The theme of the "Lord of the Flies" is that evil is inherent in the soul of man, and that the endeavors of civilized society are hampered and destroyed because of this imperection. ## Harvard Law Professor Speaks On Promotion of International Law

Baxter also spoke about the role of international law."

Professor Baxter explained there is already a good foundation for international law but that there are many problems which must be overcome such as the suspicion of the new nations toward international law which was mainly formed white they were still colonies and the reluctance of most nations, the United States included, to give up any sovereignty. Professor Baxter said that international law favored no one nation or group of nations and that it is, for the most part, neutral in character. Professor Baxter concluded by stating that all of these prob-lems must be approached with coolness, rationality, a full un-derstanding of the implications, and, most important, a sense of perspective, that is, we must realize that what is bad now

MEMO FROM THE EDITOR:

Recent articles and editorials in the University of Rhode Island newspaper have both reassured and alarmed me. The formation of a new political party, Asess, has stirred a bit of controversy at the Kingston campus by urging withdrawal from the National Student Association. This reassures me. On the other hand. The Beacon, URI's student newspaper, supports NSA and urges continued affiliation.

It is difficult for me to understand the stand taken by The Beacon on NSA membership. In an editorial in the issue of October 16, it is charged that withdrawal from NSA would "deprive students . . . of an active part in the development of and the changes in our society, a society that is also composed of students." What The Beacon fails to take into consideration is the fact that, as students, we comprise a division of society which has its own particular problems. What NSA fails to do is to sufficiently discuss these problems. Rather, NSA dedicates far too much time arguing those problems which arise in the political sphere. National and international problems should be discussed by NSA, but not to the extent where they completely dominate the spectrum of resolutions at the annual NSA Congress.

It is sad indeed when a group meets in Indiana, passes resolutions "in the name of the students of the U. S., " and while it represents, in truth, only a small portion of the nation's student community. I am not here taking issue with the resolutions passed at the Congress, although they leave something to be desired, but rather with the preponderance of politically oriented resolutions in the NSA codification of policy.

The Beacon contends that NSA "is devoted exclusively to serving the needs of American students." This statement is highly disputable. In my estimation, either it is a clearcut misrepresentation by both The Beacon and NSA or both of these organizations have a total misconception of the "needs of the American student."

While NSA is potentially a worthwhile student group, as it now stands, it is no more than a useless and irresponsible melting pot for outspoken students who wish to voice their views on national and international issues which are, for the most part, wholly outside of the student community.

who, as we see it, will give what could well be one of the most enlightening (and controversial) of speeches ever given here at PC.

Mr. Meredith has undergone an ordeal the likes of which few, if any, of us can conceive. The prejudice and hatreds to which he has been forced to submit constitute a national disgrace. In order that we might have a better grasp of conditions in the South and might be exposed to the experiences of such as Mr. Meredith, the SC has brought James Meredith to our campus.

The Cowl feels certain that each and every one of the approximately 1500 students who attended Ambassador Rojas' speech left Alumni Hall with a more refined sense of the problems in Latin America and the duty of the U.S. to "demand" the halt of Communist takeover. With the coming lecture by James Meredith, the students of PC can gain a more intimate knowledge of problems confronting us and hitting closer to home - civil rights.

The Cowl has no doubt that over 2300 students will flow into Alumni Hall next Monday morning. What we about is how many of the faculty will be in attendance at the Meredith lecture. Of the approximately 150 faculty members, both religious and lay, here at the College, no more than 25 laymen and thirteen priests were present for the lecture by Ambassador Rojas. Possibly the faculty has its reasons for not attending the first in the SC speakers' series. However, it is difficult to understand what valid reasons they could have. Could the faculty's non-attendance be blamed on the fear of involvement in controversy? Some 38 faculty members braved that danger. Or could the non-attendance be credited to none other than the usual disinterest and (that nasty old word) apathy?

A better faculty attendance at the next lecture would do much toward increasing the morale of the SC and the students in general. These lectures are not confined to students. The faculty members also are welcome.

The new speaker's program is quite an improvement in the intellectual air here at PC. Speaking of

Exchange of Letters with NSA

(Editor's Note: the following letters are the results of a Memo from the Editor printed in the October 2 issue of The Cowl concerning re-evaluation of Providence College membership in the National Student Association.)

Dear Sir:
With reference to the Memo
From the Editor appearing in the October 2 issue regarding Providence College's affiliation with the United States National Student Association, the statements in the third and fourth paragraphs of your Memo are patently untrue.

paragraphs of your Memo are patently untrue.

Your contention that the discussions at the National Student Association's stand on the cussions at the National Student Association's summer Congress are primarily confined to the abolition of HUAC, Conservatism vs. Liberalism and other political affairs is false. Let me quote to you some of the titles of resolutions passed at last summer's Congress, Academic Freedom Violations, Basic Policy Declaration on Student Welfare, Basic Policy Declaration on Academic Freedom, the National Service Copper, Students Role in Affecting Legislative Activity, Cultural Affairs, Goals and Practices in Higher Education, Tax Relief for College Students, a statement on National Security and Civil Liberties, a statement on Tuttion Free Higher Education. Indeed, if one counts up thumber of topics in the area of student welfare, international student cooperation, cultural affairs, Vou have produced in the stand of the Association, and the stand of the Association and the stand of the standary the particular pointical issues you refer to.

The statement, "In my estimation we would derive more benefits from non-affiliating, Not only do we gain no benefits from NSA, but we are also lending our support to an organization which displays nothing but irresponsibility (and at times, ignorance)" is one that is totally unsupported by fact. No one can question, I feel, the responsibility of the National Student Association's stand on the entire question of civil rights, in the field of education, and the stand of the Association on student welfare and cultural affairs. You have produced no factual statements to back up your charge. Again you have

At no point in your editorial do you consider the international activities of the National Student Association, which have proven to be of great benefit to the international student community. You conspicuously leave out all the aid the Association gave to the Algerian students in their fight for freedom against French colonialism. You left out the support that the Association is now giving the students of the Portuguese colonies of Africa in their fight for freedom.

Your editorial is perhaps

Your edit freedom.

Your editorial is perhaps more significant, not for what it does not say. As an officer of the United States National Student Association, I believe it incumbent upon the student press to examine carefully the issues involved, and to weigh carefully the information available. This you have not done, and it is on this point that I call you into account.

Sincerely yours, Joel Sharkey National Affairs Vice-President

Dear Sir:

In regard to your letter of Oct. 9. I, as editor of The Cowl and author of the Memo to which you object, feel it binding upon me to reply in kind. For, what you so gratuitously stated, I can just as gratuitously deny.

You stated that my statements in the third and fourth paragraphs of the Memo were patently untrue. Then you proceed in an attempt to refute my contention that the discussions at your Congress are "confined, for the most part, to ... political affairs." By the qualifying phrase "for the most part," I think that I made it quite clear that I do not feel NSA to be exclusively concerned with politics. However, the list of resolutions, which you included in your letter, bears me out in my contention that NSA is primarily interested in those affairs which are so intricately woven into the political fibre of our nation. How can you class the resolution concerning "Students' Role in Affecting Legislative Activity" and "a statement on National Security and Civil Liberties" as non-political topics?

The NSA codification of policy for 1962-63 contains no less than twenty resolutions which are almost purely of a political nature. Of the others passed, although pertinent to students, many of them are concerned with the political sphere (e.g., resolutions in regard to "Issue Oriented Political Parties and the University Community" and "Higher Education and the Cold War").

As to my accusation that NSA "displays nothing but irrespon-sibility (and, at times, ignor-ance"). I can say no more than that I harbor a personal disap-proval of NSA's actions on many issues. In the first place,

I can only express amazement at NSA's positions on HUAC, object for many reasons, the Cuba, Spain, Portugal, the Cuningham Amendment, and the McCarron Act Those resolutions which you have passed in the area of student affairs are also quite shocking. Your policy resolutions concerning 'academic freedom," the theory of "in loco parentis," and the student press are, for the most part, prepugnant to my concepts of student rights. Your resolutions would have unbridled freedom given to the students of distance. The United States students of the tions would have unbridled free-dom given to the students of our country, many of whom are not mature enough to recognize the concomitant responsibilities. If such resolutions do not dis-play NSA's irresponsibility, my background in semantics has profited me nothing. For, if NSA is not irresponsible, either I do not grasp the meaning of the word "irresponsible" or you have found a new meaning for that word. that word have found a new meaning for that word.

Your references to my statements concerning the withdrawal from and rejection of NSA by college throughout the country can easily be answered. The contention that I 'left out New York University'. "a a college which has chosen to remain in NSA can be answered. A majority of the students voting in a referendum at NYU (Washington Square Branch) elected to withdraw from NSA, but its student government failed to act. Concerning your statement that I 'have only noted two schools which have disaffiliated' in my Memo, I have included at the end of this letter a more thorough list of those who have withdrawn from and who have rejected NSA affiliation.

As to aid given to Algerian

As to aid given to Algerian students in "fighting French colonialism" and support now being given to students engaged in fighting Portugal in that

Your closing paragraph shows a large degree of ignorance on your part in regard to college newspapers. Where space is limited, the editor must confine himself to generalities and abstract from the particulars, in the hope that his readers will do some investigating. This particular editor did "examine carefully the issues involved." Having weighed all the evidence, my verdict was guilty—that NSA is guilty of gross ir responsibility, of misrepresentation, and of dereliction of duty.

Signfoos.

Leonid, the son of an unemployed bean gleaner in Straight-ened Circumstances, Montana, had his heart set on going to college, but his father, alas, could not afford to send him. Leonid applied for a Regents Scholarnship, but his reading speed, alsa, was not very rapid—three words an hour—and before he could finish the first page of his exam, the Regents had closed their briefeases crossly and gone home. Leonid then applied for an athletic scholarship, but he had, alsa, only a single athletic skill—picking up becbees with his toes—and this, alsa, aroused only fleeting enthusiasm among the coaches.

And then—lampur day!—Leonid learned of the student loan

And then—happy day!—Leonid learned of the student loan plan: he could borrow money for his tuition and repay it in easy installments after he left school!

Happily Leonid enrolled in the Southeastern Montana College of Lanolin and Restoration Drams and happily began a college career that grew happier year by year. Indeed, it be-came altogether cestatic in his senior year because Leonid met a coed named Anna Livia Plurabelle with hair like beaten gold and eyes like two sockets full of Lake Louise. Love gripp them in its big moist palm, and they were betrothed on Crispin's Day

Crispin's Day.

Happilly they made plans to be married immediately after commencement—plans, alsa, that were never to come to fruition because Leonid, alsa, learned that Anna Livia, like himself, was in college on a student loan, which meant that he not only had to repsy his own loan after graduation but also Anna Livia's and the job, alas, that was waiting for Leonid at the Butte Otter Works simply did not pay enough, alsa, to cover both loans, plus rent and food and clothing and television repairs.

Heavy hearted, Leonid and Anna Livia sat down and lit Mathoro Cigarettes and tried to find an answer to their problem—and, sure enough, they did! I do not know whether or not Mariboro Cigarettes helped them find an answer; all I know is that Marlboros taste good and look good and filter good, and when the clouds gather and the world is black as the pit from pole to pole, it is a heap of comfort and satisfaction to be sure that Marlboros will always provide the same neary pleasure, the same unstimiting tobacco flavor, in all times and conditions. That's all I know.

conditions. That's all I know.

Leonid and Anna Livia, I say, did find an answer—a very simple one. If their student loans did not come due until they left school, why then they just wouldn't leave school! So after receiving their bachelor's degrees, they ro-enrolled and took master's degrees. After that they took doctor's degrees—loads and loads of them—until today Leonid and Anna Livia, both aged 87, both still in school, hold doctorates in Philosophy, Humane Letters, Jurisprudence, Veterinary Medicine, Civil Engineering, Optometry, Woodpulp, and Dewey Decimals.

Their student loans, at the end of the last fiscal year, amounted to a combined total of nineteen million dollars—a sum which they probably would have found some difficulty in repaying had not the Department of the Interior recently declared them a National Park.

You don't need a student loan—just a little loose change— to grab a pack of smoking pleasure: Marlboros, sold in all fifty states in familiar soft pack and Flip-Top box.

Freshmen Tracksters Remain Undefeated: Manhattan Gets Tie

Maintaining their status as an undefeated team, the Fresh harriers battled out a 28-28 tie with Manhattan, while defeat-ing teams from Iona, 17-46, and Farleigh-Dickinson, 15-50, last Saturday at Van Cortlandt Park in New York. Flashy Bob Powers took first place in the three mile contest with a time of 16:08, barely beating teammate Paul Harris by one second.

Playing under the stipulations of a four dual meet, each team has scored individually against the different opponents instead of regarding the re-sults as a whole. By this ar-rangement, Manhattan runners took the third, fourth, sixth, seventh, and eighth places, thereby gaining enough to tie the Friars. Placing fifth for PC was Al Campbell, followed by Ray Van Epps, Mike McCarty and Mike Eaton in the 10th. 12th and 13th places respective ly.

By playing under the dual system, each team can get a better idea as to how it compared to another team; otherwise, a team score in a multi-team contest can not give a true indication of capability when compared to the other opponents. Usually, however, the dual system does not apply to championship and tournament games.

The Freshmen record, now

The Freshmen record, now standing at 14 victories and one tie, will be put to another test this Friday afternoon at King-ston, R. I., when the Friars participate in a triangular meet involving arch-rivals URI and

"Walker and Tarantapolis should work well on the fast break, with Riordan filling up the third lane. As usual, the combination defense will be used. All are new to it and it will take time before they adjust to it. We expect a good year. There has been a great deal of enthusiasm on campus about the freshman. I caution anyone in expecting miracles."

There is a lamentable and depressing situation developing. The venerable and happy burgomasters of Rhode Island, so faithful and true in the past, have begun to show signs of that dreaded malady — complac-

Here it is the end of October and no signs of stateency.

Here it is the end of October and no signs of statewide hysteria yet. A week of basketball practice has already been completed and, as of yet, there is no evidence of a movement to draft Joe Mullaney for the gubernatorial nomination.

Perhaps the good people of Rhode Island have become so confident that they are ready to proclaim to the universe that the PC basketball team is among the nation's best. They are so confident that they know that Mullaney's supermen will be just that — supermen. Why worry about performance? Do Rolls Royce owners worry?

Could there be another reason for this absence of hysteria? It could very well be. Perhaps PC fans don't really expect such a successful campaign as in recent seasons, primarily because of the departure of Ray Flynn and Vin Ernst. Such logical reasoning is hardly to be expected, however.

to be expected, however.

Gavitt is Reassured

Frosh coach Dave Gavitt must be reassured to know that his team might be the greatest frosh team in PC annals. This is the consensus of the greatest collection of basketball experts in the state — the PC student

The clairvoyant powers of this august body are amazing. Before the freshmen have had even one amazing the state of the sta amazing. Before the freshmen have had even one minute of game experience, they are touted as being all but human. Experience will show that, unlike the Pope speaking ex cathedra, they are not infallible. It's like saying a diamond will be a beautiful stone —before it is cut.

Gavitt does have reason for optimism. The raw materials available certainly display talent; all Gavitt has to do is fit it together.

Headquarters to Main St.?

"From all indications we should have a representative PC team if we all work hard and forget about last season's merits." With these words, hockey coach Tom Eccleston indicates that he is conscious of the high expectations for his hockey team this season.

Last year's PC six was much better than the final record indicated and there were few losses to speak of from that club. The two major losses, Lou Lamoriello and Tom Haugh, represent a tremendous loss in leadership however.

and Tom Haugn, represent a tremendous loss in featuer-ship, however.

There has been an increase in the interest shown for the PC hockey team and Eccleston is aware of it. This makes a coach's job infinitely more difficult (if you don't believe this ask Joe Mullaney) and Eccleston is reacting accordingly. Maybe some of the radicals have switched headquarters from Alumni Hall to North Main St. . . . .

Final Cut Announced; Hoopsters Still Seek Guard Replacements

After a week of practice, Joe Mullancy has had a chanef for a good look at his hoopsters, and reports that spirits are rising high. Speaking of the leadership of his co-captains Thompson and Stone, the Coach said "this is great spirit. John and Jimmie are really keeping the boys alive and working."

Mullaney made his final cut Friday to bring the number he will carry for the season to twelve. "We did that on the assumption that twelve will be nough to work with," he said. He is reluctant to carry more than twelve since he can only take that many on trips.

Last season there were fourteen on the team so he could be fairly sure of at least ton.
