Public Relations: A Reflection of What is Going On!

The Public Relations office at Roger Williams College isn't spectacular; it's walls are cluttered with newspaper clippings, pictures, posters and includes a 1970 calendar. The floors are littered with boxes containing plastic soap dishes with an imprint of the RWC seal on their covers. Numerous pamphlets are located throughout the tiny room, and it is probably the most misunderstood department in all of Roger Williams College.

The total Public Relations Staff located in the administration building, on the Bristol campus, consists of just one person.

"It's not so important to have a large staff as it is to have a college which feeds information to you", said Martha Matzke, it's coordinator. A small staff can usually get the work done. At large public colleges, the Public Relations office tends to overinflate itself. URI has a staff of 12 people and doesn't include publications.

Here at RWC the Public Relations office entails the entire publications program of the college from catalogues to recruitment material, from brochures to newsletters, events, programs, posters, written material for viewing or reading, news information of the college, news stories to 22 newspapers, and radio statements.

It also gives assistance to all groups putting on events, procures food for college events, refreshments, helps acquire entertainment and places to hold events.

Another function of the Public Relations office provides information to the administration and faculty in the form of a newsletter, which acquaints students of what the administration is doing and vice versa.

"It's a start," replied Martha. "Other colleges have huge tabloid newspapers for faculty and have separate people for events, and separate people for newsletters."

Students don't think what a Public Relations office does and they shouldn't have to, but when you see a pamphlet, or an advertising piece somebody had to plan it and design it and that is the Public Relations person. The Public Relations office is an information system which includes a "whole bunch" of jobs. The Public Relations office shouldn't get attention but people outside the college should know of events and people inside the college should know that these events are disseminated for distribution through the Public Relations office.

Many R.W. students are aware and have asked why more information concerning RWC doesn't appear in the Providence Journal and Evening bulletin. In Martha's opinion, R.I. is a state which is very interested in expenditures of their taxpayers money. The public college receives 90% coverage in the local newspaper.

Roger Williams, as a private college, doesn't involve taxpayers

Latimore Named All-American

Jerry Latimore was named to the Converse Year Book 1971 All-American Basketball Team (Honorable Mention). This marks the second consecutive year that he has won this award. Last year Latimore averaged 19.3 points per game scoring a total of 424 points. He also gathered 466 rebounds for a 21.2 average and a sixth place national ranking on a Small College Level.

This season's Hawks squad will be without the services of Latimore as he is fulfilling a previous military commitment in the United States Army.

Selective Service Creates New Classifications; Throws Out Some Old Ones

Here is a breakdown of what the Selective Service will do in early Dec. and how it affects college students. It will give 18 year olds 60 days instead of five to register for the draft. Every man over 35 may now "burn" his draft card or throw it away.

There is a new classification 2-D, for divinity students, and a new classification 4-G, for sole surviving sons and for men in families where a brother, father or sister died in action or is MIA or is a POW.

They have abolished classification 1-Y, for people medically, mentally or morally unqualified. Those subject to reclassification will be classified 1-A until their status is resolved.

Editorial

Luv That Bureaucratic Power!

There's no doubt about it, this College is run by the bureaucracy and will continue to be run by them. The students have no power and even if they did, would they know what to do with it?

If the accreditation study has revealed a lack of governance on the campuses, and if the Administration is trying to curb this by seating students on various committees, they will fail.

The All College Council is doomed to failure. Most students probably will not want to sit on the Council knowing now it is being re-established by the bureaucracy.

It was originally established by a student, and others became interested. The only way students would become interested in various committees is if they were student initiated.

The Program Board designed to allocate "student" activity fees on the Bristol campus, is composed of students. The overseer to this Board, the "Student" affairs committee, contains administrators. They are not needed. There should be no intervention by Administrators whatsoever on student activity allocations, even if just on paper, "Get rid of them."

The Providence Senate recently showed the film "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid" to a capacity crowd in the student union. Was there only one administrator there? No! There were three including Dean Zannini attired in his prestigious expensive looking suit; all dressed up just for a movie? Probably not.

One Administrator said as soon as he walked in, "What are you going to do with the projector? Confidence! Ah, luv that bureaucratic power!! Just give us a chance.

Guest Editorial Justice and the Environment

by JOHN N. MITCHELL
Attorney General of the United States

Young people have played a primary role in focusing the attention of the Nation on the quality of our environment and the importance of insuring that clean air and water are available for future generations.

During the past two and one-half years, the Department of Justice has recognized the urgency of their concern and has given top priority to the enforcement of federal laws relating to environmental protection.

Our original approach was to give new emphasis to a 72-year-old law - the 1899 Refuse Act -- and to use it as one of our most effective weapons against polluters. Under the Refuse Act all industries which discharge any waste into navigable waters or their tributaries must apply for a permit to do so from the Corps of Engineers, stating that the waste does not pollute the water. If a company discharges without a permit, it is in violation of the law and may be fined as much as $2,500 a day upon conviction.

Criminal actions and civil penalty actions are brought against sporadic or accidental polluters, as in the case of oil spills from ships or from shore installations. We found, however, that the penalties carried by these statutes are ineffective against major industries with continuous discharges.

Therefore, in March 1970, we adopted a second approach to stop pollution by asking the courts to issue civil injunctions. The relief requested in an injunction suit is that the company be ordered to stop discharging its wastes into the tributary or navigable water.

Generally, an attempt is made to negotiate a settlement which specifies treatment facilities to render the wastes harmless to the receiving waters. In the event a settlement cannot be reached, the Court is asked to totally stop the discharge.

Since the beginning of 1969, the Justice Department has filed more than 300 criminal cases seeking fines against polluters. In addition, we have filed more than 65 civil actions for injunctions.

The first civil injunction suit brought under the Refuse Act to abate pollution was filed against the Florida Power and Light Company to halt the discharge of heated water from its power generating plants into Biscayne Bay.

After the federal judge ruled that the discharge of thermal waste is a violation of the Refuse Act, the utility company agreed to undertake a $30 million construction program to lower the temperature of its water discharge to a biologically acceptable level.

This case has resulted in voluntary compliance by promises of additional improvements to many power plants in operation or to be built throughout the United States.

In mid-1970, the Justice Department filed 10 civil injunction cases to halt mercury pollution. Some of the companies sued were dumping as much as 300 pounds of mercury a day into rivers. One of the plants sued closed down and the other nine immediately reduced their mercury discharge to less than half a pound a day. Forty other plants discharging mercury voluntarily cut back their emissions to a fraction of a pound.

Thus, in a period of about six months, we virtually eliminated the hazard that faced the country from the continual dumping of mercury into bodies of water. We have not eliminated the problem caused by the mercury already in the water, but we have brought to a virtual halt any additional pollution.

We have achieved a similar solution to the discharge of sulfite wastes in Washington State with the agreement of the large ITT-Rayonier complex to install upwards of $20 million of pollution control equipment.

We have also vigorously enforced the Refuse Act against companies that discharge toxic and hazardous substances such as cyanide, phenol, chromes and lead into rivers and streams. The first case to go to trial involving such discharges was against the Armco Steel Corporation on the Houston Ship Channel in Texas. In that case the District Court held, in September, 1971, that the Company's toxic discharges should be stopped forthwith.

The three United States Attorneys whose districts cover the New York waterfront are also using the Refuse Act to clean up the New York Harbor and other waterways in their areas.

Of special interest to citizens is the provision of the Refuse Act authorizing payment of half of the fines imposed on polluters to persons who provide information leading to a conviction. Courts have authorized such payments in recent years.

And through the use of still another federal law, the Justice Department prosecuted several oil companies for failing to install safety devices on wells located in the Gulf of Mexico, which resulted in the leakage of thousands of barrels of oil off the coast of Louisiana. The companies paid fines totaling more than $2.25 million.

The full resources of states and localities must be brought to bear on this problem. And, in a nation where governmental power is conferred by the people, the interest and enthusiasm of young people will continue to be a primary factor in our campaign for a clean environment.

Student Wants Security

To The Editor:

Why is it that people at the Prov. campus are always being put down? I am proud to say that I am a member of the student body at the Prov. campus. The people at our campus care and we have a good security force to prove it.

It was my misfortune that I had to be on the Bristol campus, when my tape deck was quite cleverly stolen. The "funny" thing about this is that the car was parked right near the Administration building. It was locked and tapes, tape deck and speaker taken out. This would seem to be a time consuming project and it is unbelievable that nobody saw the theft.

The main question is "Where was security?"

Let me ask another question. Where would you suspect more car theft in a suburban atmosphere or in a metropolitan one?

It would seem logical that there would be more thievery in a metropolitan atmosphere but yet there isn't.

The reason why is because Providence has a good security force that stops this problem before it arises. There are work study boys guarding the lots throughout the day. So Bristol people - why don't you wake up?

money and it's not as newsworthy as the major public colleges.

We have to employ "more coaxing and diplomacy to get reporters here, said Martha. It's an uphill struggle but it's lively and an interesting place." URI and RIC are like "fishbowls" operating on everybody's money.

Martha who holds a B.A. degree from Pembroke was a former reporter for the Providence Journal Bulletin. "There has been more coverage in the Providence Journal in the past year than there has been previously, but it's a long term struggle to establish an image where things are happening. We are just beginning to do this at this College," continued Miss Matzke. Most institutions are riding on reputations established onehalf century ago. Roger Williams has only been a full four year college for two years.

The Public Relations office shouldn't make fiction about what a college is. It should reflect what activity is going on and if it does, it is successful.

Classification 4-F remains for individuals with major disabilities.

Classification 5-A, individuals over 26 who have never been deferred and for those 35 years old who have been, will be abolished.

After the lottery is held and a ceiling is announced, every man with a number above that ceiling will remain 1-H during the following year, 1974, and men below the ceiling will be subject to draft and made 1-A or whatever classification applies.

Men who turn 18 this year will be classified 1-H after their lottery is held next year provided their numbers are above the ceiling. The same will apply for young men turning 20 next year and subject to draft then.

Men may register for the draft anytime from 30 days before their 18th birthday until 30 days thereafter.

A new classification 4-W for CO's who have completed their 2 years of alternate Civilian service has been established.

REVIEW: Coffeehouse Theater

by Wendy Spencer

"Sorry Wrong Number" by Lucille Fletcher-another triumph for the coffee house theater. The play a suspenseful thriller, was built up through conflict, the characters, and dramatic lighting effects. Mrs. Stevenson (Marianne Sarian - Fine the woman who overhears a murder plot, between George (KirkHorne) and Trevit (Scott Racusin) tries to prevent it. All alone and being a cripple she cannot move. The phone is her only contact with the outsideworld. Her attempts fail with the police (Jesse Perry) and his assistant (Carl Arruda), and telephone operators (Wendy Spencer, Maurya McKelvey, Vanessa Wallace, and Debbie Croce). In the climax she realizes she is the intended murder victim, and is killed.

The acting well performed kept the suspenseful pace throughout the play till the dramatic climax.

The Director James Dudelson is to be commended on such a successful handling of a short yet difficult play, due to many technical and dramatic events occurring in the play. Extremely well done!

Special thanks to Mr. Cheshire of the N.E. Phone Co. for the use of the phone booth which added a touch more of realism to the play.

Dorm Gov't Meeting

Lisa Naiburg

The meeting opened with Richard Mathews requesting the use of the exercise room in Tower C for a costume shop for the theater department. He gave a conservative estimate of how often the room would be used; 15 students, each one averaging 15-20 hours a week. As room 105 in the Library now has the equipment from the exercise room, the Dorm Government agreed to write up a contract and present it to Mr. Mathews at the next meeting.

Hal Conner, dorm director, was at the meeting with a few things to say. He reports that the Boiler Room has been complaining of calls in the middle of the day requesting phone numbers of dorm students. The boiler room will only give out phone numbers at night, so dial operator on your phone dial when you need a number in the afternoon.

Tom Jones is interested in any students going out to local high school to recruit students for good, ole R.W.C. Anyone interested contact Mr. Jones.

Hal Conner asked Dorm Government to send memos out to all students to keep unit and fire escape doors locked at all times. This is for your safety, so close a door once in a while. Mr. Connors also made an appeal to the intellectual, mature students here at R.W.C. Would it be too much to ask of you deprived people to stop stealing? Unit and Common Lounge Furniture Chair cushions plus Unit and tower fire extinguishers are missing. Be nice-return the goods.

Good News! Dorm Government was informed that we will be receiving some money. The money received from the mind-blowing pinball machines will either be completely ours or partially ours. Hal Connors will give an exact figure at next week's meeting.

Hal Connors (big new this week) and Frank Parisi are investigating the problem concerning liquor at dorm parties, the responsibility obligations, etc. Again we will hear a report next week.

The Continuing Story of

Roger Williams

Part 48
By James Dudelson

As you last remember Rog was coming down from a good high, and on his way to his first class in three weeks. He made it successfully to the class only to find it was cancelled. Rog who had a wit with words said "Wow my class is cancelled". Rog decided to be adventurous and discover new things so he ventured to the library to look at the books. Rog being observant "Wow look at all the books". Rog then proceeded to the Student Union but couldn't find it. "Wow I can't find the student union." Rog being a real schmuck didn't realize there is no student union.

Will Rog realize there is no student union?
Is Rog really a schmuck?

Bomb Scare: Can you really afford the dime phone call?

Did you ever wonder about the penalty if someone is caught calling in a bomb threat? During the last bomb scare at the Bristol dorms, I had the opportunity to talk to Dean Goldberg on the matter. According to him, anyone caught would be required to appear before the student disciplinary board, and upon the board's recommendation, the college would either take further action or drop the case. It was made clear that the board's decision would probably be quite harsh in matters such as these. The board could recommend that the college legally prosecute the accused individual. If the college did prosecute, and the person was found to be guilty, the sentence could range to a $500 fine and 1 year in jail. In addition, the guilty would be required to assume the obligation for the court costs and lawyer's fees.

It all seems to be a very high price for one phone call.

The eight universities and organizations which sponsored last spring's "Rhode Island Festival: Theatre '71" were among the individuals and groups cited by the New England Theatre Conference at its 20th annual Convention at Northeastern University in Boston, Mass., October 15-17, "for outstanding contribution to theatre activities in New England".

The citation, which was conferred by NETC President Leonidas A. Nickole of Emerson College, Boston, reads:

"...for bringing about the Rhode Island Festival: Theatre '71, free and open to the public, at which the most significant experimental theatre groups in America performed before students and citizens of Rhode Island, expanding their consciousness of theatre in such a way as to totally change the taste and awareness of the entire Region, and to lay foundations for a continuing experimental theatre festival in that area."

Notes

JAMES DUDELSON

The first man season play was presented Oct. 28-31. The play, George Bernard Shaw's "Arms and the Man. I applaud the theater department under the direction of Rich Mathews, for a job well done. It would be hard to single out one performer for excellence, they all were great. To make a play successful, you must understand the interpretation of the play. So I say to Lydia Horton, Maureen Ryan, Sheryl Munn, Sprague Theobald, Kirk Horne, Ralph Burgess, Jesse Perry and Richard Snyder, you would have even suprised "Shaw". And again I must reinerate-a job well done.

When the state ballet presents it's performance of Romeo & Juliet, two R.W.C. students will be amond the performers-James McGuire and Jeff Weinberg. It will be interesting to see Jim's transition from the soccer field to ballet stage. Having already seen Jim in "Giselle" his first ballet three years ago. It should be an enjoyable evening.

The coffee House Theater Nov. 12, will do Shock of Recognition from the play "You Know I Can't Hear You When the Waters Running, a humorous comedy.

The Audio Visual Department will present Woodstock (R), Nov. 12, 13, 14, 15, in Lecture Hall 1. Don't Miss It!

The Providence campus Nov.11 will have the film Up the Down Staircase in the Student Union, Admission 50¢. Admission covers Movie, free beer, and chips. For 50¢ you can't go wrong.

Opinion Poll

What Would You Think of the Idea of a Student Dean?

George Levesque: Student, Roger Williams

I think the idea of a student Dean is good but I don't think this institution is ready for it. The position of Dean is one of bringing a college together. The faculty members wouldn't allow a student to do that.

Carolyn Hardie: Student;
It would depend of course, who the student is. IF HE'S the student. If he's qualified though, there's no reason why not.

Bob Levine: Student
I think it would be pretty good so they could get the opinion of the student. I don't think its possible any other way.

Carol Hathaway: Art Department Head;

Naturally, there are three factors to deal with 1) Administration; 2) Faculty; 3) Students; 4) Trustees. I wonder if they could all agree on such a thing. I think it would disturb me. I think a Dean should know more than us. He should know better how to handle things. Students would offer us a fresh way of looking at and recognizing things. But would he have the experience to deal with it? I would be strongly in favour of a student representative on a Dean's Council, though.

Dean Goldberg:
I'd tend to be conservative or traditional on that. I guess we shouldn't rule it out completely, though. Any student would have a difficult time relating to the faculty as a whole. In the past the idea was regarded as absurd but I guess it's more feasible now. There have been instances of former students in these positions so I suppose it's possible.

BOOK REVIEW

Any Woman Can

by David Reuben

Reviewed by Julia Sherman
Any Woman Can, by Dr. David Reuben, is certainly not a serious, informative book.

What's That?

Can you believe a fellow who tells you that all other male experts don't know anything about women? What makes Reuben different? It is difficult, furthermore, to respect the intellectual integrity of an author who states, on the first page of his book, that "the only real distinction between men and women is their sexuality--in every other respect they are virtually identical."

The book is full of Jane, Natalie, and Jennie telling their stories. It abounds in over-simplifications and questionable judgments. One major misleading point lies in Reuben's treatment of female sexuality, but let's hear Dave tell it in his own words: "the primary thrust of every woman's being is to be fertilized, to conceive, and to reproduce. No force on earth can stand in her way."

So, what's wrong with that? Perhaps Dr. Reuben is only vastly exaggerating so far, but let's hear some more. Speaking of the menstrual cycle, he says, "within this roughly twenty-eight day period, which mysteriously corresponds to the phases of the moon, every female goes from a de-sexualized uninterested bystander to a hormone-primed amazon whose entire physiology is aimed (usually beyond her awareness) at instant reproduction."

cyclic hormone effects as shadowy and easily outweighed by the influence of other life factors. Frank Beach, a leading researcher on sexuality, has concluded that sex is more like appetite than like a drive. Reuben makes it sound like an inexorable force. No doubt he feels it is therapeutic for women to suppose that their sex urges are so imperious that they need not feel guilty about satisfying them.

Does Dr. Reuben have anything useful to say?

Yes, his characterization of the marital relationship is very interesting and has a great deal of truth in it. A woman wants "the perfect happiness and perfect harmony she had--or wished she had--with her mother."

How is knowing that any help?

It highlights the infantile, unconscious basis of the marital relationship. Dr. Reuben then describes in detail how this knowledge can be exploited: how to recognize poor marriage bets, how to find men, how to size up men merely by observing them as a behavioral scientist might, how to predict the future relationship from observing men on a date, how to gather important clues from observing how they eat, how they treat their cars.

But isn't this rather crass and calculating?

Certainly. In these days of sexual revolution, many girls feel it is every girl for herself. Many will welcome any help they can get. An even more serious question is, "will it work?"

'Troilus and Cressida' Opens

According to director Hall, "We're doing something quite different with this work, bringing out the fact that it's one of Shakespeare's funniest -- and the most anti-war piece of them all."

The famous heroes who figured so strongly in the mythic-historic battles which set the scene for Troilus and Cressida include Ulysses (Richard Kneeland), Agamemnon (William Cain), Hector (Richard Kavanaugh), Achilles (David Kennett), Paris (Jon Kimbell), Nestor (David C. Jones), Aeneas (William Damkoehler), Priam (Donald Somers).

William Shakespeare's comic masterpiece Troilus and Cressida is the new Trinity Square Repertory Company offering which opened Tuesday, Nov. 2, at Trinity Square Playhouse in Providence. Director Adrian Hall has taken a new approach to the classic piece which depicts the humorous trials and tribulations of lovers caught in the misadventures of the Trojan War.

An "environmental" scenic design which incorporates audience with staging is being executed by Trinity Square's Eugene Lee. Complex lighting effects are being done by Roger Morgan with costumes, reflective of Fellini's "Satyricon," designed by Betsy Potter. Special musical score for the Shakespearean classic has been written by composer-in-residence Richard Cumming.

Cressida is being portrayed by Jobeth Williams and Troilus by new-comer Joseph Culliton, while George Martin plays the infamous Pandarus and James Eichelberger is the comic Thersites.

An extension of Trinity Square's Interim Season subscription campaign has been made so that new subscribers may see Troilus, the world premiere of Down by the River Where Waterlilies are Disfigured Every Day, a return engagement of Child's Play, and Arthur Miller's modern American classic The Price. The Trinity Square telephone number is (401) 351-4514.

Well, will it work?

Many of the techniques suggested seem valid enough, but one shudders to think of how they may be applied. One also wonders if being hand-fed milk products wouldn't appeal more to an ulcer patient than to a good marriage prospect. Taken with a box of salt, the good doctor's advice probably won't be harmful; however, for the uninitiated this book will confuse as much as instruct. Women desperate to marry may find it helpful and men who want to know the "opposition" game plan will find it mandatory reading.

Love Means . . .

Future Shock, the sociologists tell us. Future Shock? Never. We're suffering from Schlock Shock. And it all revolves around one word: Love.

What used to be so personal, private and intimate has turned into a merchandising formula for wealthy would-be poets and capitalistic couldn't-be writers who never have to say they're sorry.

Mass-produced love, like hula hoops and Barbie Dolls, is a new vogue. "Love is universal and love is an easy thing to merchandise," says the merchandising director of Paramount records. And not only are there bountiful banal books and multitudinous maudlin movies about the subject, but we're buying those books and seeing those movies. We're not being taken by it. We're taking it in.

We're allowing today's millionaire mod prophets to perpetuate old romantic myths that dictate the meaning and greening and, worse yet, how we can find Love.

In order to find The Meaning of Love, you have to play hockey at Yale, break away from your rich father and find a poor girlfriend who has leukemia.

You'll find it if you get rid of your bad breath. Or the frizzies. Or psoriasis. Or your mild case of terminal acne.

You'll find it if you buy the world a Coke.

You'll find it if you live alone-alone with a cat named Sloopy.

Cardboard Love is enveloping -- rather than developing -- us. In poetry, in movies, on television, in alleged literature.

"i used to be in love with my teddy bear, but i love you lots more." proclaims a book called "i love you" that's guaranteed to be so impersonal you can give it to anyone -- your lover, your mother or your teddy bear. One dollar please.

Or Peter McWilliams who has written a slew of sappy books ("Come Love with me & be my Life," "I love therefore I Am," not to mention "The Hard Stuff: Love.") His books contain such hard stuff as:

- first
I lived for love.
then
I lived in love.
then

I lived love.
now, with you
I just love!

Two dollars please.
But their books read like Walgreen greeting cards compared to the works of the fathers of them all: Erich Segal and Rod McKuen.

Love Story: about a male student who plays hockey instead of hookey. About a coed who gets married and then buried. $5.95 in hard-back, 95¢ in paper-back please.

And Maestro McKuen: "If they could overlook my acne/and the inch I lacked/to carry them to heaven,/I too could deal in charity." $4.50 please.

"Rod puts into words all the things I feel," said one girl I know who doesn't even have acne. She considers McKuen's prose-poetry to be good literature because it puts her feelings into words. But good literature takes words and transforms them into feelings.

McKuen and Segal deal in greeting card kitsch, but on a different level than the others. They manipulate us into wanting to believe that love is easy. Their works are read quickly, cried and sighed over quickly. They lead us into a fantasy world, where life is a love story, where loneliness is a national pastime, exceeded only by leukemia and acne. And they laugh all the way through the bunk and to the bank.

Love Story has sold more than five million copies and was made into a successful (financially, anyway) movie. McKuen's books and records have earned The Bard more than $5 million a year. Not bad for a little love.

And what does it all mean? It means that we're desperate enough to find out the meaning of love that we'll go through one-night stands with McKuen and Segal, who have become Dr. Ruebens in romantic drag. everything you/always wanted/ to know...

So what does it all mean? The answer is probably best put in one of McKuen's own poems: "If you had listened hard enough/ you might have heard/what I meant to say: Nothing."

But whatever they meant to say, they say it over and over and over again.
Maybe love means you never has to say.

"Wings Out Of The North"

by Matt Nolin

The 1971 hunting season has proved to be a rather discouraging one thus far. All the major newspapers, prior to the opening of the hunting season, had predicted this to be the best year for waterfowling in a decade. Personally this prediction has bombed out!

Opening day I must admit, was rather good, for I limited out on native mallards and wood ducks. However, this opening day luck is not unusual to the opening day of any season, whether it be fishing or hunting. The game at this time has not been disturbed as yet, and therefore it is less wary and easier to obtain. The true proof of quality of a game season lies in it's consistency.

The 1971 duck season hasn't been consistent in it's product by any means, for it has progressed rather odd that the experts would predict this to be such a good season, and yet, it has turned out to be so terrible. For the solution to this mystery, I think we should take a look at the facts the experts base their reasoning on.

1. THE NESTING GROUNDS.

According to the experts, such as Ducks Unlimited for example, this year waterfowl had ample nesting and feeding grounds - thanks to the contributions of the federal duck stamp, Ducks Unlimited itself, and private donations.

2. THE DUCK POPULATION

Conducted according to aerial and biological surveys this past spring in the Canadian nesting grounds, the ducks hatch has been the best in ten years. "Mother duck is off the pill" for she has been cited with an abundant brood.

With all these facts in our favor why then has ducks season been so poor? No one has stated reason as yet, but I think I have the answer. I believe the hunting has been poor because the mild weather. The one fact the experts didn't mention for a prosperous hunting season, is cold weather. Waterfowl need cold weather to get them started in their southern migration. With this mild weather we have been having the ducks have no reason to migrate to the comforts the south affords, for they have it where they are now.

I think, however, if we are a little more patient the migrating flocks will soon be upon us.

So far now, take your mosquito repellent with you, and keep your eyes toward the north.

Duck Calls

Are there any sporting fans in the audience? Well, as many of you know hunting season is here and its time to dust off your shotgun. Someone must have noticed the flocks of Canadian geese passing overhead as their shrill honks fill the air and if you are like me you want to get a head start on the game, especially geese or ducks.

One simple method to hunt this type of game is to use blinds. Blinds are easy to build yet they take time. Here are some simple steps to follow: Find an area where the ducks usually settle and you've located a good spot to build your blind. Next, build an outline to the blind with sturdy pine branches and make four walls. The height of the blind will vary according to your likes. Cover the outline with pine branches fully dressed. Add any other types of camouflage as long as it is secure. For the top of the blind you could use a green tarp or plastic covering as long as it too is camouflage. Set out your decoys and just wait for the "bastards" to land. If your blind is close to the water you can easily blow them up but there is no guarantee you'll have any duck left.

Next time you go duck hunting you might want to try this method. It works and it has always worked for me. Oh, one more thing, watch out for those splinters, they're "SMARTS"!!

Hawks Elect Co-Captains In Basketball

Roosevelt Benton and Dwight Datcher have been elected Co-Captains of the Roger Williams College Basketball Squad for the 1971-72 season Coach Tom Drennan announced. The Hawks begin their campaign Saturday, December 4th in Providence against Curry College.

Benton, a 1965 graduate of Central High School in Providence, was one of the first outstanding athletes coached by Jimmy Adams there. He served in the United States Marine Corps for two years and was stationed in Vietnam during that time. He entered Roger Williams in the fall of 1968 and played Varsity Basketball during the 68-69 season. "Bells", a Sociology Major, coached in the Providence Recreation League during the 69-70 and 70-71 seasons and is making a comeback for the young Hawks this season. He has also made a name for himself in the literary field with his flair for Poetry. Coach Drennan expects "Bells" to add a degree of maturity to an otherwise young Basketball squad.

Datcher, the son of Mr. & Mrs. Harry Datcher of Washington, D. C. played his high school ball at St. Anthony's High School under John Thompson, former P. C. and Celtic star. Dwight was a spot starter as a freshman last season when he averaged 6.8 points per game overall and 14.7 points per game in the games that he started. An excellent ball handler, Dwight is expected to be the floor general for the Hawks this season. A sophomore this season, Datcher is majoring in Sociology.

Ski Club News

by Bob Cinq Mars

Wednesday, November 3rd, the first meeting of the RWC Ski Club was held. Despite poor attendance and a lack of enthusiasm the election of officers took place. No one seemed to want to run for anything so after about 15 minutes of deliberation the following officers were "elected..." Ken Desrosiers treasurer, Tom Holland Vice President, Bristol, Bill Wadbrook Vice President, Providence, and Alison Moore President.

Last year the Providence Campus gave $1300 worth of support to club and Bristol only about $800. This helps pay for transportation lift tickets, lessons and rooming. Dues were set at $5.00. A committee was also formed to plan a fund raising "party" to be held in the Providence Student Union, with a bar and band. I'm looking forward to that bash!

All in all the Ski Club is a great way to meet new friends, save lots of money and most of all, to have fun skiing.

DRAG TIME

By Anday Iamascia

About a week ago I was sitting in the lounge trying to relax when I was accosted by a very disgruntled student. His main gripe was that everything that has gone into our feature pertained to a machine with over five hundred horsepower and nothing for the average driver. Well, here we go folks.

While driving through the parking lots this week it came to my attention that the car that we see the most is the Volkswagen. We've decided to do something for those of you who drive a bug.

If you've ever paid to have your bug tuned or timed, you have come to the conclusion that it is a rip off. Well here is a way you can do the work your self that won't cost you an arm and a leg.

The tools needed are a long shaft screw driver, a feeler gauge and a 13mm socket wrench. Now don't panic. The tools can be obtained from Kevin Knoop, Rm. 363. He also provides all the advice you will need to complete the work.

Step One. Turn the crank shaft until you find the timing notch on the crankshaft pulley. Line this mark up with the timing mark on the engine block itself. The two marks should form a vertical line. (We were going to put in illustrations of the work however, they would have to be too small to be effective, but they are available through the Quill Office in Bristol.

Step Two. After you have the timing marks line up properly, take the distributor cap off, being sure to be careful in not removing any of the plug wires from the cap, it's a pain in the neck to get them back in properly. Now loosen the hold down nut for the distributor, this is where the distributor bolts to the engine block. You will ne a mark on the inside lip of the distributor body and a mark on the brass tip of the rotor. Line these up, and once that is done, tighten the distributor body once again.

Step Three is setting the points. This step is done by loosening the breaker screw, then taking the feeler gauge 016inch and set your points. If the points are worn replace them; it's a hell of a lot easier then trying to set old points. Make sure you set the points correctly, it is very critical. Now recheck your work to make sure that you have set the gap correctly, by doing some checking now you can save your self the time and trouble of dismantling everything again.

The final step is done with the use of a continuity lamp. Connect the lamp clip to the ground lead on the ignition coil and touch the body of the lamp to the body of the distributor, loosen the hold down nut of the distributor (mentioned in step two) and rotate the distributor body until the light shines the brightest. Then tighten down the nut once again re-install the distributor cap and your car has been timed. With this work and a new set of plugs, you beat the cost of having someone tune and time your bug for you and most likely will have done a hell of a better job.

So the next time your bug is running a little rough and you don't have the cash to have it tuned, think of us, we're good for all sorts of informations.

Before I forget, I want to thank Kevin Knoop for the technical part of this feature. He does a fine job at this type of work, and is a wizz at static timing. For those of you who didn't know what static timing

The History of the Frisbee

by Alden D'Amico

The well known and popular sport, Frisbee, had very humble beginnings. It all started around the turn of the century at a well known Connecticut College known affectionately as Yale University.

The Frats of Yale used to frequent a local bakery known as Frisbee's Bakery. They would get together and buy a couple of pies that Frisbee was well known for. They would then go to a local field and toss the pie pan around to each other and as the famous writer Balzac once exclaimed, "Eureka, I found it" it being the FRISBEE!!!

After a while the Frisbee was lost. But a strange thing happened. A few years after W.W.II an enterprising man, who happened to be a son of one of the Yale frats, decided to revive the Frisbee. Not the same as the pie plate but something like the present day Frisbee. It was heavier looked like a small flying saucer. As you know the flying saucer craze was hitting all the C rated movies and he felt it would sell. Well it didn't go that way and he started losing money. The middle Fifties proved profitable for him. He sold all rights to the Wham-O toy company. It still didn't sell, but Wham-O kept at it. Well capitalism triumphed. Around 1965 the present day frisbee started selling like hotcakes. On every beach and in every backyard Frisbees were flying. When they showed up people said, Oh no! not another one of those hoola-hoop monsters. But for some strange reason the Frisbee out lived the hoola-hoop and today it stands in the ranks of the Flag Apple pie and MOTHER. Well as MRr. Riply would say, "Believe it or not".

Kennedy Center Opens

This past July, the Kennedy Center finally opened under the supervision of Mrs. Luella Hennessey. The center is located on 808 East St. in Walpole, Mass., within the Blessed Sacrament Grammar School, and is opened from 8:30 till 2:30, Mon. through Fridays. The center is mainly for mentally retarded children from the ages of 1 to 5.

Parents bring their children on the day they are scheduled for with sufficient meals. The center is similiarly run as a child care center but much more attention is given to the children. Therapists and volunteers help the children to walk and learn to adapt themselves with other children. Groups of five are taken each day with the exception of Thurs: on Thurs. a group of seven children are cared for. The system is very informal; parents bring their children in at morning and pick them up in the afternoon. The main advantage with such a center is children can receive much more help here than at home, where, in most cases children are mistreated by parents. There are those parents who are uncooperative and think the center should be run their way, but there are always those kinds of people around. Hopefully, more parents will come aware that the center is the best thing for their children and with the equipment the center has, the most rewarding.

Presently volunteers are desperately needed. Any students who live within the Walpole area
