Ex-Stugo President sounds off

The following is a statement by Cynthia Vaughan, who resigned from the office of Student Government President last Thursday.

"I, Cynthia Vaughan, do hereby resign from the office of Student Government President, because I have allowed its responsibilities, bureaucracy, and frustrations to overcome my personal, educational, social and working life."

When I was sworn into office, I pledged to "develop a sound and just student organization" by reflecting "the desires and interests of my constituency." Overlooking the fact that my constituency was about 120 people out of 7000, my constitutional responsibilities as President included maintaining four hours in the office each week, conducting Executive Board meetings, appointing various senate positions, and attending the Board of Trustees meetings, along with fulfilling the general duties of all Student Government members.

I found out the hard way that what I pledged to do could not necessarily be accomplished through my given responsibilities unless I spend a great deal more time in the office than four hours a week. That's when my troubles began. Meeting with concerned students, reading bundles of mail, and attending a number of college committee or board meeting kept me wrapped up about 15 to 20 hours every week. Take a good look at my responsibilities. They're multiple technicalities, enough to keep a president so tied down with details that she or he could never find time to improve upon the organization itself or begin to reflect the desires of the students that she's supposed to represent. For instance, the materials associated with the Board of Trustees' position is enough to keep any student busy four hours a week, let alone fulfill presidential responsibilities as well! One of the last acts I made as President was to try to delegate the responsibility to one of the senate's equally concerned but less occupied Senators. As long as the position is non-voting it doesn't matter which student government member sits in. It's a token position the student voice has no power on the Board, according to a state law (All Board members must run for office in public elections.) There is more to the bureaucracy-I was kept so busy with such trivial questions as "Isn't it time for the senate to approve funds to buy more coffee?" and "The sign machine is running out of ink; what is the senate going to do about it?" that I could hardly sift through the mundane to find the important.

Furthermore, the Student Government is tied so strongly to tradition the changing anything usually involves a great deal of confusion. For me to distinguish between tradition and policy means referring repeatedly to the eighty-plus page "Student Activities Manual" and the constitution, both of which were created when the Parkland situation was quite different; they are both obsolete and cannot be readily applied to our questions today. In some cases they contradict "higher-up" standards, ie. those established in the "Policy and Procedures Manual," the faculty/administrative bible. Since students rights are the least significant here on campus, we are often the ones "mistaken".

Perhaps what I am most discouraged with is the tight control by the Administration on Student Government. We may have a sizeable budget, but of what use is it if funds can be withdrawn without our approval? And why must we have our actions and expenditures approved "upstairs" so frequently? If we are the voice of the students, run by students, why should the administration's opinion have any control over us?

My original objectives to establish an effective communications system between the students and faculty, and the students and administration, have bit the dust in the face of reality. That hurts!

First of all, I must concede that a majority of the students here aren't worth representing. By that, I mean that they have interests in classes, and classes only, on campus. I found myself unable to answer the question posed in the editorial by Mark Sterkel in last week's Prospectus; why should a handful of students persevere, trying to act on all the issues that should be the concerns of each student? As Mr. Sterkel points out, our alternative is to be led, as a flock of sheep, by the administrative shepherd. I have had enough, I can not try any longer to represent the students as a respectable body when they do not respect themselves enough as individual students to do anything more than complain. They are doing well to preserve their stereotyped image of unconcerned, flighty and irresponsible students. Many people feel that I am adding to that stereotype by resigning when "the fire got too hot", but this attitude is that of those who are ignorant of the entire situation. I am making a much stronger statement with my resignation: I was concerned, and dedicated to the students, yet I found the means of expressing myself, ie. through Student Government, to impede rather than encourage that concern. Are there more than just that small handful of hopeful students still persevering who will notice that I have gone? I think not, and that is the whole paradox.

As far as the efforts of both the faculty and administration go to contributing towards a better communication, I have seen minimal concern. I am aware that the Student Government has a history of "sand box" political practices, yet I am also aware that no faculty member nor administrator, (our advisor excepted), attended a Senate or Executive Board meeting. We have been called upon to donate funds, and lend support to a few college committees. Yet these relatively unconcerned bodies, The PCA and administration, are the only means of continuity from year to year that I must rely upon to learn of the goals, failures, accomplishments and recommendations of past governments. Seems like a no-win situation, doesn't it?

I suppose that my frustrations boil down to these: the present structure of Student Government, and the attitude of the Parkland people (students and staff alike) are not supportive of a respectable student voice on campus. "You can't get there from here", so they say.

I resigned because the Presidency tied me down to busy work, and kept me away from initiating the changes that I now see as necessary to improve the Parkland situation. I plan to continue to support the Student Government by acting as simply a concerned student with some new ideas. I am a communications major, not a political science or sociology major, and there are other, more worthwhile experiences suitable for my personal growth here at Parkland. I allowed my dedication to Student Government, along with my inability to delegate authority, to justify my skipping classes and studies, missing work, and letting my personal relationships go to hell.

I am not ashamed to say that I value the stability of my life before I value the stability of the Parkland College student government. I am sorry that I never learned how to balance them both.

Hardee's celebrating official Grand Opening

Hardee's at Parkland is celebrating its official Grand Opening this week with a big give-away and a big food special, according to Lars Sacquitne, Hardee's Manager.

After slightly more than two months of business, Sacquitne can sit back and smile for the Grand Opening because things are going well.

"Business has been real good," he said. "Really better than expected, in fact."

Hardee's is giving away a long list of prizes, including a Puch moped, a Peugeot ten-speed bicycle, a huge stuffed teddy bear, and four Texas Instrument calculators.

Also to celebrate their Grand Opening, Hardee's is running a special deal on Big Roast Beefs—two for $1.99.

The drawing for prizes will be Friday at 3:30 pm, and registration blanks may still be filled out.

Hardee's at Parkland is only the twelfth Hardee's restaurant in the nation that has been opened on a college campus. The Hardee's on campus restaurants stand as a separate division from those that are not on campuses, and most are designed in the cafeteria style where the customer picks out his own food from a serving line.

However, because of limited space at Parkland, the Hardee's was set up in an experimental style much like that of the restaurants off campus. The only major problem that has resulted from the new style and the limited space are long waiting lines around noon. Sacquitne says that they are considering alternatives that could solve the problem of long lines.

Hardee's has created a good job opportunity for many Parkland students. About two-thirds of those presently employed are at least part-time students.

Parkland's Hardee's opens at 7:30 am and closes at 8:30 pm.

Chicago shopping trip planned for December 6

For all of you Christmas shoppers at Parkland, you will have a great chance to buy whatever you need on the Parkland College Holiday Shopping Trip that goes up to Chicago's Woodfield Shopping Center on Saturday, December 6.

The Woodfield Shopping Center, which is the largest self-contained shopping center in the world, has three levels with such well-known stores as Sears, Penney's, Lord and Taylor's, and Marshall Field's, along with 200 other stores.

The bus that will take the shoppers up to Chicago will leave at 7 a.m. at the college's Circle drive entrance on the East side of the campus, and will return at approximately 9 p.m.

Students will be charged $5 for the trip, and faculty, college staff, and guests may attend for $10.

If anyone is interested in participating in this trip to the extravagant Woodfield Shopping Center, contact the Office of Student Activities at 351-2264, or come to the College center in Room X-153.

For anyone interested in the trip, the buses will arrive at the center at approximately 10 a.m. and all passengers will depart at the main entrance of the shopping center.

After the day of shopping, the buses will depart at EXACTLY 6 p.m. at the same location, and will then return to Champaign "non-stop" at approximately 9 p.m.

The Commodores enjoy their work

by Chris Slack

C-U is number one according to the Commodores after they finished their performance. "You guys are the best audience we've had so far," said Walter Orange, their flashy drummer lead singer.

If anybody in the crowd didn't have a good time last Friday night at the Assembly Hall, it is their own fault. The Commodores were SUPER! They mixed perfectly their upbeat songs with their famous love tunes to get the crowd in that certain mood for later things to come.

What more could anyone ask for! The Commodores displayed the versatility that has been their trademark for years. Lead singer Lionel Ritchie can do much more than sing. He can also play the piano with that perfect touch and he went up on their flashily-lit stage and played the drums as Walter Orange sang "Brick House." Orange got the ladies going with this song by designating the night as "Ladies Night."

As the night progressed, the group seemed to get looser while playing hit after hit.

Ritchie continued with "Sail On"—a hit song of a year ago. According to Ritchie, the Commodores had just come off a three-day vacation and they promised a good concert when they started. They are good at keeping promises.

The other members of the group are Ronald Lapread, who is probably their best guitarist. He gave numerous performances with his guitar.

William King can do just about everything. He roams around the stage and plays everything in sight. King keeps everybody loose with his "loosey-goosey" style.

Their other guitarist, Thomas McClary, kept in touch with the audience with his guitar performance of "I'm Easy."

The keyboard master is Milan Williams. He is the author of such hits as "Wonderland" off of their Midnight Magic album, and "Machine Gun."

This group is truly one of a kind. They're not on this North American tour for the money, but to simply meet the people that they encounter. Throughout the concert, the Commodores made sure to stay in close touch with their fans. During Ritchie's series of love songs, which included "Three Times a Lady," "Still," and the title song off their last album, "Heroes", he made a point of contacting the crowd and seeing their reaction towards him. He liked what he saw because he loved talking about those "lovers" in AA section of the Assembly Hall.

In their latest album, which is called "Heroes," the Commodores added a new dimension to their many talents. They have recorded some gospel music on the album and this is where the crowd could really feel the total impact the Commodores gave on the huge Assembly Hall crowd. With the help of the East St. Louis gospel singers, Lionel Ritchie led a beautiful rendition of "Jesus Is Love," and before the end of the concert, Ritchie gave the U of I and Central Illinois some things to remember from the Commodores.

"We had to let you leave with something in your hearts and minds. We've got a lot of problems in this world and we're always looking for something new to solve the problems of the world. But there is one thing that we overlook at times. What the world needs now is love, and it starts with one idea. The U of I is the starting point. It starts with you. You guys are our future hopes, we need to come together and face problems of this world, and if we do, we'll lick this problem. We must have faith."

I don't know about anyone else, but I have faith. The Commodores are THE example of playing their music for the fun of it. Many groups who go on tours simply go out, sing a few songs, and split. The Commodores are different. Of course, they do it for the money, but they enjoy what they are doing, and they enjoy performing before a crowd.

Well, from the many standing ovations from the crowd, it looked like the Commodores accomplished what they set out to do. They enjoyed enjoying the crowd.

Experts talk at solar energy conference

Greater consumer and government interest in both active and passive solar energy home designs has created a special demand in the housing industry. In response to this public need, Parkland College sponsored a two-day statewide conference on Cost Effective Solar Solutions for professionals in the housing industry. On November 7 and 8, contractors/developers, architects, survey-engineers, lenders, appraisers, realtors, and elected and appointed government officials attended the interdisciplinary conference which emphasized solar applications that are now effective in Illinois.

Ray Sterling, Director of the Underground Space Center at the University of Minnesota, spoke on "Earth Sheltering." Dr. Sterling is the author of Earth Shelter Housing Designing, and the leading U.S. authority in this field.

The individual responsible for the complete design and layout of the only totally solar community, Bob Selby, spoke on the design and development of solar communities. Selby is with Hawkweed Design Group Ltd., Soldiers Grove, Wisconsin.

Among other experts who made presentations at the conference was Bruce Green, staff energy planner for the Community and Consumer Resource Branch of the Solar Energy Research Institute, Golden, Colorado. "Regional Solutions and Grant Opportunities" was the topic of David Pogany, passive program manager for Mid-American Solar Energy Complex, Bloomington, Minnesota.

Both active and passive solar design, as well as active domestic solar hot water technologies were discussed at the conference. Participants enjoyed a tour of solar homes demonstrating passive solar design, hybrid passive design and hybrid earth bermed passive design.

Home Federal Savings and Loan Association of Rockford, Illinois, has pioneered in the area of lowered lending rates for buyers of energy efficient homes. Vice President of Home Federal Savings and Loan, Jim Moore, helped initiate and implement their Energy Efficient Home Program which offers special lending rates to those home buyers whose home meets their energy efficiency criteria. Moore has participated in numerous Solar Workshops for the Financial Community sponsored by the U.S. Department of Energy. At the conference Moore discussed financial incentives for builders and owners of solar homes.

Two University of Illinois professors were among the speakers. Charles Bond, professor of Aeronautical and Astronautical Engineering who developed an introductory course in solar energy under a grant from the Solar Energy Research Institute, gave the opening presentation at the conference: "Overview of Renewable Energy—The Good News." Walter Lewis, professor of Architecture gave a "Solar Summary" at the conclusion of the meeting.

Other Central Illinois professionals who spoke at the conference included Tim Stortzum, Denny Micheal Anderson, Larry Tucker, Phil Rogers, Rob Gorham, and Carl Hill, all of Champaign; and Allen Elrod, Illinois Institute of Natural Resources, Springfield.

"Marriage: The Radical Lifestyle" was first program from Parkland Newman Club

The Parkland College Newman Club held its first program of the semester last Tuesday, November 11, with a presentation entitled "Marriage: The Radical Lifestyle." Fr. William Watson, from the Newman Foundation on the University of Illinois campus, was the guest speaker.

Newman Club's next scheduled program for interested Parkland students and staff will be on Tuesday, December 2. Fr. Don Pickell will speak on "The Collapsing Church" at 11:30 a.m. in X117. All students, but especially Catholic students, are encouraged to attend.

Monday, December 8 Fr. Joseph will conduct mass on Parkland's campus in X218 at 12 noon for the feast of the Immaculate Conception.

Newman is an organization on college campuses nationwide, primarily for Catholic students, but other students are welcome as well.

For more information contact Maria Dowd in the Instructional Materials Center in L163 or call 397 on campus.

Celebration for Jewish students

All Jewish students enrolled at Parkland College this Fall are invited to attend a family celebration at the home of Mary Lou Brotherson, a Parkland faculty member. The festivities will begin at 7:30 P.M. on Wednesday evening Dec. 3, 1980 at the Brotherson home. The Chanukah lights will be kindled and latkes will be served. Music of the season is also planned and all guitarists are urged to bring their music for the celebration. Please R.S.V.P. by December 1, 1980 by calling Mrs. Brotherson or her secretary at Ext. 404.

Humane Society schedules annual Christmas Bazaar

The Champaign County Humane Society's annual Christmas Bazaar and Bake Sale will be Saturday, November 22 at the Urbana Civic Center from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Popular hand-crafted gift selections featured at the bazaar will include macrame, ceramics, tote bags, spice ropes, pillows, stained glass ornaments for window or tree decorations, quilted and embroidered items and place mats.

Calendars, posters, stationery, greeting cards and candles will also be sold, as well as pet treats and grooming supplies and children's toys.

Shoppers will be able to relax in the coffee shop and enjoy some of the baked goods right on the spot and they can bring home their choice from the cakes, candies, coffee cakes, specialty breads and rolls.

A $25 door prize will be awarded again this year.

The holiday bazaar is the local Humane Society's major fund raiser for the year. All profits benefit the building and education funds and work at the animal shelter in Bondville.

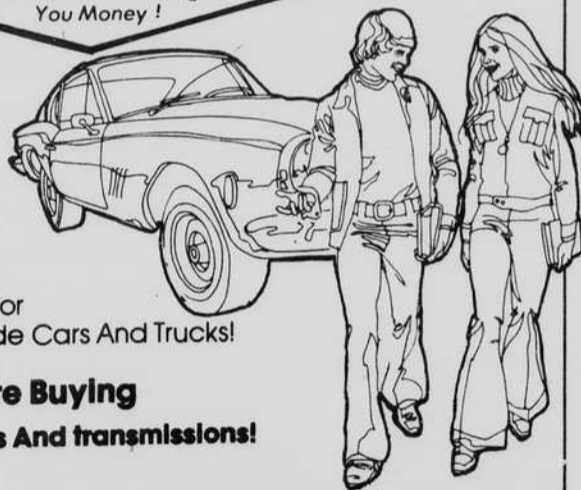

Co-chairmen for the Christmas Bazaar and Bake Sale are Connie Wright and Dee Moore. They are assisted by many volunteers who have spent months plying their artistic and needlework skills. Alan Kurtz, president of the Champaign County Humane Society, is acting in advisory capacity.

WHAT COULD THE ARMY POSSIBLY OFFER A BRIGHT PERSON LIKE YOU?

Drop your guard for a minute.

Even though you're in a two-year college right now, there are many aspects of the Army you might find very attractive. Maybe even irresistible.

See for yourself.

ROTC SCHOLARSHIPS

If you're thinking of eventually going to a four-year college, it's not too early to start thinking about an ROTC scholarship.

There are 2-year and even 1-year ROTC scholarships available.

They cover tuition, books, and lab fees. Plus $100 a month living allowance. Naturally, they're very competitive. Because besides helping you towards your bachelor's degree, an ROTC scholarship helps you towards the gold bars of an Army Officer. It's worth looking into.

WINGS & A CHOPPER

With two years of college under your belt, you can get preferential consideration for Warrant Officer Flight Training.

If you pass all the tests and qualify, you'll go through 40 weeks of rigorous and valuable training.

You'll earn the distinctive bars of a warrant officer and the silver wings of an Army aviator. You'll have at least 175 hours of flight instruction, 40 hours with a flight simulator, 4 weeks night qualification, and enough classroom work in aerodynamics, meteorology and aerial navigation to last a lifetime.

The result is a rewarding, responsible and prestigious position as an Army helicopter pilot.

STRIPES FROM THE START

What you've learned in college has already earned you a promotion in the Army.

It's true. If you join the Army with two years of college, you can start two pay grades higher. Instead of being an E-1 with an empty sleeve, you can come in as E-3 with stripes.

It means about $60 more a month in your paycheck. And a lot more opportunity in the long run. Since you'll be literally wearing your education on your sleeve, your talents won't go unnoticed by your superiors.

And starting out right can really help you make the most of the Army.

A BONUS FOR PART-TIME WORK

You can get a $1,500 bonus just for enlisting in some Army Reserve units. Or up to $2,000 in educational benefits.

You also get paid for your Reserve duty. It comes out to about $1,000 a year for 16 hours a month and two weeks annual training.

And there's a special program that lets you fit your Army Reserve active duty around your school schedule.

It's something to consider. Because even if you went to a two-year college because it was less expensive than a four-year college, you know by now that it still isn't cheap.

A CHANCE TO GO ON WITH COLLEGE

If you're thinking you might even go further with your college education, the Army can help there, too.

A few years in the Army can help you get not only the money for tuition, but also the maturity to use it wisely.

The Army has a program in which money you save for college is matched two-for-one by the government. Then, if you qualify, generous bonuses are added to that.

So 2 years of service can get you up to $7,400 for college, 3 years up to $12,100, and 4 years up to $14,100. In addition, bonuses up to $3,000 are available for certain 4-year enlistments in selected skills.

Add in all the experience and maturity you can get, and you can see how the Army can send you back to college a richer person in more ways than one.

We hope these Army opportunities have intrigued you as well as surprised you.

Because there is indeed a lot the Army can offer a bright person like you.

Cobras upend Lincoln in Home opener

by Chris Slack

A balanced scoring attack, along with a rebounding edge gave the Parkland Cobras men's basketball team a convincing 67-53 win over Lincoln yesterday at the Parkland Gym. Lincoln had reached the national tournament last year, and had high hopes going into this game, but the Cobras humbled them just a bit with a very impressive victory.

The Cobras had four players who scored in double figures. Dave Jensen led all scorers with 14 points, all of them coming in the first half with some dead-eye outside shooting. Russell Pratt had a spectacular second-half coming off the bench and wound up with 12 points. Pratt also played very sticky defense on Lincoln's top scorer Julius Poinsette, who was held to just 14 points in 15 attempts at the basket.

Parkland never trailed in the game, but there were times when Lincoln would close the gap and stay within striking distance. Lincoln seemingly had the momentum many times in the game, but they let it slip away with turnovers and fouls that gave the Cobras too many opportunities to break the game open and they finally did.

In the first-half, Lincoln could do nothing because of a tough pressure defense that Parkland employed. At one time in the first half, the score was 27-16 as Dave Jensen consistently connected on 15 foot jumpers from the side, but eight quick points by the talented Poinsette closed the margin to 35-30 with two minutes remaining. Parkland held them scoreless the rest of the way and led 39-30 at halftime.

The second half started very slowly as Lincoln came out with a zone defense. Parkland is more of a man-to-man oriented offense so tried to draw them out by stalling the ball. But, in the process, the Cobras started turning the ball over too much. After Parkland took a 43-32 lead on a nifty Jensen to Jay Meyer lay-in, the offense sputtered which enabled Lincoln to close the gap to 45-42. From then on, however, Russell Pratt took over and scored 10 points in the last 10 minutes of the game, plus Lincoln lost their two best players in Poinsette, and Fred Watkins because of fouls.

Before Lincoln realized it, they were down 60-44 after Dana Dunson made a driving 3-point play that virtually put the game out of reach. Lincoln tried, but the Cobras defense continually staved them off every time and cruised in for the win.

6-5 Freshman Greg Havlin dominated the boards with 12 rebounds and Jay Meyer pulled down seven caroms to go along with his 11 points.

The Cobras are now 3-1 on the year with a tournament championship under their belt, while Lincoln slips to 1-1.

Parkland will not see any more action until they play in the DuPage Tournament during Thanksgiving vacation. They will then host Richland College of Decatur and John Logan College in early December.

Cobras win Invitational

by Chris Slack

The Parkland Cobras basketball team opened their season last weekend in fine fashion as they won the Olney Invitational tournament. They were 2-1 in the tournament and were declared the winners on the basis of point differential in the games they played.

After losing to Olney last Friday, 69-64, they bounced back to beat Allegany College of Maryland 79-64 in the afternoon. They jumped out to a big lead in the first half and Allegany could never rebound from the big deficit. Dana Dunson, who was named the most valuable player of the tourney, scored 36 points in the game. Dunson was 17-32 from the field in the game and was clearly the difference. Other double figure scorers were Greg Havelin with 11 points, and Jay Meyer with 13 points.

Then in the final game the Cobras came back from a 33-31 deficit at halftime to beat Kaskaskia by the score of 85-68. Dunson was the star again as he handed out 15 assists and scored 11 points. The leading scorer was Havelin with 20 points, while Russell Pratt and Jay Meyer scored 14 and 12 respectively. Dave Jensen added 14 to a balanced attack.

Dunson scored 60 points in the tournament and he was the obvious choice for the MVP. Greg Havelin also had a good tournament as he scored a total of 48 points. Jay Meyer used his bulk to pull down 10 rebounds in the Allegany match-up while Havelin added nine.

Howarter wins Fast Freddy

As I continue my consistent prognosticating, there was another contestant go undefeated in the Fast Freddy Contest. Dean Howarter was a perfect 9-0 excluding the tie-breaker. Come in to Room X-155 and pick up your $5.

While Dean cruised along, I managed a very respectable 7-3. That now pushes my overall record to 72-38. Not bad at all! I'm beginning to get a little confidence, so Look Out!

Last weekend's action ended many seasons for teams in the NCAA and NFL.

In NCAA play, Indiana edged Illinois, although Dave Wilson did nothing to hurt his Heisman Trophy chances. To be honest, Wilson has a very slim chance of capturing the Heisman because of his problems with the Big 10, and also because of the team he was with. Though Illinois finished only 3-7-1, there was that little flicker of hope for the years to come as Coach Mike White gave the U of I something to look forward to in football.

Michigan easily handled Purdue, 26-0 as sophomore sensation Anthony Carter caught two touchdown passes. Oklahoma beat Missouri 17-7 and Pittsburgh rolled over Army, 45-7.

In the game that was killed as our exciting contest, it was everything but; Notre Dame beat Alabama, 7-0 to gain a berth to the Sugar Bowl.

In the NFL, the Bears came close again but no cigar. Earl Campbell was too much. He gained over 200 yards for the third time this year in leading the Oilers to a 10-6 win. The Campbell vs. Payton matchup was a very good one. Payton rolled up over 120 yards as he proved to everybody that he is one of the finer all-purpose running backs in the NFL.

The Los Angeles Rams defense came alive and thwarted New England 17-14, while Baltimore barely hung on to bear the riddled Detroit Lions by the score of 10-9.

The Minnesota Vikings offense has come alive especially after a 38-30 beating of Tampa Bay. Despite a spectacular 485 yard passing day for Doug Williams, the Vikings pulled even with the Lions at 6-5 in the NFC Central.

Pittsburgh always seems to get that big win when they need it. Terry Bradshaw and Lynn Swann returned to their old form and lead the Steelers to a 16-13 win over Cleveland as Bradshaw tossed the winning pass to Swann with just 11 left.

Well, I said last week was the toughest. I now take that back. This week will be the toughest of any weeks. There are some classic match-ups. So you contestants get that ESP operating.

Anda, McGarry named to state All-Tourney team

Lori Anda and Carol McGarry, members of the women's volleyball team, have been named to the state all-tournament team. Their selections were based on coaches voting for players of opposing teams and twelve players were chosen from 16 teams.

Anda, a sophomore, was a setter and hitter and started in every contest played this year. She has been invited to try out at the University of Debuque this coming weekend for a setting position on their team.

McGarry, a freshman, was most effective this year as a hitter and blocker. At 6 ft., she shut down the opposing teams top hitters repeatedly and promises to make her presence felt even more next year.

The Steelers are back

Buffalo vs Pittsburgh

Offense: Terry Bradshaw finally showed his old form in the second-half last week against the Browns while Franco Harris returned to the Steeler offense. Joe Cribbs is Buffalo's all-purpose player. He catches passes, runs the ball well, and scores many touchdowns. He does it all for the Bills. Buffalo's offense must go with Joe Ferguson. He has to have a good passing game to beat the Steelers defense, who revived themselves against Cleveland.

Edge: Steelers.

Defense: The Steelers defense is still struggling, but with Jack Lambert back in action, the Steelers played more inspired defense last week. Buffalo's defense is second in the AFC. Enough said there.

Edge: Buffalo, although the Steelers still have that potential.

Game Edge: I'll go with Pittsburgh. It's going to be very close. Steelers, 23-21.

Oakland vs. Philadelphia

Offense: Jim Plunkett is back. It's going to be difficult for Dan Pastorini to win his job back. The Raiders also have a fine running attack as Mark Van Eeghen and Kenny King complement each other perfectly.

The Eagles have the top rated quarterback in the NFL in Ron Jaworski. They also have one of the better wide receivers with Harold Carmichael. Philadelphia has dominated everybody this year, and they are up a big lead in the NFC Eastern Division.

Edge: Slight edge to the Eagles.

Defense: The Eagles defense is the best in the NFL. What more can you say about that. Only the Saints have been able to move on them all year as Philadelphia has great balance in every phase of the defensive plan.

Oakland. Well they have guts! They will challenge you anywhere, anytime. Never take the Raiders lightly because they will hurt you in more ways than one.

Edge: Eagles.

Game Edge: I'm going to go with an upset. The Eagles seem to be primed for an upset. Oakland, 20-17.

Chicago vs Atlanta

Offense: The Falcons are scrappy. Steve Bartkowski is having his best year ever passing. He also has a very good running duo with William Andrews and Lynn Cain in the Top 10 on the NFL rushing charts.

The Bears are going to have to find a way to spring Walter Payton. If Payton goes, the Bears will win this game. They need to mix the pass and run. With Vince Evans, the Bears can keep defenses more honest. Don't underestimate the Bears offense.

Defense: These two teams are very similar. They blitz quite a bit and take a lot of chances on defense. The Bears pass defense is a little better than the Falcons'. But, overall these two teams are evenly matched.

Game Edge: I'll take a chance and go with the Bears, 24-20.

Other games:

USC 27 UCLA 17
 Baylor 14 Texas 13
 Michigan 16 Ohio State 14
 Nebraska 20 Oklahoma 13
