This Year's ROTC Dance To Honor Colonel Moss

This year's Military Ball, which will be held February 4 at the Narragansett Hotel, will honor Colonel Roy P. Moss, P.M.S. and T., who will retire at the end of the year. Music for the non-floral, formal affair will be furnished by Tommy Masso's Orchestra.

For the past three years the attendance at the ball has been steadily increasing. In order to avoid overcrowding at the dance the bids have therefore been limited to 300.

Pictures of the candidates for queen should be submitted to the Sergeant Major at the ROTC office in Albertus Magnus Hall. Very few pictures have been turned in as of yet and we hope to see many more, say the chairmen. Every girl attending is a potential candidate. It is desired that the photo submitted be of billfold "size". Nominations for queen will close Friday, January 4, at 5:00 p.m.

Since the bids are limited to 300 those wishing to attend should purchase their bid at the earliest possible time. Bids will be open to non-R.O.T.C. students and friends on the 29th of January. Bids may be obtained from sellers in the four classes or at the ticket booth on the second floor of Harkins Hall.

Mr. Harold Higgins, '55, general chairman, urges all those cadets who wish to aid in preparing for the dance to see the chairmen of the respective committees: Program, J. Reilly and G. Romberg; Invitations, R. McGee and H. Paolino; Tickets, J. Murtaugh and T. Ronniol; Publicity, R. Croke and T. McAleer; Refreshments, L. Kiernan and R. Gentile; Music, E. Toro and R. Ryan; Queen, E. Di Sandro and L. Riley; Decorations, J. McGrath and L. Conlin; Ballroom, E. Bennis and R. Michaud.

Ike Proves Regular Fellow To P. C. Golfing Partner

By Paul Pothin

During the Christmas vacation Cameron "Ronnie" Quinn, '56, had the honor of golfing with President Eisenhower at the Augusta National Golf Course, home of the winter "White House." The invitation was extended to him by the President through his parents. Ronnie's father is Chief Judge Quinn of the United States Court of Military Appeals in Washington.

Ronnie flew to Augusta on December 26 and stayed four days. While at the club he was the guest of Mr. Robert Woodruff, president of the Coca-Cola Company.

The first day after his arrival he went around the course with the President; Ed Dudley, the club pro, and John O. Childs, an Atlanta businessman and friend of the President.

Ronnie finished the 18 holes with a four-under-par 68, which was the best score in the presidential party. The best score ever made at the course in tournament play was a 64 by Lloyd Mangrum in the 1940 Masters' Tournament. Ronnie readily admits however that he had a very good day.

During his stay at the club he was a dinner guest of Fred Waring, whose party played the course directly behind the presidential foursome. Ronnie was very impressed by the trip.

When asked how it seemed to be dining and golfing with our chief executive, Ronnie related that it was very difficult to realize Mr. Eisenhower was such an important person. "Talking with him was just like talking with your father or mine. He was very regular and natural," Ronnie stated. While talking in the pro shop the morning after their game the President asked if Ronnie was playing that day. Ronnie answered that he was taking the day off. The President jokingly replied that if he had shot a 68 he'd take a day off too.

In describing the club Ronnie told this reporter of the "winter White House." It is a very modest cottage set aside from the main building of the club at the end of a row of cabana styled cottages.

One of the outstanding things Ronnie noticed was the strict security precautions taken by the secret service men guarding the President. Each of the four sides of the course, which like most courses is enclosed by a high wire fence, was patrolled constantly by the Georgia State Patrol. (Continued on Page 6)

Informal Dance Planned For Friday

This Friday night the Junior Class will hold its first official function. The event will be an informal dance to raise funds to help defray the expenses of their Junior Prom. The dance will be held from 8:00 to 12:00 in Harkins Hall.

In planning the dance, co-chairmen James Santaniello and Ronald Sullivan have invited girls from various nurses' home and girls' colleges—fifteen in all. There will be a sufficient amount of girls present to make the evening an interesting one for all who attend, they said.

The officers of the Junior Class remarked that "they sincerely hope that all the Juniors will support this dance for they will benefit by its success."

The officers and executive committee of the Carolan Club are completing plans for the annual Dorm Weekend to be held on Friday, Saturday, and Sunday, February 4th, 5th, and 6th. As in previous years, the long awaited social climax of the Carolan Club year is expected to draw a capacity crowd.

The festivities will begin on Friday evening with a Cocktail hour from 6:30 to 7:30. Following this there will be a dinner served in the candle-lit dining room of Aquinas Hall. After enjoying the excellently prepared dinner, the formally attired members of the Carolan Club and their guests will adjourn to the main lounge to dance to the music of Hugo Basso and his orchestra. In the brightly-decorated Penquin Room music will be supplied by Frank

Revitalized Sailing Club Awarded New Schedule

The New England Intercollegiate Sailing Association has awarded the Sailing Club of Providence College an arduous spring and fall schedule, probably the heaviest in P.C.'s history, announced Robert L. Rohrer, '57, publicity director of the club. The spring meets are due to get under way in March with 10 strong schools competing, giving Providence College the strictest of competition.

The first of seven scheduled meets will be held on Sunday, March 27, at the Coast Guard Academy in New London. Opposing P.C. in this race will be the Coast Guard, Holy Cross, Northeastern University, Rhode Island School of Design, Tufts and Wesleyan. This race is called a Pentagonal, which translated from sailing language means that there are five competing teams.

Next on the agenda will be a six team or hexagonal race on April 3, with the Coast Guard again playing hosts. This time, however, P.C. will be opposed by Boston College, Boston University, Coast Guard, U.R.I., and Merrimack.

A big one, so far as school prestige is concerned, comes up on Saturday, April 16, at U.R.I. This is the Rhode Island Championship race, in which P.C. meets Brown, U.R.I., and R.I.S.D. The following week, on the 23rd, R.I.S.D. plays host against U.R.I., Brown, P.C., and Babson.

A race in dingies at the Coast Guard Academy will be held on April 30. Following this, on May 1, comes the R. I. freshman championship race at R.I.S.D. with R.I.S.D., P.C., U.R.I., and Brown.

The spring schedule winds up on Sunday, May 8, with U.R.I., R.I.S.D., and P.C. competing at R.I.S.D.

In all P.C. meets a total of 10 colleges in its spring schedule. All of the races shall be run according to the rules set forth by NEISA.

A total of four races are scheduled for the fall, as follows:

Sun., Oct. 2, at R.I.S.D.—competing:

Holy Cross, U.R.I., R.I.S.D., P.C. and Trinity.

Sat., Oct. 1, at U.R.I.—competing: P.C., U.R.I., R.I.S.D., and Brown. This is a R. I. Championship race.

Sun., Oct. 16, at Brown—competing: P.C., Babson, Brown, M.I.T., Merrimack, R.I.S.D., Williams, and Northeastern U.

Sun., Oct. 23, at Coast Guard—competing: Coast Guard, P.C., M.I.T., McGill, R.I.S.D., Trinity, and Wesleyan.

The sailing club, recently reorganized after a year's inactiveness, shows clearly the increase in our school spirit—even if only by a minority group. Jim Pollard, '55, Commodore, and John Lowe, '56, Vice-Commodore, are largely responsible for the club's reactivation; and the able work of the other officers, Mike Victory, Sec., and Bob Dugan, Treas., is not to be overlooked.

The members of the club will muster in the lounge of Aquinas Hall tonight at 6:30 p.m. The meeting, however, is not closed and anyone is invited to attend.

Fr. Slavin Tours Near East Lands

It was learned today that the Very Reverend Robert J. Slavin, O.P., Ph.D., S.T.M., has left for the Near East on an assignment given to him by the Most Reverend T. S. McDermott, O.P., S.T.M., Vicar General of the Order of Preachers and President of the Providence College Corporation. On leaving Father Slavin said he expected to be in the Near East about two or three weeks before returning to Providence by way of Rome, Italy, where he will report to the Most Reverend Father McDermott on the result of his visit to the Near East.

Sound Finance Is Promised For Frosh

A seemingly unprecedented interest in Freshman politics was evinced in the class of '58 last week as nineteen aspirants for the four available offices filed their nomination papers with the Ways and Means Committee of the Student Congress. At the deadline for filing, Ralph Gentile, chairman of the committee, announced that four parties and three independent candidates had signified their intentions of making the race.

Heading the ticket of the Veracrat Party is presidential nominee, Mike McIntyre, who was acclaimed the Veracrat standard bearer at a meeting of the party's class committee last week. Jim Hagan captured the vice presidential nomination while Dick Kerr was named secretarial candidate and Larry Mailloux is seeking the post of treasurer.

The Veracrats have adopted a strong finance plank in their platform calling for wise handling of class funds and a minimum of expenditures. The party has pledged itself to a program of sound economy in order to have enough money on hand for a memorable class dance. The platform also came out strongly against the issuance of free bids.

Candidates running under the banner of the Unity Party are: Martin Bartley, candidate for the office of President; John Baglini, Vice President; Bill Dahill, Secretary; and Bill Hanlon, nominee for Secretary.

The Unity Party Platform pledges to unify the Class of '58 and to inform the students on all issues affecting the class. In consideration of the future, the party recommends such affairs as a class picnic to help (Continued on Page 5)

Long Awaited Carolan Weekend Set For February 4th, 5th And 6th

Barone and his combo.

On Saturday afternoon the program will continue with the weekend frolicers enjoying a jazz concert by Hugo Basso's combo in the Penquin Room, where refreshments will be served during the entertainment. A light supper will be served so that those attending may leave for the basketball games at Mt. Pleasant Gym. At 7 o'clock the freshman teams of P.C. and Brown will meet while at 8:30 the varsity teams of the two schools will be matched for the main event.

On Sunday the attention of the weekenders will be focused on the spiritual side of life. The Holy Sacrifice of the Mass will be offered in the Aquinas Hall Chapel at 10 o'clock. After Mass a breakfast will be served in the dining room of the dormitory. Following the breakfast will be a lecture in the lounge of the dorm. The name of the speaker will be announced very shortly by the officers of the Carolan Club.

The weekend will close on Sunday afternoon when an open-house will be conducted, at which time the guests will be escorted through the rooms of Aquinas Hall.

An innovation introduced to the weekend last year will again be used. It is the presence of a general theme throughout the entire weekend. The theme this year will be that of a Manhattan atmosphere which will transform the lounge, dining room, and Penquin Room of the dorm into noted entertainment spots of New York society.

Invited guests for the biggest on-campus social event of the year will include the Very Rev. Robert J. Slavin, O.P., President of Providence College; members of the Administration, Faculty, and Military Science Department; and the President of the Student Congress.

Tom McNellis is chairman of the dance committee and the members of the committee include Pete Bransfield, John Kiernan, John Archambeault, Bernie Dzinski, Philip Leonard, John Villano, Ralph Gentile, Frank Gencarella, Robert Crawley, Richard Rice, Arthur Phelan, and Fred Gabrielle. The Rev. Edward M. Casey, O.P., is moderator of the club. The officers of the club are Dan Lynch, president; Bill Barrett, vice-president; Norm Auger, treasurer; and Pat Kirby, secretary.

At The Post

They are off and running—the Freshmen that is. The candidates for office in the Freshman class are off to a running good start. All the candidates show the initial vigor and vitality needed to be successful. They are all thoroughbreds with one common interest—the winning of the race. But only one will break the tape.

The forecast is for a wet track so the candidates will have to be of sure foot. No bookie can predict what the outcome will be, for there may very well be an upset. It has been known that the favorite before the race to finish last and the longshot to come out from the pack and pay large dividends.

This is one race that can be fixed if all the members don't go to the window and place a bet. Don't have a horse pushed into the winner's circle by a group of owners. Get behind the candidate of your choice, and help him! The only way you can help him is to show your interest in him by making it your duty to get to that window before the race is over. Before you make your final decision, check the green sheets, there may be a winner that you never thought about.

As the pack comes around the bend for the final stretch the running looks even. But one will have a sudden spurt of energy or there may be a photo-finish, only the last few minutes of the race will tell. The race is a good one, for all the runners are qualified to win and the outcome should be of interest to all.

"May the best horse, I mean man, win!!!"

Swan Song

No tears are being shed; no hearts are being broken; no speeches being made. Just four walls, a flickering light, a tongueless typewriter, and deafening silence are here to witness my departure, my last night as editor of what I like to believe is a great paper, The Cowl.

It has been a strange year in many respects. We, the staff and editors, have been encouraged, discouraged; complimented, insulted; eager and disgusted; but always, or almost always, faithful to the Cowl policy of "stick by what you wrote; they'll forget it in a few weeks."

Typical of human nature, it is difficult to remember the pats on the back, the sincere handshake, and the friendly nod, given to a reporter or to the editor for a fine story or a good issue. You know they are there; they are real; they are heartening, but they are often far and in between, because once again, typical of human nature, it is so much easier to criticize than to compliment.

Very soon a new editor will be announced.

This is my swan-song, somewhat somber and lonely, but the other songs, cheerful and gay, will come back now and then to help me relive a wonderful experience, one I wouldn't have missed for anything in the world.

Costain's New Novel Not Equal To "... Chalice"

THE WHITE AND THE GOLD, by Thomas B. Costain, Doubleday & Co., Inc., N. Y.

(A Review by Louis J. Verchot, '56)

It seems surprising for a tale of the French Regime in Canada to start in the English court. John Cabot, the first explorer, who made it known to the world that the continent of North America existed, should have a place, it cannot be denied, in any book which is to be a history of the colonization of this land, especially when subsequent events in history were affected greatly by his explorations.

Jacques Cartier, the first French explorer, led his countrymen in their explorations. He was followed by Samuel deChamplain who founded Quebec where the French made their first positive attempt at colonization.

This history is different from most others in that it attempts—and succeeds admirably—in giving to the reader an insight into the lives of the people it considers from the time of Cabot to the start of the seventeenth century. The task of this first volume could not have been given to a more versatile or more able man than Mr. Costain.

The explorers are presented honestly and fairly, by a person who is capable of viewing from afar but who also knows what the people of the period thought of these men. The author uses the techniques of a good novelist in portraying character and the material is carefully selected from diaries and chronicles of the time. However, it is by no means an overly patriotic representation of these people. Their faults and shortsightedness as well as their triumphs are carefully set down.

This is readable history. The colorful descriptions of early Quebec and Montreal, gleaned from journals and printed essays of the day are skillfully interwoven in the main stream of conquest to grace the exciting wars of early French rule.

Accounts of the bravery and the humanity of men like La Salle, the Loynes, Bishop Laval, Jean Talon, Samuel deChamplain and the Jesuit martyrs are brought to the foreground. It seems almost incredible that the greatness of so many men could co-exist with the greedy selfishness of so many others at such a crucial period of world affairs. Deeds of heroism, however, far outshone the latter.

Adam Dollard and his brave band can truly take their places with Leonidas at Thermopylae and Horatius at the bridge. The town of Montreal was expecting an attack from the Iroquois. Adam collected sixteen men and went up to the rapids of Long Sault which lies above the city of Montreal. His daring plan was to attack some Iroquois hunting parties and so delay the impending attack upon the city. Unexpectedly, Dollard and his men ran headlong into the main Iroquois war party. For eight days, against eight hundred Indians, they defended themselves. Defeat came only when a musketoon, filled with powder and intended as a grenade, failed to clear the walls of the stockade and fell back inside, blinding the defenders. Because of the fierce resistance of so few Frenchmen, the Iroquois called off their attack on Montreal.

The troubles caused by Champlain when he joined in an alliance against the Five Nations and his reasons for doing so are sketched clearly. The effects of English and Dutch colonization in the new world are closely aligned and intergrated with corresponding French expansion in Canada.

A complementary, but very honest appraisal of Richelieu, Mazarin, Colbert, Louis XIV and their policies is used to tie Colonial happenings with the European scene. It is entirely enjoyable to see these four Frenchmen as human beings and not merely terrible names in a dry narrative of facts. Their likes, dislikes, faults, and brilliance are presented to the reader and one feels that he has the right to make his own conclusions concerning them.

This book will not rival its predecessor, The Silver Chalice in popularity. The White and The Gold is a successful attempt by one of the nation's most widely read historical novelists to make history interesting. It possesses enough lightness and excitement to satisfy the novel reader and its well thought out cause and effect relationships fill the serious student of history to satiety. Although Mr. Costain does not quite approach the estimable skill of Hillaire Belloc, it would seem to me that The White and The Gold, not to mention his many other worthy efforts, has secured him an honored corner in the shelf of the historian as well as a favored perch upon the night table of the escapist.

Pressure On 84th Congress Is Greatest Since '48 Session

By George Clifford

Last week the Eighty-Fourth Congress assembled in Washington for what promises to be a hectic two years. The pressure on the members will be terrific.

The Democrats, who have control of both houses again after a brief minority role, are faced with many problems. They must enact forward looking legislation or be harnessed with a "Do-nothing" label like their Republican counterparts were in 1948. They must reconcile the differences between the liberal and conservative wings of the party, which though dormant at present, are capable of erupting at any moment, as they did in 1948 and again in '52.

Health A Problem

A most pertinent onus on the shoulders of the Democratic leaders is the health of the members, since many of the party's workhorses are well advanced in years, and even youthful John Kennedy is currently recovering from a serious illness. The reason for this deep concern is the delicate balance on which the control of the Senate rests. Should two Democrats be absent for a key vote, Vice President Nixon would have the power to break a tie.

G.O.P. Headaches Abundant

On the Republican side of the aisle, headaches are also abundant. They must support the Administration or forfeit the chances of retaining the White House and regaining Congress in 1956. Yet many of the Republicans have openly disagreed with the President.

The recent anti-Eisenhower barrage by Senator McCarthy, while drawing little open support from his colleagues, has certainly broadened the cleavage between the different factions in his party. Perhaps Senate Minority Leader William Knowland of California, a bluntly outspoken critic of Eisenhower's foreign policy, will find a path through this political jungle. It appears dubious.

In the meanwhile, observers agree that there will be many legislative maneuvers in the 84th Congress, with the eyes of both parties focused on that all important objective: the presidential election in 1956.

Same Old Story

McLarney's Material Praised; Lack Of Contributors Hit

The latest edition of the black and white covered Alembic was quite short. Two editorials, two poems, two essays and one story adorn the pages in this edition. That it reached thirty-two pages seems almost phenomenal. Though quite brief its diversity over the previous issue is mainly due to one author, who dominates the material—to his own credit and the student body's discredit. The magazine should be honored for finding a new Daniel Defoe from the midst of the indifferent students. (editors note: Daniel Defoe was one of the most prolific of English writers.) Is it a credit to the school that a bi-monthly magazine can only be published three or four times a year?

The editor inaugurates the year's first Alembic with an excellent example of what an English major should be able to do after seven semesters of concentrated study. It is the best example of writing to be found in this magazine. It sets a high standard which the contributors are not quite able to reach. His request for more material is a repetition of most previous woes, but it is artfully done.

Joseph Salvatore, president of the Liturgy Group, attempts to interest the scholar in the work of his group. It is another in an interesting series, and shows his familiarity with the subject though it fails to create a true interest to the casual reader. The essay is cleverly and skillfully put together with the influence of Aquinas and Theology clearly felt throughout the entire piece.

"Communists and Christmas in Viet Nam" is the most interesting piece in this issue. It is well-timed, both in regard to Christmas, and because of the mounting concern of Viet Nam in the international troubles of today.

Father Chu Cong centers his attention on the common man, who is often forgotten by the far-east "expert". He explains the basic reason why the Communists are so successful, very graphically. It is a good start to what could be an excellent series on this ever increasing important land.

James J. McLarney has two completely different examples of his poetry printed in the issue "Mr. Spindly", an impressionistic work, would be easier to understand if there were a few footnotes to clarify his idea. It makes the reader wonder, "What exactly does he mean?" "Who or what is Mr. Spindly?" The basic idea of this poem can be found in the third stanza if you need a clue.

"Redress and Grievance" Mr. McLarney's other poem is much easier to comprehend. It is a polite but firm poke at the pseudo-intellectual and the hypocrite. To be more specific it seems to be the science student who is the target of the poem. Though this material would not rate James McLarney with the Byrons, the Shellys, or the Donnes, it is a credit to any college student.

The student body is composed of many ex-soldiers who have seen and participated in many unusual experiences. "The Beauty of Simplicity" is Louis Tousignant's attempt to recreate for us his impression of Casteltand, and the humanitarianism of Italian people. The impressions he experienced should be described rather than sketched as it is done here. It might be compared to a National Geographic story without pictures.

"Quest" a science-fiction story, though not very scientific, attempts only what an expert can do well—to maintain suspense to the last line—it fails in this regard. The last section is anti-climactic, it asserts what the reader knows will happen. The imagination is definitely unusual but the reader does not have any idea of exactly what 'the blob' or 'Tamir-d' really are. Did Christ speak Greek or Aramaic? I believe it was the latter. The illustrations of Richard Rice are very well done, showing his usual brand of subtle humor and active imagination.

Activities To Ignite School Spirit Planned By Friars

The Friars Club, the only club bearing the nickname of our beloved school, held its last meeting of the semester last Thursday night.

The most important issue of the evening was the final returns on the highly successful Friar's Formal bids.

President Heathcliff Lynch then offered the thanks of the club to the co-chairman of the Friar's Formal Nat Kirby and Chester Riley. The president's thanks in the club's behalf was followed by an immediate burst of applause from the rest of the Friars.

The rest of the meeting was "devoted to plans and activities which are intended," stated a club spokesman, "to activate the apparent inertia of most campus clubs before the Lenten hiatus." Discussion was held as to the possibility of having a rally before the Boston College game this Wednesday, but plans have been abandoned as impractical at this time.

Also discussed at the meeting, since the morale and the spirit of the athletic teams is close to the hearts of the Friars Club, was the discouraging attendance at the Friars' home games. Ways to overcome the slackening off of spirit were presented but no solution was reached, since the "answers lie with the students themselves."

Little known to most students is the fact that the Friars Club serves both the visiting and home teams cold milk and doughnuts after each home game.

The club will resume its regular social schedule immediately following the Lenten layoff with an informal dance.

Freshman Platforms

CAMPUS - CENTRIC

Now that the time has arrived wherein all freshmen will finally have their say in the Student Congress, their voice should be as powerful as possible. However, their voice shall be only as loud as they desire it to be. The most powerful voice to speak for them is the Campus-Centric Party. Why is it the most powerful? Simply because it is not the voice of the Day students alone; nor that of the Dorm students alone; but rather that of the combined multitude of the class of 1958.

Our candidates are dedicated to the principle of an impartial government for a united class. Therefore, in order that everyone may know what our party stands for and against, we publish this platform:

School Spirit—It is our intention to promote school and class spirit by augmenting leadership with wise and intelligent decisions.

Class Committees—In fulfillment of the meaning of Campus-Centric, it will be our policy to appoint committee members solely according to their ability, ambition, and interest in various activities.

Student Congress—We pledge ourselves to work wholeheartedly with the leading and most motivating force that binds all campus organizations together—the Student Congress. Our only promise is to represent the entire class and not any one faction of it.

Finance—We propose to give our class a program of sound economy and wise planning in the use of class funds.

Class Dance—If elected, we pledge to exert every effort to insure that the class dance will be successful both financially and socially.

Upon this year depends much of our future as a Class. If we are successful now, it will be an indication of current and future harmony during our college years.

The candidates of the Campus-Centric Party are Paul Czekalski for president, Jerry Coffey for vice-president, Vin Ferraioli for secretary, Bob Brennan for office of treasurer.

UNITY

The Unity Party will by its very name unite the Freshman Class as one, and carry it successfully through the remainder of 1955. We will always keep you well informed on issues that affect our class whether they be of a scholastic, financial, or social nature. The most important social function on the agenda for the Freshman Class is drawing near, and that is the Freshman Dance. We will do everything within our power to make this dance a success by obtaining the best orchestra possible, and most of all by keeping the prices of the tickets at a minimum. We have also considered future plans, such as a picnic, and other social events which will create closer ties between each and every student of our class for the remaining years at Providence College.

VERACRATIC

PREAMBLE

Now is the time for members of the Freshman class to decide who the instruments of their Student Government will be. It is a time for an intelligent decision on the part of the student electorate so that they may be assured of true representative government.

Those who would guide us must manifest an interest in school and in their classmates. They must take a stand on the issues confronting the student body.

Therefore, in order that everyone may know what our party stands for and against, we publish this platform:

School Spirit

We pledge to foster school and class spirit by wise and intelligent leadership and active participation in extracurricular activities.

Free Bids

The Veracratic Party is opposed to the idea of giving free bids. We feel that rather than contributing to better class spirit, it has a demoralizing effect. We pledge that no free bids will be issued in a Veracratic Administration.

Class Committees

We pledge to appoint intelligent, interested, hard working, and co-operative students to the chairmanships of the various class committees.

Day and Dorm Students

The Veracratic Party does not differentiate between day and dorm students. We feel that we owe our loyalty to the Class of 1958 as a whole and not to any one faction.

Finance

We pledge a broad policy of sound economy and equality for all. Expenditures will be kept at an absolute minimum. A series of informal dances will be held in order to raise money for class activities. We promise that the Class Dance will be one of the very best affairs ever held in the history of Providence College. It is our aim to work unceasingly for that end.

Upon this first year depends much of our future as a class. If we are successful now it will argue well for a successful four years of college.

Problem Club

At one time or another during a given season, every coach has his problems of one kind or another. This is also true with our own Vin Cuddy, but Vin seems to get all his problems in a bunch. The biggest problem facing Vin most of the season has been the lack of a steady defense. Another problem confronting Cuddy is the loss of Ed Donahue, who surely would be the answer to many of Vin's problems. And now comes his third problem, the loss of big Jack Ritch, who has been a tower of strength in the weak offense of the Friars so far. Ritch has been doing a fine job in recent games and the removing of this giant was the turning point in the last home game of the Friars. At the time of his removal in the first half, the Black and White were on top by five pts. and at the end of that session the Friars were down by seven pts. If Jack misses the next two contests, the Cuddymen will really have their hands full. With Ritch out of the AIC game, Pat Grady stepped into his shoes and filled them very ably producing 14 pts. to the P. C. effort.

Five of the Friars seven losses have occurred on enemy ground, and this may be an answer to the defensive lapse. When playing at home the Friars perform on small and helpful Mt. Pleasant gym, while on the road they play on surfaces which are somewhat larger. Where at home the defense can be played a bit tighter, on the road the defense must be opened to compete with the playing surface. But in recent talks with Vin, he says that the P. C. defenses are improving gradually. Could increase wins . . . Two home games this week; B. C. tonight . . . Springfield here on Saturday. If Grady comes through again . . . if Moran's ankle holds up, the reason for his under par play . . . Kerr, Tedesco and Willoughby come through with some needed points, the Friars could cop a couple of victories.

icing the Puck

Dick Rondeau is having his problems too over there at the auditorium. Rondeau's problems seem to be quite the same as those of Cuddy's. The "Flying Friars" have shown they can score but also that they can be scored upon very readily. To date the Friars have copped two wins and have suffered four losses. The two wins have come on the home ice and the losses on distant rinks. With the Friars at home this week they should be; able to come up with their third win of the season. Game . . . Northeastern tomorrow night.

Forgotten Athletes

A group of guys who have been neglected around here for some time are the runners of Harry Coates, who open their season on Saturday with the entrance of the relay teams in the K. of C. meet in Boston. The students of Coates have been rounding themselves into condition in the past weeks with daily sessions on the boards at Hendricken Field. — Keep all eyes peeled on the 2-mile relay team of Slocum, Dandley, Wallach and Madden . . . could be tops . . . McAlice, Fahey, Rourke, and Costello in the 1-mile relay may be up there too.

Eddie Aron and Al O'Brien got a head start on their teammates last Saturday when they competed in the YMCA meet . . . Aron was 2nd in the shot put and O'Brien a fourth in the 1000-yd run.

McMullen, Former Friar Performer Stars For U. S.

A former P.C. track star has been making quite a name for himself with the troops in the Far East, where he is serving with the Eighth Cav. Regt. The person of note is John McMullen of Pawtucket, who was the captain of the 1951 varsity cross-country team.

Two weeks before Christmas, Jack left for Ft. Monmouth, N. J., where he began training for the U. S. modern pentathlon team for the Pan-American Games next March.

The Pentathlon consists of the 3,000 meter run, 200 meter swim, pistol firing, horseback riding, and fencing. While with the Cav. he has been outstanding as a swimmer.

While here on Smith Hill, Mac was captain of the varsity cross-country under Harry Coates, and was a member of the varsity track team.

In 1951, John won the Rhode Island Decathlon title.

After graduation from Providence College, McMullen studied for his master's degree at Boston College until he entered the Army in November, 1953.

Ski Conditions Seem Ideal Throughout New England

Predictions of a spectacular season at Eastern winter sport resorts were aided by the weatherman recently as December came in with snow storms that conveniently covered famous slopes in Vermont and the White Mountains of New Hampshire.

Stowe, Bromley and other areas in the Green Mountain State prepared for an early invasion of hardy folk who like winter and all the fun it brings both outdoors and inside around a roaring fire. Not only do all country man's signs point to one of the best "snow" winters in years, it was reported, but the "Old Farmers Almanac" came right out and said so. New Hampshire is entering the sea-

Intramurals

By Jim Westwater

The intramural boxing and general conditioning program held here at the college under the auspices of Mr. Peter Louthis will get underway as soon as we return from our mid-semester vacation. Registration for the course is open to all, and anyone interested may obtain entry blanks at the Athletic Office. Previous experience is not necessary and anyone may come out for the general conditioning only; he doesn't have to fight.

The annual intramural basketball program started last Monday with victories posted by Senior Biology and Junior Economics over Soph Education and Junior Business. The scores were 31-26 and 36-22, respectively. There will be two leagues, a 11:30 league and a 12:30 league each composed of seven teams.

The basketball league will be discontinued next week on account of examinations, but will resume right after the mid-semester break. All team captains should keep their teams posted as to when they are playing.

The schedule for the remainder of the week is as follows:

Wed., Jan. 12th—11:30—Soph Biology vs. Soph Business. 12:30—Senior Arts (Melucci) vs. Jr. Business.

Thurs., Jan. 13th—11:30—Soph Education vs. Frosh Social Sc. 12:30—Jr. Economics vs. Senior Science.

Fri., Jan. 14th—11:30—Senior Biology vs. Soph Biology. 12:30—Senior Social Science vs. Senior Arts (Melucci).

Attention Students: Anyone interested in officiating at basketball games should inform Mr. Louthis at the Athletic Office. The games are played at 11:30 and 12:30 and are approximately 40 minutes long.

Friar Teams Seeking Victories This Week

By BILL FLANAGAN

PUCKSTER PARADE:

Dec. 17, 1954—Boston Garden—Harvard 10, Providence 3.

The nearest thing to a one man gang in collegiate hockey annals, Bill Cleary scored six goals as he completely befuddled the Friar defense with amazing deception. Defenseman Manchester and Goalie Flynn were bulwarks in halting the constant Friar attack. Despite the lopsided score Dick Rondeau's charges gave a good account of themselves.

Dec. 22, 1954—Boston Arena—Tufts 12, Providence 11.

Where's the defense? Friars fight back after being down three goals in the first period. Tufts scores the winner with only 30 seconds left in the game. Defenseman Mike McDonough scored five goals to pace attack. Rod Gorman performed the hat trick.

Jan. 4, 1955—New Haven Arena—Yale 6, Providence 5.

The advent of a new year brought bad luck for the Friars. Blew a 4-1, and 5-2 lead. Ed Monahan, who had quite a night against the Eli a year ago paced the P.C.ers with a pair of goals.

Jan. 5, 1955—Princeton, N.J.—Princeton 6, Providence 1.

Way down yonder in the land of Nassau the Friars hopes of holding that Tiger for the second year in a row were crushed. Only Mike McDonough was able to dent the Bengal's nets.

Apparently the trouble with the Friar sextet is a lack of manpower. The Black and White have been relying on just three defensemen which seems inadequate in a sixty minute game. Also the strange unaccounted scoring slump of hustling Bobby Reall, and the perplexing goaltending problem. Phil Crawford is in a slump, and Ralph Lane and Ed Hornstein haven't been given a chance to acustom themselves. The next game for the Friars is Thursday night at the Auditorium against Northeastern.

BASKETEER BRIEFS

Dec. 17, 1954—Worcester Mass.—Holy Cross 101, Providence 47.

A low ebb in Friar court annals was reached as the injury-riddled Cuddymen were trounced by a powerful Crusader quintet paced by All-American Tom Heinsohlm. Ken Willoughby provided a pleasant surprise pacing the Friars with 10 points.

Jan. 5, 1955—Mt. Pleasant—Adelphi 77, Providence 71.

Paced by John Ritch and Mike Pascale Friars stayed right in the game with some fine rebounding before being nosed out by their taller New York opponents.

Jan. 7, 1955—Troy, N.Y.—Providence 77, Rensaleer 71.

Friars end losing streak on first of two game road trip. Don Moran's 19 points helped trip Engineers.

Jan. 8, 1955—Springfield Mass.—A.I.C. 82, Providence 70.

Injury jinx strikes again, as Black and White sextet are forced to play without services of their big man, John Ritch as Friars bow to strong Aces quintet. Mike Pascale, Pat Grady, Don Moran and Kenny Kerr were bright spots in a losing cause.

It will be strictly home cooking this week as the Cuddymen tangle with the rebounding Eagles of Boston College tonight, and meet the Springfield Gymnasts at the Mt. Pleasant on Saturday.

Glee Club Cancels Emmanuel Concert

The Glee Club announced this week that its concert scheduled with the Emmanuel College Glee Club on February sixth has been cancelled.

The scheduling of the Dorm Weekend and the Military Ball for the same weekend made it difficult to make arrangements for the concert, which was to be held on our campus.

Meanwhile, plans are progressing smoothly for the tour to be made March, which will be highlighted by the Third Annual Joint Concert with the Trinity College Glee Club in Washington, D. C., on Saturday evening, March 19.

On that tour, the Glee Club will appear at least four times, the definite dates and places of such appearances to be announced in the near future.

Prom Plans Formed

The social highlight of the school year, the Junior Prom, is rapidly being welded into a solid unit. The prom was organized and committees were formed last fall. From time to time meetings were held at which the reports of the various committees were submitted.

To this date no band has been named, but the number of bands has been narrowed down and a definite one will be picked in the next few weeks.

Dr. Whittemore Guest Speaker Of Chemistry Group

Dr. O. J. Whittemore, Jr., of the Morton Co., Research and Development Department, Worcester, Mass., will be the guest speaker at the January meeting of the Rhode Island Section of the American Chemical Society. The meeting will be held in Albertus Magnus Hall on Friday, January 14 at 8:30 p.m. Dr. Whittemore's speech will be on "High Temperature Refractories".

The talk will cover the Chemistry of high temperature materials which are substances capable of withstanding temperatures of about 1000 degrees centigrade or higher. Dr. Whittemore will describe some of the problems which arise when reactions occur at high temperatures, and some of the new materials which have been developed as requirements become more and more stringent.

The meeting will be preceded by a social hour and dinner at the Aquinas Hall Lounge and Dining create closer ties between the members of the class.

The Campus-Centric Party is composed of Stanley Czekalski for President John Coffey for Vice President, Vincent Ferraioli for Secretary, and Bob Brennan for Treasurer.

This party has also pledged itself to sound finance and promises equal representation in the Student Congress to all factions of the class. The candidates have promised to appoint committee members on the standards of "ability, ambition, and interest."

The presidential candidate of the Progress Party is Steve Flynn. His running mates are: Bill Hickey for Vice President, Bill Cronin for Secretary and John Hlewicz for Treasurer.

The platform of the Progress Party was not ready for publication at the time of this writing.

Besides these four parties there are three Independent candidates in the contest—two seeking the office of President and one in the race for the Treasurership. Jack Ryan and Allen Plunkett are nominees for the chief executive post. Bill Galvin is the Independent candidate for Treasurer.

This is the largest field of candidates for freshman office in recent memory and as of this writing, the outcome seemed to be anyone's guess. Not even the seasoned political pundits and seers on the COWL editorial staff would "go out on a limb" to make a prediction.

Sailing Club . . .

tail will be the principal topic of the meeting. Also, plans will be cast for classes in the art of sailing and racing, principally designed for those who wish to learn safety, sailing, and racing on the water. These classes will get under way in the spring. The meeting is scheduled to adjourn in time for those who wish to attend the Boston College-P.C. basketball game to do so.

Again the officers wish to emphasize that the meeting is open to everyone, and those who wish can register as members.

Juniors Seek Acts For Talent Show

An example of Junior drive and class spirit will be shown on February 21, when the Junior class presents the "Junior Talent Show." "The purpose of this show," states Paul J. Fournier, chairman of this affair, "is to cut the expense of the Junior Prom bid."

The show will include patomine, song and dance men, imitations and original skits. Jim Santaniello, Director of the show, has some acts already signed, and reports that a central theme is being written by Daniel Walsh and James J. McLarney. All talent will be drawn from the Junior Class.

Daniel Walsh and Paul J. Fournier have named the following men as directors of this affair: Music, Gerry Corrigan; writers of the main theme, Dan Walsh and Jim McLarney; Richard Rice in charge of Scenic Design; Publicity, Don Fandetti; and Paul Pothin in charge of Program.

A meeting is being held tomorrow at 3:30 p.m. and all Juniors wishing to display their hidden talent, either in entertainment or in any of the above activities, are encouraged to be present.

Home At 2:30? Not These Bankers

By Paul Pothin

Just because the banks close at 2:30 p.m., men, it doesn't mean that the folks who work in them go home at that time. One hundred-seventy-five tellers, accountants, and bank executives attend some of the nine courses offered weekly by the Providence College School of Adult Education.

These courses are not open to the general public, but are offered in conjunction with American Institute of Banking. The fields of study are classified as pre-standard (introductory) standard, and graduate courses. Included in these are such subjects as: Accounting, Economics, Trust, Money and Banking, and Business Administration.

The Providence Chapter of the American Banking Institute was organized in 1902 so that by using a portion of their free time, bank employees might increase their knowledge of their work and also to offer to people engaged in the banking business the opportunity to study varied banking subjects.

The A.I.B. offers classes other than those available at P.C. They retain competent instructors who lecture evenings on the several banking subjects. Mr. Clifford J. Brott, M.A., Assistant Professor of Economics here at P.C. is one of several of the Institute's instructors. He teaches an evening course in Business Administration.

P. C. Professors Attend Medical Convention In N.Y.

Fathers R. S. McGonagle and C. V. Reichart attended the Eastern Regional Conference on Premedical and Preclinical Education held in New York City at the Biltmore Hotel on January 7-8. This conference was sponsored by Alpha Epsilon Delta, the national premedical honor society, into which P.C. was admitted last March.

The conference was one of four being held regionally this year to question and evaluate the findings and recommendations of the Severinghaus Committee and consider how these can be used to improve the program of preprofessional education in the liberal arts college. The morning program on Friday consisted of a symposium of addresses by the deans of the University of Rochester Medical School, University of Pennsylvania School of Dentistry, and the Liberal Arts College of Harvard. Friday afternoon and Saturday morning sessions were devoted to roundtable discussions of the preparation and qualification of students for the study of medicine and dentistry.

Fr. Reichart served as chairman for one of the roundtable groups composed of the deans of Albany, Temple, Vermont and George Washington Medical Schools; Pennsylvania, Harvard and N.Y.U. Dental Schools; and Hobart, Williams, Maryland and Pittsburgh Liberal Arts colleges. The roundtable discussions were organized for an exchange of ideas, opinions and questions on the Severinghaus Report following its evaluation by the symposium speakers.

Two other cars were also at the club's entrance. Once inside the club however one would not notice the precautions as much, Ronnie stated. The secret service men were always there however. Some went around the course as caddies, some were in regular business suits, while still others were walking around the course in sport clothes, all very inconspicuous. After talking with Ronnie I have no fear for the safety of our President. "He is as well protected as it is humanly possible for any man to be," Ronnie announced.

Many things the President does and says are naturally not available for print. One of these is his golf score, which is reported to be in the 80's. In expressing his views of the President to this reporter however, Ronnie did say that he was very impressed by the President's friendliness which "made one feel right at home." As a memento of his trip Ronnie brought home two golf balls autographed by Mr. Eisenhower.
