"Dump Nixon" Rally April 18

Love That Bank

Donald W. Nelson, Assistant Vice President, Old Stone Bank, will discuss the Bank's new Flintstone Advertising Campaign at 10 a.m., Wednesday, April 21, at Bryant College in the main auditorium of the Student Activities Building.

Mr. Nelson will explain why his bank selected cartoon characters to advertise the Bank's services and will show the radio and TV commercials and some of the Bank's ads.

All interested students are invited.

Donald W. Nelson

PROVIDENCE, R.I. — Thousands of college students from Rhode Island and New England will converge here Sunday (April 18) to voice their desire for a new President and an end to the Vietnam war.

The students will be participating in a rally at the State House at 4 p.m. The rally, characterized by the national press as the start of a "Dump Nixon" movement, is sponsored by Citizens for Alternatives Now, a broad-based coalition of Rhode Island Republicans, Democrats and others.

Enthusiasm for the rally is running high on most campuses, said Gary Dotterman, who is coordinating that aspect. Arrangements for chartered buses to bring the students to Providence have been made in several areas, he said.

Speakers at the rally will include Sen. Edmund Muskie, D-Me., Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., Rep. Paul N. McCloskey, R-Calif., Rep. Don W. Riegle, R-Mich., Rep. Bella Abzug, D-NY, former Rep. Allard K. Lowenstein, D-NY, and George Wiley, head of the National Welfare Rights Organization. Lowenstein, who is scheduled to speak Wednesday (April 14) at several Rhode Island colleges, has been organizing the "Dump Nixon" movement in other parts of the country and has advised the CAN group.

Other speakers will be announced as their commitments are received.

The basic aims of the rally, said co-chairmen Malcolm Farmer 3rd and State Sen. Harold C. Arcaro Jr. (D) are to voice a demand for new national leadership, a reordering of national priorities, and an end to the Vietnam war. Farmer, a Republican, is an attorney and former executive director of the Governor's Committee on Crime, Juvenile Delinquency and Criminal Administration under former Gov. John H. Chafee.

Senator Arcaro hailed the rally as the "first formal opportunity for a large segment of the population to voice their reaction to President Nixon's speech on T.V. last Wednesday." In that speech the President gave no specific date for a complete withdrawal of American forces from Vietnam and no indication that he would divert "even a single dollar" from defense and military spending to domestic needs, said the senator.

He urged people to take advantage of Sunday's opportunity to make their desires known to the President.

The day's program will begin with a series of forums starting at 1 p.m. in the Biltmore Hotel a short distance from the State House. The aim of the forums is to acquaint people with alternatives to policies followed by the current administration in areas such as welfare, the elderly, public housing, education, the working man, health, ecology, and the poverty program.

The largest forum will be on the war. Subtopics will include the legality of the war, release of the POWs, the Calley incident, the draft, "citizens speak on the war," and the Paris scene. There will be a separate forum on programs for peace.

A voter registration forum, geared to launching a long-term registration drive for the newly enfranchised 18-to-21-year-olds, will also be held. Information on registration requirements in several states will be available. This forum will probably continue after the rally.

A program of organizational meetings is tentatively scheduled to follow the rally. The meetings will be held from 5:30 to 7 p.m. in the Biltmore to give potential Presidential candidates an opportunity to sign up campaign workers, to further organize the voter registration drive, and to sign up volunteers for the April 24 peace march on Washington.

Several professional rock groups will provide entertainment at the Biltmore and the State House, with music at the latter to begin at 3:30 p.m. Among those performing will be Joni Mitchell, Alex Taylor, Peter Yarrow, and Paul Butterfield.

The Concert Committee of the Student Senate proudly presents Bert Sommer, a Bud-dah recording artist, live and in concert tomorrow afternoon at 1:30 p.m.

Bert's third album was just released. Appearing with Bert will be Mike Brown, who used to be a member of the Left Banke and Deb & Ron, the group which has frequently appeared at the Bryant Coffee House.

All tickets are $2.00. Tickets are available in the bookstore and at Music Club International on Fones Alley. They will also be available in the Coffee House tonight.

Letters:

Dear Editor:

I would like to compliment the Masquers for their fine job of producing "The Imaginary Invalid." With special congratulations to the cast for their outstanding performance.

Anyone who has seen Medra's impression of Flip Wilson knew in advance that she could act, but who would have thought that Bryant has an opera star in Bev Kern?

Sheryl and John . . . Good Job!

The play was enjoyed by all who attended. I am sure that I speak for the majority of Bryant students in hoping that there will be more entertainment of this type in the future.

Sincerely,
Tony Iacono

Dear Mr. Monroe:

Your attention is called to an article which appeared in "THE ARCHWAY" on Friday, March 26, 1971. The article was written by Robert E. Rounds and asked for donations of books for the Maximum Custody Library at the Adult Correctional Institutions. Mr. Rounds is to be commended for his interest in these institutions and I want him to know it is appreciated by the inmates and the staff.

However, Mr. Rounds has been ill advised when he states "the inmates have asked the administration at the prison for more up to date books but nothing was done to alleviate the problem. The refusal of the administration to provide the library with more reading material has forced the inmates to seek 'outside help' in obtaining the needed books." For Mr. Rounds' information, these shelves were once filled to capacity with books, either purchased or donated. However, upon the advise of the State Library Services Department, many books were discarded to make room for promised new books. The riot of January 14, 1969 in which the remaining books were destroyed by the inmates causing the shelves to be emptied in total.

In our 1969-70 budget requests we asked for $6,750.00 and in our 1970-71 budget requests we asked for $7,350.00. Unfortunately, we did not receive this money.

The Library Services have been coming to these institutions for approximately four (4) years and visits monthly. Each inmate is permitted to borrow up to eight (8) books and may request books which are not included in the bookmobile. Loss or damage is extremely high as the inmates are careless with the books and are not required to pay for books damaged or destroyed. We have invited interested persons or groups in the community to assist us in replenishing our supply of books.

I would like to take issue with Mr. Rounds' statement that deplorable conditions exist beyond the grey stone walls and barbed wire. For his information, prisons are not a thing of beauty whether it be internal or external, but, unfortunately, this is society's way and these places must exist. Conditions are far from being deplorable and we attempt to do the best we can with what we have. This institution, in addition to suffering the infirmities of anything that is one-hundred (100) years old, also bears the burden of being understaffed. Under the circumstances, I believe that we are doing a good job. We welcome the assistance of persons in the community in providing recreational activities, tutorial students, books and articles which may be of some use to the inmates both educationally and for recreation. We are always ready to accept constructive criticism and this is evident as we do not attempt to keep any groups of citizens, students, etc. from visiting the institutions. If fact, if we had something to hide we would not allow such tours or visits. College groups are especially welcome as we hope to recruit future personnel from these ranks.

I would be most happy to sit down with Mr. Rounds and discuss any and all problems he observed during his tour of these institutions. If Mr. Rounds is interested in this invitation, he may contact me at 463-7900, ext. 831, any week day between the hours of 8:15 a.m. and 5:00 p.m. I would be most pleased to set an appointment for him to discuss any and all deplorable conditions.

Sincerely yours,
Robert E. Houle
Assistant Warden

$50 Prize For Can Collecting

Next week, April 19 to 26 has been set aside by Ecology Action for Rhode Island as Earth Week. The Bryant College Ecology Committee is sponsoring a can and bottle collecting contest to be held Wednesday, April 21 from 3:00 to 10:00. The person or organization that collects the most cans and bottles will win a $50 Prize. Any individual or organization that wishes to participate should contact Marcia Senk, Allan Hall or Gary Bower, Dyer Hall. All bottles and cans must be in plastic garbage bags and presented at the gym by 10:00 to be counted.

Thursday night there will be Three movies on Ecology shown in the Student Activities Auditorium. The movies will be about the population explosion, air pollution and water pollution.

Saturday, April 24 there will be two state wide workshops. The first starting at 10:00 is called Household Ecology. This workshop will deal with organic living and consumerism. The workshop will be held at St. Martin's Episcopal Church on Orchard Avenue in Providence. The second workshop will start at 2:00 and is entitled "Energy Resources for the Future." It is a panel discussion on the topic of Nuclear Power. The attributes and disadvantages will be discussed and alternatives will be presented. This workshop will be held in Barcus-Holley Hall of Brown University, room 166, on Hope Street.

Volunteers are also needed to help in newly formed recycling centers. Anyone interested should contact Marcia Senk in Allan Hall.

F.B.I. Fires Peace Volunteers

WASHINGTON, D.C. (CPS)

Two women, both clerical employes of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, said today they have been forced to resign from their jobs because the FBI objected to their volunteer work for the National Peace Action Coalition during the evening hours.

A third FBI employee, insisting that what she does during her off-duty time is not legitimately the concern of the agency, initially rejected a request that she submit her resignation. However, her employment status was unclear today.

Disclosure of the forced resignations comes at a time when the FBI is beleaguered by some of the most severe criticism it has faced in the last four decades, including demands from several Democrats in Congress for the resignation of J. Edgar Hoover, its 76-year-old director.

None of the three women involved in this latest dispute holds any security clearance or works with sensitive political data, they said in an interview. All were employed by the FBI's identification division, performing routine filing and sorting chores usually involving fingerprint and arrest records and similar data.

Since mid-February, the three have volunteered two or three evenings each week at the downtown offices of NPAC, which is coordinating the April 24 marches on Washington and San Francisco to protest the Indochina war.

The three are natives of small towns and are among the hundreds of young men and women recruited annually by the FBI in such communities across the country and brought to Washington to perform various clerical, secretarial and mechanical jobs.

The women are: Janice Bush, 19, of Nunda, N.Y., Linda Janca, 21, of Biloxi, Miss., and Christine Hoomes, 18, of Woodbridge, Va.

Bush initially planned to remain with the FBI and to carry her fight for continued employment into the federal courts, if necessary. But April 7 she was reported to be considering quitting as an alternative to engaging in a legal battle with the agency.

J. Allison Conley, the official of the FBI's identification division who reportedly presented the trio last week with an ultimatum to cease all anti-war activities or resign from the agency, declined to discuss publicly the controversy. "I can't make any comment on it," he said in a telephone interview.

Bush, however, shed some light on the firings. "Last Wed., they called us in (to Conley's office), one by one. They told us they couldn't tell us not to work at the NPAC office or to go to the (April 24) demonstration, but they showed that they didn't like it. That night, I went back to the NPAC office."

She said she was told that the FBI learned of her participation in NPAC activities through "paperwork from the Justice (Department) building" — a reference to the FBI's headquarters office about eight blocks away from the building that houses the Identification Division. Janca said she "kept saying war is wrong" during her interview with Conley, and that "I kept repeating my answer" when he questioned her about World War II, the Korean conflict and Adolf Hitler.

"He warned me that if any violence breaks out around me (during a rally), administrative action could be brought against me," she said. "He thought of my work as political, being that the peace groups are against the administration — and Nixon is president," Janca said.

"I said the war isn't political, it doesn't matter who's in office. He said the country was governed by politics. He explained that he couldn't do political work, because he might have to later investigate one of the candidates," she added.

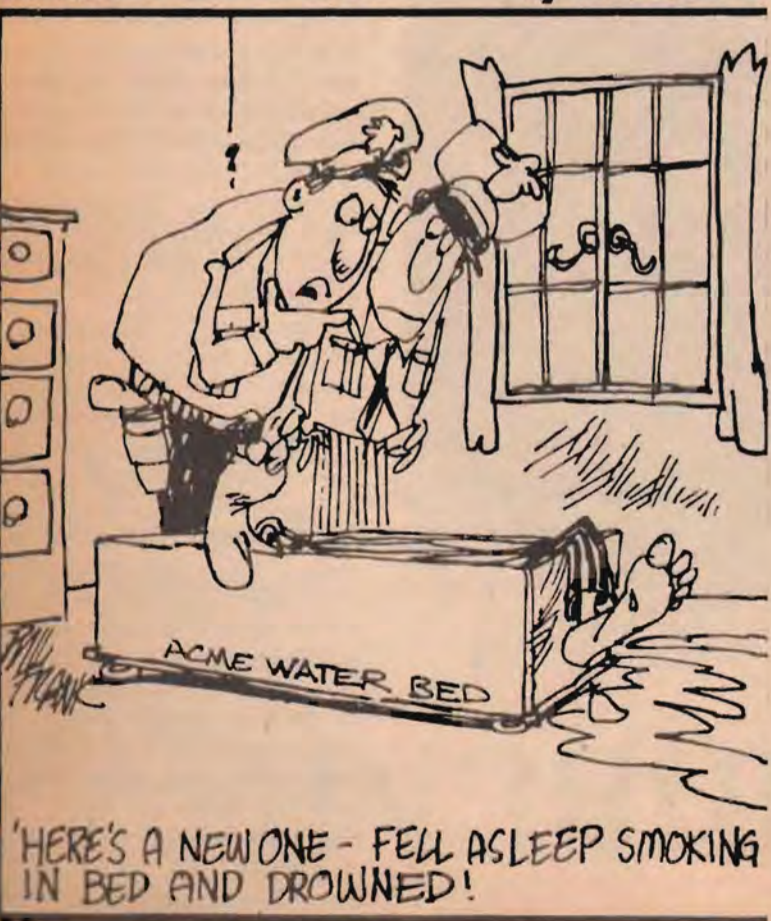

Janca said, in response to a question, that she described as "a frame-up" the investigation which led to the conviction of the Chicago Seven in connection with the demonstrations during the 1968 Democratic National Convention.

She quoted Conley as replying: "You mean you work for us and you think our investigation was a frame-up?"

Her account continued: "I explained that when a person plans a demonstration, the last thing in the world they want is a riot or violence. He kept talk-

3-D. MOVIE PREMIERE AT BRYANT

Bryant College has been chosen for the first "premiere" showing of a prestigious three-dimensional film, "Over There", prepared by the American Newspaper Publishing Association. On Thursday, April 29, this film presentation will be the highlight of a Symposium on "Domestic and International Operations of a Growing Business", scheduled to begin at 1:00 p.m. in the Auditorium of the Bryant Student Activities Center (corner Hope and Power Streets, Providence).

Chrysler Corporation, in cooperation with Mr. Al "Smokey" Cerrone, owner and President of Harris Auto Company, Inc., of East Providence, is sponsoring this seminar, the first program of its type to be presented to a college audience. Mr. Peter Dow, Director of Advertising for Chrysler, and Mr. Cerrone will share panel discussion leadership following the film.

Intended as a springboard for discussion of how a manufactured product moves from assembly point to consumer, the film itself is unique in that it requires special projection equipment and accessories. "Over There" describes the various advertising media that create "markets." While the film emphasizes newspaper advertising, other media are discussed—television, outdoor advertising, radio, and magazines, and representatives of each group will participate in the panel discussion.

Francis Moynehan, Regional Account Executive for Young and Rubican, the advertising agency that handles the Chrysler account, and Hal Licker, Vice President of the Bureau of Advertising, are coordinating the program.

Bryant's Chairmen for this event are Kenneth M. Long,

Assistant Professor of Management, and J. Paul McKillop, Associate Professor of Marketing. The program is open to the public.

Peter A. Dow, Advertising Manager of Chrysler-Plymouth Division, is responsible for supervising, guiding and co-ordinating the planning and execution of all phases of Chrysler-Plymouth car line advertising.

A former advertising executive with Young and Rubican, Inc., Mr. Dow had ten years of automotive advertising experience before joining Chrysler-Plymouth Division in April, 1968, after nearly two years with Young and Rubican, Inc., as an executive on the Plymouth advertising account.

A native of Detroit, Michigan, Mr. Dow was born October 7, 1933. A high school scholarship student at Lawrenceville School, in Lawrenceville, New Jersey, where he graduated cum laude, Mr. Dow was the recipient of a one-year fellowship at Rugby School, Rugby, England. He graduated with a bachelor of arts degree from the University of Michigan in June, 1955, where he was a three-letter man on the U-M Varsity Swim Team.

Patriotism and Greatness Can Co-Exist

by Bob Pineault

During America's heyday, "America the beautiful," "home of the brave," or "land of the free" were popular phrases associated with the United States. The early 1900's were such heydays, and immigrants flooded gang planks to board ships bound for America. Our country was then growing, still sailing on an ocean with a course set for greatness. Occasionally the ocean became stormy, making the voyage a difficult and costly one. Such was evident by the loss of American lives during World War I and World War II. Our country's voyage is now over, and it appears to have landed on a shore of greatness. However, greatness has brought to bear on our shoulders, like those once of England, the security of the free world. On numerous occasions countries inflicted with domestic conflicts have knocked on our country's door for financial or military assistance.

Many Americans, including a number of our distinguish politicians, feel that our country should take in the welcome mat and lock the door. Such Americans have turned the roars of patriotic phrases down to a whisper, replacing them with shouts of discontent towards our country's foreign policies. They fear that all this door knocking will cause our country's shoulders to weaken like those of England. I believe such thinking not only to be pessimistic, but also detrimental to our country's security. Where ever there exists a threat to our security, our country should take appropriate action to diminish that threat. Vietnam falls under such a classification. Many of you might find it difficult to comprehend how a Communist victory in South Vietnam could have much effect on our country's security. I look upon South Vietnam as only a stepping stone from which Communist aggression can once again be launched against other non-Communist countries.

Communism is like a gigantic red lake from which many streams flow. Such a stream is now trickling its way down South Vietnam. Allow this trickling stream to gain momentum, and the result will be a raging river that could empty into the United States as though it were a dry reservoir.

Having greatness without patriotism can be compared to having victory without honor. "America the beautiful," "home of the brave," and "land of the free" are phrases that best describe our great nation. To hear them as whispers disturbs me greatly. By supporting our foreign policies that exist as a protector of our country's security and greatness, these whispers could develop into the patriotic roars that once were so prevalent during our country's heyday.

Asked if they have any regrets about the events of the last several months, Hoomes said: "If I knew then what I know now, I probably never would have gotten into the FBI."

Small amounts of alcohol can set off extremely violent reactions in some people, says Dr. George Thompson, a Los Angeles psychiatrist, in the December SCIENCE DIGEST. Electroencephalograph recordings of the brain waves of some people who have had only two drinks look similar to those of sufferers from psychomotor epilepsy, an ailment characterized by violent behavior and amnesia. Most of the people who have violent reactions to alcohol have undergone head injuries that suggest brain damage.

WANTED:

College men and women for management positions in government. Must meet physical requirements. Financial aid available for in-college trainees, or applicants can enroll in special training course on graduation. Stateside and/or overseas travel guaranteed.

Here's a government position with a real future for both men and women. An officer's job in the Air Force. A management level job in anybody's book. Certainly, there's no better way to get the experience and training needed for executive responsibility.

If you have two years of college remaining, you could find yourself earning an Air Force commission while you learn, through the Air Force ROTC two-year program. Along with college credits and a commission, you'll receive $50 each month as a student. And upon graduation, that management position we promised will be waiting for you. If an advanced degree is in your plans, you'll be happy to learn that the Air Force has a number of outstanding programs to help you further your education.

If you're in your final year of college, you can get your commission through the Air Force Officer Training Program. It is open to all college grads, both men and women, who qualify.

Check it out. You'll find that the Air Force is one career that offers something for everyone. Nearly 430 different jobs, ranging from aeronautical engineering to zoology, with almost everything else, including flying, in between. But whatever your duties, you'll soon discover that the Air Force will let you move just as far and as fast as your talents can take you.

So look ahead and let your college years pay off for you with a managerial position in the U.S. Air Force. Just send in this coupon or write to USAF Military Personnel Center, Dept. A, Randolph AFB, Texas 78148, and get your postgraduate career off the ground.

Youth Committee Supports Draft Laws

A polling of the Selective Service System's Youth Advisory Committees in all fifty states and U.S. territories shows strong support for a temporary extension of the draft, the phase-out of student deferments, and the initiation of a uniform national call.

The three issues are cornerstones in the Administration's All-Volunteer Force/Draft Reform proposals.

According to the Youth Advisors' report sent to Selective Service Director Curtis W. Tarr today, a majority of Committees responding to the survey agreed that the authority to induct should be extended until June 30, 1973. In addition, the young people favor, by about a 2-1 margin, a phase-out of student deferments . . . and by about a 12-1 margin, the initiation of a uniform national call.

"Naturally we're pleased," noted Dr. Tarr. "We were very uncertain about the feelings of these young people regarding our proposed legislation, especially concerning an extension of the authority to induct. A great majority of the committees, however, said they 'reluctantly agreed' that the draft had to be temporarily extended. As I read it, they felt we must exert maximum effort to hit zero draft calls and to initiate an All-Volunteer Force, but recognized that we just couldn't make that transition overnight."

The Youth Advisory Committees were begun by President Nixon in June 1969, with panels now working in all 56 State Selective Service Headquarters. The approximately 650 young people range in age from 17 to 26 and represent diverse backgrounds. They are chosen by their individual State Selective Service Directors, based on their qualifications for the assignment and their ability to represent a particular segment of their states' young population.

Campaign Spending Examined

WASHINGTON (WCNS)—As new hearings on limiting campaign spending begin in Congress this week, agreement on the issues involved is far from unanimous.

The one issue with which all members of Congress do agree, however, is the need for reform. As Republican Minority Leader Hugh Scott (Pr.) told the Senate last month, "It is my feeling, and I know others join me, that we must now be about the real business of reforming our election campaign laws. The problem has been with us too long to ignore."

Four basic issues face Congress in the task of reforming the election laws: disclosure of contributions and expenditures; limitation on donations and services; regulation of media advertising; and tax breaks for contributors.

Republicans, including Republican National Chairman Bob Dole (Kan.) and Sen. Scott, generally favor full disclosure and reporting of expenses. This first step, Ken Davis, an aide to Scott, explained, "has a cleansing effect of making large donations less and less likely because of the negative effect that publicity has on the source of a large contribution."

Democrats, speaking through Joseph A. Califano, Jr., of the Democratic National Committee, urge strict limits be imposed and perhaps federal financing of federal office campaigns.

What is often cited in rebuttal to such calls for limitations is the advantage incumbents would hold against challengers. "Below the surface," Davis said, "this is an attempt to keep incumbents — the majority of whom are Democrats — in office. They can appear to be reform-minded by urging limitations, and at the same time assure their incumbency."

Republicans, however, believe limits of a different sort are possible. One favorite is the limitation of individuals' contributions of $5,000 for President, $2,500 for Senator and $1,000 for Representative. This proposal of Rep. John Anderson (R-Ill.), according to his aide, Dave Stockman, would apply to media advertising, telephone expenses and postage. "We took items that are obvious to the public's eye," he said, "and that are available at standard rates."

Rep. Barber Conable (R-NY) would add limitations on all contributions, but set at a high enough level "that allows for a rough-and-tumble campaign in the most expensive areas," his aide Paul Nelson said.

An even more controversial proposition is the regulation of media advertising. Democrats last year failed to get Presidential consent to a tv and radio spending limitation, because, as President Nixon pointed out last year, it is unfair to limit only the mass media and leave the print media untouched.

Sen. Scott's proposal would go beyond the Democrats' original proposal of last year and not only limit tv and radio costs by offering special rates four weeks before primaries and six weeks before general elections; but also limit print advertising by reducing mailing costs for candidates during the same pre-election periods. The repeal of the equal time provision which requires television and radio broadcasters to offer equal time to all candidates has attracted support among most Republicans as well as Democrats.

The final issue in limiting campaign spending involves the financing of campaigns and pol-

U.S. To Grow Their Own Grass

WASHINGTON, D.C. (CPS) — in the name of research, the U. S. government has bone to pot, but it won't say where.

The National Cancer Institute has awarded a contract to a suburban Virginia laboratory to make two million marijuana cigarettes and then use them to determine if smoking large amounts of marijuana can lead to cancer.

But an institute spokesman says the location of the project can not be disclosed, because of "security reasons."

James F. Kieley says security dictated that the amount of marijuana stored for the experiments or the length of the research contract also be kept secret. He said the unnamed company awarded the contract already has been studying the possibility that tobacco smoking leads to cancer under a June, 1969 contract. Total cost of the combine marijuana and tobacco contracts is $611,448, Kieley says.

The marijuana cigarettes will be puffed in smoking hamsters at seven laboratories, he said.

While the tobacco tests were done with cigarettes bought on the commercial, the marijuana cigarettes will be made from pot seized in drug raids made by federal authorities. As Kieley said, "You can't buy these cigarettes at the corner drug store."

itical activity. Democrats have urged the federal government to underwrite candidates' expenses.

Republican proposals, however, seek to encourage a broader base of contributions through the use of tax incentives and limitations on the aggregate amount any one person, organization or committee (from labor unions to political parties) can donate to a candidate's campaign.

"There must be increased stimulation of citizen participation in the political process," Sen. Dole told the Senate during its hearings earlier this month. While the GOP receives 80% of its money from contributors of $100 or less, according to its finance office (the average donation being $13.68), the party must still rely on 20% of its expenses coming from large donations.

Scott's proposal, similar to that of Conable and Anderson, would "provide a maximum of $25 tax credit or, as an alternative, a maximum of $100 tax deduction."

"There's a feeling on both sides," Scott's aide concluded, "that we've got to do something. People don't know if they can trust their representatives in Washington. In most cases their fears are unwarranted. But if they believe these rumors, we're in trouble."

Baird Belts Chastity

NEW YORK, N.Y. (CPS) — The U. S. Supreme Court will decide this year whether or not chastity is legally enforceable.

The Court has agreed to hear the case of birth-control advocate William Baird, jailed in 1969 for exhibiting birth control devices in a speech in Boston in 1967, in violation of Massachusetts' famed "chastity" laws. Baird, who has been imprisoned in four states in his crusade for birth control and abortion reform, was released from prison one year ago after a U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals overturned his conviction. The Massachusetts Attorney General appealed the decision, and the Supreme Court has taken the case.

Should the court uphold the Appeals decision, state laws against not only birth control and the dissemination of birth control information, but also the various fornication and sodomy laws could be declared unconstitutional. All such offenses are included in the Massachusetts law as "crimes against chastity."

The court may rule only on the section of the law as related to the Baird case, that of birth control information, or it may decide on the entire question of these rarely enforced laws regulating the sexual behavior of consenting adults.

Baird, who now head the Parent Aid Clinic in Hempstead, N. Y., is lecturing on college campuses to raise funds for his legal defense. Should the highest Court reverse his appeal, he will face two months more in prison.

Baird's Parent Aid Clinic is one of the many abortion clinics opened in New York since the state liberalized its abortion restrictions. Baird's clinic is noteworthy in that it charges no referral fee, it has a maximum charge of $150 and it does not contact the family of its clients except upon request.

A team of gynecologists performs up to 50 abortions per day in the Long Island office. Baird revealed that thus far this year, 62 per cent of his patients have been Roman Catholics, and three have been Roman Catholic nuns.

Bowlers Go To Kansas City for N. A. I. A. Finals

On Thursday morning, April 22, the Bryant College Bowling team will leave for Kansas City, Missouri representing the eastern coast in the NAIA finals. They will be competing against seven colleges representing areas throughout the United States. Teams from California, Minnesota, Missouri, Arkansas, Wisconsin, North Carolina, and West Virginia will meet with Bryant College to determine the best collegiate bowling team in the United States. Coach Roy Nelson will escort the first team in twelve years to represent Rhode Island. The five bowlers are: Steven Monaco, Steven Diamond, John Duda, Lee Wheeler, and Don Dunn. Also accompanying the team is Fred Wissbrun who made it possible for the team to qualify.

The NAIA finals will be covered by local television, and newspapers across the country. After bowling 15 games in head to head competition Friday and Saturday the team will fly back to Rhode Island Sunday afternoon.

Bryant College besides winning their division of the Tri-State league with a 27-1 record also won the entire Tri-State Tournament. Being that the Tri-State rollofs are at the same time as the NAIA finals in Kansas City, the team had to forfeit the right to appear in Madison Square Garden for this event.

TKE Wins Basketball Tourney

by JEFFREY DOPPELT

"TKE won despite Joe Byrka," the controversial guard, who is noted for his disparity at every tweet of the whistle.

Cohen was a scorer first and a defensive player second. Rhondeau led Theta Chi to a 52 - 51 opening game victory with 22 points, but Cohen brought TKE back. In the second game TKE led 21 - 11 at halftime. However, Theta Chi closed the gap in the second half and moved to within 5 points at 23 - 18. Then Cohen went to work scoring 9 straight points and ended the game as higher scorer with 16 points at 1 in the second half. TKE went on to win 47 - 33 and the stage was set for the big one.

It looked like TKE was no match for Theta Chi in the final game as Bob Nigohosian took charge early, scored 14 points in the first half, and led Theta Chi to a 30 - 20 halftime lead. The second half was a seesaw battle as each team exchanged baskets until Barnicoat's 3 point play and a foul shot by Jim Burns cut the Theta Chi lead to 5 points, 35 - 30. Holtzman then scored for Theta Chi but TKE came back with successive baskets by Barnicoat and a foul shot by Burns cut the lead to two, 37 - 35.

Theta Chi then seemingly put the game out of reach with 5 straight points. Now it was Cohen's turn again. Having to sit out the second half because of foul trouble Cohen came in and led TKE to a great come from behind victory. Buecher hit and Cohen immediately stole the ball and scored, cutting the lead to three. Nigohosian scored but Cohen came right back hittin on a rebound of a missed shot. Nigohosian hit a foul shot and TKE missed their shot but Cohen forced another steal and Skrivan hit on a jumper. Cohen stole the ball again and scored tying the game at 45 all.

Nigohosian put Theta Chi had a great chance to ice the game with less than a minute to play but a Bob Nigohosian shot missed and TKE came back with a quick basket by Ferro who came in for Buecher. That tied it 47 - 47. TKE forced another turnover and Ferro hit the winning shot with 5 seconds left. Theta Chi called time out and were assessed with a technical foul for too many timeouts. Cohen missed the technical but came back and clinched the game for TKE when he was fouled with 2 seconds left and made both. Final score TKE 51, Theta Chi 47.

Bob Nigohosian was outstanding for Theta Chi taking game high scoring honors with 19 points. Steve Barincoat led TKE with 14 points. TKE is the 1971 fraternity champions in basketball.

A new experimental rattlesnake vaccine that protects against bites by the venomous reptiles has been developed at the University of Utah. Fifteen dogs vaccinated with fluid obtained by milking rattlers survived lethal doses of venom with only minor swelling, says the February SCIENCE DIGEST.

Mistletoe, with all its quaint, pretty Christmas inferences, isn't the friendly little "plant" you might think. It is a grim parasite that grows on almost every variety of tree in the U. S., sometimes causing the host to sicken or die, says the December SCIENCE DIGEST. Birds spread mistletoe by eating its berries and then wiping their bills on trees to get rid of the sticky seeds.

O'Brien and Barnicoat Voted Baseball Co-Captains

Bryant's baseball team has elected Steve Barnicoat and Dennis O'Brien as its co-captains for this year.

Dennis, a native of Somerset, New Jersey, will be the team's starting center fielder. As a sophomore Dennis batted a strong .273. He was second on the team in the home run department and lead the team in doubles. Dennis's fielding was near perfect. In 52 attempts he made only one error for a fielding average of .981. Because of a mix-up in his academic schedule last year, he was one credit shy of the minimum course requirements of the N.A.I.A. and could not play varsity ball. According to coach Stein, Dennis is "One of the best defensive outfielders in New England.

Steve, from Marlboro, Massachusetts, will play a dual role for the team this year. He will be the starting first baseman and will also pitch. Steve's pitching chores will be mainly as a relief pitcher. His record of 4-3 last year is not indicative of Steve's pitching ability. Two of his better pitching performances were the 2-0 shut out over Steve Barnicoat and Dennis O'Brien, 1971 Baseball Co-Captains.

Husson and a 3-hitter 7 - 1 win over St. Francis. In a game against Barrington, Bryant was losing 10 - 9 in the bottom of the eighth inning when Steve came to bat and hit a 3 run homer to put Bryant in the lead and add another game to his pitching win column. Last year Steve batted a cool .333.
