The Contributors

Katrina Ross A. Tan is an assistant professor at the Department of Humanities in UP Los Baños. She obtained her PhD degree from the School of Media, Film and Journalism at Monash University in Melbourne, Australia. Her thesis examined the critical imaginary and alternative knowledge and histories offered by Filipino regional cinema. She has published book chapters, articles, and essays on regional cinema, women's representation, and star studies.

Mary Anne Mallari teaches at the University of Santo Tomas. She recently obtained her Ph.D. in Literature degree at De La Salle University, with regional films as the focus of her dissertation. She also published journal articles and book reviews in Plaridel, Humanities Diliman, and Pelikula. Anne was a fellow at the National University of Singapore – Asia Research Institute Asian Graduate Student Fellowship in 2021 and an active member of the Society of Filipino Film Archivists (SOFIA) and Southeast Asian Media Studies Association (SEAMSA). Her research interests include film and literary studies, postcolonial theory, and criticism.

Onnah Pierre P. Talle is a faculty member of Mindanao State University—Iligan Institute of Technology in Iligan City. She is a Ph.D. in Literature student at De La Salle University-Manila. Her current research focuses on the use of autotheory and auteur theory to examine the creative and scholarly works of the director and founder of MSU-IIT's Integrated Performing Arts Guild, Steven Patrick Fernandez and his Principle of Transcreation. Her research interests include culture, literature, folklore, and women in folklore.

Michael Francis C. Andrada teaches Philippine literature, Philippine Studies and Malikhaing Pagsulat

at the University of the Philippines Diliman. Mykel is a cultural worker for the Surian ng Sining, Inc. (SUSI) where he edits its official publication, Tapuzine. Corresponds via mcandrada@up.edu.ph.

Raniela E. Barbaza grew up in multiple languages and cultures. She was born in San Pablo City, Laguna but spent most of her childhood in Bikol - in Daraga, Albay; Ligao, Albay; and in Naga City, Camarines Sur. She grew up listening to her Tagalog mother's stories of sipay, kapre, tikbalang but devoured biblical stories and fairy tales in school. She now teaches Philippine literature at the University of the Philippines in Diliman, Quezon City.

Rina Angela Corpus is a movement artist, dance scholar and poet coming from a lifelong interest in the arts, spirituality and sacred narratives in culture. She is an Assistant Professor of Art Studies at the University of the Philippines and finished her PhD Dance at the University of Melbourne. Her research focuses on meditative movement using Kristin Jackson and her works as case studies. She studied and performed with the Quezon City Ballet, trained in Limon dance in New York, nihonbuyo in Kyoto, and Qigong in Manila and Australia; published two books in dance, Defiant Daughters Dancing Slippages (UP Press, 2007) and Dance and Other Slippages (UP Press, 2013), and widely written essays on culture and dance. Rina's works have been presented at the Melbourne Fringe Festival, BOLD Festival-Australia, and Luminous Frames Festival, Denmark.

Ramon Guillermo is a Professor at the Center for International Studies (CIS) at the University of the Philippines Diliman. His current research projects are on the transmission, dissemination, circulation, reception, and translation of radical texts and ideas in Southeast Asia using techniques and approaches from translation studies and digital humanities.
