Editorial

THE RECENT APPEAL of Brother E. Stanislaus, President of the College, to all members of the student body regarding the acute need for establishing an annual giving program has, so far, gone virtually unheeded. To date, less than fifteen per cent of the total amount requested has been received.

It is no news that La Salle students are not the wealthiest in the world. But it is also obvious that we often spend far more than the three dollars requested of each student on things which, however worthwhile, fall immeasurably short in comparison to the importance of this program.

Anyone who has attended La Salle—unless he has cheated himself—is an alumnus, for the very basic meaning of the word is "one who has been nourished." The purpose of this giving program is not to "pay back" the debt of this "nourishment," but to strengthen and enhance the Alma Mater so that she will be able to do even more magnificently in the future what she is doing for us now.

We, as alumni, have an obligation in justice and in charity to see that the President's modest plan is successful—for several impelling reasons. First, in itself, the program will provide a constant fund to protect the college against extreme financial difficulty. Second, success on our part will be an example to the graduate alumni, who, it is safe to assume, are generally able to support such a program to an even greater extent than we are. Third, it will be a stimulus to outside donors, because one is always more inclined to help an organization that is first of all interested in helping itself.

We are nearly two thousand. If the student leader appointed in each section by the President stresses his appeal until everyone has "come through," the first and most important part of the annual giving program will succeed; and our example will encourage the other members of the La Salle family to join in our effort.

Randazzo Elected Exec Board Prexy

Angelo Randazzo, Senior Delegate to the NFCCS, was elected President of the Executive Board on Monday night. He received 24 of a possible total of 47 votes, the rest of the votes going to Dave Besselman (11), Jack Gallagher (8), and John Veen (4).

An honor student, Randazzo has had an active career at La Salle. He is now beginning his second year as an NFCCS delegate, and was a former secretary of the APO fraternity. He was also the chairman of the marriage forum, and a member of the freshman orientation committee.

Paul Cundey, who has also had a very active career in campus government, including two years as secretary of the Class of 1958, was elected vice president of the board by a vote of 27 to 19 over Joe Lavin, the only other nominee.

Boyle Wins Council Presidency; Hager Protests Illegal Methods

In an election which is being contested by the runner-up candidate, Robert Boyle was elected president of the Student Council by a plurality of 220 votes and a majority of

BOYLE

64 votes in last week's elections. Ken Glen Hager, who ran second in the election, has protested on the grounds of illegal procedure. Hager claims that the polls opened one hour late, and closed one hour early; and also that Boyle used unfair tactics in campaigning by driving his poster-laden car past the polls on campus. When asked for a comment on the protest, Boyle stated: "I don't believe any of his grounds for protest would have changed the election; if he has grounds for protest."

The protest will be decided upon by Student Council. No official word could be obtained as to the decision.

Boyle, an Education Social Science major, announced that the first activity he will perform in office is the organizing of the new Student Council which will take place immediately following the sophomore class elections. Once council is formed Boyle will proceed to make all the appointments for the following year. Among these are: the organization of the Calendar Committee and the Poster Committee. All appointments will then be confirmed by council and the work for next year will begin.

The next act of business will be the organization of next year's Orientation program. Boyle announced that the program will follow last year's method, the only change being the possible organization of a Freshman Board of Governors.

Letters

Editor:

May I employ your columns to congratulate my successor, Bob Boyle, on his election to the Student Council Presidency last Friday and wish him the best of luck in the coming year. I know he will do his utmost to carry out the major part of his plans.

At this time, I would like to thank the Student Body for the support given me in the past year and for the opportunity of serving them. It's been a great honor, a wonderful experience, and a real education.

A Trilogy

By JACK McDEVITT

Tell me, Anne. I have to know.

There is no one else, Tom. Why don't you believe me? Something is different about you. About the eggs. Do you still love me?

Must you ask that again?

Do you?

Tom, stop being silly.

Answer me!

Yes! Yes! I love you.

You don't!

All right! I don't!

Anne. . . .

I'm leaving you, Tom. I'm going away with Bill. Bill? My best friend, Bill? Good old Bill. . . . ? Why?

He's coming this afternoon to get me.

Why? Why this? Where have I. . . . ?

Bill! There you are! Take me away.

I'm going to kill you, Bill.

Now wait a minute, Tom.

Soon as I get my gun out of the top drawer.

I have one right here, Tom. I guess I'll have to use it.

No, Bill. You can't shoot my husband in cold blood.

Stay out of this, Anne. Sorry, Tom.

Uhhhhh!

Anne! Why did you jump in front of him? Why? I don't know. I guess I still love him.

Anne.

Goodby, Tom. I'm sorry.

Oh, Anne. . . .

Don't be too harsh with Bill. He did this for me.

Lightning, I'm going to take that plane up for you. You're nuts, Starbuck. That's my job.

But you'll never come back alive.

That's the chance I have to take.

Look, I'm the only man on the base can test fly the Suicide Special and still have half a chance of getting down in one piece and you know it.

You're a family man, Starbuck.

My family's provided for. But what about Jean?

Jean? I love her. You know that, Starbuck. But I couldn't let her marry a coward, could I?

They're warming her up now. Change your mind.

Lightning. Your life depends on it!

Goodby, Starbuck.

I hate to do this, Lightning.

Just Lookin' Around

By TOM ADAMS

Joe Maher came up with a good one at Open House last Sunday. He was walking around the campus without a program when someone asked him if he wanted one. "No thanks," said Joe. "I wrote it."

The library has come out with some excellent enforcement for the rule prohibiting talking. Now they simply fine you $10, and take away your library card. In fact, a few have been punished already. Once the word gets around it will be very quiet in the stacks.

La Salle Wins NFCCS Debating Tournament: The annual NFCCS Debate Tournament was held on Sunday, April 28. La Salle emerged victorious, defeating St. Joseph's and Villanova. The La Salle debaters were Pete Walsh and Vince Konen (affirmative), Ron Connors and Frank McVeigh (negative).

Free Dance for All Students: Student Council is sponsoring a free dance for students on May 15 in the college auditorium. Music will be by Al Raymond and his orchestra. Free refreshments are included.

At a meeting of the Weber Society last Wednesday, new officers were elected. Jerry Anunziato was elected club president, and he promises to get the ball rolling or something like that.

IRC has guest speaker on campus: Mr. Charles Guensch, Educational Director of the U.A.W., will speak at a meeting of the Industrial Relations Club on Tuesday, March 12, at 12:30 in C-214. His topic will be "Automation in the Automobile Industry." All students are invited to attend.

Library Notice: There will be a restriction on the length of time books may circulate, beginning May 17. Library cards may be used by students throughout the summer months.

The prize-winning poster chosen for the program cover of the Masque show Oklahoma! was submitted by Miss Dolores Mastroni. Miss Mastroni was awarded $10.

Juniors who have not had their pictures taken for the yearbook are again reminded that the photographer will be here tomorrow and Friday in the auditorium lobby.

Meet Tom Cunningham

SOCIOLOGY AND DIPLOMACY

By LEO DUGAN

"Sociology is the art of helping people to help themselves," said Mr. Cunningham. "As a Psychiatric Social Worker, I will be helping the families as well as the patients themselves to adjust to realities. Sometimes the parents need help more than the children."

Thomas J. Cunningham, Jr., is a quiet, wheels-a-turning, tactful type. He wears his clothes in a neat, almost fastidious manner and would sooner interview than be interviewed. He was elected president of the Sociology Club during the latter part of his junior year. He was, also, a junior delegate from La Salle to the National Fraternity of Catholic College Students Regional Council during his junior year and, until recently succeeded by Ronnie Gendaszek, a senior delegate during the past year. While in that capacity, he attended two congresses on the national level.

Until John McCartin took over the reins as club president, Tom was the active advocate of the Marriage Series. Because he had some singing experience in a group at Roxborough High, he joined the Glee Club in his freshman year. However, although not married himself, Tom's time for activities became monopolized by the Marriage Series in his sophomore year, compelling him to relax his larynx.

"The Family Life Series had a discouraging beginning," Tom continued, "but the Collegian gave us a lot of publicity. . . . tell them I said 'Thanks!'"

Provided he attains a scholarship, he will most probably enter the National Catholic School of Social Service where he has been accepted. A "B" student, Tom lives at 410 1/2 Ripka St. in Holy Family Parish in Roxborough. He has had supervised-field-placement training at the Southern Home for Children at Broad and Morris Sts.

When queried about the remuneration for psychiatric social work, he answered, "I asked Brother Augustine the same question a long time ago, and he said, 'Not much!' However, after some research into the matter, I find that 'not much' is enough!"

Tom is also a charter member of Alpha Phi Omega, the national scouting fraternity.

From the Sidelines

ONLY AN HOUR earlier it had been raining like cats and dogs, but now the sun was peeking from behind fluffy white clouds. It was the first game of the season for the Cragleysville Elementary School, and I was assigned to cover the game for the "Chronicle."

The boys were busy lashing line drives into left field, and a couple of pitchers were warming up over there behind third base. I watched them for a while, especially impressed by the one on the left. Then I spotted Coach Rutley and sauntered over behind the backstop, where he was standing. He was wearing a heavy jacket and a cap, and had a catcher's mitt on each hand. He had a deathly fear of being hit by a baseball. I walked up behind him.

"How's things goin', coach?" I said, clapping my arm down on his shoulder.

"Who the hell are you?" he turned on me nervously. A foul ball pinged against the backstop, and he twitched. I took my arm back.

"I'm Nose . . . from the 'Chronicle.' I'm covering this here game."

"Might think you was Red Smith or somethin', comin' around here scarin' the daylight out of people like that."

I apologized. Then, after a few minutes of respectful silence, I continued about my business.

"That pitcher over there," I said. "Got a lotta speed, eh?"

"You still here?" he asked.

"Yes, sir!" I replied. "That pitcher over there. He's fast all right. Little bit wild, though. Catcher's gettin' a real workout."

"Havin' trouble with his legs," he explained. He was chasin' a ball across the pike a coupla weeks ago. Got hit in the ankles by one of them Ford Thunderballs."

"Thunderbird!" I corrected politely.

"You gonna stand there and tell me what it was that he got hit by? I was standin' right here when it happened! Saw it with my own eyes."

"Sorry, sir," I said.

A HUSKY fellow trotted onto the field and after swinging a handful of bats around, he picked one and went to the plate for batting practice.

"Who's that fella, coach?" I asked. "I didn't see him before."

"He's our right fielder. And stop callin' me coach!"

"Pretty late gettin' here, ain't he?"

"Pretty nose, ain't ya bud?"

"Only doin' my job!"

"Works part-time drivin' the school bus."

The boy took a clean healthy cut at the ball. A big fat pitch came down the alley and he stroked it high into the breeze, which carried it over the fence in left center. Suddenly a woman—almost out of nowhere—leaped out and fielded the drive on the first hop.

"Who's that?" I asked.

"Who's who?"

"That lady in that back yard over there."

"Oh . . . her. She grabs every ball we hit over there. Won't give 'em back, neither!"

"How come?" I asked.

"She's mad at us."

"What for?"

"She wants to play catcher and we won't let her!"

"I don't blame you," I said.

"Oh, it ain't none of my doin'," he replied. "It's the school board."

"What have they got to do with it?"

"I just told ya. They won't let her play. What's a matter? Are ya deaf or somethin'?"

"Well, I mean, how come?"

"Her marks are too low. What else?"

THE team left the field while a couple of elderly men raked the dirt around home plate and first base. A hearse drove up and a fellow in a black suit and tie got out. He adjusted his mask and chest protector and took his position behind the plate. A minute later the Cragleyville team was taking the field.

I found a milk-box and settled down to watch the game. But as far as I was concerned, I had my story. It was beginning to shape up already . . .

. . . Only an hour earlier it had been raining . . .

Uhhhh . . .
Sorry, Lightning. But I'm doing this for you. It's the only way.

Who's there?
The police! Open the door before we break it in.

You can't. It's locked.
Open the door.

You'll never take me alive, coppers. I got a machine gun in here.

Open the door, please. This is Western Union. I have a telegram for Mr. Little Rodney Backwater.

Oh! Just a moment please. I thought you were somebody else.

Aha, Little Rodney! You are under arrest.

Holy smoke! The Law!
Put down that gun, Little Rodney.

Oh no you don't.
Drop it!

Ugh! you got me, copper!
You've lead an evil life, Little Rodney.

You're right, Officer. I should have known I couldn't escape the Law. I'm dying, but before I go, I'd like to do something to try to set the record straight so I won't have to carry too heavy a burden when I go to see the Great Warden.

There's some loot in my wall safe there behind the picture of George Washington. Take it and use it to buy baseball equipment for the little leaguers. I . . . guess this is it . . .

Too bad, Little Rodney. You realized too late that CRIME DOES NOT PAY.

Club Notices

The La Salle College Glee Club held their annual banquet at the Schwartzwald Inn, Sunday, May 5. The Glee Club, after giving a concert at the Open House, announced the results of their elections at the banquet. President John Gulliford stated that the office of president will be filled by Richard Dyer, while John Hall was elected treasurer, and Paul Morden and Owen Simmons both secretary. The vice-presidency is still undecided. The highlight of the evening was the presentation of the award for outstanding membership for four years, to William Hall.

There will be a very important meeting of the newly organized Finance Club on Thursday, May 9 at 12:30 in C303. On the agenda this week is: (1) creating of a constitution with the necessary by-laws; (2) election of officers for the next school year; (3) plans for a social to be held within the next three weeks. It should be noted that eligibility for the Finance Club is not based on whether an applicant is enrolled in La Salle College's Business Program. All that is required is that the applicant is sincerely desirous of promoting interest in the world of Finance.

In the recent Residence Hall Council elections, held on Wednesday evening, May 1, the following officers were elected for the 1957-58 school year: Joseph Cupini, '59, president; Basil Battaglia, '59, secretary; Michael Marshall, '60, athletic chairman; Edward Markowski, '59, social chairman; Al Lellig, '60, grievances chairman; and John Oberholzer, '58, religious chairman.

Baseball—our national pastime? Hardly! It may be yours, oh ye beyond the enclosures of the ivy-covered halls; but with rare exception the diamond sport has been obscured by the ever-lengthening shadows of football and basketball within the institutions of higher learning.

Let's face it; unless given ultra-high spectator conditions, this game of baseball is a very dull game to watch in comparison to its winter and fall counterparts.

The professional baseball game is able to draw people to watch their antics because they are able to comfortably seat anyone who wishes to see the game. Can you imagine how many people would be willing to hang on the back-stop screen even to watch Stan Musial, even if there were no admission charge.

The fact that the talented pros in the diamond game so outclass even the greatest of college nines also plays no small part in the success of professional baseball.

Basketball on the other hand is in an entirely different situation. Most colleges have facilities which are just as good if not better than the pros to accommodate the spectators of the sport.

The calibre of players is also a good deal closer to the pros than in batball. This is evident in the fact that a goodly number of collegiate athletes make the jump into the professional hoop game each year, while university glovermen rarely if ever are able to exploit their wares successfully among the play-for-pay boys without three or four years of minor league seasoning.

In order to help the college baseball outlook, there seems to be only one possible answer. Since it is not feasible to of a sudden improve the brand of ball up to major league standards, we must approach the problem with the antidotes aimed at the other serious drawback.

We should build college ball parks similar to those in which the sixteen "big" clubs participate.

What's that? Ridiculous you say? Perhaps; but perhaps not. Naturally we are taking for granted that the U.P.A. (United Philanthropists of America) will be able to provide someone to foot the bill for such a project. This small detail out of the way we may now procede.

The system would mark on much the same scale as the one used for Palestra basketball. It would add an enormous amount of spectator interest, and city series baseball games played under the lights would be just as big an attraction as basketball.

Once the students start attending the games, the public will begin to stop around to the old ball yard to see what's going on; if they like what they see they'll stop back. Then with people attending college games, high school players would seriously consider turning down a minor league career for a lucrative college offer. Before you know it we'd have a bonanza.

Sweepsters Capture Fifth Dad Vail; Frosh Impressive in Six Length Win

Demonstrating their ability to hang on to a lead, La Salle College's varsity crew successfully defended its Dad Vail title on the Schuylkill last Saturday. The Explorers won by slightly less than a length over Tampa University.

Rollins College was third, a third of a length behind Tampa.

Tom Curran's sweepstingers, winners of five out of six dual meets this season, made it a two race sweep for La Salle, after the Explorer freshmen completely outrowed the field to win by six lengths in the yearling event. Rollins won the JV race. LSC had no entry in this row.

The varsity paddle was expected to be a victory for the Explorers, and the big eight didn't disappoint the crowd which braved the unseasonably cold and windy weather. Wearing sweatshirts to ward off the chilly air, the huskies took the lead at Strawberry Mansion bridge, three-quarters of a mile from the finish. They increased the margin to one length as the crews reached the last quarter, and then held off a formidable closing sprint by Tampa. The Tampa boys, a vastly improved outfit over last season, served notice that they are a comer in the rowing game as they flashed past Rollins in the closing drag and cut the La Salle lead somewhat.

La Salle was timed in 6:43 for the mile and five-sixteenths Henley distance. Tampa was two seconds behind.

The victorious crew was composed of the same men who had rowed in every previous race this spring. The boating was Vince Szymkowski (stroke), Bob Morro 7, Frank McCloskey 6, Gene Maketa 5, John Dever 4, Jack Galloway 3, Romeo Boyd 2, and Jim Wagner (bow). Tom Loschiavo was the coxswain.

It was the last race of their collegiate career for Szymkowski, Morro, McCloskey, Maketa, Dever and Galloway. All except Galloway were members of last season's Dad Vail crew. Galloway, at 150

Golf Famine Still Continues

La Salle's golf team has yet to win a match. In the last two week's they've dropped two to St. Joseph's and one to Swarthmore.

Lopsided Scores

St. Joe's checked our team with 15½-2½ and 12½-5½ victories. Swarthmore victory was another lopsided score which found the Explorers on the short end.

Higgins Top Performer

All is not black, however, as our number one man, Ed Higgins, continued to give the team the majority of its points. Ed has won his last three matches bringing his personal season record to 4-2. In the second St. Joe's match he came through with a rousing 78 to defeat Phil Martin of St. Joe's for the second time this year.

Bob Davine is also holding his own as he boosted his season mark to 5-1. His only loss came at the clubs of a Hawk.

Four to Go

With four matches remaining on the schedule against Penn. Temple, Villanova, and Muhlenberg, the team is determined to bring home a victory.

Athletic Banquet Here Tonight Letter Winners to Be Honored

Tonight in the school cafeteria the annual athletic banquet will be held. Members of all sports, both major and minor, are scheduled to be honored. Varsity letter winners

Cats Rout Trackmen; Gavin Ties Record

The Blue and Gold of La Salle found the going rather tough last Saturday as they matched talents with the boys from Villanova. The winter-like weather didn't seem to have any ill effects on the Wildcats as they handed La Salle an 87-37 defeat. In doing this they also managed to set three local records. Out of the fourteen track and field events La Salle emerged with only two first places. Vic Gavin did a nice job in winning the 120 yd. high hurdles in 14.9 seconds tying the stadium mark set last year; and Ira Davis turned in his typically fine performance by winning the broad jump. Ira did a fair jump of 21 ft. 9 in.

After this set-back the Thinclads should be sufficiently fired up to retain their Middle Atlantic Championship in the meet coming in the near future.

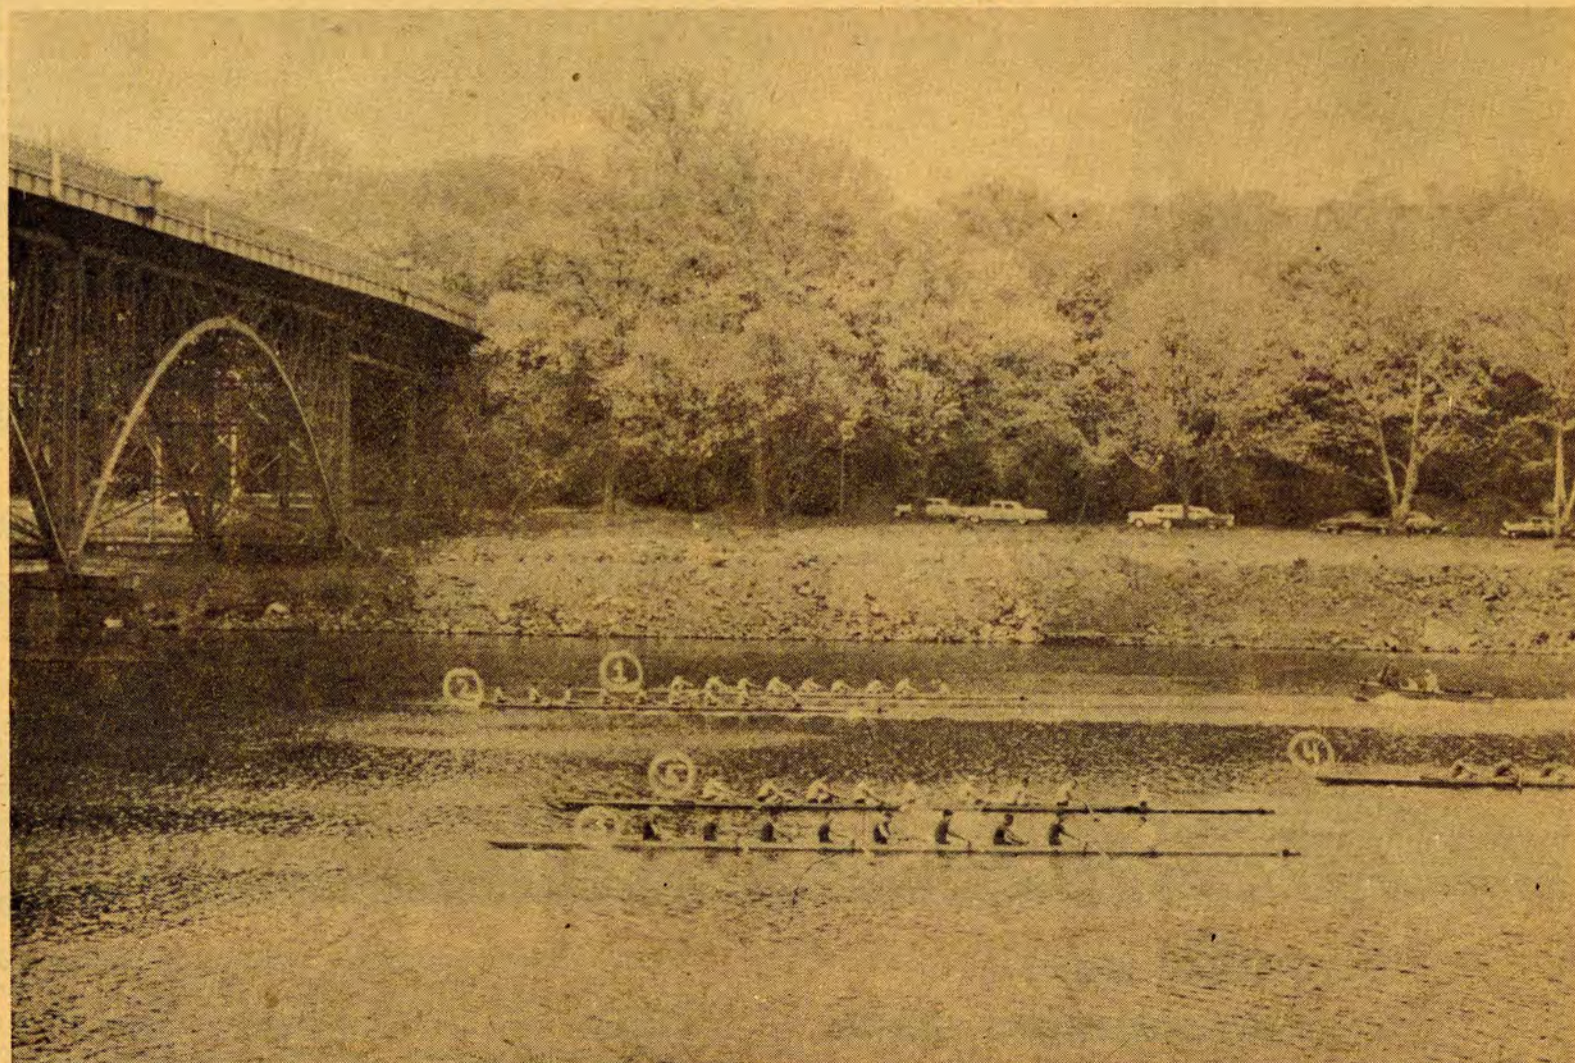

will be announced. The Varsity Club will also utilize the occasion to award junior members of the club their pins as well as their certificates of membership.

The Philadelphia press will be well represented with reporters from the Bulletin, Inquirer, and Daily News, sitting in on the festivities. Master of ceremonies and man most responsible for making this affair a success in the past, is George Swoyer.

This year's banquet will be even more meaningful in that it comes near the close of a year which for La Salle has been highly successful . . . the swimming team capturing the Middle Atlantic Championship, the crew team recently taking the Dad Vale trophy, and the basketball team destroying pre-season prophecies by emerging as City Champions.

Two awards will be given. The President's Award to the outstanding athlete and the Schmitz Award to the athlete who has best exhibited the qualities of sportsmanship during the past year.

Look Out for the Bridge, Tom

In the early morning heat for the purpose of eliminating three crews from the finals La Salle is shown battling Tampa for the lead as they approach Strawberry Mansion Bridge. The lead of Tampa is more a result of the handicap favoring the crews on the east side due to the westward bend of the Schuylkill. The order of finish was (1) La Salle, (2) Tampa, (3) Clark, (4) Amherst, (5) Purdue.

Owls Take Batters; Mullin Tops Penn

By RALPH HOWARD

Few on the Olney Avenue campus are aware of it, but the La Salle nine's last hope for an NCAA championship berth probably sailed down the Temple Stadium right field line with Frank Fanucci's game winning home run, as the Owls again beat the Explorers, 5-3.

Fanucci's two-run, ninth inning clout scored winning pitcher Charley Bergdoll from first, and gave starter Bob Rumer his first loss, against one win. The team is now seven and three for the season; excluding yesterday's tilt with West Chester State Teacher's College.

Temple, currently the hottest club between here and Lafayette and virtually certain of a title bid, surged to a three-run lead in the fourth, by adding two markers to their first an inning earlier on singles by Fleishman, Staines and Fanucci. The latter led the Owls with two hits and three runs batted in.

Mike Schlacter scored the first La Salle tally in the fifth, advancing from third after his three-base blow. Singles by Reardon, Schlacter and Rumer netted two runs in the Explorers seventh, setting the stage for Fanucci's game winning blast.

Down Quakers, 'Cats

The Temple Merriwell finish was the second of the week for La Salle. The first, however, was a jubilant occasion, when leftfielder Schlacter turned the trick last Wednesday to defeat Penn in the final frame, 9-6, and give reliever Bill Mullin his fourth win.

Behind by four runs in the seventh, La Salle scored two runs in their half of the inning on Frank Finegan's four bagger after Vince Valecci's single, and went ahead in the eighth, scoring three markers on three safeties and two passes by Penn loser, Bill Assiff.

Penn Regains Lead

The Quakers again took the lead in the home half of the eighth, when they combined Bob Rumer's miscue, a base on balls and Bob Schuck's pinch home run to score two runs. Penn third sacker, Gordon Achilles, banged a double with one out in the ninth, but Mullin retired the next two hitters for the sixth La Salle win.

The Explorers garnered their seventh victory last Friday, when they trounced Villanova, 12-2, on the Main Line diamond, in a re-

The La Salle College basketball team was honored on Friday night by the Philopatrian Guild at its Annual Sports Night Dinner.

Each year this organization fetes the team they believe to be the outstanding Catholic collegiate basketball team in the Philadelphia Metropolitan area.

Last season St. Joseph's College was selected as the team to be honored as a result of their coping the city championship. The selection of the Explorers this year was apparently based on the fact that they were the only team in Philly to defeat each of the other city teams at least once.

play of a game postponed last month. Mullin was again the winner, notching his fifth win, this time in a starter's role. Schlacter belted a home run and knocked in four runs to lead the La Salle attack.

Crimson and White Muhlenberg Mules. This is the first encounter between the two nines during this 1957 season. The Mules have been having their share of bad luck of late, as they have lost seven consecutive ball games and are still looking for their first win of the season.

The only consolation for the hapless Mules has been the heavy-hitting of first sacker Don Leber, of basketball fame, who has been pounding the ball at a 400 clip.

Following the Allentown jaunt, the Blue and Gold will journey to Reading, Pa., to do battle with the Albright Lions, Tuesday, May 14. This contest will also be the initial tilt between the Explorers' and Lions' for the '57 campaign.

Providing La Salle captures these remaining contests and Temple is handed one or two defeats, there is the outside possibility for an N.C.A.A. World Series bid. However, such a possibility seems remote.

pounds, is probably the lightest La Salle man ever to win a Dad Vail.

Szymkowski, finishing his third season as varsity stroke, did so in fine style. The well conditioned Explorers rowed a high beat throughout the race, and were estimated at 40 strokes per minute when they crossed the finishes line.

The victory makes La Salle the first school ever to capture the Dad Vail five times. It was the third crown for coach Curran.

The Explorer frosh had things very much their own way as they led from the start to finish. Rowing a smooth 32 stroke most of the distance, the yearlings came home in 6:53. Second place Brown registered 7:16.

The frosh boating was as follows: Tom Henry (stroke), Harry Todd 7, Phil Murray 6, Herb Baidersdorfer 5, Bob Suter 4, Hugh Broly 3, Jerry Davidson 2, Ed Lucas (bow). The coxswain was Tom Madden.

After shaking all of the congratulatory hands, the varsity lot had a parley to decide whether they would enter the Eastern Sprints at Princeton on May 18. The decision, prompted by the desire of several of the scholastically exhausted members to be graduated next months, was negative.

Down the Line

By JACK McDEVITT

IT WAS THE MORNING AFTER Bill Mullin punched Villanova between the eyes, and the same day the Dad Vail came off. A half-dozen guys sat in a battered old Buick pulled into the debris off the West River Drive—sat blinking into an 11 o'clock sun.

"Y' know," said the guy leaning over the wheel, "College sports are a funny thing. Most of them, anyway. The minor sports, I mean, like baseball and tennis and golf and track and hockey—who plays hockey? Boston College? I think there's quite a few—and soccer, and this . . ." He pointed in the direction of the river and the boats, moving slowly past, floating almost. It would be a while before they got out of sight.

"Far as anybody knows, they don't make any money for the school; just a drag on the loot brought in by the football and basketball boys. There aren't many people who really get excited over them—even if they do have a reasonable crowd today—but the people who do get just as excited as their indoor cousins."

"This," observed a listener, "is because there are still quite a few characters who like such things as track meets and rowboat races and things . . ."

"No, seriously," amended the driver, "I wasn't knocking the people over there; pretty far from it: they are fortunate enough to have found a good thing and, as people of taste always will, they liked it and stayed."

IT'S THE OLD THING OF WHAT you're used to, and there aren't many of us who grow up around boathouses, or paddle our own skiffs. Is that right, Howie? The skiff, I mean."

"A skiff," observed Howie solemnly, "is, I believe, a Chinese boat such as would look quite extraordinary and unusual racing Rollins, or even West Catholic or anybody else down the river, especially at this hour of the morning."

Somebody in the back seat observed that Howie lacked even the faintest trace of verisimilitude, and the inside of the Buick turned out laughing.

"I am quite serious," Howie defended himself. "Skiffs were originally used by Chinese gun runners, like China Smith, and would not make good shells because they were built for hauling cargo, and not for running up and down somebody's river. If you want to get a boat out there that will beat anything that sails, floats or rows, including skiffs, I suggest you see Tom Adams, and get him to show you the plans for his new Bouncing Monitor."

A DAMS' BOUNCING MONITOR IS not a standard type of racing shell, exactly; as a matter of fact, there are several violent departures from what Jack Galloway will refer to as the norm. It is not, for example, long and streamlined; rather, it is short, fat and spherical, and the rowers sit inside.

"This way the boat rolls along the water like a rubber ball and has this rolling action to help it travel faster. Another advantage of the Bouncing Monitor, as it is all enclosed it is impossible for anybody to fall out."

"Wait a minute," the guy with the wheel said. "You would have to put your oars out through slots. How do you keep the water from coming in when the boat revolves?"

"Adams was wondering about that himself, and decided on a guard, attached halfway up each oar."

"There are, certainly, a few minor objections to the Bouncing Monitor. To cite one, Adams has not room for the part of the oars that will be inside the boat. The crew will be constantly jabbing one another in the ribs. You can see that with eight oars coming from all different directions, plus eight guys and the rudder assembly . . ."

"Eight guys?"

"Well, that's another minor objection. You see, the coxie, Tom Loschiavo, for instance, would be strapped in a seat outside, on the shell of the boat, so he could see, and he would call stroke and direction and things by beating his heels against a metal patch that would be put there just for that purpose."

FOR A WHILE THERE WAS some talk of installing a gyroscope inside to keep the boat right side up, which would certainly make things easier for Loschiavo, or for anybody else who happened to be sitting out there for that matter. But it was decided that would defeat the basic purpose of the boat: To Bounce.

"However, Adams did not forget the necessity of giving his coxie a reasonably clear vision, so he distributed five of his rowers around the circumference at sea level; and he has one at the bottom and two at the top, with their oars perpendicular to the surface of the water. Now the result of this is that there is a lot more sideways spin, and with two oars on top when the coxie does go under they get him right up again. So you can see that Adams has thought of everything."

Spring Dance Climaxes Congress Social Season

Take heart, men—the trees are in full bloom, the azalias are in riotous color, the final weeks of our grueling schedule are passing swiftly, and the date for the Annual Spring Dance is drawing nigh. This year the dance will be held on the night of Friday, May 24 at the spacious ballroom of the Cannstatter Volkfest-Verein, located on Willets Road at the intersection of Academy Rd. and Frankford Ave. The music will be supplied by a very capable aggregation under the baton of Clarence Fuhrman, the dean of Philadelphia radio musicians. Mr. Fuhrman is Musical Director of KYW and enjoys a nation-wide reputation for his ability as a top notch entertainer.

The Cannstatter's is situated in a very beautiful neighborhood and offers unlimited parking facilities. A trackless trolley route passes within yards of the entrance and terminates at the Bridge St. station of the Frankford El, thereby affording ready access from all parts of the city. The affair will be informal and, as in other years, corsages will be frowned on. This economic aspect of the dance has proven very popular, especially with the married members of the Evening Division who might use the money to pay the baby sitter. A good time is assured every one who attends and those who do not attend are acting foolishly indeed. It presents an opportunity for the Cassanovas in our midst to demonstrate their ability in picking beautiful girls; it also affords married couples a chance to get out and enjoy a little diversion. Every married student should be proud to show off his main support in his struggle for fame and fortune. The invitation has been extended—let's accept it by buying our tickets as soon as possible.

Candidates Nominated for Office At Meeting of Student Congress

On Monday evening, April 29, 1957, the representatives attending the regular meeting of the Student Congress in the lounge of the college library nominated the candidates from whom will be elected the officers for the 1957-1958 school year.

According to the constitution of the Evening Division Student Congress, the office of president is restricted to those eligible degree students who will be in their senior year at the start of their term in office. The eligible nominees are: Louis Potenza, incumbent vice-president and former editor of the Evening Division Collegian, Joseph Roletter, president of the Accounting Association for the past year, Robert Steelman and Meiris.

The constitution states that the office of vice-president will be restricted to eligible degree students who have successfully completed one-half of the academic requirements toward their degree by the end of the semester in which he is elected. Those honored for nomination for this office included: William Hollister, incumbent treasurer, Manus Conway, current editor of the Evening Division Collegian, Potenza, Roletter, Steelman, Schwind, Gannon, Boyle and Kelly.

The offices of secretary and treasurer are open to all eligible students. The nominees for treasurer include: Jack Flynn, present incumbent, Schwind, Higginbotham, Lavin, Long and Boyle.

The evening program of La Salle College enjoys a distinction practically unheard of anywhere else in this country. We have developed; on campus, probably the most extensive program of extra-curricular activities to be found in any evening college.

Our activities make it possible for all who attend classes in the evening to get the maximum benefits from their courses of study. Through our social events and campus organizations we present the student body an opportunity to relax, and an additional means of furthering their interests in a particular field of endeavor.

In order to administer this extensive program we must have competent leadership. The election of officers of the Student Congress the governing body of all activities and campus organizations, is a serious responsibility that you should all assume.

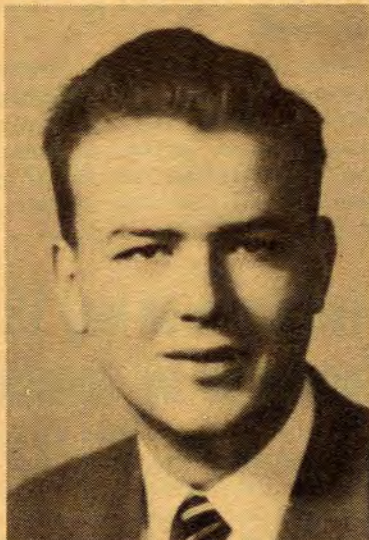

It is your Student Congress. The representatives and officers that carry out its functions are the men that you select. In the forthcoming elections for the Student Congress officers, your representatives are going to elect the men who will carry on the traditions that have been set by those who served before them. It is your responsibility to know these men who are candidates for office, and to aid your representative to elect the men who are the most capable for these positions.

Therefore, think wisely about the candidates, evaluate them thoroughly, and then elect them to office.

Commerical S. C. President's Message

You have recently been approached to subscribe to the program for the Spring Dance. It is well known that many of you do not appreciate the necessity of this program. The monies obtained from this source spell the difference between the scintillating affairs usually presented and an evening of mediocrity. Support the Spring Dance program NOW!

A follow-up on the last article would have as its purpose the elimination of one of the reasons for a feeling of apathy among the students. We maintain that if the students do not understand what is involved in the extra-curricular program and the benefits from the activities, then they cannot be expected to support them.

The benefits derived from the activities in general could be placed into three categories. We feel that none of the benefits to the student body should be overlooked in the planning stage of the program. The first benefit in our school should be religious. We do not attempt to force this aspect on anyone, yet there are a number of affairs which can be of help to the students. The second benefit is social contacts. It is during one's collegiate days that he should try to make new friends. We attempt to provide the student with an environment which will make this cementing of relationships easier. The third benefit can be derived by the student in an individual way, either directly or indirectly from the affairs. Among the direct benefits would be: having an enjoyable evening, breaking up the routine of work and school, broadening one's approach to the business world. Indirect benefits can be derived by those who participate in the planning and execution of the affairs. This additional effort provides an opportunity to give a little of one's self to the school and the subsequent return to the individual is immeasurable.

There are many ways of explaining the various activities on campus, the most fruitful would seem to be to explain what general organizations we have and the purposes of these groups. With this explanation one can readily see the purpose of every activity.

The Student Congress is the students voice in the extra-curricular program. A representative system has proven to be the most effective way of not only finding out what the students want, but also the most effective way of carrying out the program. It acts as liason between the students and the administration on problems of student welfare. It also fosters a number of school-wide affairs which provide the benefits as outlined in the previous paragraphs.

The student club organizations have as their purpose the broadening of interest in the different fields of study and bringing men together who are mutually interested in these fields. Every student should belong to at least one organization, preferably the one which represents his field of study. The five fields represented are Accounting, Industrial Relations, Management, Marketing, and Science. However, each organization is open to any student and he should feel free to attend any meeting which may be of interest to him.

The Senior Class is the honored group on campus. It provides the student with the last opportunity, while still attending school, to make friends among his fellow students, particularly those who will be in the same graduating class.

The Collegian is an important medium of communication in the Evening Division. It provides to the student complete information on all activities. The Collegian also provides an opportunity to those who are interested in writing, a chance to practice their skills.

We are very proud of the extent of activities and the quality and organization of these activities. We hope that the underclassmen will continue this program and expand it in the future.

La Salle — After Dark

ATTENTION, ALL CAHILLITES: The Annual Communion Breakfast of the Alumni Association of Roman Catholic High School will be held at the Church of the Gesu on Sunday, May 19. Breakfast will follow at the Broadwood Hotel, across Broad St. from the venerable halls of R. C. H. S.

GO ON WITH THE WEDDING: We were recently informed that there were weddings in the families of two of our fellow students. Bill Stanton was a member of the wedding party at the nuptials of his sister, and John P. Boyce '57 committed matrimony at the Church of St. John the Baptist.

ART APPRECIATION: Have you noticed any additional beauty around La Salle College? Yes, the beautiful posters that you see around school, helping to inform us of the Spring Dance on May 24, were executed by Mitzi, the talented wife of Bill Long. Mrs. Long, a former student of Philadelphia's noted art school, located at Broad and Pine Sts., spent an average of 13 hours on each poster.

THROUGH HAIL OR RAIN: Reliability and promptness are virtues of two of our fellow students in spite of the distance each has to travel to school. Dick Trauger, who is mad about bright red neckties, lives in Pipersville which is several miles above Horsham, Pa., and Bob Kratky, who is sporting his new crew cut, lives in Levittown, Pa.

THIS AND THAT: From May 8 to 13 "Oklahoma" and May 24 is the Spring Dance. If you don't have a date contact Ray Duckworth, our man about town. . . . B. A., an Allstate insurance lover, seems to have trouble being on time in Mr. A. J. Rieffel's class. . . . Bill Stearne confesses that the neighborhood from which he came is so run down that they were going to tear it down to build slums. (Smile.)

THE COLLEGIAN TAKES OVER: Manus Conway and Lou Potenza, both members of the Collegian, are now dipping their fingers in school politics. Lou is running for president of the Student Congress and Manus is nominated for the seat of vice president.

Exec. Board

Dave Besselman, president of the AED, became Secretary of the Board when no opponent was nominated. The new Treasurer of the Board is Bob Morro, president of the Caisson Club. He defeated the only other nominee, John McCartin, by a vote of 29 to 16. These men will take their offices upon the organization of the new Student Council, of which the Executive Board is component.

At the final meeting of the outgoing Executive Board, last Thursday, two financial appropriations were made out of the $200 fund allotted to the Board by Student Council, and two amendments were made to the Board's rules of procedure. Both of the latter were sponsored by Joseph Maher, president of the Benilde Club.

Amend Election Procedure

The first amendment concerns the election of the officers of the Executive Board, and was revised as follows: "Whereas, at present, the election of the new officers for the Executive Board is left entirely in the hands of the incoming members; and whereas, in order to utilize the knowledge of the Board's older members of the workings of the Executive Board; be it resolved, that the new president, vice president, secretary, and treasurer be elected by the old and new members; be it further resolved, that all nominations must be made only by the new members, and each new member have only one vote and each old member have only one vote. This would give those who have been re-elected to the presidency of their clubs, two votes. Be it further resolved, that there be no proxies under any circumstances."

This amendment was approved by a vote of 19 to 2, with one member abstaining.

Sanctioning Now Automatic

The second amendment concerns the sanctioning of clubs, and was introduced by Maher with a view toward eliminating the possibility of allowing personal feelings to enter into the severity of sanctions. The amendment is as follows:

"Make Article VI, Section 5, Paragraph d: 'If the organization itself fails to comply with the request (i.e., the request of the president to impeach its old officers and elect new ones after they have failed to attend three meetings of the Board during any one academic year) the president of the Executive Board shall present the case before the Student Council and ask for sanction of said organization.' To read: 'If the organization fails to comply with the request, it shall be automatically sanctioned for a period extending until the end of the next full semester.'"

The subject sanction is a complete suspension of the organization's activities. This amendment was approved by a vote of 19 to 0, with one member abstaining.

In the matter of finances, the Board approved an appropriation of $25 to the German Club for the purchase of a plaque to be awarded to the principal speaker at their May 19 "social night," which is open to the public. The Board also approved an open appropriation to the Open House committee for the financing of this affair.

(Right) Will Parker (Clem Feeny) gives the lie to his statement that "With Me It's All or Nothing" by flirting with two of the chorus girls in another scene from the same production.

The show opens tonight and will continue its run for six nights. This marks the first time a Masque presentation has been scheduled for more than five performances. Tickets are on sale at the booth on the first floor of the college and will be available at the door on the evenings of the production's run.
