Special Olympics Directors Named

Bill Becker
Archway Staff Writer

The Northern Rhode Island Special Olympics committee has selected a director and assistant director for the competition, which will be held at Bryant on May 2, 1992.

Dan Crimmins will serve as the Games director and Jennifer Speicher will serve as the Assistant Games Director.

Crimmins, who is a senior management major, became involved with the Special Olympics because he felt it would be "a great event for the Bryant community to get involved in, as well as an opportunity for the mentally handicapped to compete."

The Special Olympics games are a program of sports training and athletic competition designed for mentally handicapped children and adults, consisting of track and field events.

In addition to the Special Olympic games, family-oriented activities and games will be held throughout the day.

Crimmins explained the popularity of the Olympics lies in the fact that "everyone wants to be a winner and this is one way to show that they are all competitors and winners."

This is the eleventh year the games have been held at Bryant.

They are expected to draw over 1,500 fans and competitors to the Tupper Campus on the day of the games.

Although the core leaders and board members have already been selected and will be announced next week, many volunteers will still be needed for the day. If you are interested in volunteering, contact Dan Crimmins at 232-8388 or Jennifer Speicher at 232-4291.

Possible Alcohol Sanctions Released

Kelly Cartwright
Archway Staff Writer

An "emergency meeting" of all student club and organization presidents was held last night to discuss the new alcohol policy recommendations.

The meeting, called by S.P.A.C. President Heather Calderone, was held at the request of F.J. Talley, Dean of Student Life.

Talley requested the meeting to inform and discuss the report from the Alcohol Sanction Committee with student leaders so that the information contained therein could be disseminated throughout the student body.

The same report was discussed by Talley at Wednesday's Student Senate meeting and will be presented to the Bryant College Board of Trustees during their regularly scheduled meeting tonight.

According to Talley the report "isn't really anything new...just a new way of looking at [the problem of alcohol abuse]."

In fact, Talley pointed out, the report simply enumerates sanctions for alcohol violations and further explains what constitutes a violation.

"The reality is this is what's been going on for a long time. Now hopefully students can see clearly...The

Black History Month:

"Different We Stand: Hand-n-Hand"

Julia Arouchon
Archway Staff Writer

"Different We Stand: Hand-n-Hand" is the theme for this year's Bryant celebration of Black History Month which starts on February third.

Project Venture is co-sponsoring the events for the month with help from various organizations in the Bryant community.

According to program coordinator, Ernest Cox, the theme stresses "everyone is different in our society and that, in itself, should be celebrated."

"It is important to learn about other people and their cultures," said Cox, "because through diversity can come strength."

The opening ceremony starts on February 3rd at 12 noon in the Rotunda where Rebecca Flewelling, assistant to the President at Tufts University, will speak on multiculturalism in our society.

In addition, Ernest Cox will answer questions from members of the Bryant community concerning cultural differences. Because of the large number of questions anticipated, it is expected that not all of them will be answered. As a result, Residence Life will be sponsoring a special forum within the residence halls to answer the additional questions.

Various multi-cultural performances are also planned for the month. The Gospel Jubilee from Boston is made up of seven choirs and a soloist. "Mikata," a NY city group that performs African and Caribbean singing, dancing and chanting, will be in the Janikies Auditorium on February 10th. Extravaganza Night will include a steel drum band performing Caribbean music and a contemporary music mixture from Louis Turner and Robert Green. A talent show, which still needs participants, is also planned.

Also scheduled to appear is Dr. Henry Louis Gates Jr., Chairman of the Afro-American Studies Department and the Director-W.E.B. of the Dubois Institute, Harvard University. He will deliver a speech entitled "Remembering James Baldwin." Baldwin, a Harlem Renaissance writer, attacked many taboo subjects in the thirties and forties.

"It is an opportunity for African Americans to share their experiences of being Afro-American in our society because many people don't have much exposure," said Cox.

"Society has long written off other cultures such as the Native American. However, we need to learn

Bush's State of the Union Speech Addresses Domestic Concerns

Mark Plihcik
Archway Staff Writer

In his long anticipated State of the Union address to the nation Tuesday night, President George Bush emphasized the need for the nation to turn towards solving the domestic problems that plague the United States.

With a United States victory in the Cold War, Bush said, his office, the Congress, and the nation can now turn attention towards domestic issues.

In a nearly hour long speech, the president outlined a number of details in his short and long term plans to sustain the American economy and maintain the United States position as the World leader. Among the highlights:

- Support for reforming the current private health insurance system
- Allowance for the deduction of student

- loan interest payments
- A cut in the capital gains tax to a maximum of 15.4%
- The elimination of 246 federally funded programs
- A 90 day moratorium on growth hindering regulations
- A $5,000 tax credit to first time home buyers
- Reservation of $4.4 billion to extend federal unemployment benefits
- Request for the line item veto

• Across the board arms reductions

The Short Term Plan

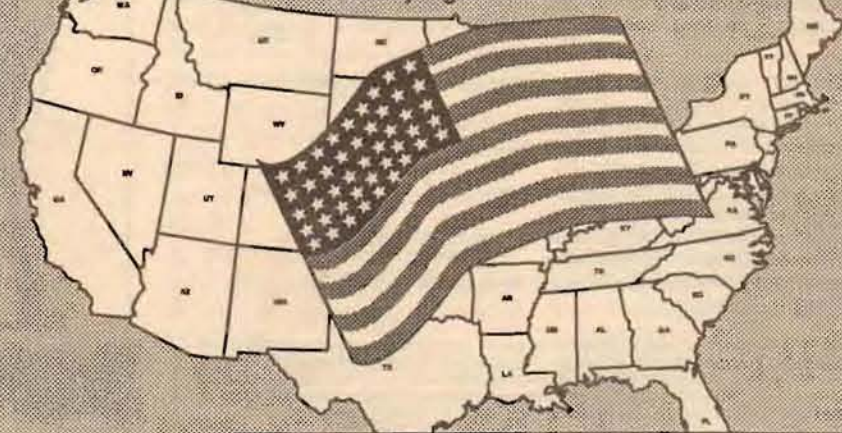

"Domestically, the primary problem is the economy," said Bush. He called on Congress to attack the problem of the economy with "the same sense of purpose used to win Operation Desert Storm."

Bush announced a number of measures that he will enact immediately. The measures, which do

Burning Apathy Intoxicates Bryant

"Most disturbing of all was the pervasiveness of that apathy."
 -the Rev. Gail M. Helgeson, Protestant Chaplain

Since the beginning of Bryant College time, editorial columns have been written about the overwhelming sense of apathy on the Bryant campus. In this week's Chaplain's Corner feature, the Rev. Gail M. Helgeson, discusses apathy, how far-reaching it seems to be, and even some of the explanations for such lethargic feelings.

And it is true. With so much political corruption, lack of ethics, and poor economic conditions in our lives every day, it seems difficult to find the desire to do anything to correct the problems, lest we become associated with or run over by the over-powering muck.

This week, several things have come into the shadow of that dreaded grey light of apathy. They aren't as obvious as one might expect, but it's amazing how it all boils down to apathy.

Case One: Fire Safety. According to John Rattigan, Bryant's Fire Safety expert, there have been three fires on college campuses in Rhode Island during the month of January. The affected campuses included those of Brown University, Rhode Island College, and Providence College.

Another incident could be added to that list: a fire involving University of Rhode Island students, who were living in an off-campus house in Narragansett. Not everyone in that fire made it out alive - seemingly because they had tampered with the house's fire alarm apparatus.

It seems that not all students at Bryant have learned their vicarious lesson. Rattigan noted there have been problems with students tampering with fire alarm equipment in Residence Halls 14 and 16 already this semester.

As a result of this lack of concern for fire safety, Rattigan is posting signs in the residence halls to remind students that tampering with public fire alarm apparatus is a felony under Rhode Island law 11-4-10. A felony punishable by $1000-$5000 or imprisonment for 1 to 5 years.

In his attempt to get the word out to students that fire safety is a community effort, he is reminding us we can't rely on everyone else to take care of everything. By obeying fire codes and acting responsibly, Bryant students can save lives. To help keep us in accordance with those codes, Rattigan said he will begin unannounced, random fire safety inspections in the residence halls.

As Rev. Helgeson says in her article, some people are rising "to meet the crisis head on." For the sake of our safety, we should be glad Rattigan is one of them.

Case 2: The Alcohol Sanction Announcement. At the "emergency" meeting of student organization leaders Wednesday night, many students expressed concern about the recommendations that the Alcohol Sanction Committee will be presenting to the Board of Trustees.

Although the committee was composed of four students and three administrators, some students were unsure their ideas and the ideas of other students had been taken into consideration in the report. In actuality, as Dean of Student Life, F. J. Talley and Director of Student Activities Ellen Servetnick pointed out, this has been an on-going process that clearly included student representation.

In response to the claim there was no chance for feedback, Talley and Servetnick were able to point to weekly open senate meetings and the feedback the student representatives on various alcohol committees brought back from their constituencies.

Another student fear was this policy is a step toward a "dry campus," but both administrators and Student Senate President Jamie Bergeron testified that from their dealings with the Trustees, they believe the Board is vehemently opposed to making Bryant a "dry campus."

While many valid questions were raised at the meeting, perhaps it should be realized that instead of fighting the policies which are made to protect the students and put the college in compliance with local and state laws, students should be responsibly working to see that widespread campus alcohol abuse is dealt with effectively.

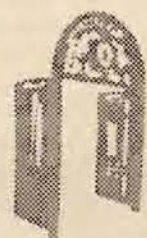

It's time to act to make our campus a better place to live. It's not the time to cry about how many beers we can or can't drink in one night. Instead of apathetically standing by complaining, we should all be actively involved in addressing the problems the alcohol committees have realized, and are trying to solve.

Burrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrr.....

Dear Editor,

I would like to voice my opinion about the inconsistency of the heating and hot water supply in the residence halls. There is no reason why I should have to call HVAC in order to take a hot shower in the morning, nor is there any reason that I should have to use several blankets to keep from freezing in my room each night.

I appreciate the effort that HVAC puts in to repair the heating systems, however, isn't there a permanent solution to my dilemma?

Can You Argue A Valid Point?

by Jonathan A. Roy

Have you ever had an opinion which you wanted known, but had no way of getting it out to people? Have you ever felt strongly about something and wished that you could express it better? Do you enjoy winning an argument?

If you answered "yes" to any one of these questions then you should be in the Unistructure on Wednesday, February 5, at 5:00 pm. "Why should I be there," you may ask. Well that is when the Debating Society of Bryant College will be having an informational meeting.

For those of you who just thought "Hey it's about time we had a debate society," read no further, just be there on Wednesday. However, for those of you who thought "Oh God, you mean get up in front of a bunch of strangers and discuss some boring, intellectual, obscure topic. No way," keep reading.

There is no need to worry, no one will make you get up in front of everyone else on Wednesday and give an impromptu thirty minute speech on the consequences of the Berlin Wall crumbling. All we ask is that you come to the meeting, hear what we have to say, and then decide if it is something that you would like to do.

We are not talking about debating the significance of the Gulf War. Many debates are lighthearted, as some of you may remember from the Bryant/Oxford debate last year. Some of the topics I have seen debated are, "Which came first, the chicken or the egg?", "Real men don't eat quiche," and "Men or women, who should be on top?"

We need energetic people who are not afraid to have some fun while trying something new. You do not need to have ever "formally" debated before. That is because all of us debate every day, with our professors, classmates, friends, parents, co-workers, etc. Underclassmen are especially encouraged to join.

After all, it is not too early to be thinking about what you will be putting on that all important resume. Here's a newsflash; "Employers hire people who demonstrate that they can communicate well." What is the best way to prove to a prospective employer that you can communicate well? That's right, by being a member of a debating society.

So if you think you can win an argument, watch for the room assignment on our fliers and posters, and we will see you in the Unistructure at 5:00 pm on Wednesday, February fifth.

Public Safety Beat

compiled by
Mark Gordon
Students for a Safer Campus

Fight

January 24, at 11:43pm, a fight broke out in a room in Residence Hall 16. What started out as a party, turned into a brawl when two male guests began fighting over a girl. Students notified a Resident Assistant who contacted Public Safety. When Public Safety arrived on the scene, two RAs had separated the groups involved and secured identification from all parties. One group was in the lobby, while the other had returned to the room. Public Safety entered the room to attempt to calm down the occupants who were still very excited from the fight. The occupants continued to be violent, so Smithfield Police Department was requested. One male guest present, stated that he was going to press charges, later changing his mind. Both groups of non-students were asked to leave campus and will be sent letters of trespass.

Driving to Endanger

At 10:15pm on Saturday, January 25, two Public Safety Officers were standing outside of Residence Hall 15, when they witnessed a vehicle jump off the nearby speed bump. The vehicle was traveling at such a high rate of speed that it's oil pan hit the pavement and split open when the vehicle landed several feet from the bump. The vehicle's oil spilled out as the car continued down the roadway in front of Hall 14. The officers requested Public Safety Mobile Unit to intercept the vehicle. The car was stopped on Bryant College property just before Route 7. A wrecker was requested to tow the vehicle off campus and the driver was issued a ticket for "Driving to Endanger." Grounds Maintenance sanded the oiled roadway to make it safe for other drivers and pedestrians.

Obscene Phone Calls

A female student received an obscene telephone call on Wednesday, January 22, at 8am. The caller asked the student repeatedly, "what color panties are you wearing?" The student hung up the phone and contacted Public Safety to fill out a report.

Many students have been complaining of obscene and harassing calls they have been receiving over the past week. However, only one report was filled out. Public Safety wants to work with students to end this harassment. Students should contact Public Safety immediately if they receive any harassing calls. In addition, students should keep a log of the time, date and message of each harassing call they receive to enable Public Safety to track any patterns that may appear. Key items to listen for in these calls are the age of the caller, any background noise (ie. music) and repeated words or phrases. It is advisable that students with answering machines record the messages and save them to be recorded by Public Safety.

Scholarship Fund Receives Grant

Mark Plihcik
Archway Staff Writer

A $50,000 grant has been made by the C.V. Starr Foundation of New York City to the endowed scholarship fund that bears its name.

The fund is designed to provide tuition assistance to minority students selected on academic merit, with first preference given to students majoring in applied actuarial mathematics.

Scholarship recipients are determined by an expectation of success at Bryant, based on academic achievement and potential as well as involvement in non-academic activities.

The scholarships are funded by income earned from the endowment.

The fund, which now stands at approximately $345,000, was established in 1988 by the Foundation with an initial grant of $100,000.

The Staff Foundation was established in 1955 by insurance entrepreneur Cornelius Vander Starr.

important thing is people will know the consequences of their actions," Ellen Servetnick, Director of Student Activities, expounded.

The Alcohol Sanction Committee's recommendations to the Trustees include sanctions for Open Container Violations, Violations of Social Gathering Policy, and Public Intoxication. There are minimum sanctions recommended for the first, second, and subsequent offenses. These sanctions vary from letter of reprimand and fine to suspension from Bryant for one year.

Once on a student's record, the sanctions would stay with the student until the end of their Bryant career. For example, if a student had three open container violations on his/her record, in his/her first two years at Bryant, any subsequent violation (regardless of whether it was his/her junior or senior year) would be dealt the most severe sanction for the subsequent violation.

The report also defines the enforcement guidelines. In addition to Public Safety officers and the employees of Residence Life, "faculty members, administrators, staff members and students may report violations of the alcohol policy to the Department of Public Safety for violations occurring in locations other than the residence halls. The Office of Residence Life should be contacted for violations occurring in the residence halls," according to the report.

Talley explained to the student leaders that in actuality not every case that is documented receives a sanction. Sanctions will only be made after the student's case is heard. After sanctions are made, the students still holds the right to an appeal.

But Talley also explained to the student leaders that sanctions are only of concern to those who break the law. "If you don't do anything wrong, there's no sanction in your file!" he pointed out.

The following are the specific minimum sanctions for alcohol violations as set forth by the committee report.

Open Container Violations:

1st offense: Minimum sanction of letter of reprimand, and fine of $25-$100.

2nd offense: Minimum sanction of disciplinary probation for one semester, and Fine of $25-$100 and/or 4-16 hours of weekend clean up duty, and/or suspension for 1-3 weekends.

3rd offense: Minimum sanction of suspension from Bryant College, eviction from Bryant College residence halls, or weekend ban from the campus for one semester.

Subsequent: Minimum sanction of suspension from Bryant College for one year.

Violations of Social Gathering Policy:

1st offense: Minimum sanction of disciplinary probation for one semester for all living unit residents, Fine of $100-$300, 4-16 hours of weekend clean-up duty per person.

2nd offense: Minimum sanction of disciplinary probation for one year, fine of $100-$300, 4-16 hours of weekend clean-up duty per person, and/or suspension for up to three weekends for all living unit residents.

Subsequent: Minimum sanction of eviction from living units for one year.

Public Intoxication:

1st offense: Minimum sanction of letter of reprimand, referral to alcohol information session.

2nd offense: Minimum sanction of probation for one year.

Subsequent: Minimum sanction of suspension from Bryant College for one semester, eviction from living units for one semester, or weekend ban from the campus for one semester.

Note: As part of the sanctioning process, students may be referred to a mandatory alcohol information session, as a means of educating them about the effects of alcohol on the body, as well as on responsible decision making about alcohol.

The committee intends to use the money that is raised from the fines for alcohol education and drug abuse programs at Bryant.

Concern was expressed by students at the meeting about the alcohol limits being recommended.

The committee's approach to setting limits on alcohol is "based on personal consumption, and on what is a reasonable quantity of alcohol for majority age students to purchase and possess," according to the report.

The specific alcohol limits are one case of beer, or one case (defined as four four-packs) of wine coolers, or a maximum of 750 milliliters of distilled spirits or wine.

The questions and answer session on the topic that ensued between Talley and some of the student leaders was summarized in a nutshell by Talley. "Don't carry two cases of beer - one for you, one for a friend!"

The Alcohol Sanction Committee will present its recommendations to the Trustees at 4pm today. If the Board accepts some version of the recommendations, a date for the policy to go into effect will be established.

Talley said that all students will be made aware of any new decisions prior to their implementation.

not need Congressional approval, include the enacting of a 90 day moratorium on growth hindering regulations at all cabinet level agencies.

During this 90 day period, all the regulations of these agencies will be reviewed, Bush said.

Those regulations that are growth hindering, according to the president, will be eliminated, while those that influence economic growth will be increased and intensified.

The president expects this move to account for an influx of $10 billion into the economy over the next six months.

Bush will also take the immediate measure of altering the tax withholding tables. This will allow employees to keep more of their paychecks over the next 12 months, he said, resulting in a return of more than $12 billion to the American people.

The president also emphasized his continued support for monetary policy that will keep interest rates and inflation down.

Bush called on Congress to pass a number of measures by March 20 that he feels will spur the economy out of the recession. He asked for a 15% investment tax allowance to stimulate investment in real estate and increase employment.

The president also proposed modification of the passive loss rule for real estate developers, which would allow pension plans to invest in real estate.

The president called for a cut in the capital gains tax to a maximum of 15.4%, noting that 60% of the people affected by this cut earn under $50,000 per year.

In a move designed to aid first time home buyers, the president called for an Individual Retirement Account modification that would allow first time buyers to withdraw money from their account without penalty. He also asked for a $5,000 tax credit to first time buyers.

Bush announced that he has reserved $4.4 billion in his budget to extend federal unemployment benefits, and he asked for immediate action on this measure.

The Long Term Plan

Bush outlined a plan to reduce the budget deficit. Perhaps the most important facet of his plan was his request for the line item veto.

"Let me help you control spending," he said. This power would allow him to veto individual budgetary line items as a way of putting an end to "pork barrel appropriations."

The president promised to push for enforceable spending caps. His plan will require that any proposed programs must be paid for. It also orders a freeze on discretionary budget authority - so called "this year/next year" proposals that are left off budget in order to meet the law designated budget cap.

Bush also called for a freeze on federal domestic expenditures, and he stated he will produce a list of 246 federally funded programs that "are not worthy of federal funding."

The American people, the president noted, have "rediscovered a fundamental home truth - this government is too big and spends too much."

A controversial proposal by the president was his call for reform of the health care system. Bush noted that by the year 2000, health care costs in the United States will rise to $1.6 trillion from $800 billion this year.

The Democratic Response

Speaker of the House Thomas Foley (D-WA) presented the Democratic party's response to Bush's State of the Union address. The highlights included:

- The democrats will not accept a cut in the capital gains tax. Instead, they propose a middle class tax cut supported by increased taxes for the rich.
- Foley pledged the democratic commitment to civilian technology and research.
- An increase in education and training is necessary according to the Speaker.
- National health care insurance. "The United States and South Africa are the only two major economically developed countries without national health insurance," Foley said.
- The democrats called for Bush to sign the crime bill that Congress has already passed.
- Fight for the right of choice. Foley pledged that if Roe v. Wade is overturned by the Supreme Court and stricken from the constitution, he and the democrat-controlled house will put the essence of the case into the laws of the United States to guarantee freedom of choice.

The president said the problem has two alternatives. A nationalized system, Bush said will restrict patient choice of physicians, will lead to government rationing of health services, and increased tax burdens.

Instead, Bush threw his support to reforming the current private insurance system. He promised his reform plan, the details of which are forthcoming, will provide insurance security for all Americans as well as maintaining choice of physicians.

He also proposed to make insurance affordable to low income or unemployed Americans via a maximum $3,700 health care tax credit per family.

Bush emphasized his continued support for his America 2000 plan, a plan which he says will "revolutionize American schools."

Under the plan, parents have greater choice of where their children will study, teachers are allowed flexibility in their teaching, and communities are encouraged to create new schools, Bush said. America 2000 has already been introduced in 30 states and hundreds of cities and towns.

Bush called for the United States to "make common sense investments" in civilian technology, and asked Congress to make the research and development tax credit permanent in an effort to encourage the development of new technology.

Next, the president called for "a major renewed investment in fighting violent street crime." Bush said that safety is a basic civil right, and emphatically called for Congress to pass his comprehensive crime bill. "Pass it! Help your country," said Bush.

The president emphasized the importance of opening world markets on both sides in order to create a level playing field for trade. He called for the elimination of tariffs erected by Japanese and European nations that "damage farmers and workers."

Finally, Bush proposed a number of measures designed to strengthen the American family. The president cited family disillusion as the major cause of problems in the inner cities.

He proposed to raise the personal tax exemption for children by $500 per child for every family. Bush also called for allowing the deduction of student loan interest, as well as withdrawing IRA funds without penalty to pay for education or medical expenses.

The president also proposed welfare reforms, although his plan was not specifically outlined.

He noted many state welfare programs are operating under new assumptions, including that those who receive aid have responsibility to seek employment or job training and avoid having children out of wedlock.

Foreign Policy and Nuclear Weapons

The speech did not solely address domestic issues. Bush spoke at length at the beginning of his address about the end of the Cold War and what affect it will have on the American military machine.

Bush first pledged to reduce spending on arms resulting in a savings of $50 billion over the next five years. Appropriations for the controversial B-2 "Stealth" bomber will be cut off following the delivery of the 20th aircraft from manufacturer McDonnell Douglas.

He also promised to cancel production of small ICBM missiles, C-based nuclear arms, and cruise missiles.

The president also announced a series of military cuts contingent on promises for reduction of nuclear weapons owned by the former Soviet Union. Those weapons are now under the control of Russian Federation President Boris Yeltsin, who will be travelling to meet with Bush at Camp David this weekend. The promises included elimination of peace keeper missiles, reduction in the number of warheads on minute man missiles to one and on C-base weapons by one-third, and conversion of strategic bomber planes to conventional use.

However, Bush emphasized, although the Cold War is over, the need for security still exists. He called for the passage of the Strategic Defense Initiative ("Star Wars.") "Too many people have too many nuclear weapons," the president said.

by Michael Cain

I hate my cat. It didn't start out that way but this cat is different. It does all the annoying things I don't like about cats and above all she is utterly stupid.

I love football season. Grab some chips, dip and soda and watch my favorite teams overcome defeat. I am one of those sport fans that likes to physically act out the game. When small little animals are in the room I am tempted on fourth and 10, and definitely longer, to punt them. I simply walk up to my cat and say, "hey kitty-cat, its fourth and 10, what should I do?" "Meow," is her reply. Assuming that's a yes, I take off to kick her forty yards down field but a family member usually stops me from living out my football dreams.

I don't like my cat "Tiger." Her hair is way too long. She leaves most of it where she was sitting in the summer. She also gets millions of fleas in the summer, but most of all I despise her like any other small creature because of her uncanny stupidity.

When cats get playful or sassy they do strange things. Well my cat starts attacking anything including my naked feet for fun and excitement.

Another testament to her stupidity came one day when I was in a rush, so I jumped into my car only to find the kitty sleeping on the hood. I assumed that when the engine started that she would get frightened and jump off the car. So I started up the engine but the stupid feline went back to sleep. SO then I put my 76 Pontiac into gear and backed out slowly. No reaction. I thought to myself this cat has no brain. I got out of the car but the cat refused to get off the hood. I thought to myself that I had tried and got back into the car and proceeded to drive down the street with Kitty attached to the hood. I think the cat was actually enjoying the ride or the strong breeze over the car. The only reaction I got from the kitty was when I stepped on the brakes. I got out again but this time she jumped right off the hood without argument. Next time I'm not stopping.

I like to tease my cat by turning on the can opener and watch the cat come running only to discover that it's a joke. Sometimes I open up the cupboard where we keep her cat food and she walks in hoping to get food. I simply shut the cupboard.

My girlfriend has this little mutt dog that also gets on my nerves. Her name is Misty, Mist for short. She looks like an old man because of her black coat and white food stained whiskers. Her pleasant personality is only matched by her ineptness. She is one of those dogs that chases her own tail. "She's a guard dog," they tell me. The next time a cat or another dog comes to rob your house, she will bark to let you know.

Another odd thing about Misty is that she does not eat dog food but she eats anything and everything else. Underwear, plastic cups and toilet paper are her favorite. Her nickname is "cheese-dog." She waits by the table at dinner time waiting for the leftovers. Her food bowl sits in the corner brimming with untouched dog food.

I think I've found the answer to this dog. Misty wants to be human.

Comedian Jerry Seinfeld says that, "Dogs have no life. And do you want to know why dogs have no life? Dogs have no money. No money, no life."

"No, no Misty. You have no money and therefore no life. You cannot be human." I tell her. She looks at me with her cute dark eyes and cocks her head to one side. Maybe she knows something I don't. I think I will introduce Misty to my cat.

Spring Weekend Survey

Spring weekend may be the farthest thing from your mind right now, but the Student Planning Board is planning for it already. We at Student Programming want to make sure that this is one of the best spring weekends ever. In order to help us do that I am making up a short survey to give us a better idea of what type of band the campus wants to hear.

Please understand that there are several factors involved in the process of booking a band. The first, and most obvious, are our budget limitations. Another major factor are what bands are accepting dates in our area at the time we want them. Therefore, all I can promise is that we will get the best band available to us.

Please take the time to fill out the following survey and return it to Bryant Center Info Desk by Monday. This is your chance to have a say in things so please take advantage of it.

1) Number from 1-4 (favorite to least favorite) the type of music you would like to hear on spring weekend.

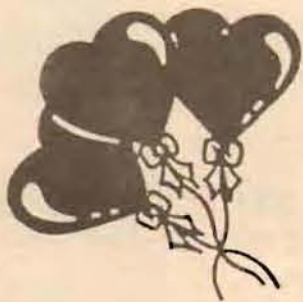

Progressive/Alternative _____
 Rock _____
 Reggae _____
 Dance/Rap _____

2) List several of your favorite bands from your first two choices from above.

3) List any local or opening type bands you would like to see.

If you have any questions or suggestions please feel free to call us at the Student Programming Office, or better yet stop by our meeting on Mondays in meeting room 2b (in Bryant Center) at 4:30.

Rhode Island: Why the State Needs A Third Party

by Reverend Douglas J. Spina, Ph.D.

This past year, we have witnessed in our state countless and overt instances of political corruption, inexcusable ineptitude, gross mismanagement, and the obvious disregard for ethical behavior. Among these sad and shameful episodes in recent Rhode Island politics, the most notorious and highly publicized include:

1. The tragic and wide-spread suffering caused by the banking crisis and the past and present administrations' inability to resolve it justly, effectively and expeditiously.

2. Chronic irregularities in our state pension fund and glaring instances of duplicity and conflicts of interest among members of our state legislature.

3. Our faltering economy aggravated by imprudent administrative decisions which include expending lucrative sums of money on a convention center which holds little promise and the construction and reconstruction of a bridge that will probably rival the building of the Great Wall of China in both time and money.

4. The criminal indictment of a judge, the subsequent conviction of the ex-mayor of Pawtucket, and fining of our former governor on ethics violations incurred during his administration.

These scenarios, among others, are startling and are the cause of great concern. This is especially true when one considers that the precious democratic principles/process, of the people, for the people, by the people, are bought and sold with such ease and with such regularity by many of our state and local elected officials and institutions.

In response to this, a cadre of concerned individuals has come forward to raise moral consciousness and to challenge the state and its officials/institutions to commit to restructuring and reordering accordingly.

Notably, Episcopal Bishop George Hunt's public condemnation of certain local government practices and practitioners, Catholic Bishop Louis Gelineau's recent pastoral letter on government and social ethics, as well as a proliferation of citizens' groups have emerged with the common message which can be summarized in three words: REFORM! REFORM! REFORM!

As forceful and essential as this message is, unfortunately there is no political vehicle or base of power to effect such change.

The infrastructure of the political life of our state desperately requires change.

The calling to accountability of our politicians and the platforms on which they stand must be part and parcel of the sociopolitical process of which we are coparticipants.

In this regard, the root of the problem is interpartisan. In our state (and perhaps throughout these United States) the words, Republican and Democrat, have become vacuous, anachronistic labels which carry little or no moral force/public confidence.

They are perceived by many as self-serving and are dismissed as necessary evils. It is no wonder that cynicism and mistrust abound! In the final analysis, it is almost impossible to distinguish one from the other.

The destructive incestuous bonds of political life as we have come to know them in Rhode Island have superseded the necessary sibling rivalry between the two parties which lends force, balance, substance, and credibility to the great political process and work of a democratic government.

Therefore, the solution cannot be achieved by simply "throwing the bums out" come November of 1992. The problem is much more insidious, much more fundamental.

Since, in my opinion, ethics cannot be legislated, what is vitally required is the creation of an entirely new party which will recharge, refilter, and restabilize the mechanisms of government in our state.

This third party will provide a platform predicated on reform and renewal as it pries open the windows of state and local government to allow much needed fresh air to blow through its stale corridors.

From this standpoint, a third political alternative is not only appealing, but also quite necessary if confidence, equilibrium, and credibility are to be restored.

An independent third party of reform can function as a catalyst for political and ethical reordering as it calls to accountability the two major parties and social institutions as well as its own constituency.

It can act conscientiously as a conduit for the sorts of changes demanded by those of us who are seeking a return to the fundamental principles of justice and moral integrity in government, while restoring the checks and balances required for good government to happen.

In a word, status quo politics and unprincipled behavior can no longer be tolerated.

We Rhode Islanders must join together and find our way clear of the sociopolitical, moral, and economic chaos which presently besets us.

A new party, with new faces, purporting a new vision which represents the kinds of reform and restructuring demanded by the people of this state offers an attractive and viable alternative.

We can overcome our skepticism and our mistrust and work together responsibly to create a third party. Do we dare choose in favor of creating something new?

When considering the alternatives, we actually have nothing to lose except the political deadwood that has weighed ever so heavily on our shoulders.

How Do You Walk a Llama?

Today, we're going to look at an alarming trend that is beginning to take shape in this country. The alarming trend that I am talking about is the tendency for some people to make pets out of animals that we, more traditional type people, are used to seeing in a zoo, or at least on Wild Kingdom.

Take for example this ad in a recent issue of The Shoppers Guide, a small weekly paper out of Putnam, Connecticut: "For Sale: Llama, 6 months, $1,200. Guanaco, 6 months, $500. Pair black swans $500/pair. Pygmy goats $150."

Of course, my first reaction to this ad, as I'm sure yours was, is that these people must have the brains of squid. I can't say for sure, but I think the last time I checked, there was no verse in Old MacDonald concerning llamas. What noise would they make? I can accept horses, cows, ducks, and pigs. But how can you sing the song and include a llama? ("...And on his farm he had a llama, ee, eye, ee, eye, oh! With an...uhm...") And I don't even know what a Guanaco is. The dictionary told me to come back when I wasn't delirious.

It's not like this is an isolated incident. In the town of Eastford, Connecticut, not too far from Putnam, there is road sign that says (I swear, I am not making this up):

CAUTION
Llama Crossing

Below the warning is a helpful illustration that depicts what I can only assume are two llamas crossing a road. This sign alone could have a devastating effect on contemporary American humor ("Why did the llama cross the road?" etc). And the owner of these llamas actually takes them on walks through the local community. What do the neighbors say to visiting relatives from the city who haven't even seen a cow except for in those yuppy children's books that they read to their wives' pregnant stomachs? "Oh, never mind Jim and his llama - he don't bite, and the llama's pretty friendly, too."

The trend doesn't stop there, though. Owning an unusual pet has become a symbol of, if not success, at least complete weirdness, in this country. People are buying monkeys, keeping alligators in their basements, and there is even a rumor going around that President George Bush has been able to tame John Sununu, and that he (Sununu) is a favorite at White House dinners (Sit, Sununu, sit. Roll over. Good boy. etc, etc).

Off the Cuff

Mark Plihcik

I don't know about you, but when I was a kid, the only thing I wanted more than a dog was for the elementary school to get blown up. You can have fun with a dog. You can throw a stick way out into a field, and the dog will run out and retrieve it, drop it at your feet and look really happy about it, as if he had just accomplished a feat worthy of the nobel prize for physics. And you can pat him on the head and say "good boy," then pick up the stick and throw it out further in to the field again, and again, until the dog will eventually bring back an entire tree. God, dogs are dumb.

Don't get me wrong. I love dogs. They're great fun. But they're just dumb. I think my dog, Star, was probably one of the stupidest animals ever to walk the earth, with the possible exception of David "I Don't Wear Sheets Anymore" Duke. I mean, as guard dogs go, Star had the fear-inspiring power of a gold fish. Heck, she would unlock the door and show them where the silver was if she was given the chance. But she was a great companion and a good friend.

But llamas are different. You can't do anything with a llama. They won't fetch. They don't even bark loudly at three in the morning, waking up the entire neighborhood and causing large, burly neighbors threaten that he's going to come over there and force the entire dog house into a bodily cavity that I would as soon not discuss. As far as I can tell, the only thing llamas do is sleep, eat, and poop.

The only living creature that is as completely useless as a llama is a human baby. They essentially have the same lifestyle pattern of the llama, except that they also spit up on your shoulder in the middle of your favorite restaurant. But at least they grow up and learn to write humor columns that go on and on because they can't for the life of them think of a funny way to end-

Alumni To Discuss Careers in Marketing

Curious about a career in marketing? If so, plan to hear three alumni talk about their marketing careers on Monday, February 3 at 3:30 p.m. in the MRC Lecture Hall.

Bryant Students Recognized for Outstanding Accomplishments

Lisa Lucchesi
Archway Staff Writer

The nationwide merit publication, Who's Who Among International Students in American Universities & Colleges has just completed its third edition and has recognized three Bryant students for their achievements.

Among the three students named were John Manuel Comino, Jaynelle Arleen Landy, and Aziz Nizar Meruani. They have been chosen as outstanding international students from an American higher education institution.

John Manuel Comino is from Brisbane, Australia. He graduated high school from Australia's Brisbane Grammar School before enrolling at Bryant. He is a first semester Junior management major and has a current GPA of 3.76. His present activities and hobbies include Rugby, the Debating Club, and music. He plays guitar as a member of The Elroys, a four man school band.

When asked why he chose Bryant Comino replied, "I think that Bryant is an excellent school. It is community minded and provides me with a good social life, which is important." Another reason he said he chose Bryant was because he wanted to study on the East coast and he liked New England.

Jaynelle Arleen Landy is a student from Bermuda. She graduated high school from the Berkeley Institute. Landy has a degree in economics and is presently studying for a general MBA. Landy has been very active in many extra-curricular activities, but is still able to maintain a GPA of 3.7.

Just to name a few of her involvements, Landy is in the Multi-Cultural Student Organization, the International Student Organization, the Karate Club, and tutors for the office of International and Minority Students. She is also an International Student Representative for the AIDS task force and a volunteer for the Urban League.

Landy says, "I enjoy being at Bryant, it's a really great place. I especially enjoy meeting different people and being able to share my experiences with them."

Aziz Meruani is originally from Pakistan, but grew up in Kenya. Meruani, a sophomore management major, is a graduate of The International School of Kenya. He has a current GPA of 3.23 and is active in The Archway, the International Student Organization, and WJMF. Some of his favorite past times include computers, music, and travelling.

Meruani chose Bryant on account of its good ratings and because it is a small business school. After college, he plans to gain experience in the work force and then hopes to go on to graduate school. He says, "I feel very fortunate being able to go to college in the states. I feel it gives me a personal outside advantage because I know that not all international students have the opportunities that I do."

These three students were selected on the basis of sound academic and high personal achievements. A major benefit of being recognized in Who's Who Among International Students is that this will help international students gain scholarships, and of course the notoriety that goes with it.

The requirements necessary in order for a student to meet such noteworthy merits are: the student must maintain a 3.5 GPA, be an international student, and be recommended by an international advisor. The students are also required to send in three recommendations and an official university transcript.

What's Changed in the Library?

An ID policy will be implemented February 1. The jukebox of business compact discs is gone. Some free trial compact disc products are still here. The reference books are re-arranged. A library intern is helping us out at the research desk. These changes occurred while most of you were away on vacation this month. I would like to help more of you understand these announcements in the first article for the spring semester.

ID Policy. Library users who are not currently enrolled as Bryant students will be required to show their own college student ID in order to enter the library. Others will be required to show their business card and driver's license. You will be given a smile and expedited service as you show your Bryant ID. As the staff interviews non-Bryant users, we are finding they are not surprised that we are making efforts to prioritize service. A Providence College alumnus explained he pays a fee for his alumni card, yesterday a Harvard alumna explained that the Harvard business school allows only currently enrolled students to access their Business Infotrac (a compact disc workstation with brokerage house reports).

CD-ROM Workstations. The jukebox of business compact discs was packed up by the engineer from University Microfilms. The company was grateful for our positive and constructive feedback. They told us they hope to improve the product and bring it to the market by the fall of 1992. We encourage you to continue your business research on the four network stations which have ABI/Inform. Remember to bring the abstract number to the Business Periodicals Ondisc workstation near the reference desk, if you wish to continue receiving copies of the full text of articles in 413 journals. The cost that will be deducted from your Vendacard is still 25 cents per page.

Social Sciences Ondisc is also still available at this workstation. We are still evaluating this product which offers full text articles for 203 social science journals.

Disclosure/Worldscope Global trial period has been extended and newly enhanced December 1991 disc has been forwarded to us in order to give us a chance to compare this international company database with the domestic version (CompactD/SEC). There are fewer companies and less text on this database, but some class assignments have been constructed by the faculty due to the strengths of its financial data. Bring your 3.5" disc to copy the information and help us evaluate this product.

Book Arrangements. The staff has been so pleased with the speedy keyword search feature of our computerized book catalog (BRYCAT) that we decided to streamline our reference book shelving. We now have one main Library of Congress book arrangement which begins with the shelving under the counter in the center of the department. There are only two simple exceptions to this A to Z shelving. Tax books are shelved in stacks 9 and 10; only national business directories and investment services (Moody's Standard's and Poor's and Dun and Bradstreet) publications are stored on the two tables in front of the reference desk.

Library Staffing. Although we do not have any added full time reference staff, we have tried to schedule staff to reinforce the peak usage times of the day. We were also fortunate to gain a part time volunteer, a library intern from the University of Rhode Island Graduate School of Library Science. Since Carol McConaghy is also a Bryant administrator we expect her to make an important contribution to the reference desk before the evening classes. Ms. McConaghy serves as a complement to another competent part time reference librarian named Mrs. Anderson. Colleen Anderson reinforces the midday hours at the reference desk.

Again welcome back! We hope your spring semester is a productive one!

Get on Your Feet... Come on and Make It Happen

Just before the end of the Fall Semester, I was asked if I had noticed anything unusual this year about the students. After a little thought, I replied that I had indeed noticed something different this year, something I found very disturbing. What I had noted was apathy; apathy about school, apathy about life, apathy even about the holiday season. There seemed to have been a general lack of interest, or concern, or just simply a lack of energy, all semester. Most disturbing of all was the pervasiveness of that apathy. Although I had been asked about the students in particular, I found myself including the whole Bryant Community, the state of Rhode Island and even the country in my response. It seemed that we had all become discouraged, lethargic, apathetic.

Certainly there were plenty of reasons for such a constellation of feelings at each level. The political, ethical and economic conditions at the state and federal levels were appalling, and their reflection in the personal and corporate realm affected us all with a feeling of help-

Chaplain's Corner

by the Rev. Gail M. Helgeson,

lessness and even hopelessness. It appeared that we were mired in a situation over which we had no control and from which there was no escape in sight. No wonder apathy was so prevalent.

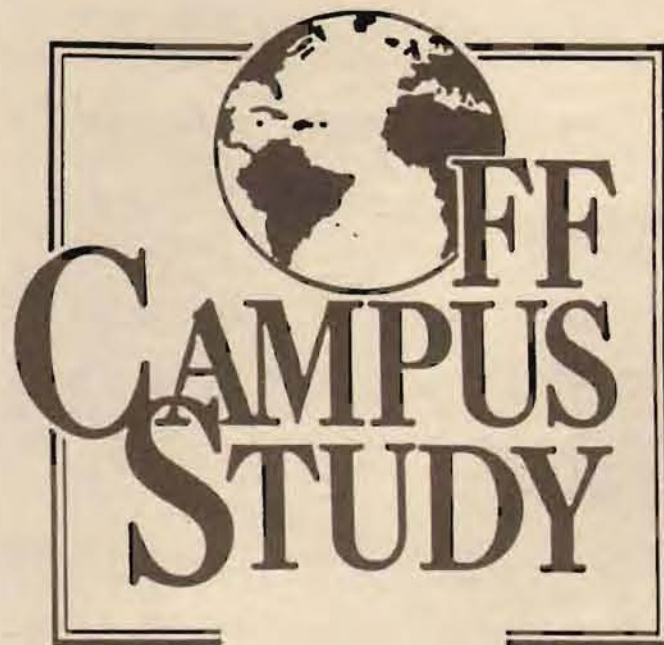

Something has happened since the middle of December. It's as if we have heard the clarion call once again. In typical American fashion we have begun to rise to meet the crisis head on, a crisis of integrity, a crisis of faith in our political system. People are rallying to demand justice, to demand ethical behavior in all areas of life, but especially in the public arena. It is about time! It is said that we get what we ask for, especially in the political realm. It is that we ask for justice and integrity from those to whom we entrust the stewardship of our state and nation. It is time to "get on your feet," time to "come on and make it happen."

What Is A ROTC Scholarship

by Joe Massaroni

We all face the same problem, paying for our college expenses. Your parents are helping but you have also had to take out a couple of loans that you will be paying back for years after college. You have seen the signs up advertising ROTC scholarships but you are scared of the prospect of talking to someone in uniform. We all have had that experience of knowing someone who spoke to a military recruiter while in high school and then had to endure a barrage of incessant phone calls trying to get you to "be all you can be."

I was fortunate enough to overcome these concerns and inquire into ROTC scholarships three years ago. I won a scholarship that has paid over $20,000 towards my college expenses. The great thing was that the application does not even consider your parents' financial status, scholarships are awarded based strictly on merit. "Bryant students are traditionally very competitive in winning ROTC scholarships and Bryant College has an excellent national reputation," says CPT Jim Parker, officer in charge of the Bryant ROTC program, "last year every student from Bryant that applied for a scholarship won one."

The scholarship pays 80% of tuition costs, $450 a year for books, and a $100 stipend each month for living expenses. The application process requires a physical, (provided by the Army), appearance in front of a scholarship board, filling out various forms, a physical aptitude test, and a photograph. High school academic performance is also considered. Applications are currently being taken in the ROTC offices, Room 370 of the Unistructure. Applying for an ROTC scholarship does not incur any type of military obligation. The obligation, 2-4 years, comes in only if you chose to accept the scholarship after winning one.

To apply for the scholarship you must have at least a 2.5 GPA (freshmen) or 2.7 (sophomores) and not have any disqualifying medical conditions. The time to inquire is now, the deadline to have the application process completed is early this semester. Anyone interested should see CPT Parker or CPT Fred Roitz in the ROTC offices on a walk in basis or phone at 232-6276. You will not be pursued or badgered, this is something you have to take the initiative on.

An ROTC scholarship can be the start ensuring your own financial security following graduation. ROTC leadership training looks great on your resume. Second Lieutenants makes nearly $25,000 combined with numerous other military benefits. No corporation is going to give you the hands on management experience and responsibility you will get right after graduation in the Army. Do not listen to the uninformed, if you are interested call or visit the ROTC offices.

In Living Color: Live and "Colorful" at Halftime

Ben Purkiss
Archway Staff Writer

This year, the Fox Network provided us with an entertaining half-time show that was a great break from marching bands. Despite one of the most spectacular official half-time shows ever, the Fox network pulled many viewers to their half-time show.

The folks of "In Living Color" gave a classic live performance. If you, like myself, were worried about missing any of the sound beating dealt out by the Redskins (just as in history they hunted the great Buffalo), the thoughtful producers gave us a half-time clock so that we didn't miss a beat.

The "Homeboys Shopping Network" was truly hilarious from scalping tickets and uniforms to selling Professional Football Player cards ie: "Thurman Thomas goldcard" (oops that one was only a display item.)

They also unveiled the Metrodome's Diamond Vision big screen to the cheer of "Mo' money mo' money mo' money" as the sound of sirens wail the traditional cue for the homeboys exit.

Enter the truly tasteless "Fireman Bill." Once again, Fireman Bill destroys a perfectly happy environment with a style all his own. He is funny, but pulls more 'oh my gods' than laughs.

The icing on the cake was "Men on Football; Taking a look at football from the male point of view." The masters of double entendre; everything they say and do has a homosexual connotation which may or may not be viewed as offensive.

They mentioned great players of the past such as "Dick Butkiss" (take that as you will). They also expressed disappointment at this years teams.

They would have preferred to see the Oilers and Packers in the title game, and the quips continued in the same vein throughout the sketch.

The half-time comedy was much appreciated despite the fact there was as much comedy on the field of competition, with the renowned comic team of Kelly, Lofton, Thomas, and the rest of the Buffalo Bills.

I hope the Fox network builds this into a tradition, definitely worth watching.

Bryant Center Hosts Chinese Art Exhibit in Papitto

Julia Kahler
Archway Staff Writer

The Bryant Center will be displaying an art exhibit entitled "Contemporary Calligraphy and Painting from the Republic of China" during the month of February.

There are a total of 60 works, containing 16 calligraphies and 44 paintings. A separate catalogue of the show is available for a nominal fee.

This exhibition of traditional Chinese calligraphy and painting by contemporary artists was selected by the National Museum of History of the Republic of China located in Taipei, Taiwan.

It is sponsored by the International Council on Education for Teaching located in Washington, D.C.

The purpose of the exhibition is to introduce to the American public, through various colleges and universities, the general directions of traditional Chinese painting and calligraphy in modern times, and some of the major living artists who currently practice in Taiwan.

These works represent the major current trends in traditional Chinese painting and calligraphy. All the works in the exhibition were produced using traditional tools and media, called the "Four Treasures of the Scholar's Studio." They consist of the brush, ink, inkstone (for grinding and mixing the ink), and paper. The paper is made of mulberry bark, hemp fiber or bamboo pulp, and is not the mis-named 'rice paper.' All the works are mounted as hanging scrolls.

The exhibit will be displayed in the Papitto Dining Room of the Bryant Center.

It is available for viewing 8:00am-8:00pm, Monday through Saturday except during scheduled programs and meetings.

For more information call the Operations Office at 232-6117.

Hey guys! First a thanks to J-2 for the Pot dinner Wednesday! The food was edible... Thanks to all those who attended. The weekend started off Thursday when many sisters ventured to TEP and Sig Ep. Thanks for the great time guys! Friday night and the pizza party was memorable. Saturday we had a sister's gathering full of surprises.

To all the fraternity pledges we wish you good luck!! In awards last week, sis goes to Solo, and S.O.T.W. goes to Snees. Congrats guys, well earned!! Till next week: Quote of the week: Stay low...

Debating Society Of Bryant College

by Jonathan A. Roy

The newly formed debating society elected officers in December, however, due to unforeseen circumstances the office of Treasurer is still open. Our new officers are: Jill Anne MacPhee-President, Gary Casagrande-Vice President, and Bettianne Flanders-Secretary. CONGRATULATIONS EVERYONE!!

Our first meeting will be on Wednesday, February 5, at 5pm. Please look for our fliers and posters to learn the room assignment. Anyone interested in joining the society will be welcome. All members from last semester are encouraged to come as we will be setting the time and days of regular meetings.

See you then.

Delta Chi

by Jim Darroch

After a highly spirited kickoff, our thirteen associate members took their first steps toward brotherhood.

W volleyball's Cinderella season came to an end Wednesday as we lost the championship to the Fighting Rhorbeck's in three tough games. Thanks to the multitude of spectators that showed up to cheer us on, and congratulations to the Champs. On the bright side, A hockey notched a convincing 9-3 win over KDR-A, highlighted by Barry's hat trick. B Hockey tied Rolling Stoned in a game that brought sportsmanship to a new level. And Z basketball looks to repeat as Sport Philanthropists of the Year, donating a victory to every opponent faced.

Good luck to all fraternity pledges, and sororities as they wrap up rush and start pledging of their own. To Keith, George, Josh, Kevin, Marcel, Moe, Jon D., Jon K., Derrick, Miah, Greg, Mike, and Rob... Keep up the good work!

Delta Kappa Epsilon

by Robert Martin

Welcome back everyone and Happy New Year. Deke would also like to wish the Greek Community good luck with their upcoming pledge programs. But most importantly, we want to introduce our pledges to you: Frieko, Jeff, Tom, Mama, Scooter, Paul, Dennis, Dan, Mark, Todd, and Big Bob. Good luck boys.

This weekend marks our annual weenie roast with the alumni. Sorry members only.

In our sports report the NORDEKES scored a victory over TEP on Monday Night to remain 6-0, undefeated in the regular season. B-League basketball tips-off next Tues.

Delta Zeta

by Heather Calderone

Welcome back everybody. We would like to wish all of the fraternities and sororities tons of fun pledging, remember we are all with you and good luck. Nothing better than a killer sister's jamboree to follow. The Delta Zeta football team would like to again thank Shank and Kenny for coaching two successful seasons so far. We hope you enjoy your jackets, guys. Congratulations to Taylor and Rozay for being our first to get jobs.

We are all looking forward to a great semester. Happy birthday to Indigo, Spencer, Marquis, Aspen and Jasmine.

Karate Club

Welcome back!!! I trust that everyone had a safe and enjoyable vacation?! No barfights, busted skulls, or felony convictions? Seriously though, I hope that everyone stretched a bit and are ready to have a great semester. Tournament season starts in the spring so now is the time to prepare.

On another note, our beginner's class started on Wednesday. If your interested in joining, NOW is the time to do it. No experience is necessary. Karate is an excellent way to get in shape, learn how to defend yourself, and discover the self discipline that is in all of us. We are located on the 2nd floor of the MAC, Monday and Thursday, 4 to 5:30. See ya there!

Kappa Delta Rho

by Tom Foolery

We would like to welcome everyone back, well those who made it back that is. It's starting to feel a lot like pledging. The brothers kicked off the weekend on Thursday with a Brother's get together. Traditions were once again upheld Thursday night as the mad barbers visited the floor. Friday started at Kirbys where the brothers painted their faces for the rotunda. Then it was time to meet the Pledges who are, Rob Cooper, Joe Scolponeti, Ryan Fox, Dennis Maccarone, and Tim Herlihy. Stick with it guys.

A fine job was done by Brian Stefano last weekend when he took over as Pledgemaster for Catman who was activated by the Army. We would like to thank everyone who came up to visit us late night Saturday. Be on the look out for more late nights.

Phi Kappa Sigma

By Jay Fogarty and Peter Calabro

Welcome back everyone! I hope you all had a good break, I know everyone that stayed up for winter session did. Kick off was a great success. Congratulations to all the new pledges on their start and good luck finishing.....only 8 more weeks.

Congratulations to Rolando for acquiring future employment.

Our basketball A team is looking very promising. We won't be denied. In closing, the brothers would like to say it's good to see Burger back, and yes the pledges are too.

Phi Sigma Sigma

by Tracey Keller and Holly Harrington

First we want to welcome everybody back from break. We started off our week back with a great sister's gathering on Monday, which Sig Ep attended. On Wednesday, we had a gathering with TEP and we would like to thank them for an excellent time.

Secondly, we want to tell the pledges of all the Fraternities to hang in there, it's worth it. We have great rushes and we hope they enjoyed Monday night.

Lastly, we want to wish Jodi a happy birthday from last Monday.

Women's Rugby

by Sandy Pelletier and Kimberly Manwaring

It's the start of a new semester, which translates into lots of fun! The team is looking strong for this season with new officers and good players—so get psyched! We will all have to get together soon in order to talk about the t-shirts and our future endeavors. In the meantime, try to convince friends, suitemates, and others to play on the team and join in on the guaranteed fun. Keep on ruckin! New people interested in playing

"the sport of all sports," watch for signs in the rotunda, the Bryant Center, or further details in our Archway articles.

Sigma Phi Epsilon

by Derek Fairfield

The Brothers of Sigma Phi Epsilon would like to welcome everyone back from break. Friday went well. Good luck to all pledges—hang in there. Many Alumni came back to meet the pledges.

In Sig Ep sports, the hockey A-team won a hard hitting game over Children Beware 4-1. Seb had two goals as well as Tim Gardner. The hoops A-team is looking good for the season. The first game was on Tuesday vs. TKE. The Sig Ep Iron Lung Athlete of the week is Rod Welch.

Congratulations to brothers on their new positions: AD-Tim Keane, Sgt-at-Arms-Bags, House Chairman-Kegger, Philanthropic Chairman-Rob Kraska, Chaplin-Wheels, Historian-Derek Fairfield.

Sigma Sigma Sigma

by Adrienne Hovivian

Welcome Back! Hope everyone had a great break. We got our weekend off to a start on Friday with the kick off of pledging, good luck guys! We then spent the night on the floor, which was a good time. On Saturday, sisters headed up to KDR for fun. Thanks.

Congratulations to Jill for being elected for the whole E-board. Also to Kate who is the sorority, and finally to Melissa who is the administration. We would like to say good luck to our most recent distinguished alumnae, Rif and Sherry. We miss you!!!

SHRM

by Sharie Poulin

Yesterday, Jan. 28 we held our first meeting of the semester. At the meeting we introduced our newly elected Executive Board, voted on a new board position, and discussed plans for this semester.

Our new Executive Board consists of Amy Church (President), Melissa Fortier and Gus Keech (Vice Presidents), Tim Wood (Treasurer), Sharie Poulin (Secretary), and Kris Jones (Historian/PARI Liaison).

Next Wednesday, we will be holding a meeting in Dorm 15 to talk with Freshman about our organization and try to increase the number of members in SHRM. Anyone is welcome to attend.

Our regular meetings will be on alternating Wednesday evenings in Rm 2A of the Bryant Center at 7 PM beginning February 12.

Hope to see all members as well as any new members there!!!!

Student Programming Board

by Laura Kaplan

Hi everyone, and welcome back for the spring semester!!! The programming people are getting excited for a new semester full of lots of fun stuff to do. Coming up is Terminator 2 on Sunday. There are two showings, 7pm and 9:15pm in the auditorium. Movies are only one dollar and they include free popcorn and soda. The popcorn buckets have returned!

The following weekend will be Winter Weekend with photo mugs, horoscopes, and tarot card readings, all for free, in the Bryant

Tau Epsilon Phi

By David Delesdernier

The first week of fun has begun as pledging kicked off on Friday. Old man Rakos, Pope, Shark, Ian, Cujo, and Otis were among the many to come back and see the boys begin their journey.

Well Superbowl Sunday was this past weekend and the theme of the week is "Hail To The Redskins!" As for last week, Wednesday night with Phi Sig Sig was fun. On Thursday night, the pledges came up for one last night of fun with the brothers. That's the happenings for this week.

Theta Phi Alpha

by Tara Reilly

Greetings and Salutations! Hope everyone had a great break. The evidence shows that those who stayed for Wintersession definitely did. Thanks for the wind chimes. Theta's glad to have our floor back and we have been making up for lost time. It was nice to see KDR up on our floor. We all enjoyed the Superbowl on Sun. despite the outcome!

The Sisters of Theta Phi Alpha would like to wish all the fraternity pledges good luck and hang in there -its all worth it in the end!

Only The Good Die Young

by Susie Carroll and Stephen Hearn

No matter how long ago it was for each Bryant student, we can all vividly remember our first days here. Making new friends, missing old friends, adjusting to classes, and adjusting to a new way of life.

The initial drive up the driveway on to the Tupper Campus seemed to have ended far too quickly. There we were, at the freshmen dorms, our new home away from home. As fall athletes, we already had an advantage. We arrived a week before classes and got settled in. For soccer players of the class of '92, we had an extra advantage. His name was S.A.

S.A. had a way of making us feel so "at home" that our fears of college, and playing college soccer, never had a chance to intimidate us.

Being the captain of the men's soccer team, he took his responsibilities very seriously, both on and off the field. He was a leader in the true sense of the word.

As freshmen, S.A. took us under his wing, giving us a finer appreciation of soccer through his dedication and hard work. S.A. was also an inspiration for the women's team. He was always there with a smiling face and a kind word after a tough loss or a congratulations on a big win.

Like any truly great athlete, S.A. had the uncanny ability to make those players around him better players. Whether it was with his physical ability or his moral support, S.A. made us all play at a level we never thought possible. However, S.A. also had the unique quality of bringing out the best in us as people, too. His positive attitude rubbed off on all of us who were lucky enough to have known him. Many who knew S.A. will remember him as an All-American soccer star, but for the select few who were fortunate enough to have known the man behind the uniform, we will remember him as an All-American friend.

A true understanding and reason for his death we may never find, but we have found a light on the dark path - we have been reminded and will never forget...

Silverio Araujo, #9, best known as S.A., - We thank you for all you have given us and we will "wear our jackets with pride."

Athlete OF THE WEEK

Bridget Casey

This week's athlete of the week is Bridget Casey of the women's basketball team. Casey was named to the ECAC/Holiday Inn weekly honor roll. Over the course of the week, she had career high games of 22 and 23 points, shot 53% from the field, and 75% from the foul line against Assumption and St. Anslem's.

The Racquetball Team was also scheduled to play New York University, but NYU ran into problems and had to forfeit their match to Bryant. The weekend's results improves the men's record to 2-1 and the women's record to 1-2, and team overall to 1-2. The next match for the Racquetball Team is this Saturday versus Penn State and being hosted by UMASS-Amherst.

Men's B-Ball Still Struggling

Angelo Corradino
Archway Staff Writer

The men's basketball team dropped their record to 1-15 when they lost to St. Anselm's 97-76 on Saturday.

The Indians kept up with St. A's in the beginning, only trailing 46-45 at the half. But, poor shot selection and a lack of offensive rebounding helped St. A's pull away in the second half.

"I think we need to do little better job at controlling the tempo of the game," coach Ed Reilly said.

"We can't get caught up in a 40 minute transition game. That's what happened Saturday. We shot the ball too-quickly, too-many times."

High scorers in the game were Glenn Tatro with 16, C.J. Simmons, 14, and Richard Rose, 10. Tatro also went 6-10 from the field. Freshman Dave Christie contributed nine points and was 3-5 from the field.

"Glenn [Tatro] had a good effort and played well offensively," coach Reilly added.

"I felt we had a good effort by many players. The freshmen are getting their confidence and contributing more."

"I was disappointed in the defensive play. It broke down, especially when we fell behind. Much of our defensive success depends on the offense. If we have long minutes of defense, that means our offense is too quick."

The team hosted AIC Tuesday and fell behind 28-35 at the half. A late second half rally helped the team come from 14 points down to win 74-71.

High scorers were Ed Daniels, 16 (before fouling-out), Tatro, 15, Simmons, 11, and Rose, 10.

"Tonight, against AIC, and Saturday, against Merrimack, we need to do a better job of controlling the tempo and keep our shot selection in the 50's instead of 70's," coach Reilly said before Tuesday's game.

The team continues to get all-around play from the freshmen. "Our freshmen Dave [Christie], Rick [Shaw], and Chris [Berntsen] have been playing well," coach Reilly concluded.

"Dave, if he stays healthy, will start. He adds an extra dimension to our offense. He's a good shooter, and another passer."

The team hosts Stonehill tonight at 7:30, then travel to Merrimack Saturday, and to Bentley Wednesday.

Women's B-Ball Misses School Record by Two

Angelo Corradino
Archway Staff Writer

The women's basketball team defeated St. Anselm's 104-77 on Saturday, missing the Bryant single game point record by two.

"We played great," coach Mary Burke said.

"St. Anselm's won the NE-10 last year. But this year, they are very young. They lost nine players. That didn't stop us. We kept the pressure on. We were all over the floor."

Bryant jumped out to a 54-24 half time lead and never let up. The 100 point barrier was broken when Kim Ross made two free throws with :23 left in game.

"I didn't know how close we were to the record until after the game," coach Burke said. "I wish I knew during the game. Maybe we would have broken it."

High scorers

in the game were Bridget Casey, 23, Holly Grinnell, 22, Heather Houle, 18, Jen Spencer, 12, and Kim Ross, 11.

Kim Ross also had 15 assists, breaking the previous record of 14 held by Sue Crisafi.

Kelly Jacob, Jen Spencer, and Holly Grinnell also teamed up for 10 boards and a combined 14-16 from the foul line.

"Everyone played well. It was an all-around good game," coach Burke added.

"We just came off a four game road trip.

It was nice to be home. I think that motivated us."

The team hosted AIC on Tuesday. After going down 22 points early in the second half, a late rally fell five points short, 71-66.

High scorers in the game were Grinnell, 33, Spencer, 14, and Casey, 10. Spencer also had nine rebounds and was 6-6 from the foul line.

"It should be a good game," coach Burke said prior to Tuesday's game. "AIC always comes on strong it will be a good test for us."

The Lady Indians will have to complete the season with only eight players. Sophomore Jen Corby (fractured hand), and freshmen Anne Degenhardt (Achilles tendon), and Kristin Berg (knee surgery) will miss the rest of the season.

The team will host Stonehill tonight at 5:30, then travel to Merrimack on Saturday and Bentley on Wednesday.

Heather Houle(32) watches a shot go in Tuesday against AIC.

Bryant Sports Receive Recognition for Successful Seasons

Angelo Corradino
Archway Staff Writer

The fall season was, "one of the most successful seasons overall," intramural coach Bob Reall said at the half-time ceremony honoring the women's volleyball team on Tuesday.

The list of accomplishments for Bryant include: three cross-country members attended regional meets, the women's tennis team who finished third in the conference as well as the in New England, and the golf team, for the 10th time in 11 years, was the top team in New England.

"This was all topped off by the women's volleyball team winning the NE-10," coach Reall said.

This is the first time, in Bryant history, the volleyball team captured the NE-10 crown.

"It's the first time the women had won this; that's why it's so important. They're one of the few teams that don't have a banner," athletic director Leon A. Drury said.

Individual players also received honors for the Lady Indians. Freshmen Maria Bras was selected to two of three all-tourney teams, named Rookie of the Year, and is a member of the All-New England Team.

Senior captain Noelle Emmette was MVP two of three times and All-Tourney the third time, Player of the Year, leader in the conference in kills/game and kills/week, and named to the All-New England Regional Team.

Rookie head coach Karen Ferreira was Coach of the Year.

Ferreira will also be honored, at a dinner later this month, by the Rhode Island Sports Casters and Sports Writers as an outstanding female coach in Rhode Island.

The team was presented with their NE-10 championship banner which will be put on permanent display in the main gym for all to see and be proud of.

Racquetball Defeated at P.C. by West Point

by Fred Calabrese

Susan Donatelli probably did not expect to win her singles match and Head Coach Denise Savoie expected the Team to win the overall match. However, Sue won her match and the Bryant Racquetball Team took a tough loss to the U.S. Military Academy (West Point) this past weekend at a meet hosted by Providence College by a match score of 14-6. Both men's and women's teams earned three wins a piece to account for Bryant's six wins.

The women's team combined for three of the six wins. As expected, #1 Bobbi-Jo Bell defeated West Point's #1 15-6, 15-2. One of the highlights was #4 Sue Donatelli. She pulled off a surprising win despite playing only her second match of the year by a score of 15-10, 13-15, 11-7. Another highlight was #3 Erin O'Connell who pulled out a miracle win despite playing with bruised ribs. Not expected to win, Erin was down 15-9, 0-15, 0-9, before pulling miracle serves and shots to come from way behind to win the tiebreaker 11-10. The #1 women's doubles team bit the dust 7-15, 15-12, 8-11, which was supposed to be an easy victory.

The men were led by #1 Jesse Albright with a 15-5, 15-14 win and #5 Derek Gonda with a 4-15, 15-6, 11-10 win, and they combined for the men's other win in the #1 doubles spot, 15-11, 15-4. Other men's matches worthy of mentioning were #2 Jason Hurst's tough loss (10-15, 15-11, 8-11) and #3 Paul Martin's deju vu tiebreaker loss (15-14, 7-15, 3-11).
