New Computer Installed

By James O'Connell
Archway Staff Writer

Until recently Bryant College has been operating with a late 1960's IBM 1130 and the BTI 4000 computer. Most students after taking SM 102 are left disillusioned with the Systems Management major because of the numerous difficulties: computer breakdowns, slow terminal response and, in general, the common day nuisances of the computers. To alleviate these problems the College is updating the system to increase its capabilities. The new computer is a Data General-Eclipse M600 released in 1979, costing approximately $300,000 plus operating expenses. It is anticipated to be "on line" in the fall.

Right now the courses offered for systems is Basic, Fortran, Cobol, Systems Analysis, Management Information Systems, Management Science I and II, and Management Seminar. In the near future it is planned that Fortran 4 and 5, Basic for Secretarial Majors, RPG 2 and Assembler will be added. Also the typing room next to the computer room will be converted into a lab room for computers with approximately 40 new terminals to help relieve the problem of waiting to get on a terminal.

With the new system's arrival students will be able to get their programing assignments done without the usual difficulties. Thus programs will be easier for the lesser advanced students and there will be more opportunities for advanced computer studies.

Jack Burns, Director of the Computer Center, says that the Eclipse's main memory size is about 96 times larger than the 1130 and about twelve times larger than the BTI. It will carry thirteen academic packages and three administrative packages. Although the new computer is much more efficient than the old, its cycle time will be about the same.

Brian Richards, an operations systems analyst, says that the computer's response time is an increase over the old. That there will be a faster turnover of students' programs which will give Systems Management an increase flexibility in the structured curriculum. Also the new computer will do away with the unit record machines.

"Management Forum"

Dr. Theodore F. Gautschi, Associate Professor, Management, at Bryant College, has recently had a collection of his writings published by Ginn and Company in a book entitled Management Forum. Over 120 articles on such timely subjects as "Planning: Key to Successful Management," "Authority, Power, Politics, and Leadership," "Flexible Working Hours: A Form of Job Enrichment," "Factors Affecting Employee Loyalty," and "The Conflict Between Business and Society" are written in a short and terse style to provide the reader with a quick, useful, and timely tool. Originally published in Design News and the TAPPI Journal, the articles are based on current research, seminar discussions, undergraduate and graduate level teaching, consulting, and research from other texts, periodicals, and journals.

Dr. Gautschi had over 30 years of experience in management for some of the most respected high-technology companies and agencies in the United States prior to joining Bryant College. Before entering the academic world full-time, he held the title of Director of Management and Organizational Development for Data Processing Operations with Honeywell Information Systems, Wellesley, MA. He had extensive experience in on-line program management as Mission Operations Systems Manager for the Jet Propulsion Laboratory, Pasadena, CA, a position he held during the laboratory's successful unmanned lunar landing (Surveyor).

Internship Program Suggested

By Richard Morris
Archway Staff Writer

John "Austin" Healy, the newly elected president of the Student Senate, has compiled an impressive array of data which shows the need and desire for an internship program at Bryant College. The data was sent to President O'Hara; Dr. Wallace Wood, Vice-President of Academic Affairs; and this paper on April 12. Dr. Wood and Dr. O'Hara are presumably reviewing the report to determine if such a proposal is feasible.

The feasibility of the proposal, it is speculated, will be judged by the need of such a program, its benefits, and the cost of the program to the college. It is not known when Dr. Wood and Dr. O'Hara will reach a decision or when it will be made public.

An internship program would provide an added dimension to the enrolled students' education. It would give actual experience in a chosen field and would therefore increase the employment opportunity of Bryant Graduates.

John Healy's collection of data proves that the majority of students favor an internship program. In a referendum in the recent Student Senate elections showed that 98% of the students who answered the referendum were in favor of the proposal. Additionally, a sample of the ballot revealed the following comments: "Yes, I think practical experience will add to classroom education," and "Experience is one of the most important factors in getting a job. If Bryant is so concerned about accreditation, they should do it."

The report, however, has some flaws. It proves just the desire not the need for an internship program. To correct this Austin is visiting the faculty in an effort to gain support. If the proposal is to pass, the need must be proved. The last substantial criticism is that the cost to operate the program had not yet been calculated and it may be high. The question is: Is the program worth the expense?

Doctor Wood Vice President

Bryant College President, William T. O'Hara, has announced the selection of Dr. Wallace A. Wood as the new Vice President for Academic Affairs. In this position, Dr. Wood is responsible for all academic programming and for all faculty appointments.

A member of the Bryant community since 1967, Dr. Wood first joined the College as an Assistant Professor of Mathematics. He subsequently became an Associate Professor, served as Chairman of the Mathematics Department for three years, and was appointed Dean of Undergraduate Faculty in 1978.

In addition to his teaching in the undergraduate and graduate school, Dr. Wood has been active with the faculty administration, serving as Chairman of the Committee on College Organization (COCO), a former member of the Rank and Appointment Committee, member of the Council of Department Chairmen and the Graduate Council.

Dr. Wood received his B.S. degree from Bridgewater State College, an M.A. degree in teaching from Brown University, an M.A. degree in mathematics from Bowdoin College, and a Ph.D. in education research from Boston College. After graduating from high school in Dighton, Massachusetts, he served in the United States Air Force for four years. He also taught for two years, part-time, at Stonehill College and for three years full-time at Dighton-Rehoboth Regional High School.

His memberships include the National Council of Teachers of Mathematics, the American Educational Research Association, the American Federation of Teachers, and the Massachusetts Association of School Committees.

During the past six years, Dr. Wood has served the Dighton School Committee as a member of the negotiating team and as chairman and as financial secretary. He is also Chairman of the Board of Trustees of the West Dighton Christian Church. He resides in Dighton with his wife, the former Gail Easton, and their two children.

False Alarms Increase

By Richard Morris
Archway Staff Writer

There has been an increase in the amount of false fire alarms, particularly in Dorms one and two. The increase, according to Mr. Ramos, Director of Resident Life, was most evident just before the Easter Vacation.

The fine for anyone caught reporting a false alarm is $100 and expulsion from the dorms. The problem appears to be finding a reliable way to detect those persons responsible.

The motivation for someone to pull an alarm is not known. Presumably, it is the vehicle of a grudge against Dorm two which had two alarms pulled within one night last week.

THE OPINIONS

FROM THE EDITOR'S DESK....

As I sit here writing this, I am a bit of a rare commodity. I am a commuter, and also the head of a major student organization. I am living proof that a commuter can amount to something!

Getting involved is extremely important for everyone, commuter or resident, but commuters benefit even more from involvement. Addressing myself to the uninvolved commuter, I can say with pride—it can be done! When I think of how getting involved has made my stay at Bryant so much more enjoyable so far, I wonder why more commuters don't try it.

One who has never commuted from home can never really understand the pressures that the commuting student faces. Residents are fairly free of family pressures, whereas commuters face them every day, in addition to schoolwork. Also present is the task (and it is a task) of driving miles and miles day after day.

Getting involved is a great thing to do. It's a fantastic release, where home problems can be left at home, and job pressures can be left at work. Helping the College helps everyone as well as yourself.

To the Commuters: Stay on after that last class a couple of times a week—you won't be sorry. Tired—maybe, but sorry, no.

There was a misidentification in the April 6 Inquiring Photographer. Mary Suffoletta was misidentified as Mary Charlonne, who happens to work in Dr. Wood's office. The Archway extends its apologies for any embarrassment this mix-up may have caused.

"Arcywah" Thoughts

To the Editor,

I have been hospitalized for the past week, and my brother Jon was able to bring me some things from school; among the books that he brought, was the April Fool's Day issue of The Archway (or "Arcywah," if you prefer).

The quality of the humor in this issue was a delightful surprise. Not only was it abundant and varied; it displayed a degree of irony that may even provoke the administration to see itself from the students' point of view.

"Squid" is to be congratulated; his hyperbole on the front page may have induced those of us who are not paying our own fees, to have an understanding for those who must.

"Arlo," in his piece about a "New Scholarship Program," made the succinct point that the average undergraduate student should realize; we do not fully understand exactly why the Administration behaves the way it does, but Bryant has not survived, nor prospered, for lack of an efficient (if sometimes confusing) Administration.

The underlying shades of irony, throughout the issue, were enjoyable for me during my hospitalization. Now, I see Bryant as having much creativity within it, instead of as a place in which people are instructed in the various facets of business. Your issue lightened some dreary days, and made me feel good to know that I go to Bryant.

Sincerely and with thanks,

Guy Durot

An Appeal

Dear Editor, or better, Bryant College:

As the year winds down, senioritis has set in not only in seniors but everyone, as always. The problems that stem from this is varied, but a major one has come up at The Archway. Many people that have religiously spent hours at The Archway are fading out of the scene or are resigning. At the moment, every editor's position barring one or two has changed hands over the course of the year. With many of the staff leaving The Archway, all this leads to one large problem and that is, "Who in God's name will be here to write, layout, and take photo's the rest of the year and next year?"

Warning!

Get Your Sh-t Together, Students!

That's what you'll be doing in the men's lav at the Pub for a while. Vandalism at recent mixers reads like this:

1. partitions ripped from floors and walls
2. doors ripped off stalls
3. seats ripped from toilets
4. paper towel dispensers destroyed
5. light fixture broken

No problem, you say, Bryant students have always had it together. The cost estimate for repair and replacement is close to 2,000 dollars and this is only one of many incidents. Next time you get your tuition bill remember 1 and 2 dollars is for one incidence of vandalism in one lav in one building.

Now that Easter Weekend has come and gone, I'm sure that you're all just dying to find out how a commuter spends his vacation time. Well after several weeks of 60-mile-a-day traveling (with occasional "sack outs" in the dorms) I did the only natural thing to do. I drove 250 miles to Maine!

The trip was just wonderful. The scenery was beautiful (I had never seen mountains before) and the town I visited was just like Peyton Place. It all would have been almost perfect if I hadn't had to bring that car along. It acted just like a bratty little kid all through the White Mountains.

The car did nothing but complain from the moment I pulled out of the driveway. When the car was cold, it clattered; when the car was warm, it flooded and refused to build up any kind of oil pressure. In between times it would hack and wheeze and otherwise make its presence known. In the end, however, we knew who was the boss. It was the car.

On the way up, on the interstates, the car developed a decidedly clattering knock if the engine speed was too low. If the engine was raised (in other words, if I stepped on the gas) the car would all of a sudden give me a deep throated growl. I eventually deduced that this behavior was caused by an inferior grade of gasoline that I was using. After I filled the tank with the proper fuel (81.9¢ per gallon—self service!) I continued on my merry way and the car behaved a little better.

Before I go on, I must state that I had the car given a complete tune-up and oil change three days before I left on my journey. I even had the tires rotated! This, of course, made very little difference to the car itself, which would act the same way even if I had completely overhauled it. It still clattered, bucked, and wheezed just as easily as it had before.

Towards the end of the trip up, I noticed a distinct drop in oil pressure. Thinking however that I had plenty of oil, I thought it was a fluke and dismissed it from my mind. Then four days later when I start home, there still was no oil pressure at idle. I pulled into a gas station; the attendant checked the oil and added 3 quarts! To a 4 quart system! My car has now become an oilaholic! Actually I've only been leaking motor oil over all of northern New England. At that very same gas station; I also discovered that my fan belts (which only come in special sets of two for $14) were about to go, but the attendant said I could make it to Rhode Island. Hopefully.

I made it! My car may not be the same as it was when I left, but I made it!

HAPPY MOTORING!!!

Women In Public Administration

For the woman who works, the Government is a good place to start or to resume a career. Under the Federal Equal Opportunity Program, agency heads are responsible for finding out what can be done to advance the status of women and minorities in their particular agencies, for making specific plans for improvement, and for seeing that those plans are put into effect. Each Federal agency has a Federal Women's Program head, that head being, of course, a "chairwomen."

Surveys indicate a continuation of the trend in increased representation increase in minority employment, particularly among minority women. Surveys also show gain for minorities and women at higher grade levels. The problem for women in Federal employment has increased from the historic discrimination against women, especially in the higher positions; for example, a task force has found that of minorities and women in the Federal work force despite declines in total full-time Federal civilian employment.

Employment under the white-general schedule and equivalent pay even today women compose 76 percent of the four lowest paying job categories in the Government. But women are employed in less than 3 systems account for most of the increase in minority and most of the percent of the highest paying occupations in the United States. In attempting to rectify these past injustices, the Federal Government has made a systematic effort to effectively bring more women into the higher-level positions. With the help of the Federal Women's Program, the role of career women in the Government agencies is becoming more respected.

Appeal

Everyone can go on and say the paper stinks, but what will you have to bitch about if there is no paper, or if it comes out monthly. We need people up here to do some of these things. It does take up time and it's not the most rewarding work, but the paper is something Bryant should be proud of, and it's about time the Bryant Community got involved in this newspaper. Remember, we are the major and sometimes only source of news to this campus.

A new club has been formed on campus by the secretarial students called the Secretarial Society. The purposes of this organization are to unite all the different majors of the program and to reveal the unlimitedness of the secretarial field.

There will be dinners featuring guest speakers and visits to various companies next semester. Newly elected officers are Katie Cassels, President; Patricia Carroll, Vice President; Heidi Rivard, Secretary; and Eileen Fay, Treasurer.

Soon-to-be alumnus students are urged to join this organization because the alumni will be an active part. An alumni division has been formed with the following students chairing the committee.

A bake sale is slated for Thursday, April 26 from 10:00 until 2:00 in the Rotunda. The pastry will be home-baked and guaranteed to be delicious. See you there!

Pre-Law Program

Have you thought about going to law school when you graduate? If so, how much do you know about The Law School Aptitude Test (LSAT)? What's it all about? How do you prepare for it? When is it given? How do you register for the test?

What about the Law School Admission Bulletin (LSDB)? or the Law School Candidate referral service (LSCRS)? To which law schools should you apply?

If you don't know the answers to these questions and many more, you should attend one of our Pre-Law Orientation sessions which are tailored to provide you with facts and answers about preparations for law school application.

The seminars are being held Wednesday, May 2, 1979, at either noon or 3:15 in Room 269. Sign up in the Career Planning and Placement Office. All are welcome.

WJMF Stereo

The General Manager for WJMF Radio, Paul Rocheleau, announced yesterday that, barring any unforeseen difficulties, the station will be transmitting in stereo. The reinstatement of this transmitting policy, it is expected will increase the listening audience. However, some small sacrifices will have to be made.

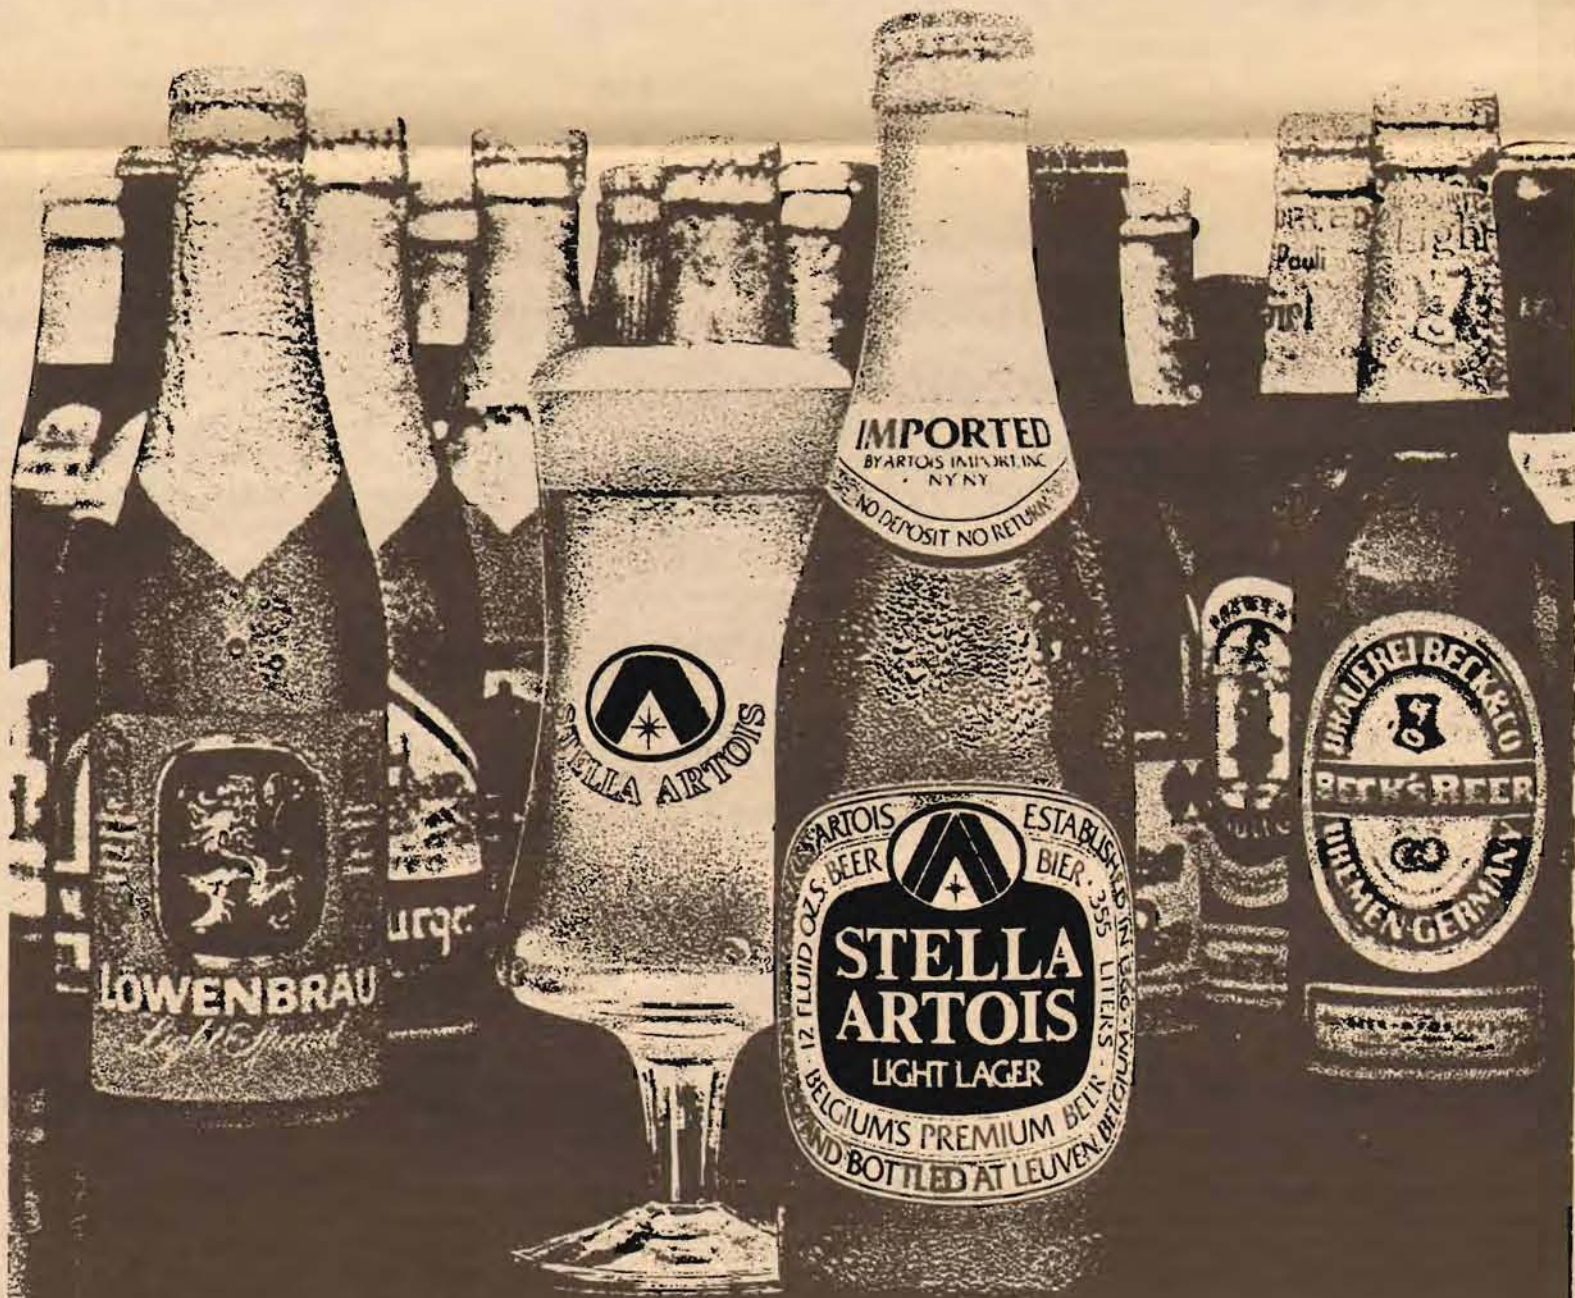

The station, to accommodate the installation procedures will be "off the air" somewhere between noon and 6:00 p.m. The amount of time that the station is silent is dependant on the problems, if any, which will be incurred.

IN EUROPE, MORE PEOPLE DRINK STELLA ARTOIS THAN ANY OF THESE GREAT BEERS.

Stella Artois (Ar-twa) is part of a brewing tradition that began more than 600 years ago in the year 1366. The robust, hearty light lager taste comes from old world brewing that patiently insists that every drop is matured a full 63 days. Today in more than 50,000 bars and restaurants all across the Continent, Europe's discriminating beer drinkers ask for the great taste of Stella Artois. Now you can, too.

Mountaineering #2.

SELECTING THE PROPER GEAR

The Busch® label is where it all begins. Note the snowy, craggy peaks affixed thereto. They are the mountains.

You are the mountaineer. And this is an ad. The subject of which is selecting the proper gear for mountaineering. (It all fits together so nicely, doesn't it?)

First and foremost, you'll need to pop the mountain top. For this task, faithful mountaineers use a church key. Secular mountaineers use a bottle opener. Don't be confused by these antics with semantics. Just remember, the opener is your primary tool. Be true to it and it will be true to you.

Second, choose a glass. Here the options become immense. German steins, hand-blown pilseners, old jelly jars, that cute little (Church key used by faithful mountaineers.)

Mr. Boffo mug you've had since third grade.

Be adventurous. Experiment. Most mountaineers have a personal preference. You'll develop one too.

Food is next. Proper mountaineering, not to mention proper nutrition, requires a smorgasbord selection of snacks. Some mountaineers have suffered from a potato chip deficiency, a pretzel imbalance or other serious dietary defects. Plan ahead.

Comfort is crucial. If you mountaineer in public, pick a padded bar stool, preferably one that spins (to facilitate admiring the scenery). At home, a comfortable chair or sofa will do. Rule of thumb: if it feels good, and the police don't seem to mind, do it.

Then turn on the tube or spin a tune or crack a good book. The choice is strictly between you and the dominant hemisphere of your brain. Of course, some mountaineers say the smooth, refreshing taste of Busch is entertainment enough. And thank goodness they do, because it's an excellent conclusion.

(Comfort is crucial)

Don't just reach for a beer. BUSCH Head for the mountains.

THE SPORTS

Bryant Track

By Guy Durot

To date, the Bryant track team has competed in three meets. The first was held at home, on Saturday, March 31. We hosted Assumption, E. Connecticut State, and Stonehill Colleges.

The breakdown for the events of this meet were as follows:

100 Meter Dash: Steve Provost, a freshman, won with a time of 0:11.0 seconds. Brian Miner, also a freshman, finished fourth with a time of 0:11.4.

200 Meter: Joe Cahill, a returning sophomore, took first in 0:23.3 seconds.

400 Meter: Joe Cahill again took first, with a time of 0:15.7, and Sheffield Tulloch, a freshman, finished third, in 0:56.2

800 Meter: Bryant did not have a competitor who finished in the top four.

1 Mile: This race was won in a time of 4 minutes and 24 seconds. Phil Goss, a sophomore Brvantonian, finished third in 4:33.

3 Mile: A Competitor from ECSC took first with a time of 15:34; Phil Boss finished second in 15:45—and he was followed by Bill McKitchen, a senior, who finished in third place with a time of 15:48.

110 Meter High Hurdles: An Assumptionite won this with a time of 0:16.3 seconds, and Chuck Cassoli, a sophomore, took fourth place in 0:19.2

400 Meter Intermediate Hurdles: Another Assumptionite took first, in one minute flat, with our own Sam Blackmore, a senior, finishing fourth in 0:63.7.

Bryant won both the 4 x 100 Meter, and the 4x400 Meter relay races. The former team consisted of Steve Provost, Brian Miner, Mike Cassano, and Joe Cahill. While the latter was composed of Cassano, Cahill, Mike Kearney, and Bill Varney. Bill will be out for the rest of the season with a foot injury.

As for the field events, the breakdown was like this:

High Jump: Mark Ertel, a senior, won by clearing 6'2". Steve Cosolito, a sophomore, also cleared 6'2", but was placed second because he needed more attempts to clear the height than Ertel did.

Pole Vault: The winning height was 11'; Bruce Nichols, a junior, tied for second place with an Assumptionite, by clearing 10'.

Long Jump: A competitor from ECSC won with a jump of 20'7"; no Bryant Competitor placed in the top 4.

Triple Jump: Jim Ryan, a freshman, took fourth place with a distance of 37'2". The winning distance was 41'11 1/2".

Hammer Throw: Bob Colantino, a promising freshman, demoralized the other competitors by winning with a toss of 159'7" (Better give him a wide berth at meets!). Gil Howard, a returning Sophomore, took third with a chuck of 118'3".

Shot Put: Dave Belhumeur, in his last season with us, took second with a heave of 38'2"; the event was won with a distance of 40'9".

Discus Throw: Colantino took first with 126'9"; Belhumeur was second with 118'8", and Warren Alper (also in his last season) was one inch behind the third place thrower, with 115'5" (check that tape again!).

Javelin Throw: Mark Nickel, a senior, took second with a throw of 185'2"; 195'8" was the winning distance.

Bryant won this first meet, with ECSC finishing second, Assumption taking third, and Stonehill returning home in last place with only six points for the whole meet.

Basketcases Number 1

The Basketcases won a thrilling, action packed game for the women's intramural basketball finals against a powerful Jagers team. The game was 7-6, the Basketcases favor at the end of the first half. As the second half progressed the Basketcases surged to a 13-6 lead. The Jagers then called a time out to regroup. As the final minutes began to expire the Jagers began to make a comeback. Their effort proved to be fruitless as time expired and the Basketcases won, 15-14.

The Basketcases ended their season with a 14-0 record while the Jagers had an impressive 12-2 season. The overpowerful Basketcases were led by Pam Johnson, Nancy Dowhan, Carol Ann Gustamachio, Diane Evans, Kathy Sheehan and strong performance from the bench. Congratulations to both the Jagers and the Basketcases on a fine season.

Baseball

On Wednesday, April 18, the Bryant College varsity baseball team won its first game of the 1979 season by defeating Barrington College 3-2.

The game was a 2-2 thriller for 8 innings until Bobby Mulligan scored the go ahead run in the 9th inning on a wild pitch. Once again Billy Templeton threw well, going the distance for the win. This weekend the Indians travel to Connecticut for double headers with Bridgeport University, and Sacred Heart University.

This weeks stars: Dave Pellerin, Bill Templeton.

This weeks goat: Assumption, New Haven, and Eastern Conn. College.

What Makes Charlie Run?

By Stephen Futardo

Jan 3, 1979 might not be a historic day in the minds of most Bryantonians, or even most Americans, but in the mind of Charlie Mandeville, the Gymnasium manager of Bryant College, it was a historic day.

It was on that day that Charlie began to run. His weight on that day was 174 pounds which did not sit well on his 5'6" frame. Charlie decided something had to be done, so he began to run.

Now, just over three months later, Charlie is down to 150 pounds! Also, he has trimmed inches off his waistline. "Anyone can do it if they really try," Charlie said.

At 12 noon every weekday, rain or shine, Charlie and a small group run for their health. On days when the weather is good, Charlie and Peter Barlow run together out on Route 7 to the North Smithfield High School and back, a total of six miles. "Everyone is invited to run with our group," says Mandeville. "Most of our group can't run a full six miles, but a mile or two is a great start."

Charlie is now gaining some publicity for the college by his running, he has recently finished 42nd out of 116 in a five mile road race in Pawtucket, RI. On April 8, he will run in a 10 km (6.2 mile) race in Burrilville, RI and on the 29th he will enter an AAU sanctioned race in Woonsocket.

Why does Charlie run? "It's really great," he says. "The first few times you may feel rotten, but once you develop your mind, and tone your muscles it becomes really enjoyable."

When asked what his goals are, he mentioned, "I hope to run in the Ocean State Marathon on November 4th in Newport. I don't care about winning, or finishing among the leaders. All I want to do is finish the 26-mile race."

Charlie joined Bryant on a part-time basis as athletic trainer in 1976. Previously he was a trainer for the Rhode Island Eagles of the now-defunct Eastern Hockey League. He also trained for the Sun Coast Suns Hockey Club in the Southern Hockey League, and more recently the Cape Codders of the North American Hockey League. Back in 1968 Charlie was an All-Star Hockey player at Mount Saint Charles Academy in Woonsocket. He weighed only 147 pounds then, "I want to trim back down to my high school weight," he said.

Charlie invites everyone in the Bryant Community to join his merry troupe everyday at noontime in the Gym, "It is really easy to run if you stick with it, many have only tried to run once or twice, and they give up," said Mandeville, "Once the weather gets warmer I hope to see a lot more people running down the pathways of the campus."

Two Different Types of Disasters

by John P. O'Neil

The China Syndrome and Hurricane are completely different films in quality as well as in subject matter. However, both films, especially Hurricane, may be classified as disaster films.

Of the two films, there is no question that The China Syndrome is far superior to Hurricane. In fact, the opening credits of The China Syndrome have more intelligence than anything in the laughably inept Hurricane.

Anyone who has been in touch with the news during the past few weeks is aware of the nuclear accident at Three Mile Island in Harrisburg, Pennsylvania. This situation is a constant reminder while viewing the film. In essence, The China Syndrome refers to the condition where a core meltdown could generate enough energy to melt through the earth to China. Once water is reached, however, enough radiation would be emitted to contaminate a state the size of, yes, Pennsylvania.

This disturbing film makes a very compelling and persuasive argument against nuclear power. The accident in Pennsylvania makes the film all the more scary and believable. Add to this the exceptional acting of Jack Lemmon and Jane Fonda and you have a completely spellbinding thriller.

In the first part of the film, Kimberly Wells (Jane Fonda), a popular feature reporter on a television station, uncovers a major nuclear accident which almost led to a core meltdown. Upon investigation by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, the power plant was given a clean bill of health. Later, however, Lemmon finds a potentially fatal defect in the pump which had been covered up by one of the inspectors. Lemmon decides to tell the public about the potential danger but must first face the harrasments and threats of executives who underestimate the danger and try to cover it up.

As a result, The China Syndrome suggests that as long as there is human error and money and greedy people who are concerned only about themselves, there exists an inherent danger in nuclear power. Human error is also a main ingredient in Hurricane for it was a grave mistake for Dino de Laurentis to make such a disaster.

Hurricane does not even belong in the same class as de Laurent's costly flop King Kong. It is too bad. The acting in Hurricane is almost as bad as the dialogue which is almost as bad as the plot, which is so bad it's funny.

If you can believe this, the storyline concerns a daughter (Mia Farrow) of a general (Jason Robards) who falls in love with a "head chief" who is previously involved with another native. The setting is the island of Pago Pago in the South Pacific and a neighboring island. When the "head chief's" Samoan lover finds out about his involvement with the general's daughter, she decides to have sex with another island native. However, the general's daughter has second thoughts about marrying the head chief and so the head chief decides to marry his old Samoan mistress, who is no longer a virgin! Because she must submit to a ritual called "deflowering" to prove her virginity, she decides to commit suicide and the head chief gets put in prison for allowing the ritual to take place. Never fear, however, the general's daughter arrives at the prison to aid in his escape. They barely make it to his island when a tremendous hurricane develops, and a search party is dispatched to get the head chief.

If all this sounds like a soap opera, it's not. No soap opera is this bad! Mia Farrow adds little except innocence to her character and Jason Robards portrays a father, though his character also lacks dimension. A particularly bad performance is given by Timothy Bottoms as Mia's ex-lover.

The special effects are as unconvincing as the rest of the film. One sees many large waves, some huts collapse and a ship comes through a church, but the overall look is cheesy.

In conclusion, if you would like to see a strong, compelling thriller, I strongly recommend The China Syndrome. Hurricane is a disaster, in more ways than one.

Light Wallets and Wild Women

by PLH

I always wanted to be a gambler. Even as a kid I used loaded tiddlywinks. This is the reason that I headed for the casino up in Atlantic City on the winter break instead of the land of sun and bun like the rest of you burnouts. So packing up my friend Jim, the lucky Lithuanian, and my meager savings, (Contrary to popular belief, The Archway pays freelancers zip. The only things they do offer is free drinks and sex. The catch here is that you have to wear a police uniform, but that's another story...) we took off in my little VW in search of Atlantic City and possibly New Jersey too.

After seven hours of driving on the Garden State Parkway, (One hour of which was spent dodging deer on the stupid road.) we finally arrived in Atlantic City. Now I wouldn't want to say Atlantic City is boring, but the major industry there in the winter is sleep. The people there tend to be on the strange side also. You would say hello to some of them and they would be stuck for an answer. As I drove in to park my car at the hotel a man came up to me and offered me nine dollars for my car. "Can you imagine the nerve of that guy," I said. "Offering us nine dollars for my car!"

"He must be crazy," said Jim. "Let's take advantage of him."

"We then proceeded to check into the hotel, changed into our woman-killer clothes, and then using a Monopoly board as a map, we found our way to the Boardwalk and the posh casino.

I was like a kid in a candystore when I entered the casino. Five minutes later I was like a very poor kid in a candystore. By sheer greed and stupidity I had blown over eighty dollars in the first hour. The Lucky Litho had done only slightly better, losing only forty dollars. Down to my last fifty, I did manage to have a bit of luck at the roulette wheel and won back around a hundred dollars. I was in such a good mood I even told Jim I'd spring for dinner. With that, Jim ran over and sat in the casino's restaurant and started to lick his chops. He was slightly disappointed when I shook my head no and led him out of the casino and into a Gino's across the street. What are friends for anyhow?

Later that night when we returned to the casino, I made the mistake of listening to some hot tips and received some nasty money burns. Once again I had blown all the money I had made and was about thirty bucks down. As I was trying to go fifty down, Jim dragged me away from the craptable and pointed out two young girls at the bar. "I want the one with the excellent lungs," said Jim. "You can have the other girl with the snake tattooed on her arm."

"She has a snake tattooed on her arm?" I exclaimed.

"Yes but don't worry. The snake has a rose in its mouth."

"With that The Lucky Litho picked me up and made me introduce myself. "Hi! My name is Paul. How do you like me so far?"

"I don't," said Snake Arm. She and I then went through the usual exchange of rude remarks and we gradually came to like one another. She told me in a slight Italian accent that she was in Atlantic City for a convention. I told her I was here to lose money. We both laughed and then promised each other that we wouldn't ask any personal questions about each other. We then joined the Lucky Litho and Lungs out on the dance floor. Since it turned out that the girls were staying at the same hotel as Jim and I, it was a very, ahem, convenient relationship.

The next morning before I was to head back for home, Snake Arm and I decided to take a dip in the hotel's indoor pool. I wanted to impress this girl so I got up on the diving board and did a one and one-half back flip into the water. As I got out of the pool she said to me, "That was a wonderful dive. I know we aren't supposed to ask personal questions, but are you a champion diver?"

"Yes, I said lying through my teeth. "In fact I was once state champion." She smiled and then said, "I think I'll get wet now." And with that she walked over to the edge of the pool and made a great flying start, swam eight laps of the pool faster than I had ever seen anyone swim, and then hopped back out and sat down again.

The Draft

The paper read—
 "Supporting Allies"
 I could bet,
 it's all in despair;
 wondering how far,
 maybe China.
 Who knows where
 a war will begin?

Old men will cheer over beer,
 Their college of philosophy,
 Waging a war of catastrophe,
 Listening to old war stories.

Little brothers follow the parade,
 Eternal marches through small towns.
 marching straight,
 a motion of no emotion.

All wave bye,
 Young girls and mothers cry.
 we will be the ones,
 who will go to die...

by Bob Healy

Does the sea
 control eternity?
 Is God boss?
 Why is man lost?
 forever defected,
 never rested,

Can it be a plot,
 for self destruction?
 Issue at hand,
 grievance of land.
 fall back,
 Thrown back,

Is this man's instinct, his fate?
 Is it a game?
 Yes, maybe, who can be blamed?
 Fate, instinct, even greed,
 at the end,
 all men shall bleed.

For if a man dies,
 will also the land
 die too???

Love

This clear time of seeing embers—
 A gold-bright sun's lost in first dusk.
 What frenzied senses, desp'rate musk
 Are consort of rememb'ring.
 Nights' pearl-censored requiem...
 'Tis for us!
 What joys run, then—
 Bright in your eyes—
 What flower-spangled amores
 Pull at our hearts...
 What flowered-spangled amores
 Fill our desires.

Wild Women

"That was incredible!" I said to her. "I've never seen anyone swim with such speed. I know we're not supposed to ask personal questions, but are you a champion swimmer?" Snake Arm smiled as she spoke. "Well, no," she started, "You see, I used to be a call girl in Venice and I worked both sides of the street!" I hit four deer on the way home.

nobody

He was in his twenties.
 So was she.
 Both were Catholic, unmarried,
 prayerful, creative.
 Both cared about people
 and cared for them.

How come he never thought of the priesthood?
 How come she never thought of being a nun?

 they said.

 No one ever asked you?
