Get "Goosed" This Weekend Unhomecoming '92 in Full Swing

Marguerite K. Phillips
Archway Staff Writer

"I Got Goosed at Bryant" is an intriguing motto. What does it mean?

This theme is the Student Programming Board's way of informing the Bryant community that the organization wants to be as well-known on campus as the geese are; positively speaking, of course.

This Wednesday, Nov. 18, Bryant's annual Unhomecoming festivities began. This year, things are a bit different. Students do not have to pay the full $10 if they choose to participate in only select events; the events can be paid for separately.

During the day on Friday, the product, Nordic Mist, will be introduced for the first time by the Coca-Cola Company in conjunction with Brycol, the student-run business on campus. Friday night at 8 o'clock p.m. in the MAC, the biggest event features Paula Poundstone, the popular comedienne who has appeared on an HBO special. Back-2-Back, Bryant's well-known Uncle/Nephew duo, will be performing as well. Admission is $6.

The Battle of the Bands is another long-awaited event that will happen this weekend on Saturday at 8 o'clock p.m. in the MAC, hosted by comic Paul Stowe. Five bands will compete during twenty-minute sets each. The audience gets a chance to vote for the band of their choice, and the winner gets to open for this year's Spring Weekend. For students 21 and over, there will be a beer garden. Admission is $5.

Those are the highlights of the weekend, but there are many more events, including a car give-away

(a 1993 Isuzu Amigo), caricatures, and candy sales. This year's Unhomecoming should prove to be a great time had by all, especially with student support, enthusiasm, and participation.

The weekend's events: Thursday, November 19 - Caricature Artists, Hoop Shoot, and Candy Sale 11am - 3pm, Bryant Center; Putt-A-Thon 11am - 2pm Rotunda.

Friday, November 20 - Pie Toss 11am - 3pm Bryant Center; Afternoon at the Comfort 4pm - 7pm; Unhomecoming Comedy Show featuring Paula Poundstone with opening act Back 2 Back, Nordic Mist sampling 8pm - 10pm MAC.

Saturday, November 21 - Bryant Basketball, halftime shoot out for car 3:30pm; Battle of the Bands with Comedian Paul Stowe 8pm.

Sunday, November 22 - Patriots vs. Jets at Foxboro 4pm game; Lethal Weapon III 7pm & 9:15pm.

War Abroad Hits Home

Julia Arouchon
Archway Staff Writer

The news of the genocidal war between the Croats, Serbs and Bosnians in what was once Yugoslavia came as a shock to most people. For Vanja Dukic, the atrocities occurring between the countries hits a little too close to home.

Home for Vanja is Sarajevo, the site of 1984 Winter Olympics. However, she is currently a freshman actuarial major at Bryant. She was a high school exchange student in South Dakota for a semester before deciding to attend Bryant.

What is really going on in Yugoslavia? According to Time magazine, the fundamental objective of the war is "ethnic cleansing." Serbians, in an attempt to move into Bosnia, expelled the Muslims and Croats.

In order to better understand the current civil war, the history of Yugoslavia must be examined. Yugoslavia was ruled by Marshal Tito who tried to unify the country's diverse ethnic groups. When Tito died in 1980, the country began to break apart and ethnic differences emerged.

Currently Yugoslavia is broken into five different countries: Yugoslavia (Serbia and Montenegro), Croatia, Slovenia, Macedonia and Bosnia-Herzegovina.

The civil war puts the Serbs against the Croats while placing the Bosnians in the middle. According to Vanja, the current civil war is "one big revenge" for what happened during World War II. Approximately, 750,000 Serbians were killed by Croatian and Bosnian Muslims in that war.

Slovenia was the first nation to descend to chaos followed by Croatia and Bosnia, which led to the current civil war. Croatia and Serbia fought over which land belonged to which republic.

Vanja cannot justify what is going on in her country, nor can she explain the hate to herself. She says the problems are deep rooted - the hate made the war spread like

Renowned Comedienne to Perform

Paula Poundstone started down the road to her comical career "13 1/2 long years ago" by doing open mike nights in Boston. She busied tables, washed dishes, and even waited on tables for a while, until she changed from cleaning up after people to making them laugh. According to her, "it wasn't a huge career change."

She then got on a Greyhound bus and tried clubs in other cities. When she moved to San Francisco, she took odd jobs and again did open mike nights.

Since those days, her career has blossomed. She is now one of the leading stand-up comics in America. Poundstone, 32, was born in Alabama, raised in Sudbury, Massachusetts, lived in San Francisco and now lives in Los Angeles.

Poundstone has a long list of accomplishments. In 1989, she received an American Comedy Award as best female stand-up.

She won an Award for Cable Excellence this past January as Best Female Stand-Up from her special, "Cats, Cops and Stuff" on HBO. This past February, she starred in her own weekly talk show also on HBO, "The Paula Poundstone Show." Guests on the show, Poundstone said, were "regular people" who were there to tell what they did.

She also made an appearance on "Sesame Street" this past year because she feels "it's the best show ever on TV."

Poundstone headlined at the White House Correspondents Dinner held in Washington, DC this past May where she addressed journalists, congressional leaders and cabinet members as well as the President.

She also served as the "official correspondent" at the Democratic and Republican National Conventions for "The Tonight Show with Jay Leno." In an interview yesterday with 88.7-WJMF, Poundstone stated the conventions were "interesting" because she was able to see what it was all about. She went on to say it was "exciting" because she "saw people from all over the country participate."

Poundstone's act is largely anecdotal, reflecting things she's either interested or involved in. Pop-tarts and cats (she has six) are a large part of her routine and everyday life. She likes to tell more stories than jokes, especially from watching the world and trying to make sense of it.

Poundstone likes being a comic because "everybody likes to hear people laugh."

Interacting with members of the audience is one of Poundstone's favorite things about being in comedy. She believes everyone has a story to share.

Due to her heavy appearance schedule at colleges and concert venues, Poundstone is away from home an average of 45 weeks a year. But, she is not away from home for the entire week, only for three to four nights. She prefers being in a different place every night, but, after a while, she said, "all the cities start to blend together and it is hard to keep track of where I'm at."

She stated, "I wish it could be like Bewitched where I could wiggle my nose and be there." Poundstone quips that there are "perks" about traveling. She has accumulated many frequent flier miles as well as many small shampoos.

In the future, Poundstone would like to become a foster parent and keep climbing higher on the ladder to comedy success.

Although she has played many colleges on her current tour, Poundstone said she is "looking forward to performing at Bryant" Friday night.

Poundstone's performance will follow Back-2-Back at 8pm in the MAC.

Safe Sex and The College Press

Cindy Gale
Archway Staff Writer

If you were a Rhode Island College student, and you picked up the October 26, 1992 issue of their student newspaper, The Anchor, you would have found an insert you didn't quite expect.

The insert wasn't telling you what local pizza parlor was having a special that week or even trying to get you to apply for a credit card. Instead the insert was trying to get you to save your life. It was a condom.

According to the Executive Editor of The Anchor, Jeff Wallace, the staff decided to devote the issue to safe sex because he felt people weren't getting "educated enough about AIDS, safe sex and STD's."

Wallace added he wants people to understand all aspects of it and he wants to educate them.

Wallace thought of devoting an issue of the paper to safe sex a month before the issue came out. He added his staff was very supportive of the idea and they wanted to cover all aspects of safe sex.

One such article was "Thoughts From a Testing Clinic." The author takes the reader with him on his visit to an AIDS testing clinic. As he is waiting, he recalls the night he may have encountered the disease, and does not look forward to the six months he has to wait to see if he has the disease. The article ends by saying, "As these six go by, I will sit and have the chance to worry. Are these six months to live, or are they six months to die?"

Other articles were geared at informing readers of the dangers of AIDS, as well as precautions that can be taken to prevent the disease.

There was also an article on sexually transmitted diseases.

The condom was wrapped in a piece of green paper with a message promoting safe sex. The last line read, "Safe sex is no joke, it is a matter of life and death. Be smart."

According to Wallace, a condom was chosen for the insert because it is "a powerful symbol of safe sex." He feels the issue of The Anchor "opened people's eyes that the topic of unprotected sex was serious."

The safe sex issue has been well received by the students and administrators of Rhode Island College, as well as the general public according to Wallace. He also feels people were very impressed and learned a lot from it.

In the editorial near the end of the paper it is stated, "The Anchor is not promoting sex, rather safer sex... The age of free love is over. We are living in an age that requires sexually active people to take precautions. Sex cannot be casual and unprotected, because sexually transmitted diseases are so easy to contract. Condom use is vital... Ignorance equals death. Don't let it happen to you."

What In the World do We Have to be Thankful For?

Turn on the news on any given night and you're sure to hear Tom Brokaw or Karen Adams reporting on a catastrophe. If it's not a natural disaster, it's a story about unnatural tragedies.

Hurricane Andrew, Jeffrey Dohmer, "Father" James Porter, war-torn Yugoslavia, economic recession, AIDS. Homelessness, hunger, ozone depletion, police brutality, sexual assault, crack babies, domestic violence, Los Angeles riots, car-jackings. Vigilantism, racism, sexism...

The list goes on and on, but these are just a few of the buzzwords thrown at us recently. All the while we've been trying to get along with our everyday lives.

As students we have the stresses of exams and papers and interviews and job searching.

As members of society we all have the stresses of hard economic times, a bleak job market, and problems in our personal lives.

And as members of the Bryant "Community" many have complained of the added stresses and strains of poor communication and decision making.

In the midst of such confusion and virtual mayhem in our world, it seems like we have little for which to be thankful. Who can be thankful for senseless violence, destruction, and cruelty? A quick glance can make our world look pretty hopeless.

Most of us are looking forward to a big turkey dinner with our friends and family next week for the Thanksgiving holiday. But Thanksgiving means much more than turkey and stuffing and pumpkin pie.

By simple definition, Thanksgiving is a time for giving thanks. In a time when things seem rather grey, we have all the more reason to be thankful - thankful for what we have, instead of worried about what we don't have.

This year when you're sitting around the table, fork poised to shovel in a mouthful of cranberry sauce, stop and think about how lucky you are.

If you have a home, be thankful. Many people have no place to call home except the streets.

If you have a family, be thankful. Not everyone is surrounded by love of family and friends.

If you have good health, be thankful. There are many people suffering from diseases and injuries.

If you have a job, be thankful. Many jobless people worry about using their life savings to keep a roof over their heads and a simple meal on the table.

If you have food to eat, be thankful. People all over the world, in our own country, and yes, even in our own community go hungry everyday.

Thanksgiving is not a time to reflect on what we don't have or on the imperfections of the world. It is a time to be truly thankful that for what we do have.

Despite all of our common stresses and strains, most of us are more fortunate than we think. As the holiday season continues, remember not only the "thanking" part of Thanksgiving, but also the "giving" part. Let's not only be thankful for what we have this year, but also give to the many people who truly are less fortunate.

Public Safety Policy Questioned

Dear Editor:

We are writing to address the issue of calling in guests at the front gate. Recently the new policy has been that if someone wants to call in a guest after 6:00 p.m. that person has to walk down to the front gate to give their name and the name(s) of their guest(s). The possibility of knowing when a guest is going to arrive prior to 6:00 p.m. is not always possible. We find that this new policy is absolutely ludicrous. With fall here and with the winter weather approaching we find that the front gate should take down the guests names over the phone as was done last year. Soon snow will be falling and ice will be accumulating which does not provide the safest conditions to travel across campus. Although we find this campus somewhat safe we feel in this situation that it is quite dangerous. Darkness approaches much earlier now and when someone has to walk down to the front gate to give the information of their guest it is rather unsafe. This is especially true for the female students when no one is available to accompany them. On the weekends most people on campus have been drinking and the possibility for harassment to occur is greatly increased. Walking across campus alone at night provokes unpleasant situations that the individual may be subjected to. As female students of the Bryant community this can be uncomfortable and frightening situation. If Public Safety can answer the phone, would it be so strenuous to write down a few names while the phone has already been answered? We do not find any logic in this new policy and do not understand the reason for not taking any phone calls past the hour stated.

Wintersession Courses Span the Curriculum and the Globe

Lisa Lucchesi and Katrina Pfannkuch
Archway Staff Writers

Wintersession is an intense, concentrated session discussing topics not generally a part of the regular curriculum. Some of the courses are required courses, while others concentrate on program electives, international studies, and special topics in both liberal arts and business disciplines.

Wintersession is a valuable option for students who are interested in experiencing new courses in special topics, getting ahead in credits, or pursuing a double major. It is also an opportunity for students to gain a unique learning experience.

Betty Powers, the Assistant Director of Part-Time Studies, is responsible for coordinating the Wintersession events. Powers commented, "I think what makes Wintersession unique is that the courses span academic, cultural, and social learning experiences."

Professor Roger Anderson will be teaching a special course on Thinking About Organization & Management. "The objectives of this course are to acquaint students with the management 'gurus' and to familiarize students with both their theories and their recommendations for practicing managers in the 1990's," described Professor Anderson.

This course will focus on several different ways of thinking about organizations: organizations as machines, organizations as organisms, organizations as cultures, and organizations as political systems. It will also explore a variety of perspectives in the key management issues.

Professor Mike Fraleigh will be teaching a course on Liberal Education & the Curriculum. He added, "This course is not only different and unique, it is probably the only course in the curriculum that was designed by students."

Professor Fraleigh said, "It is essential for students to learn about the relationship between what you learn in liberal arts courses and career success. Students will have a better understanding of how their liberal arts courses can complement their business careers."

The idea for this course basically emerged from a 400 level Sociology at Work course. The seniors taking this course thought this would be an exceptional one, so they designed one. Many seniors commented they wished they had this course offered to them when they were freshman or sophomores.

The course was designed for the intense Wintersession format. Each class involves a combination of short lecture, class discussion, and guest speakers. According to Professor Fraleigh, the end result of this course is to give students a better idea of how to select courses that will prepare them for their chosen career. This course is opened to all freshmen, sophomores, juniors, and seniors.

Professor Ronald Deluga will be leading students in a course of Directed International Study. Professor Deluga described this course as having "academic, cultural, and social learning objectives which are achieved, in part, through living and learning in another country for 14-21 days."

He commented, "With this program, the learning is 24 hours a day; it never ends."

"This is the most exciting thing I do every year, but it is really the students that make the trip," concluded Professor Deluga.

The Directed International Study program fulfills social science, liberal arts, or unrestricted elective requirements. Students will spend 20 evenings in the Chalet Colina in Leysin, Switzerland. They will also be allowed to travel all throughout Europe to places such as Germany, Italy, Spain, and many other exciting cities and countries.

Professor Deluga explained, "The students who have completed this course are expected to receive a scholarly benefit resulting from the completion of an in-depth academic project, a cultural awareness gained from living and learning abroad, and a self-knowledge which is difficult to obtain from more traditional courses."

The Wintersession courses will run from January 4 to January 22. The classes are scheduled from 8:30-11:30, five days a week. Instructors may adjust this time schedule with the class to meet course requirements. All students wishing to reside on campus will be housed in residence hall 8. Points may be purchased from ARA for the period of Wintersession. Food service will not be available after 3pm.

Registration for these courses will run from November 30 to January 4.

The next Archway will be published on Thursday, December 3. All submissions are due by 4pm on Tuesday, December 1. Have a safe and happy Thanksgiving!

Bryant Center Operator Directs Talents Elsewhere

Marguerite K. Phillips
Archway Staff Writer

The Bryant Center is a place where students can go to socialize, relax, grab a bite to eat, run various errands, and obtain information about almost anything on or near campus. The man who helped make it all happen recently left Bryant for a job at a major university.

When the Center was constructed seven years ago, Charles Merrihew, affectionately known as Chuck to those who knew him, was a large part of its creation. He was involved with the formation of the bulk of the management areas, such as policy-making and staffing, along with technical and financial areas as well.

Merrihew recently left his position as the Bryant Center's first Director of Operations for a job at the University of Syracuse in Syracuse, NY.

Merrihew recently earned his Master's of Business Administration degree from Bryant. His undergraduate degree in elementary education came from SUNY Cortland in New York.

Before he came to Bryant, Merrihew held a similar position at Rhode Island College.

Now, Merrihew is finishing up his first week as the Assistant to the Vice-President of Syracuse. His main duty there entails the fiscal budget of his division.

Why did Merrihew leave? "The opportunity presented itself," he said. The former operations director felt it was time for a change, and he hopes he "left good ground-work" for the next director.

Although Merrihew had the "luxury of being [at Bryant] from day one," the new director will have to address the question of whether or not to downsize certain student services because of the decreasing size of the student body.

Digital Equipment Corporation's Future...

by Scott Martin

On Thursday, November 5th 1992, 54 miles away from Bryant, the Annual Meeting of Stockholders for one of the largest corporations in the computer industry took place. The location was The World Trade Center in Boston and the company was Digital Equipment Corporation.

Formal Business:
With a quorum present by shareholder or proxy, the appointment of the following Board Members took place: Colby H. Chandler, previous Chairman of the Board and CEO Eastman Kodak Company, (Kodak). Arnaud de Vitry, previous Chairman of the Board and CEO Eureka SICAV. Dr. Thomas P. Gerrity, previous Dean of Wharton School of The University of Pennsylvania and CEO of Index Group, Inc.

Also the ratification of the firm Coopers and Lybrand as auditors for the fiscal year ending July 3rd, 1993 was conducted and all motions passed.

Robert B. Palmer's Speech:
Mr. Robert Palmer delivered the keynote presentation to the shareholders in attendance at the meeting. The strength and perseverance of DEC was exemplified in the words of Mr. Palmer. The announcement of the ALPHA AXP family of systems takes place the following week. This system is a promising new product that is hoped to increase revenues and customer base.

As an example of planning a direction for DEC's future, Mr. Palmer used the $1.8 million dollar engineering investment as proof that Digital is planning for the future; that investment happens to be the largest in the world. In addressing the topic of change, "We have the strongest balance sheet in the industry with $5 billion in equity and little debt."

Palmer further said "Digital has always had and will continue to have a conservative financial policy, and both Moody's and Standard and Poor's rating services recognized that our financial strength gives us the flexibility and staying power needed to change." In conclusion Mr. Palmer said, "One year from today our progress will be self-evident. That is my commitment to you."

Floor Questions:
A long-term shareholder expressed a desire to see a two-fold plan put into effect immediately. This plan suggested the re-acquisition of common stock by the company and a willingness by the President and the Board to negotiate mergers take place.

Mr. Palmer responded by assuring the shareholders of his intentions to direct the company toward increased revenue and cost reductions. He also indicated he has always held an open ear for the negotiations of mergers, but in the past has seen it in the best interest of Digital not to do so.

A question from the floor inquired about incentives to lower level management for cost reduction effectiveness. One could safely assume the individual making the inquiry was a member of Digital's lower level management team. Cost reduction incentives have been offered in the past in the form of stocks and profit sharing. These long-term benefits will soon be complimented by cash bonuses for the reduction of cost.

Mr. Palmer was pressed in the area of predictions for the future. After hearing the questions I searched through my copy of the Annual Report to locate the expense account for "Psychic Consultations." Anyone who would expect the President of a firm to venture to guess on today's economics shouldn't expect an answer.

However, Mr. Palmer answered the questions the best anyone could, seeing the question asked to foresee the future. He spoke of a task force assigned to analyzing the cost-effectiveness of many systems including pending lease agreements in various locations.

A comment on flattening the hierarchy of DEC arose from the shareholders. The general thought is of course lost jobs, on the contrary this concept will allow more flexibility and agility to maneuver around obstacles. The survival of the firm through the economic hard times will put Digital on top to create future jobs.

a cancer. "I don't have words to describe what is going on," said Vanja.

"In Sarajevo we felt it couldn't ever happen to us because it seemed so far away," Vanja said. She noted, however, that Serbians now have control of Sarajevo and everyday fifteen to twenty civilians are reported killed in the area. Serbians have set up detention camps where starvation, beatings and interrogations take hundreds of innocent lives. Time magazine reports civilians are the prime targets.

Vanja is half Serbian and half Croatian. Because of her background, Vanja has difficulty understanding the current differences between the two. "There are hundreds of Serbians and Croats married to each other, but yet the two continue to fight against one another."

Currently, Vanja is in contact with her father who is in Slovenia, but has not had any information about her mother since July. "I truly believe she is strong enough to go through the insanity of this war. I just want to hear the news that would confirm it."

Vanja believes the people of her country have changed forever because of the fighting, and as a result, they will never be the same.

According to Vanja, "The future is blank" for everyone who called Yugoslavia home. But, she does feel like she has found a second home at Bryant. "I want to thank all my friends that helped me through my difficult moments."

Motor Vehicle Accident

Monday, November 9, 1992
9:00pm.

A Department of Public Safety (DPS) Officer was dispatched to Parking Lot C-1, following a report of a vehicle accident. When the officer arrived, he met with a victim, who stated she returned to her vehicle after night class to find another vehicle's left front quarter panel pressed up against her vehicle's right front quarter panel.

It was later learned the driver of the second vehicle had left his vehicle in neutral and failed to set the parking brake, permitting it to roll into the first vehicle. At this time, the Smithfield Police Department (SPD) was requested to come to the scene to obtain a report.

Alcohol Violation

Friday, November 13, 1992, at 9:15pm.

A DPS Officer stationed at the Entry Control Station (ECS) noticed a keg in the rear of a vehicle as it entered the campus. The officer notified the DPS mobile unit and informed the officer the vehicle had turned into the old townhouse village.

When the mobile unit located the vehicle in the village, the vehicle operator denied any knowledge of the keg. After being informed a Resident Director (RD) would be requested for a search of his townhouse, the student entered the townhouse and carried the keg out. The keg was then destroyed. It was learned the student was under twenty-one (21) years of age.

Fire Alarm and Alcohol Violation

Sunday, November 15, 1992
1:46am.

At the above time and date, the fire alarm was activated in Residence Hall 1. Three (3) DPS Officers were dispatched to the scene. During an investigation into the cause of the alarm, the officers found that a smoke detector in a hallway had been broken off the ceiling, leaving only bare wires. The broken smoke detector was found approximately twenty (20) feet away from the rear of the building.

Two (2) Smithfield Fire Department (SFD) units responded to the call and classified the alarm as malicious. The on-call electrician was requested to reset the alarm and repair the smoke detector. At 2:12am, the alarm was silenced and the damaged fire zone was taken off-line. SFD cleared the scene and DPS posted a fire watch of the area until 3:16am when the repair was completed and the alarm was reset. SPD was also notified of the incident. An investigation continues.

If anyone has any information leading to the arrest and/or apprehension of suspects involved in this incident please contact DPS at 232-6001. You may remain anonymous. Further, a $1,000 reward may be granted for such information.

During a routine check of the building in the above incident, a DPS Officer noticed a keg in a student's room. A Resident Assistant was asked to verify the location of the keg before it was removed from the room. As DPS was confiscating the keg, two (2) residents of the room began to complain about the incident to DPS.

The students were advised to avoid further confrontation at that time.

Safety Tip of the Week

Keep your student ID Card in your possession at all times. Store your ID Card away from heat, sharp or abrasive objects, magnets, and magnetically charged devices (ie. computers and related hardware). This will help ensure the full life of your ID Card. If your card is lost or stolen, report it to DPS as soon as possible.

SSC will be sponsoring a seminar on Computer Crime, Monday, November 23, at 4:00pm in the Gulski/Faculty Dining Room. Professor Merrill Warkentin, the guest speaker, will be discussing computer hackers, embezzlers, thieves and viruses, as well as some exciting new developments in the area of computer crimes. New ways to use computers to fight crime will also be presented. Students and faculty are all welcome.

Well, I've finally done it. For months I've been threatening the editors of this fine paper with the news of my impending return from retirement. Although they begged me not to, and even offered large cash gifts, I feel it is my duty to my loyal fans to write at least one column for them. Also, it is my duty to those of you who can't stand this column to do my very best to annoy you to the point of wishing you had a large hammer to beat yourself over the head with in a futile attempt to make me go away.

Dr. Glish is actually here to answer some of the most commonly asked questions about our intricate, yet surprisingly simple language. That language is, of course, Yiddish.

Q: What are the various verb tenses, and how should each one be used in a sentence?

A: There are numerous verb tenses, including the singular, the plurality, the majority, present participle, the not-so-distant-future participle, and the electron. They are used differently in different situations, but a good rule of thumb is the old adage we learned in grammar school, "I before E, except after C or if you are married filing jointly in the third paragraph of article 3, section II, rows 15 and 16."

Q: Please explain the difference between alumnus, alumni, and alma mater.

A: An alumnus is one person who has paid roughly the Gross National Product of Algeria for their education; alumni denotes a group of these people; and alma mater is when you get letters after graduation asking for money, as in "Please don't forget to give you TAX DEDUCTIBLE donation to your alma mater so we can spend it on giving ourselves raises and new offices, and maybe a machine that signs our name for us because we're almost never around to actually sign actual documents ourselves."

Q: What is a hyperbole? And do they have them in Algeria?

A: A hyperbole, according to Webster's Dictionary of Language and Auto Mechanics, is an exaggeration used as a figure of speech. For example the phrase "many professors routinely place tuna salad in their shorts," is not a hyperbole. However, the phrase "but some prefer Spam," is a hyperbole. And since there is not a great supply of tuna salad or Spam in Algeria (motto: "No pork parts are good pork parts), there hasn't been a hyperbole there for nearly 40 years.

Q: What is the proper use for a comma?

A: Commas, like all punctuation marks, are nasty, rodent-like little creatures that tend to crop up where ever you don't !@.?!? want them to. The best way to handle punctuation in sentences is to include a random punctuation mark every three or four words. This will keep them (the punctuation marks) happy and keep them from attacking the rest of the words on your page, which, as we all know, is the leading cause of students not having their homework completed.

Q: Is there any difference between the words "know" and "no."

A: Know. I mean no.

Q: What is an adverb?

A: An adverb is an apprentice verb. What happens is over in verb school, words are tested to see which ones describe an action, and which ones only modify the action. For example, in the sentence "the disgruntled student shoved the calculator up the professor's nose," "shoved" is the verb because the student engaged in the action of shoving the calculator. By adding an adverb such "hard, fast, or viciously," as in "the disgruntled student viciously shoved the calculator up the professor's nose," we have completed the sentence and made everyone happy.

Now, if you'll excuse me, I know have to go to my alma mater to get some punc!@.?!?uation marks.

ROTC Cadets Help In Rebuilding Homes in Local Community

by Sean Cataldo

On Halloween morning, when the ghosts and goblins were getting ready to come out for the night and many Bryant students were deciding on how to celebrate this spooky occasion, Bryant College ROTC cadets donated their time and effort to the North Providence community.

With the assistance of other volunteers, Bryant College ROTC cadets and Sergeant Garcia proceeded to rebuild a home for a family in need.

Habitat for Humanity is designed to help families who cannot afford the high costs of building a home. The family who wishes to own a home buys either a run down home or a vacant lot at a very low cost. This family is also responsible for purchasing the materials to construct their home, but Habitat for Humanity helps them to build their home at no cost. All the labor costs are eliminated because all the laborers are volunteers.

During this Saturday, volunteers built the front and back porch of the house and put on a new roof. Even if you can't hammer a nail, they still need your assistance. Other volunteers cleaned the downstairs basement, removed old plumbing pipes and cleaned the outside area. The feeling of giving and helping is really something. For further information on Habitat for Humanity call 831-5424.

Bryant College ROTC cadets are also planning future community services. For this Thanksgiving, ROTC Cadets worked to rebuild a home in North Providence on Halloween. Cadets Mark Leszczynski and Amy Church took time out to pose with the Habitat for Humanity signboard.

ROTC is sponsoring a canned food drive. Cadets will be traveling throughout the Smithfield community asking for donations.

Also in February, ROTC cadets will be camping out in tents in front of the Bryant Center to raise money for the victims of Hurricane Andrew. Bryant College ROTC in conjunction with Providence College ROTC will also be sponsoring the 2nd Annual Ruck March for the Meeting Street School in Providence. As you can see, the Bryant College ROTC cadets are volunteering a lot of their time to the community and we hope you would do the same. If you have no time, we will still be looking for your support.

Changes in The Koffler Center

There are some new things over at the Koffler Center. Some of them are big changes and others are small.

Bits and Bytes

by Ben Garfield

The biggest change is that the DEC System will be completely replacing the Academic Data General System. At this time, they are planning to have the job completed for next semester. Currently three classes are using the DEC System.

The next change is just an enforcement of a rule Koffler has had for a while. Many people are using the Print Booth as a copy machine. This will be stopped. The people in the Print Booth are under orders to delete any print jobs that are making multiple copies of the same thing. This should save the college a good amount of money. So please, stick to one copy and use a photocopier for the rest.

The last is a welcomed improvement. If anyone has used the mice over at the Koffler Center, they would have noticed that it is hard to use a mouse on the bare table top. There are now mouse pads for student use in the Print Booth. All you have to do is leave a Student ID card to get one. I would highly recommend using them when using Windows.

"Are Sexy Ads OK?... What About Sexist Ones?"

This week's article focuses on how women are portrayed in the media. It is excerpted from Marketing News, November 23, 1992.

Family Circle publisher Valerie Salembier swears she's no prude, although she does have a definite problem with some of the rather titillating images used in advertising.

"There still seems to be serious confusion about what is sexy. I'm not against good, sexy advertising, but advertisers have to know the difference between sexy and sexist. When the message is sexy, it can be appealing. When it's sexist, it's a turnoff," Salembier recently told the audience at Women in Communications Inc.'s national conference.

"Can sex in advertising be relevant? You bet, but it has to have a function and really sell the product," said Salembier. "Most sexist ads promise sex and simply don't deliver."

She blasted a recent ad for Diesel jeans, labeling it "unbearable in its insensitivity to both women and minorities." The print ad shows a black woman wearing only a bra and jeans with the fly undone. Set against a zebra print background, the headline reads, "How to control wild animals."

But Salembier heaped most of her criticism on that sultan of the sensual sell, Calvin Klein. After starting out with ads that featured Brooke Shields purring that nothing came between her and her Calvins, the designer is now using Karen Moss "shown with even less coming between her and her Calvins." If that's the kind of women Klein thinks he's making his jeans for, she questioned, "why manufacture them in size 14 and 16?"

Salembier slammed Klein's Obsession ads that feature the rather torrid images of photographer Bruce Weber, calling the ads "so subtle and so slick that it's scary."

Salembier accused Klein of "going off the deep end" with his late 1980s ads for Eternity which features a woman's voice saying, "Help me, destroy me, become me, until there's nothing left of me; nothing left but you."

Klein has since revised the Eternity ads to feature happy, beautiful families, but it "took gigantic failure for Calvin Klein to change his marketing direction," Salembier

Not For Women Only...

Submitted by WEB asserted that failure came in the form of Klein's super steamy 116-page outsert, which didn't boost sales and resulted in dismissal of four key Klein executives.

"Perhaps the enormous loss of revenue led Klein to an epiphany that led him to get into the market's head and hearts, instead of their pants," Salembier said.

Salembier did credit Klein for rediscovering the "aged" Lisa Taylor, who was the designer's supermodel in the 1970s. New Klein ads feature the now fortysomething model in a very low-cut suit. "It's simple but elegant," she said. "It's sexy not because she's baring her breasts, but because [women] can relate to her."

There are some marketers using good, clean sex, instead of sexism in their ads. Salembier cited Donna Karan's new perfume ads as making good use of some rather steamy images. "It's not shocking. It's engaging. It promises using the perfume will be a sensual experience, but it's about you, not about getting him."

Salembier also praised the Anne Klein II ad that shows a picture of a fireman in his gear next to a shot of woman in a suit with the caption, "my uniform." The women aren't "shown draped across the page," or as sex objects, but they're still "plenty sexy," she said.

Fashion marketers seem to have a bigger problem than most in distinguishing between sex and sexist, and Salembier said that's because they're pitching products that appeal to a person's vanity.

"There's a big difference between how marketers sell cereal and how they sell fantasy," she said. "It's fair to sell fantasy. We all want to look and feel good. It's the method that has to be held up to scrutiny."

To pass that test, Salembier said marketers should avoid any idea that is designed to produce guilt in women or implies that women are anything less than their male counter-parts. They should also steer clear of portraying women as victims or as not being really interested or motivated by information about a product.

It's becoming more important for marketers to not cross over the line from sexism to sexist because women are paying more attention. While it might not be "top of mind with some people, the reality is that when consumers talk of these things, women can tell you exactly what they define as offensive."

She cited the outrage that came from average women over Old Milwaukee's Swedish Bikini Team ad. "These were not die-hard feminists. That has to tell you something," Salembier said.

The Anita Hill-Clarence Thomas trials "galvanized women," she said. "There's a parallel in that the same way women have been identified as a political force, advertisers and marketers recognize the importance of appealing to our consumer power."

"Sexism in advertising has turned out to be a very big mistake," and if a company's product is associated with sexist images, "sales can and will go down." She added: "Once women feel offended by advertising, they have no difficulty in saying they're not buying the product."

Although it may be tempting to blame "the good old boys" in advertising, it's not just male marketers making the sexual faux pas. "I'm always horrified to learn a woman was responsible" for a sexist ad, Salembier said.

She also noted that sexism in advertising isn't limited to women, citing the Sansabelt ads that had women making all sorts of innuendoes about what women look for in men's pants. She was quick to add that the campaign "failed miserably."

Please join us for our last two events of the semester:

November 23 - Monday, noon, Papitto. We'll be discussing sexual assault and harassment — and Bryant's Task Force. Our guest speaker will be Rosanne Dana. Bring a bag lunch - we will have tables!

Thursday December 10th - Dinner at Wrights Farm. In the spirit of giving, we will be encouraging donations for women who are much less fortunate than us. We will be putting together baskets of toiletries, etc., for women who are staying at battered women's shelters. Come and join us — we'll have an early dinner.

Attention 1993 Accounting Graduates

To meet the need of students who were unable to schedule and to provide a measure of choice in the selection of time, a new Section (C) of A452 Auditing II has been scheduled by the Department for Tuesday and Thursday, 11am to 12:15pm.

The section will be taught by Professor Jeffrey L. Harkins, the KPMG Peat Marwick Distinguished Visiting Professor of the Accounting Department.

Professor Harkins, a faculty member from the University of Idaho, has a background in Financial Accounting and Auditing. He had served as President of the Idaho Society of CPA's. His professional experience includes Auditing, Consulting and Controllershship.

Graduates who wish to enroll should do so in the Registrar's Office after November 19. A limited number of students presently enrolled in Sections A452-A and A452-B will be permitted to change to the news section, and indeed are urged to do so to reduce the large enrollment in those two sections. Sections A452-A and B have been re-assigned to Professor Robert Provost.

Holiday Decorations

As we enter the holiday season, the Office of Residence Life requests that you keep in mind the necessity for safety in placing holiday decorations in the residence halls and townhouses. The following guidelines have been established to help provide continued safety for all campus residents.

- A. Natural trees and wreaths are not permitted in the halls or townhouses. Artificial trees are allowed.
- B. UL approved lights may be used in moderation on your tree and in your windows. Do not place lights on doors, ceilings or near any flammable objects. Outdoor lights are not permitted.
- C. Candles or any open flames are not allowed in the residence halls or townhouses at any time of the year.
- D. As usual, you are not allowed to place anything on your doors. Please refrain from placing excess paper or wrapping paper in the rooms or covering the doors.
- E. Hallway decorations, door decorations, decorations in lounges or in any common area are strictly prohibited.
- F. Remember, extension cords are not allowed. You may use power strips with circuit breakers.
- G. Please be sure that room and suite exits are not blocked.
- H. Finally, if you use spray snow on your windows, please remove it prior to leaving for semester break.

Careful attention to these guidelines will help ensure a safe holiday period in the halls and townhouses. If you have any questions please direct them to your R.A. or the Office of Residence Life.

Thanksgiving Recess

All residence Halls will close for Thanksgiving Recess on Tuesday, November 24, 1992 at 5:00pm.

All residents must vacate their rooms by 5:00pm on November 24th.

The last meal will be lunch on November 24th.

Please note there are no classes on Wednesday, November 25th.

If you have a night class on Tuesday, November 24th and cannot vacate your hall, please contact your Residence Assistant or the Office of Residence Life to make arrangements.

Closing of halls does not effect the townhouses.

Preparation of Rooms Before Leaving

1. Make sure all doors and windows are locked (especially on the first and second floors).
2. Leave the window drapes open.
3. Remove all trash and garbage from rooms and suites.
4. Unplug all electrical appliances except refrigerators and answering machines.

Re-Opening of Halls

Residence Halls will re-open at noon on Sunday, November 29, 1992.

The dining hall will begin serving meals again on Sunday, November 29 with dinner from 4:30-6:30pm.

A Thanks to KT for the festivities on Friday Night! Congratulations to the new sisters and brothers! And good luck to those still pledging.

A Happy 21st Birthday to Tara! Enjoy! Good luck to the Seniors on their interviews! We are looking forward to our annual Silver and Bordeaux event on Monday night! It is going to be a memorable time!

Also a thanks to all that attended our Nutrition Talk on Wednesday which was co-sponsored by Health Services. Everyone enjoy Thanksgiving Break.

BEAC

by Marlo Rosenbloom

Thank you to all the members who worked last Tuesday at the Comfort - we had a great turnout. Also thanks to the guys in The Woodsmen and good luck this weekend!

A reminder from Leslie: this weekend is Unhomecoming. If you need any more info give her a call at 232-4168.

Don't forget that there are still a few more t-shirts left. We will have T's at the next meeting, so remember to bring $10.00. I'm starting to plan Earth Week which will take place the week of April 22. This week is our biggest event. I need one person who is able to plan the whole thing. If you're interested, please let me know at the next meeting. Also, I am looking for suggestions for a band for April 22. Any ideas are welcome.

The next meeting will be after Thanksgiving. Check out signs and the campus scene for dates and times. Have a happy Turkey Day!

Beta Sigma Chi

by Greg Lloyd

The finals of flag football took place and our BSC team put up a good fight. They fell to a team of juniors who didn't know there was an A league. The final was 16-3. They did have an undefeated regular season, so good job.

Our first annual Putting Challenge has taken place and we donated all proceeds to the Hole in the Wall Gang.

Thanks to Delta Zeta for a great time on Saturday. One of our beloved alumni showed up on Wednesday to meet our pledges. Quote of the Week: "If you don't have your Health, then you have nothing." Adios.

BMA

by Mike Gannon

We have a great lineup for our next two meetings and please note that our meeting is tonight, November 19.

At our meeting tonight, we are fortunate enough to have a representative from one of the world's most recognized and successful retailers, The Body Shop. She will discuss The Body Shop's unique promotion strategy as well as some of the renown policies developed and implemented by its founder Anita Roddick. Attendance will help you understand some of the pressing issues retailers must address in the 1990's.

And on Wednesday, December 2, our guest speaker will lead an in-depth discussion on careers in the field of advertising.

All majors are welcome at these meetings/discussions and we believe attendance will help you better understand the different aspects of the business environment you are training to enter, regardless of your current discipline. So come to our meeting TONIGHT!

Next meeting: Tonight- Thursday, November 19 AT 7PM in Pappito next to Tupper's.

This is it! Almost Thanksgiving! Do you know what you are thankful for?

Congratulations to the newly selected cast of 'Twas the Fight Before Christmas—we wish you a lot of luck! There's no meeting until the Tuesday we get back from Thanksgiving break (December 1). As usual, it will be in Meeting Room 2B at 5 PM. Soon, we'll be choosing the Spring Show, so stay tuned for further info. Get your friends to help us out: directing, acting, painting, building, etc.!

See you in December!

Brycol

by Chad Lucier

Sunday's turkey dinner was excellent. Thanks to everyone who contributed. Look for the upcoming food specials at The Comfort.

Stop by the convenience store and The Connection for great buys. Soon to come are cigarettes, and the fresh ground coffee maker is now in use. BRYCOL would like to wish everyone happy Thanksgiving and a safe trip home.

Delta Chi

by Michael Prestash

Congratulations to our seven new brothers Matt, Phil, Greg, Dennis, Brian, Evan, and Joe. You guys finally made it. We'd like to thank them for our new sign and our social Saturday night. Congratulations also go out to all other new brothers and sisters. Thanks to the Phi Sig sisters of URI for their hospitality again this year. Finally, this week we celebrate the second anniversary of our receiving our charter from National. Happy Birthday.

On the sports scene, the brothers took time out to "kill each other" at paint ball. Good shot awards go out to Jaro for his "blind" skills and to Walker for shooting the ref numerous times. Good job in goal to Skidder for his 2-0 shutout vs. Flying Skins and a win vs. Sig Ep B this week. Any brother interested in helping out the volleyball team should see Beak immediately.

Happy Thanksgiving to everyone. Adios.

Delta Kappa Epsilon

by Sean Leone

Congratulations to Hoochi-man, Ya, Greg, Dan, Ritz, Nateolator, Justin, and all other new Greeks.

Todd, Jimmy and Kevin all scored in our floor hockey win over Delta Chi to improve our record to 2-0.

Our second "official" brothers' get-together turned out to be the best one in a while, let's try to repeat it soon.

Good luck Scooter.

Hillel

by Evan T. Kuperman

We had a very successful meeting last Thursday. Thank you to everyone who attended. We would also like to send our congratulations to all the new Greeks. Our State Shabbat will be on Friday, November 20.

Anyone who is interested please contact Michelle at 232-4646, or the Rabbis office for further information on Hillel activities on Tuesdays between 10-11:30am at 232-6119. The annual festival of lights will be December 2.

Kappa Delta Rho

by Tom Foolery

Hang in there boys! Congratulations to all those who have finished. Alumni weekend was a success. The brothers had a good time on the floor Friday night with Sigma Sigma Sigma. Thanks!

This weekend the brothers are looking forward to the Delta Zeta gathering on Saturday night.

On a serious note, our condolences go out to Brian Maffei, hang in there buddy.

In sports, well it's that time of year again. Basketball season! This year KDR-A will be looking for a 5-peat, as the returning 4 years in a row champions will be tearing up the court.

The KDR-A roster are the favored to win the league this year with returning veterans Catman, Spence, Dennis, and Sueff. They will be joined by rookies Flounder, Little Spence, and Gregg. Until next week, Wreck Em...

First off, I would like to say that I had a very productive meeting with The Archway staff and that this report will be as formal as they make it. In Phi Kappa Sigma sports, Brother Kenneth missed two free throws to knock us out of the tournament on Monday night. The brothers enjoyed Friday night at the track and Saturday night at Phi Sigma Sigma; congratulations to all of their new sisters on a wonderful finish.

At our last meeting, we wrapped up Cardboard City which was a huge success last night, we raised approximately $2000 for the McCauley House in Providence. Thanks go out to all those that contributed. The hockey, volleyball, and basketball teams all look forward to winning seasons. Hope everyone has a good Turkeyday, I know I will! Congrats to all those new sorority sisters running around. To all those girls who haven't finished yet: quit while you can. Say hey to Phi Sig Sigs' new E-board. Thanks for that barnburner of a Saturday/Sunday. We appreciate all those new sisters who stopped by to enjoy the Miami's loss last Monday.

Good news! Raul has been drafted by the Hartford Whalers double A affiliate, the Lewiston Hurlers. Good luck in your future endeavors, and we hope you make it to the show. You're going to be missed...well, at least as far as KT-LZ hockey goes. Speaking of, the team is on a roll with a victory in our first game.

Phi Sigma Sigma

by Jennifer Garity

The Phi Sigma Sigma National Fraternity is proud to announce it's five new members: Connie Bauer, Melanie Mezzanecello, Kerri Olivier, Jennifer Janeway, and Amy Johanneson. We hope everyone gets a chance to meet the new sisters.

During our last meeting we discussed our plans for the Christmas Formal, and other Philanthropic and Charitable events in this years agenda.

We would like to congratulate Sister Harrington on her birthday, and Sister Murphy for winning a renowned dance contest in N. Smithfield this weekend. We would also like to thank the Phi Kappa Tau fraternity for their display of brotherhood Monday.

Next week we will be discussing Thanksgiving...

PHI SIG TOP CAT!SAA

by Jennifer Kitlinski

I'd like to invite everyone to kick off Unhomecoming Weekend right by spending an Afternoon at the Comfort with SAA on Friday from 4:00-7:00. There will be T-shirts, raffles and lots of fun to be had by all. Please come and support the Student Alumni Association.

Also, for all those students who are going home for Thanksgiving - Do you have tons of old toys just hanging around the house collecting dust? Well, now is the chance to do some "spring" cleaning! The SAA is sponsoring their annual Holiday Toy Drive from November 30 till December 13th. We are asking students, staff, faculty and administration to donate new and used toys. Collection boxes will be placed around Bryant and the Smithfield Community on November 30th. The toys will then be given to needy families for the holiday season. So get in the holiday spirit and remember to bring those toys back from home.

Thanks to everyone who participated in the Community Service for Providence on Saturday and who served cake for our Founder's Day celebration. You guys have been great this year. Keep up the good work because Festival of Lights and Survival Kits are just around the corner! I'll see everyone at the meeting this Thursday at 4:00 at the Alumni House.

Sailing Club

by Peter Calabro

Well, with the onslaught of winter comes the end of our fall season. Thanks to everybody that helped out during meetings and at regattas. Your enthusiasm and dedication has surely been an asset to the club. Hopefully the spring will be just as good if not better. With a lot of new things planned the club surely will continue to grow. We're trying to get in some big boat races and probably lasers too. If you're interested in joining the sailing club we have meetings every Tuesday night at 8pm in meeting room 2a.

SAM

by Marc Jaro

The Society for the Advancement of Management held a meeting this past Monday. At this meeting elections were held for Secretary and Vice president. Congratulations to Jen Baranowski our new Secretary and Carolyn Shannon our new Vice President.

After elections, Bill Baker from the Bryant College purchasing department spoke. Mr. Baker talked about his job and it was very informative, and SAM thanks him for speaking to us.

The last SAM meeting of the semester will be held on December 7 at 4:00 PM. This meeting will be a pizza party, all paid members are invited.

Sigma Phi Epsilon

by Derek Fairfield

The brothers of Sigma Phi Epsilon are happy to announce that we are finally done pledging. Congratulations to our 13 new brothers, you all deserve it and did a great job. Also, congrats are in order for Jon and Dennis for a great job as Pledge Master and Assistant.

Over the weekend a few brothers went to Vermont. Meanwhile some favorite alumni came back to visit and meet the new brothers. We all had a big alumni dinner feast at our townhouse.

In Sig Ep sports, the football season is over after our loss to FUBAR in the semi-finals. Floor hockey has begun. The A-team has forfeited one game while the B-team lost.

The brothers of Sigma Phi Epsilon wish everyone a happy Thanksgiving.

Oh Hello There! First we would like to congratulate all of our new officers and chairmen. Our new officers are: President, Carolyn Calafiore; Vice President, Sue Butkus; Treasurer, Linda Riemer; Secretary, Deanna Davis; Rush Director, Andrea Sclama; and Education Director, Jen Spera. We also want to congratulate Shannon for finishing her 2 year reign as president. You did a great job, Shannon.

Happy Birthday Jen Spera! A great time was had by all at the alumnae banquet on Saturday night! Thank to all the Bezo and Sigma alumnae and to all those that attended. A special, thanx Christine S., you did a great job! The countdown begins for X-mas Party dates!

Congratulations to all the new brothers and sisters that finished this week (and to those who didn't, hang in there it will be over soon enough)!

Happy Turkey day everybody!

Enjoy your weekend at home! Quote of the week: "If I could sleep, I wouldn't be awake"

SPB

by Tammy St. Pierre

The Student Programming congratulates Deb Pasquarella for doing a great job as N.A.C.A. conference coordinator. We also congratulate Jennie Lynn Rice for being the conference secretary and Rob Martin for being part of the technical crew.

We all had a great time at the conference and booked a different and unusual act for Winter Weekend and may be booking some great comedians we saw for next semester.

SPB has three new voting members to congratulate, Randy, Deb, and Kristen. Thanks for all the help you've given us so far!

Unhomecoming started Wednesday and is going really well! Tickets are still on sale at the Info Desk in the Bryant Center. They are $10 for students and $12 for guests and include the Paula Poundstone comedy show Friday night, a chance for the car giveaway at Saturday's basketball game, Battle of the Bands Saturday night, and Lethal Weapon III Sunday night at 7 & 9:15. Without a ticket admission to see Paula Poundstone will be $6, Battle of the Bands will be $5 and the movie will be $1.

by Crissy Yantorno

Hey THETA! Seniors, you finally did it after three years. Thanks! To our pledges-hang in there and stay strong; the best is yet to come.

Congratulations goes out to all the new brothers and sisters! Wasn't it worth it? This weekend was fun, thanks to everyone who came up to the floor to play. Fourteen days left until the Christmas Formal! Everyone, have a great Thanksgiving.

Quotes of the Week: "My barrette fell out-it's leafing out", "I can't keep up with the roadrace", and "Watersports anyone?"

by Pete Pappas and Mike Slomba

It's finally over for the Flatliners, their hard work and dedication paid off. There were eleven casualties, but Tim and Alex managed to hold a pulse long enough to finish. Congratulations to two great new brothers. We would also like to congratulate all the other fraternity and sorority new members.

TKE Hockey is going strong still, with our 13-0 rout over DKE on Monday night, better luck next time guys. The Ambassador says, "You can not get there directly, you have to change in Atlanta!" "Hey Ven, who's this loss!"

Mary's Danish Set a New "American Standard"

Ben Purkiss
Archway Staff Writer

Mary's Danish latest effort American Standard is a great record. The diverse styles of the band have pulled together to create really good rock music.

On their previous albums, the different tracks have represented different members musical genres independently. On American Standard, the strength of the music comes from the diversity of musical styles in the band. These styles have been blended together to form a union of wonderful sounds and rhythms.

At one time, the differences amongst Mary's Danish members almost tore the band apart. They came together again with a new sense of tolerance and unity. This enabled them to focus on a common denominator, rock, and to produce what I'm sure will become one of the most memorable records of the nineties.

The album was written and rehearsed in a garment warehouse in a bad part of L.A. during the Rodney King police brutality trial. This helps give the album an earthiness and reality.

When the verdict and subsequent riots happened, the band was in the plush skywalker studio in northern California.

The album has love songs, hate songs, songs about friendship and evil televangelists. The different styles of punk, folk, funk and jazz are sensed as influences in the rock of every song, but none of the songs fit into any of those categories. Killjoy, Porcupine and Leave It Alone are faster hate songs. They are very catchy and you want to sing and dance along.

The vocals are strong and feminine throughout the entire album. At moments, they are nymphish and at other moments, they hit you hard. Porcupine is a short pop sounding song about someone rolling up in a ball for defense, yet if you get close, be careful. The abstract rhetoric of Leave It Alone makes you feel like you just watched an hour of seven second political soundbites. It strikes out at the state of politics today.

One of my favorite songs is Underwater, a moody dark love song whose haunting lyrics leave footprints in your mind. O Lonely Soul is a wandering song about personal trials and tribulations. Weeping Tree is another beautiful song longing, loving which leaves you dreaming of security.

God Said takes a dig at televangelists and their open hypocrisy and Gotcha Covered is an ugly, but just, portrait of L.A. It seems appropriate for many of our large cities.

One of the best songs is Sister Shade as it rolls along through the many styles of the band. It is long moody and jazzie, with crooning organs and guitars, far away from the powerful riff sparring of the faster songs.

American Standard the album with the same name as a famous brand of toilets, sets a higher American standard, and certainly should not be flushed away. It is definitely a "buy recommendation." If you look in the October 1st edition of The Archway, there is a review of Mary's Danish live performance at Rocky Point.

Quite simply, they are powerful, beautiful, energetic and fun to see live. On Monday November 23rd, they will be playing at Club Babyhead with the Darling Buds. A couple of years ago, I watched the Buds perform at Babyhead, they too, put on a great live show.

They are currently promoting their new release Erotica (no not Madonna). If you like good alternative rock with great female singers, then this is a show you just cannot miss. See you there.

The 1992 All-Conference teams were selected last week and Bryant had quite a few names on the list.

Men's soccer drew the most selections with seven spots in all. Chosen for the second team were: forward Mike Masson, a junior finance major from Framingham, MA; tri-captain midfielder Jason Cross, a junior marketing major from Eastport, NY; back Matt Liepins, a junior finance major from Bethel, CT; back Donald "DJ" Spelman, a senior management major from Deer Park, NY; and goalkeeper Scott Calabrese, a junior finance major from Newton, CT.

Making the honorable mention for the team were tri-captain midfielder Chris McLeod, a senior finance major from East Weymouth, MA; and back Mike Stepnowski, a senior management major from Glastonbury, CT.

Head coach Len Mercurio was also named Coach of the Year in his second season with the team.

From the women's team, sophomore forward from Hampden, ME Melissa Roberts made honorable mention in the NE-10 conference.

The women's volleyball team also had selections to All-Conference teams.

Sophomore outside hitter/setter Maria de los Ange Bras-Benitez, an actuary major from Rio Piedras, Puerto Rico was selected to the first team, while senior outside hitter Kim Bejnerowicz, a senior finance major from Orange, CT was selected to the second team.

The lady Indians also had a few conference leaders in individual categories. Bras lead the conference with .67 aces per game and Tenaya Dean was tops in digs per game with 3.78. The team itself also lead in digs per game and kills per game.

Men's cross country rounded out Bryant's success with two selections to the All-Conference teams. They were: juniors Tom Gaspar, a CIS major from North Berwick, ME and Pete Gossein, a finance major from Manchester, NH.

With most teams only having one game left in the regular season, the Miami Hurricanes are getting closer and closer to clinching the national championship. Miami cleared their ninth hurdle this past weekend by defeating the Temple Owls by a score of 48 to 0. In doing so, Miami extended the NCAA longest winning streak to 27 games, while winning their 51st consecutive home game.

So, who can beat Miami in the Orange Bowl? This is one question that Syracuse does not have to worry about. The Orangemen only hope they can be the team to hand Miami its first defeat this year when the two teams face off this weekend in the Carrier Dome. A win could vault Syracuse into a New Year's Day Bowl, while a loss could severely hurt their chances.

In other Top Ten action, Alabama held firmly to its number two ranking this past weekend by defeating number 16 Mississippi State, 30 to 21. This win helped Alabama finish the regular season undefeated, and places them in the SEC championship on December 5 against either Florida or Georgia. If Alabama is able to win that game, they get an automatic Sugar Bowl bid, and could possibly face number one Miami.

Last week's number three Michigan, despite six turnovers, was able to tie Illinois on a last second field goal. The tie somehow dropped Michigan back to number six ranking (behind two teams with a loss), but it also clinched a Rose Bowl birth for Wolverines. Texas A&M, last weeks number four, were denied the number three spot, even though they beat Houston 38-30 to remain undefeated. And finally, number five Florida State was able to score ten touchdowns for the second straight week, as they steamrolled the Green Wave of Tulane, and took over the number three spot.

Congratulations go out this week to Iowa State, Marshall Faulk of San Diego State and the quarterbacks of the Nevada and Utah State. This past weekend Iowa State was able to end a 15 year losing streak, against number 12 Nebraska, as the Cyclones were able to 'hold on' for a 19 to 10 victory. Also this past weekend, Marshall Faulk joined Herschell Walker as the only two college players to gain over 2000 career rushing yards in only their first two years.

And last but not least, there are the quarterbacks from Nevada and Utah State: Nevada's Chris Vargas and Utah State's Tony Calvillo combined for a miraculous 1,324 passing yards. It only makes one wonder, "Where were their defenses!"

The AP Top Ten

1. Miami (9-0-0)

was quite amusing and gave Robert and Rebecca the idea.

These fans should realize something - there are people who actually go to a sporting event to have a good time and watch the game. It gets really annoying when you have people who sit there and make fun of everyone on the opposing team and won't be quiet. They should get out there and try and play.

So if you are at a game, and you hear Robert and Rebecca, don't be afraid to stand up and say something. More than likely someone else will back you up. Maybe they don't realize how annoying they really are being. They should look around and see if people are giving them dirty looks every time they open their mouths. When this happens, they should just sit back and try to put themselves in other people's shoes. How would they like it if their favorite players were victims of these attacks. Maybe then they will realize how annoying they really are and shut-up (not!).

A New Look and Goal for Men's Basketball

Bob Betlinski
Archway Sports Writer

The men's basketball team will kick off their regular season this Saturday, at 3:30, against Rhode Island College. With all of the troubles of last year behind them, the team is looking forward to what could be their first winning season in a couple of years.

This year the Indians will be abandoning their traditional game-plan of ball control offense, for a new 'open' offense. This should make the game more exciting for the players and the fans.

The team's new game-plan will be tested early in this season, with three league games in the first few weeks of play. These few games will most likely set the pace for the rest of the season. And if the Indians are able to grab a couple of quick league victories, they will be in great shape as the season winds down.

With nine of the 12 players being either sophomores or freshmen, the team is hoping that they can lay the foundation for what could possibly be a winning tradition here at Bryant. But this team is a team with experience.

The Indians have three returning upper-classmen who have already proven themselves as true basketball players. The men's basketball team may have finally fit all of the pieces together.

One of the major goals of the basketball team this year is to re-establish the school pride that once went along with our basketball program. The team also hopes to get support from

Some People Actually Enjoy the Game

On Deck

Angelo Corradino
Archway Sport Writer

Do you know what is one of the most annoying things about going to a sporting event? The fans who sit there and make comments about everyone on the opposing team and their mothers too.

You know the people, the ones who sit behind you and constantly make stupid remarks during the game and never shut-up. Well last Sunday I had the pleasure of sitting in front of two of these people, we'll call them Rebecca and Robert the hecklers, at a Providence Bruins game.

The first period wasn't that bad. They were pretty quiet and didn't bother anyone. But the second period was a bit different.

The teams switched sides and now the opposing team, the New Haven Senators, were guarding the goal in front of us. This is when the fun started.

First it was Robert's turn, calling the Senators a bunch of "women" and told them to "put their skirts on." He then went on about their uniforms and how ugly they were. Calling them a bunch of women was a bit dumb since there is a woman in the IHL, a goalie for the Lightning. And about their uniforms, they have no control over that. What is the player supposed to do, not play because he doesn't like the uniform?

As the period got underway Robert and Rebecca started in on the Senator's goalie, Steven Weeks, making remarks about his mother being an "unintelligent monkey."

Rebecca then went on to agitate the goalie even more by screaming, "Did you see that Weeks?" every time the puck came across the blue line.

After a while, when they realized this was having no effect on the man, Robert and Rebecca started making fun of his last name. "Hey Weeks, are you weak?" or "Hey Weeks have you taken your weakling pills yet?" they screamed. These people obviously didn't know how to spell. WEEK is a period of time and has nothing to do with your physical strength.

A fight then broke out on the ice in front of us and Robert and Rebecca called the New Haven Senator involved in the fight a wimp because he stopped fighting when the referee came over. What's the guy supposed to do? Start punching the ref? By this time, the entire section we were sitting in was getting a little mad and wanted these two people to shut-up. But you know better than that; they went on.

They began to realize the players were ignoring them so they started to attack the referees. Granted the refs were making a few bad calls and missing a lot of penalties, but it was no excuse for making remarks about their parents.

As the period dragged on, and Robert and Rebecca grew even more annoying, two people sitting in front of me started mocking them. "Okay you be the guy, I'll be the girl." This

Women's Basketball Driving Toward Season

Bridgett Casey (22) attempts a jump shot while teammate Kim Ross (3) looks on.

Angelo Corradino
Archway Sports Writer

The women's basketball team has been working hard to prepare for the upcoming season which will open at home on Saturday against Rhode Island College at 1:00.

This year's team consists of five veterans and five rookies and are looking to improve upon their 11-17 record from last year.

"We will be more athletic all-around this season, and we have quality athletes returning and coming into our program," head coach Mary Burke said.

"I like the direction that we're going in, as with a more athletic team we will be able to do more things to build our confidence."

Returning to lead this years team will be seniors Bridgett Casey, Kim Ross, and Kelly Jacob who will have a big role this year. "More than getting my freshman up to the level we need them I need my seniors to be good leader," Burke added.

"The freshman will be looking up to them and need them to deliver."

Jacob's return will be a key to Bryant's inside game with her dominance of the boards and her inside shooting.

She will also be looking to bounce back from a knee injury that she suffered late in the season but her great attitude and work ethic have been a driving force in her continued rehabilitation.

The lady Indians will be looking to get a lot of support from their back court.

Ross and Casey are expected to be the leader and pick up where they left off last year.

"Bridgett (Casey) is a fifth year senior and has a season of eligibility left. She has a lot of experience and will be one of our go-to people," Burke said.

"Kim is an outstanding leader both on and off the court. She will run the show for us offensively and her experience as a starter will be plus for us at guard."

Other returnees for Bryant include Jennifer Cloos who got valuable experience last year when injuries plagued the team, she did an outstanding job coming off the bench and is a smart player who sees the court well, according to coach Burke.

Another returnee, trying to recover from a knee injury, is Kristen Berg who only appeared in six games last year.

Burke feels she could be a major force as a rebounder this year and is looking for her to continue to develop into a top player.

One area where the team will be lacking is at center, due to the graduation of Holly Grinnell, last years team leader in scoring.

The lady Indians are looking for rookie Liz Davies to help in the paint, and fill the void.

Davies helped lead her high school team, Notre Dame Academy, to back-to-back appearances in the Massachusetts Division III state championship game, and is expected to be a starter this season.

Rounding out the team are group of four all-around athletes who will bring the team up to a different level.

They include: Katrina Haik, Rebecca Hall, Beth Connealy, and Heather Lopes.

Hall and Connealy will add outside shooting to the Bryant attack, while Haik and Lopes will add quickness to their fast breaks.

All players are expected to see action this year since the team is so small.

"I feel very confident," Burke said when asked about the upcoming game. "We are ready physically and RIC should give us a challenge physically but we should rise above them mentally. This game will also give everyone a chance to play and the freshmen can bet over their first game jitters."

Athlete OF THE WEEK

Kim Bejnerowicz

This week's Athlete of the Week is Kim Bejnerowicz of the women's volleyball team. After missing the last season due to an injury Bejnerowicz returned to action this year and helped lead the team to a second place finish in the NE-10 Conference tournament. She was also selected to the All-Conference second team and third in the conference with 3.39 digs per game.

When asked how the season went Bejnerowicz said, "At first it was disappointing with the last loss. But, as I look back I realize we pulled together as a team. I injured myself last year and came back to play my senior year; I couldn't have asked for a better season."
