Good morning, good afternoon, and good evening to our participants at today's Belonging Talk. Integration and Belonging Hub "Virtual Brown Bag" Series. I'm Leora Kahn, Research Scholar at Clark University, and co-convenor of the Integration and Belonging Hub. Our speaker today is Gaisu Yari, who will share her thoughts on the topic of "Afghan Refugee Voices: What does belonging look like in host countries?"

Tech briefing:

"Before starting the session, let me explain a few technical aspects of the Zoom platform:As always, your active participation in today's discussion is encouraged, and you can submit questions and comments throughout the event.

Use the Q&A button to submit questions to our panelists. Note that if you use the Q&A button, you have the option to submit your question anonymously. This meeting will be recorded and available on our soon-to-be launched Integration and Belonging website.

Leora introductory remarks:

If you are just joining us, we welcome you to our second Integration and Belonging Hub virtual brown bag speakers series. The Integration and Belonging Hub is an initiative of CLark Unviersity, and promotes collaboration among departments, engagement between academic and community partners, student involvement, and innovative research towards understanding multi-directional processes of migration and social cohesion. Building upon models of urban sustainability, an Integration and Belonging Hub views migrants and refugees as a vital part of 21st-century transformation in the face of significant social, economic, political, and environmental strain.

Today we welcome our speaker Gaisu Yari is a former Commissioner in the Civil Service of Afghanistan and a human rights advocate who holds a master's degree in Human Rights from Columbia University and a bachelor's degree in Middle Eastern and Gender Studies from the University of Virginia. In addition to her work in Afghanistan with National and International Organization, Gaisu is leading Afghan Voices of Hope and traveling around the world to see those in exile, collect their personal narratives and work on a collective voice for the emerging diasporas from Afghanistan. She is also a public speaker on gender justice. As an activist, Gaisu speaks at conferences, to individual organizations, and in the media on the rights of women in Afghanistan.

Gaisu will give her presentation!!!

Leora invites questions from the audience

Leora chooses 2 good questions from Q&A and pops them into the Chat for Gaisu to see;
Leora asks the questions to Gaisu to answer

Leora:

Thank Gaisu
