PRESIDENT JACOBS SEES AN HONOR STUDENT CONGRATULATED BY HON. DANIEL C. ROPER, SECRETARY OF COMMERCE OF THE UNITED STATES —A RECENT COMMENCEMENT SPEAKER.

economic independence and the assurance of steady and profitable employment in the future.

Bryant is more than a "business school." It is a College of Business Administration, a college in the true sense of the word, empowered by the laws of the State of Rhode Island to confer degrees, both Bachelors' and Masters', in Business Administration, Accountancy, Secretarial Practice, and Teacher-Training. Its Teacher-Training Courses also are accredited by the State Board of Education.

For the undergraduate at Bryant, college life can well be described as an absorbing set of experiences in which the student learns to work hard and play hard.

The illustrations in this booklet will give some idea of the classroom discussions, the athletics, the student activities, publications and associations which enliven and enrich the experience of every member of the college. No attempt is made to describe them in detail, a task which would be impossible in such limited space. The important point to remember in connection with the whole matter of undergraduate activities here is this: the college believes that each student should have every opportunity and encouragement to develop latent talent to the fullest possible extent. Dramatics, debating, athletics, fraternity and sorority life, all should contribute to this desirable end, but not one of these features of college should ever be allowed to become a burden or be permitted to deprive the students of time which they need or prefer to spend on their academic work.

The influence of Bryant is far-reaching. While half of its students are drawn from New England, the remainder come from many different parts of the United States, from Canada and from several foreign countries.

Applicants whose previous academic records satisfy the board of admissions of the students' ability to do work of college grade are admitted without examinations. For admission to the regular courses of the College, only High School graduates or college and university students are eligible. Examinations are required only when students are not fully certified in the regular way. During the past year, students from seventy-two universities and other colleges, two hundred forty high schools and one hundred twenty preparatory schools and academies have enrolled here.

Just as the outstanding academic colleges are known for the work they offer in special fields, the name of Bryant-Stratton College in Providence is recognized in its own field of higher business training. A Bryant degree carries prestige in business.

As new times demand new methods, Bryant keeps pace with the latest developments in business and in business education. It maintains a policy of giving its best to students.

The college was the first institution of its kind to introduce innovations to conserve the student's time, reduce his expenses, and in general to install efficiency ideas in education.

While its courses require but two years for completion, the actual number of hours spent in study equal those required in the average four-year college program. This is made possible by a longer college year, more class hours a week, and more hours given in study a day. Where colleges, as a rule, require between fourteen and eighteen class hours per week, Bryant requires twenty-five. The Bryant school year is forty-eight weeks with only a few recesses. The average college operates on a plan of thirty-six weeks with extended vacations.

Parents and prospective students are invited to visit the college, to meet the instructors, to attend classes, if they desire, in order to obtain a true first-hand impression as to the character of the student body and methods employed in the class activities.

AN ECONOMICAL PROGRAM

FORTUNATELY, most young men and young women in this country are forced to face reality early in life; to live well they are required to make a good living; to enjoy culture they are thrust into commerce that makes culture possible; and they realize early that education is not so much a matter of time as it is of progress.

It is a question whether the average liberal arts college courses sufficiently develop those characteristics of industry, initiative, thrift, and appreciation of the importance of hard work that are required in the building of a successful business career.

Doctor William H. P. Faunce, late President Emeritus of Brown University, has said:

"All who want education should have it; but the vast majority would benefit by some other kind of education."

TWO-YEAR DEGREE PROGRAM

AT BRYANT-STRATTON COLLEGE a student who completes a degree program in two years has had as many recitation and lecture periods of one hour each as are required for the completion of an average four-year academic college course. His expenses have been cut down; he has cultivated habits of industry invaluable to him in business; and his entrance into a paying business position has been moved forward two years.

Each year hundreds of students who seek efficient and thorough training for preferred positions in business come to Bryant College. These students find the Bryant plan of study the shorter, direct route to business success, and they welcome the opportunity to secure higher education for business in two years, at half the average expense of a four-year course.

CENTER OF EDUCATION AND INDUSTRY

THE location of Bryant-Stratton College in the cultural environment of Providence, a university city in a thriving industrial community, affords pleasant and profitable advantages to its students. Parents are impressed by the protected and homelike conditions provided in its attractive residential and social centers.

Industrially, Providence is an important center for cotton, woolen, jewelry, silverware, machines and small tool manufacturing. The Brown & Sharpe Manufacturing Company of Providence, nationally known makers of small tools and precision instruments; the Gorham Manufacturing Company, one of the largest manufacturers in the world of sterling silver and bronze works of art; the Nicholson File Company, the world's largest makers of files of all kinds; the Rumford Chemical Works, where Rumford Baking Powder is made; the Wanskuck Mills, famous textile manufacturers; and many other outstanding business organizations, employ Bryant graduates.

As a university city, Providence offers the advantages that naturally pertain to an educational center. Its delightful location on Narragansett Bay, near several of the most famous summer playgrounds of the country—its attractive parks and sports facilities—afford healthful recreation and outdoor activities for leisure hours.

LARGE SCHOOL—SMALL SCHOOL

AN INDUSTRY does not ordinarily remain small for an indefinite period of years through its own choice. A business which renders satisfactory service grows by building prestige and good will among its clientele.

Similarly, a college grows through its alumni. Bryant graduates, well pleased with the training they have had and the advancement made possible for them, recommend the college to their friends and acquaintances who are interested in following their footsteps. Employers, noting the competent manner in which Bryant graduates handle their work, recommend the college.

SMALL CLASSES—INDIVIDUAL ATTENTION

HIGH school graduates are sometimes influenced by the impression that a smaller institution may give them more individual attention and permit them to make more rapid progress.

As a matter of fact, the opposite is more frequently true. In the small school, one instructor usually has to teach several subjects, sometimes to the entire student body, or to large divisions of it.

At Bryant College a large staff of experienced teachers, specialists in their particular fields, is constantly maintained. Classes are carefully divided, and limited in group quotas, to insure the correct methods of teaching each course, to sustain enthusiasm and to encourage initiative of the students.

Because of its size, its long experience in organizing a business curriculum, its broader contact with employers, the completeness of its equipment, its facilities for leadership, and the fact that it can command the services of a highly trained and thoroughly competent staff—Bryant College is able to offer students more intensive training, more competent advice, better safeguards for future employment, a broader scope of placement opportunities, closer personal attention and more rapid individual advancement than the smaller school with facilities necessarily more limited.

Every precaution is taken to safeguard the health, happiness and educational attainments of a Bryant student. The small school, on the other hand, due to lack of equipment both physical and personal, is not in a position to render the quality and variety of individual assistance to students that the larger school can give.

HELPFUL VOCATIONAL ADVICE

To PROSPECTIVE students, Bryant-Stratton College offers the services of its experienced vocational counsellors to assist you in choosing the field of endeavor in which you are most likely to achieve success. Full and frank information is given about the requirements, duties and rewards in diversified lines of business, and a careful study is made of the personality and ability of the individual to help you determine whether or not you are fitted to undertake the work you may have in mind.

This vocational guidance service is continued after students have been admitted and throughout their college courses. A program is made up to fit the needs of each individual student, a careful check of his progress is kept, and reports issued monthly.

Any student failing to maintain satisfactory progress is interviewed personally to determine the cause, and when it is deemed advisable, special tutoring is arranged for him after regular school hours. It is a rule of the College to give every student as much individual attention and as close personal assistance as possible, to make him proficient in the work he has elected.

A SOUND INVESTMENT

FROM several points of view, there is no better investment for a young person than in a thorough business education. In the first place, it is absolutely safe—no one can ever take your business training away from you. It can never be lost—it is a foundation to build on.

A small investment of time and money in higher education for business means starting in a better position at higher wages, more rapid advancement, and greatly increased earnings in the years to come.

YOU CAN AFFORD COLLEGE TRAINING

HAVE you ever stopped to consider how little a college education costs, yet how much it will cost you if you are not equipped with one?

Many times high school graduates feel that it is impossible for them to secure a higher education, primarily due to lack of money. Ambitious young men and young women can help themselves by working in part-time positions while attending college, and in this manner help to complete a training so necessary to insure their future success.

Bryant College is always willing to help an ambitious student to locate in a position if it means the difference between college training or none. The College maintains a regular service for this purpose and during the past year had a considerable number of students employed in part-time work.

Money invested in savings in any bank will bring you, at the maximum, four per cent interest. If you were to secure a larger rate of interest, you would be fearful of the safety of the money on deposit. For example, five hundred dollars on deposit would bring interest for the entire year in the amount of twenty dollars. A similar amount expended for a college education, for one of the shorter courses, would bring you your entire investment back the first year, with a profit of fifty per cent even if you were to start in a position paying only fifteen dollars a week.

In many instances, parents, realizing how necessary it is to protect their children's future, borrow on their life insurance to give their sons and daughters an education which they themselves, through adverse circumstances, were unable to secure.

WHAT OTHERS THINK OF BRYANT-STRATTON COLLEGE

BRYANT-STRATTON COLLEGE has earned a distinct place in the educational and business fields of its community, as well as a national reputation among outstanding leaders.

Daniel C. Roper, Secretary of Commerce of the United States, in addressing the graduating class at the Annual Commencement Exercises last August, complimented the college upon its constructive educational service and the students, saying:

“Your degrees and diplomas from this long-tested and highly-respected institution will admit you into a world workshop, and I congratulate you on being permitted to wear its badge of approval, its emblem endorsing your business equipment, your good citizenship, your integrity, and your individual character. You are fortunate in having been here prepared for this New Era through the inculcation of correct regard for sound and equitable government and for the responsibilities of such citizenship.”

Prominent educators and other men high in business or professional life have honored the College with their presence as speakers at the Annual Commencement. Among these men were Mr. Nicholas Roosevelt, former Associate Editor of the New York Times and later Ambassador to Hungary; Dr. James L. McConaughy, President of Wesleyan University, Middletown, Connecticut; Dr. Clarence A. Barbour, President of Brown University; and Honorable Ira Lloyd Letts, Judge of the United States District Court, Providence, Rhode Island.

Other Commencement speakers, and Honorary Alumni of the College, upon whom Masters' Degrees have been conferred, were Honorable Daniel C. Roper, present Secretary of Commerce of the United States; Honorable Charles Curtis, former Vice President of the United States; Honorable Ogden L. Mills, former Secretary of the Treasury of the United States; Colonel George W. Gardiner, Banker and former Collector of the Port of Providence, and Honorable Felix Hebert and Honorable Jesse H. Metcalf, present Senators of the United States from Rhode Island.

In recent years the College has conferred Masters' Degrees upon Mr. Henry Ford of Dearborn, Michigan; Colonel G. Edward Buxton, President of B. B. & R. Knight Corporation; Mr. Gilbert T. Hodges, Member of the Executive Board of the New York Sun; Mr. Joseph H. Appel, Director of Advertising and Publicity for John Wanamaker, New York; Honorable Frederick Stanhope Peck, for many years State Finance Commissioner of Rhode Island; Dr. John Robert Gregg, Creator of the Gregg System of Shorthand; Mr. William L. Sweet, Treasurer of the Rumford Baking Powder Company of Providence, Rhode Island; Mr. Everett E. Salisbury, General Agent of the Atlantic Mills of Providence, Rhode Island; Mr. Harry C. Wolfenden, President of R. Wolfenden & Sons Dye Works of Attleboro, Massachusetts; Mr. Henry C. Dexter, Textile Executive; Mr. Howard E. Gladding, Secretary and General Manager of the Morris Plan Company of Rhode Island; Mr. George M. Parks, General Agent for Rhode Island of the Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance Company; Mr. Albert E. Potter, President of the United Electric Railways Company; and Dr. Frederic J. Farnell, Chairman of the Public Welfare Commission of Rhode Island.

THE PLACEMENT SERVICE BUREAU

BUSINESS employers seek Bryant-Stratton graduates because they recognize them as well-trained, intelligent workers.

Through years of prompt, effective help in selecting the right candidates for positions to be filled, the College Placement Service Bureau, with a competent director in charge, has earned the confidence of business employers.

Leading executives recognize in Bryant graduates capable workers, ready to undertake the duties of the better positions and qualify for promotion to higher ones. Many of these executives are themselves Bryant-Stratton trained. In fact, thousands of alumni of the college, now located throughout the United States, are of considerable help in placing graduates, as they are familiar with the training the college gives and are interested in lending a helping hand to young persons just starting on the road they themselves have traveled.

WHAT OTHERS SAY

THE success of Bryant-Stratton College is shown in the successful careers of its graduates, thousands of whom are holding preferred positions in business as the result of training they obtained here. The following letters are but a few of hundreds of similar ones in the files of the College Offices from satisfied employers, parents and graduates.

MASSACHUSETTS MUTUAL LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY, General Agency for Rhode Island, Providence, R. I.

In the office of the Rhode Island Agency of the Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance Company at Providence, handling the largest strictly Ordinary business in the state, five of our important office executives are graduates of your institution.

Our Miss Easterbrooks is numbered among the most expert insurance women in the country and stands Number One among the women representatives of this Company.

Another, Miss Whitaker, has a competent knowledge of the intricacies of insurance taxation, and has occupied an important position with us for years.

Still another, Mrs. Helen Mott Rayner, is our efficient office manager.

WHAT OTHERS SAY

All of these, as well as other Bryant-Stratton graduates in this office, are highly-trained specialists and reflect, in a marked degree, the splendid fundamental training they received at your institution.

GEO. L. CLAFLIN COMPANY, Wholesale Druggists, Providence, R. I.

It is a pleasure to express my complete satisfaction with the graduates of Bryant-Stratton College now in our employ. This satisfaction best expresses itself in the following figures representing the number on our pay-roll for the past nine years with Bryant-Stratton training: 1924—2; 1926—3; 1927—4; 1929—5; 1930—6; 1933—8.

At the present time your graduates are filling the positions of Office Manager, Assistant Office Manager, Secretary to General Manager, Secretary to Office Manager, Cashier, two Accounts Receivable Bookkeepers, and one Billing Clerk.

Our experience has been that your graduates are the best trained and most capable and efficient workers that can be secured. We do not hesitate to recommend Bryant-Stratton graduates to any employer who is seeking to strengthen his organization.

Miss Lucile Carroll, who graduated from your college, was a secretary in this office for a year and a half. Her work was most satisfactory. She was efficient and set a very high standard for business ethics.

Miss Carroll moved away from New York in December 1932, and ever since then has been the secretary and office manager of the Pawling Chronicle, which is owned and edited by my son. I should think any college of business would be very proud to point to such a student in its alumnae.

Selling Agents for B. B. & R. Knight Corporation

40 WORTH STREET, NEW YORK

Your recent letter brought to mind a very pleasant and profitable year spent in your college. The secretarial training received during that year was the first step in my business career.

After graduation, I was secretary for several years to the Advertising Manager of the Providence Journal. This work brought very definite interest in advertising and promotional work.

For a short time I was secretary to the Treasurer of the Providence Journal and when he was invited to become the President of the B. B. and R. Knight Corporation, the makers of Fruit of the Loom Muslin, he asked me to join this organization with him.

When this company decided to expand its program and make printed fabrics, I was asked to join the Styling Department. This work has been most interesting, because it has combined the styling and promotion of new fabrics. Gathering information and promoting these fabrics has taken me to many parts of our own country, and this last summer I spent a month in France obtaining style information for 1934.

Sincerely yours,

THEATRICALS PROVIDE TRAINING IN POISE AND DICTION

OVER, ORMISTON & COMPANY, Accountants and Auditors, Providence, R. I.

We are very glad indeed to comply with the request contained in your letter of October 10th, with regard to certain graduates of your College who are now in our employ. These are as follows: Arthur L. Burton, Robert M. Linnell, J. Duncan Macdonald, Mary Mercak.

The services of all the above have been satisfactory to us. The first three named came to us shortly after they graduated from your College, as Junior Accountants. Mr. Burton and Mr. Linnell have been doing senior work for several years. Mr. Burton passed his C.P.A. examination in November, 1932, the first time of writing, which is unusual, especially at the age of twenty-four. Mr. Linnell will probably secure his C.P.A. Certificate next month. As you are aware, Mr. Macdonald was an honor student in the class of 1933. Judging from the short time he has been with us, we have every reason to believe that he will obtain his C.P.A. Certificate in due course. Miss Mercak has been in our employ for some time and is Secretary to the writer. Her service is quite satisfactory.

Judging from the ability displayed by the above and our observation of their work, we are satisfied that all these employees were well trained.

May we be permitted to conclude by stating that, in our opinion, Bryant-Stratton College holds a very enviable record for the number and class of students which it has graduated, which speaks well for the faculty and volumes for the President of the Institution.

BODELL & COMPANY, Bankers, Providence, R. I.

It has always been our first reaction when there was a vacancy, especially in our cashier's department, to get in touch with your institution for a list of your graduates who might be available.

We have a number of your graduates in our employ, and have found their work very satisfactory, which is a direct result, without doubt, of the thorough training which they received at your college.

NEW ENGLAND MANUFACTURING JEWELERS' AND SILVERSMITHS' ASSOCIATION

Providence, Rhode Island

I am glad to tell you that the four young ladies in our office are graduates of one or more of your departments in business administration, and I have found in my experience in employing young men and women that your graduates are equipped with a thorough training in the fundamentals required of them in the business world.

I am always glad to consider the application of a Bryant-Stratton College graduate whenever the occasion arises.

PROVIDENCE GAS COMPANY, Providence, Rhode Island

From time to time we have employed graduates of the Bryant-Stratton College. Many are now holding responsible positions in our Company (two being executive officers).

In our opinion the thorough training in business fundamentals which students receive at Bryant-Stratton College plays an important part in the success of so many of its graduates.

(Signed) A. F. SHORT, Treasurer
