Survival hints for students

Student Offices

The objective of Parkland College is to establish a well-rounded educational experience for all or the students of the College. In fulfilling this obligation, the College has made available office areas and work areas for student organizations.

These areas are established for the operation of all student activities including government, campus organizations, and student publications. Within the College Center there are specific offices and work areas for Student Government and Election Board-X160, all campus organizations, Inter-Organizational Council and Intramurals-X159, College newspaper and student literary magazine-X155, and other related student functions.

In addition, the Activities Office (X153) offers the opportunity for students to become better acquainted with student activities. This is the place for students to sign-up for organizations; become a member of the student newspaper, literary magazine, or daily news bulletin; leave a message for a specific organization or a member of the organization; have an organizational meeting for the establishment of a new organization; or discuss any other interest-need-goal of the student body.

Counseling Services

All Parkland students are encouraged to make use of the College's professional counseling staff. The counseling department offices are located on the second floor above Admissions (X251).

Parkland's counseling department offers a wide range of services. Counselors are available to discuss students' educational and vocational plans and goals, as well as any personal problems students may have.

The Career Development Center is an essential aspect of Parkland's counseling service. Students may walk in at any time to see a counselor or just browse through the large collection of occupational

Handicapped Parking Permit Guidelines

The following guidelines were established in order to handle special parking requests. Handicapped conditions that do not require a physician's certificate:

1. Obvious and permanent disabilities; examples: Those in a wheelchair and lower limb amputees.

2. Obvious and temporary disabilities; examples: Those in leg cast and/or on crutches.

Handicapped conditions that require a physician's certificate:

1. Permanent but not obvious disabilities; examples: Those persons with heart disease, chronic lung disease, or an arthritic condition.

2. Temporary but not obvious disabilities; examples: From recent surgery or from a long-term illness.

3. We request the following information from the physician:

- A diagnosis.
- A recommendation for close-in parking.

c. A statement of whether this condition is temporary or permanent. Temporary conditions require that the length of time needed for special parking be specified.

Testing Center

One of the services of the counseling department is the Testing Center, which is located in X184. The Testing Center offers a wide variety of tests and inventories which sample student interests, abilities, aptitudes, achievements, and motivations. Information about tests can be obtained by calling 351-2432 or by contacting a counselor at 351-2255.

Inclement Weather and Cancellation of Parkland Classes

In the event of bad weather, every effort will be made to keep the College open. Borderline decisions are resolved in favor of holding classes. In fact, Parkland College will remain open on many occasions when elementary and secondary schools serving a large rural area will be closed.

Parkland College will use the services of radio and television to inform students if the College is to be closed due to weather conditions.

Listen to your radio or television for information regarding a Parkland closing. The following radio and television stations will be contacted if Parkland is to be closed:

Campus Security

A staff of trained and friendly security officers is on hand 24 hours a day to assist students and staff. Campus security has the primary purpose of protecting life and property, preventing crime and preserving peace and order.

It is estimated that a large percentage of the thefts which occur on College property could be avoided if these precautions are followed:

1. Lock your car. Put all your valuables in your trunk, including CB radios and tape decks.

2. Keep your personal property (books, handbags, briefcases, coats) within your view at all times.

3. Do not carry large sums of money.

4. Report all thefts to Campus Security immediately through the College switchboard operator.

The Community Recycling Center has begun a new program to pay individuals for glass containers. This program, run in cooperation with the Owens-Illinois Glass Co., in Streator, will encourage more consumers to recycle glass.

CRC's buyback program will now include glass containers as well as any beer or soda can. Redeemers will be paid 1 cent/lb. for all glass that meets the Center's requirements. Clear glass must be separated from green and brown glass and all metal, such as lids, rings, foil, and bands must be removed. Pre-crushed glass will not be accepted.

Glass must be prepared correctly to be usable at the glass factory. Although paper labels and plastics will burn off during the melting process, metal pieces cause 'blisters' or imperfections in new bottles as well as causing damage to the glass furnaces.

The addition of glass to the current beverage can buyback

Motorcycle training course hopes to lower death rate

Champaign, Ill. — The Illinois Department of Transportation has agreed to continue picking up the tab for motorcycle training program for the rest of 1982.

By offering free classes to novice motorcyclists, the program aims to reduce the number of cyclist deaths in the state. The University of Illinois offers classes on its campus and at 14 other locations in 22 east-central Illinois counties, and four other universities provide instruction in other regions.

Bruce Creamer, a lecturer in the U. of I. department of health and safety education and an instructor in the program since 1976, coordinates the courses.

"Right now we have 35 instructors who each have passed a 50-hour course given at the U. of I.," he said.

"They guide novice and some experienced motorcyclists through eight hours of classroom work and 12 hours of practice on motorcycles.

"We are trying to cut the annual death rate of some 200 motorcyclists in Illinois by helping novice riders learn to drive as safely as possible," Creamer said.

The state's Transportation Department said money for the program was made available under the provisions of the Illinois Cycle Rider Safety Training Act. The department has approved funding the program for six months and is expected to continue approving it for 12-month periods, Creamer said.

Since 1976, reports show that some 7,650 east-central Illinois riders each have received 20 hours of instruction through the program.

The classes are available to persons living in Illinois who are 16 years or older and who have a valid automobile drivers license or instruction permit.

The 20-hour course is offered free of charge and consists of both classroom and on-cycle instruction. Motorcycles and helmets are provided for the student's use.

Participants can enroll by calling (217) 333-6239.

Rehearsals beginning for Community 'Messiah'

The Choral Union, under the direction of Sandy Pondy, and the Orchestra, directed by Jack Ranney, will be rehearsing on Mondays from 7-9 p.m. at Parkland in rooms C148 and C140 beginning August 30.

Another Choral Union group, composed mainly of students but open to community members, will meet on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays at noon to rehearse the same material in preparation for the "Messiah" production.

Community members who wish to participate may choose to join the choir or orchestra on a no-fee basis or for one credit hour of Music 140-080 or 145-080 for a $17 fee. Sheet music for the "Messiah" will be available at the first rehearsal.

Another Parkland musical group, the Camerata, which sings Madrigals and chamber music, is holding auditions on Tuesday, August 24, and Thursday, August 26 from 11 a.m.-noon in C144 or by appointment. Call the Parkland College Communications Division.

Johansen leaving his mark on rock 'n roll

by Mark Hieftje-Conley

David Johansen has taken a lot of criticism over the years for being too much of one thing or too little of another, while all this time he traveled the straight and narrow path.

Folks have tried to label him as a transvestite, pop star, punk godfather and teen idol. I, myself, am guilty of trying to place David Johansen in a mold that he just won't fit. Meanwhile, he kept cranking out albums and building his reputation as one of the best showmen in current rock-n-roll. It took me most of my young adult life and a half dozen New York Doll and David Johansen albums, plus a visit to a live Johansen show to make me realize that this man is what rock was meant to be. He is rock-n-roll, past, present, and future.

When I say this, I don't mean glam-rock, or new wave, or heavy metal; those all have their place. They give us variety and keep us from reverting back to our complacent country roots. I am speaking here of rockers like Chuck Berry, Little Richard, Lou Reed, and Bruce Springsteen and the spirit that they represent.

David Johansen in concert, and David Johansen's new live album, "Live It Up," truly portray the essence of what I am trying to say. From the Dolls first album to this most recent one, David just wanted to have a little fun, and from time to time, slip into a slightly romantic vein.

Although Johansen is not playing with his best back-up band (no one can match Johnny Thunder's screeching guitars and off-key vocals, despite what Dave Marsh may say) the collection of musicians he does have is more than adequate.

All of the phases of David Johansen's bespeckled life are packed into this live disc. David's solo albums are given space on the LP. "Funky But Chick," "Melody," "Bohemian Love Pad," and "Donna" are among his originals. Reaching back to a personal favorite, and a Johansen/Thunder composition, "Personality Crisis" is as current as it was in 1972 when the original Dolls made it famous. A medley of classic titles are paid homage here: "We Gotta Get Out of This Place," "Don't Bring Me Down," and "It's My Life" are all good old Animal tunes and they all get a royal treatment.

Perhaps the only weakness of the album rests on the fact that none of Johansen's crowd rapport is depicted. His relationship with his audience spans music, on aural and oral planes, and the latter two are left out in this album. The sleeve photos try to give a visual representation, but they seem to fall a little short.

You'll have to forgive me for being a little out of synch and for trying to classify David Johansen for such a long time. It was a stupid mistake and I promise to be more careful in the future. David Johansen, on the other hand, has made very few mistakes, if any at all. If "Live It Up" is any indication, he won't be making any more in the future and neither will his fans and critics.

From now on it will be obvious that he's one of the best showmen in rock-n-roll; PAST, PRESENT, and FUTURE.

No lazy crowds at Queen concerts

by Ken White

Queen and opening act Billy Squire appeared at Popular Creek, near Chicago, earlier this month. Loud drumming is as evident in Billy's show as on his records, and his newest album, "Emotions in Motion," is a real rocker.

Best songs of the set were, "It Keeps You Rockin'" and "Listen to the Heart Beat." His newest recordings, "Everybody Wants You" and the album title cut both got great standing ovations.

Everyone in the audience joined in on his second encore, "The Stroke," singing along to the whole song. Billy Squire went over great and everyone seemed to be enjoying themselves.

Then, opening with "Flash," Queen hit the stage.

The hyper, high-strung, antics of Freddie Mercury, coupled with his tight spins, outstanding light show and stop watch precision, make this band a must to see in concert.

With the people in the palm of his hand by the third song, "Fat Bottom Girls," Mercury encouraged the crowd to join in on "Now I'm Here."

At the mid-point of the set, everyone was singing and dancing to "Crazy Little Thing Called Love" and "Under Pressure."

The smiles and laughter of everyone trying to sing "Bohemian Rhapsody" was great. The next song, "Tie Your Mother Down," begins and ends with many blinding explosions. This was easily the hottest song they did all night. The place went wild.

Red-handed, whistles gone, and throats hoarse, "We will Rock You/We are the Champions" is played with complete audience participation. (Standing room only).

If only Queen would play the Assembly Hall. You'll never catch a lazy crowd at a Queen concert.

'Oh-teh!'

by Jimm Scott

I am not given to rave reviews, but after listening to Eddie Murphy's first release on Columbia Records I am strongly tempted to change my ways.

Murphy, a star of the new "Saturday Night Live" is only 21, but the variety of his characters is wide. Included on the album are Mister Robinson, James Brown, Annie, Muhammad Ali, Velvet Jones and Little Richard Simmons, who sings:

"Well, it's one for the money—
two for the show—
I know a woman whose butt hangs low"—

And, if that isn't enough, there is the everpopular Buckwheat from the Little Rascals.

This record shows that Murphy is not just an impersonator exclusively. At one point he wonders aloud what the Pope said when he was shot, and later asks: "Has anyone here ever been hit by a car?"

Murphy has an array of humorous childhood memories about such things as a drinking father, a senile grandmother, his childhood friends, dead birds and getting beat up.

The album also contains two musical numbers, "Boogie in your Butt" and "Enough is Enough," a duet by Little Richard Simmons and Buckwheat. "Oh-Teh!"

As a record reviewer I don't feel that I've done my job because I can't find anything-wrong with this album. But it's gonna be a big one, so get it early. Oh-Teh?

Hot weather football practice can cause serious problems

CHAMPAIGN, Ill.—Hot-weather summer can be a dangerous time to begin practicing cold-weather football.

This warning was given by John "Skip" Pickering, head trainer for University of Illinois athletics, as both high schools and colleges begin football conditioning practice sessions.

Coaches and trainers are particularly concerned with heat illness and loss of weight through heavy perspiration, Pickering said.

The three heat illnesses are cramps, heat exhaustion and — the most dangerous of all — heat stroke, which can be an extension of heat exhaustion. Cramps usually are eased by letting the athlete rest, Pickering said.

"Then we advise them on their salt intake and maybe try to get them on potassium, because a lot of times a lack of potassium will cause cramps. That means eating bananas, tomatoes, things like that."

Heat exhaustion brings profuse sweating, the trainer said. Those afflicted will "feel lethargic, dizzy, don't know where they are, complain of being real hot." If untreated, they stop perspiring, their skin turns red and they usually lose consciousness.

"Once a person stops sweating and goes into true heat stroke, the thing that's paramount is that you are in a life-threatening situation," Pickering said. "These people have got to be taken to a medical facility as soon as possible and treated quickly. Statistics show that if they don't get to a facility quickly, seven out of 10 will die."

Lack of perspiration is the key symptom to watch for, he said.

"It's very important that when a student quits sweating — totally — then you've got a real problem. You've got to cool them down and get them to a hospital as quickly as you can."

As for the players losing weight in practice, Pickering said the loss should be kept below 4 percent of body weight. Using a 200-pound athlete as an example, he equated an eight-pound weight loss with four quarts of water.

"If he has lost four quarts of water, he is not going to respond and react and be very effective in practice," he said. Not only does the ability to be coherent and comprehend what is going on decrease, but "that's when kids get hurt and that's also when you start getting into the problem of heat illness."

Pickering recommends plain water for liquid intake instead of commercial drinks, and heavily salted food instead of salt tablets. Both the water and salt are absorbed more quickly that way, he said.

Coaches, especially those in high schools, have become more knowledgeable about sports health and safety in recent years, he said. As a result, contact sports are much safer.

"It's much better than it was, say, five years ago," Pickering said, "and it's going to get even better."

Competition is available

Varsity

Varsity competition at Parkland College is available in many inter-collegiate sports for both men and women. The College is a member of the Central Illinois Athletic Conference and a member of the National Junior College Athletic Association.

This year, the Cobras will field women's teams in basketball, softball, and volleyball. In addition, Parkland will have varsity competition for men in basketball, baseball, track and field, cross country, and golf.

Contact the Director of Athletics or any coach for further information.

Intramurals

The College offers a wide range of intramural sports for both men and women. The intramural program involves a less formalized type of competition than is obtained in the inter-collegiate program but a more formal competitive structure than found in physical education classes.

Intramural sports for this year are touch football, basketball, softball, volleyball, tennis, golf, track and field, jogging, one-on-one basketball, and other activities. Students are encouraged not only to participate but also to assist in the development and operation of the program.

For further information, contact the Intramural Office located in Room X159.

Co-editors appointed

The Prospectus is happy to announce the appointment of sports co-editors for the Fall semester.

Sports editing duties will be shared by Karen Connelly, and Mark Brownfield.

Connelly, a second-year visual arts student, has a strong interest in all sports activities but admits to being partial to track and field events.

Brownfield, a second-year business student, was active in baseball and golf while an Urbana High School student. He is currently a pitcher for the Parkland Cobras baseball team.

We are happy to welcome these two new additions to the Prospectus staff.
