearly a score of students heard Lieutenant John J. Shea of the Naval Reserve Aviation Base at Squantum, Mass., as he pointed out the opportunities offered College graduates in the United States Aviation Corps, here Wednesday noon. Lieut. Shea briefly explained the daily routine followed by the aviation students during their four year course.

Plans for the showing of the motion picture, "Navy Wings," on Friday night, March 25, were announced. Lieut. Shea brought greetings from General Duffy of the Class of '37 who is pursuing the aviation course at Pensacola, Florida.

Seven Ribbons Are Awarded

College Mascot Adjudged Best In Show Sunday at Infantry Hall

Friar Boy II, Dalmatian coach dog and mascot of the College, made a clean sweep in his class at the annual dog show sponsored by the American Kennel Club at Infantry Hall last Saturday night. Seven ribbons, indicative of his superiority in several classes, were awarded Friar Boy II by the judges.

Three of the blue ribbons were for general excellence, stance, and structure. "Another 'first place' went to the Dalmatian for being the best of his breed. Friar Boy II was adjudged third best of the non-sporting dogs, and a winner in his class. All of these previous honors were topped when all the winners of the evening were grouped together and Friar Boy was awarded the blue ribbon for being the best of the winners.

Friar Boy II was presented to the college by the Friars Club to replace Friar Boy I who died last year. Friar Boy II is a product of the What-Ho Kennels of New York State.

Yearbook Goes To Press Soon

Spinnler Now Collecting Monies From Seniors; Hopes to Finish Early

The Veritas, Providence College yearbook, will go to press the early part of next week according to the editors, John A. Graham and Daniel J. O'Connor. A local printer has been contracted and will begin work as soon as copy and engravings are ready.

The book as conceived at present will contain many more pages than last year's edition and will be found in an attractive and novel cover. Students have been invited to submit informal pictures of themselves and several interesting pages will be formed from these. The Rev. William R. Clark, O. P., and Rev. John T. McGregor, O. P., moderator of the book, have been engaged throughout the past week in taking pictures of class officers, committees and clubs.

William C. Spinnler, assistant business manager of the Veritas, is conducting a drive to collect from the Seniors and underclassmen their payments on the book.

On behalf of the faculty and the student body, the Moderator and staff of The Cowl extend their heartfelt sympathy to Sanford I. Litchman, '38, upon the death of his mother.

IONE REED, Hollywood stunt girl, after a hazardous feat, asked for a Camel. And that led to the question: "Do you have definite reasons for preferring Camels to other cigarettes, Miss Reed?"

HERE'S MISS REED'S ANSWER: "Yes, I certainly have. Camels are different in so many ways. Going through my stunts over and over is a severe test of healthy nerves. I smoke Camels all through the day, and my nerves don't feel the least bit frayed. Being so mild, Camels are gentle to my throat too. After a meal, I enjoy Camels—for digestion's sake. You see—in so many ways, Camels agree with me."

FOR RECREATION Miss Reed likes cooking...dancing...outdoor sports. And Camels! "Hollywood seems to prefer Camels," she says. "I notice so many of the stars smoking them."

DARING? Yes! Foolhardy? No! Ione Reed knows what she's doing. And she smokes Camels, because, as she says: "It means a lot to me to know that my cigarette agrees with me!"

Millions of other people find that Camels give them what they want in smoking! Men and women in all walks of life say: "Camels agree with me!" If you are not now enjoying Camels, perhaps you, too, will find as others have, that it means a lot to smoke Camels—the cigarette that is made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS, Turkish and Domestic.

"What cigarette do the tobacco growers smoke themselves?"

"Camels — by a large majority," say planters who know the kinds of tobacco bought by each popular cigarette

T. N. Williams, well-known grower of Winchester, Kentucky, says: "A planter knows tobacco. My last crop was the best I ever had and the Camel people bought my best leaf tobacco. There isn't any question where the more expensive tobaccos go. They're in Camel cigarettes."

"I'm a planter," says Vertner Hutton, who has grown tobacco for 25 years. "Camel brought the best leaf tobacco of my last crop. Paid a high price for my finest grades. I smoke Camels — because I know there isn't any substitute for more expensive tobaccos."

Top prices, that's what J. B. Jackson, successful planter, got from the Camel buyer last year. "Camel buyers don't buy just any tobacco — they pay more to get the best. That means finer tobaccos are used for Camels. I say quality has got to be grown in tobacco. That's why I smoke Camels."

You know, most of the guys figure that the library, next to the cafeteria is one of the best spots in school. Of course, it hasn't got the scenery that the caf has but that's alright. If the library has only books and clean floors for scenery, so what? It sure lacks that old appeal to sight and smell but the guys that hang out there sure are hot stuff. That's what makes it such a swell place to study in for the exam.

You know, it says on the sign that the library is the place to read but that they'll let you do your homework provided you're a good boy and keep your mouth shut. But none of the boys believe in signs. Do you believe everything you read?

The big thing about the studying in the library is that variety's the spice of life. You know darn well that it'd be a bloody shame to have to spend the whole free period doing nothing but reading in the library.
No, a little diversion to round a guy
out. For instance, sitting there reading for the logic exam the guy at the table in back'll say, "So I says to her, listen woman, I don't take none a that from you—". See, and then you think about the guy's babe, see.
Ya wonder what color hair she's got and whether she's made in circles or squares. A little variety.
Take a guy's mind off his troubles.
Then, for instance, the guy at the table in front'll be talking about why the flivver wouldn't start. He'll say,
"I'd a heck of a lot rather have a chevy any day in the week." And then you laugh when you think of the poor sap cranking the thing at midnight last night.

Sure the sign says for the guys to keep quiet but that's only so some

JUST BETWEEN US

L. S. SIPERSTEIN

THE FUTURE (?) OF INTRAMURALS

Last week this corner received counter protests concerning the Friar-Cowl game in the intramural basketball league played a week ago last Wednesday. Frankly we're out on the proverbial limb as to how to cope with the situation.

The crux of the issue is to whom can we turn for a satisfactory settlement. There's no official board of directors here for the simple reason that the league was organized solely by and is being conducted solely by a few members of the sports staff of The Cowl who have been willing to put in the time and effort so that a greater number of students may be able to derive some benefit from athletics at Providence College.

The league is on anything but a firm basis. Sponsored by The Cowl, and with its success contingent only upon the good will of league members and the enthusiasm of the student body, it now has reached the state where unless the athletic association of the College gives intramural sports the place it deserves, the program will cease to exist. At the present writing, the league is unable to meet the challenge of these protests.

During the past year we have conducted intramural basketball here with a fair amount of success. This form of athletic competition was heartily endorsed by student body and faculty alike. The student body is still enthusiastic, for practically every team in the league can field two or more complete fives with little or no difficulty. Competition has been and still is keen. But unless official action is taken soon intramural sports appear doomed.

We advocate some kind of board, appointed by the athletic association, to govern and direct intramural athletics. In the hands of this board we would place the responsibility of drawing up schedules and settling any disputes that should arise during the course of competition. In turn the leagues would abide by the decisions of this board as final.

We've done everything we could possibly do to place the present intramural basketball league on a sure footing. But because of lack of co-operation and because of the demands of the many extra-curricular activities we have found it impossible to accomplish our purpose. This year only one night a week was allotted for intramural basketball. It feels, as does the majority of the student body, that this is insufficient.

Many will point to the lack of facilities at our disposal. True, we are handicapped by this. But, if the proper authorities viewed intramural athletics in the light they should be considered, there is, we believe, positively no reason why at least two nights a week should not be devoted to this form of athletic competition. The student body is highly in favor of it, and there is no reason why the average student, who is not an outstanding athlete, should not be given an opportunity to participate in sports.

Softball League

During the past few weeks we have been approached by many members of the student body with a request that we form an excellent idea. But we are sorry to notify them that it is impossible here and now for us to form a softball league, as much as we would like to; it is too large an

"Dutch" Clark Greatest Performer In Pro Circuit, Says Hank Soar

Pro Football is Tougher Than College Ball: Soar Praises Joe McGee

By L. S. SIPERSTEIN

If the Washington Redskins hadn't defeated the New York Giants in the playoff for the National Pro football title, Hank Soar, Providence College's contribution to professional football, would have picked up between $1200 and $1300 for post season games.

That's what Hank told me a few days ago when I talked with him at Joe McGee's downtown garage where he is working as a floorman during the off season for his former coach and friend. Soar took time out from his work while we chatted about pro football and reminisced about his exploits.

"Pro football is much tougher than college ball. It's their livelihood and don't let anyone tell you the boys are just going through the motions. When they tackle, block, or carry the old pigskin, they put everything they have into it. They're not kidding. When you're tackled, you know it and you feel it. The pros hit much harder and play much smarter football than the average college player. Ten or twenty yards gained rushing in pro ball is equal to 60 or 70 yards in college ball."

Blocking Important

He also pointed out the important part that blocking, timing and speed play in pro football. For a play to click the blocking and timing must be perfect. Otherwise the defensive team is in on you and you're on the bottom of the pile before you even figure out what it's all about. If you want to stay up with the lads who play for a weekly pay check, you've got to play smart, hard football every minute you're in the game, carrying endeavor for a few students to undertake without some sort of cooperation from the athletic association.

There are all kinds of facilities for a soft ball league. There are plenty of students who are anxious to play. We suggest that the athletic association recognize the need for intramural athletics and organize a soft ball league. Only when sanctioned, organized, and run by the athletic association will any form of intramural sports be conducted with any degree of success.

We think it the duty of the athletic association to provide the general student body with some form of sports in which they may participate and thus develop their bodies as well as their minds.

out your assignment to perfection practically every time, according to Hankus Pankus Soar who has scaled the pro gridiron heights during the past two years.

While talking about the various players and teams in the National Pro League, Soar said that Earl "Dutch" Clark, former All-American back from Colorado, of the Detroit Lions is the greatest football player he has ever played against or seen.

"Clark is unquestionably the greatest player in the circuit. That boy can do everything. He can kick, pass run, block, and tackle with the best of them. And he's also one of the smartest players, if not the smartest player, in pro football."

"When it comes to defensive football, Ed Bawrak, center, of the Pittsburgh Pirates and Turk Edwards, tackle, of the Washington Redskins get my votes. These two are in on practically every play that's run off. They're keen at diagnosing plays and they're tough to take out."

Praise for Many

Hank had considerable praise for many players he has performed with and against during his athletic career, a list which is too long to enumerate here. However, included in the group receiving commendation from Little Rhody's gridiron hero are Pard Pierce, coach of Pawtucket High; Joe McGee, his former boss at Providence College, and, his present coach, Steve Owen of the New York Giants.

Many of Hank's athletic exploits in high school and college were recalled, including that 13-6 triumph over Boston College a few years back. He still remembers the days when he was helping Pawtucket High capture championships in football, baseball, basketball, and soccer.

Soar's athletic activities are not confined solely to the gridiron. He is a natural athlete and has been playing the above mentioned sports, plus hockey, since his primary school days. Equally adept in all, football gained most of his attention and it was in this field that he was destined to spread the name of Providence College far and wide.

The one thing I noticed most about Hank Soar during our little chat was his modesty. He's still the same good-natured, easy-going athlete who cut a wide swath in local schoolboy sports circles and later in the New England college sports circuit. Yes, Hank Soar still wears the same size hat that he did before he rocketed to national prominence as a football player, and unless I'm a very poor judge of character, he intends to keep on wearing the same sized chapeau regardless of what further honors he may accumulate in years to come.

ALL-OPPONENT QUINTET

An All-Opponent five selected by the members of the Providence College varsity basketball team will be published next week on this page. This quintet will be the consensus of the Friar cagers, each member of the local squad handing in his All-Opponent selections. Players will be chosen purely on the merits of their play against Providence.

In the past several years players who have gained a place in the list of New England's high scorers have failed to make the team. Will Chet Jaworski, Ed Tashjian, Morry Fabricant, Harry Platt, "Soup" Campbell, Bernie Feigal, or Bill Thomas earn a position on this aggregation? For the answer to this question see next week's issue of The Cowl.

Friar Scoring Honors Taken By Crowley

Garner 160 Points; Captain Ed Bobinski Second With Total of 135 Markers

John "Wink" Crowley led the varsity scorers with a total of 160 points, leading Captain Ed Bobinski, second highest scorer, by 25 points. Joe Kwasniewski, sophomore, was third with 109 points. Leo Ploski garnered 88 points and Bill Spinner ran up a total of 63 points.

Crowley averaged 9.41 points per game, while Bobinski totaled 7.94 points per game. Kwasniewski's average is 6.41 per game.

Providence compiled 724 points against 770 for the opposition. The Friars' team average is 42.6 points per game, while their opponents registered 45.6 per game.

Varsity scorers are as follows:

COWL READER OFFERS POEM FOR HOLIDAY

Believing that Saint Patrick's day should not go unmarked in your columns, I offer the following humble tribute to the Saint.

Those familiar with the life of the glorious Apostle of Erin will remember that, due to the treachery of a friend, he met with great opposition when he was put up as a candidate for consecration to the bishopric and when he announced his intention of proceeding to Ireland, I have attempted to picture the dialogue that must have ensued between the saint and his opponents.

St. Patrick's Reply

"Oh, venture not in foreign land
Who knows what evil may befall?"
—"I feel the tug of Irish hand,
I hear the voice of Ireland call."

"The yoke of slavery you have borne;
Now dare you risk it once again?"
—"Though I be beaten, bruised and worn,
I shall not suffer this in vain."

"See, Patrick, how your parents age
And, near to death, grow thin and pale."
—"Should I remain it would presage
The death of souls in Innisfail."

"A worthier man the missions need,
For you stand self-confessed of sin."
—"May God forgive my one misdeed
And grant me Irish souls to win."

"Then go, succeed—though danger lurks—
For nothing can withstand such zeal."

"Not I, but Christ within me works,
The Faith in Irish hearts to seal."

—Robert Sullivan, '38.

Father Precourt Flays Euthanasia

Tells Nurses' Guild That Life is Inalienable Right of All Men

"The state has no more right than the private individual to approve or merely permit so-called mercy killings," asserted the Reverend Gerard Precourt, O.P., director of the Nurses' Guild, in an address on "Euthanasia" last Monday evening before that organization at Harkin's Hall.

"If we grant for the sake of argument that the champions of this doctrine are sincere, then we must conclude that they are governed by their emotions, or by mere sentimentality which is worse, rather than by right reason. They think that every moral difficulty may be removed by a fiction of the law, or that morality must give way to materialistic expediency," continued Father Precourt.

The Nurses' Guild is an organization composed of nurses attached to hospitals and of other social workers throughout the state. It seeks a solution to nurses' problems through the application of Thomistic philosophy. Miss Loretta McGinn, of the State Bureau of Child Hygiene, is president of the guild.

consists of grass drills, blocking for linemen, punting and passing for backs, tackling practice, signal drills, and sprints.

Several of last year's varsity and freshmen players have been shifted from one position to another. Notable among these are Capt. Gig Pariseau from halfback to guard, Jiray Avedisian from guard to tackle, Fred Domke from halfback to fullback, and Bill Carter from halfback to quarterback.

Coaches Devore, Crotty, and Dulkie have been assisted at practice by Tom Gammino, formerly of Notre Dame.

HOW "FRIAR AWAY" EVOLVED

reason, this idea also was abandoned.

Then, just before Cowl press time last week, a Pyramid Player representative dashed into the Cowl office, breathless (the representative, not the office, was out of breath) with the weight of his news. "Scoop, scoop. We got a name for it." The name proved to be "Prudence Takes a Holiday." According to the announcement of this excited young man then, the Cowl last week broke the news of the chosen name, "Prudence, etc."

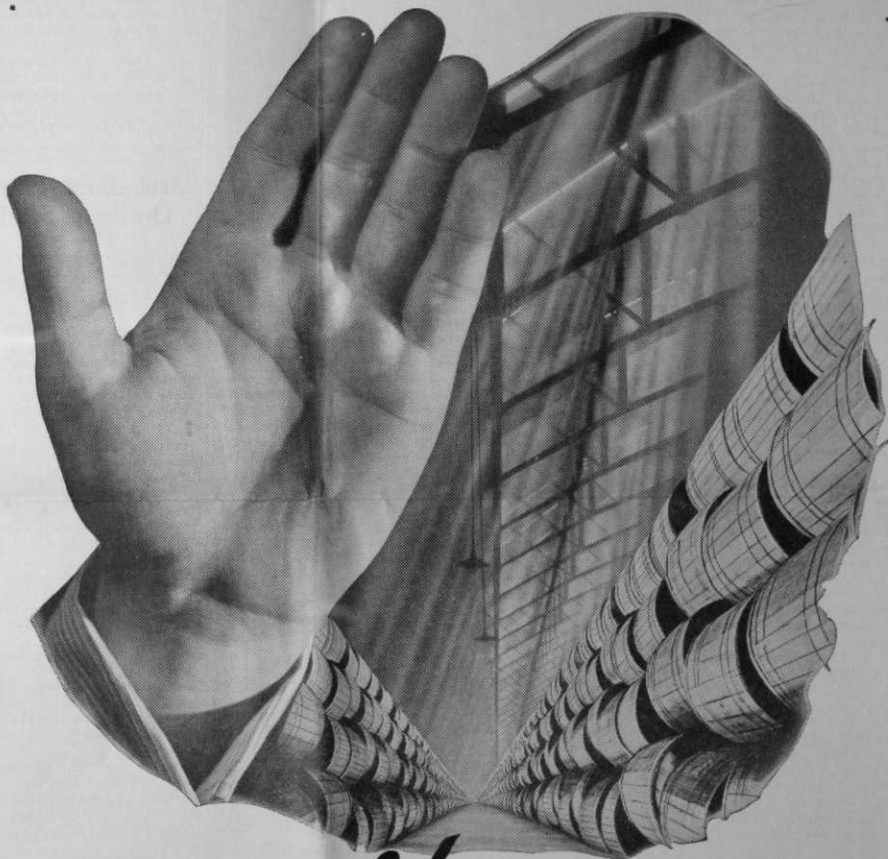

But The Cowl had not been on sale three hours the next morning when its "scoop" on the name was rendered null and void. For a certain well-dressed professor of English 402 came up out of no place with a "real musical comedy" title—namely and to wit, "Friar Away," and Prudence's holiday became a permanent vacation. So now The Cowl reports a new name for this production which evidently would not smell so sweet by any other name. But The Cowl reports this week with its fingers crossed. At press time, Thursday night, the name of the third annual musical comedy of the Pyramid Players was "Friar Away." What it will be as you sneak a look at this story during 8 o'clock class Friday morning nobody knows.
