Edith Cowan University

Research Online

2023

Relational employability teaching-learning framework

Elizabeth J. Cook
Edith Cowan University, e.cook@ecu.edu.au

Foundational career development and identities

- skills, competencies, attributes
- self-awareness
- professional-personal identities
- career action planning
- getting and securing work
- achieving personal outcomes and goals

Relational employability

Contributions to local and global challenges

- ecological issues and concerns
- technological issues and anxieties
- conservation and reliance on material things
- caring about other species
- sustainability in workplaces and homes

Interactions with other people

- interactions with people and building networks; social and professional
- responsibilities to other people, e.g., family, friends, colleagues
- interpersonal support, advice, friendship, expertise, etc. (offered and received)
- valuing, demonstrating and promoting equity and social justice