1958 Class Elections Held; Panchella, Walsh Re-Elected

The results of last week's Junior class elections are, Joe Panchella, president; Jim Walsh, vice-president; Joe Yambor, secretary; and Jim Garvin, treasurer. Panchella, Walsh and Yambor were re-elected to the positions they held last year, while Garvin is a newcomer to the post of treasurer.

Panchella defeated Tom Beckett by a plurality of 104 votes. The president received 211 votes to Beckett's 115. There were two abstentions.

Walsh and Yambor ran unopposed for their respective offices. Their victory was very decisive. Walsh received 318 "yes" votes against 6 "no" votes with 4 abstentions. Yambor received 309 "yes" votes and 14 opposed, with 5 abstentions.

In the race for treasurer, James Garvin defeated Ed Morris by a plurality of 111 votes. Garvin received 217 votes to Ed Morris' 106. There were 5 abstentions.

Neither Garvin nor Morris held offices last year. Both ran when last year's treasurer, Ed Devlin, did not petition to run for the office.

Panchella, Yambor and Garvin are business majors while Walsh is an English major.

The four officers will take their positions on Student Council as soon as all the class elections scheduled for this year are held. The last election will be held by the sophomore class. Following this, next year's council will be completely organized.

Review: Oklahoma!

The Masque of La Salle College did it again, this time taking us out to the Indian territory. It was hot there but this is the only objection to their solidly successful production of Rodgers and Hammerstein's Oklahoma!

The show itself needs no introduction as it is the grand-daddy of all musicals. It combines humor with drama, singing and dancing to provide rare entertainment. The Masque, under the direction of Dan Rodden, combined these elements and we'll be interested only in their presentation of Oklahoma!

As a whole, this production got off to a slow start but by the time Kansas City is musically described we are acquainted with that Oklahoma hospitality. From this point on we're as happy as Ado Annie when she received her Oklahoma hello.

The leads were capably handled by Dolores Dezii as Laurie and Dave Shannon as Curly. Miss Dezii's beautiful voice deserves the highest praise, more than compensating for her occasional over-acting. Dave Shannon's fine portrayal of Curly both musically and dramatically is attributable mainly to the latter part of the show when he had completely won the audience. Especially notable is the smoke house scene in which he had complete control of himself and Jud.

The eternal triangle comprising Will Parker, Ado Annie, and Ali Hakim not only functioned as a subplot to the main love story as is usual in Rodgers and Hammerstein, but also was most responsible in making the show so enjoyable. Clem Feeny once again distinguished himself as the pillar of the Masque by singing, dancing, and, most of all, by acting as Will Parker. His stage presence is extraordinary and his singing ability was not taxed by the part. He received no small assistance from Grace Slavin as Ado Annie, who banged out her songs quite well, particularly "All Er Nothin" which left nothing to be desired. Ed Sager as Ali Hakim literally stole the show. He deserves unqualified praise in wholly mastering the dialect, cleverness, and "tragic ending" of the traveling salesman. His entrance as the slain husband deservedly brought the house down.

The other roles contributing most were presented by Jim McCrane, Pat Feeny and Hank DeLuca. Jud was hated by all and this was due to the superbly convincing acting of Jim McCrane. His arrestingly deep tone was in character as well as in voice. Aunt Eller was presented as more sweet than hardy by Pat Feeny whose over-all performance was enjoyable. Hank DeLuca turned in another excellent job, this time as Ado Annie's protecting father.

The actors' solid performances can only be compared to the surprisingly fine dancing. Considering the limitations, Miss Canavan cannot be judged too favorably for her imaginative and sensitive choreography. Of course Ed Stein helped a bit by exhibiting graceful and natural dancing, such as is seldom seen in a non-professional performance. He excelled in the dream ballet which was the most pleasant surprise of the night. In this as in their other numbers the chorus of dancing girls was superb.

In such an outstanding performance, no one person can be commended, and Dan Rodden is responsible for this. As the directing and driving force of a unified, smooth musical, he again has given evidence of unusual talent. He and the Masque gave us a production which had few flaws, but which created the almost unattainable impression that no one was enjoying the show more than the cast. This resulted in another success, a hearty one that will not soon be forgotten at La Salle.

Just Lookin' Around

By TOM ADAMS

Next year's Blue and Gold ball will be held on February 7 at the new Sheraton Hotel. Student Council has announced that the hotel has already been contracted for; all that remains is getting a band. According to Bob Boyle (new Council president), the band will be of a "big name" variety. We'll see.

On Student Council and the Executive Board:

There is a debate going on around campus as to whether the Executive Board should have equal power with Student Council. As it is now, the Board is subordinate to Council. It has been questioned whether this is the best situation. If the Board were made equal to Council, it would seem that the students would be better represented in the government. For not only would the students have the right to voice their opinions through election of class officers, but, moreover, they would have an even more direct voice in the persons of the club officers whom they elect. This way their interests as active students would be insured.

Angelo Randazzo, the new Executive Board president, has been studying this question in order to see if the two-house system would work here at La Salle. It is worth looking into.

When asked what he thought of the proposal, Bob Boyle stated: "It depends on whether or not the Executive Board can work with Student Council." Again, we'll see.

Jerry Dunleavy, one of the distinguished baritones of the Masque's Oklahoma! chorus, managed to keep busy backstage between numbers. He lost $17.00 in a crap game to a fellow who was passing by on his way to Evening Division classes.

Lost and Found: Mr. Lachat, of the library lounge, has announced that the following items should be claimed by the owners before leaving school. The items are: a jacket, top coat, dissecting kit, and a few gym bags.

Library notice: Beginning May 17, there will be a restriction on the length of time books may circulate. Library cards may be used by students throughout the summer months.

Baseball a la McDevitt: Jack McDevitt has developed a new system for playing baseball. He is much disturbed by the two step advantage left-handed batters have over right-handed batters in running to first base. McDevitt thinks that left-handed batters should run to third, thus eliminating the advantage. This would also bring about a need for left-handed infielders who can easily throw to first. (Jack is a left-handed infielder.)

This one made the whole year worthwhile:

In one of Fr. Driscoll's Ethics classes, the question was raised as to what a priest would do if a person entered the confessional and proceeded to tell the priest that he had placed a bomb in the priest's black bag. Fr. Driscoll said that of course the priest could never act upon any information received in the confessional. "What then must he do," came a question, "blow himself up?"

"Why, no," answered Fr. Driscoll without hesitation. "In that case you would say, 'For your penance remove the bomb.'"

Meet Joe Pappano NOT AS A STRANGER By LEO DUGAN

Although Joe Pappano is a pre-med student with a 3.92 average, he has had considerable difficulty during past summers attaining a position tantamount to his abilities. It seems that most drug and chemical companies make it a point to hire only students of chemistry or those whom they might influence to return after graduation. Probably hundreds of future doctors of medicine, who probably need the experience more than anyone else (with all due respect to chemistry majors), are turned away each inter-class season solely on this basis.

Joseph E. Pappano, Jr., a short, well-built, handsome Italian, is of "New World" stock. His father is a lawyer whose official title is Recorder of Deeds in Delaware County. Although Mrs. Pappano has not worked professionally as a registered nurse for some time, she still maintains an active interest in the field. Brother Bob is a freshman pre-law student on the crew team.

As president of the La Salle College division of Alpha Epsilon Delta, the national pre-medical honor society, Joe is also a member of the Executive Board. Recently he was elected to the Alpha Epsilon Honor Society. It is comprised solely of La Salle alumni who annually bestow the honor of membership on deserving pre-med seniors.

Joe is also a member of the Fabrician Society, which, under the direction of Tony Damore, won the La Salle College Open House Award for 1957 on May 5 for their anatomy exhibit. They doubled their closest rival and won with a total of 64 votes. In the embryology and histology display, Gene Politowicz made like Marvin Perkins, while Joe manipulated two-, three-, and four-day old chick embryos in warm saline solution. At that stage the blood has formed and is clearly visible to the naked eye.

At home, Joe has acquired about $300 worth of HO model train equipment. Constructing scale models has been a hobby of his since grammar school days. Although he took clarinet lessons for 10 years, Joe has never played before any nominal audience except his family.

Next Fall, he will enter medical school at Penn University. A resident student in St. Cassian's Hall, Joe's home is in Chester at 703 E. 20th St.

Mr. J. Ludwig Schmaltz September 10, 1955 Dear Mr. Schmaltz:

We are delighted to inform you that you have been selected from among the countless thousands on our mailing lists to be the recipient of our new once-in-a-lifetime gift offer of Celeste Margrate's fabulous new Book of Wonders. Yes, friend, now you can take advantage of this perfect steal, and all you have to do is return the enclosed card. We will ship the Book of Wonders to you free of charge as an introductory offer to our Monthly Book Reader's Club. Then every month we will send you (post-paid) for your approval the latest club selection at the modest price of $1.98. What's more, there are many more advantages to membership which are too numerous to be stated here—advantages which will unfold before your eyes as the months roll by.

Now, if you want us to go on with this offer simply print the word "ON" in large letters across the reverse of the card and mail it to us, and your trial offer will begin. Of course, if you should want to be so foolish as to reject this wonderful offer, all you have to do is turn the back of the enclosed card upside-down, print the word "NO" across it in large letters, and mail it to us—and you'll never hear another word from us.

Hoping to hear from you soon, I am, Sincerely yours, A. B. Paskudnick, Pres.

Dear Mr. Schmaltz: December 4, 1955

Some time ago you indicated to us your desire to become a member of the Monthly Book Reader's Club, and since then we have shipped you the introductory offer of Celeste Margrate's Book of Wonders, and the last three monthly selections of the club. However, we have not yet received payment for any of these fabulous offerings. We are very busy ourselves, and understand how matters like this can slip by unnoticed. However, we trust that this notice will be well received by you and that you will be able to attend to this matter in the very near future. As of now you owe us for only three books (the Book of Wonders is yours free of charge and without obligation!), each book sent to you for the low, low price of only $1.98, or a total for three of $6.94. Hoping to hear from you soon, I am

A. B. Paskudnick, Pres.

Dear Schmaltz: February 5, 1956

Another two months have passed! You now owe us for a total of five books. However, you don't seem to be any too anxious to pay up. Maybe it's the money that's bothering you. Well, if that's the case, you will probably be glad to hear that we held a special board meeting and decided to give a discount rate. We are billing you for five books (ordinarily $1.98 each) at a total of only $9.85. Please pay up soon!

A. B. Paskudnick, Pres.

Mr. J. Ludwig Schmaltz: April 5, 1956

Now listen here, Schmaltz! We've taken just about enough from you. Your behavior is seriously jeopardizing your club membership standing, and you now owe us for a total of seven books... total $13.86 (we have canceled your discount). Pay up or else!

A. B. PASKUDNICK, Pres.

Schmaltz! May 5, 1956

Nobody wants to do business with a sneak and a thief! If you have any intentions of settling your account with us, you'd better do so in a hurry, because in another month our collectors will be coming after you. Pay up now, you wretch!

PASKUDNICK!

Sir: July 5, 1956

We have found out all about you. You live in a barn free of rent. You do odd jobs and keep your total income below $600.00 per year. That beat-up wreck you drive is registered in your uncle's name and is uninsured. The books we sent you have already been donated to the Cragleysville Public Library and every other page is perforated with the library's stamp. What's more, all the clothes you own (which are now on your back) would not pay for half the books you received from us, even if we could catch you. Yes, Schmaltz, you're a pretty shifty boy. Just make sure you never ask us for any more bargain offers. Your membership is permanently canceled!

A. B. PASKUDNICK, Pres.

P. S.: In case you should repent, you owe us $15.84.

Two Cents Worth
By LARRY BORGER

When the doors were opened everyone began heading for the tables which were designated as being reserved for them with signs reading "Baseball," "Basketball," "Crew," etc.

Upon being seated the athletes were entertained or annoyed (depending upon one's temperament) by a short, jolly fellow hiding behind an accordian. Everyone was supplied with song sheets to entertain themselves while the kitchen attendants searched for the chicken.

The vocal surprise was given by the bowling team who thrilled those present with an unbelievable version of "My Hero." The big disappointment was the inability of the little man with the accordian to locate the swimming team (noted for excellent voices).

About this time the chicken was served. While the chicken was eaten, the athletes and guests were served. This created quite a discussion among those in attendance.

Each of those seated at the tables were given numbers; the odd numbers ate first so as to facilitate breathing while eating.

Following the aliment activity George Swoyer helped digestion no end with his own inimitable brand of humor. The introduction of the dignitaries present was the next on the agenda. Josh Cody of Temple and George Bertelsman of St. Joe's represented two of the more prominent members of the Big Five.

Frank Hoerst began the introduction of the letter winner and everything ran smoothly until the letter "T" in the alphabet was reached and Frank Wetzler dropped the baton.

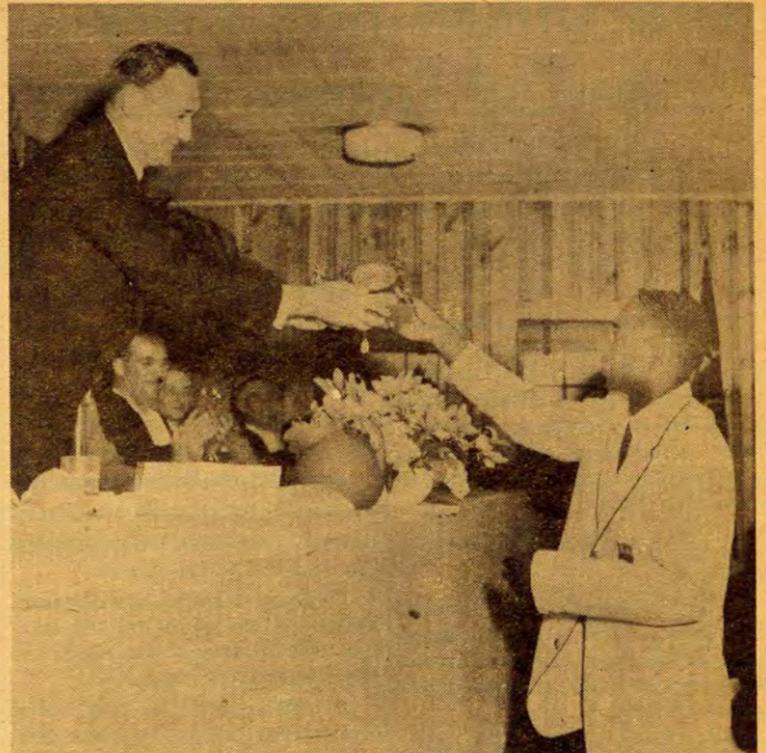

The big distinction between a dual meet and a multi-team affair was once again brought to clear light to the Lancaster set-to of last Saturday.

At the close of the swimming season after beating West Chester in a dual meet rather handily, the MAC swimming championships was a fish of a different color. The Explorers managed to win the MAC, but to do it they had to take eight gold medals to make up for the accumulation of runner-up points the Teachers had totaled.

Half of the story was true for the Blue and Gold thineclads. They managed five firsts to only three for the Hawks, but it was not enough to overcome the continual-mounting of garbage points.

These affairs disprove the old adage that quality is superior to quantity.

Congratulations to Ira Davis who now is accumulating triples at a rate which would make Stan Musial's head spin!

Lewis, Davis Receive Year's Athletic Awards

At the annual athletic banquet held in Leonard Hall last week, the school took time out to honor the athletes who represent La Salle College in the various fields of sports activity.

West Chester KO's LSC Batsmen, 15-6

Sparked by two-run home runs by outfielders Joe Ritter and Jack Wendland, West Chester State Teachers College trounced the Explorer nine, 15-6, on Tuesday of last week.

Mules Cancelled

The LaSalle nine's contest at Muhlenberg last Saturday, was cancelled after three innings of play, with the Mules leading, 6-2.

Fourth Loss

The fracas with the Teachers was the fourth setback for Frank Hoerst's charges, all of which were at the hands of two opponents—Temple and West Chester—who have captured two victories each.

Ritter Homers

West Chester left fielder, Joe Ritter, broke a one-run stalemate in the fourth, when he poked his four bagger with shortstop Cosgrave aboard. LaSalle countered another West Chester run in the fifth with two more tallies, making the count a still-respectable 4-2.

Mullin Loses First

The roof collapsed on starter Bill Mullin when the Teachers banged out five of their 17 hits to net six runs in a seventh inning deluge. Mullin, replaced by Bob Rumer, was charged with the defeat, his second against five wins. West Chester reliever, Jim Pole, was the winner, scattering 11 Explorer hits over six frames. Ed Czerniakowski and Mike Schlacter led the LaSalle attack with two hits each.

Three Games Left

Tomorrow, the Explorers journey to the city line diamond of arch-rival St. Joseph's College, who the LaSalle nine trounced on its home field, 18-5. On Saturday, the Hoerstmen will face Drexel Institute in the last Explorer home game of the season, and will meet Ursinus away next Tuesday in the season's finale.

The coaches announced the letter winners in their respective sports and each stood as his name was mentioned.

The highlight of the evening's activity was the presentation of the President's Award to the outstanding athlete and the Joseph Schmitz Award to the athlete who best represents the high standards of sportsmanship at La Salle College.

These two awards were kept secret until their announcement at the banquet. The President's Award went to Junior track star and our Olympic representative, Ira Davis. Ira accepted the award from Brother Stanislaus with all the modesty which is typical of the lad.

The Joseph Schmitz award was presented to Senior basketball and All-City selection, Alonzo Lewis. Al walked up to accept the award amid the enthusiastic applause of his teammates. Mr. Schmitz made the presentation, himself.

A third award was also given this year. In the words of Brother Daniel Bernian, "It is one which is long overdue." Brother awarded the plaque to Joseph Graham for the unselfish, all-sacrificing assistance which he has given to any and all La Salle activities.

George Swoyer of the Marketing Department was the Master of Ceremonies.

Linkmen Lose To Penn Team

The Explorer linkmen added another link to their winless chain last week as they were edged by a strong Pennsylvania team 17-1. Despite their pedestrian record to date, the morale of the team has remained high and coach Robert Courtney is confident that his swatters will break their streak one of these days.

If the string is to be broken this year it will have to be against a strong aggregation of Mules at Muhlenberg.

Ed Higgins, the La Salle number one linker, has continued his fine play even if in a losing cause.

A Night to Remember

By BERN McCORMICK

In the daylight hours it is called the College cafeteria. But in the formality of dusk the table cloths are broken out and it becomes Leonard Hall and last Wednesday in Leonard Hall the athletes had their banquet.

"Oklahoma!" was still a promise when the combatants filed in—the administration, the athletes and the freeloaders, both invited and otherwise. Bodies were arranged in uncomfortable proximity and in the clamor of seating no one paid much attention to a small sly grinning accordionist who stood and played near the head table.

Grace was offered and the business of eating was essayed. It was typical banquet chow, palatable but unaccessible amid tinfoil and broiled skin. Unfettered by culinary artistry, the peas were eaten first. It was a nice meal.

The unnoticed accordionist by degrees became conspicuous and then obnoxious. Moving from table to table, he persuaded whole platoons of hungry men to rise and sing. "Now the baseball team will sing us a song," said the merry dwarf. And the baseball team did. The rounds were made and the tunes were mumbled and the loudest of these were the bowlers—led by such reknowned bowlers as Jim Sheehan, Ernie Gash and Buzz Kohler.

The boys began to enjoy the musician as the pranksters hit their stride, Murph Szymkowski's engagement was announced for the fifth time in a week. The music maker dedicated "Baby Face" to the little sweepster.

There was a suggestion of perspiration on the brows of the diners by the time the forks were abandoned. Emcee George Swoyer stood up and, with many a jest, introduced the head table and then the people sitting at it. Swoyer threw a few jokes which were so old that they outdated most of the audience and the people who had heard them had forgotten them. They were well received.

The coaches were then called upon to name their lettermen. Most of the mentors read off the names but Frank Wetzler didn't need a list. He mumbled something about Little Earl and Big Earle and Vic and then sat down.

There were more preliminaries before the award time came. Brother Stanislaus and Mr. Joseph Schmitz presented their trophies, which looked strangely alike, and Ira Davis and Al Lewis accepted them humbly. There were no speeches here and none were needed because none disputed the selection.

Puzzlement reigned when Brother Daniel Bernian grabbed the mike and announced a special plaque to a man who over the years

Collegian's Explorer of the Month

West Philadelphia, perhaps, has made one of the most outstanding contributions to La Salle College's sport history in the person of Ira Davis.

A student at both the James Rhodes and Hanna Elementary Schools, Ira furthered his education at Shoemaker Junior High School and finally Overbrook High. At Overbrook this Davis lad played "cadet" basketball for a year and varsity basketball for his last two years. As the chief playmaker for Wilt "the Stilt" Chamberlain, Ira five when they took the public title in 1953 and the city title in 1954. He was also one of the Hill-topper thinclads—running the 100, 220, 440, and participating in the broad jump. Ira was the school champion in each of these events. He was also the city champ in the broad jump and the 220 in his fourth and second years, respectively. Besides all of this, he anchored the championship mile relay team in 1954 and took part in the cross-country events. His leadership abilities were also recognized and he was appointed class delegate.

His abilities on the cinders earned him a full scholarship to La Salle. Ira's accomplishments at La Salle speak well for himself and the college. He holds the school record in the 100, the 220, and the broad jump.

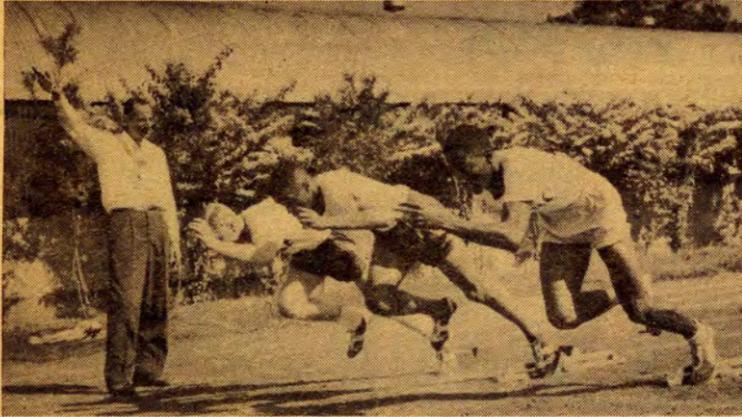

Last summer Ira received international recognition as the USA's representative in the hop, step, and jump, an event in which he holds the Citizen's record and the American record. Ira also became the fifth man to ever win three events in MAC competition. He repeated this feat again in last Saturday's competition at Lancaster. Last year in the IC4A meets, he was the individual high scorer of the meet, as to his proven capacity.

An Accounting major, Ira's future is undecided, but he is very proud to admit his engagement to a certain secretary; Ira says "she's the greatest."

His leadership abilities were also recognized and he was appointed class delegate.

Preping for West Chester

Davis Garners Triple in MAC

The heavy clouds, and light rain that fell did a good job of holding down times and distances in the Middle Atlantic Championship track meet which took place last Saturday, although all times recorded are records as this was the first meet for the newly organized Conference. St. Joe's emerged with the team trophy by amassing 61½ points. LaSalle came in a strong second with 42 points, with West Chester holding third at 22½.

Explorers Take Five Firsts

If any individual honors were to be given, LaSalle's Ira Davis would surely be in line, first in line. Ira did a repeat performance of last year by walking off with three first places. The hundred, two-hundred and the broad jump were the events in which Mr. Davis displayed his talents. Other firsts taken by LaSalle men were Earl Eldridge in the 880 yd. run, Vic Gavin in the 220 yd. low hurdles.

Hawks Qualify 14 Men

St. Joe's went into the finals with a slight edge having placed 14 men at the qualifying heats held on Friday, La Salle was close in this department also by placing 12 men.

Depth Hurts

The prime factor in St. Joe's victory was its depth, although they placed first in only three events they still managed to collect an early lead which no one could touch.

This was sweet revenge for the Hawks as La Salle was the only team able to spoil their undefeated season.

McCormick

(Continued from Page Four) has worked behind the La Salle scene, a man who has been steadfast, loyal and faithful—a man named Joseph Graham. Few knew the name but most knew the face.

Swoyer next summoned "Uncle" Jim Henry and the athletic mogul spoke shortly and sincerely about the finer things of sport. Fair play and cleanness and that sort was his theme. In a paternal voice, Mr. Henry praised the athletes and thanked the coaches and saluted the administration and then thanked everyone he had forgotten and then he moved off, leaving the listeners a little bewildered and wondering if they were quite that deserving.

Armpits were damp and "Oklahoma!" had begun making history when they filed out. They milled around outside of Leonard Hall, snuffing the close night air and deciding where to go for dessert. A rogue started the foul rumor that the Joe Graham lately honored was not the owner of the spa situated a space up Olney Avenue. Eventually little groups broke off and headed for where they wouldn't leave while the flavor lasted.

And then a small solitary figure walked slowly across the lamplit area in front of the library. His step was slow and sad and he carried a case big enough for an accordion. "Fame, why do you fleet so fastly man?" Moving all night in the circle of La Salle sports figures, the little man was recognized by not a soul as one of the greatest sports figures in La Salle history Ken Loeffler.

Down the Line

By JACK McDEVITT

FOR PEOPLE LIKE JOE KIRK and Jim Henry, the 1957 Varsity Banquet was just another milestone, another point of retrospect, another job well done. For the Joe McCauleys and Murphy Szymkowskis it was the last stop. The graduating seniors of the soccer, basketball, crew and rifle squads were together in their official capacities as teammates for the last time.

You could tell by the way they put away the chicken.

Despite the nostalgia, it was a big night for Ira Davis, Frank Wetzler's one-man relay team; for Alonzo Lewis, the old Owl killer; and for George Swoyer, two-time All-American after-dinner heckler.

For the younger guys, who will be back next year for more peas and flowers, it was a slightly less solemn occasion.

Certainly, any pedestrians who might have strolled past picturesque old Leonard Hall in the fading twilight of that last Wednesday would have agreed that the solemnity was loud enough to raise the roof about two inches.

The menu consisted of roasted chicken, freshly-hoed green peas, and a well-built baked potato, with an assortment of exotic desserts, topped off by the aforementioned Swoyer.

The evening's entertainment was highlighted by a duet between Lonesome George and Captain Fleck, which ranked right in there with Alphone and Gaston, and maybe even Dr. Holroyd and the Economics Department.

But Fleck had his gunners with him.

Bob Courtney and his luckless golfers were more or less stashed at the far end between the rifle and baseball teams. While dinner was being served at the other tables, waitresses were cruising by, lifting their butter and rolls (the crew is hungry), and later their coffee, and just as they were getting ready to go after the ice water, Bob Davine observed that life is harsh when you don't win.

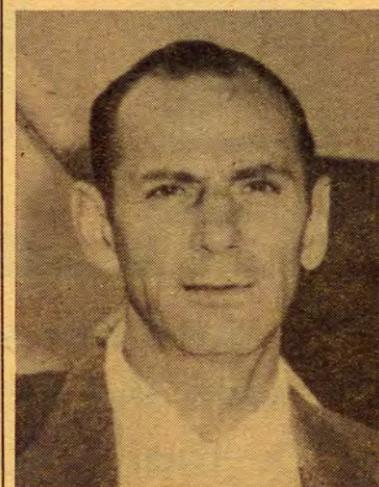

Bob got to talking about his erratic next door neighbor, Firebrand Dick Coulson, retired Collegian copy editor, and athlete pro tem.

"Dick plays just about everything," he commented between hand-fuls of coffee, "from football to pool, and he's a terror with a ping pong paddle. So last summer I got him playing golf for awhile, and he liked the idea and came along until he found out what the clubs would cost him . . . Now he's a pool player again."

The swimmers were singing, led by Larry Borger who was bellowing like a moose on a liferaft, and somebody suggested analyzing the contents of Loud Lawrence's cup. Possibly on the assumption that what's good for the goose is generally fine stuff to keep a party going.

However, nothing came of it, at least not until later in the evening, as Varsity banquets, like Elk banquets and Knights of Columbus banquets, and other things in that gender, have a tendency not so much to break up as simply to move, say across the street, or maybe even around the corner, depending perhaps on your position in relation to the Esquire.

If Kirk's characters were the loudest outfit in the place (and this may have been because they were not particularly accustomed to all being above water at the same time, even if not, as some suspected, completely dry), then Curran's crew had the knife and fork title stowed safely under their belts. Big Tom and his two-legged barrels put the bear hug on the unfortunate chickens in a manner becoming Arabs who have just got off the boat from the desert.

FRANK . . . ate well

Maketa went after one like a man digging in at the draft board; and Old Reliable Jack Galloway had his halfway down before his plate hit the table.

Chef's statistics revealed that the tennis team absorbed the top percentage of rolls, averaging 4.3 per man; and there is some doubt sustained that they actually devoured that many. But then, what could be the motive in smuggling them out of the place; they'd have been stale by next morning, and what use could a tennis team have for a lot of stale rolls?

Frank Wetzler ate well, despite the fact there were just 60 hours between him and the flood from Hawk Hill. But that may have been because Davis was there, and would continue to be there for some time to come.

When it was over everybody piled out of Leonard Hall and stood around laughing it up. They were a little reluctant to leave. Especially the seniors.

Clarence Fuhrman to Play at Spring Dance

By FRANK KELLY

The date of the Eighth Annual Spring Dance is rapidly approaching. It always seems that there is a big time lag between the availability of tickets and the actual night of the affair. The speed with which the dance arrives seems to contradict the latter statement. Don't you be the one to miss this very important social event because of constant procrastination on your part. Purchase your ticket as soon as possible. This will eliminate all possibility of you not attending. You certainly will thank yourself after the dance is over. It has always proven to be one of the top activities of the school year.

Fuhrman to Play

The originator of "Symphonic Jazz," Mr. Clarence Fuhrman, will once again provide the entertainment for the evening. This fine gentleman of the musical world has a long list of achievements which date back to the tender age of fifteen. He started out as a concert pianist, was a Navy bandmaster during World War I, and is Philadelphia's musician with the longest consecutive engagement in radio. Mr. Fuhrman was graduated from the Philadelphia Musical Academy where he was the recipient of two gold medals, one for being the best graduate, and the other as the best alumnus.

As you already know the dance this year is being held at Cannstatter's which is located at Willets and Academy Roads in the Northeast part of the city. The "66" Route runs right near the club on Frankford Avenue. This trackless trolley route leaves the Bridge Street Terminal of the Frankford Elevated at regular intervals. Therefore transportation creates no problem.

Cannstatter's has a fine reputation for conducting successful and enjoyable affairs. The accommodations are well suited for our needs. There is ample parking facilities.

Tickets Still Available

Bill Long '60, Chairman of the Sprince Dance Committee, expects a fine turnout. Tickets are priced very reasonably at $3 per couple and are available from all class representatives and committee members. The price of a ticket can not compare with what the night has to offer. Reserve the date of May 24 for this gala event.

DEADLINE

The program returns for patrons and aides have been coming in gradually, they seem to indicate a spontaneous support, but tonight, May 16, is the deadline for any material that is to appear in the program. The success of the program help to assure the success of the dance. If you have not done your part—do it—tonight!

Last Year's Spring Dance

Ed. Dougherty to Head Next Year's Senior Class

Another milestone in the history of the Evening Division of La Salle College has been reached. On Monday evening, May 6, the class of 1958 met for the purpose of organizing and selecting the men who will lead it during the next school year. The fact that 93 of approximately 120 eligible men attended this enthusiastic gathering indicates that this class should have a most successful year.

The meeting was opened by Walter C. Lance, president of the Student Congress, who attempted to clarify the connection between the Senior Class and the Student Congress. Daniel McGongile, president of the class of 1957, and William Dierkes vice-president, addressed the gathering on the difficulties to be expected, and the experience to be gained.

The highlight of the session was the election of the new officers. The men so honored were: Edward E. Dougherty, president; Albert L. Barringer, vice-president; H. Richards Yarp, secretary, and John F. Dougherty, treasurer.

Among the activities that the new officers will be responsible for are: participation in the year book, the Annual Senior Stag and the Annual Senior Dinner Dance. They will have to determine what is best for the members of their class and try to surpass the successes of previous senior classes. All who are acquainted with the newly elected officers know that they are men of the highest calibre and that the Class of 1958 should record a proud page in the annals of La Salle.

Barringer & Society Honored By Phila. Chapter of S.A.M.

At a monthly meeting of the Philadelphia Chapter of the Society for the Advancement of Management, on May 7, Albert Barringer was presented a plaque for outstanding performance. The plaque was given in recognition of his leadership as President of the La Salle College Chapter of S.A.M. for 1956-57 which enabled this chapter to surpass all other college and university chapters of S.A.M. of Philadelphia, in performance. The well attended dinner meeting with management representatives from industry and government was further treated to an interesting discussion on the subject, "Through the Looking Glass," presenting Management's Appraisal of Union Responsibilities and Union's

Appraisal of Management's Responsibilities by Attorneys John Hippel and S. Harry Garland. Barringer stated in accepting the award that his chapter, being a neophyte in S.A.M. competition as an independent chapter, least expected to surpass groups at the University of Pennsylvania and Temple University in their initial planning. The Chapter, he stated, has been so motivated by a driving incentive to plan a successful program which would be highly beneficial to the entire membership. During the past year, the membership was increased over 100 per cent.

ED Chapter Also Honored

A further note of esteem was given to the Evening Division Chapter of the Society for the Advancement of Management at the same meeting. Although only in the first year with recognition as a separate chapter, the group has walked off with the coveted Regional Performance Award. Our Evening Division Chapter was in direct competition with the University of Pennsylvania, St. Joseph's College, Villanova University, Drexel, Temple and La Salle Day Division. A most impressive showing to say the least. In National competition the chapter at present is in 29th place out of 104 reporting chapters.

S. C. President's Message

The reasons for indifferences among the students, the benefits to be derived from the activities, and a listing of the organizations on campus have been given you in my last two articles. As you realize, these activities are run by students, however, there is one group of students who are almost forgotten. Yet, they comprise the very foundation of our extra-curricular program. These men are elected directly by the students, report directly to the students, and act for the students. Some few men jest at the positions—feel that it is too much bother—think that it is not important. The job that we are speaking of is that of Student Representative.

You may be one of those students who feels that the job is not important. You may not only decline to serve your fellow students, but you may not support your representative or not even listen to him. What are you doing? You could say that you are cutting off your nose to spite your face. You are hitting at the very foundation of the activities, throwing out an ideal, representative system, failing to support your own school—your own activities. This may be a strong way of expressing how important the representative is, yet when you review his functions and duties, you cannot overlook this aspect of our program.

There are four major duties of the Student Representative. They are all of about equal importance, his failure to fulfill any one of these duties or responsibilities results in a breakdown in our program. First, the representative acts as a mediator between the students and the administration through the Congress. He can bring forward any problem, criticism, or suggestion concerning student welfare and if the group feels it is worthy, it is brought to the attention of the administration in a formal manner.

Second, the representative acts on any business which may be brought to the floor of the Congress. These matters include those of student welfare, any problem in connection with the other student organizations or groups, or any other matter which may be of interest or importance to the students of La Salle College. It is here that the students can have a voice in almost anything that happens in the school.

Third, the representative supports and fosters all activities of the Congress. At this point, the representative has a voice in what activities are held and how they are conducted. He then has the responsibility of selling both the religious and social affairs which are decided to be the best for the entire student body.

Fourth, the representative reports to the student body on all meetings and activities of the Congress. This is where we receive support from the Faculty, for they allow the men to give a report during the class period. This procedure is followed because of the lack of time in the evening division and because the faculty recognize the inherent value of the activities to both the students and the school.

The preceding exposition outlines the importance of the student representative, it also illustrates the importance of the Student Congress and how this group operates. One other point that should be made is that the details of all the preceding activities and problems are handled by various committees in the Congress. The committees are open to any representative or to any student of the College. Well, the job of student representative has been outlined to you, are you going to make the position function as it should?

WALTER C. LANCE
President, Student Congress
