

THE PROSE POEM: AN INTERNATIONAL JOURNAL

Volume 3 | 1994

Sure, it's true ...
Giannina Braschi

© Providence College

The author(s) permits users to copy, distribute, display, and perform this work under the following conditions: (1) the original author(s) must be given proper attribution; (2) this work may not be used for commercial purposes; (3) the users may not alter, transform, or build upon this work; (4) users must make the license terms of this work clearly known for any reuse or distribution of this work. Upon request, as holder of this work's copyright, the author(s) may waive any or all of these conditions.

The Prose Poem: An International Journal is produced by The Berkeley Electronic Press (bepress)
for the Providence College Digital Commons.
<http://digitalcommons.providence.edu/prosepoems/>

Giannina Braschi

Sure, it's true. Questions can't change the truth. But they give it motion. They focus my truth from another angle. And you said: We're cleaning up the truth. We must clarify certain things.

You never tell the truth and your jacket eventually comes back made of another material, and your shoes say sure!, and run back to you telling my truth. Even if it's raining now, your truth may be that it's not raining inside like it's raining outside. Even if I'm not talking, you may be saying what I'm thinking when you weren't talking. Just ignore me and keep telling me come when you said go. Then don't expect me to listen when you say come. You'll come with your words get out and the door will open. I hear those words and the door opens half-way. Then you'll come and I'll know how to say: get out.

Translated from the Spanish by Tess O'Dwyer