11:15 AM Panel Discussion: Is There a Disconnect between Public and Private Market Valuations?
As the Fed began increasing interest rates and real estate values began to fall, there has been a widening gap between cap rates used by appraisers in the private sector vs. cap rates implied by the valuation of real estate held by publicly traded REITs. Which one is correct? Or are they measuring two different things? This panel will explore the reasons for observed differences and the challenge in determining the "correct" value when market conditions are rapidly changing.
